Century Club Hears Women's Clubs Head

The beautiful spring flowers that decorated the Harrington New Century Club recently vied with the lovely Easter bonnets of the members and their guests when they attended the Easter luncheon. Mrs. Ridgely W. Vane, and the members of the decorating committee, had made the clubhouse most attractive for this event which marks the close of the current president's term of office.

Street Improvement Program Starts With Curbing, Blacktopping

Street improvements got underway this week with an extensive program of curbing, blacktopping of two streets, and blacktopping of a third if funds permit.

Curbing is expected to be completed on Reese Avenue this week, after which Simpson St., Second Avenue, Short and High Streets, Smith Avenue, and a portion of Liberty Street will be similarly improved. The last-named thoroughfare will be curbed from Delaware Avenue to the railroad, and from Weiner Avenue to Dorman Street. The sidewalks are high enough on Liberty Street, from Railroad Avenue to Weiner Avenue, that it was felt that curbing was not needed.

It is expected that some of the above streets will be blacktopped after the municipal-aid appropriation is received this summer.

Reese and Harrington Avenues will be blacktopped soon and, if funds permit, said Mayor Charles L. Peck Sr., Reese Avenue will be treated likewise.

An impressive church wedding was solemnized Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Asbury Methodist Church, uniting Miss Marlene J. Hoffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Arthur Hoffman of 44 Commerce St., and John R. Hawkins, son of the late John P. Hawkins and Mrs. Esther J. Hawkins of Fleetwood, Pa. The ceremony was read by the Rev. Richard S. Gibson, pastor, and appropriate wedding music was furnished by Donald Smith, organist, and Robert Piacine, soloist, both of Hamburg, Pa. The church was beautifully decorated with palms, gladioli, snapdragons, mums and candelabra.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a floor-length gown of tiers of chantilly lace on net, over taffeta, with long tapered sleeves. The neckline was a lace scalloped bateau, studded with sequins and rhinestones. The bodice was nipped at the waist in a Victorian fashion.

Her fingertip veil of illusion was caught at the crown of a jeweled coronet. She carried a cascade of white gardenias.

Miss Barbara Payne was maid of honor and Miss Anna Mae Syler of Fleetwood, Pa.; Miss Ann Louise Hoffman, Miss Charlyne Hoffman, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids.

Their dresses were ballerina models of pastel blue, pink, green and yellow silk organza over taffeta with matching picture hats. Miss Susan Hawkins, of Fleetwood, Pa., niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. Her dress was a yellow organza with a white lace overskirt and a matching lace bonnet. They all carried cascades of matching carnations.

Delmar Diehl of Fleetwood, Pa. served as best man. Ushers included Donald Hawkins, Barry Hawkins of Fleetwood, Pa., brothers of the bridegroom, and Kenneth Hoffman, brother of the bride. Master Rickey Hoffman, brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

A lovely reception was held at the church following the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins left later on a wedding trip through Northwestern part of Pennsylvania, and on their return will reside at Fleetwood, Pa. For going away Mrs. Hawkins wore a navy two piece dress with white accessories and a gardenia corsage, which was concealed in the bridal bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of the class of 1959, Harrington High School and has been a secretary for Murphy and Hayes for the past few months. Mr. Hawkins graduated from Fleetwood High School in 1955 and in 1958 enlisted in the U. S. Army for two years. He served 18 months in Germany. John Carson New Leader Of Kent GOP

As expected, and after weeks and months of behind-the-scenes political maneuvering, John B. (Jack) Carson Monday was elected chairman of the Kent County Republican Committee.

Even though expected, the margin of victory was a little more than Carson's backers had been counting on in their efforts to unseat W. Deane Johnston. Carson was elected by 53-40 with almost a full representation of the 96-member committee turning out for the voting.

On a motion by Mr. Johnston, the defeated candidate, the vote was recorded as unanimous.

Re-elected unanimously at the meeting, held in the House of Representatives chamber in Dover's Legislative Hall, were Mrs. Ruth Conclio as vice chairman and Secretary of State George Shulz as treasurer. Calvin Boggs, youngest brother of Gov. J. Caleb Boggs, was opposed to succeed Ralph W. Wine as member-at-large of the county's executive committee.

An omnibus bond bill, to make possible $25,477,861 in school construction projects, in which two schools in this area would be affected, was introduced in the House at Dover Thurs., April 21.

The projects, drawn by the State Department of Public Instruction, called for $3,075,000-high-school-level consolidation of Harrington, Frederica, and Felton schools.

Also included is a project for a $430,000 P.S. duPont School for Harrington. The state would pay 100 per cent of this cost.

The school bond bill proposed 38 construction projects, with the maximum state share to be $17,990,831 and the maximum local share to be $7,487,030.

Another proposal is $3,550,000 for a consolidation of Smyrna, Odessa, Kenton, Townsend, Clayton and Middletown schools.

The bill was introduced by Rep. George A. Robbins (D-Milford), chairman of the House Education Committee, with Rep. Norman Eskridge (D-Seaford) and Rep. Tilghman S. Johnson (R-Frankford) cosponsoring it. It is HB-564.

The bill would limit the cost of any classroom to $30,000, and specifies that no state funds may go into the construction of a swimming pool. The State Board of Education would be required to determine the present need for the proposed construction project in each district.

Knotts, 880 Relay Team Nab Seconds In Seaford Invitational Track

by Keith S. Burgess

The Harrington High School track team did not make a big splash in this year's Seaford Invitational track meet as it did in the past two years, but nevertheless made a creditable showing.

Harry Knotts last year won the invitational mile by inches from Burgess Blevins of Washington High, Princess Anne, Md. This year the same pair put on another thrilling due with the Marylander prevailing by a slim margin. His time set a new meet record. Knotts' time of 4:47.8 is his second best effort ever and also was four seconds under the old meet standard. Harry probably sacrificed his chances of winning by forsaking his favorite distance, the mile, during the last two weeks in order to strengthen his team's quarter-mile representation. This event also featured a pair of fine performers by the Hackett brothers. Dwight Hackett two years ago was king of the lower Delaware distance runners. Since then he has been plagued by a series of ailments. Wednesday, the comebacking miler, was clocked in 4:58, his best mile in two years.

Clarence Hackett, a fine prospect, showed his heels to his rivals in another heat of the mile. Clarence is only a freshman and amazed the crowd with his finish kick which left his older rivals far in the rear.

In the 880 relay the Lions surprised by taking second place as anchor man Walt Lekites fought off the closing surge of Washington's final runner. Bob Winkler led off for H.H.S. and ran his usual good stint. Bill Carter, running next, surprised his previous best effort of the season. Bruce Smith, a pole vaulter who had not participated previously as a runner, flashed unexpected speed to hold his own and make the final placing possible.

Jim Temple was the other Lion to figure in the scoring as he vaulted 9 ft. 3 to tie for fifth in the pole vault.

Friday, April 29, the Lions will be host to Milton, Greenwood, John M. Clayton and Delmar in another Henlopen Conference development.

The accompanist was Miss Carol Smith.

THE HIGH FLYING HAT
Ward Nayda, Ward Lynd

This is the story of a farmer named Timothy who owned a bright red tractor called Alfalfa. He lives in the Middle West where everything is flat. He had four fields. In one he planted peas, the other beans, the other oats, and last barley. Besides owning his tractor he owned a harmonica and a polka-dot handkerchief for wiping his brow.

Most important of all was his big straw hat. Timothy wouldn't go anywhere without it. As they bumped along in the fields he played his harmonica and sang his planting song.

One day when he looked on top of his hat. He saw where dirt had layed up there, and the seeds he had put up there when seed had been left over. When Timothy saw the seeds growing he was surprised. But they hadn't had rain for five days. The fields were dry. They didn't know how to get rain from the big cloud overhead. The field friends had an idea. They would put fire crackers and hook them on to the hat. Timothy said, "how about if my hat never gets down?" Well we think it will. You will have to read this book to find out what happens.

MYSTERY OVER THE BRIC KWALL
Orton, Helen Fuller

There was once a girl and boy who were moving to the city. They had to live in a small house with a small backyard. Lew and Vie's father asked the caretaker if they could play in Miss Steele's big yard. The caretaker said it would be all right with him. When they got there, there was a brick wall in between their house and the big house.

One day they were playing in the yard. The owner Miss Steele dislikes other children because two boys helped her nephew Jerry run away.

If I told you if Jerry came back and if his sister came back from Europe it would be no mystery.

The chapter I like best is "Herbert's Newspaper." Herbert prints a newspaper called, "The Tunlaw Street Trumpet." The first week they do not find very much news. Then Herbert invites the president of the United States to Mapleton. He prints this in his newspaper and sells about one hundred copies.

Herbert has many other adventures. It is not hard to read.

Orton, Helen Fuller
A very important letter is lost in Miss Wayne's big library. That night Miss Wayne, who lost the letter, heard strange sounds. When Ken and Marilyn came over she told them all that happened. Ken said, "Maybe someone got into the house," but Miss Wayne said that she locked everything.

She told them about a secret passage that was once part of the underground railroad. It was used to help slaves escape and they would stay there until it was safe to reach Canada. Ken and Marilyn were determined to see where it went, but Miss Wayne said she didn't know what was down there and was afraid to let them go.

Many other interesting things happened trying to locate the letter.

THE ENCHANTED BOOK
Dalglish, Alice

This book is very interesting. There are tales of enchanted princes and princesses, of animals that became human beings, and humans turned into animals. There are many stories such as, "The Wild Swans," "Cat-skin," "Snow White," "Rose Red," and many others.

The pictures have fun in them too, like the one in which the townspeople look in astonishment at Dwarf Long Nose.

I enjoyed this book very much. I am sure you will too.

Marianne Clarke and Rickie Jester are back in school after being absent because of mumps. We are glad to have them back. However, we are sorry that Sally Pitlick and James Rash are now absent for the same reason.

Milford Chess Club

Organized

On April 13, eleven members signed up to join the Milford Chess Club. They were Mr. Raught of Lewes, his son, D. J. Raught, George Marshall, Leon Techantree, Paul Roman, Ray Wilkie, Richard Downing, Tom Pierce, Dr. J. Abramson, Morris Rosker and Kenneth Parker.

The members agreed that eventually they would like to participate in tournaments with chess clubs of other communities. At the meeting they wasted no time in playing each other to determine the club champion. However, it will take a few more sessions to determine the champion.

Everyone had a good time and were all agreed to meet at least once a month. It was hoped that the membership would increase with additions from our neighboring towns. The club solicits everyone reading this, who may be interested, to contact either Dr. J. Abramson or George Marshall who acted as temporary chairman.

The Milford Chess Club is scheduled to meet again on Wed., May 4, at 8 p.m. at the Teen-age Club across from the Milford Armory on North Walnut St. Everyone is welcome. Bring chess sets!

H.H.S. Wins 5-Team Meet; Greenwood Surprises As Strong Third

Coach Dick Jeffers' Harrington High track team won its third meet in four starts Friday afternoon. Millsboro again was a close second but the Foresters from Greenwood surprised by winning three events and taking second in two others for a good third-place finish. In the twenties and early thirties Greenwood was the dominant power in the Sussex County championship track meets held at the fairgrounds here. However, since then they have not participated in the thin clad sport except for one man in one meet last year.

Bob Hitchens, a fine all-around athlete who on Thursday pitched a no-hit, no-run baseball game, was the leading Forester with a win in the high jump and seconds in the broad jump and pole vault.

Harry Knotts, premiere downstate miler last year, again ran the 440 and bettered his last outing by 4th of a second although he was forced to break stride at one point and also had to pace most of the quarter on the outside.

Dwight Hackett, 1958 mile titleholder at the Seaford and Milford Invationals, ran his first mile in two years and won handily in 5:07.

The local Lions had it easy in the mile relay as Hackett opened up a huge lead on the second leg which enabled "Bucky" Bradley and Knotts to take it easy.

Bruce Smith continued to inch his way up toward the 9-9 school pole vault record held by Don Garey. Bruce improved his personal best from 9-4 to 9-6 to win this event while Jim Temple was third.

Millsboro led most of the way with the locals finally prevailing with heavy scoring in the two last events. Walt Lekites won the broad jump first and then George Balderson and Bill Porter were 2-3 in the discus for the deciding points.

Delaware Food Market Report

Spring vegetable production as a whole is predicted to be 5% below a year ago. Some vegetables, however, are and will be in larger supply this year. These include celery, snap beans, onions, spinach, cauliflower, egg plant, peppers and sweet corn. Current supplies of many vegetables are good and prices are beginning to edge down a penny or so. Check the following for good buys this weekend: celery, spinach, artichokes, carrots, escarole, endive and romaine. A new crop of snap beans is now coming in from Florida, and the prices have dropped to an average of 22c a lb. Fresh asparagus continues to arrive in fair supply with prices ranging from 17c to 30c a lb. This is one vegetable that still has only one season—that's right now. Select the large tender stalks, ones with tightly closed flowerlets, if you want a truly delicious vegetable.

Lettuce went up in price last week and is high again this week. Quality is only fair, and in many cases poor. A between-season shortage is blamed for this situation. Squash also went up in price.

Strawberry marketings this spring are expected to be a little less than a year ago, due to smaller crops in California and Louisiana. Local crops look very good, so the picture in this area may change to a plentiful supply as soon as these berries reach our markets. Fruits which are in good supply this week are oranges, grapefruit, pineapples, bananas, coconuts and apples.

Meat counters look very much as they did last week, with the "best buys" being found among weekend specials. Just about every meat has some cut on sale for weekend shoppers.

The list of new food products continues to grow. A quartet of frozen fruit punch concentrates is coming to market from California: Strawberry-lemon, grape-lemon, raspberry-lemon and pineapple-lemon are the new tasting flavors. These new concentrates will make 1 quart of punch when water is added. Only fresh fruits are used, there are no artificial flavors or colors added.

Scalloped potatoes and Au Gratin potatoes are recent additions to the packaged convenience foods. Both are ready to use with just the addition of water and butter. When you tire of potatoes, try another new product—Rice-A-Roni. This is a combination of rice and vermicelli in three different flavors: chicken, beef and Spanish.

Delaware Food Market Report

Spring vegetable production as a whole is predicted to be 5% below a year ago. Some vegetables, however, are and will be in larger supply this year. These include celery, snap beans, onions, spinach, cauliflower, egg plant, peppers and sweet corn. Current supplies of many vegetables are good and prices are beginning to edge down a penny or so. Check the following for good buys this weekend: celery, spinach, artichokes, carrots, escarole, endive and romaine. A new crop of snap beans is now coming in from Florida, and the prices have dropped to an average of 22c a lb. Fresh asparagus continues to arrive in fair supply with prices ranging from 17c to 30c a lb. This is one vegetable that still has only one season—that's right now. Select the large tender stalks, ones with tightly closed flowerlets, if you want a truly delicious vegetable.

Letter to the Editor

In last week's issue of The Harrington Journal, you probably read the column about (City Still Has Farmlands), an issue that has been discussed at several of the annual Citizens Meetings in the past; also, at the most recent one held last January. There, the citizens of the City of Harrington present expressed their desire to have their representatives on the City Council to support a change in the City Charter of Harrington thru the General Assembly. Certain members of Council have not supported this or any other change pertaining to farmland. In my opinion and maybe I am wrong but it appears in all the meetings that I have attended that certain Council members represent a choice select few especially since they won't discuss the issue except that a man farms on land should be nontaxable. However, we have other lands that I think is farmed on that pay taxes on same. If you call raising soybeans. I have been raising soybeans on my lots for the past 2 or 3 years. Yet I pay taxes on them.

The Harrington Journal's report of same seemed to be a short form or they didn't hear the same thing in the Council meeting that the Delaware State News did according to the accounts given in each paper. I think since it is an issue in our City, I think the Journal should carry full and complete accounts of each meeting in order to keep the public better informed on the passing events or maybe they have a good reason for not printing same. If so, please let the public know.

Also I would like to see all the Service clubs of the City of Harrington discuss this farmland issue at some of their meetings and deliver petitions either in favor or against so we can get the true opinion of the public which certainly are representative of the City.

If any of the clubs wish to have this issue explained at their meeting I am sure some of the Council members for the change will be glad to appear before your group. As to the opposing sides, it won't hurt to ask them as to get both sides of the story. Councilman C. M. Collins

EDITORIAL NOTE: A dog cannot scratch himself in two places at once: we cannot attend two meetings simultaneously. On the night of the special Council meeting, at which farmland was discussed, Tues., April 19, there was a three-hour meeting in which representatives of civic groups interviewed the Board of Education and J. C. Messner, superintendent of schools, on their hassle. The public must agree that this meeting was far more newsworthy than the Council meeting. The Delaware State News did not cover this meeting.

For the results of the Council meeting, we did the next best thing possible: we got the minutes of the meeting Wednesday. It was said in the above letter "maybe they have a good reason for not printing same." It has always been our policy to give a fair and accurate account of anything we report, with justice to all, partiality to none, and let the chips fall where they may. Any reporter who follows any other course would be betraying his readers.

When the Council met on Monday, we attended the meetings for years. In fact, we have attended more Council meetings than anyone in the City government except Mayor Peck. However, when the regular meeting night was moved to Thursday night, it was not easy to attend it because we had to go to Wilmington to pick up copy for a printing job.

This job, the calendar for the House of Representatives, has to be printed over the weekend. If we waited until Friday for the copy, we would lose a half-day and on overtime at that. Thus, when the City Council meeting conflicts with the calendar, the latter comes first. However, there will be no conflict next week and we will attend the Council meeting.

PTA To Meet May 4

Ironically, Bill used to be a Harrington resident.

Teachers Study Certification

The Division of Teacher Education and Professional Standards of the State Department of Public Instruction has recently released the schedule for the final meeting in the state certification revision study program. The next meeting will be a general session for the entire study committee and will be held in the Dover High School Auditorium on May 7. All of the proposed regulations will be reviewed at this time for final approval by the revision committee. Only committee members will attend this major session.

As a follow-up to this meeting, a public hearing has been scheduled for May 21 in the Dover High School Auditorium to begin at 9:30 a.m. All interested persons are invited to participate. Schools have been provided copies of the final report and will receive revisions made at the May 7 meeting. Citizens of any school community may have access to these reports. Individuals or groups wishing to be heard on May 21 must file a request for a hearing giving the following information: Name of individuals or organizations, the sections or certificate(s) under question, and the major points of argument to be presented. In order to be considered, two copies of the request are to be filed with the certification office of the State Department of Public Instruction in Dover no later than Monday, May 16.

Dr. Elizabeth C. Lloyd, Director of the State Division of Teacher Education and Professional Standards reports that the committee recognizes general public interest in school problems today and desires wide participation in this final phase of the intensive two-year study. Over 200 people, including school administrative and teaching personnel, college faculties, members of the State Department, and laymen have been active in the project. These do not include the many outside consultants used by the individual committees. The public hearing will be an opportunity for additional school personnel, as well as any other interested citizens, to take part in the final discussion.

Control Cattle Grubs

Cattle grubs are now appearing on the backs of cattle, county agent, George Vapaa warned. You can find the grubs by feeling for lumps on the cow's back, he said. The grubs fall to the ground in late spring and develop into heel flies. Heel flies don't bite, but they do make cows nervous, causing lower milk production in dairy cows and slower gains in beef cattle. Adult heel flies lay eggs in the cattle's leg hairs. The eggs hatch into grubs, which migrate and settle on the cow's back until spring.

Young cattle grubs can be controlled by giving the cattle organic phosphorus insecticides orally in the fall.

If the cattle already have the grubs this spring, rub one and one-half percent Rotenone powder into their backs once a month through May, Mr. Vapaa suggested. Large herds can be sprayed with a Rotenone mix.

25th Birthday For SCS

The Soil Conservation Service celebrated its 25th birthday Wed., April 27. Delaware is one of 21 states which are completely covered by soil conservation districts, according to state conservationist, Richard S. Snyder.

The soil conservation district is the central source of help and information about soil and water conservation in nearly every conservation in the nation, he said. In Delaware, the soil conservation districts work under the guidance of a State Soil Conservation Committee. Each district is managed by a board of six supervisors consisting of four farmer members locally elected and two ex-officio members, the county agricultural agent and the chairman of the and the Levoy Court. These officials serve without salary.

The act enabling Soil Conservation Districts in Delaware was signed into law by Governor W. C. Bacon, April 2, 1943. Snyder said the Soil Conservation Service has developed the idea that each farm must be considered as a whole, and not planned or treated piecemeal. Modern conservation farm planning is based on the capability of each acre.

A new kind of professional technician—the soil conservationist—has made it possible to focus on a single farm techniques representing a combination of the physical, biological and social sciences. Development and growth of soil conservation districts has brought the benefits of modern conservation technology to the individual farm under local control and guidance and is according to local needs and desires, Snyder said.

Some of the responsibilities of the SCS include the development and carrying out of a national soil and water conservation program through local soil conservation districts created and managed by farmers and ranchers under State law. The SCS also carries out the Department of Agriculture's responsibilities in watershed-protection and flood-prevention projects and river-basin investigations.

The SCS administers the federal part of the National Cooperative Soil Survey and the Great Plains Conservation Program. They help develop the annual Agricultural Conservation Program by giving technical assistance to farmers participating in the program and by providing designs and specifications for permanent conservation practices.

The SCS gives technical assistance to farmers participating in the Soil Bank's Conservation Reserve Program. They also give technical assistance to farmers in the conservation-credit program of the Farmers Home Administration.

By July of last year more than 1,279,600 farmers and ranchers were carrying out whole-farm conservation plans in cooperation with soil conservation districts and with technical assistance of the Soil Conservation Service.

In Delaware, the SCS has contributed to the building of 275 farm ponds and 1,471 miles of drainage structures affecting 51,577 acres on individual farms. They helped with another 370 miles of drainage construction carried out by drainage groups. They have made up conservation farm plans for 2,654 farms and carried out soil conservation surveys on 734,177 acres.

They have helped farmers set up conservation crop rotations on 292,914 acres and with contour farming on 3,711 acres. Stubble mulching as a conservation practice has been carried out on another 173,987 acres.

On woodland they have helped with improved cutting on 14,193 acres.

In the area of wildlife conservation the SCS has helped farmers with 73 miles of hedgerows and 4,857 acres of area improvement for wildlife.

Regular church attendance can mean a lot in your life. A colored man at Colonel Clark's mission in Chicago said, "Bredren, when I gets to de gates of hebben, if dey shuts me out, I'll say, Anyhow, I hadda good time gettin here!"

Church attendance can make traveling the highways of life a happy experience. Real religion can make a difference. Religion isn't a false smile which you "turn on" for special occasions. It's deeper than that. It's an inner courage and faith which are radiated—even in adversity.

Caesar Rodney School News

Failure of House Bill 531 to muster the required 27 votes on Monday in a late House session will likely result in some Caesar Rodney pupils being housed in an abandoned schoolhouse, made-over homes, the Camden-Wyoming Fire Hall, and trailers for two more years instead of one according to school authorities.

Strongly supported by sponsors Harvey P. Fifer (R) Rising Sun, George R. Robbins (D) Manning (R) Marshallton, who had recently made a tour of Caesar Rodney facilities, the bill received 22 of the required 27 votes, including all on the Republican side. Opposition came from members who want to press for the twenty-five million dollar omnibus bond bill which includes Caesar Rodney. Rep. Walter Carmean (D-Dagsboro) spoke against the Caesar Rodney measure stating that he had had a school building bill in for a year without success.

Caesar Rodney proponents pointed out that the State Board omnibus bill was already a year behind schedule and that it would likely take months to get the kinks out of the present bill.

It is reported that the Education Committee Chairman George T. Robbins (D-Milford) is planning a series of hearings on the school construction bill in conjunction with the Senate Education Committee headed by Calvin McCullough (D-Holloway Terrace).

Mrs. Richard Hardy, program chairman, presented "The Chansettes," a vocal group who gave several selections and Mrs. George P. Brett of Dover, who gave a number of monologues and poems.

Summer Fashions Need Trim Figure

Summer clothing flatters a trim figure. So . . . if your figure isn't as trim as you'd like, now is not too soon to get it into shape, urges county home demonstration agent Florence Y. Smith.

Many people gain weight during the winter because they eat more rich foods and exercise less than they do in the warmer months. To achieve a figure that fits the summer style clothes, combine a good diet with moderate exercise.

low in calories are a must. Protein-rich foods such as meat, poultry, fish, eggs, and dairy products, help strengthen muscles. A variety of fruits and vegetables are necessary to keep the body working properly.

Meal skipping is not the answer Mrs. Smith says. Breakfast, especially is the meal that needs attention. Eating an adequate breakfast helps you to feel better and to work without tiring easily. A good breakfast reduces high calorie nibbling between meals and overeating at lunch.

A good breakfast includes enough protein to prevent mid-morning hunger. Serving a glass of milk with a bowl of cereal or an egg raises the protein level of a breakfast, Mrs. Smith said.

Polio Vaccine Available in Free Clinics

Long urged to avail themselves of the protection against polio offered by the Salk vaccine, Delawareans get another, and possibly last, chance this spring to obtain the vaccine in free clinics.

Regarded as a mop-up drive by its sponsors, the series of clinics is aimed at pre-school children and those adults over school age and under 45 who have not yet been vaccinated.

In their fourth year of the anti-polio campaign, the Medical Society of Delaware, the State Board of Health and the Delaware Chapters of the National Foundation feel that in-school programs have reached about as many children as possible. Continuing concentration on first graders should keep this part of the population at a high level of immunity. Pre-school children, most susceptible to the disease, and adults, most hard-hit if stricken, are being urged to secure shots from their family doctors or from the free clinics.

Authorities, including Dr. Jonas Salk, recommend four doses of the vaccine for everyone under 45. The proper sequence is: The first shot now; the second a month later; the third, seven months after the second, and the fourth one year after the third.

VA Lists Deadlines For Veterans

Here's a deadline round-up from the VA for Delaware veterans and their families.

The nearest general deadline is the one for World War II veterans in getting GI loans, Leon Fields, manager of the Wilmington Regional Office said. World War II veterans have until July 25, 1960 to apply for GI loans and VA has an additional year in which to process applications for guaranty of insurance. Lenders, builders and veterans should note carefully that the VA does not have any discretionary authority to waive the failure of a lender to comply with this requirement of the governing law.

Veterans with service during the Korean conflict period have until February 1, 1965 to apply for GI loan guaranty, the VA official pointed out.

In the field of education, Korean veterans have three years from the date of their discharge to begin GI training. They have eight years from the date of discharge in which to complete the training.

VA's entire training program for Korean veterans has a final deadline of January 1965.

In the rehabilitation program for service-connected disabled Korean veterans, there is no deadline for training starts. However, veterans who were discharged before August 20, 1954, must begin in time to complete their training by August 20, 1963. Those who left the armed forces after August 20, 1954, must begin by January 31, 1964, or nine years after their date of separation, whichever date comes earlier.

There are no deadlines for medical care, hospitalization or domiciliary care, Mr. Fields said. Similarly, there are no deadlines for applications for compensation or pension. However, if disabled veterans with a service-connected disability apply for compensation within one year from the date of discharge from active service, compensation from VA may be back-dated to the first day as a civilian.

Jehovah Witnesses To Meet in Middletown

Jehovah's Witnesses from the Dover congregation will attend a Circuit Assembly at the National Guard Armory in Middletown this weekend, April 29, 30, and May 1. Mr. Bernal Dean, presiding minister of the local group, said over 700 delegates from 23 congregations of the Witnesses on Delmarva are expected to attend. The last semi-annual gathering was held in Georgetown last November and had a peak attendance of 901 delegates.

Watchtower officials, Mr. Dean said, have arranged a very interesting three-day program with the theme "Seek Peace and Pursue it." The purpose of the gathering is to provide stimulus for the delegates in Christian association, Bible instruction and ministerial training. This, he said, is in accordance with provisions made for God's people in Bible days.

Most of those from the Dover Congregation will be staying in private homes and motels in Middletown and surrounding areas. Some may commute by motorcar. As is normal at Jehovah's Witnesses assemblies, they will have their own cafeteria set up at the Armory with volunteer help being used. Meals will be served at very reasonable rates.

The highlight of the gathering will be the Bible talk on Sunday at 3 p. m. by Mr. David J. Thomas, District Supervisor of the Middle Atlantic States. The title is, "Finding Peace In A Troubled World."

Participating on the assembly program from the Dover Congregation will be Mr. Bernal Dean.

Volunteer fire-fighters from all parts of the Peninsula will convene in Pocomoke City May 10-11 for the annual Del-Mar-Va Firemen's Association convention.

J. Meredith Marshall, of the Rescue Fire Company, Cambridge, and president of the association, will preside at a meeting of the Executive Committee at 4 p. m. on opening day.

Pocomoke is playing host to the 31st convention, the first time this community has ever been the site.

Delegates from the 100-member companies are expected to begin arriving on the afternoon of May 10. Registration will be held from 2 to 4 p. m., with the executive committee meeting as the opening bit of business.

The firemen's dinner will be held at 6 o'clock in the high school and a Philadelphia stage show will provide entertainment at 8 o'clock. The evening will be topped off with a dance at the fire house.

The formal convention will convene at 9 a. m. on May 11, and reports will be given and business conducted until 4 o'clock when memorial services will be held at the Salem Methodist Church.

Thousands of people are expected to jam the town for the big parade, always a colorful sight, as it marches off at 6:30 p. m. from the high school. A number of cash prizes and plaques will be awarded visiting firemen.

Committee heads of the host Pocomoke Company are James Willing, convention Linwood McDaniel, housing; Chief Fred Henderson, entertainment; Raymond Dryden, banquet; Robert Givens, program; Marion Butler, parade; and Rev. Gordon Stapleton, memorial services.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—A year ago I asked VA to hold my annual GI Insurance dividend as a credit, from which to pay my premium in case I should miss a payment. Do I have to renew this arrangement each year with the VA?

A—No. Once the credit arrangement on dividends is authorized by you, it remains in effect until cancelled. It is not necessary to renew your authorization each year.

Q—My husband's electrical appliance shop was burned out three months ago and he recovered his losses through a fire insurance policy. Is it necessary for him to report this money when he tells VA about his income? He is applying for pension.

A—No. Proceeds of fire insurance policies are not considered income for VA pension purposes.

Q—Is every disabled Korea veteran, regardless of the degree of his disability, entitled to special vocational rehabilitation training?

A—No. This training is available only to disabled veterans who need it to overcome the handicap of their service-connected disabilities. However, those who don't need vocational rehabilitation training may be eligible for Korean GI Bill training.

Q—My husband died of a service-connected condition and I draw death compensation from VA. Does the size of my outside income make any difference in my eligibility to get these payments?

A—No. Your other income has no effect on your eligibility for death compensation. Income limitations, however, do apply in the case of pension payments based on deaths not connected with military service.

LIONS HOLD CHARTER NITE

Forty members and their wives of the Harrington Lions Club met Monday evening at the American Legion Home and enjoyed a fried chicken dinner in celebration of their 21st Charter Night. First door prize, a lady Schick shaver, was won by Mrs. Thomas Peck. Second prize went to Mrs. Connie Briggs, wife of our District Gov., a set of 12 glasses.

There are six original charter members, Lions Kesler Farrow, Wm. W. Shaw, Charles Greenhaugh, Jehu Camper, Dewitt Tatman and Ernest E. Killen.

Lion Calvin Wells announced our first Little League baseball practice at 6 p. m. Tuesday, urging all interested members to turn out.

Our guest speaker for the evening was Trooper 1st Class Joseph Rowan with his trained police dog, Snake. Trooper Rowan gave us a history of police dogs in Delaware. He said there are five dogs assigned to individual policemen. All five dogs were donated to the police department.

Doberman or German shepherd make the best police dogs, judged for their endurance, reliability and courage. They have a bite of 200 pounds per square inch. The dogs are always taught to walk on the left, with the use of a choke chain. In their training period the dogs are taught to jump five foot barriers and climb nine foot walls. There are many uses for these dogs: (1) find lost children, (2) drunks, (3) trap shooters, and (4) keep mobs and riots at bay. The dogs saved the day at the Collins Park riot.

Snake was then put through some of his paces. A question and answer period followed on how to train our own pets.

Low-Growing Crops Save Lives

Would you be willing to take a small piece of corn ground and switch it to a low-growing crop? That might save some lives, according to George Vapaa, Kent County agricultural agent.

He says nearly half the accidents at rural intersections occur during the late part of the growing season, July through October.

A survey of the Iowa Department of Public Safety indicates that about 20 per cent of all rural accidents could be prevented if every farmer would sacrifice from a tenth to a third of an acre of tall growing crops at intersections.

He says you might save your own or your neighbor's life by planting soybeans, or some other low crop, instead of corn on the corner.

Blind corners can often be prevented. Don't contribute by growing them, Mr. Vapaa said.

Home Demonstration Week To Be Observed May 1 to 7

Each year the state of Delaware pays tribute to the home demonstration program of the University of Delaware and to the activities of the home demonstration clubs. Home Demonstration Week this year will be observed May 1-7, according to Mrs. Clarence Ocheltree, President of the State Home Demonstration Council.

Throughout the year, Extension staff and local leaders interpret trends affecting family living. From this they build a Home Demonstration program of basic subject matter. The goal being to help families adjust to change and establish improved home-making practices.

Highlighting the week's events is State Home Demonstration Day, May 4, with its theme, "Meeting the Challenge of Change." Extension staff will point out the progress being made and will outline trends which might affect the home-makers' choice of programs for the future. The program will be held at Capital Grange, Dover, from 10 to 3:30 and is open to the public. Reservations for lunch should be made with a club member. For further information call your County Extension Office.

Each of the counties will have special programs during Home Demonstration Week, to explain the work of home demonstration agents and to advise homemakers how they may participate in the program.

Special recognition will be given to the more than 1,200 volunteer local leaders who make the Home Demonstration program possible. These leaders held more than 750 meetings in 1959, reaching a total attendance of 10,000 women.

Delaware has 85 Home Demonstration Clubs, and 2,300 club members. During Home Demonstration Week, many clubs will have open house meetings and exhibits illustrating typical and outstanding programs.

Russeting in Head Lettuce

Have you ever bought a head of lettuce and found a russeting or brown discoloration on lettuce leaves, sometimes through to the center of the head? Many people have been asking Miss Janet Coblenz, Extension nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware, if this russeting makes the lettuce unsafe to eat.

Although it spoils the appearance of the lettuce, Miss Coblenz says it is safe to eat. This characteristic of lettuce is found more frequently in fall and winter than in spring.

She says there are many types of brown discoloration in lettuce—russet, brown blight, rust, vein browning, internal browning, red heart and brown spots.

Some of these are signs of decay and the lettuce will be soft in spots. But most of the brown discoloration we've found during the winter, in head lettuce, has been the russet spotting type.

While russet spotting may be found in the field, most of it develops during transit and storage, when lettuce comes to the local market from great distances and is exposed to varying temperatures and humidity.

Little or no russet spotting develops at 32 degrees temperatures but considerable spotting occurs at 45 degrees. Rapid marketing between harvest and use will cut down on russeting.

Examine the heads at the store, be sure there are no signs of brown discoloration. This, of course, does not completely assure you that there will be no russeting inside. Wash lettuce, remove wilted outer leaves if necessary, thoroughly drain lettuce and store in plastic bag or covered container in the refrigerator.

To prevent surface browning during storage, do not remove the heart until you are ready to use it. The more cut surfaces exposed to the air, the greater the chances of discoloration, she said.

4-H Swine Program

This year's 4-H swine feeding program has 47 Delaware 4-H'ers entered, with two pigs each. The program is sponsored by the Delaware Swine Producers Association and the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service, according to Dr. Sam Gwinn, assistant director.

The pigs will be shown and judged at the Kent-Sussex Fair, the morning of July 29. A Grand Champion and reserve champion will be selected. The pigs will be auctioned right after the showing.

This is the third year of the program, Dr. Gwinn said. It trains 4-H members in the principles and practices of swine production including the selection, care, feeding, management, fitting, showing and marketing of feeder pigs.

More than 50 4-H'ers took part in the program last year.

So You're Landscaping!

This is the time of year when everybody thinks they have green thumbs. So you should take advantage of your mood and get going on that landscaping project before the hot, lazy weather sets in.

That's the advice of county agricultural agent George Vapaa. He mentioned some of the things you should consider when you work out a design for your yard.

The property is divided into three areas: the public area, that is the front of the house facing the road; the service area includes the driveway, clothes drying section, etc.; and the living area often called the outdoor living room.

These three sections should be divided in some way, either with plants or fence or some other structure.

The front of the house should be a low shrub area perhaps a few low spruces at the foundation of the home.

The house should be framed with trees, he said. The trees should be in proportion to the house.

The base of the house should have plantings to soften the lines of the building. Dense, slow growing evergreens are good for them. They are effective for use on each side of a door to focus attention on the doorway. Low plantings should be used under windows.

Build up the corners of the house.

Broadleaf evergreens are best for building up the corners of the house. Ground covers such as vines are effective to tie plantings together.

Screen and border plantings or fence and hedges can be used to provide privacy in the outdoor living area and to cover up undesirable features.

The outdoor living room is the spot for large deciduous and evergreen trees. They should also be planted on the southwest side of the house to provide shade.

You really should hurry, Mr. Vapaa said, because the hot weather will be here before you know it and all you'll feel like doing is laying in the shade.

If you have specific questions call the agent at the Kent County Extension Service or drop him a card. His phone number is RE4-field 6-1448 and the address is the postoffice building in Dover.

Hospital Day to Be Observed Sunday At Emily P. Bissell Hospital

Hospital Day, Sunday, May 1, will be observed at the Emily P. Bissell Hospital with a patient-family conference and a luncheon for state officials.

"Many hands—many skills" is the theme of Hospital Day this year, and that point that it takes many hands and many skills to run a hospital will be emphasized at the patient-family conference.

This is a meeting of patients, members of their families and hospital department heads to acquaint the family members with the hospital and its services and procedures and to give them an opportunity to get their questions answered.

Wilbur C. Anderson, hospital director, and his staff will be on hand in the hospital auditorium to explain the hospital to the family members at the conference, starting at 2 p.m. "We want the mothers, fathers, sons and daughters and other relatives of patients to know exactly what this hospital is trying to do for the patients, what is expected of the patients, and how the relatives can be helpful," said Mr. Anderson.

He will show colored slides of the hospital and its varied services, which are essential to the treatment of tuberculosis and allied pulmonary diseases.

Earlier there will be an informal luncheon for members of the General Assembly, the State Board of Health, the hospital executive committee, the hospital department heads, with their husbands and wives.

After the luncheon in the hospital cafeteria—where there be no speeches—there will be tours available for those who wish to see more of the hospital. Mr. Anderson and all the department heads will briefly explain the "many hands—many skills" required at the hospital in a presentation in the auditorium, which will be part of the patient family conference.
