Railroad News

The Harrington district was well represented at the Delmar centennial mentioned in this column last week and we feel sure it would be of interest to our readers to know something about the present status of some 25 retired railroad men and a like number still active here and at Felton who have done a lot to make their homes attractive and their communities better places to live in.

To bring this about, we propose to run an individual story on each one in this column starting next week and ask that each be prepared to furnish the writer some pertinent information when he calls.

We asked a businessman last week how things were going and he said he had a lot of "bad bills" and the steel strike was not helping much. He then wanted to know how it was affecting the railroad and was told they too were hit pretty hard but still had a lot of "good bills" right here in Harrington that helped the railroad and are now reaping the benefits of happy retirement.

Among these are Bill Davis, Bill Jester, Bill Manship, Bill McCabe and Bill Wheeler.

We'll hear more about one of these Bills next week.

Cooking in Foil

By Judith A. Phel, Extension Nutrition Specialist, University of Maryland

Cooking with foil is a present day adaptation of an old method that of wrapping food in wet leaves, husks, seaweed or wet clay before cooking.

This method keeps juices in and allows food to cook evenly. It also keeps charcoal flavors out, so if you want the flavor, forget the foil.

Cooking in foil is convenient for dishes you don't want broiled or roasted and is an easy way for many fruits and vegetables.

Use heavy aluminum foil or a double thickness of lighter weights. This is the way to make foil envelopes that are best for keeping juices inside foil while cooking.

Use a sheet of aluminum foil large enough to allow a three-fold crimping of all open edges. Place food on the sheet about midway between center and one edge.

Fold the foil in half and crimp the three open edges, making three folds on each edge to form an air-tight envelope. Mold the foil to fit food after it is sealed. It's best not to wrap food too tightly.

Place the package on coals—don't place a package on a coal-burning fire which may burn through foil.

When food is done, tear off the three crimped edges, zipper fashion. (continued on back page)

City to Resurface Eight Streets, Some of Which Are to Be Curbed

Creighton, Stack and Knotts Are 1-2-3 In Delmar Centennial Foot Race

By Keith S. Burgess

Smooth striding John Creighton of East New Market, Md., and Wilmington, Del., was the winner of the Delmar Centennial 3-mile foot race in 15 minutes and 43 seconds. Creighton, 18, has been the Delaware High School mile champion for the past two years and plans to enter Swarthmore College this fall.

West Stack of Seaford, 18, who last year set a new freshman record for the two mile run at the University of Delaware, was a few yards back in second place. Stack has been bothered by a throat infection which prevented him from running in last week's three mile run at Slaughter Beach also won by Creighton.

Harry Knotts, 15, a junior at Harrington High School, led his older more experienced rivals for more than two miles and finally finished in third place.

John Murphy of Bishop's Head, Md., was fourth followed by John Hollis of Seaford and Shannon Dawson of South Dorchester High School, Md. Don Marvel, of Easton, was seventh with Clarence Hackett, a freshman at Harrington High, surprising with a good performance to finish eighth. Dave Voss and Ken Hoffmann of Harrington also did very well in the race.

George "Runner" Reyahn, 67 year-old former European endurance ace from Felton, surpassed his excellent performance of last week at Slaughter Beach. George ran the first mile alone at Delmar in 7 minutes and 25 seconds. The rest of the field then joined him while he ran two more miles completing his three mile stint in the neighborhood of 23 minutes and 25 seconds. Centennial officials announced that George would be given a special award consisting of a clock with details of the event engraved thereon.

A lad named Siegfried of Delmar furnished additional interest when, seeing that no one from Delmar was entered, he took off his shirt, shoes and stockings and competed in the race. Although completely unprepared he defeated three of the other runners and showed much promise.

The race was held over a rectangular 1 mile course through the streets of Delmar. Several thousand people saw the race, as it was held just before the big parade. Trophies were awarded to the first six finishers.

The writer wishes to thank the officials of the Kent and Sussex Fair, the "Big Thursday" celebration at Slaughter Beach and the Delmar Centennial for giving the young men of the Delmarva Peninsula an opportunity to compete in these footraces. Heretofore, most high school athletes in this area allowed themselves to get out of condition during the summer since there was no track and field competition closer than Philadelphia or Baltimore. It is hoped that next summer more organizations in this area will see their way clear to sponsoring more activity of this type for the youth of Delmarva.

Saturday night's races were thrillers again as usual.

During the first micro midget heat race, Pat Fry driving Jim Cain's micro midget No. 101 was well in the lead, and of course, as everyone knows "Smiley" Fry sticks close to the inside, and during the eighth lap he hit one of the settled tires on the southern turn and spun out into the infield. Well that goes with racing, Pat.

Youth Injured When Truck Overturns

A 17-year-old Salisbury, Md., youth was injured Tuesday night when a small pick-up truck he was driving overturned on Route 284 about one-and-a-half miles north of Harrington.

The driver, Curtis R. Miller, was treated by a Harrington physician for contusions of the body.

State police said

Is your garden suffering from mid-summer slump?
No. This isn't a TV commercial. But it is a pep-talk.
It's pretty easy to let things go. It's hot. Either it's too dry or raining too much. Bugs are biting, not only the vegetables, but you as well. The blight may have hit the tomatoes or vine crops.

You're the Boss—Or Should Be
So why not let nature take over?

Why not? Because you're the boss. Or at least you should be. And it's not so terribly much work, either, if you do it right. The old timer who said "work well done never needs doing over" must have forgotten pest control.

There are three kinds of garden pests: bugs, plant diseases and weeds. But if you keep after them with insecticides, fungicides and cultivation, you can be the boss.

A bug-riddled bean crop is about the same as none at all. Blighted tomatoes or cucumbers are useless. If weeds take over, you'll get only half a crop.

It's as simple as that: either you're the boss, or you might just as well not try to garden.

After the crop has been harvested, it's a good idea to pull or cut the crop residue. This will help cut down the number of pests carried over to next season.

A compost pile is a good place to put old plants. Properly cared for, a compost pile will provide a supply of organic matter for next year's garden. A lot of gardeners wouldn't be without one!

How to Make Compost
In the first place, it's work. But since almost everybody has to get rid of their leaves, grass clippings and garden refuse, why not make it into compost? Here's how:

Dig a shallow pit. Or if you'd prefer, make an enclosure with chicken wire above ground. It'd really be best to have two places for compost. We'll tell you why later.

Dump all your garden refuse, clippings and leaves in. Keep the top flat, so it'll hold the rain water that helps it rot. If there's a dry spell, soaking the compost with water will help decompose it.

But it takes more than organic matter to make good compost. You'll need both lime and fertilizer. Sprinkle 1 pound of lime over every 4 to 5 cubic feet of organic material. Each time you add a foot in height to your pile, add an inch of topsoil. Sprinkle this with 1 pound of a complete fertilizer (such as 10-10-10) to every 4 to 5 cubic feet of compost. You'll need lots of nitrogen to help the compost rot.

Of course, your compost pile will settle. Fork it over, to mix it well, every 3 weeks. And keep it moist and help it rot.

Here's where the advantage of having two compost piles comes in: you can start a second pile while the first one is rotting down. This way you don't have to add new material to old, which will slow down the rotting process.

Next year, if things go right, you'll have a lot of valuable organic matter to use as a mulch or organic fertilizer.

Preserve their Beauty
Ever try arrangements of dried flowers, grasses or weeds? Chances are you've seen and admired them. They're easy to make. But you've got to start now to preserve their beauty.

Gather the plants you want when they look most attractive. Hang them upside down in a dark, dry and well ventilated place. Most attics will do.

When fully dried, you've got material for good fall arrangements.

All it takes is a little imagination — and foresight.

Gardener's Notes
As soon as the peaches are picked, rake up and bury any fallen fruit. This will help avoid brown rot next year.

If you haven't done it already, better prune old dead fruiting canes from the raspberry patch. Next year's fruit forms on canes that were new this season. Canes that bore fruit this year are the ones that should be pruned.

You can perk up your lawn with 10 to 15 pounds of 10-10-10 or 10-6-4 fertilizer on each 1000 square feet. This will give you a greener lawn this fall, and one that will go through the winter in better shape. Apply 50 pounds of lime per 1000 square feet every 4 or 5 years. Your best guide is a free soil test. See your county agent for details.

1959 "Season" Best And Longest Ever

The 1959 "season" not only promises to be one of best ever experienced by Delaware's coastal resorts but also the longest, notes the Delaware State Development Department.

For many years, the "season", as far as Delaware resorts were concerned, ended on Labor Day, and early September brought a peace and quiet that went uninterrupted until the return of summer and summer vacationists. However, in recent years, the pattern has changed with the season being gradually extended, enabling late vacation visitors to enjoy the warm weather, bright sunshine, and cool, pleasant evenings that characterize September on the Delaware Coast.

For Rehoboth Beach, currently experiencing its best year as a resort, this will definitely be its longest season.

To begin with, Labor Day, this year, falls on the latest date possible, which, of course, helps. Then, the promise of good weather, good swimming and good fishing, through September into October, plus an encouraging number of reservations past the holiday period, have prompted operators of many of the area's tourist facilities to push back "closing dates."

In order to assure sufficient patronage to warrant further extension of season many of the resort area housing facilities will put "off-season" rates in effect in mid-September. These rates, providing worthwhile savings, will, of course, remain in effect until "closing date", which in the case of some of the hotels and motels is still an undetermined autumn date.

The biggest test yet made of the "off-season" draw of Rehoboth Beach will be afforded by the area's newest facilities—The Atlantic Sands, New Henlopen Motor Lodge and Dinner Bell Motel—which, according to the Development Department, are planning continuous operation through 1959-60.

These three new facilities, completed this summer at a total cost of around $700,000, are equipped for year-around operation having automatic heat as well as air-conditioning. Wall-to-wall carpeting, floor-to-ceiling draperies and insulation that seals out wintry winds as well as summer heat are just a few features of these modern new facilities.

The 115 rooms provided by these three new motels added to other year-around-occupancy facilities in the area creates more than 200 first class rooms available regardless of season.

Development Department, which has promotion of "tourism" as one of its functions, reports that an unusually large number of inquiries concerning the Delaware resort area and its off-season facilities have been received recently indicating perhaps that the Rehoboth Beach sector may also have its biggest fall season in 1959.

Delawareans to Vote for Flowers In October

During the month of October, Delawareans, regardless of age, will have an opportunity to vote in a most unique election advised the Delaware State Development Department.

This election, according to the state information agency, doesn't involve a single campaign speech or expenditure of one cent of public funds. This is undoubtedly due to the fact that Delawareans, along with residents of the other 49 states, will be voting for flowers—not people.

For the past forty years, members of Congress have attempted to settle upon one flower as the National Flower. Inasmuch as Congressmen, like most other folks, are partial to those things found in abundance in their home states, a variety of flowers have been proposed as the Nation's Floral Emblem. During the current session of Congress, the rose, marigold, black-eyed susan, carnation and Shasta daisy, as well as corn tassel and plain old ordinary grass, have been the subjects of bills introduced for the purpose of designating a National Flower.

Early next year, members of Congress will have access to the broadest sampling of public opinion ever undertaken when results of the National Flower Election are made known to them. While they won't be obligated to designate the poll's No. 1 choice as the National Flower, it is quite possible that appropriate legislation, based on the choice of a majority of those who participated in October's Flower Election, may follow.

Anyhow—the Development Department feels that all Delawareans should be made acquainted with the fact that they can participate in the nationwide balloting and, in so doing, possibly influence the choice of a floral emblem for these United States.

A Delawarean, Mrs. James Rhind, of 210 Winston Avenue, Elmhurst, will be signally honored at Los Angeles, this Friday afternoon, when she is elevated to the office of national president of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars. A reception, Friday evening, for the newly installed president will bring to a close the 46th annual national convention of the V.F.W. Zwaanendael Museum Notes thony Potter as vice chairman, Mr. Leon deValinger, Jr., State Archivist, as secretary; Mrs. Dorothy Givan as curator and Miss Linda Viden as receptionist.

Before the meeting, the museum staff called attention to the featured china and silver exhibits arranged for the summer months and in the report given by the curator, she emphasized the ever increasing interest as shown by the offers of display material and by the number of visitors to the museum. Over twelve thousand persons were received to view the exhibits during the fiscal year, 1958-1959, representing forty-seven states and twenty-eight foreign countries.

The budget and building upkeep during 1959 - 1960 were the principal items for consideration at this meeting. Those members attending, in addition to the officers, were Honorable Howard H. Dickerson from Laurel, Mrs. Howard W. Furniss from Milford, Mrs. Robert H. Orr from Greenville, Mr. William Smith from Dover and Mrs. Harry C. Boden from Newark. Mrs. Boden, who has for years been interested in the preservation of Delawareans and has presented a lovely sampler to the Zwaanendael Museum, is a new member of the Commission appointed by the Governor. She was cordially welcomed by the other members.

The regular visiting hours at the Zwaanendael Museum are weekdays, Tuesdays through Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Sundays and holidays, 12:30 to 5:30 p.m., closed Mondays. Holiday hours will be observed on Labor Day, Sept. 7.

Buying Children's School Shoes

With school starting again many parents are buying shoes for their children and the chances are that within an amazingly short time the shoes won't fit anymore, according to clothing specialist, Janet Reed, University of Delaware.

She said about 80 per cent of our children have something wrong with their feet by the time they reach high school. Most of the trouble can be attributed to poor fitting shoes.

"By the time our youngsters reach ten years of age, half of them are well on their way toward foot problems!"

The major trouble is the fast growth of a child's feet. For a baby around eight months old, you may need to buy him new shoes every month. From 15 months to two years old, junior will probably need a new pair every two to three months.

In fact it is usually a mistake to buy a youngster two pairs of shoes at once. A common error is to have a good pair which doesn't get much use and then the youngster gets them after they are already too small, and wears them until they wear out, whether they fit or not!

Children's feet are very pliable and can be deformed by poor fitting shoes without serious discomfort to the youngster, so the only way to guard against this is to be sure the shoes fit when they are purchased and to change them as often as necessary to keep up with the child's growth.

Redness or marks on the feet when shoes and socks are taken off may indicate poor fitting shoes. Any rough, hardened skin may indicate trouble. If the toe rubs the end of the shoe it is too small. He should have half to an inch to spare. Have your child fitted by a reliable shoe dealer, Miss Reed recommended.

Don't hand down shoes. Foot development is not the same with every child. Hand-me-downs are a saving in the pocketbook at the cost of a misfortune for the child.

Infants should have a soft soled shoe with no heel. Babies' feet develop better without shoes until they have learned to stand.

Toddlers should have firm but flexible soles with little or no heel.

Flexible soles and uppers are better than stiff shoes, she said.

Play shoes or canvas sneakers should not be worn for long periods of time because they do not give enough support.

Delaware Food Market Report

September is better breakfast month. What about the breakfast you eat or the ones eaten by your family — are they adequate or are they the neglected meal of the day? A report from the U. S. Department of Agriculture indicates that everyone needs a breakfast containing a source of protein, such as milk or eggs, to prevent symptoms of hunger, fatigue, weakness, headache, and the inability to concentrate which frequently occur when poor breakfasts are eaten.

A good breakfast consists of milk, eggs, cereal and fruit or a combination of the four foods, but all ways include milk or eggs and two foods from any of the other groups mentioned. How does your breakfast check out?

Meat supplies in general have risen to arrest a 3-year-up-trend in prices to consumer, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports. The large supply of pork is helping meat prices come down. This is evident at local markets this weekend. First grade bacon is down a penny, second grade bacon is also a penny cheaper, averaging 55c a pound. During weekend specials both grades are cheaper.

Weekend special sales feature pork along with lamb, beef and chicken. No price changes show up on veal however.

Eggs are again a real bargain. Grade A medium size eggs are as low as 44c a dozen and average 15c a dozen cheaper than Grade A large eggs. This big supply of medium sizes is expected to last well into the fall season. Medium size eggs weigh on the average, only one eighth less than "large" eggs.

The fresh vegetable picture remains about the same. Tomatoes are beginning to decrease in supply since the season is about over. Sweet potatoes are arriving from near-by areas and prices are ranging from 12 to 23c a lb., depending on size and quality. The "winter vegetables", cauliflower, broccoli, cabbage and onions are just beginning to show up in better supply.

The peach season is fast coming to a close, however, there are plenty of peaches available at reasonable prices on our local markets. If you are planning to can, preserve or freeze peaches do it now.

More different kinds of apples are appearing on the fruit counters now, but the most plentiful is the big green cooking apple. Other fruits that are plentiful this week are cantaloupes, pears, plums, honeydews, grapes and watermelon. Enjoy watermelon now, as the season is about over.

Cheaper by the Two-Dozen

Consumers buy more eggs when they are sold in two-dozen egg cartons than in one-dozen packages, reports extension poultryman, Ralph P. Barwick, University of Delaware.

He said research in Michigan State University with supermarkets in the Lansing, Mich., area, showed that when eggs were packaged in two-dozen cartons at one to one-half cents cheaper per dozen, more eggs were sold than when single dozen cartons were used, even when the price advantage stayed the same.

Deep Litter for Healthy Chickens

Giving attention to details such as deep litter in the laying house is the thing that places one poultryman ahead of another says county agricultural agent George K. Vapaa.

When you have the top possible number of birds in your laying house the job of keeping up with the moisture and ventilation problems gets bigger too.

The best way to start a built-up litter program is to put four inches of new, clean litter on the floor at housing time, Mr. Vapaa said. After a month or six weeks add another two inches.

The litter should be stirred at least once a week to give the birds a chance to move it around and break it up. Two inches of litter should be added every month.

Wet spots around fountains and along hoppers have to be removed from time to time, Mr. Vapaa said.

Caked, hard litter covered with droppings will produce disease, death, higher costs and less production Mr. Vapaa warned.

Put Freshening Heifers in Herd

Fall-freshening heifers should be added to the milking herd at least three to eight weeks before expected freshening, says county agent George K. Vapaa.

This helps the animal grow accustomed to the usual barn routine and enables them to find their place in the herd before the critical calving period. Such a practice also helps in proper feeding.

Most important of all, Mr. Vapaa says, an early introduction to the herd allows the rumen microorganisms to adjust to the types of feed used for the milking herd. On many farms the feeding program for young stock and the milking herd differ considerably, particularly in kinds of forage or pasture used, and amounts of grain fed.

Mr. Vapaa suggest feeding 4-8 pounds of grain daily during the eight weeks prior to calving. About 7-10 days before the expected freshening increase the amount of grain to 8-12 pounds, depending upon the probable production of the animals. Continue this rate of grain feeding through freshening and for one week after calving; then adjust according to production and growth requirements.

Mrs. Vapaa says dairymen should try to accustom the heifers to the milking routine. Handling the heifers before freshening will help break them to milking practices.

Bulletin on Stain Removing Out

"Removing Stains from Fabrics" is the name of a new U. S. Department of Agriculture bulletin available to homemakers now, according to a report from the office of county home demonstration agent Florence Y.

Smith. She said the bulletin deals with home methods of removing stains and discusses in detail the many kinds of fabrics and treatments.

The publication tells how to use bleaches, solvents, chemical stain removers, grease solvents, as well as detailed information on treatments for both washable and nonwashable materials.

The back section of the 30-page bulletin covers specific stains such as candy, wax, blood, blueing fruit, crayon, coffee, chewing gum, egg, cosmetics, iodine and many others.

Mrs. Smith has free copies of the office at the Dover Post Office or call in your request. The number is RE 6-1448.

said. Fifty acres of alfalfa and 50 acres of double crop silage will provide all the forage needed.

For the seeding, Mitchell suggests the following treatments: Plant one and a half bushels of oats with 20 pounds of crimson clover per acre. Put on about 300 pounds of 5-15-15 or a 6-18-18 fertilizer when you seed. Topdress next March with 500 pounds of 10-10-10 per acre.

"This is a lot of fertilizer," Mitchell said. "But 25 tons is a lot of silage. This is what you have to do if you are going to get twice as much crop off an acre as you used to."

Trinity W.S.C.S. Notes

Due to alterations being made in the church, the first fall meeting of Trinity Methodist Church Women's Society of Christian Service was held in the parsonage Tuesday evening, Sept. 1. The program was presented by Mrs. William W. Shaw, and devotions were led by Mrs. John Walls.

Mrs. Earl Sylvester announced that arrangements have been made for the Society to take three study courses this year. The first, "Role of the United Nations in World Affairs" will be taught by Mrs. Ellwood Grubwell, and will begin in October.

All members wishing to attend the Dover District Educational Seminar in Seaford Sept. 22 were asked to contact Mrs. Frank C. O'Neal Jr., president, by Sept. 15.

A motion was adopted to buy lights for the new choir loft in honor of the Society's first president, Mrs. Harry Boyer.

Mrs. Harry Adkins gave the sunshine report, and Mrs. Shaw, parsonage committee member, told of the alterations that have been made in the parsonage during the summer.

The name of Mrs. Edith Hobbs Wheatley was unanimously voted to be added to the honorary list.

As chairman of the Sixth annual Bazaar, Mrs. Sylvester reported on its progress. She asked all members to make their donation to the apron booth during the month of September, if possible.

Mrs. William Swain and members of her circle furnished refreshments.

Double Silage System Yields 25 Tons Per Acre

If your silage corn is starting to turn brown you should be getting it in, according to agronomist William H. Mitchell, University of Delaware.

For the top total yield per acre corn is at the best stage to ensile when it is well dented. This is also called the hard-dough stage. The leaves should not be drying, too many dead leaves will allow too much air into the silage and will result in molding and poor quality.

Mitchell said that by getting your silage corn off now and seeding the field to a legume-grass mix, such as crimson clover and oats, for spring silage, you can get as much as 25 tons of feed per year acre.

Mitchell says a double silage system like this is the most productive feed program possible for dairymen when tied in with an alfalfa hay program.

For example, you can grow the roughage for 100 milk cows on 100 acres with such a program, he

Picnic is Best Outdoor Eating Fun

A picnic is still outdoor eating fun, though presently the spotlight centers on cookouts. A picnic has its advantages—it's ready to eat when you're ready. The charcoal embers take a long time to get just right for cooking when it's past your meal time.

To raise the lid on a picnic basket and find a complete meal looking so appetizing—that's a vacation for all the chefs in the family.

Maryland fried chicken, crisp, brown and ready-to-eat is the ideal dish for you to prepare ahead for picnic fun. It's good hot or cold and goes well with other picnic foods.

Pack a picnic for your next outdoor meal with fried chicken, potato salad, pickles, rolls, luscious red tomatoes and cup cakes.

By the time cool, crisp autumn days arrive, make fried chicken the feature article of your dinner enroute to the football game. It's an easy pick up food, even for the driver if you're trying to make the kick off.

Fry a Maryland produced chicken for a scoring point with family members or guests. You'll find them available at your favorite market and they're always fresh and tender meat.

Chicken is superior meat with high food value. Modern chickens are fast growing breeds that are raised on high energy feed. The chicken today goes to market at 8-9 weeks of age compared with 12 or 15 weeks just a decade ago.

More people are eating more chickens—evidence of how much consumers like the modern type birds.

Picnics are packed for your convenience and available from leading restaurants.

New Method for Determining Wheat History

Chairman William N. Hopkins of the Delaware Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee today announced a change in the method of determining wheat history acreage for farms that plant less than their allotment. The law is designed to help protect the future wheat allotments of farmers who underplant.

Under the new law, a farmer who plants no wheat for 1960 harvest may still obtain maximum history acreage credit for 1960 if his actual planted acreage of wheat in either 1958 or 1959—plus any acreage diverted from wheat under the Soil Bank program—was equal to 75 per cent of his wheat allotment.

If a farmer does not meet this requirement and wants to get maximum wheat history credit for 1960, then he must meet the 75 per cent planting requirement for 1960. In other words, by planting 75 per cent of his wheat allotment in any of the three years 1958, 1959, or 1960, the farmer assures himself of full history credit for 1960.

In addition, a farmer who is prevented from seeding wheat for the 1960 crop by unfavorable weather can preserve his maximum 1960 wheat history acreage credit if he notifies the county committee by Dec. 1, 1959 and the committee makes an official determination of this fact.

There has been no change in the law or regulations relating to history credit for farmers who overproduce their 1960 allotments, Mr. Hopkins said. Farmers who overplanted this year will receive history credit if they reduce this fall's acreage by the same amount as they overplanted last fall. They must also store the grain from the excess acreage until it is released by ASC.

Mr. Hopkins urges farmers who have any questions about these provisions to consult the county office in the short time that remains before winter wheat planting.

Trotters Stake At Brandywine Tomorrow Nite

The most lavish display of trotting talent to appear at Brandywine Raceway this year will be in full high-stepping view this Saturday, Sept. 5, as the track presents the $25,000-added Kent County Free For All. It's the final stake event of Brandywine's meet which ends after 10 more nights of racing.

Among the nominees are two of the richest trotters in harness racing history—Trader Horn and Charming Barbara, both from the public stable of No. 1 reinsman in the world, Billy Haughton.

Trader Horn, for his feats of accomplishment last year, which included winning four major stake events, was named "Aged Trotter of the Year." Riding the crest of even greater success and fame this year, he may again be bestowed with the honor of being named as the outstanding aged horse on the diagonal gait.

The Worthy Boy horse, 7-years-old, became the first American bred harness horse to race in international competition on home shores. He matched steps with the trotting echelon of Italy, France, Norway and other countries in the First International Trot, held on August 1 at Roosevelt Raceway, Westbury, N. Y. Although he didn't claim victory in the classic, won by French-bred Jamin, Trader Horn was a formidable third. He did surge to a blistering win over Jamin the following week, however, in another contest.

Owned by Arthur Nardin, of Miami and New York, Trader Horn was developed from a green trotter by Haughton and is some what of a miracle trotter among his racing constituents. He didn't race until 1956 at the age of four, and in that year won 16 of 27 starts. His first race was at Brandywine.

If he continues his winning ways, Trader Horn ($329,887) is a surefire bet to overtake Lord Steward ($338,831) as all-time winnings champ among trotters.

Charming Barbara, 5, with a 1:58.4 mile mark in a timed trial, was last year's leading money-winning mare with $68,430. By Rodney, she is owned by the Farmstead Acres of Brookville, N. Y.

Other nominees to the Kent County are: Sh Boom, which holds the Brandywine track trotting record; Jessica Colby; Lockheart Royal; Model Heir; Rich Colby; Sandlewood; Senator Frost; Sharpshooter; Shell Bomb; Silver Song; Spen Vic; Steamin' Demon; and Time Me.

The Kent County is one of the four richest FFA trots in the country, topped only by similar classics at Yonkers and Roosevelt Raceways.

Veterans News QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—I am a veteran of World War Two and I never have used my GI loan privilege. Someone told me the other day that the time for applying for a loan is running short. How much time do I have in which to apply?

A—World War II veterans have until July 25, 1960 to apply for GI loans, and up to a year after that to close the deal.

Q—I'm confused about the term "Korean veteran." What are the official time limits that determine whether or not a former member of the armed forces is considered to be a veteran of the Korean Conflict?

A—The Korean Conflict, by official definition, extends from June 27, 1950 to January 31, 1955. Any veteran with all or part of his service between these two dates is considered a Korea veteran.

Q—As a veteran with a service connected disability rated 50-percent I have been receiving extra compensation for a dependent daughter. Recently she passed age 18. Was I suppose to report this to VA?

A—Yes. As soon as your daughter reached age 18 she was no longer legally a dependent. VA is not permitted to pay your extra compensation for her, and money received for her after age 18 must be returned.

Q—I'm thinking of converting from my GI term insurance to a permanent plan. How many permanent plans are there to choose among?

A—There are six permanent GI insurance plans: Ordinary Life, 20-Year Payment, 30-Year Payment, 20-Year Endowment, Endowment at Age 60, Endowment at Age 65. You may convert to any one of these plans, or a combination of them. Details at any VA office.

The Builders Class of Asbury Methodist Church will have a covered dish supper for the members, families and dates at the home of Mrs. Thomas J. Clarke on Paradise Alley Road, Saturday (tomorrow) evening at 5:30.

She has written to her mother that she is having a wonderful time, having visited with them the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia and other points of interest.

Miss Barbara Lynn DeFord is spending a few days with her grandfather, Frank DeFord, at Denton.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Maloney enjoyed a recent weekend in New York City, Long Island and Brooklyn visiting many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hatfield were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Whitmore. After church they had lunch at the Whitmores, then drove to Millsboro to inspect the lovely home Mr. Whitmore is in the process of building, then on to Bethany Beach and Rehoboth and back to the Whitmore for late Sunday dinner.

Sen. Frear Sponsor Of Wreath Bill

United States Senator J. Allen Frear, Jr. introduced legislation to exempt home workers who make natural holly wreaths from the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

The Delaware lawmaker explained that this measure—which he also offered in the last Congress—was needed to overcome an administrative ruling by the Labor Department which brought the holly-wreath activity under the terms of the Fair Labor Act.

In presenting the proposal the Senator described the procedures of this traditional Sussex County business and said: "The whole affair is, for all practical purposes, a wholesome family project which one would like to think would be encouraged rather than limited or prohibited."

Senator Frear told his colleagues that his measure was not an attack on the Fair Labor Standards Act which he called a progressive and - when appropriately applied - a needed statute. He added: "However, in this instance it seems that the government has simply 'progressed' the farmers right out of the holly wreath business."

Joining Senator Frear as co-sponsors of the bill were Senator John J. Williams and the two Maryland Senators, Mr. Butler and Mr. Beall.

STRAIGHT TALK

In Washington, the Hershey city (60% chocolate and 40% nuts), nearly one out of five children born last year was born out of wedlock. According to a recent survey, 1,600 white and 8,700 colored children were born out of wedlock in North Carolina in 1957. The Florida Welfare Department has 68,290 dependent children on its rolls, 18,701 of whom are white and 49,500 Negro. Assistance is paid for the care of 13,476 "illegitimate" Florida children of which 12,862 are Negroes. (Many of our colored brethren are inclined to be careless about integrating with the opposite sex without benefit of clergy).

In the Welfare State, good breeding merely means quantity. Mothers with as many as 10 or 12 children born out of wedlock get as much as $330 a month. "Human Events" reports that one particularly fertile female in California has propagated a cannibal commune (formerly called a family) of 19 human events for which she reportedly gets $11,000 government money this year. This constantly-expecting litter is expected to "settle" for more than $250,000 from the taxpayers in the next 10 years. By the time she finds out what's causing all those blessed events she'll be ready for old age assistance. Sin does not pay? In the Welfare State it does.

Go Forth and Sin and Win

In California, prior to 1949, a father had to be "missing" three years before his "family" could get Aid-to-Needy-Children (ANC) money. During these three years the family got "indigent" relief from the state and county. And then, soft-hearted, easy-touch Uncle Sam took over half of the cost. The kiss-and-tell brigade got new life: 10 years later the number of illegitimate and claimed-to-be-illegitimate children in California has fantastically increased from less than 50,000 to more than 200,000—more than 400%. The child and its mother receive ANC benefits until the child becomes 18 years of age. One official has estimated that more than 60% of the cases are fraudulent. They take us for better or for worse.

These government-sponsored hot-pillow houses are in a breeding contest with the U. S. Treasury, making hay in the hay. White or black, they're mostly not cases of unfortunate girls who just made a mistake, but of pros who're cohabitating openly for pleasure or cash.

Unlike the case of the mountaineer who put a silencer on his shotgun because he wanted his daughter to have a quiet wedding, these people never had any intention of marriage. Welfare departments throughout the country continue to write thousands of monthly checks so the merry, sinful mothers can keep their babies in their sordid hands. Not only are the sinners not punished, they are actually encouraged: the more they sin, the more they win. Nowadays the scarlet letter has a government check in it. The babies usually don't have even the benefit of a common law husband as a father. As the foreman of the Grand Jury in New York reported, "the children never see, or know, their real fathers; only the new faces of the mother's boy friends . . . many of these children are bred and led into a life of delinquency and crime." There are many cases where out-of-wedlock children produce out-of-wedlock children. Bastardy to bastardy in three generations at taxpayers' expense.

Many mothers having as many as a dozen illegitimates have refused to name the fathers of any of them, because to do so would be to lose public assistance. Bastardy proceedings are virtually extinct. The only paternalism charges being made nowadays are against you—the taxpayer. You pay, and pay, and pay.

At the present rate and under present methods, experts figure we'll be keeping up one million American illegitimates by 1965. Overall, it's costing American taxpayers $210 million a year to support more than 300,000 children of illegitimate parents. Total government aid to dependent children costs, and feeds inflation to the tune of, $1.1 billion a year.

Some political do-gooders are trying to take welfare completely away from states. Why should illegitimate babies, they ask, be worth more in one state than another? They want to federally standardize or "fair-trade" baby prices. The Federal Government has warned that states cannot deny aid to children because of the circumstances of their birth. For instance, Uncle Sam, father of all, threatens to withhold all federal aid to dependents in any state which reduces or withholds relief payments to unwed mothers of more than one or two children.

For the government to fail to punish the offenders and make them work to take care of their offspring makes a farce of justice. To force the rest of us to ante up for the shackled up is a violation of our civil rights. To force every taxpayer to adopt every out-of-wedlock baby born, regardless of race, religion or circumstance, is a police state technique. Charity, justice, and retribution should begin at home. Nowhere does the Constitution say the sins of the fathers shall be visited on all us children, unto the third generation.

Less Government and More Private Responsibility

The reason public assistance has become a back-breaking, cheating, loafer-producing farce is because the Federal Government took it over. Under the federal law, no one, not even the County Prosecutor, is permitted to look at the rolls of public assistance grants. If local officials and local people were responsible for all public welfare and made all records available for public examination such sordid conditions would end quickly, because local people wouldn't tolerate these abuses with "their" money.

Federally-forced adoption of children, like federally forced integration of schools, is wrong. Few Americans would willingly see any baby go without a home, or any needy and deserving person go hungry. But we have a right to determine each case on its merits, at the local level, and preferably with private, free-will charity. As in virtually everything else, local control is more efficient than federal control; and private control is more efficient than any government. The best day homes, orphanages and schools are private, not public. Government charity denies the American people of freedom of choice.

The answer to the welfare problem is the same as the answer to the farm problem: Get the Federal Government out! — Tom Anderson in FARM and RANCH.

The nice part of cooking in foil is that food may be eaten directly from it.

Here are some suggestions for food combinations that "go for foil".

Slice of ham, slice of pineapple, slices of sweet potato. Season and bake on coals 7-8 minutes each side.

Hamburger or beef steak, potatoes, onion and carrots. Season hamburger, cut potatoes and carrots in strips or thin slices, slice onions. Cook 7-8 minutes on each side.

Fish filets or small whole dressed fish. Season with salt and pepper. Cook in foil with quartered tomatoes, slices of green pepper and onion. Bake 10-12 minutes.
