

J. M. CLAYTON PRINCIPAL APPOINTED SUPT. OF SCHOOLS

Albert W. Adams, supervising principal of John M. Clayton School, Frankford, since 1948, was appointed superintendent of Harrington schools at a meeting of the Board of Education Thursday night, June 16.

He will replace Jacob C. Messner, who held the post 34 years, who filed papers seeking a pension with the State Treasurer's office. They were dated May 19 and, if approved, that will be the effective date.

Messner, 69, first announced his intention to retire last winter and then withdrew, saying he chose to remain.

But the Board of Education voted to retire him and the State's attorney-general ruled that the retirement of the superintendent, who is eligible for pension, does not constitute dismissal.

Meanwhile, the Delaware State Education Association has had introduced in the Senate a bill that would make it optional for a school employe to retire at the end of 30 years of service and leave it to the discretion of the board to retire him at the age of 65, instead of 60. The State's mandatory retirement age is 75.

Other Business

In other business, at last week's meeting, it was brought out the board hoped to keep the same number of teachers but it would entail an increased workload in high-school history and English classes. The problem arose because of the uncertainty of a budget bill in the General Assembly.

It was also brought out that a summer music program, of one month, would be paid for entirely out of local funds. Heretofore, one-half of the cost of the instructional program had been paid by the State, but this was precluded because an appropriation hadn't been made at the time of the meeting.

It was also revealed the finances of the school were in better shape than anticipated and that the lien against the next taxes would only be $4,000.

Luther Hatfield, board president, said all Kent County school districts had been represented recently at a meeting with the Levy Court in an attempt to bring tax lists up to date. He added between 100 and 200 names were on the tax list of the local board of Education that were not on the county tax list.

The Board voted to lend the school's baseball uniforms to the Pony League for its remaining seven games. It added, however, that this would not establish a precedent and that the equipment must come back in good condition. It was said that next year a drive would be held in the community for funds with which to buy the suits.

New Superintendent

The new superintendent is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Adams, of Dover. He is married to the former Beatrice Christine Powell, of Wyoming. The Adams have eight sons.

Adams was graduated from Dover High School in 1932 and the University of Delaware with an A.B. degree in 1936. He received an M.A. degree from Bucknell University in 1946 and has had additional studies at Salisbury State Teachers College and the University of Delaware.

130 Patients At Emily P. Bissell Hospital

The 130 patients at the Emily P. Bissell Hospital at the end of last month were from all parts of Delaware, it was pointed out by Dr. Raymond A. Lynch, chairman of the hospital's executive committee.

Thirty of the 130 patients, or 23 per cent were Sussex county patients, while 25 patients, or about 20 per cent of the total, were from Kent. There were 42 patients (32 per cent) from Wilmington and 33 (25 per cent) from rural New Castle County.

During the month the hospital had averaged 132 patients. Thirty one new patients were admitted and thirty-three were discharged in the month.

The length of stay of patients discharged during the month ranged from one day to 2466 days. The average was 205 days.

The hospital, which is the state's institution for treatment of tuberculosis and allied chest diseases, provided 4,105 patient days of care during the month. The operating cost, exclusive of out-patient work, came to $60,082. This is $14.63 per patient day.

There were 130 employees at the institution at the end of last month, including one part time employee.

Assembly Begins Indefinite Recess

The General Assembly recessed indefinitely Tuesday night after a flurry of activity which included the second defeat of the $14,000,000 highway bond bill by House Republicans.

The House passed 24-2 a bill to outlaw discrimination in employment because of age, race, creed, color or national origin.

The recess by both chambers was "to the call of the chair," and predictions are that the chair will call the legislators back to work not much later than the middle of July, after the Democratic national convention July 11-15.

The bond bill, HB-598 with HA-1, needs a three-quarters majority.

Assailants Get Probation From Court

The four young men, all under 20 years of age, who assaulted John Henry Beachy and Henry A. Byler, in West Dover Hundred on May 10 and 11, were placed on probation in the Superior Court at Dover on Friday.

James C. Faulkner and Titus Leroy Hobbs, pled guilty to assaulting both men while Robert Lee Faulkner pled guilty to assaulting Beachy and Reynolds Dear pled guilty to assaulting Byler.

All were first offenders and Judge William J. Storey informed them that it was most fortunate for them that they were not before the court on more serious charges.

Joshua Twilley, court appointed counsel for Hobbs and Dear, and Jack White, defense counsel for the Faulkner brothers, informed the court that the incident took place while the young men were drinking and it was not usual for them to be involved in any difficulties.

Judge Storey sentenced each of the young men to serve a year in jail and then suspended the imprisonment and placed them on probation for two years with the warning that if they got into trouble during that period they would serve the year in jail.

Ervin Edwards entered a plea of guilty to a charge of breaking and entering at the Taylor Hardware Store, in Harrington on Nov. 4th, of last year. Imposition of sentence was deferred pending an investigation.

Clarence Lee Jenkins, now serving a term in the New Castle Correctional Institution, pled guilty to breaking and entering at the McClements service station, a half mile south of Camden, on June 13, 1959, and was sentenced to serve one year in jail with the imprisonment being concurrent with his present term.

Floyd Flamer, of Harrington, was given a three-year jail sentence on a charge of receiving stolen goods.

All-Star High School Football

Delaware's fifth all-star high school football game will be played August 27, at 2 p.m. at the University of Delaware Stadium, Newark.

The Gold Team (generally all schools south of Wilmington,) will play the Blue Team (all teams north of this line). 60 of the outstanding players in the area have been selected by the Delaware Coaches Association. Coaches have been selected from the membership of the Delaware Coaches Association. In addition, each team will be staffed with trainers, doctors, managers - everything to insure maximum protection for the players and the highest caliber of play for the spectators.

Special All-Star uniforms have been designed in the Blue and Gold Colors of the State of Delaware. Both teams will begin training two weeks before game time at special separate training camps at the University of Delaware.

Half-time entertainment will be provided by at least one fine band.

The game will be played for a charitable cause - the retarded children of Delaware, and is sponsored by the Delaware Foundation for Retarded Children, a special group formed solely to conduct this event. All proceeds of the game, after expenses, will be used to further the welfare of the mentally retarded. In making decisions concerning the beneficiaries of the game, the Foundation consults the Delaware Association for Retarded Children.

It is estimated that the State of Delaware has over 10,000 mentally retarded children and that 300 more are born each year. To illustrate this need, the incidence of mental retardation in children is 10 times that of polio, over 4 times that of rheumatic heart.

Proceeds from the four previous games have been $15,000, $16,000, $25,000 and $30,000 in 1956, 1957, 1958 and 1959. This money has been used for training teachers to teach the mentally retarded, operation of schools for the mentally retarded, operation of summer camps, research into the cause of mental retardation; and other needed services.

Any contribution to this cause will be gratefully appreciated by the foundation. Make all checks payable to "Delaware Foundation for Retarded Children." Mail to: Your chairman, Virginia O. Holloway.

Fresh Air Children To Visit in Harrington

William T. James, Dover, who has served as deputy under three Kent County sheriffs, has filed for the Democratic nomination for sheriff.

Formerly of Harrington, he is a member and past president of the Harrington Fire Company and is also a member and present secretary of the Robbins Hose Company, Dover Fire Department. He is a member of the National Sheriff's Association and the Kent County Fire Chiefs' Association.

James moved to Dover in 1952 and resides with his wife, Mrs. Eliza James, at 759 South Halsey Road, Edgehill Acres.

In addition to his other fire activities, he is an authorized firemen's training instructor of the Delaware Volunteer Firemen's Association.

His mother, Mrs. Florence Crockett, resides in Harrington.

Traffic Accidents Show Decrease

Traffic accidents on Delaware streets and highways, involving damage in excess of $100, showed a decrease during the month of May, in comparison with the same month of last year, according to the records of the Financial Responsibility Division of the Motor Vehicle Department.

During May there were 596 of these accidents reported to the Financial Responsibility Division. This number is 36 less than the number reported during May of last year, but is 34 more than the number reported during May of 1958.

Of the accidents reported, 467 took place in Wilmington and New Castle County, a decrease of 24 over May of last year. 70 were reported from Kent County, a decrease of one, and 59 were reported from Sussex County, a decrease of 11.

Of the drivers involved in the accidents reported during May, 167 were from out of the state, and 186 had no insurance. There were a total of 243 persons injured in these accidents.

Damages involved in the accidents reported during May totaled $297,965, the highest amount of these damages reported for the month of May during the past three years.

During the month of May, 87 motorists had their registration and operation privileges in Delaware suspended for failure to comply with the provisions of the Financial Responsibility laws.

Clarence Hackett Wins Trophy in Chicken Festival 3 Mile Race

By Keith S. Burgess
Wes Stack of Seaford, who captains both the track and cross country teams at the University of Delaware, won the three mile road race at the Chicken Festival, Selbyville on Friday after a stirring duel with John Creighton, Wilmington. Creighton is the ace of Swarthmore College track and cross-country squads.

The same pair met twice downstate last summer with each winning a close race. Stack won at the Kent and Sussex Fair here with Creighton getting the nod in the Delmar Centennial three miler.

In the Selbyville encounter 16 entries were received with trophies going to the first 7 to finish. John Hollis of Seaford was third with John Murphy of Bishop's Head, Md., in fourth. Joe Richmond of Wilmington was fifth followed by Dick Green of Middletown in sixth. Green, last year's cross-country captain at the University of Delaware, finished high in a 26-mile marathon run at Atlantic City, N. J. last year.

Clarence Hackett, who will be a sophomore at Harrington High this year, out lasted Shannon Dawson of Salisbury Teachers College for the seventh and last trophy.

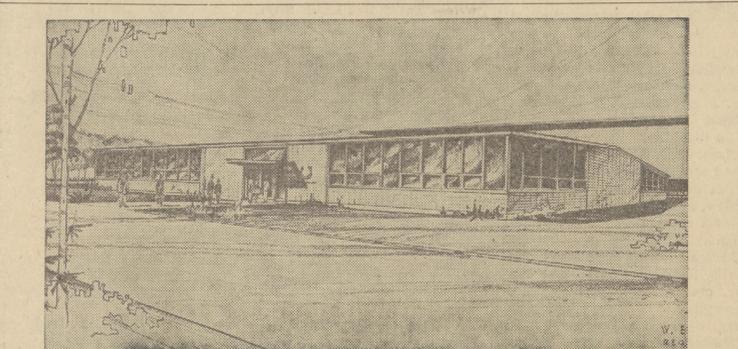

Hackett was in with experienced competitors and felt it would be wiser to conserve his strength and aim for seventh place rather than try to challenge the front-runners and perhaps be unable to finish the race. After he had disposed of Dawson he found he had plenty left so he put on a finishing sprint that almost caught Green in sixth. A young runner always will be better when he learns his own capabilities such as how fast a pace he can maintain, when to make his move etc. Clarence was timed in 18:26.

Dwight Hackett and Harry Knotts, two other runners from Harrington were unable to run due to employment and Boys State respectively.

This is an artist's rendition of the new 300-patron restaurant being built at the Harrington Fairgrounds by the Kent and Sussex Fair, Inc., at a cost of $80,000. The 6000 sq. ft. facility will be completed early next month and will be available to serve those attending the 41st annual Kent and Sussex Fair to be held this year from July 25 through 30. Located at the rear of the grandstand, the restaurant will also serve individuals and parties attending pari-mutuel harness racing at the Harrington Raceway. This year's 30-night meet begins Sept. 15. Edward F. Thornley of Wyoming, is the contractor on the modern structure designed by W. Ellis Preston, Wilmington architect.

BOY AND COW—Reed Sheats, 12, Middletown 4-H dairyman, holds a fitting trophy he and his cow Twinkle won, and gazes off into the distance at a dream.

Every Boy Should Have A Calf

Remember the old saying about giving a boy a calf? The theory is that if he picks the calf up in his arms every day, when it gets to be a 2,000 pound bull he will have developed along with the animal so that he can still pick his bull up in his arms.

While this is probably a mild exaggeration, as with most folk stories, there is a thread of truth behind it. A boy with a heifer calf very shortly becomes, by necessity, a man with a cow, since a heifer calf becomes a cow in a matter of a couple of years. So, although he may not be able to throw his cow over his shoulder, he is very likely to have developed the sense of responsibility that is implied by the old myth.

For youngsters who have the necessary facilities available to them, a 4-H dairy project is a natural way for development of character and responsibility.

Taking part in fitting and showing contests and in judging meets, helps youngsters develop poise and the ability to think, speak and observe, as well as the all around knowledge they gain about animals by caring for them.

Broiler Industry Started in 1923 At Ocean View

The poultry industry of Delmarva Friday honored the memory of the Delaware poultrywoman who introduced broiler growing on the Peninsula.

The tribute, given as part of the opening ceremonies of the 13th annual Delmarva Chicken Festival, told how Mrs. Wilmer Steele of Ocean View started with a 500-bird flock in 1923. The enterprise was profitable and she and her husband rapidly increased their flock size to the point that by 1926, they were producing 25,000 birds annually.

Three of Mr. and Mrs. Steele's children took part in the opening ceremonies. Irwin Steele and David Steele, both of Ocean View, told of their experiences in helping their mother care for the broilers in the pioneering effort. A daughter, Mrs. Jean Steele Bunting of Bishopville, Md., cut the official ribbon.

David Steele, who still lives on the home farm and who still is a broiler grower, told of feeding early broiler flocks from a pail and wheelbarrow. He contrasted this method with today's automatic bulk feeding systems that have taken much of the drudgery out of poultry feeding. Steele said it took his mother 15 weeks to produce broilers weighing 3 1/2 pounds. Today he sends much higher quality birds to market weighing 4 pounds in 10 weeks. "Research and good management deserve the credit for this amazing increase" he said.

Mayor William R. Ringler welcomed the festival visitors to Selbyville and introduced the various guests including Mrs. Bunting and the Steeles. Webb Cassell of Salisbury, president of Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., the Peninsula industry's trade and promotional organization, traced the growth of broiler production from its beginning at Ocean View to 21 other major U. S. broiler areas that now market more than a billion and a half broilers each year, worth more than a billion dollars. "Broilers are the most important agricultural enterprise on Delmarva," Mr. Cassell said.

The cochairman of the chicken festival also appeared on the opening program. George Edward Gray explained that the festival, with its accompanying national junior and senior chicken cooking contests, brings hundreds of new chicken recipes to public attention each year, thus increasing the demand for poultry meat. Donald Lynch gave a summary of activities in the two-day event. The festival's official "Miss Welcome", Linda Wheatley of Bridgeville, presided over the opening ceremonies.

Many Fine Shell Specimens Along Delaware's Coast

Although most of the people who vacation along Delaware's coast spend much of their time on the many fine beaches to be found along the 20-mile coastal strip, not all of them go there just to swim or sunbathe. The Delaware State Development Department, some, particularly the real young and the elderly, are attracted by the shells and other evidence of marine life that may be found there, and during their visit either begin - or add to - shell collections, according to the state information agency.

While the ocean front from Cape Henlopen to Fenwick Island does not ordinarily offer the "beachcomber" the great variety of sea shells found in some other coastal areas, it does offer a variety of selection ranging from diminutive whelks to the big colorful pear conch.

These external skeletons of a form of life that has changed little in an estimated 600 million years are generally in greatest evidence after one of the infrequent Delaware Coast storms has churned up the off-shore ocean bottom where most mollusks are to be found.

On such occasions, the discriminating beachcomber can find "treasures" of seashells among the debris washed ashore from ship board and sea bottom.

Some of the mollusks, such as the bivalved clams and oysters, had considerable commercial value while alive, while others, in life, seemingly served no useful function; at least one, the small but deadly Opster Drill, creates, at times, considerable havoc in commercial oyster beds.

According to the Development Department, the following shells may be found on and near Delaware beaches.

Oysters, greyish white and ruffled shells, four to six inches long, unlike the pearl-bearing oyster of the South Pacific, this variety has a dull blue-white lining, and only when it assumes some unusual shape does it have value to a collector.

Surf clam, one of the largest (up to seven inches) bivalves found along the Atlantic Coast, offers a big heavy triangular shell, white or brownish-white, shiny on the inside.

Venus, the clam of a dozen names—round, little neck, quahog, hard shell, etc.—averages five inches in diameter at maturity and is dull white on the exterior and is dull white on the interior. Named Quahog by the Indians, its interior of purple and shiny white was used for bead wampum.

Stubby Razor Clam is white, usually bleached chalky and four inches stout.

Jingles are little clams having wrinkled lustrous cups, one to two inches across. While these generally are gold or silver in color, some are pearly black or red, and all are thin enough to see sunlight through. Children love to jingle jingles.

Digger wedge shells are most abundant, thriving just under the sand where the waves splash. A half-inch clam, olive green rayed with blue.

Bloody Clams, so named from the color of the "blood" of the living clam, have highly arched, heavily-ribbed shells with a shaggy, moss green outer covering. Also known as Combed Ark Clams, they average three inches in diameter.

Razor clam is like an old-fashioned straight razor—shiny, thin, green or brown or lavender or yellow, marked with concentric growth rings. Up to seven inches long.

Mussels having blue-black thin shells, lined with violet-blue nacre, are found in abundance throughout the coastal area and vary in length to four inches.

Ribbed Mussels have green-yellow shells and iridescent linings, and are generally found in clusters on washed-ashore seaweed masses.

Whelks range from little half-inch dog whelks to the big knobbed pear conch, up to 10 inches high with a beautiful orange cavity. Strangely, most snails found in northern waters spiral and open to the right, making a "left-handed" whelk or conch a rare "find."

Knobbed Whelks, when unbroken and sea-polished, make handsome specimens—pale, yellow-grey striped lavender when young. Their parchmentrattle eggcases—30 or 40 to a string—wash up frequently on beaches, often with perfect tiny dried whelks inside.

Channeled whelks spiral in smooth-topped whorls instead of the graceful horns of the bigger knobbed whelks. This is an Indian wampum shell, about seven inches high and light brown.

Cockles grow high-arched, heavy shells strongly furrowed with 36 ribs. On the beach they may be bleached white, while young ones sometimes still wear their yellow-brown fringe of epidermis.

Slipper shells look like small nut shell halves with a seat inside. Children float them and call them "boat shells" or "quarter-decks." Several kinds are found on Delaware beaches.

Periwinkles are small coiled sea snails that end in a turret and are orange, yellow or white. Thousands swarm under the surf—three-quarter inch long.

Oyster Drills, which eat thousands of dollars worth of helpless, sedentary oysters, carry whorled, grey-white shells.

That the beachcomber is sometimes rewarded with more valuable finds is indicated by the fact that one of the state-maintained recreational areas south of Rehoboth Beach is still known as Coin Beach notes the Development Department.

Delaware Food Market Report

Supplies of fresh vegetables and fruits have certainly increased in the past week, as more new sections of the country begin harvest. Prices are beginning to drop, and quality is improving, which is excellent news for the consumer.

Iceberg lettuce is an excellent example of a vegetable in plentiful supply. A large crop from California and Arizona is coming to market a little later than usual, and is overlapping with supplies being shipped in from New Jersey. Look for some good buys on this vegetable all during the week, and also on specials. Be sure to check each head for weight, compactness and cleanliness, to make sure you are buying a good quality head.

Home-grown snap beans are available now at attractive prices and so is summer squash. Check both of these vegetables when shopping. Other items to look for include: cabbage, beets, peppers, corn and green onions.

There are a few more new potatoes on the market now, and prices have dropped a penny this week. Old potatoes have all but disappeared from the market, and sweet potatoes are going up in price.

Cantaloupes and watermelons are making the news at the fruit counter this week. Quality is excellent on both fruits and prices are very reasonable, particularly when featured on special sale during the weekend.

The Market News Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture reports limes, lemons and small size California naval oranges are especially plentiful. New Jersey is beginning to ship blueberries which will add volume to supplies now being received from North Carolina. Other items to check this weekend are bananas, pineapples and cherries.

Beef, in general, has shown little change in price this week. The only news in veal is a three cent drop on cutlets - down to an average price of $1.60 a pound quite expensive! Pork prices continue their upward move, with a penny increase on roasts and chops. Spring lambs are coming to market now, so check this meat for "special sales". The average price per pound for leg-of-lamb is now 79 cents, but this should be much lower when featured.

Egg prices remain low. Grade A large eggs are still selling for an average of 49 cents a dozen and Grade B large eggs for 45 cents a dozen.

Child-Care Center To Be Studied For Migrants

An adult educational program, for migrant workers during summer evenings, and the formation of a child-care center, were discussed recently at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church by the Kent-Sussex Counties Migrant Committee. Mrs. Robert McNally was chairman.

The Rev. H. T. Bessellieu, of Milford, was appointed chairman of a group to survey the possibilities of establishing a child-care center in the Dover area where there is a concentration of migratory workers.

P's and Q's Of Residues

Insects and diseases had better beware of farmers, food processors, and Extension specialists in Delaware! Each week a luncheon is held at Harrington, to advise growers and fieldmen on control measures to be used in combating insects infesting Delaware crops. Chemical, cultural, and physical controls are explained by the University of Delaware Extension staff consisting of Dr. Dale F. Bray and Professor Donald MacCreary of the Entomology Department, Dr. J. W. Heuberg, plant pathology department, and Robert F. Stevens of the Horticulture Department.

Specimens of insects and plants damaged by insects and diseases are brought to the luncheon in the Wonder R Restaurant in Harrington. Informal is the atmosphere, insect and disease control is the subject, and decreased losses due to insects and diseases is the result. The possibility of contamination due to chemical residues is always stressed. Constant advice is given on using the correct chemical insecticides and herbicides, at the right amounts, recommended rates, and the correct time before and after harvest.

The weekly meetings have been very successful in detecting insect infestations early. This facilitates rapid, effective control, resulting in little or no losses due to insects and diseases.

It could be that you have questions pertaining to insects and diseases in your crops. For information you can seek advice from your county agent or fieldman, or you may bring along a specimen to the weekly Insect and Disease Control Luncheons held each Tuesday at the Wonder R Restaurant in Harrington.

Farm Safety Facts

The theme of Farm Safety Week this year is "Enjoy Farm Life—Practice Safety."

According to a statement by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson the injury and death rates from accidents continue to be higher among farm people than for the rest of the population, and we may expect that one farm family in four will suffer a serious injury to one of its members this year.

According to University of Delaware safety specialists, 11,300 farm people are killed in accidents each year.

The greatest number of accidents involving tractor tipovers occur in level land. University of Delaware agricultural engineer Ernest Scarborough says this should be of particular interest to Delaware farmers since most of Delaware's farm land is level. Excessive speed, unevenly adjusted brakes and ditch banks are more dangerous than steep hills, he said.

According to the National Safety Council the youngsters are the most likely to suffer serious injury on the farm. The five to fourteen year-olds have more fatal accidents on the farm than any other age group. Keep an eye on them and keep them away from farm machinery unless they are old enough to understand the danger, advises University of Delaware agricultural engineer Ernest Scarborough.

Keep Water Temperature Right in Milk House

Cleaning troubles in your milk house can be reduced if the film of milk on the dairy equipment is not chilled or heated.

County Agricultural Agent George Vapaa suggests proper water temperature be maintained in a range of 100 to 120 degrees. To accomplish this, tie the cold water line to the hot water line by using a pre-set 110 degree F. mixing tee. A good plumber's mixing tee has no controls, and there should be no faucet connections on either the cold or hot line. Attach a good dairy hose out of the tee on the outlet side.

Attach a shut-off valve at the end of the hose. With this arrangement Mr. Vapaa says, water will always be at the right temperature.

Letter to the Editor

The President of the United States is concerned with seeking a wall of protection against the wicked powers of the communist world. The Nation as a whole is very disturbed concerning an uprising in political circles.

The spirit of the Lord said when the nations talk of peace, sudden destruction comes upon them because they have forgotten the Prince of peace and have left out His power of protection.

Neighbor, I am a living witness to how the power of God can heal and deliver for He delivered me from the oppression that the enemy of God Satan tried to kill me with.

Neighbor! It would be well with Thy soul if you really force all to follow Jesus Christ in His every foot steps day by day, hour by hour.

St. John's Church To Observe 50th Anniversary

The exact date when the first Mass was offered in Milford is not known. But it is certain that it was the Rt. Rev. Alfred A. Curtis, who became Bishop of Wilmington in 1888, who arranged for the Rev. Thomas Weldron to leave his parish in Dover and come to Milford once each month to offer Mass and administer the Sacraments to the few Catholics in the lower part of Kent and the upper part of Sussex County.

On December 8, 1909 a plot of ground was bought by the Rt. Rev. John J. Monaghan on what was then known as Lake Street—later called Peabody Avenue and presently known as Maple Avenue. The site was in Kent County but only a few hundred feet from the border line between the two counties.

A contract to build a church and rectory was given to Joseph T. Rogers on Feb. 21, 1910. Work was completed early in the summer of that year and the new church, named St. John after Bishop Monaghan, was dedicated by him on June 26, 1910.

All the early pastors of the Milford parish made regular trips throughout Kent and Sussex Counties offering Mass in private homes in Harrington, Greenwood, Owen's Station, Bridgeville, Georgetown, and Lewes.

The first division of the Milford parish came in 1945 when the Most Rev. Edmond J. Fitz Maurice appointed the Rev. Daniel Power as the pastor of St. Mary's Chapel in Seaford. When the new church was built there, it was called Our Lady of Lourdes. Its present pastor is the Rev. Charles J. McGinley.

Another division of the Milford parish was made in 1952 when St. Edmond's in Rehoboth was made a separate parish and took with it the Georgetown area. The Rev. Francis J. Desmond was named as its first pastor. Since then Monsignor Desmond had churches built in Georgetown, St. Michael the Archangel; in Bethany Beach, St. Ann's; and near Lewes, the Shrine of St. Jude. St. Michael's is now a separate parish with the Rev. Leo F. Montgomery as its pastor; he also has charge of St. Ann's in Bethany Beach.

The only area outside of Milford that still comes under the care of the pastor of the Milford parish is that served by St. Bernadette's in Harrington. This church was built by the parishioners themselves during the year 1953.

Not only has the parish of St. John's undergone many changes but even the site of its building has been relocated. The original church building was partially dismantled and then moved off the site and the remaining buildings and the plot of ground were sold in December of 1954. In November of that year a new church, parish hall and rectory were built on the four acres of land at Seabury Avenue and School Place that had been bought by Fr. McCarthy while he was pastor of the parish.

Farm Research Attraction at U. of D. Field Day

Farm research, geared to Delaware's dynamic agriculture, will be highlighted at the University of Delaware's annual Farm Field Day, to be held at the School of Agriculture's substation division near Georgetown August 3.

A special committee, headed by Substation Director, J. Frank Gordy, is developing a program that will give First State farmers and their families an opportunity to see the results of the school of Agriculture's research in production of broilers, vegetables, field crops and fruit.

Tours of the experimental plots where crop varieties and different production and management practices are tested will be an outstanding attraction of the Farm Field Day this year, according to Mr. Gordy. Special buses will take visitors on tours of the plots where they will be able to see the results of the experiments and talk with the University's research men who have done the work.

Other highlights of the day will include homemakers' crafts demonstrations, visits to the substation poultry plant where extensive broiler research is conducted, a special fried chicken lunch served by the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association, and an afternoon break, featuring plenty of free, ice-cold watermelon.

Richards in Utah

Dr. C. R. Richards, dairy nutrition specialist, University of Delaware, reported on his research findings relating ketosis, a cattle disease, with the level of insulin-like material in the blood, at the annual American Dairy Science Association meeting at Utah State University, June 22.

Richards said the results show that cows suffering from ketosis do have a lower level of insulin-like activity in their blood than do healthy cows. However, tests of healthy but underfed cows also showed lower levels of insulin-like activity. So the question of whether the low level of insulin-like activity in the blood is a cause or a result of ketosis remains to be answered.

Dr. Richards has been a teacher and nutrition research specialist at the University of Delaware since 1951.

Get Pigs Vaccinated

Pigs must be vaccinated for hog cholera to prevent losses and the possibility of an epidemic this summer, John H. Sproshire, extension livestock specialist, University of Delaware, warned Delaware hog producers.

He said there is no cure for cholera which is the most serious of all swine infections. Disease control depends upon prevention through vaccination, so have your veterinarian set up a control program.

Asbury Methodist Church News

Church School 10 o'clock, Howard S. Wagner, supt. "Heeding Christ's Teaching" is the theme of the lesson in the adult department. So often we find it easy to simply talk about what Christ said and did and we wonder in amazement why our life still seems void of power or purpose. This is true not only on the individual level but also on the international level. We all tend to believe that perhaps Jesus was correct in saying "Love can overcome the world" and that as Christians we must be willing to go the second mile or even the third if needed for a brother and that as Christians we must be willing to turn the other cheek in forgiveness. Yet, these teachings of our Lord are still untried because of our little faith. Oh yes, we like to talk about them and preach about them for it sounds good but how many of us are willing to practice them, and yet can you imagine the tremendous influence these teachings of our Lord would have upon us, our families, our marriage, our community, our nation and our world if they were actually put into practice? Truly the City of God would be established.

If you are without a Church Home we cordially invite you to worship with us Sunday morning both in our Church School and Morning Worship Service and study with us the teachings of our Lord Jesus Christ and seek with us the faith to practice His teachings. The Morning Worship Service will be at 11 o'clock, conducted by our pastor. The sermon theme this week is: "An Exuberant Song of Faith." The scripture lesson for this sermon is the 91st Psalm. Rev. Shockley is beginning a series of messages based on the beautiful Psalms. Miss Lois Larimore will play a piano meditation during the Worship Service.

Altar flowers will be placed in church this week by Mrs. Edith Hill in memory of her sister. Our Friendly Greeters this week that will welcome you to the services are Mrs. Oda Baker and Mrs. Milton Welch.

Our pastor, Mr. Shockley, will be out of town this coming week until Friday morning, representing the Board of Education of the Peninsula Conference, at Hartford Seminary in Hartford, Conn. Should an emergency arise that would necessitate his presence, please contact Mrs. Shockley at the parsonage.

The Vacation Bible School will continue daily under the direction of Rev. Ottinger, all children between the ages of 3-14 are invited. The school will hold its closing exercises Thursday night in the Collins Auditorium here at Asbury at 7:30.

Rehoboth Art League News

The summer classes at the Rehoboth Art League begin their work on Mon., July 27, under much more favoring conditions: the junior class studio has been extended for 12 feet toward the ocean. (And it gives the illusion of being the "longest" of 12 feet!)

Registration begins at 9 a.m. Howard Schroeder instructs his adult classes in drawing and painting that very morning, starting at 9:30. Mrs. Hartley Newman is again in charge of the registration and desk five mornings a week, and Miss Catherine C. Maull, in the afternoons for seven days a week, welcoming visitors for both the Camera Club Members' Photographic Show in the Paynter Studio and the artist members' paintings, sculpture, etc., in the Corkran.

Students may enter at any time, but much is to be gained by having them enter for the full season, both in knowledge and financially because of season rates. Too, they will be better acquainted with each other before the Student's Costume Party on the 13th of July.

Jon Smith instructs one evening adult class, in addition to leading the adult Artists' Sketch Group Thursday, 7:30 p.m., free to all artists resident or visiting, and for a token fee. They are to bring their own materials. Mr. Smith, this year in his enlarged quarters, has charge of all juniors, including the small children who will meet in the east end of the Corkran. The staff and Mr. Smith will be assisted most mornings by Miss McChesney Scott of Wilmington and Miss Virginia Lee of Middletown, both of Friends' School.

Two scholarships have been awarded by the League, one each to the Rehoboth Special School and to the Children's Beach House. Three others have been awarded anonymously by a friend of the League to the Beach House Children and another anonymous scholarship to the school. The school scholarships were won by Stanley Williams, 8th grade, and Sue Brittingham, 4th grade. Mary Frances and Gregory Tylecki have been given scholarships by another friend of the League.

The juried Florence Trainham Gibson prizes to the Camera Club were won by Orville Peets for a "Portrait of my Wife" and 2nd, by Walter Fisher for "Late Shadows." Honorable mentions were made of two of Mrs. Marion Howe's and one each of Col. Riley McGarraugh and Walter Fisher. The Ethel P. B. Leach juried prize and another juried prize for a painting of a scene within ten miles of the studio are to be awarded this week. The Popular Vote prizes will be awarded the last Sunday, July 10, 3 p.m. before the Members' Show closes on the 11th.

Remarks of appreciation were made to the Traffic Squad by George Benner, principal. Rulon Waite rendered vocal selections accompanied by Mrs. Oralie Waite. Members of the Squad presented Mr. and Mrs. Waite with tokens of appreciation for their entertainment.

Invited guests attending the installation were: Mr. and Mrs. H. Kline Lingo, Mr. C. Fred Fifer, Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. George Benner, Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Wolfram and Everett L. Farr.

Refreshments were enjoyed by all at the conclusion of the program. Mrs. Irene Kersey, cafeteria manager, received a dish for her assistance in the program.

Members of the squad for the coming year are: Donald Rahmes, Douglas Gutekunst, Elizabeth Hays, Judith Wallace, Warren Field, Maria DeBlois, Stephen Pankoff, Diane Turini, Hope Torbert, Faye McLeod, Margaret Englehart, Janet Papen, Stanley Little, Neda Biggs, Thomas Shaffer, Jan Wooleyhan, Glen Harris, Patricia Nichols, Patricia Hughes, Wayne Grier, Carol Lee McGaffie, Charles Shockley, Ann Zapp, Charles Hensley, Richard Finklea, Laura Augustinovic, Peggy Hurd, Jack Jackson, David Gutekunst, Diana Quigley, Albert Grier, Lynn Quigly, Glenda Raughley, James Walton, Larry Billings, Georgia Clough, Devora Dill, Barry Eberly, Ann Phillips, Martin Kim, Gail Ghermann, Lucille Lingo, Mary Williams, Robert Moore, James Gray, Judy Clarke, David Masten, Madeline Park, Clifton Ford. They assist the students, faculty and administration in making a finer school.

Remarks of appreciation were made to the Traffic Squad by George Benner, principal. Rulon Waite rendered vocal selections accompanied by Mrs. Oralie Waite. Members of the Squad presented Mr. and Mrs. Waite with tokens of appreciation for their entertainment.

Invited guests attending the installation were: Mr. and Mrs. H. Kline Lingo, Mr. C. Fred Fifer, Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. George Benner, Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Wolfram and Everett L. Farr.

Refreshments were enjoyed by all at the conclusion of the program. Mrs. Irene Kersey, cafeteria manager, received a dish for her assistance in the program.

Fishing Lines

Deep Sea Fishing
Charter boats and head boats operating from the Indian River area have been making excellent catches of porgies. These fish are exceptionally large; many weigh four pounds. It is unusual for porgies to stay in the Fenwick Island wreck area for more than two or three weeks. This season, however, they have remained there approximately four weeks, and from all indications more fish are on the way. Porgie fishermen should continue to have excellent sport for several weeks to come. There has been excellent fishing around sunken wrecks and other underwater obstructions.

Bluefish, bonito, mackerel and tuna are slowly increasing in numbers in the off-shore area of our ocean waters. A catch of 32 bluefish was reported with many weighing over four pounds. Some bonito and mackerel have been caught, but as yet no tuna have been boated. Several have been reported hooked and were estimated to weigh between 50 and 75 pounds. These fish are found approximately 35 to 40 miles off-shore and are capable of breaking ordinary lines with their great weight and fighting ability.

Filefish
Recently an orange filefish was caught on hook and line off Woodland Beach in the upper Delaware Bay region. During the course of a fishing season, several of these semi-tropical fish are generally reported taken in nets. The orange filefish is more common in the Gulf of Mexico and along the Florida coast. One unusual characteristic of this fish is its ability to swim both forward and backward.

Remora Caught at Inlet
Mrs. Ruth Blake of Parsonsburg, Md., was really surprised last week when, while fishing from the jetty at Indian River Inlet, she landed a remora attached to a shark. This particular fish is commonly called "shark sucker" because of the oval sucking disk on the top of its head. It often attaches itself to sharks and other large fish such as drum, swordfish, marlin and sometime turtles; the fish merely attach themselves for the purpose of a free ride and to enjoy left-over particles of food not eaten by the host. Identification was made by Warden William A. Truitt who was working in the area on the Game and Fish Commission Marine Fisheries Statistics survey.

Fresh Water Fishing License
A fishing license is required in Delaware for both residents and nonresidents who wish to fish in any waters of the State where the tide does not regularly ebb and flow. These areas include all our lakes and ponds, many marshes separated from tide water by dikes and tide gates, and several streams above barriers which limit tides. Licenses for the 1960-61 season are now on sale throughout the State. They are effective from July 1, 1960 through June 30, 1961.

Fire at Seaford Nylon Plant
June 9, a fire occurred in the waste storage area directly east of the eSaforid Nylon Plant. The source of the fire is still under investigation.

The corrugated baling paper which is quite inflammable caught fire first. A brisk wind fanned the flames and brought the temperature to a point where the nylon was reduced to melt form. In this form it generated terrific heat and supported by the combustion of the corrugated paper flame, the nylon itself burned. As a matter of interest, nylon does not burn under normal use in garments or fabrics unless supported by flame. A temperature of 989° F. is required for molten nylon to burn.

There were 6,200,000 pounds of waste damaged. This waste is unrecyclable and is used only for reprocessing within the plant. The value of this waste was much less than saleable waste. The loss is estimated to be approximately $500,000.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Q—I will be going to school this fall under the Korean GI Bill. If I have to take any days off from my classroom studies, will my GI school allowance be reduced.

A—As long as your days off do not exceed the number permitted by your school and the State Approving Agency no deduction will be made. Your allowance check will be for the full amount.

Q—I am a World War Two veteran and have never used my right to get a GI home loan. Now the deadline is coming up on July 25. Exactly what does that mean? Must a veteran's GI loan arrangements be all completed by then?

A—No. The deadline is for making application for a GI loan. If World War Two veterans apply by July 25, they have up to another full year in which to complete loan arrangements.

Q—A friend is writing this for me as I am quite helpless. I am not a veteran, but the husband of a woman-veteran who has just died. Please tell me about the law that says a helpless widower of a woman-veteran may receive benefits based on the death of his wife.

A—The unmarried widower of a woman-veteran may receive VA death benefits if he is incapable of self-maintenance and, at the time of his wife's death, was permanently incapable of self-support because of physical or mental disability. Your nearest VA office will be glad to give you all details.

Q—Do creditors have any right to seize proceeds of a GI insurance policy to get money owed them? I am the beneficiary of my veteran-husband's GI insurance policy. He owed a few bills at his death, which I fully in-

New Jersey Woman Wins Chicken Festival Title

A 49-year-old New Jersey grandmother who came in 17th last year but thought up a new recipe for this year's contest won first prize Saturday in the Senior Division of the National Chicken Cooking Contest at Selbyville.

Mrs. Elizabeth Geotz, Lakewood, N. J., called her concoction "Delmarva-LICIOUS."

The competition among 110 cooks from 21 states was the highlight event of the two-day Delmarva Chicken Festival, an annual affair promoting the giant Delmarva Peninsula poultry industry.

Saturday night more than 1,100 persons interested in the industry attended a dinner in Civic Auditorium, Salisbury, Md., and heard that $120,000 has been raised to continue a program of research and promotion.

Saturday night also saw two men honored for service to the broiler business. Raymond E. Murphy, Salisbury, was given the Distinguished Citizen Award, while J. Frank Gordy, Georgetown, University of Delaware poultry specialist, won the Delmarva Poultry Industry's first annual Medal of Achievement.

A Delaware cook placed second in the contest. Mrs. Dorothy Jones, 39, Georgetown, had entered for seven years without a trace of a prize to show for her efforts but Saturday she let out a happy squeal of delight when her name was announced as runner-up.

Was Junior Winner
Mrs. Jones' daughter, Pat, now 20, won the Junior division contest in 1953 and her son, William Charles "Buddy" Jones, now 13, won the junior event last year.

Buddy also finished second in the outdoor barbecue cooking contest Saturday, an event won by Frank Hennessy, Baltimore, who used beer in his recipe. Third place in barbecuing went to Charles Hirsch, Dover.

Mrs. Earl H. Hatton, Coatesville, Pa., won third place in the cooking contest. She finished sixth in last year's competition.

Mrs. Goetz won a two-week airlines trip to Europe as first prize, plus a trophy.

11 State Represented
Eleven states were represented among the winners. Seven were from Delaware, four from Pennsylvania, four from New York, two from Maryland, two from New Jersey, and one each from Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Virginia, Mississippi, and Georgia.

Mrs. Arthur L. Reynolds, Mayfield, Ga., who was the 1959 cooking champ in her state, finished 19th.

Other Delaware winners included: Mrs. James R. Blizzard, Millsboro, fifth; Mrs. Frank E. Wroten, Greenwood, sixth; Mrs. Pauline T. Sullivan, Milford, seventh; Mrs. Albert Bradley, Delmar, 16th; Mrs. Dorothy S. French, Milford, 20th, and Mrs. Jehu F. Camper, Harrington, 23rd.

Maryland winners were Mrs. William E. Bunting, Bishopville, 17th, and Mrs. Milburn Brewington, Salisbury, 21st.

One of the food editors, Edith Barber of General Features Syndicates, was given the "Golden Chicken" award at Saturday night's banquet in recognition of her service to the food industry.

Adventist Young peoples delegate of the Harrington Church, left for the big North American Youth Congress held in Atlantic City, N. J., June 21 to 25.

He is Robert F. Pepper, 206 S. 2nd Street, Denton, and is motoring to the meeting in company with his parents and a guest Miss Lois Shull, of rural Lewes. They will stay for the whole session.

"Bob" is one of the 1600 official delegates, 16 of whom will represent the Chesapeake Conference area.

More than 15,000 persons are expected to attend the congress, the first held in North America in seven years and delegates will come from all 50 states and 60 provinces of Canada.

Congress is called the "Festival of the Holy Scriptures" and will stress the application of Biblical principals in all aspects of daily life.

Delegates are encouraged to bring their personal Bibles to the congress sessions each day which has led some to describe the convention as the "Bible on the Boardwalk" a reference to Atlantic City's famed walk which sees an almost infinite variety of conveniences.

Lecturers will present pointers on community service, family relationships, Courtships and marriage, military service, recreation and social life, and ways in which young people can share their faith with other youth.

Local delegates will present a formal report to the Harrington members when they return from Atlantic City.

Senate Gets New Motor Vehicle Code
Passing another vehicle on the right on dual highways will be legal if the proposed new Delaware Motor Vehicle Code is enacted.

The new code has been introduced in the Senate as SB-437. It was prepared by the Legislature's Joint Committee on Highway Safety, headed by Senator Calvin R. McCullough (D-Holloway Terrace), with the co-operation of the Delaware Safety Council, the Delaware State Police and the Highway Department.

Based upon a national uniform code, the proposed Delaware code would make many driving regulations in Delaware the same as those in many other states. Many details of rules of the road not covered in the present law are in the new code, and many details are changed from present law.

The new code would legalize passing on the right in certain circumstances—a practice many motorists in Delaware already follow. The bill would make it lawful to pass on the right under these conditions:

"1. When the vehicle overtaken is making or about to make a left turn;

"2. Upon a street or highway with unobstructed pavement not occupied by parked vehicles of sufficient width for two more lines of moving vehicles in each direction;

"3. Upon a one-way street, or upon any roadway on which traffic is restricted to one direction of movement where the roadway is free from obstructions and of sufficient width for two or more lines of moving vehicles."

The bill also says: "The driver of a vehicle may overtake and pass another vehicle upon the right only under conditions permitting such movement in safety. In no event shall such movement be made by driving off the pavement or main-traveled portion of the roadway."

Among the other important changes in law proposed in the bill is one making it illegal to drive recklessly or while intoxicated "upon highways and elsewhere throughout the state." The "elsewhere" would give police the power to make arrests for reckless driving and driving while intoxicated on parking areas and other privately owned places.

The bill contains 57 pages and is divided into 15 subchapters. The first, on obedience to traffic laws, contains a section on operation of emergency vehicles. It says they may pass red signals and stop signs "but only after slowing down as may be necessary for safe operation." Exemptions from other traffic regulations are granted to authorized emergency vehicles but the drivers are not relieved of "the duty to drive with due regard for the safety of all persons . . ."

The second subchapter is on traffic signs, signals and markings. Among other things, it puts the new red arrow and green arrow signals into the law. Similarly, it would recognize the "walk" and "don't walk" pedestrian signals.

The third subchapter is on driving on the right side of the roadway, and passing. One of the provisions is that a caravan or motorcade of cars (except a funeral procession) being driven on a roadway must be spaced to enable any other vehicle traveling in the same direction to get in between cars of the caravan. This would facilitate passing.

Right of way is the subject of the fourth subchapter, which mentions the "yield" signs in use in recent years.

Pedestrians rights and duties are covered in the next subchapter. One of several new sections would outlaw the practice of "soliciting the watching or guarding of any vehicle while parked or about to be parked on a street or highway."

The sixth subchapter deals with turning and stopping, and the next deals with requirements for special stops, as by certain vehicles at railroad grade crossings. Speed restrictions are covered in the next subchapter, which includes the new 60 mile per hour maximum on four lane roads and dual highways.

The ninth subchapter is concerned with reckless driving and driving while intoxicated, the tenth one is on stopping, standing and parking, and the next is on miscellaneous rules. One of these would require drivers to lock the ignition and remove the key (as well as some other things) before leaving a vehicle unattended. New provisions on riding motorcycles are also included and the practice of driving with one arm around a girl would be outlawed by a provision which says "no passenger may ride in such a position as to interfere with the driver's control over the driving mechanism."

Other subchapters deal with: Operation of bicycles and play vehicles (this is all new), safety zones, reports of accidents, and penalties. The law would go into effect six months after enactment.
