

Blue Cross Control By State Sought

Legislation will be introduced in the General Assembly by the Blue Cross-Blue Shield Plans under the supervision of the state insurance commissioner.

Rep. F. Earl McGinnes (D-Christiana Hundred) disclosed he would introduce the measure after listening to a talk by Commissioner Harry S. Smith supporting such a bill.

Mr. Smith pointed out that he presently has no control over the rates set by the Group Hospital Service Plan since it is considered a non-profit organization and not an insurance company.

He told the Christiana Hundred Democratic Committee, meeting in Painter's Tall, Richardson Park, that he had been conducting a study of how other states control Blue Cross rates since the latest increase in Delaware last fall.

"Based on the information I have so far, I feel that Blue Cross should be under this office and if need be at the end of this survey, I'll sponsor the legislation myself," he said.

Mr. Smith said that he feels Blue Cross competes with insurance plans now licensed and regulated by his office, and if "it is insurance, then it should be under the commissioner."

He went on to say, "My hands are tied right now. It is set up as a non-profit organization but I have no way of knowing whether it is and have no way of checking their rates and their contracts with hospitals and doctors."

Later on in a question-and-answer period, he emphasized that "he had no crow to pick with Blue Cross and that he did not want to insinuate that anyone in Blue Cross is out of line or acting dishonestly. But if a company is above board, it should have no objections to having its records looked into. I think that the plan has been of great benefit to many Delawareans."

Mr. Smith told the 75 persons at the meeting that he hoped from his survey to be able to recommend the best type of legislation for the regulation of Blue Cross. "Pennsylvania and Maryland now have control over Blue Cross rates," he emphasized.

Impetus for such legislation came from the Young Democrats of Christiana Hundred, many of whose members were at last night's meetings to question Mr. Smith.

The Democrats heard an explanation of the new county rules governing the committee reorganization from John Biggs III, secretary of the New Castle County Democratic Committee.

Feb. 16 was set as the date for the Christiana Hundred election of committeemen and committeewomen, with a run-off early in March in the event of a contest. Francis Dolan announced that after 12 years as co-chairman, he would seek the hundred chairmanship at the election.

Broad Creek Dredging to Be Discussed

The Delaware senators submitted the request at the instance of local interests who are seeking to have the creek dredged to a navigable depth of twelve feet from Laurel to the Nanticoke River. According to Senator Frear the public hearing will be held at 2 p.m. in the Laurel Firehouse.

Local Guard to Hold Recruiting Blitz This Sunday

Continuing their current recruiting drive, members of Battery B, 2 Bn/198 Arty. Harrington, will hold a "Recruiting Blitz" this coming Sunday, Jan. 24, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. This week, correspondence and brochures have been mailed to various high school students to better acquaint them with their military obligation. It is the desire of the local National Guard unit, that those receiving such, will make themselves available this Sunday, so that a member of the unit may interview them. In the event they wish to have more information concerning their military obligation, representatives of the unit will also be on duty at the Harrington Armory, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. this Sunday, Jan. 24, and during the week from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday thru Friday. As an extra effort to push the unit over the top in its current recruiting drive, qualified personnel will also be on duty at the armory 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

At the present time, the unit has enlisted approximately six men; these new members will have the benefit of performing their six months active duty together. By enlisting now high school students may be able to go as a group of buddies for this active duty training. After this initial six months period, they will return home and complete their remaining military obligation by attending drills at the Harrington Armory, plus two weeks camp training each year. By enlisting as a group these people will have the benefit of being in company with people they know as friends; make new friends, earn military pay, and do all this in their own home town.

Parents of young men of draft age are especially encouraged to visit the armory this Sunday to meet the officers and men of the Battery, ask questions, etc.

Remember, you get a "good deal" in the Guard—not only by part-time defense of your community, state and nation, but an opportunity to learn new skills, additional income and new friendships.

Dr. Lightfoot, Guest of Faculty

The regular meeting of the Harrington Special School faculty was held Monday evening. Mrs. Goodwill, H. E. instructor, with several members of the senior home economics class presented quite an informative program concerning the position of the "gifted" child in our midst.

"That there are serious inadequacies in education, no one would deny. As a nation we have wasted precious human resources. We need to have more concern for identifying and educating the gifted."

The girls taking part excellently in the program and the topics discussed by them were:

1. Identifying the Gifted Child, Margaret Teed and Bertha McMullen.
2. The Gifted Child and Personal Problems, Mary Jane Teed.
3. Application, Viva Reed and Joyce Pearson.

The range among gifted individuals in background, potential, interest and aptitude rules out the idea of uniform programs for all. It is not simple to find the best method of educating the gifted child. The current methods are acceleration, segregation and enrichment—or any combination of the three.

It is evident that one single plan will not work by itself, that one combination will not work for every situation.

At the close of the pupil participation, Dr. Georgia F. Lightfoot, State Supervisor of Special Class Programs, spoke to the faculty on the topic. Following her remarks, she gave an opportunity for questions and comments.

Inflation Needs Control—Frear

U. S. Senator J. Allen Frear says that the principal domestic problem facing Congress and the American people in the day immediately ahead is to control further inflationary tendencies.

In his weekly statement, the Senator said he was encouraged by the wide-spread Congressional support for the balanced budget and a federal surplus which are foreseen by the President at the end of the fiscal year.

Mr. Frear noted that the federal government exercises a tremendous impact on the nation's economy and that if prudent fiscal policies are followed by the government in Washington and by state and municipal authorities as well, the effects will be extremely helpful in controlling the spread of inflation.

The senator warned that persons living on fixed incomes face hardships as inflation knows away at the purchasing power of their dollars.

The Delaware lawmaker expressed the view that Congress has not only a responsibility to promote sound fiscal policies but a virtual mandate from the American public which is expressing itself to an increasing degree on the issue of inflationary dangers.

Department officers and department committee chairman will report their activities to date.

H.H.S. Wins From Felton

Coach Dick Jeffers' surprising Harrington High basketball Lions remained undefeated for 1959-60 by defeating Felton High 57-26 on the loser's court Friday night. The win gave the Lions a 3-0 Henlopen Conference mark and a share of the top lead with Rehoboth and Lord Baltimore.

Jeffers used his entire squad and each member dented the scoring column. The head Lion stated that he expected a tough game but the home team had trouble finding the range and finally had to settle for only nine field goals to twenty three for H.H.S.

Ron Colison, Bob Gillette, Jim McDonald, Bill Porter and Walter Lekites shone in the rebound department. Jim Temple, Bruce Smith, and Collison led the Harrington scoring with 18, 13, and 10 points respectively.

The winning team's shooting percentages were 23 baskets in 88 attempts from the field for 33% and a not-so-hot record from the foul line of 11 of 24 and 45%.

Kates and Edwards led the Felton scoring with 10 and 7 points. All was not lost in the Green Devils' camp as their girl's sextet was returned the winner 38-20 in a contest with the Lionesses. The Felton jayvee also won over Harrington in an afternoon test 24-19.

A goodly number of Harringtonians made the trip to Felton. It is hoped that they will also appear at the Selbyville game on the Harrington court Friday night. The Rebels are currently sporting a 1-2 log in the Henlopen play.

Purchase Order System Failure, Killen Reports

The state's purchase order system still does not work, in spite of the use of electronic accounting equipment. State Auditor Ernest E. Killen told members of the Joint Finance Committee at their meeting in Dover Tuesday.

Printed purchase orders or requisitions are required by a law that has been on the books for years, but has been generally overlooked, Killen said. With the use of the state's new Ramac machine accounting equipment, a revived purchase order system was to be put into effect last July 1.

It was tried for a few weeks, and when it did not work out well was discarded. Now state agencies send purchase orders to Dover, but they are just filed and do not serve the accounting purpose for which they were intended, Killen said.

He suggested it might be wise to repeal the law requiring use of the forms, since the law is largely ignored. Enforcing it, he said, would require the hiring of about three more clerks in his office, among other things.

Killen said it was found that part of the trouble was not in the system itself but in the failure of state agencies to use it properly.

Asks Survey

He suggested the committee ask the bigger state agencies what they think of the purchase order system. His own views of it, he pointed out, are different from those of Mrs. Lillian I. Martin, chief accountant of the Budget Commission.

Killen presented the figures for the auditor's office and also for the state election commissioner—the auditor fills both jobs. Officials of the three departments of elections also appeared.

They came up with a proposal that the extra money needed by the New Castle County Department of Elections—roughly $18,000—could be obtained by transferring it from appropriations of the Kent and Sussex Departments of Elections, which have more money than they need for the current fiscal year. The Finance Committee approved the idea and the New Castle Department was told to prepare a bill.

The three departments estimated they will need these amounts to handle the 1960 election in Delaware: New Castle, $263,000; Kent, $40,000; Sussex, $83,065.92. The total comes to $386,065.92.

Prior to tonight's awards winners had been selected in individual fire companies throughout the state. From the top company winners three winners in each county were selected, and from this group the state winners were chosen.

Ralph Boyer, Dover, was master of ceremonies for the presentations. Besides Fire Marshal Favinger and Mr. Boyer the members of the association's fire prevention committee are: Charles Larkin, Richardson Park; Clarence Schwatka, Townsend; Roland Neeman, Felton; George Knotts, Clayton; Marvin Smith, Farmington; Sidney Bennett, Bethany Beach, and Thomas Whitley, Indian River.

One of the activities of the F.H.A. was to have a cookie sale, to raise money, which went over extremely well. Another activity was to pack a basket of canned goods at Thanksgiving for a needy family. Tuesday, Dec. 8, the members of our club had their Christmas party. Everyone seemed to have a wonderful time. Not forgetting the spirit of Christmas, we brought a basket of fruit for a deserving family." Reported by Pat Zych.

Memorial Bridge Traffic On Increase

Delaware Memorial Bridge traffic increased by nearly 50,000 vehicles in December, 1959 over the same month a year earlier, and business for the first seven months of fiscal 1959-60 topped the previous period by 6.4 per cent.

The figures were revealed by Frank J. Harty, Bridge general manager, in his monthly report to the Delaware Interstate Highway Division, consulting engineers, and the original purchasers of bridge bonds.

It was also revealed that 28 revenue bonds were retired during December, which were purchased on the open market at a price under the maximum of 105. This brought the total of retired bonds to $31,175,000, the report states.

December traffic jumped a "healthy 7.1 per cent, Mr. Harty said, with a total of 727,327 vehicles crossing the span as compared to 678,861 a year earlier, an increase of 48,466 vehicles.

For the period of June 1 through December 31 the traffic volume was 6,321,064 vehicles compared to 5,942,737 vehicles during the same 1958-59 fiscal period—a gain of 378,327 vehicles.

Mr. Harty announced that Emory Postles topped toll collectors in their monthly efficiency contest and received a $25 U. S. Bond. William Manlove and Francis Riley were in second and third places respectively.

Safety in the '60's

As we enter a new decade, let us look to the future toward: Safety is always in season.

A good example is your best safety sermon.

Fire can warm your heart or break it.

Early twilight calls for ease up speed and extra caution.

Take a second look. You haven't a second life.

You'll live more years if you cover the gears.

If you live the little guy, keep matches way up high.

Now, is the time to be careful. Take time to make sure.

Homemade accidents are costly.

Eyesight is better than hindsight.

Safe living is a lifetime proposition.

Its better to be safe than sorry. X marks the spot—Don't let it be you.

Take a break for safety's sake. If you like the scenery, stop to enjoy it.

Even a single accident is one too many.

Safety first.

Your County Agricultural agent, George Vapaa, hopes these thoughts will help you just a little bit on your way to the '70's.

Seriously Hurt In Auto Crash South of Felton

A Wilmington man suffered serious injuries Monday morning when he apparently fell asleep on the southbound lane of U. S. 13 and his car crashed into a bridge that spans Knapp's Branch, about two and one-half miles south of Felton. It was the same type of accident that claimed the life of a trucker at the same spot about a year ago. State Police said Tedore Ventresca, 36, of Wilmington, demolished the car he was driving in the accident. He was admitted to the Milford Memorial Hospital with lacerations of the face, the left hand, a possible fractured shoulder and severe shock. The accident happened about 6:35 a.m. Ventresca is in "fair" condition and charges will probably be placed against him upon his release from the hospital, police said.

Delaware Food Market Report

There's good news for the price conscious food shopper this week. Prices are mostly down on fresh fruits, vegetables and on many meats and quality has improved greatly on fruits and vegetables. Vegetables are in better supply now than they have been for several weeks. Florida has recovered for the most part from the effects of bad weather and is now shipping in quantities along with Texas, California, Cuba and Mexico. The following vegetables all show a penny or so drop in price: loose tomatoes, snap beans, celery, carrots, beets and dry yellow onions. Cucumbers even though they are still high are also dropping a bit in price. Lettuce, however, went up in price—the reason for this is the frost in the western growing areas has slowed up harvesting. Signs of spring are showing up in local markets as pots of chives, costing 35 cents and fresh green peas are appearing on the vegetable counter. Citrus fruits continue to be the best buy at the fruit counter. Oranges are very plentiful now and definitely belong in your shopping basket. You know, of course, that oranges are your best source of Vitamin C and during this period of cold and disagreeable weather when infections, flu and colds are more prevalent you need lots of Vitamin C to help you resist these things. Florida oranges are now at their peak and prices are very reasonable so—take advantage of this and buy oranges today. The meat picture is about the same as it was last week with pork being the best buy. However, there is definitely a variety of meats to choose from so your meals should not be "pork heavy". Leg-of-lamb, lamb rib chops, ground beef, steaks, rib roast and veal roast are all a bit cheaper this weekend. Don't forget broiler-fryers, they are plentiful and prices are low. Egg prices are certainly favorable to the consumer; quality is high and the large size egg, which is preferred by many people, is particularly plentiful.

Pruning For A Purpose

Now is the time to prune your plants which bloom on new growth in the Spring. R. F. Stevens, C. W. Dunham and R. W. Harris, specialists with the University of Delaware, will be explaining the how and whys of pruning at Farm and Home Week, 8:20 p.m., Tues., Feb. 9. Pruning, Mr. Stevens told George Vapaa, county agricultural agent, will train plants as flowers or fruit, and can develop certain formal or informal effects. Pruning also affects the welfare of the plant by admitting air and light into the plant for new growth, and by preventing plants from crowding, in foundation plantings. Injured parts can be removed and injury from ice storms can be prevented. Plants should be trained as they grow. The experts will demonstrate how to train the most common varieties. They will also mention pruning for instance can upset the balance between nitrogen (from the roots) and sugar and starch (from the leaves). Removing top branches from young shade trees may result in unsound or winter injury to the trunk and may prevent the development of a strong tree of good shape. Much worry about pruning, Mr. Stevens added, might be avoided if plants were more carefully selected in the beginning. Some plants are giants by nature, and it takes a lot of care to make them stay in a small space. Also included in the Home Gardens session will be a talk by Professor C. E. Phillips, agronomist with the University, on the selection of lawns. Wednesday at 1:30 p.m., a flower arrangement demonstration will be given with a panel discussion to follow. The specialists, Mrs. E. S. Adkins, Lewes; Carol Land, Longwood Gardens; Mrs. Lowery Danser, Cheney, Pa. and Mrs. Lewis P. Kelsey, Newark, will answer questions on decor with flower arrangement.

Dairy Breeders to Meet Feb. 4

Kent County dairymen interested in the artificial breeding of dairy cattle will hold their second annual dinner meeting on Thursday, Feb. 4 at the Viola Community Hall, says Henry Kozicki of Clayton. He is chairman of the educational and promotion committee. Mr. Kozicki notes that there has been a sharp increase in the use of artificial insemination of dairy cattle since the program was initiated twelve years ago in Delaware. The average dairymen can use superior sires to improve his herd and thus be able to compete with larger herds. About 30% of Delaware dairy cattle are now bred artificially. Dr. W. R. Hesselstine, extension dairyman at the University of Delaware, will talk on the "Place of Antibiotics in a Sound Management Program". This is a very live and controversial issue at the present time. Reservations for the dinner meeting can be made with the following dairymen who are serving on the attendance committee: Henry Kozicki of Clayton, Samuel Dixon of Kenton, Francis Thomas of Maryland, G. Wallace Caulk of Woodside, Edgar Dill of Viola, Ormand Hobbs of Harrington, Floyd Blessing of Houston, George Robbins, of Milford, D. Reynolds Robbins of Frederica, A. Bailey Thomas of Camden, William Eliason of Harrington.

Caesar Rodney School News

The Caesar Rodney Parent Teacher Association recently adopted a resolution requesting the district Board of Education to make a study of the need for supplemental salaries and to hold a referendum if the need was found to exist. The resolution was originally presented at the December meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association and carried over for a month to give it full publicity.

Prior to the adoption of the resolution, James R. Bennett, president of the Caesar Rodney Board of Education, and Paul W. Wolfram, administrative assistant, presented preliminary information on the need and cost of the proposal. Dr. William B. Simpson was not present as he was serving as a member of the visiting committee at Chichester High School at Boothwyn, Pa., for the Middle States Commission on Secondary Schools, an accrediting agency.

According to calculations presented by Mr. Bennett and Mr. Wolfram the district's $1,425,000 Building Program including a 24-room elementary school and modernization of some high school facilities could be financed by a tax increase of 14 cents per hundred dollars of assessed valuation and an increase of three dolars in the capitation tax. The present rate is 35 cents on real estate and a seven dollar capitation rate.

To supplement salaries would cost eight cents on real estate or three dollars per capitation for each $100 of increase deemed necessary.

A $400 supplement plus the local share of the building program could be financed with a 65 cent real estate rate and a $13 capitation tax. It is felt that the assessed valuation of the real estate in the district will be $15,000,000 on the next assessment and that there are 4000 persons who will pay the capitation tax.

The tentative long-range building program of the district calls for an estimated $400,000 for specialized areas, principally in the high school. Due to the retirement of the 1935 bond series this can be financed with no further increase in the tax rate.

George W. Tarburton, president of the Parent-Teacher Association, called for a vote on the resolution by the taxpayers in the P.T.A. audience. It was adopted by a wide margin.

Edward Schall, chairman of the Juvenile Protection Committee of the Delaware Congress of Parents and Teachers, presented the program which preceded the business meeting.

After a brief introductory statement, Mr. Schall divided the audience of over 200 into discussion groups of about a dozen members each. The problems in the area of juvenile protection listed by each group were read by the recorder and will be used for future study.

Mrs. Beatrice Holland is program chairman. Refreshments were served by fifth grade mothers.

Among the items listed by the discussion groups for action by the proposed Juvenile Protection Committee were: (1) summer work for teenagers (2) developing respect for authority both at home and school (3) promotion of good manners (4) more supervision of playgrounds (5) more supervision during lunch periods (6) further expansion of Brownies (7) more use of canteen for older students (8) teenage smoking problems.

Grange Honors County Ag. Agents

The three county agricultural agents of the University of Delaware's Agricultural Extension Service were honored by the Delaware State Grange Tuesday, Jan. 12 at a luncheon during the Grange State Leaders' Conference in Dover.

Edward H. Schabinger, New Castle county agent; William H. Henderson, Sussex county; and George K. Vapaa, Kent County; were given engraved plaques citing them for meritorious service in agricultural leadership. The specific accomplishments were described by Paris C. Kirby, Milford, State Grange master, and Wills Passmore, Wilmington, state agricultural chairman.

Passmore praised all three men for the 35 years they have worked during a period when agriculture was making great technological strides. The agents serve as middlemen between research scientists and the farmers who want practical information, he said. Methods often seemed to change overnight, and agents had to keep pace with each new development. Their activities include meetings, handling phone calls and personal visits, making farm and home visits, radio programs, newspaper articles, distributing bulletins, and supervising their county staffs which include a home demonstration agent, 4-H agent, and, in some cases, an assistant county agent.

Mr. Passmore cited some figures from the agents' annual reports to indicate their work load.

New Castle County agents arranged and attended 231 adult meetings and made 1299 farm or home visits. Sussex County agents passed out 23,000 bulletins and made 1,713 farm and home visits. Kent County agents put on 803 radio shows.

"The corn, soybean and alfalfa yield contests could never have been as successful as they are without the legwork and follow-through of these three men," Passmore said.

While presenting the awards, Mr. Passmore mentioned the particular points of outstanding service each agent contributed.

Mr. Henderson became Sussex agent in 1942, after teaching vocational agriculture in Maryland for six years. His unflinching good humor and enthusiasm make it a pleasure to work with him. He was active in planning the first Delmarva Chicken Festival in Georgetown, 1948, and the next year served as chairman of the Miss Delmarva Pageant. He helped organize the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association. He has worked hard to improve Sussex county dairy farms, and to maintain a balanced agriculture in the county. He received the Distinguished Service Award from the National County Agents Association, and has been honored by the National Soil Conservation Supervisors for promoting soil drainage in his county. A former state Grange youth chairman, he has also been Lt. Governor of his district of the Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Schabinger was cited particularly for work with dairy farmers and farm-city relations. He organized the tours for the University Farm at Newark, and in October of 1959, 3,300 city school children visited the farm under his direction. He guided many of the tours himself. In 1949 he organized a Ladino Clover Club which grew into the state Greener Pastures Program. He originated annual tours for New Castle County farmers to dairy areas in other states. The tours now include farmers from the whole state. He has arranged farm-city and agribusiness days to further rural-urban understanding, and has received the Distinguished Service Award of the national county agents' association. Mr. Schabinger is also a director of the Kent-Sussex Fair. He joined the extension staff in 1946. Before that he was with the extension service in Virginia.

Mr. Vapaa, a graduate of the University of Delaware, taught vocational agriculture in Harrington High School for eight years before becoming Associate Kent County agent in 1952. He became county agent in 1953. Working with the potato growers, a rapidly expanding part of Delaware agriculture, has been one of his main interests. He helped organize the Delaware Potato Grower's Association, an information group, and the Delaware Produce Grower's Association, a marketing group. He is a director of Kent-Sussex Fair and superintendent of its agricultural building. He is an active Rotary Club member and Grange member.

U. of D. to Offer Special Language Courses

The University of Delaware, co-operating with the United States Office of Education language development program, will offer its second summer institute for elementary and secondary school teachers of French and Spanish from June 20 to August 12.

Dr. Max Kirch, assistant professor of modern languages and director of the summer program, said today the institute is designed to help elementary school teachers to incorporate the instruction of French or Spanish into their school programs, and to provide secondary school teachers an opportunity to become more effective in their teaching, through intensive audio-visual practice including the use of the university's modern language laboratory. Also offered will be experience with the latest methods and techniques of modern foreign language teaching, and a condensed area-studies program.

A total of 35 such summer institutes have been authorized by the government under the National Defense Education Act. Delaware will serve the tri-state area of New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware. Governmental stipends for public school teachers and paid tuition fees for teachers in private schools are available upon application directed to Dr. Kirch by March 1.

Brochures covering the institute are being distributed and will soon be available from the University upon request. Teachers who participated in last year's program are not eligible to attend this summer.

All courses offered during the eight-week program may be taken for graduate credit. Participants will receive intensive practice in listening to and speaking French or Spanish for two hours daily, plus one hour of practice in the modern language laboratory.

Each group will observe a demonstration class daily and participate in a methods and techniques seminar. The participants also will have an opportunity to do some supervised practice teaching. Two hours daily will be devoted to observation, methods and teaching.

An introduction to structural linguistics will be provided with emphasis on practical application to the teaching of French or Spanish in the elementary or high school. One hour a day will be devoted to linguistics and an equal time for area studies, consisting of lectures by experts on the literature, music, history and geography of France, Spain and Latin America.

Assisting Dr. Kirch will be Dr. Edmund J. Cain Jr., professor of education and director of student teaching at Delaware. All courses will be conducted by qualified members of the university staff and by invited specialists.

A practical aspect of the institute will be the opportunity for participants studying the same language to be housed together and to dine together to provide practice in hearing and speaking the foreign language outside of class. Native or near-native speakers will join the groups to help keep the conversations going.

The university's regular summer program of athletics and cultural activities will be available to those attending the institute.

Poultry Day Farm And Home Week Feature

Poultry topics will be high on the agenda Feb. 9, the first day of this year's Farm and Home Week at the University of Delaware. The poultry program will have both a morning and an afternoon session.

The morning session will cover the poultry and egg outlook for the coming year, the leucosis problem, and the possibilities of increasing poultry consumption with new special products.

Dr. William McDaniel, chairman of the department of agricultural economics at the University of Delaware, will discuss the outlook topic and Dr. Cover will explain the leucosis problem.

Professor Paul H. Hargolf, Pennsylvania State University, will explain special products situation.

The afternoon poultry program will deal with egg quality. Dr. Glenn O. Bressler, Penn State University, will discuss mechanization of quality market eggs. He will explain in detail an experiment now in progress at Penn State with a windowless, solar, poultry house which has pullets housed at one square foot per layer.

Two other talks will deal with quality in retail supplying and with quality control on the farm. Other Tuesday programs will cover soybeans, corn, home economics, plus a general session just before lunch and an evening program on home gardening. The general session speaker will be Dr. Harry C. Trelogan, assistant administrator for marketing research, Agricultural Marketing Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture. He will speak on "The Changing Agricultural Market."

U. of D. Professor Voted Head of Research Group

Professor E. M. Rahn, member of the department of horticulture at the University of Delaware for 16 years, was elected president of the Northeastern Weed Control conference at its 14th annual meeting in New York City Jan. 6, 7, and 8.

He was vice-president of the organization last year and has been a member of the executive committee for the past five years in various administrative capacities.

About 700 people attended the meeting of the organization which Rahn said, "is dedicated to the modern science of weed control which really began with the introduction of 2, 4-D at a weed-killer in 1944. Since then many new and highly effective weed-killers have been discovered due to research of both industry and state and federal experiment stations."

He said the U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates losses due to weeds at four billion dollars a year.

Rahn said, "Many of the people attending the weed conference were from businesses or organizations not necessarily concerned with crop production. Control of vegetation is important to railroads, highway departments, power lines, the fish and wildlife service, and public health departments, as well as to agricultural connected businesses."

Professor Rahn teaches courses in plant growth regulators and in vegetable crops. He also does extensive research with weed control, primarily in horticultural crops.

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church News

The Epiphany meeting of the Episcopal Churchwomen of the Diocese of Delaware will be held at Calvary Church, Wilmington, Thursday, Jan. 28, 10:30 a.m. The program will begin with Holy Communion. The Rev. Marvin H. Hummel, chaplain to the Episcopal students at the University of Delaware, will speak at the morning session.

After a box luncheon, there will be an afternoon meeting with reports from departments, announcements, and a talk by Mrs. Elgin Shaw on "World Day of Prayer." Sunday, Jan. 24, the Diocesan Department of Missions will visit St. Stephen's, Harrington at the 11 a.m. service of morning prayer. There will be a number of out-of-town guests who have not seen the new church, and others who have not visited St. Stephen's in recent months. Members of this department have worked for years to help the local mission realize the dream of a new church at Harrington.

March 4, 1960, the 74th observance of the World Day of Prayer will be held at St. Stephen's and sponsored by the Women of St. Stephen's. The theme of this service will be "Labourers Together with God", the program was written by members of the Women's Inter-Church Council of Canada.

World Day of Prayer began in 1887. Observances are now held in 144 countries, from the Tonga Islands to Lawrence Island, Alaska. The purpose is to unite all Christians in a bond of prayer and to make an offering for Christian Missions at home and abroad. It is sponsored by the United Church Women, National Council of Churches. Flowers on the altar Sunday were given to the glory of God by Mrs. William Hearn and Mrs. Granville Hill. The annual parish meeting was held on Wed., Jan. 20, beginning with a covered dish supper at 6:30, with the business session following.

Ushers on the 2nd Sunday after Epiphany were Messrs. Thomas Clendenning, Frank Fowler, Grenville Hill, Clyde Perry. Seventeen young men and women from St. Stephen's attended the Kent County Youth Convocational meeting at St. Paul's, Camden on January 17. Mrs. Robert McNally and Mrs. Clyde Perry accompanied the group. The program included an Epiphany service "The Feast of Lights", presented by young people of St. Paul's.

Collection of books is being made by the Episcopal Young churchmen in answers to an appeal from missionaries in Liberia, West Africa, where reading material is so urgently needed. Another project the convocation will participate in its collection of clothing to be sent to the Church World Center, at New Windsor, Md. Mrs. Arthur Williams and Miss Lois Keim were coffee hour hostesses on Jan. 17. Acolytes last Sunday included the following: Sunday School, Terry Porter and Franklin Fowler; Morning Prayer, Dennis Bradley, Ronnie Porter, Billy McColley, Franklin Fowler, Bill Thompson.

The young people of the Episcopal Youth Fellowship from Dover, Camden, Milford, Smyrna and Harrington will hold their next joint meeting at St. Stephen's Feb. 14. The Men of St. Stephen's will meet Wed., Jan. 27, at 8 p.m.

Veterans News QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—I am a Korea veteran with GI term insurance which I took out several years ago. I understand I may exchange this old term policy for a new kind which costs less. Please give me the details. A—If your policy has the initials "RS" before its number, you may exchange it for a term policy with a premium about two-thirds less in cost. This new-type term gives the same protection, but cannot be renewed after age fifty. You may convert this policy to permanent-type GI insurance at any time before the last renewal period runs out. Q—I served in Korea and am just now getting around to using my GI school privilege. I start school at the spring semester. Will I get a GI allowance check soon after I start school? A—You must expect to wait about two months after school starts before you receive your first check. VA is not allowed to pay you until after you have completed your first month of school, and it may take up to a month after that before your check arrives. Have enough money with you to tide you over the first two months. Q—May I take on-the-job training under the War Orphans Education program? A—No. The law limits War Orphans education to training is permitted. Job training is definitely prohibited. Q—There is a rumor that the state I live in is going to pay us a bonus. Can you give me any information which would confirm or deny this? A—The VA does not administer state bonuses. They are administered by the individual states, and information concerning them is available only from the state paying the bonus. Write director to the department in your state most concerned, or ask a service officer in one of the veterans organizations.

"Mother of the Year" Blanks Now Available

Official nomination blanks for designating entries in the search for Delaware's "Mother of the Year" are now available, according to Mrs. William N. Cann, state chairman for the American Mother's Committee.

Mrs. Cann has pointed out that, while nominations will be accepted up to a March 5 deadline, her committee hopes that those making nominations will submit completed entry forms at an early date so as to allow ample time for the processing of nominations and verification of qualifications. Official nomination blanks may be obtained from Mrs. Cann at 1508 Pennsylvania Avenue, Wilmington.

Contest rules provide that nominees should have the following qualifications, which are to be verified by family members, friends, organization officials, church groups or other sources: 1. That she be a successful mother as evidenced by the character and achievements of her individual children. 2. That she be an active member of a religious body. 3. That she embody those traits highly regarded in mothers—courage, cheerfulness, patience, affection, kindness and understanding and home making ability. 4. That she exemplify in her life and conducts the precepts of the Golden Rule. 5. That she have a sense of responsibility in civic affairs and that she be active in service for public benefit. 6. That she be qualified to represent the Mothers of America in all responsibilities attached to her role as the National Mother.

Each of the fifty states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, will select a Mother of 1960. The folios of these mothers will then be sent to the National Headquarters of the American Mothers Committee, Inc., in New York, where a special Board of Judges will select from among the total number the American Mother of 1960.

Announcement of identity of the American Mother for 1960 will be made on the opening day of the annual Mothers' Conference, May 2, 1960, at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York. The American Mother for 1960, along with all other state winners will be especially honored during the Conference.

It is customary for the American Mother of the Year to be pre-eded at the White House during the week immediately preceding National Mother's Day, according to Mrs. Cann.

Severe Penalty For Aliens Who Fail to Report Address

Time is running out for some aliens, presently residing in Delaware, to report their current addresses, as required by Federal Law, advises the Delaware State Development Department.

The state information agency, in compliance with request of Governor J. Caleb Boggs, reminds all aliens that the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 requires that every alien in the United States, with the exception of diplomats and a few other special categories, shall, during January of each year, report his or her current address at the nearest Post Office or Immigration Service Office. The address must be reported during January even though there has been no change in residence during previous year.

According to the U. S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, failure to comply with law pertaining to annual report of address can result in the imposing of severe penalties and adversely affect the status of the violator. Address Report Cards may be obtained at any United States Post Office or Immigration Service office advises the Development Department.

Tractor and Garden 4-H Projects Yield Chicago Trips

Two teenagers, who won top state honors in their 4-H programs for 1959 under direction of the Cooperative Extension Service, received expense-paid trips to Chicago to attend the 38th National 4-H Club Congress last fall. They were Mabel (Sandy) Craig, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Powell E. Craig Jr. of Wilmington, and Jimmy Jestice, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Jestice of Laurel. For her excellence with a garden club program, Miss Craig's Chicago trip was provided by Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company. A member of the Union Club the last three years, she concentrated on gardening. Until she started in 4-H work, she says, she thought there was nothing to gardening but planting the seed - and planting it right side up. Now she has learned and proved that successful gardening depends on proper sampling of soil, rotation of crops and on using the right fertilizer. She has won three county medals for her gardening and wide recognition for seven demonstrations on proper planting. She has been president of her club for the past year, a junior leader and county council member. For his performance in the tractor program, young Jestice had an expense-free trip to Chicago provided by American Oil Company. During his four years as a 4-H'er, Jimmy's first interest has been the tractor project, although he engaged in four or five other projects a year, among them field crops. In the first year of the program, Jimmy won the top county award. He also is president of the Sycamore Club.

Hospitals Show Interest in Med Tech Program

The increased need in Delaware hospitals for qualified medical technologists has prompted the establishment of a $500 scholarship by state medical associations offered annually to incoming students to the University of Delaware medical technology program.

Sponsored by the schools of medical technology of the Delaware Hospital, Memorial Hospital and the Wilmington General Hospital, the Delaware Society of Medical Laboratory Technicians and the Delaware State Pathology Society, the joint scholarship was established in 1958.

Due to complications which arose to prevent the awarding of the scholarship in its first year, monie totaling $200 were carried over to 1959 enabling two New Castle County freshmen women to receive grants under the provisions of the scholarship.

Holder of the $500 scholarship is Miss Janet Dixon Tush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Tush Jr. of Middletown. The $200 grant is held by Miss Rita Lorraine Ventura, 1202 Crestover Road, Graylyn Crest.

Recipients of the scholarship are required to intern in one of the approved Delaware schools of medical technology upon completion of their campus work. The award may be renewed for those years the holder is enrolled at the university.

The curriculum at the university prepares students for positions as medical technologists or for commercial or research laboratory work requiring knowledge of the field in its broadest aspect. The first three years are devoted to academic training in the basic discipline of the sciences and liberal arts. During the fourth year, the student interns for twelve consecutive months in the hospital or public health laboratories of an approved school of medical technology.

The addition of the joint award to the university's financial aid program brings to two the number of scholarships available to medical technology students. The Copeland Andelot Foundation scholarship of $300 yearly was established in 1955 and is held by a senior, Miss Martha Scafe, of Arden, now interning at Delaware Hospital.

All three medical technology scholarship holders now enrolled at the university have outstanding records. Miss Tush was an honor roll student at Middletown High School, a member of the student council and active in extra-curricular activities. Miss Ventura is a member of the National Honor Society, and at Alexis I. duPont High School served on the student council and was an alternate to Girls State.

Miss Scafe has been a member of Beta Beta Beta, biological society, was active in residence hall activities at the university, participated in May Day, and was a member of the campus newspaper staff and the Modern Dance Club.

U. of D. Research Foundation Holds Annual Meeting

"The gathering of leading citizens at their home university to seek a better understanding of the scientific investigations going forward there makes better sense each year," Dr. John A. Perkins told members of the University of Delaware Research Foundation Sat., Jan. 9.

About 150 officers, trustees and guests of the Foundation attended the annual luncheon meeting in Kent Dining Hall on the university campus to hear remarks by Foundation president Samuel Lenher and Dr. Perkins and reports on research now in progress by Dr. Edward W. Comings, dean of the school of engineering; Dr. Harold Kwart, associate professor of chemistry; and Dr. George T. Felbeck Jr., assistant research professor a agronomy.

Commending the foundation on its efforts to acquaint a wide group of outstanding Delawareans with its functions and to encourage the support of scientific research at the university, Dr. Perkins stressed the need for improved communication between the scientific and literary worlds into which intellectual life in Western society is increasingly divided.

Dean Comings' report dealt with research now being conducted on jets of air which, he stated, is a project having almost nothing to do with jet aircraft.

"Among other things," he said, "we are interested in the velocity of the air and in the pressure changes throughout the jet. Until recently the pressure changes were thought to be insignificant."

For the first time, Dean Comings, said, all the terms in mathematical equations relating to the flow of the jet have been either measured or calculated and it has been found that the pressure varies to the same extent as several of the other terms and, therefore, is not insignificant as previously supposed. With these and other measurements now being tested, a better understanding of turbulent flow systems is being obtained.

"These systems form the fluid dynamics building blocks of many types of industrial equipment. After having obtained this basic understanding, we hope to include terms for heat, for gases other than air, and finally to include a chemical reaction. This knowledge," Dean Comings concluded, "will lead to an ability to design on a sound scientific basis."

The work undertaken by Dr. Kwart also has resulted in interesting and beneficial findings. His project, "Studies on the Structure and Construction of Mucus Materials," began with an analysis of the secretion of a marine snail called the Busycon, but more recently has been enlarged to include the nature and constitution of human respiratory mucus secretions.

"This work," Dr. Kwart said, "is largely supported by the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation, an organization dedicated to stimulating fundamental research that may afford promise of determining the nature and causes of a disease called Cystic Fibrosis. This disease, the third greatest killer of children after accidents and leukemia, is recognized as being of congenital origin and is associated with some abnormality in the functioning of the exocrine glands."

Work with both snail and human mucus has demonstrated the importance of neutral salt constituents of the aqueous medium in which mucus substances are dispersed, Dr. Kwart said.

"The clinical people took up this observation and translated it into practice," Dr. Kwart noted. "They have found that a splendid course of therapy which keeps the patients' lungs quite clear of accumulations and pockets of heavy mucus is to aspirate a mist of saline solution into the lungs at intervals."

Dr. Felbeck, director of the Foundation's Andelot research on soil organic matter, described the use of ultrasonic irradiation being employed in Delaware laboratories to extract organic material from the inorganic fraction of the soil.

A primary problem in the study of soil organic matter, he said, has been the lack of an efficient method of extraction. The use of caustic alkali seriously affects the physical and chemical properties of the organic matter and milder reagents are much less effective in bringing about the separation.

Using an ultrasonic generator about 10 million times more intense than ordinary speech and having a magnitude about the same order as a very loud jet engine, sound waves literally tear colloidal particles apart and produce fine emulsions, Dr. Felbeck said.

Although still a long way from a system that will extract all or even a large percentage of organic matter from the soil without radically affecting its chemical structures, a considerable improvement was demonstrated in seven soils tested, he disclosed.

"The effect of ultrasonic irradiation on each soil was to increase the amount of organic matter extracted, the percentage increase ranging from about 8% in the Evesboro to about 67% in the Houston," Dr. Felbeck said. "It is noteworthy that in every case the irradiation in three hours gave a greater extraction than did exposing the soil to the extractant for a period of eight days without irradiation."
