

Harrington Lions Support Eye-Bank for Sight Restoration

The Harrington Lions Club members are joining with the other Lions Clubs of Delaware in support of a new sight-conservation program under which Lions Club members are pledging their eyes after death for corneal transplant purposes.

Announcement of the Lions Club support of the Eye-Bank program was made today by Norris Jarrell who is chairman of the club sight conservation committee.

In the past, Lions Clubs have been well known for their services in the sight conservation field and aid to the visually handicapped. Lions provide sight-testing equipment to schools and clinics, employment, rehabilitation, and adjustment for the blind. In addition, they finance the purchase and fitting of eye glasses for the needy blind cases.

This year, the Lions Club of Delaware went a step further in their aid to the blind and offer their support to the Eye-Bank for Sight Restoration, Inc., of New York, N. Y.

This organization formed 15 years ago at the request of doctors interested in corneal grafting but who were handicapped by the lack of eyes, is used by all Delaware physicians when they need a cornea to replace a clouded or injured one in a patient. It is quartered in the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital. Physicians from all over the world go there for instruction in the latest techniques of eye surgery.

Lions District Governor, Constant J. Briggs, of Wilmington Manor, who is the administrative head of all Delaware's Lions Clubs, has announced the endorsement of his cabinet of the eye-bank project now being supported by many Lions Clubs of this area.

The project is headed by Donald J. Bliss of Wilmington Manor who is being aided by three Lions Club members: E. J. Harper, 414 Birmingham Avenue, Woodcrest, chairman for New Castle County; W. J. Houston Warren of 139 North State Street, Dover, Kent County chairman; and William Horner of 404 Fourth Avenue, Laurel, Sussex County chairman.

Every member of the Lions Club of this community will be given the opportunity to back this District-wide project through financial support or by pledging their eyes after death for corneal transplant purposes.

The primary purposes of this project is for the procurement of eyes to be used in restoring sight. In order to carry out this Lions will have the opportunity of donating their eyes at the time of death in order to help those afflicted with loss of vision regain their sight. This will be done through co-operating with the Eye-Bank for Sight Restoration, Inc., of New York.

Through the help of the hospitals in Delaware, the Eastern Air Lines, and the American Red Cross Motor Corps, it is possible to distribute the vital corneal material to surgeons within the 48-hour time limit which is the safe period between the time of removal of the eye and its actual use in the corneal grafting operation.

The removal, transportation and delivery of the corneal tissue to the waiting surgeon is accomplished in a most efficient manner by the staff of the Eye-Bank.

Included in the 48-hour time limit is the immediate delivery to the Eye Bank of every eye that is donated in order that it may be inspected in the Eye-Bank Laboratory before it is delivered to the surgeon. This insures that the material is free from defects or communicable diseases and, largely as a consequence of this precaution, corneal transplanting operations are successful in more than 90 percent of the favorable cases.

Furthermore, after surgeons have used the corneal tissue, the remaining material is returned to the Eye-Bank for further study and use in the research laboratory.

Today, there are over 30,000 known cases who could have their sight restored through corneal transplants. Corneas from an aged person or from an infant are equally usable as age does not matter as long as the corneal tissue is healthy.

"Each of your eyes has many parts," Mr. Bliss said. He further remarked, "One of these is the transparent front, the cornea, which collects and refracts the rays of light. Most blind persons have eye defects that are not confined to the cornea, and therefore a corneal transplant

Ever Ready Class To Observe 37th Anniversary

The Ever Ready Class of Asbury Church School will observe its 37th anniversary next Sunday by attending the class session at 10 a.m. and the church service at 11 a.m. All who have ever been members of the class are requested to sit with the class at the church service.

Through the efforts of the late Mrs. Fred Satterfield (Miss Addie) eight young ladies assembled Easter, April 1, 1923, to start this class with Mrs. William W. Sharp as the teacher, who serves as such still. They were Mrs. E. W. Dean, Mrs. J. W. Clifton, Miss Edith Bryon, Miss Helen Beckwith, Miss Mary Satterfield, Miss Irene Richards, Miss Ethel Abercrombie, Miss Edith Hoover.

Soon the class was organized with Mrs. George W. Hanson as the first president.

Eight Arrested In 'Girlie Show' Raid Fined $250

Eight defendants arrested in connection with a raid by state police on a "girlie show" in the roller skating rink at Felton last Oct. 21, were fined a total of $250 plus costs by Judge Ernest V. Keith in the Court of Common Pleas Wednesday.

Harry C. VanSant and Paul F. Puchalsky, Dover, pleaded guilty to charges of "becoming a nuisance in that they entered and remained in a building where alcoholic beverages were allegedly kept and sold and where lewd acts were being performed."

Judge Keith fined them $50 and costs each.

Later Henry J. Ridgely, Dover attorney, went before the court, waived the right of six defendants represented by him, all of Baltimore, to appear in court, and entered pleas of guilty in their behalf without their having to appear.

Judge Keith fined each of the six $25 and costs with Mr. Ridgely assuming the responsibility of seeing to it that the fines and costs are paid promptly.

The six involved in that portion of the proceeding were: Robert Regan, charged with transporting the girls involved into Delaware from Baltimore with reasonable cause to know that the purpose was lewdness; Barry Thomas, said to have been the master of ceremonies; and Martin Hobgood, Mildred H. Jennings, Fern M. Gulp, and Emily Gurule, charged with engaging in a lewd show.

In addition, Vicki Meehan, Baltimore, who had been held under bond as a material witness, was discharged from her bond.

VanSant and Puchalsky had been alleged at the time of the raid to have engaged the acts for a performance for the benefit of the Dover Elks Lodge.

The net result of the proceedings Wednesday was the disposing of the cases without the added attraction of the presence of the Baltimore girls and the public attention that they may have drawn.

Deputy Atty. Gen. George R. Wright at one point in the proceedings had indicated that he was averse to creating a "circus" atmosphere, in court and possibly on the street, and that he believed justice would not be furthered by insisting on the presence of the girls although they would have come.

He noted that the facts of the case were well known through the publicity they had received.

Herman C. Brown, attorney for VanSant and Puchalsky, told the court that the two defendants are in business and are men of good reputation, that their pleas of guilty avoided a long and expensive trial, and that he believed there was no reason for any great penalty. He asked for the imposition of moderate fines but sufficient to make it clear to the public that such activities shall not exist.

Mr. Wright declared that such situations, indicative of a breakdown in regard for morality, cannot go unnoticed and he suggested substantial penalties.

Judge Keith observed that "we are living in very confusing and difficult times," noting advertisements carried in newspapers, for instance, of near-obscene movies "for adults only", and deploring "nearly obscene shows on television which are seen by children

Fire Marshal Advises Spring Clean-up Campaign

State Fire Marshal William R. Favinger this week reminded Delawareans that even with ice and chilly weather around to remind them of the rough days just passed it is still not too soon to make preparations for a "Spring Clean-up Campaign." Reduction of loss of life and property from fire as well as improvement in the overall appearance of communities can result from sensible planning according to Mr. Favinger, who passes on the following recommendations for spring clean-up:

1. Begin in the attic. Dispose of old newspapers, magazines, broken furniture, old clothing and other combustible items which are no longer needed.
2. Give the cellar a thorough cleaning! Remember many home fires start in the basement with stacks of magazines and paper, discarded furniture and old rags often supplying the fuel for the fire feeds on. Put flammable liquids, such as turpentine, in tightly sealed metal containers and store away from sources of heat and ignition.
3. Starighten up closets. Clean out the old clothes and unneeded papers that are stored in closets, and put shelves and cupboards in order.
4. Clean all other rooms in the house, with particular attention to elimination of flammable and combustible materials.
5. When cleaning up the yard, exercise caution in burning. Better still, don't burn the leaves if it is quite probable that your community has an ordinance forbidding such activity within the city's limits. If you find it necessary to burn leaves or other debris observe these precautions:
 - a) Never light an outdoor fire on a windy day.
 - b) Set out and attach your garden hose and keep it handy until the fire is completely out.
 - c) Use a wire mesh basket or metal container with cover. Set it well away from buildings, fences, dry grass or other combustibles.
 - d) Keep children away from fire.
 - e) Remain by your fire until it is completely out.

Springtime Is Good Time To Visit State Showplaces

Delawareans do not have to wander afar in search of springtime activity, advises the Delaware State Development Department in urging residents of the state to "See the First State - First."

Beginning with the traditional boardwalk fashion promenade at Rehoboth Beach on Easter Sunday and continuing right on through the spring season, there will be plenty to do and to see in Delaware according to the state information agency.

Down at Rehoboth Beach, the Chamber of Commerce and "City Fathers" at this increasingly popular Atlantic Coast resort are now getting everything in readiness for the traditional Easter Fashion Promenade, which, they advise, will be "bigger and better than ever."

A springtime attraction that has widespread appeal to Delawareans, as well as visitors from out-of-state, is the annual tour of Winterthur Museum and Gardens, which, this year, begins April 26 and continues through May 28. A breathtaking array of azaleas and spring flowers are to be seen in the acres of gardens, and thirty rooms depicting American culture and homelife from 1640 to 1840 may be seen in the museum. Tour hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday (only the gardens are open on Sundays). Winterthur is only a few moments drive northwest from Wilmington on State Route 52.

Particularly attractive to the springtime visitor is the Hagley Museum on the Brandywine River just a short distance from Winterthur. Here, early water-powered industry is shown through dioramas and displays in an old textile mill since converted into a museum. The Hagley Yard, where the famed duPont enterprises were born, offers spring flowers in a natural setting. The museum is open from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday and between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. Sunday.

The Development Department also recommends a visit by the springtime tourist to the Old Town Hall, Wilmington; The David Wilson Museum and The Corbit House, Odessa; the Delaware State Museum at Dover; and the Zwaanendael Museum, Lewes.

At Dover, extensive preparations are now underway for observance of "Old Dover Days" traditionally held the first Saturday and Sunday in May. Restored seventeenth and eighteenth century homes and gardens will again be open to the public May 7-8. Priceless heirlooms and old silver will also be exhibited.

Receptions by Governor J. Caleb Boggs and Dover Mayor W. Edward Haman; dances on historic Dover Green; and May Day exercises on the Wesley College campus are other highlights of the two-day program.

Among the historic buildings to be seen in the Dover area are the "Old State House", second oldest in continuous use in the Nation; and the John Dickinson Mansion, the restored home of the "Penman of the Revolution."

Delaware's annual statewide observance of the Festival of the Arts gets underway May 1 and continues through the month. Included are special displays at the Delaware Art Center, Wilmington; and at the Art League Studios, Rehoboth Beach. Festival attractions also include Wilmington Garden Day, the annual Clothesline Art Fair and the annual Flower Markets at Wilmington, New Castle and Seaford, all of which have particular appeal to Delawareans.

The Garden Day observance on Sat., May 7, will consist of a tour of more than 20 gardens and estates in and near Wilmington. The Clothesline Fair, featuring works of the artists of the area, will again be held on the steps of Wilmington's Public Building facing Rodney Square, May 2 through May 5.

Sat., May 21, historic New Castle, the state's first capital, will again observe "A Day in Old New Castle." New Castle, today, is one of the Nation's outstanding colonial-type communities. Preserved or restored seventeenth century homes open for the occasion will include the "Dutch House" believed to be the oldest house in Delaware. Visitors who tread the cobblestone Strand on May 21 will be greeted by residents resplendent in Colonial and Dutch garb of two centuries ago.

Man Fined $25 In Leg Shooting

Willie Russ, 55, contending that he shot his accuser in the leg only in self-defense, was fined $25 and costs, on a charge of assault and battery by Judge Ernest V. Keith in Court of Common Pleas Wednesday.

He was also given a six-month jail sentence but it was suspended by the court pending his future good behavior.

Herman C. Brown, attorney for Russ, said the victim of the assault, John Griffin, had provoked an argument with Russ and had thrown him to the floor.

The defendant's mistake, however, was that he left and came back a half hour later and then shot at Griffin with a .32 caliber revolver, the attorney said.

The wound was minor and Griffin did not require hospitalization. The altercation took place in a Harrington taproom since last Aug. 17. Griffin has since left the state, the court was advised.

Mr. Brown told the court that Russ has a good reputation.

C. R. Grads To Get Two Diplomas

Caesar Rodney June graduates will get diplomas indicating the area of achievement; such as academic, scientific, business education, and Vocational, according to action taken by the Board of Education meeting last night for the fifth time during the month of March. The Board will issue its own diplomas to its graduates who will also receive a State Board decreed uniform diploma to be issued all graduates beginning this June, irrespective of marks or areas of specialization.

The Caesar Rodney Board has, in the past, requested the State Board to rescind its proposed one-diploma plan, especially in the light of new emphasis on academic achievement, and secured the backing of the Delaware School Board Association for its position. However, the State Board chose to follow the advice of its staff member rather than the state-wide school board association.

The Board requested legislators representing the district to act favorably on amended bills enabling the State to participate in the National Defense Education Act. The amendments felt needed by the Caesar Rodney

Community Choir Concert in Milford

Choristers from Harrington, Greenwood, Lincoln, Lewes, Dover and Milford will present the second community choir concert at the Calvary Methodist Church in Milford at 4 p.m. Sun., April 10. They will open the program with three choral works by Johann Sebastian Bach: "Jesu, Priceless Treasure" from a motet of the same name, "Crucifixus" from the "Mass in B minor" and "Now Let Every Tongue Adore Thee" from a cantata "Sleepers Wake." These selections will be followed by Theodore DuBois' sacred cantata, "The Seven Last Words of Christ."

Since this program includes works from a motet and oratorio, as well as a complete cantata, it is interesting to note the differences in these three musical forms. Originally the motet was a three-voice composition arranged in a brief reiterated rhythmic pattern which reached its peak of development in the six motets by Bach. Since Bach's era, however, the term is used to describe any kind of sacred choral work for mixed voices. A cantata is a secular or sacred choral composition interspersed with solos and recitative. An oratorio is a more extensive musical work for solo voices, chorus and orchestra with a text more or less dramatic in nature and usually based upon a religious theme. The chief distinction among the three forms is one of length and elaboration; the motet being the shortest and simplest followed by the cantata and ending with the complex oratorio, which, if the participants wore costumes and used stage action against a background of scenery, would be hard to distinguish from opera. The Bach oratorio, "Mass in B minor" from which the choir will perform the "Crucifixus" is considered the peak of all choral literature.

"The Seven Last Words of Christ", composed by DuBois at the close of the 19th century is a favorite Lenten cantata adopted by many choral groups for annual presentation during the Easter season.

Mrs. Norma Heyde is well qualified to direct the choir's interpretation of these works through her past experience as soloist in each of the major oratorios and her conducting under Maynard Klein. Soloists Jean Gruwell, Irene Nelson, Allan Stewart and Leon Donovan will add professional performance to the choir presentation.

Symington Berates Tight Money Policy of GOP

The tight money policy of the Eisenhower Administration was lambasted Tuesday night by U. S. Senator Stuart Symington in his address before 1,000 Democrats in the field house of the Laurel School.

"If the future is to shine for areas such as Sussex County—and that means for the greater part of America—there must be a total escape from the time-worn, shop-worn, forelorn, Republican policy of tight money.

"This," he continued, "is a policy of keeping interest rates high, regardless of consequences to the average citizen.

"Since 1952, Republican 'tight money' policies have driven personal debts up by over 100 percent," the Missouri Senator told the enthusiastic Delaware audience.

Illustrating the effect of the high interest rates which he said have come from the Administration's tight money policy, the Senator said:

"The average interest cost to finance a loan for a 25-year period for the purchase of a $15,000 house would be $13,000.

"Eight years ago—before the Republicans got going—that interest figure was $9,000.

"So the price you pay today is more—by $4,000—on that $15,000 house you thought you wanted, before you saw you could not afford it and changed your mind."

The result, he said, is houses are harder to buy and fewer houses are being built.

Senator Symington explained that when he recently announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination he emphasized that America must have an expanding economy.

He said Tuesday night that his program for an expanding economy can be summed up in the "investments."

"Investment—risk capital—is one of the basic pillars of our free enterprise system.

"I would like to see a young man with an idea walk into a bank and get a loan at a rate he could afford.

"I would like to see your school districts in Delaware and mine in Missouri, able to borrow to build classrooms at rates they could afford.

"And I would like to see the government sell bonds at rates we taxpayers could afford."

The Senator charged that the Republican party has thrown out the word gross from its dictionary.

The Republicans, he said, think of America as "great and as big as she can get" and also as "a tired old ship of state—creaky at the seams."

The Democrats on the other hand think of America as "a bright new ship barely out of the slips, shining and ready for voyages never dreamed of."

He added: "We Democrats think America is a young country, from stem to stern—seaworthy, landworthy, and, with a little push from the Captain, spaceworthy!"

In one of several local allusions the senator noted that his great grandfather, Thomas Symington, was born in Brandywine, Delaware, now part of Wilmington, six years before the death of George Washington.

The senator also described the people of Sussex County as being self-reliant and as living primarily on native enterprise "on what you grow on farms and take from the sea and on what you produce in plants and sell in stores owned by the people who live here."

Senator Symington also touched on disarmament and America's position in the world.

He said the aim of people all over the world is a just and lasting peace and that the road ahead is to reach a mutually agreed upon disarmament plan.

America has a better chance of attaining that agreement negotiating from a position of strength—not just physical strength but also economic, psychological, technological and spiritual strength.

He called on America to "merchandise the free way."

"More than anything else what we need in Washington today is leadership," the Senator said.

He complained that the world hears a great deal of what Mr. Khrushchev says, rather than what the President of the United States thinks and wants.

He declared he wants to see a president in the White House "as in the days of Franklin Roosevelt

Conservation Fan To Address Century Club

Delaware Booth At Pennsylvania Farm Show

Thousands of sportsmen and other visitors to the Pennsylvania Recreation and Sportsmen's Show being held this week at the Farm Show Building in Harrisburg are becoming better acquainted with the advantages and pleasures of vacationing in "The First State" as a result of visits to the State of Delaware booth.

The Delaware exhibit, always one of the most popular booths in the five-acre display area, occupies 200 square feet opposite the main entrance and features a large backdrop upon which is displayed color and black and white photographs of the state's recreation facilities, including its beaches, inland waters, parks and camping areas. Photographs of Delaware's many other interesting places, its museums and historic spots are also displayed. Placed conspicuously is a visual invitation to "See the First State - First - in '60", the increasingly popular slogan for Delaware's current statewide and year-long tourism promotion campaign.

Maps and literature, locating and describing the state's many attractions, are available at the booth. A large "Calendar of Events" tells time and place of Delaware's most outstanding spring and summertime events.

The exhibit was prepared by David S. Hugg for the Delaware State Development Department which sponsors this and similar exhibits aimed at publicizing Delaware's many attractions.

Mr. Hugg, who set up the Delaware display over the past weekend, manned the booth through Monday, the opening day, and was replaced Tuesday by Mrs. Raymond Coffman, a former Delawarean now residing in the Harrisburg area. Mr. Hugg will return to Harrisburg this Friday; man the booth through Saturday; and then dismantle the display and return it to Delaware on Sunday.

The current Recreation and Sportsmen's Show is undoubtedly the biggest and best ever held in the Harrisburg area. In addition to vacationland and resort area displays, the present show offers acres of the newest in sporting goods and sports equipment, wildlife and camping exhibits, special outdoor living projects and one of the East's largest displays of pleasure boats.

Other attractions include archery, casting, field dog demonstrations, junior rifle marksmanship competition, a golf clinic, animal acts, a big game trophy exhibit and public trout fishing "for

DHA May Abandon Financial Aid to Heart-Surgery Patients

The Delaware Heart Association today revealed that its local program of financial aid to indigent heart-surgery patients may have to be abandoned.

According to John K. Conant, chairman of the local Association's Executive Committee, the situation arises from a proposed change of policy by the American Heart Association, of which the Delaware Heart Association is an affiliate, concerning expenditure of funds for direct patient care.

Such use of funds, Mr. Conant said, has never been encouraged by the national organization, but they now contemplate adopting a firm policy forbidding it.

"If this proposed action is taken, our local program in Delaware would constitute a major violation of national policy," Mr. Conant said. "It would mean that none of our heart funds could be used to aid those persons who need, but cannot afford, life-saving cardiac surgery."

Delaware Heart Fund, since 1952, has sponsored diagnosis of 476 patients and corrective surgery for 82. Last year it cost less than two per cent of publicly donated contributions to provide surgery for individuals in Delaware who were unable to pay for this care. The program uses the services of a visiting specialist from the staff of the University Hospital in Philadelphia, since there are no facilities in Delaware for the more complex types of heart surgery.

The proposal by the American Heart Association to deny affiliate associations the right to use their own funds for such local programs was aired at a recent meeting of the parent organization's Policy Committee in New York. In an effort to protest the proposed policy change, Delaware Heart Association sent a delegation of representatives to this meeting. Members of the group, each attending at his own expense, included:

Dr. Robert L. Dewees, president of the local association; Dr. E. M. Krieger, George M. MacLeod, Mr. Conant, L. Gooden Callaway, Dr. J. Richard Durham, Dr. David J. Reinhardt, III and Dr. Harold A. Tarrant.

Planting Time Is Here!

If you are planning to plant bare-rooted trees or shrubs you should start loosening up your shovel muscles. That's the advice of Robert F. Stevens, Extension Service horticultural specialist at the University of Delaware.

You should get your bare-rooted plants in the ground before April 15. Plant as soon as possible after you get the trees and be careful not to let the roots dry out, he said.

If you can't plant right away, heel the roots into moist soil away from drying wind.

If your plant comes in a moisture-proof wrapping, it should be all right for a few days.

To plant, dig a hole with straight sides and flat bottom large enough to accommodate all the roots with three to six inches to spare on each side and on the bottom.

Mix the topsoil removed from the hole with one fourth peat-moss or other humus, and sand. Sand need not be added to sandy soils. It is needed in most of northern New Castle County.

Shovel three to six inches of this topsoil mixture into the bottom of the hole and heap it up in the middle.

Check the roots and prune off broken or damaged roots with pruning shears. Then place the tree straight up in the hole at about the same depth it had in its former location.

Spread the roots to approximately their original position and fill the hole about two-thirds full firming it around the trunk and roots. Be careful not to damage the bark, Stevens warned.

Pour several gallons of water in to fill the hole. Starter solution may be used but be careful not to get it too strong. After the water has settled, fill the hole with soil leaving a saucer shape basin for watering.

Prune the top so as to keep the natural shape of the tree. Don't prune the leader or any short branches growing directly out from the leader.

A mulch of two or three inches of peat-moss, leaf mold, straw, hay or other material is often helpful the first two years. The trunk of deciduous trees should be wrapped with tree wrapping paper or burlap to prevent sun scald.

No fertilizer is advised at planting time and only moderate applications should be made the second year.

New trees should be braced with stakes or guy wires.

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church Notes

The Rev. John R. Symonds, Jr. left Harrington Sun., March 27, for Washington, D. C., to attend the 1960 White House Conference on Children and Youth, as a representative from Delaware.

During Lent, church school pupils have an added opportunity to grow in the knowledge and love of God through means of the Mite Box, whereby they may share with thanksgiving their own blessings with others. They learn self-discipline by giving up something that costs money, and offering the money to God. Better still, they may give up a bad habit, during this penitential season, and take on desirable, positive action such as daily Bible readings, family prayer, attendance at extra church services.

The Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, Rector of Calvary Church, Pittsburgh, will speak on the subject "Broken By Choice," April 3, on the Episcopal Hour.

Thinking peoples all over the world are seeking answers to questions of life and death importance. This series of sermons, broadcast over 375 stations, will deal with the Christian's responsibility in a restless, turbulent world.

The Episcopal Hour is a part of the year-around Protestant Hour, which presents programs of the Methodist, United Presbyterian U. S. A., Presbyterian U. S., and United Lutheran Churches.

St. Stephen's Committee on Finance and Budget, with the vicar and treasurer, met with the Diocesan Department of Missions Finance Committee Sun., March 27, at 4 p.m. in the lounge.

Acolytes on confirmation Sunday were Dennis Bradley, Bobby Eastman, Frank Welch, Charles McNally, Franklin Fowler, Billy McColey, Bill Thompson, Clyde Perry.

There was an error last week in the printing of the amount of offering given for missions at the World Day of Prayer observance held March 18. Sixty dollars and forty-six cents was the correct amount. It was sent to the United Church Women as the 1960 contribution from the Harrington area.

A committee of seamstresses and ironers worked faithfully all day Sat., March 19, with Granville Hill as chairman, to complete and hang eight sets of drapes at the large windows in the parish hall.

Flowers on the altar the fourth Sunday in Lent were given to the glory of God and in loving memory of John R. Symonds by Mrs. John R. Symonds of Wilmington.

The following pupils received awards of the Cross and Crown system for perfect attendance records and were presented pins by the Rev. John R. Symonds, Jr. on Sun., March 27, at the 9:30 p.m. church school service: Barbara Welch, William Winkler, Richard Porter, Gary Porter, Roy Porter, June Thompson, Betty Jean Fowler, Franklin Fowler, John Winkler, Sue Perry, Lois Keim, Billy McColey, Bill Thompson, Terry Porter, Gail Keim, Patsy Bradley.

The Rev. Ray Kirwan, minister of Houston Methodist Church, was guest speaker to the Episcopal Young Churchmen at their meeting Sun., March 27, 5 p.m., at St. Stephen's. He outlined the history of the Methodist Church and explained important doctrines of his church as well as answered questions put to him by the young people. The Episcopal Young Churchmen appreciated Mr. Kirwan's visit and enjoyed his informative talk.

The Junior Choir members have been singing very well at Evening prayer each Sunday, and have added much to the effectiveness of that service. Mrs. Arthur Williams is director and Mrs. Ethel Rosengren is organist. The practice hour for Junior Choir is 6:30 p.m. Friday.

Ushers last Sunday were Messrs. James Hoffman, Earl McColey, Clyde Perry and Walter Winkler.

Prevent Enterotoxemia In Lambs

Baby lambs eating grain and drinking a lot of milk may die suddenly from enterotoxemia or pulpy kidney disease. The organism responsible produces a toxin which kills them rapidly.

County agent George Vapaa said this disease usually affects the fattest, huskiest lambs in the flock. If this disease has been a problem in your flock, vaccinate the ewes at least three weeks before lambing with Enterotoxemia Bacterin. This will enable them to provide protective antibodies to their lambs in their milk.

Mr. Vapaa said lambs vaccinated at four to six weeks of age will develop good resistance in about two weeks.

Price Changes in Poultry Marketing

Why are broiler flocks sold for different prices on each market day at the Selbyville Eastern Shore Poultry Growers' Exchange? A survey has been conducted by University of Delaware agricultural economists to discover the reasons for the price differences.

They found that the prices agreed rather closely with the quality reports of inspectors. Only flocks with exceptional ratings received high premiums and discounts. Sellers acquired a reputation, not always earned, for poor or high quality flocks which influenced the price they received for them. The researchers also found that since the establishment of the Eastern Shore Poultry Growers' Exchange in 1952, the daily spread in prices has decreased. The Exchange keeps all concerned better informed about prices, market conditions, changes and trends, and the respective wishes of buyers and sellers.

The results are reported in a new bulletin entitled "The Daily Spread in Prices Among Broiler Flocks Sold on the Eastern Shore Poultry Growers' Exchange."

Growers can learn, through the Exchange, the flock characteristics, desired by the buyers. The farmers then adapt the characteristics, such as color, age and weight of marketing, thus decreasing the spread of premiums and discounts.

The Bulletin, number 330, can be obtained from your county agent or the Bulletin Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, Del.

Fish & Game News

Trout Season Opens Sat. April 9

Trout fishermen will have a chance for larger fish when the season opens Sat., April 9. Brook, brown and rainbow trout, all over 9 inches will be stocked. The initial stocking under the direction of Warden William Wideman, will take place Thurs., April 7, in White Clay, Pike and Mill Creeks, north of Newark.

Fishing hours are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset, with a daily creel limit of four trout. Every one fishing trout stocked waters is required to purchase a trout stamp costing $2.10. The proceeds from trout stamps are earmarked entirely for trout purchases.

The Commission advises all anglers fishing the trout stocked streams north of Newark to be on their best manners as all fishing waters are on private lands and are made available to the public through the courtesy of the landowners.

Freshwater Anglers—Have You A License?

Fishing prospects appear bright for anglers during the 1960 fishing season. Better management methods, the addition of new ponds, liberalized regulations, and improved tackle and angling techniques all point to a shorter time between bites this season.

In all of the ponds and non-tidal streams in Delaware males over 16 years of age are required to purchase a resident fishing license costing $1.25 or a non-resident license costing $7.50.

In Mud Mill Pond, where there has been some confusion in former seasons, a license is required to fish both the pond and those streams draining the pond. In that portion of the pond in the state of Maryland a Maryland license is also required. Fishermen are advised by the Board of Game and Fish Commissioners that only hook and line fishing is permitted in ponds and non-tidal streams.

A list of the "Special Fishing Areas" under the supervision of the Board of Game and Fish Commissioners is available upon request from the Delaware Game and Fish Commission, Dover.

Game Hearings Tues., April 26

A full house is anticipated at the annual fish and game hearings to be held at 8 p.m. in Legislative Hall, Dover on April 26. Rodney M. Layton, President of the Game and Fish Commission will preside over what has developed into a popular sportsman's forum.

The General Assembly six years ago empowered the Board of Game and Fish Commissioners to set seasons and limits on upland game and freshwater fishes. Such regulations enable the Commission to manage the wildlife resources of the state for the greatest benefit to both fish and game and those persons who enjoy hunting and fishing.

Waterfowl and other migratory game regulations will also be discussed to guide the Commission in its recommendations to the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service who in turn draws up regulations for these species.

Pepper Disease Problems Studied

Plant pathologists from New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia met recently at the University of Delaware to seek a control for the bacterial spot of peppers.

According to University of Delaware horticultural specialist Robert F. Stevens, Delmarva pepper production is threatened by the severe outbreak of bacterial

Regulate Calving With Chart

Keep a record of cows due in heat, says Kent County agent, George Vapaa. This can be done easily and effectively with a new heat expectancy chart now available from the county agricultural extension service office or from extension dairyman, Wilbur R. Hesselstine, agricultural hall, University of Delaware.

Used as a supplement to your barn breeding chart, the heat chart will help you develop regularity of breeding and spread calving dates through desired seasons, Mr. Vapaa says. It will tend to improve the breeding efficiency of the dairy herd, reduce percentage of dry cows, and increase average annual milk yield.

For best conception results, turn cows out regularly to catch cows in heat. It is best to turn them out twice daily during the breeding season or when trying to get certain cows settled.

Pregnancy diagnosis by your veterinarian may be able to prevent trouble before it occurs.

Many of the cows sold as non-breeders are safe in calf, he says.

How the Landowner May Produce More Wildlife

Ways to increase production of wildlife come in all sizes and shapes. The most practical methods provide better food and cover conditions. Any one or all of the following wildlife practices can be incorporated into general farming procedures with planning and little effort.

Fire Control—Spring burning cuts heavily into wildlife populations on a farm. Where burning is done early, it reduces the areas where birds and animals have dens or nests. If it is done later in May or June, nests, eggs, and young birds may be destroyed. Spring burning may be the easiest method of removing dead litter, but like burning down the barn to get rid of termites, it is not always the best way. Burning is as out-of-date and as devastating to soil fertility as straight-furrow plowing in hill country.

The Fence Line—Clean fences about fields offer neither food nor cover for rabbits, quail and other wildlife. Offering no obstruction to winds or rains, they pave the way for wind and water erosion. Multiflora rose fence provides a cheap, stock tight fence, and excellent windbreak, as well as a wildlife refuge.

The Woodland Edge—Wildlife borders of shrub and sericea lespedeza planted along the woodland edge provide food and cover for rabbits and birds, make farming easier by furnishing turnrows on which to turn farm machinery. These plantings prevent erosion of field edges and slow down the spread of weed trees into tilled areas.

Drainage Ditch Banks—Well-managed ditches seeded to grasses and legumes provide effective drainage for nearby fields and produce useful wildlife.

Odd Areas—These areas include small eroded areas in field crops, bare knobs, sinkholes, small sand blowouts, large gullies, abandoned roads and railroad rights-of-way, barrow pits, gravel pits, or even bits of good land that are cut off from the rest of a field by a stream, drainage ditch or gully. These areas which normally produce no crop can be made to support wildlife. Remember to utilize that which nature has already provided. Allow the honeysuckle and blackberry to grow. Supplement existing cover plants—don't destroy them. A Norway Spruce plantation forms excellent winter shelter while giving the farmer some income as Christmas trees.

Brush Piles—An occasional brush pile in an out-of-the-way spot adjacent to fields seeded in small grains provides ideal places for rabbits to multiply unmolested by their numerous enemies.

Anyone or all of these practices should increase the wildlife population on any farm. Help in planning, obtaining planting stock and in planting wildlife food and cover can be had by contacting the office of the Delaware Game and Fish Commission at Dover.

Vacation in Europe For Cooking Champ

Are you set to jet to Europe? "This is just what some fortunate chicken cook will do as a result of winning first place in this year's National Chicken Cooking Contest," says Webb Cassell, president of the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. In addition, the winner can take a friend on the two-week vacation trip to Europe. At the same time, two from the store where this year's National Chicken Cooking Champion gets her entry blank will be permitted to go on this jet trip via Lufthansa German Airlines.

Among other numerous prizes to be awarded this year will be the usual electric and gas ranges.

The 1960 Chicken Cooking Contest will be a feature of the 13th annual Delmarva Chicken Festival to be held in Selbyville, June 17th and 18th. This nationally famous cooking contest will again be jointly sponsored by the Poultry and Egg National Board and the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc.

As usual there will be Junior and Senior Divisions, although only participants in the Senior Division are eligible for the European trip. The top three winners of the Junior Division will receive prizes valued at over $1000! If you capture the title of Junior National Chicken Cooking Champion, you not only take home a brand new range, but also $150 in cash!

Merchants and other branches of the poultry trade are co-operating with the distribution of application blanks for those wishing to enter this year's chicken cooking contest. A supply of the folder containing rules and regulations can be obtained by contacting the festival headquarters in Selbyville or the DPI office, R.F.D. 2, Box 47, Georgetown, Del.

Sussex First in State 4-H Window Display Contest

An exhibit prepared by the Georgetown Busy Beavers 4-H Club of Sussex County, placed first in the state 4-H Window Display Contest, held as part of the recent National 4-H Club Week. Dr. Sam Gwinn, assistant director of the Agricultural Extension Service, University of Delaware, made the announcement.

The Stump Corner 4-H Club of Townsend, representing New Castle County, placed second; the Westville 4-H Club of Maryland, representing Kent County, placed third.

The winning display featured spiritual and other important values of 4-H Club work. It portrayed a vespers scene at Camp Barnes where Delaware 4-Hers attend their annual state camp each summer. The exhibit was displayed at Burton's Chevrolet Garage, Georgetown.

The Stump Corner exhibit described new 4-H projects of special interest to urban and suburban youngsters. These include "You and Your Dog," "Know Your Birds," and a new automotive project. The exhibit was displayed at the Hart Lumber Company, Townsend.

The Westville exhibit portrayed the achievement of personal success through 4-H experiences. It was displayed at Harmon's Hardware, Maryland.

Dr. Gwinn said that there were approximately 40 exhibits in this year's contest. The exhibits mentioned above ranked first in individual county contest held prior to the state contest.

April 15 Deadline For Report of Earnings

You know that April 15, 1960, is the deadline for filing 1959 income tax returns. But you do know that this date is also a deadline for a social security beneficiary to file an annual report of earnings, reminded Edward F. Sullivan, District Manager of the Dover Social Security office?

If you earned more than $1200 during 1959, you must file a report of your earnings with the Social Security Administration by April 15, 1960. Even if you earned over $1200 you are entitled to receive benefits for any months in which you did not earn over $100. If you were in business for yourself in 1959, you are entitled to receive checks for months in which you did not actively engage in your business. You must file this report to receive the payments.

You do not have to file a report if you did not earn over $1200 in 1959 or you were over age 72 the entire year, Mr. Sullivan said.

All beneficiaries received a postcard with their March 3 social security check, according to Mr. Sullivan. This card can be used to get the report form. If you need help with this report, visit your local social security office at 230 W. Loockerman St., Dover, Del.

You may lose additional benefits, Mr. Sullivan cautioned, for failure to report on time.

An excellent attendance of 307 was reached in our Sunday School this past week in observance of the 4th anniversary of services in the new church building. Anniversary cakes baked by the pastor and Sunday School superintendent Harold Mervine were awarded to Bonnie Smith and Paul Woikoski Sr. Bonnie had 14 visitors present and Mr. Woikoski had 11 visitors present. The morning worship service attendance reached a new high for the year.

It was highly significant that on the 4th anniversary an offering of $572 was raised for the Building Fund thereby helping us to pay in full the indebtedness on the church property. To all of our members and many friends who have contributed faithfully toward this need, we express our deep appreciation.

Posters have been printed at the local printing office and will soon be distributed in and around our community announcing our evangelistic services. The meetings will open Thursday, April 21 and continue through May 1. The Rev. J. A. Brout, Sr., pastor of the Pilgrim Holiness Church at High Point, N. C., will serve as evangelist.

The many years of pastoral experience plus the fact that he has served in many places as an evangelist should make his ministry profitable and helpful to all. The Rev. Grout has served as pastor in High Point for 16 years and the church there is the largest in the entire Pilgrim Holiness denomination. Music on the vibra harp, organ, and piano will be in charge of Wesley and Virginia Chatfield.

Letter to the Editor
 March 24, 1960

Dear Sir:
 I wish to express my personal thanks to the American Legion Youth Committee for the sponsoring of the second successful year of Biddy League Basketball. Through this fine program sixty boys of our community are given the opportunity to play organized and supervised basketball. Under the leadership of Jim O'Neal the first year and Bill Minner this year the league has operated every Saturday afternoon since January. Through such efforts as these, the fortunes of your school sports program will be kept at a high level. In our era of juvenile delinquency, programs such as these function for the good of the entire community.
 Thanks again gentlemen for your time, effort, and fine program. Others on the coaching committee of the group are: Bob Jester, Ted Layton, Jack Swain, Frank O'Neal, Jim O'Neal, and Bill Minner.
 Yours truly,
 Dick Jeffers, Coach

Harrington School Notes

MRS. GRANT
 Friday, March 25th, was Ginny Jo Richardson's birthday. Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. W. W. Sharp came to school and gave the class a party celebrating Ginny Jo's birthday. They had ice cream and cup cakes. They played several games. We want to thank them for such a nice party. Gail Melvin went to Wilmington yesterday.
 Brad Morris went to West Chester.
MRS. MARVEL
 Wayne Anthony and Wayne Jr. have returned to school after having the mumps.
 Bobby White showed us a design of cement, shells, stones and paint which he found at the beach.
 Debbie Thompson showed her doll which she received at Christmas and named it Little Debbie. We wrote a story about spring because we are so glad to have the beautiful warm days.
MRS. O'NEAL
 We are learning to speak French. Mr. Cotter is going to show us some pictures he took while he was in France.
 The seeds we planted are growing and we remember to water them.
 We drew gay-colored sailboats that we read about in our story about Brittany.
MISS BAKER
 A good spring day was a time for some trips by some in our room.
 Steven O'Neal visited a battleship and a museum in Philadelphia. Barbara Callaway visited Valley Forge. John Brown was on the beach and brought back a live snail. Andrea Walls was at a pond and watched a man launch his boat and then get himself wet. Phyllis Holson visited at Nassau.
 We enjoyed hearing of these trips.
 Cindy Clarke and her dog walked to the woods and saw a mother deer and her fawn.
 Tommy Wyatt went with his parents to Atlantic City.
MISS LONG
 Wayne Horner, Ray Dodenhoff, Norman Truitt and Rose Phillips are absent because of the mumps. We hope they will be back soon.
 In science we are studying about insects—some are our enemies and some are not our enemies. We have learned how they help us, and what we can do to get rid of those that harm us.
 By Brenda Hurd
Fifth Grade—MRS. BROBST
 We were listing the harbingers of spring this past week. Several poems were written. Here are a few of them:

SPRING
 I thought of spring one day
 As I saw a kite in a store.
 It gave me a relief of the winter
 That had been such a bore.
 The second thing I saw to remind me of spring
 Was a robin with his song to sing.
 Then I saw a snake one day out of his winter quarter
 Then people coming from their winter place across the border.
 From the winter that was so long.
 All of this to me was a new song.
 Rickie Jester
 When the birds fly north
 Then it's spring of course.
 When the flowers bud
 They might come through the mud.
 As the bunny hops
 Our mother mops.
 To sum it up in such a way,
 I hope you enjoy spring every day.
 Brenda Neeman
 Spring is here
 Do you know how I know?
 I saw a little red cardinal
 Sitting in the snow.
 Billy Abbott
Spring is Here
 When spring comes, so do bees
 Dogs start getting fleas
 The grass starts growing
 My dad starts mowing—
 I fly my kite way up high
 Very far up in the sky.
 Wayne Melvin
 I love to hear the sweet birds sing,
 I like to watch them flap their wings.
 I like the way they fly and play,
 I hate to see them go away.
 The girls play hopscotch on a spring day
 Then they skip home all the way.
 The trees are green and flowers coming,
 That's when the birds start their humming.
 Judy Burgess

He sang for me.
 This is a sign of spring you see—
 Spring will soon be here.
 Whoopie!
 Douglas Clendaniel
 Spring is a wonderful time of year,
 Everything is filled with cheer.
 The flowers bloom
 The birds tweet-tweet—
 It seems to me things smell so sweet
 At this time of year.
 Jimmie Rash

Spring is here
 Let's all give a cheer
 The wind is blowing
 The grass is growing
 All is alive
 So, let's take a drive
 To see all that spring brings
 Then a song we will sing.
 Donna Dean
 Everyone's buying a new hat for spring!
 Please stop and look at each thing.
 Some cost a little and some cost a lot—
 You should see the one my mother got!
 Earl Coates

In spring the sun glows
 And the wind blows—
 There are flowers in long rows
 So people can have shows.
 The toes of the little girls' shoes shine,
 And their hats have big bows
 Just like mine.
 When mother comes down the stairs
 All dressed
 You'll tell her she looks her very best!
 Sally Pitlick

The robins and rebirds are here
 So you know spring is near.
 Still the snow is on the ground
 But doesn't cover the whole world round.
 We hear the bluebird sing
 And we know it will soon be spring.
 William Jester

Springtime is here once more
 Time to get out and play,
 While parents do the outside chores,
 To make the flowers and grass come up to stay.
 Bonnie Matthews
Mr. Donovan—Grade 5
 In science we have been studying about insects and animals. We learned that all adult insects have three parts to their body. They are the head, thorax, and abdomen.
 In social science we studied about Thomas Jefferson. When Thomas was a boy he lived on a plantation called Shadwell.
 He spent most of his schooling in a boarding school. When he was fourteen his father died; Thomas then became the man of the family.

 In social studies we are learning about Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and Finland. We have been preparing reports and making maps. Two of the reports we liked are about "Eric the Red" and "Hans Christian Anderson."
 Wayne Hendricks from this room had an accident. When he returned to school, he told us that he fell and cut his leg with an axe.
 We are learning to divide decimals in arithmetic. It is very interesting.
 Reporters—Donald Draper
 Tommy Simpler
Hans Christian Anderson (1805-1875)
 Do you know the story of the Ugly Duckling that turned out to be a beautiful swan? It is really a story of the author's own life; for little Hans Anderson was a long, lank, ungainly, awkward boy, as odd in his ways as in his looks, and none in his boyhood could have guessed that some day he would become one of the world's most famous men.
 In a little town in Denmark

he lived in a small room, which served also as a workshop for his Hans was 11 years old the father died. The mother had to go out washing and the little boy was left to himself. He played with a toy theatre, made clothes for the puppets, read plays, and invented stories. People laughed at the silly boy and wondered what would become of him. When he was sent to school he dreamed and idled away his time and learned very little.
 He always felt that something wonderful was going to happen to him just as in fairy tales. When he went to Copenhagen early in his life, he met with failures at the theaters. However, he decided to write plays if he could not act in them. At first he failed in this, too, but a kind friend recognized he had talent and helped him to get an education. He continued to write and finally produced a novel which brought him popularity.
 As he always had been interested in telling fairy tales, he was encouraged to write these down and put in a book. In 1835 the first volume of his immortal "Fairy Tales" appeared. This made him very popular not only in his own country but in all Europe.
 His statue stands in one of the public gardens of Copenhagen today and children play about it happily.

Eric The Red and Leif Ericson (950-1000)
 Norse explorer and the colorizer of Greenland was born in Norway from which he was compelled to flee to escape a charge of murder. He settled on the west coast of Iceland, where he was again accused of murder and then sought refuge in an island which had been discovered a century before, but not settled. In 985 he returned to Norway to secure colonists and supplies for the new country, which he called Greenland. No trace of this settlement remained after about four centuries. Eric's son, Leif Ericson introduced Christianity into the island and is credited by some with the discovery of the continent of North America which he called Vineland.
 Leif Ericson was the son of Eric the Red. He first visited Norway about the year 999 or 1000, and on his return voyage, his ship was driven by a storm out of it's course, through this seeming misfortune, he discovered land he had never seen before, which is supposed to have been what is known as America. If this is true, he was the real discoverer, instead of Columbus, but no benefit occurred to the world from this incident. He died when he was 50 years old.

Press and Drama Club Trip

Test Soybean Seed

With spring in the air soybean growers should start testing their seed, according to Frank B. Springer, University of Delaware agronomist. He said testing is especially important if you are going to plant Clark variety beans.

Germination testing of your seed will help insure a good stand. Seed from soybeans left in the field during last fall's wet weather are likely to have a low germination rate. If you plan to use your own seed, Springer recommends testing the germination rate at home or sending seed to the State Seed Testing Laboratory at Dover for a free test.

To make the home test, count out 100 soybean seeds and put the seeds between two wet blotters for five to ten days. Keep the blotters wet and the room temperature at about 80 degrees. When the seed sprout, you can count how many seeds per hundred will be likely to come up when you plant in the field.

If the count is low, Springer suggests treating the seed with Arasan, Spergon, or Orto soybean protectant. Treating is a cheap insurance against expensive replanting. Of course the best way to get high quality seed is to buy Delaware certified seed, Springer added.

H.H.S. Baseball Team Opens Season

By Keith S. Burgess

Coach Bill Smith is drilling a small squad of 12 or 13 players in preparation for the opening game at non-conference Caesar Rodney today (Friday).

Last year's nine, then coached by Harold McDonald, were co-champions of the Henlopen Conference along with Greenwood and Bridgeville. The first conference game will see Greenwood here Monday afternoon at 3:30.

This is a rebuilding year as only Ron Collison, catcher, and Jim Temple, at third base, are back from last year's championship team.

Coach Smith's starting lineup will probably be, in addition to Temple and Collison, Don Rothermel, pitcher; Walt Lekites, first base; Sam Minner, second base; David Hitchens, shortstop; Ken Hoffman, in left field; Leonard Masten, center field, and Bill Porter, in right field. George Pfeiffer may start in the outfield or infield.

Temple will see some mound duty along with Keith Boyer, a senior, who is out for the first time. George Collins, a reserve last year, was expected to be a starter but he has been ill and his status is uncertain.

Pfeiffer and Lekites have already won varsity letters in cross-country, football and basketball this school year. Since both are also on the track squad it appears they will be the first athletes in H.H.S. history to win five varsity letter in one year.

Both are juniors which makes this feat even more remarkable. Coach Harold McDonald is coaching the junior varsity squad of 40. All but 4 are in the seventh and eighth grades.

Fast Gun Man Hurt in Kent

A home-made western cinema

ended on a too realistic note Thurs., March 24, for two young men near Andrewville, when the principal actor was accidentally shot in the right leg.

The victim is Roy L. Glenn, 20, of Atlanta, Ga., who was visiting the home of Paul Sutcliffe, 23, on the Greenwood-Andrewville Road.

According to State Police, Glenn was in the back yard practicing a quick draw so that Sutcliffe could take motion pictures of the "western-style" exhibition.

His weapon caught and fired as he was drawing it from a fancy western holster, hung from a tooled leather cowboy belt. Glenn was treated at Kent General Hospital in Dover and released.

Glenn was admitted at Milford Memorial Hospital where his condition was described Friday as fairly good.

State Blood Bank Great Contributor To Hospitals

The Blood Bank of Delaware is contributing greatly to the development of new sources of blood replacement at the state's nine community hospitals, according to a study recently completed. Of special benefit to hospitals and patients alike is the increased availability of rare blood types.

More than 12,000 pints of blood have been supplied by members of the Blood Bank since the plan began operating in May 1955. Many of these donors had never given a blood transfusion before. Now with a membership of 44,000 families, the Blood Bank averages supplying one pint of blood replacement every two hours around the clock.

During 1959, members were called on to give 4000 replacement pints. Twenty per cent or approximately 800 of the 4000 pints was classified as rare blood. Substitute donors whose types were not included in the study and subscribers having a positive and A positive blood types accounted for the remaining 80 per cent. On the national average 75 per cent of the population have either O positive or A positive blood types.

Projecting the 1959 figures, Blood Bank members have contributed a minimum of 2400 pints of rare blood during the plan's first five years. It is estimated that 6400 members who have not been called have rare blood types.

How rare is a rare blood type? A study of Blood Bank members who donated last year (substitute donors not included) indicates that 70 out of 1000 persons have O negative; 93 out of 1000 have B positive; 25 out of 1000 have AB positive; 3 out of 1000 have A negative; 15 out of 1000 have B negative, and 57 out of 1000 have A negative.

The Blood Bank provides hospitals with two pints of blood for every one used by its subscribers, but is not obligated to replace with any specific type. However, as more Blood types of subscribers become known, the replacements can be more evenly matched with the needs.

"We continue to believe that each blood type group can take care of itself, thus eliminating any emergencies relating to the supply of a particular type," James F. McCloskey, president of the Blood Bank commented. "It would be relatively easy to match replacements with needs if all subscribers listed their blood questionnaire cards. Members are also urged to inform the Blood Bank of their blood type by indicating it when they renew their membership.

"The study points up the need for more information on blood types," he said. "A state-wide blood typing program has been one of the aims of the Blood Bank since its beginning, but because of the lack of funds it has not been possible to undertake this project.

"Also it is obvious that persons who have rare blood types especially need the protection of membership in the Blood Bank of Delaware and should make their types known to the Blood Bank. The Blood Bank makes it possible for them to share with each other in times of need. It eliminates unnecessary imposition on a few, who many times in the past had no recourse when they needed aid."

are not called on to donate any more often than those with more common types. At the present rate of use, after a member has given, he is not called again for five to seven years.

"Even without adequate information on rare blood types, the Blood Bank has made and continues to make important contributions. We encourage all citizens of the state with rare blood types to join this neighbor-help-neighbor program to solve their mutual blood replacement problems," Mr. McCloskey concluded.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—I need some quick money for an emergency and have been wondering if I should cash in my permanent plan GI life insurance. Before I do this, I'd like some advice from VA. Will you please tell me what would be involved?

A—The VA advises you NOT to cash in your permanent plan GI life insurance. All protection ceases when the policy is surrendered for cash, because, once cancelled, it cannot be restored. You would be much better off to borrow on your insurance. Paid up policyholders may borrow as much as 94 per cent of the policy's cash surrender value.

A—I know there's a deadline coming up pretty soon for our World War Two veterans on GI home loans. What is the date exactly, and what does it mean?

A—Under present law, July 25, 1960, is the cut-off date for World War Two veterans to apply for a GI loan. You will be allowed for an additional year in which to have the loan processed and actually closed.

Q—I now receive VA disability pension, under the present law. If I decide to switch to the new system of payment, effective July 1, 1960, will my change be considered final?

A—Yes. If you do decide to move over to the new system, you cannot go back to the old. If you have any doubt about which method of payment is more advantageous to you, the new or the old, ask your nearest VA office to help you decide.

Q—I am the beneficiary of my veteran-husband's GI insurance policy. He owed a few bills to private individuals at his death, which I intend to pay. Meanwhile, do these creditors have any right to seize the GI insurance policy to get their money right away?

A—No. The proceeds of your husband's GI insurance are exempted by law from any claims of private creditors. The insurance money may not be seized or attached to pay his debts.

Delaware Food Market Report

Spring is in the air now and the array of plentiful foods available during April will tempt and satisfy everyone's appetite. To head the list of abundant foods are cranberry products, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. These products add a rosy hue to any meal. They are easy to use, and so versatile that menu planners are finding new uses for all three of the products. There's cranberry juice, which requires only a good chilling to become an excellent mealtime starter. Canned whole cranberry sauce with its plump red berries, and canned jellied cranberry sauce, so red and firm, and just right for slicing or transforming into a delectable cooked or chilled creation.

Both pork and broiler-fryers will be in good supply during April. With the clearing of the weather the increase in pork and pork products at the market will be very noticeable and prices will reflect this. Prices are expected to rise strongly on pork by early summer, however, so put pork on your shopping list now. Buy some extra pork for your freezer. No need to worry about ham for Easter since this favorite meat should combine economy with tradition this year.

Shrimp in all sizes continues to be abundant. It is available in shells, or cleaned, deveined and even pre-breaded—frozen and fresh, as well as canned to meet your every need.

April's plentiful foods also include a good assortment of treat-type small fruits and nuts suitable for holiday needs. Fresh dates, raisins, almonds, filberts, and peanuts are in good supply.

To complete the list, foods abundant in April are eggs, canned freestone peaches, lard, rice, carrots and milk and dairy products.

The fresh vegetable picture is much brighter this week. An abundance of sweet potatoes and Iceberg lettuce is available. Broccoli, cabbage, green onions, celery, mushrooms, radishes, Eastern potatoes and medium size yellow onions are all excellent in quality and low in price. California asparagus is beginning to pick up volume and prices are very reasonable. The outlook for the next few weeks is good since "it's the season" in many growing areas for green peppers, cucumbers, sweet corn, fresh green beans, squash and tomatoes. Local markets will become alive with generous supplies of these fresh vegetables soon.

Older Women Outstanding in Clerical Work

Older women equal and sometimes surpass younger employees in output rate and in accuracy, according to a report by Patricia Middleton, home management specialist, Agricultural Extension Service, University of Delaware.

A recent survey by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed that older workers worked more steadily, with less variation from week to week, than workers in the younger age groups. Many older workers exceeded the performance of younger workers. Also, older workers produced as much work per hour as younger ones.

Many older women will be seeking job in the next few years, after their children have grown. The bureau's findings show that employers should not refuse to hire older workers on the basis of rate of output. Evaluating each worker individually, regardless of age, is the only fair way, Miss Middleton says.

In the bureau's study, most jobs where the workers did well dealt with routine office procedure, rather than the more skilled office occupations. Naturally, the woman has the foresight to learn a skill before she goes job-hunting will probably have an easier time finding one, and at an income that is more to her liking, Miss Middleton said.

Warm, hardy mittens are a gift children will love to find under the tree come Christmas morning. And if the youngster you have in mind already has a pair or two, this is one case where duplication won't matter because he or she can certainly always use another—especially when yours are made by hand.

A MITTEN IN THE HAND IS WORTH . . .
Well, two in the bush doesn't quite make sense when we're talking about mittens. But it is true that other kinds can't match the sturdy construction, the toughness and durability of a hand-made pair. Tightly fashioned from thick wools you select yourself, they're warmer, too. And mittens are a wonderful last minute gift, because they take so little time to knit or crochet. If you've already checked off all the names on your "giving" list, why not whip up a quick pair as an inexpensive item for your Junior or Junior Miss to exchange at a school or Sunday School party?

PRACTICAL AND PRETTY, TOO

I've searched through all our patterns for the best mitten design to offer you today—and I've come up, I think, with a really excellent suggestion. These are a toasty combination of two yarns: one a warm wool, the other a long-lasting orlon to insulate against cold, blustery winds. Both are worked at once in simple chains, single crochet and double crochet stitches. Long cuffs and bands of elastic at the wrists are other practical touches that will please Mother, while the child who's opening the package will be enthralled with the glistering gaiety of the metallic thread running through the yarn and the delightful decorations you've invented from silver beads and drops and sequins of all sizes and colors. Caesar Rodney School News

Recently at a high school assembly the senior members of the Caesar Rodney Chapter of the National Honor Society conducted induction ceremonies for two seniors and sixteen junior inductees.

The theme for the ceremony was "Stairway to Success". Marilyn Wild, president, presided assisted by Carol Analore, secretary. Peggy Holland spoke about the National History of honor societies in high schools since 1900.

Senior members who instructed the inductees in the cardinal principles of the National Honor Society - Scholarship, character, leadership, service and citizenship - were Betty Pugh, Gloria Donato, Carolyn Gibe, Marilyn Bickling, and Carol Patlan.

Dr. W. B. Simpson, superintendent, presented certificates and charms to the new members. At Caesar Rodney all honor society members have earned and have maintained a 90.0 average and have been approved by the High School faculty on the qualities of service, character and leadership.

tely marked by parade and outdoor exercises in many Delaware communities, also brings closer the opening of Delaware Park, one of America's most beautiful thoroughbred racing plants. A 55-day meet at the Stanton track gets underway on May 28.

Beginning Memorial Day, boat transportation, on weekend and holidays, will again be available from Delaware City to historic Fort Delaware on Pea Patch Island in the Delaware River. This picturesque old bastion housed Confederate prisoners during the American Civil War and is developing into one of the state's greatest attractions.

Delaware's bay and ocean resorts - Rehoboth Beach, Lewes, Dewey Beach, Bethany Beach and Fenwick Island - are getting ready for an early influx of vacationists. The banging of hammers and swish of paint brushes currently being heard throughout the coastal area is an indication that these resorts will be "ready for business" when the Delaware beach season opens the weekend prior to Memorial Day. Fishermen are already dropping their lines in the briny surf or in the more than 50 well-stocked Delaware lakes and ponds—and reporting sizeable catches.

Wherever one goes in Delaware this spring, a warm welcome will be found concludes the Development Department.

Mrs. William Hurd presided over the monthly meeting of the Harrington Neighborhood Association for the Girl Scouts and Brownies, held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Norman Hopkins.

Miss Dorothy Gamber and Mrs. Verna Walls were special guests. Their purpose for attendance was to explain the possibility of a Day Camp setup through the weeks of July 11 and July 18, to be held at McCauley's Pond on the property of Mr. Calloway.

There's a new look coming in interior design and it's not far off . . . a look that's softer, more gracious, more feminine than the streamlined, strictly functional modernistic decors of the past decade.

Baroque eras are creeping in: fragile porcelain knick knacks, reminiscent of Europe's 18th Century courts and salons . . . rich crocheted pieces recalling Victorian days.

A VICTORIAN TOUCH

I don't mean at all that you should expect to see a revolution in decorating like the famous "New Look" of 1947 in fashion or the excitement of the chemise last spring. Luckily, the beautiful, simple lines of modern furniture appear to be here to stay for a long time. (And a room that's old American or traditional will certainly keep on enjoying a specially preferred position on the home front.) But little hints from the more

A NEW PERSPECTIVE

What brings about these subtle changes? The increasing realization that it's not enough for the place where you live to be merely convenient and useful. A real home should be comfortable, too—and I think most important of all, it should reflect the distinct personalities and interests of your family. Which leads me to my suggestion for today—a wonderful way to add one of these gracious touches to your living room, and at the same time an unmistakable mark of your own talent and femininity. Why not adorn the back of your favorite comfortable chair with a lovely chair back you crochet yourself? In the pattern shown here, the handsome Ferris Wheel motifs are joined with roses of fill-in lace. Noting that the State Department has discontinued all systematic supervision in the high school except in special vocational areas, the Caesar Rodney Board recommends that the foreign language supervisor include English as well. To Caesar Rodney, a mathematics and science combination appears reasonable; (3) The elimination from the present bills of any funds for statistical equipment for the State Board of Education and the introduction of a separate bill for any such equipment deemed necessary.

In other action the Board reviewed the referendum results and heard a report from members of the administrative staff that while the teachers were extremely loyal to the school, some key personnel would be lost.

After a hearing, the Board suspended for the remainder of the school year two sixteen-year old juveniles on account of repeated truancy.

After reviewing a delinquent tax list from the county tax office, the Board adopted a motion granting a thirty-day grace period after which legal steps will be taken to collect taxes in all but extreme hardship cases.

Miss Rose Chatto was approved as an additional chaperone for the senior trip to New York City.

Also approved was a short ni-service course for high school teachers in the field of homeroom guidance with three o'clock dismissal on six days to be followed by a two-hour class period.

The Board adopted a motion of appreciation to Robert Vincent who resigned his school position as custodian to assist in a business at Bowers Beach and named as his replacement Gooden Voshell of Wyoming who brings to Caesar Rodney several years of experience from Libby, McNeil and Libby in Wyoming.

The Board was undecided on the Sussex County suggestion that the proposed equalization bill give Boards the right to levy the 15 cent tax required for participation without a referendum.

March weather made it impossible for farmers to get along with plowing and planting. The past few days have allowed them to get in the fields with the result that plowing and planting of peas and potatoes are progressing at rapid rate. These plantings are all month behind schedule. Asparagus fields are being worked. If good weather prevails, it is expected that cutting will start about April 20. Local help is a short factor and most asparagus growers have arranged for out of state help for cutting. Some Florida hands have worked their way north to help with the potato planting.

Puerto Rican Labor
Users of contract Puerto Rican Labor should make arrangements early for completion of their contracts. It will be necessary to furnish a performance bond regardless of the number of workers employed. The Puerto Rican Department of Labor has set $30 as the hourly rate for 1960.

Florida Recruitment
Recruitment of Florida crews for the summer harvest will start on April 11. Recruitment will be made at the following points: April 11th, Winter Haven and Avon Park; April 12, Lakeland and Tampa; April 13, Bradenton; April 14, Immokalee and Homestead; April 15, Pompano Labor Camp; April 16, Belle Glade; April 18, West Palm Beach and Pahokee; April 19, Fort Pierce; April 20, Sanford and Winter Park; April 21, Leesburg; April 22, Palatka and Hastings; April 23, Jacksonville. Growers who plan to use southern help should notify the Employment Service at once.

Housing Inspection
The State Board of Health has the responsibility of inspecting and issuing permits for housing migratory farm labor. Growers are required by regulations to notify the Board of Health at least ten days before workers are scheduled to arrive. All growers who have or plan to have workers housed on their farms should notify the Health Department at once. They can help you with your planning, building, or remodeling.
