Gordy In Poland

University of Delaware poultry specialist J. Frank Gordy, Georgetown, is in Poznan, Poland, in the midst of a five week study of U. S. poultry exports to European countries.

His study is being made under the joint auspices of the Foreign Agricultural Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Institute of American Poultry Industries of Chicago.

"We are counting on Frank Gordy to help us find ways to further increase poultry exports," David L. Hume, head of the Dairy and Poultry Division of the Foreign Agricultural Service, said.

Poultry meat exports to Europe have already jumped from 12 million pounds in 1957 to 64 million pounds in 1959, Hume said.

Gordy is Director of the Substation Division of the University of Delaware's School of Agriculture at Georgetown and also executive secretary of Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., the poultry association of the Delaware-Maryland-Virginia peninsula. A former director of the Poultry and Egg National Board, and presently on that organization's eastern advisory committee, he has been a chairman or member of many national and regional poultry committees in recent years.

Commenting on Gordy's appointment, Dean George M. Worilow, School of Agriculture, University of Delaware, said, "A large share of present U. S. Poultry exports to Europe represent broiler-fryer chickens grown on the Delmarva Peninsula.

We're particularly proud that a member of the University staff has been chosen to explore the possibilities of future trade with Europe of this nature."

Fishing Lines

Tuna Season Begins

Although the tuna are located approximately 35 to 40 miles from the Indian River Inlet, several boats have ventured into the area and returned with this prize fish. Tuna were taken by charter boats "Rema", operated by Ovide Willet and "Shamrock", piloted by Irving Pleasanton. The "Rema" provided its party with a great deal of action in a very short time. Four Tuna were hooked at the same time, two on the out-riggers and two on lines in the boat, and all four fish were boated. Captain Willet had three other fish hooked and landed one of these. The "Shamrock" had five fish hooked and landed three. Captain Pleasanton also sighted numerous schools of tuna which he estimated contained several hundred fish per school. The average weight of the tuna landed thus far is approximately 30 pounds. Many other boats from the Indian River area will be fishing for these great game fish once they move closer to our coast.

Porgies on the Fenwick Island wrecks have been taking the bottom fishing spotlight. Since these grounds are located quite far from Lewes, the charter boats at this port have been looking for fish in the vicinity of the Lewes breakerwater. This past week several boats had catches of sea bass ranging from 100 to 300 in number, and all were of nice size. However, they are biting somewhat irregularly. Sea bass are being taken in large numbers by the bass potters (trap fishermen), thus indicating that the fish are still plentiful.

Large trout also have been landed in the Lewes area. This year marks the first time in several years that any so-called tide runners have been taken from the breakerwater area with consistency. Trout weighing six pounds have been landed from the west end of the breakerwater; bucktails are the most successful lure for this widely-sought game fish.

Small Boat Safety Regulations Delaware's recently enacted boat law requires that all boats propelled by power be registered, numbered and equipped with a minimum of safety equipment. All boat operators and owners should see that these requirements are met before their boats are launched.

Minnow Seining On Weekends In tidal waters other than Delaware River and Delaware Bay, a new regulation permits minnows to be taken at all times with nets not larger than six feet square. Formerly all netting was prohibited on weekends. Current law still prohibits fishermen from netting minnows from Delaware River and Delaware Bay from 2 p.m. on each Saturday through the Sunday following.

Delaware law prohibits non-residents from netting food fish, including herring, from the waters of this state. This does not prohibit them from netting minnows for bait.

Game and Fish Laws Available Delaware's complete game and fish laws and regulations are available by writing to the Game and Fish Commission, Dover.

Rehoboth Art League Gets Underway

Art classes began on Monday morning and registration for all classes scheduled will be made at the Rehoboth Art League's Studios near the Yatch Basin on Henlopen Acres.

Jon Smith, instructor for all juniors, one evening adult class, and leader of the Thursday night sketch group, arrived Saturday from Pottstown, Pa. Howard Schroeder, president of the league, resident in Lewes, meets his class of adults at 9:30 a.m.

The members of the league held their annual picnic Thursday, June 23. Fortunately a spraying for mosquitoes was made by the state and by friends of the league as evening came on, affording undivided attention for the speaker's address; Bruce St. John, gave "Independent Artists, 1910", illustrated by colored slides of the painting by that revolutionary group. In art circles, their revolt against academic tradition was as thorough and complete as our political revolution of 1776. Robert Henri, whose concept of art, not dilettanti, but vital and energetic; of life, not idealism, the right of the artist to say what he thought and the right to show it to the public, sparked this movement by John Sloan, Glackens, Arthur B. Davies, Pendergast, Bellows and others. St. John drew interesting conclusions, amply illustrated by his slides. Dr. William D. Gibson opened the meeting; St. John was introduced by the President of the league, Howard Schroeder.

One other juried award remains to be decided as well as the popular vote balloting which will be counted after 3 p.m., July 10.

Notify ASC Office If Allotment Acreage Is Sold

The County ASC Office should be notified whenever farm land which involves a wheat acreage allotment or a Conservation Reserve contract is bought or sold. Lister V. Hall, Jr. of that office said today.

There are certain regulations concerning the combination and division of farms which must be carried out whenever land with acreage allotments changes hands. Notification of the county office will enable the necessary changes to be made on office records.

In many cases, Mr. Hall said it is even better if the ASC office can be consulted before the farm real estate deal is closed. This may prevent later misunderstandings as to how allotments or Conservation Reserve contracts may be affected.

Zwaanendael Museum Notes

The Zwaanendael Museum with refinished floors, shining cases, and changes in exhibits, is already receiving many summer tourists and vacation groups; and will be open to visitors from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. on Monday, July 4th.

School groups from all over Delaware and nearby Maryland have included the museum in their historic tours at the end of the school term. Sea Girl Scouts, Mariner No. 81, "The Golden Sharks", from Wilmington, stopped for a see during their excursion to local beaches. Exchange students in Delaware, including boys and girls from Sweden, Africa, Norway, France, Indonesia, Switzerland, Germany and Belgium, were introduced to the early history of Delaware when they were entertained locally last weekend; and the Delaware daughters of the American Revolution enjoyed the recent museum arrangement of items pertaining to Col. David Hall and the Daughters of the American Revolution, when they were in Lewes at the luncheon and tea sponsored by the Col. David Hall Chapter.

Exhibits currently on display include U. S. coins collected by H. Edward Maull of Lewes and Georgetown. Although the museum had space for only a small part of Mr. Maull's collection, which he started when a boy, the exhibit has attracted considerable attention and has been enjoyed equally by children and adults.

The regular visiting hours of the museum are weekdays, Tuesdays through Saturdays, from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Sundays and holidays, from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m., and closed on Mondays when not a holiday.

Softball News

Greenwood won both their games since the last report to once again edge ahead of Bridgeville in the tight Harrington Softball League race. First they bested Stone's by 16-8 and then nosed the Harrington Athletic Club entry in an extra inning thriller by a score of 13-12. Right-fielder Dolfonso, who had already racked up a single and a triple, put the game on ice by belting one out of the park. Both squads had 14 hits in the wild and woolly battle.

The Moose unit won two games and Felton captured their lone start as both teams moved into close contention.

Trinity Methodist Church Notes

The church is the foundation of society and is absolutely vital to the stability of the home and state.

Other public institutions serve a public need, but they fall far short of serving a personal one. (Some time ago, I heard a story of a lady who said, "I was born in a hospital, I was educated in a public school, I was married in a church. When I am hungry, I go to a restaurant; when I want amusement, I go to the theater or the concert hall, when I am sick I go to the hospital. All anyone really needs is a garage with a bedroom attached.") But she needed something else, as modern humanity at loose ends soon finds, in a vague unhappy way.

There is a spiritual need. This need only the church can fulfill. Modern man is vaguely unhappy until he finds his need met in the church and its call answered in his heart. We would welcome you to come and worship with us at Trinity Church this Sunday. Come and find your need met and answer God's call to you. Sunday, July 3, 10 o'clock, Church School. William Jester, general superintendent; Virginia Shultie, Primary superintendent. Classes for all age groups. Everyone is welcome.

11 o'clock, Divine worship and Holy Communion.

There will be no choir practice this week.

The preliminary plans for our new educational building have been submitted by our building committee, to the Dover district committee on church building and relocation, for their consideration.

At the board meeting of June 27 the board voted to hold no regular meetings during the months of July and August. Reports were heard from the commissions and the building committee and the board of trustees.

54 Tuberculous Patients Returned To Employment

A total of 54 former tuberculous patients were returned to gainful employment, and 90 new patients were given a start toward returning to normal community life in the program of vocational rehabilitation for tuberculous persons of Delaware last year.

The program of rehabilitation of persons with tuberculosis is sponsored jointly by the Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Society and the Rehabilitation Division, Board of Vocational Education.

Since Vocational rehabilitation services were begun for victims of tuberculosis in Delaware in October, 1942, a total of 504 persons have been returned to the community with the training necessary to make a significant contribution. Of this number all have been given either personal adjustment training or vocational training so that they could return to their former jobs or new vocations which would not jeopardize their physical condition.

Many of the Delawareans who were rehabilitated last year were ready to return to work immediately upon their release from the hospital. Others began jobs after a very brief delay.

During the 12-month period ending March 31, a total of 109 persons received rehabilitation service.

The rehabilitation program at the Emily P. Bissell Hospital and appropriate follow-up on former patients cost a total of $11,894 for the last fiscal year. This expense included tuition, supplies, maintenance, transportation, medical and psychological examinations, appliances and treatment, and training shop equipment.

Want Something New? Serve Veal In Chinese Style

If you enjoy the subtle blend of flavors which makes food served in Chinese restaurants so distinctive, you will get equal satisfaction in duplicating some of these culinary triumphs in your own home.

Veal is the meat used in many Chinese dishes. Reba Staggs, meat expert, points out, because the delicate flavor of this meat goes well with the vegetables and fruits used by Chinese cooks.

Veal Almond Din is a dish using veal, and is based on a Chinese recipe. Water chestnuts, mushrooms, green pepper, green beans and pimiento are among the ingredients. Serve it with rice, and top it with toasted almonds for the real oriental touch.

2 pounds veal shoulder steaks, cut 1/2 inch thick, 2 tablespoons lard or drippings, 1 cup sliced celery, 1 can (4 ounces) button mushrooms, drained, 2 cans (4 ounces each) water chestnuts, drained and sliced thinly, 1 large green pepper, cut in 1-inch pieces, 1 cup thawed frozen green beans, 1/3 cup pimiento, drained and cut into 1-inch squares, 2 teaspoons salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt, 1 bouillon cube, 1 cup water, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, cooked rice, 1/4 cup toasted, blanched almonds.

Cut steaks into strips about 1 inch wide and 2 inches long. Brown meat lightly in lard or drippings. Cover tightly and cook slowly about 30 minutes. Pour off drippings. Cook celery in a small amount of water about 5 minutes. Add partially cooked celery, mushrooms, water chestnuts, green pepper, green beans, pimiento and seasonings. Stir well. Cover tightly and simmer 10 minutes. Heat 1/2 cup water to boiling, add bouillon cube and stir until dissolved. Mix cornstarch mixture to meat and vegetables and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cover and cook slowly about 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve with cooked rice and top with toasted almonds. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Sun Can Damage The Eye Despite Dark Glasses

Smoked glass or dark glasses cannot protect the eye from the direct rays of the sun.

"There is unfortunately a widespread misunderstanding that dark glasses are sufficient to protect the eye when one looks directly at the sun," according to Dr. William W. Bolton, associate director, Department of Health Education, American Medical Association. Writing in the current (July) issue of Today's Health, published by the A.M.A., Dr. Bolton said after each eclipse of the sun "a certain number of persons are observed to have permanent damage of the retina, with loss of central vision, even after using smoked or dark glasses."

"Even when the sun is partially observed, its rays are still very intense," he said. "Dark glasses only screen against reflected glare that results as the sun's rays strike the earth."

Delaware Resorts Popular With Honeymooners

Delaware, "First State" by virtue of being the first to ratify the Federal Constitution—is frequently the first state in range of choice of honeymoon site for couples contemplating marriage according to the Delaware State Development Department.

While Delaware offers no phenomena of nature such as the water falls of Niagara nor the rugged terrain of the Poconos, this little eastern seaboard coastal strip, particularly the portion lying in south-eastern Sussex County, can provide the fulfillment of many romantic dreams, advises the state information and promotion agency.

An increasing number of brides and bridegrooms select the sandy beaches of Delaware's "Riviera Coast", Rehoboth to Fenwick Island, for their honeymoons. Here, they enjoy bathing, fishing, boating, and just lolling around in the sun while planning their futures together.

For the young in age, or heart, and particularly the romantically inclined, Delaware's beaches have a distinct appeal. Nature has generously provided, and man has preserved, stretches of wide sandy beaches, dunes and pine forests, unchanged and unspoiled, where hand-in-hand, young lovers may exchange their thoughts and dreams.

On the quiet stretches of beach adjacent to the various resorts, bonfires may be built not only for the purpose of roasting hot dogs and preparing other edibles that help satisfy appetites stimulated by saltladen ocean breezes, but also to enhance what is already a romantic setting. On those occasions when there is moonlight, the silvery reflection of moon on the waters of the mighty Atlantic or on one of the many calm inland bays dispels all the cares of a troubled, problem-beset world and makes existence in it seem well worthwhile.

Somehow, sailing on calm moonlit waters has always been associated—in song and thought with romance, and the many bays and inland waterways of south-eastern Sussex County, all within a few minutes driving, or, in some instances, walking, distance from the Delaware resorts, lend themselves readily to the furtherance of romance.

The modern but inexpensive facilities of the Delaware resorts are popular with newly weds, just as they are with the thousands of other visitors who spend their vacations along Delaware's coastal strip. The hotels and motels of Rehoboth Beach, (known locally as the "Nation's Summer Capital" because of the annual influx of visitors and vacationists from the Washington, D. C., area) will, in many instances, make special arrangements for honeymooning couples, advises the Development Department.

Farm Facts

One way to be sure crops don't carry excess fungicides or pesticides is to follow the recommendations of the manufacturer, says County Extension Agent George Vapaa.

Pesticides are dangerous to have around the house if they are not properly labeled and stored, George Vapaa, County Agent, says. Such materials should be stored where children, pets, and irresponsible persons can't get to them. They should be kept in their original, labeled containers and the empty container should be disposed of where it cannot harm humans, plants or animals.

Remove Faded Blooms
Remove faded blooms from perennials to prevent seeds from forming and sowing themselves in your garden, advises County Agent George Vapaa. Since most of the new desirable varieties are hybrids, they do not come true from seed, and new seedlings would be of undesirable types.

Episcopal Mag. Features H'gton.

Seven pages of articles and pictures of the 175th diocesan convention of the Episcopal Church, held here in May, appeared in the June issue of Now, a publication of the Episcopal Church in Delaware.

The convention also saw the dedication of St. Stephen's Episcopal new church on the Raughley-Hill Road.

Also included, in the magazine, were an article and pictures on the retirement of the Rev. Joseph S. Hinks, rector of Christ Church, Milford. The Rev. Hinks was presented a gift from St. Stephen's Church by its vicar, the Rev. John R. Symonds, in recognition of the many years he served this community as vicar of its mission.

Credit for Small Business Men

Main Street, U.S.A., is getting a big boost from the work of a government agency whose job it is to help small businessmen.

According to figures released this week by William H. Harman, regional director of the U. S. Small Business Administration's office in Philadelphia which serves Delaware, the agency has loaned nearly $90,000,000 to small firms in towns and rural communities all around the country.

Between July 1959 and April of this year, a total of $792,000 worth of credit has been made available to businessmen serving mainly rural areas in this region, Mr. Harman reported.

The Small Business Administration started operations in 1953 with a mandate from Congress to help small firms maintain their place in today's highly competitive economy.

SBA loans average about $45,000 each, with an average six-year maturity and an interest rate of 5 1/2 percent. Local banks, many of them in towns and small cities, participate in about two-thirds of these loans.

Just about every type of business, from abattoirs to zinc wire manufacturers, have benefited from the agency's credit program. Some typical loans approved recently, according to Mr. Harman, include:

$20,000 in working capital to a firm manufacturing boys' clothing.

Participation with a local bank in a $40,000 loan to a small furniture company to finance a new building.

$35,000 dollars to an automobile dealer for working capital. This loan, in which SBA co-operated with a local bank, enabled the small businessman to keep 18 employees on the payroll.

Mr. Harman emphasized that his agency does not compete with local bankers. In two-thirds of the cases the SBA loan or guarantee prompted a local banker to extend credit also.

Besides helping individual businessmen, the agency has a whole arsenal of other programs that can boost the economy of towns serving farming areas.

Recently inaugurated is a program to aid local small business investment companies. The SBA licenses, finances and regulates these privately owned companies which extend credit to small firms.

The agency also helps state and local development companies finance plants in the community.

A long list of educational and technical services back up the credit side of SBA's operation. For example, SBA experts will assist community leaders in deciding whether local businesses can expand. They'll help small firms qualify for government contracts, improve their operations, and learn of new research developments.

The agency even finances management training at local schools for businessmen.

It all adds up to a practical, down-to-earth program to strengthen the position of small businessmen in the nation's economy. You can obtain more information on the work of the Small Business Administration by writing Mr. Harman's office, Jefferson Building, 1015 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

No More Extension of Reserve Contracts
Chairman R. Harry Wilson of the Kent Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee Thursday announced that Conservation Reserve contracts which expire in 1960 or later years are no longer eligible to be extended for an additional period of years.

Previously, contracts entered into for five years or less have been eligible for extension up to the maximum of ten years upon application filed with the county ASC committee at any time before the original expiration date.

Mr. Wilson said the extension of contracts is being stopped at this time because of the fact that extension of a contract has the same effect as a new contract and would require the expenditure of additional Conservation Reserve funds. Under present legislation, no new Conservation Reserve contracts may be entered into.

The only exception to the cut-off on extensions is in the case of contracts calling for tree-planting for which seedlings are not available. Such contracts must be extended one year for each year seedlings are unavailable.

Mr. Wilson said the present ruling has no effect on the period of existing contracts. These will continue in accordance with contract terms.

Boggs Proclaims Safe Boating

In proclaiming the period July 3 through 9 as Safe Boating Week, Governor J. Caleb Boggs this week urged boatmen to follow safe boating practices and to exercise courtesy on the waterways.

"Pleasure boating," according to the gubernatorial proclamation, "is an activity which benefits the entire community by being a wholesome family recreation, an asset to the appearance of waterfront areas, and a vital tool of civil defense in time of emergency."

Present at the Governor's office for the signing of the proclamation were Nathaniel W. Taylor Jr., of Dover, state boat safety director; State Representatives Joseph B. Walls, Lewes, and William T. Best, Nassau; and Captain Carleton B. Jewell, of Hillcrest, representing the Third District of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary. Messrs. Walls and Best were the legislative sponsors of Delaware's present boat inspection law, which Mr. Taylor reported is being complied with by better than 95% of Delaware's boat owners.

The proclamation follows: Whereas, pleasure boating has become one of America's leading family participating recreational sports, with an increase in excess of 60% in the number of craft afloat since 1946; and Whereas, the public is becoming increasingly aware that pleasure boating is an activity which benefits the entire community by being a wholesome family recreation, an asset to the appearance of waterfront areas, and a vital tool of civil defense in times of emergency; and

Whereas, the Congress of the United States, by a joint resolution approved June 4, 1958, has authorized and requested the President to proclaim annually the week which includes July 4 as National Safe Boating Week; and Whereas, this week is being set aside to call the attention of pleasure boatmen to the need for knowing and observing the basic rules of safe boating and for maintaining their craft in good mechanical condition; now Therefore, I, J. Caleb Boggs, Governor of the State of Delaware, do hereby designate the week beginning July 3, 1960, as SAFE BOATING WEEK in Delaware, and I invite all the people of this state who are interested in boating, including boating organizations, the boating industry, state agencies and other groups, to join in this observance. I urge them during this week and throughout the entire year to follow safe boating practices and to exercise courtesy on the waterways.

Kent Home Doings

Like your wedding silver, a home sewing machine will be with you a long time. Many makes and models are on sale, and there are many things to consider in making a choice that will meet present and future family needs, Florence Y. Smith, Kent county home demonstration agent says.

To help you make the right choice, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin called "Buying Your Home Sewing Machine." This guide to better buying gives useful tips on what to look for in the machine, Mrs. Smith says. The bulletin suggests several easy-to-use features to look for, and ways of identifying good operation and types of motor controls. Easy to care for factors and long life are also discussed. There is also a section on secondhand machines and zigzag sewing.

Remember, your present needs may change as the family grows or the children leave to establish their own homes. No one machine is likely to have all the features you consider desirable, so a compromise is in order in selecting the machine that you consider best suited to your present and possible future needs.

Mrs. Smith says you can have a copy of the publication by calling her at REdfield 6-1448.

2 Harringtonians Make Dean's List At Wesley Junior

Two Harrington High School graduates have been named to the dean's list of honor students at Wesley College, Dover, for the spring semester, 1960, Dr. Donald D. Douglass, dean of the college, announced this week.

They are: Miss Joyce Ann Downing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Downing, and Alvin O. Jarrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jarrell.

The honor is accorded those students who achieve a 3.0 index, a "B" average, in all their college work in the semester.

Both young people received the Associate in Arts degree at Wesley this month.

Fourth of July Can Be Dangerous

J. James Ashton, manager of the Delaware Safety Council, leveled a forewarning Thursday that the coming Fourth of July holiday, four days in all, choked full of recreational pursuits for all of us, will bring heartbreak and suffering for many unless we prepare well to cope with the many hazards to be encountered.

He said that the recent Memorial Day holiday weekend accidental death toll across the nation should serve as a grim reminder to all Delawareans to "take it easy and play it safe this Fourth of July weekend. There is no quicker way to spoil a holiday than to have an accident."

In spotlighting the circumstances that are likely to surround most accidents over the holiday weekend, he said that traffic and drownings will emerge as the No. 1 and No. 2 killers respectively. Boating, water skiing, fishing, surfing, and virtually every outdoor sport will exact its toll too.

"We are not trying to be wet blankets about all these outdoor sports," he said. "We want everyone to have fun, but also we want everyone to stay alive and healthy to enjoy it."

Tips offered by Mr. Ashton to combat the Terrible Two—traffic and drownings—are, in traffic:

1. Don't drive too far too fast.
2. Don't drive a car that's in poor shape. (A minor auto ailment can too easily become major under the stress and strain of turnpike driving.)
3. Don't permit irritations to drive you into an accident.
4. Don't drink after driving.
5. Don't ignore speed laws and traffic regulations—which are established for your protection.

To be safe around water he advises:

1. Remember, it's not only swimmers who drown. Persons walking near the water, and persons playing or working in or by water, also are frequent victims of drowning.
2. Know how to swim. Don't swim alone.
3. Practice moderation in swimming—don't try to swim all the way across a lake or river.
4. Horseplay is unwise around water.

"Above all", Mr. Ashton said, "don't get carried away with a feeling of independence on Independence Day."

3 Men Jailed In Kent Thefts

Three men were sentenced to two-year jail terms Thurs., June 23, in a series of burglaries last fall.

Associate Judge William J. Storey, sitting in Kent County Superior Court, sentenced Ervin (Tater Bug) Edwards, 21, who was extradited from Florida to face charges in the Nov. 4 burglary of Taylor's Hardware, Harrington.

Tracy Butler, 27, Lincoln, was sentenced for two years on charges of receiving stolen goods from a Nov. 13 burglary of Taylor's Hardware. He also received a two-year concurrent sentence on charges of breaking and entering the Buchanan Firestone store in Milford on Nov. 12.

Daniel George, 20, Chester, Pa., was given concurrent two-year sentences on burglary charges involving the I. G. Burton Garage, Milford, on Oct. 21, and Taylor's Hardware, Harrington, on Nov. 4.

Delaware Food Market Report

For the Fourth of July holiday, meat counters will be well stocked with quick cooking picnic meats. Hamburger, frankfurters, all feature items. Check ready-to-eat meats at the frozen foods counter, as well as prepared meat. There are some good buys here especially for the hostess with little time to prepare a full meal.

During early July look for a plentiful supply of rib roasts of beef and smoked hams and also for many specials on steaks of all kinds. Don't forget rib roasts are excellent for broiling on the barbecue pit when cut down into steaks. Ask your meat man to do this for you. Two other meats that will be in good supply are turkeys and broilers. It looks as if July will be a good month for outdoor cookery as far as the meat department is concerned.

Watermelon time has arrived with a larger than usual supply on hand - prices are low for this time of year also. This big supply will continue for the next month, since the peak of the season is not here. This fruit is a perfect dessert item, but don't forget there are many other ways to serve it other than as a dessert. Salads radiate when watermelon balls, chips or sticks are added. Heap the melon pieces into a crisp lettuce cup adding pineapple, cantaloupe, or other seasonal fresh fruits to the watermelon balls. Fresh fruit cup, the ideal way to start a meal, is greatly enhanced with the addition of this plentiful fruit. Even the rind can be used for watermelon pickle. Other fruits that are plentiful this weekend are lemons, limes, blueberries, cantaloupes and California Valencia oranges. More peaches are arriving each day, and prices are quite reasonable.

New Jersey snap beans top the list of plentiful vegetables this week. Prices are low and quality, for the most part, is high. Squash, both white and yellow, are in good supply, and quality is good. Other vegetables to check are cabbage, new potatoes, carrots and beets. Key salad items on sale this week are cucumbers, tomatoes, lettuce, radishes, Boston lettuce, onions and peppers.

Check specials on ice cream and sherberts this week. Both are being offered at quite reasonable prices.

U. D. Faculty Approves Programs for Superior High School Students

Outstanding high school and preparatory school students may now gain early admission to the University of Delaware or be enrolled with advanced placement, Dr. William G. Fletcher, director of admissions and records, announced Monday.

Beginning in September, 1960, the admissions office will consider applications from superior students for admission prior to the completion of requirements for the high school diploma and also will consider awarding advanced placement with credit for advanced courses completed in high school.

Similar programs for gifted students are being offered at Carnegie Tech, the University of Idaho, Miami University, the University of Pittsburgh, Stanford, Trinity, Harvard and a number of other universities.

The theory behind early admission is that students should be permitted to advance on the basis of what they know rather than on their age and class standing. Similarly, once enrolled at a university, there is little reason for having them take basic courses in which they may demonstrate proficiency by passing a special examination.

An experiment with early admission already has proved profitable. Three Delaware City high school students were admitted in February to the freshman class. Their principal and university authorities agreed that a final half-year in high school would not challenge their intellectual abilities. The State Department of Education co-operated by assuring the students granted early admission will receive their diplomas upon the successful completion in college of work equivalent to that unfinished in high school.

The three students, Zola Mae Shaulis of Bear and Thomas F. Crompton and Robert L. Smith, both of Delaware City, have been well above average in their attainments. Miss Shaulis, who is majoring in music, has a 2.5 index for her first semester of work. Crompton, a chemistry major, has a 3.06 index, and Smith, a French major, has a 3.0 average. An index of 3.0 represents a "B" average.

In the case of advanced placement, the program begins in preparatory or high schools where college-level courses have been established for ambitious students. Prior to entering college, these students are tested in the subjects for which they have prepared by the College Entrance Board under a commission composed of school and college teachers. Examinations are administered and graded by the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N. J. Detailed course and examination descriptions are then made available to colleges for their use in determining policy on advanced placement of entering students.

In addition to high school and preparatory school students who qualify as a result of these examinations, the University of Delaware also will consider granting advanced standing to students who, through self-study or previous professional training, are considered eligible after successfully completing placement tests administered by the department in which they seek to enroll.

Milford Church To Build Rectory

The members of Christ Church, Milford, have purchased a home on Clark Avenue to be used as a new rectory. The Rev. and Mrs. John Dyer and family, who are coming to Milford around August 1, from the Cathedral Church of St. John, Wilmington, will live in the new rectory. The Rev. Dyer will succeed the Rev. Joseph S. Hinks as rector of Christ Church. Mr. Hinks retired April 30, after 35 years in Milford.

The purchase of the new rectory is the first of a series of projects being undertaken by members of Christ Church under the leadership of Mr. Dyer. The old rectory on Church Avenue has been redecorated and turned into Sunday School rooms and a parish lounge by volunteer help from the members of the church. Other projects being worked upon or planned for the not too far distant future are construction of a new parish house, repair of the churchyard and fence, and possible enlargement of the church building.

Christ Church is the oldest church in Milford and one of the oldest churches in the state. The history of the parish dates back to 1704 and many important persons in the history of the state and community are buried in the churchyard. Here can be found the graves of three former governors of Delaware and Joseph Oliver, who, at one time, owned most of the land on which Milford now stands.

DEMOCRATS SET AUG. 25 FOR PARLEY

The Democratic State Committee meeting Monday night at the Kent County Court House set Thurs., Aug. 25, as the date for the Democratic State Convention. It will be held, starting at noon in the air conditioned auditorium of Dover High School. Convention delegates will be elected at the combined primary and delegate election to be held Aug. 20—a date set by law.

Former Gov. Elbert N. Carvel in a somewhat fiery political talk almost, but not quite, tossed his hat in the ring Monday night with an attack on the Republican state and national administrations.

After Mr. Carvel's political pitch at the meeting Monday night he was congratulated by Vernon B. Derrickson, the Kent County Democratic chairman, who was trying to get an admission from the former governor that he had announced his candidacy for the gubernatorial nomination. Mr. Carvel maintained he had not announced.

In his talk Monday night Mr. Carvel said, "In my humble opinion, we are raising more than ample taxes to operate the state of Delaware well. It is only a simple matter of efficient administration, and all the new programs offered by the present administration cannot divert the attention of the people of Delaware from the fact that the present Boggs administration has failed the people of our state miserably by failing to keep a reasonable control over the spending of public monies."

"The people are crying for a forthright, efficient administration," continued the former governor.

"During our four years of Democratic administration we demonstrated to the people of this state that we could and would provide for the expansion and improvement of our state while keeping a lid on extravagant expenditures. "The time is now here when we will again have an opportunity to provide the leadership that the people want. Let us unite and join together in doing the job that we have proven we can do and the job that the people of Delaware are pleading to have done."

Earlier in his talk, which was based upon a prepared text, Mr. Carvel declared there has been a lack of leadership on both the national and state level over the past eight years. "We have seen too often, my friends, where our President doesn't know what's going on," said Mr. Carvel. He declared that the Governor says "What Can I do?" and throws up his hands.

"The people of Delaware and the United States expect an executive to lead," he added.

State to Take Part in Trade Exposition

The Northeastern States Exposition of Industrial Progress, which will be held in South Portland, Me., Aug. 13, 24 and 25, comprises the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware.

Governor J. Caleb Boggs has accepted an appointment from Governor John H. Reed of Maine as one of the eleven honorary directors of this Exposition.

The main reason for the Exposition is to give manufacturers in all of these states an opportunity to investigate the possibilities of bidding on prime contracts with various federal agencies as well as the U.S. Department of Defense, who are also co-operating in the sponsorship of this Exposition.

These agencies and many of their prime contractors will have exhibits at South Portland together with qualified representatives on hand to discuss products being purchased, production capabilities, procurement procedure and other pertinent subjects. The purpose of the Exposition is to interest and encourage manufacturers in the Northeast to make maximum use of contract opportunities with the federal agencies.

Governor Boggs appointed the Delaware State Development Department as the Delaware agent to process the information relative to the 11-state Exposition and they now have applications for participation in this Exposition. The Department is anxious to get these applications to any Delaware companies who are at all interested in any phase of this Exposition.

The application for participation includes complete information on the Exposition—location of the show building, how to apply for space, how to ship exhibits, removal of exhibits, care of exhibit space, protection of machinery in the exhibit and all matters pertinent to being an exhibitor.

These applications will be mailed out from the Delaware State Development Department, 45 The Green, Dover, upon request.

Privacy Assured in Marketing Quota Voting

With the marketing quota referendum scheduled for July for 1961 wheat, Kent County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee Chairman R. Harry Wilson Thursday announced clarification of several referendum regulations—one relating to privacy in voting and another to joint voting eligibility of husband and wife.

The county committee shall take particular care to designate a place where each voter can mark and cast his ballot in secret and without coercion, duress, or interference of any sort whatever. The use of voting booths is regarded as too costly, but every farmer is entitled to have some area at the polling place where he can mark his ballot in complete confidence.

Concerning voting eligibility, Mr. Wilson said that joint owners (whether husband and wife or otherwise) of a farm who share in the crop are both eligible to vote in a marketing quota referendum. However, members of a partnership farm operation may vote only once if they are involved in more than one such partnership.

Motor Vehicle Registrations Up Sharply

There was a total of 198,515 motor vehicle registrations in operation in Delaware June 1, according to a report of the Motor Vehicle Department. This number is an increase of 7191 over the same period of last year.

Wilmington and New Castle County had 118,763 of the registrations, an increase of 5253 for the year. Kent County had 43,982, an increase of 1342 and Sussex County had 35,770, an increase of 596.

Of the registrations 139,255 were for pleasure vehicles, an increase of 4095; commercial vehicle registrations totaled 42,051, an increase of 2653; trailers accounted for 12,055 of the registrations, an increase of 341.

Farm truck registrations totaled 4000, an increase of 48, while tractor registrations were 383, an increase of 23 and motorcycle registrations totaled 752, an increase of 24. There were 19 stock car registrations, an increase of 7.

Plan Ahead!

Farm prices are down while prices are still going up for most of the things farmers buy. So, farmers are beginning to appreciate more and more the need to become more business-like in planning their farm operations, according to county agent George Vapaa.

The objective of farm planning is to take a good look at the farm as a whole and to figure out ways and means of making the best use of all the farm resources available to the farm family.

"Farm management people have contended all along that efficient farm planning is the key to increased net income on most farms," Mr. Vapaa said. "But this idea has not been easy to sell. One reason is the lack of impressive financial benefits. However, this picture is changing rapidly. Evidence of the value of good planning shows up in the bank accounts of farmers who really plan their operation."

Farming today is not only big business but it is also one that promises to become even bigger. As time goes on, farming will become more complicated and complex, and the man who doesn't plan ahead may find himself left behind.

Farm planning may be thought of as a "do-it-yourself" solution to meet the problem of keen competition from other areas and at the same time raise farm incomes.

As someone has said, "The farmer who farms today with yesterday's tools is apt to be out of business tomorrow." Tools for modern-day farming include not only tractors, combines, pickup fic safety work in many fields, used to make comparisons of what is being done in the various cities and states, and to point out areas for improvement. Among the subjects covered are traffic courts, driver licensing, traffic engineering, organization for traffic safety, traffic safety education, accident prevention programs, and pedestrian safety efforts. The Delaware Safety Council gathers the Delaware material for the inventory which is administered by the National Safety Council with the cooperation of other groups in specific fields.

Other awards will be announced later. All the Delaware winners will receive their honors at an awards luncheon to be held by the Delaware Safety Council in late August or September.

The criteria used this year in the traffic supervision section of the inventory are higher than even, Captain Daney reported.
The criteria include details on personnel, organization and administration, training, accident investigation, general traffic law enforcement, and intoxication enforcement.
One of the criteria concerns "selective enforcement" which involves use of accident records for special enforcement efforts at times and locations where accidents have occurred.
Other criteria include the accident investigation rate, the accident arrests rate, the conviction rate for accident arrests, the rate of pedestrian arrests per rural pedestrian death, the driver intoxication convictions per drinking driver accident, and the percentage of chemical tests used in driver intoxication arrests.

RESIGNATION

letter of resignation, Mr. Carrow said that it seems ridiculous that a mature board-medical staff faces the same problem of more than a half decade ago, and if a 93-bed hospital cannot guarantee a patient the best possible medical care "we had better reduce the number of beds to the number this medical staff can bluff the board into believing they can properly handle."
"Professional loyalty," he also said, "can cause unnecessary deaths. This craftiness of degree of misbehavior could cause a recalcitrant surgeon to overstep the bounds of medical ethics one time. I do not choose to be that patient or a board member who fails to try to prevent it."

The charter of the town has been amended from time to time, but without any change in the number of the town council. In 1923 the town limits were extended to the east as far as the state highway.
The members of the town council collect by taxation for town purposes not over five thousand dollars. They employ a night and day watchman to look after and maintain order in the town.

On August 15, 1905, a special meeting of the citizens of Harrington was called for the purpose of organizing a volunteer fire company. B. L. Lewis was elected chairman; H. S. Harrington was elected secretary, and W. H. Franklin appointed fire chief. A committee was appointed to draw up a constitution and by-laws. September 15, 1905, the Harrington Volunteer Fire Company was reorganized. Masten's Hall was obtained for a firemen's hall. Later the firemen moved into the old Methodist Protestant Church, which had been bought by the town (November 1905) and converted into a town hall. A number of fire plugs were bought and installed.

From 1908 until 1913 the Harrington Volunteer Fire Company was inactive. In 1915 (March first) a movement was started to raise funds for the purchase of a chemical engine. March 11th the company was incorporated and issued certificates in multiples of $10. October 4, 1915, the chemical engine was bought and was delivered January 2, 1916.

April 10, 1916, the company decided that the purchase of a new fire alarm was an absolute necessity; so a committee was appointed to communicate with several companies. The movement was dropped for some cause and was not taken up again until October 1920. November 8, 1920, an electric siren was bought and installed at a cost of $485.

January 27, 1919, the company reorganized, adopting a new constitution and set of by-laws.

The Harrington Volunteer Fire Company has been very beneficial to the two in two ways: first, from a protective point of view; and second, it has been the means of obtaining lower fire insurance rates. The members of the fire company have worked heroically at fires both in and out of town. Damage to property has been greatly lessened by their efforts, and many owe thanks to them for their homes.

The first officers of the fire company were:
President, Garrett S. Harrington; vice president, John W. Sheldrake; recording secretary, Harry S. Harrington; financial secretary, James Holt; treasurer, A. D. McCabe.

The present officers are:
President, James L. Harmstead; vice president, Ridgely W. Vane; recording secretary, Harry C. Tee; financial secretary, Herman Johnson; treasurer, George W. Swain; chief, George B. Potter.

The enterprise of Harrington is best shown in the large school building in the northwestern part of the town. The first school house was built in 1863 on the Felton road, now Dorman Street, on the site at present occupied by the home of A. W. Spurry. The building was enlarged about 1870 and 1883 sold to Franklin Bros., who moved it to Commerce Street. L. Morris now conducts his business there.

The next building was erected in 1883 on a site further north on Dorman Street. This was a frame building, "T" shaped. It was built in the Queen Anne style of architecture and cost $6000. In 1888 there were 296 scholars. About 1910 the school was not large enough to accommodate the pupils and it was declared unsafe for further use. So the present building was erected on the northwestern corner of Dorman Street. The old school building was sold to Benjamin Knox, who converted it into an apartment house.

The new school building cost $28,000. In order to pay for it, $25,000 in bonds were issued. This building is also "T" shaped, with accommodations for 500 scholars and fifteen teachers. There are two stories, fifteen classrooms, a laboratory room and a nurse's room. The school has been graded since 1883 and the higher branches are taught. In 1883, school district 126 and 127 of Kent County were consolidated with the Harrington district No. 94, and was incorporated by an act of the Legislature. The act named Robert S. Downs, Robert H. Short, James A. Smith, Ezekiel Fleming, Alfred Raughley, Wm. T. Sharp, Henry Dickerson, Amos Cole and James Moore as a Board of Education for the town of Harrington. They were given power to borrow $5,000 to erect a school building, and were to hold office until April, 1883, at which time their successors were to be elected, three to hold one year; three, two years, and three, three years. The following were elected: W. T. Sharp, R. H. Short, A. Raughley, J. P. Masten, E. Fleming, A. Cole, C. Sapp, A. Jellison, and Dr. B. L. Lewis.

Since 1883 the number of board members has been decreased to three. Those serving as school commissioners are: J. L. Harmstead, E. B. Rash and S. O. Bailey.

In 1919 the following districts were consolidated with the Harrington School District: Old Masten's No. 35; Brown's Neck No. 38; Powell's No. 48; and parts of Rice's No. 120 and Marvel's No. 63. This greatly increased the number of scholars and it was found necessary to provide an additional room for Home Economics. The old school house at Powell's was moved to Harrington, repaired and remodeled as a class room in 1922.

In 1906 an electric light plant was installed on the present site of the ice plant, and the streets were first lighted by electricity in that year. A Mr. Peele was organizer of the company and a Mr. Hewitt was solicitor. In order to encourage the introduction of electricity into the homes, they were wired free of charge. This company failed in about two years and it was purchased by the Phoenix Company. They moved the plant to Coursey's Mill. Three years later a Laurel company bought the concern, and since then headquarters have been in Laurel.

The town has two banks, the First National Bank and the People's Bank of Harrington. The first was incorporated in 1888 with the following as directors: President, Edward Sapp; Cashier, Wm. T. Sharp; Teller, George A. Redden.

The present officials are: President, J. Wm. Powell; Cashier, D. B. Tharp; Teller, Theo. Harrington.

The People's Bank of Harrington was incorporated in 1905 and had as its directors: President, S. L. Sapp; Cashier, Fred Masten; Teller, Floyd Turner.
There are in Harrington seven churches, the Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Protestant, Protestant Episcopal, Nazarine, Holiness, and two colored Methodist Episcopal.

The Harrington Methodist Protestant Church
The Harrington M. P. Church was organized in 1880 with a membership of fifty. The church building was dedicated August 19, 1881, by the Rev. T. H. Lewis, Rev. R. S. Rowe, and Rev. J. E. Nicholson, of Wilmington. This building is the one now used as the town hall and cost twenty-two hundred dollars. For a number of years the same ministers who preached here also preached at Bethel Church, in the lower part of the hundred. In 1888, the membership had increased to one hundred twenty-five. The first building was used as a place of worship until the present structure on Commerce Street was erected in 1904. The new building, which is a handsome brick structure, was dedicated in the fall of 1904, by Rev. Nicholas O. Gibson, then pastor of the church. The Sunday School was organized October 16, 1882. Senior and Junior Christian Endeavor Societies, Ladies Aid Society, and other organizations are working in the church.

Due to length of article the History of Harrington will be continued next week.
