FIRST 60-MPH SIGNS ERECTED IN HARRINGTON AREA

The first of the new 60-mile-an-hour speed limit signs were erected along Route 13 from Dover to near Harrington Friday. Eventually 300 of the signs will be made to cover the dual highways of the state, the only thoroughfares on which the higher speed limit will be permitted.

As only a limited amount of reflective sheeting used in the signs were available for the first 36 signs, there will be a further delay until more of the material is received from St. Paul, Minn. The new signs show the 60-mph limit in daylight and 55 mph at night under headlight beams.

Joseph S. Strachar, supervisor of the State Highway Department's sign shop at Dover, said as soon as the reflective material is received, the rest of the signs will be made up and issued to the department's division engineers in each county. The signs are 24 inches wide, 36 inches high, and made of aluminum. They have a white background with black figures in the daytime and glowing, reflected figures at night.

Highways to be posted with the new signs are Route 13 (DuPont Parkway), 113 (South of Dover), 40 (Glasgow Highway, 202 (Concord Pike), 2 (Kirkwood Highway), and 14 (from Nassau to Rehoboth Beach). Governor Printz Boulevard, a dual highway, will continue to be posted below the maximum speed limit.

Short stretches of dual highways which will be posted below the maximum speed are Route 141 from Lancaster Pike to Faulkland Road, Route 273 near Ogleton, and New Castle Avenue south of Wilmington.

The new speed limit replaces the previous 55 mph limit only where signs are posted, so the new speed limit will take effect only as the signs announcing it are set up along the highways.

Carr-Todd

Man, Two Horses Hurt
As Van, Truck Collide

A man and two harness horses were injured and extensive damage was caused to three men's property near Felton Sunday night when two behemoth vehicles collided on the southbound lane of U. S. 13.

State Police said a stake body horse van operated by Samuel Simmons, Jr., of Mechanicsburg, Pa., pulled out of Harold's Motel and headed south about a mile and a half north of Felton. A tractor-trailer, operated by Martin L. Burgess of Chincoteague, Va., also headed south, crashed into the rear of the horse van when Burgess was unable to brake the vehicle.

The van was knocked some 400 feet, spreading a path of destruction. It first sheared off a light pole and knocked down the guy lines. Continuing on it smashed three lawn chairs on the property of William Dyer. It then hit an embankment, rolled into the home of Robert Schuyler, knocking a hole in the

Highway Board Secretary Reconsiders Resignation

The State Highway Department's secretary submitted a letter of resignation Wednesday morning and was persuaded to withdraw it in the afternoon.

The situation at the end of the day: No change, except that an internal dispute was ironed out.

The holder of the $11,000 a year job is James J. Deputy of Milford, appointed in February 1956. He sent a letter to the department's commissioners, received at their brief meeting in Dover Wednesday.

Several of the commissioners talked to Mr. Deputy on the telephone and found that the reason for his action was some disagreement and personality friction within the department.

The ruffled feathers were smoothed down. The secretary agreed to withdraw his letter and return to the dual job. He receives $8,000 as secretary of the department and $3,000 as secretary of the Interstate Highway Division.

Stack, Knotts and Hollis Excel In Kent & Sussex Fair 3-Mile Run

The Kent and Sussex Fair struck a powerful blow for the cause of physical fitness of Delaware youth when they held a three-mile run Tuesday evening.

Wes Stack of Seaford and the University of Delaware, a smart, well-conditioned athlete, was the winner in 15 minutes and 50 seconds. In last year's inaugural Stack won in 16 minutes and 42 seconds. Harry Knotts, 16, a senior at Harrington High, was second after placing third last year. Knotts was probably under the old record also.

John Hollis of Seaford High was third with Joe Richmond of Wilmington fourth. These lads are both 16 years old. Harvey Smith and John Preston of Wilmington were fifth and sixth respectively.

Clarence Hackett of Harrington and John Roper of Wilmington finished in a dead heat for seventh. Two other starters dropped out with a half mile to go. The distance actually run was in all probability closer to 3 1/4 miles.

Harvey Smith took the lead at the word "go" and set a fast pace for 3 laps around the half mile track. Stack, Knotts and Richmond were tightly bunched immediately behind him. On the fourth lap Smith faded to fourth place with Wes Stack taking the lead closely followed by Knotts. Richmond in third was back a few yards while Hollis in fifth began to creep up on Smith. Knotts passed Stack at the beginning of the fifth lap and opened up a six yard advantage. By the end of the lap, the more experienced and stronger Blue Hen performer was back in command and won going away.

Auto Slide Stunt Man Hurt In Kent & Sussex Fair Act

One of the stunt men associated with Jack Kochman's Hell Drivers, thrill show which was Monday's feature at the Kent and Sussex Fair, was injured in an "auto slide" during the performance in front of the grandstand.

Known to the daredevil crew, as Rusty Faust, the man misjudged the slide, according to observers, and was hurled from the auto to the ground.

Taken to the Milford Memorial Hospital, a preliminary examination showed he had a broken wrist, four broken teeth, and possible internal injuries. He was detained at the hospital over night for observation.

CAIN AND DONOVAN SEEK NOMINATIONS FOR SENATOR

George W. Cain and Leon Donovan have filed for senator from the Fourth Senatorial District, with the nominee to be determined at the Democratic primary Sat., Aug. 20.

The senatorial district comprises the Sixth and Ninth Representative districts.

Donovan has served two terms as representative in the General Assembly from the Ninth Representative District, while Cain is serving his second term in the same post.

The identity of the combatants in the primary battle has been quite vague. When the political cards were first shuffled, Donovan and Cain had announced themselves for the post.

Cain then mentioned he would seek a third term as representative when Robert Stafford announced himself for senator. Stafford and Donovan come from the Second Election District of the Ninth while Cain comes from the First Election District of the same representative district.

The contest will be one of two such battles in Kent County, the other being in the Second Senatorial District where Nelson Massey, former representative, and Allen J. Cook, senate majority leader, have filed.

At this point, it appears contests will be numerous, judging from the number of persons who have filed with N. Maxson Terry, secretary of the Kent County Democratic Committee.

Other files and the posts they seek are as follows: Comptroller of Kent County—Harry S. Hanson, incumbent, Samuel S. Messick, and Raymond Welch. Levy Court—1st Levy Court District, John G. Tarburton, incumbent; 2nd Levy Court District, George B. Vincent and Walter J. Paskey Jr.; 3rd Levy Court District, Charles Bostick, incumbent. Register of wills, Clarence E. Dixon, incumbent. Prothonotary, Emory N. Lynch. Coroner—Frank R. Hayes and William C. Torbert Jr. Sheriff—William James.

Richard Bullock, of Harrington, has announced himself for sheriff and is campaigning.

Representative — First Representative District, George M. Blendt; Second, none filed; Third, C. Stanley Short Sr., Carl F. Prettyman, C. Francis Downs, and Arnold Long; Fourth, Leonard A. Covell and William Opatyke, incumbent; Fifth, none filed; Sixth, H. Dawson Shulties; Seventh, Virgil W. Bork; Eighth, William Paskey Jr., incumbent; Ninth, none filed, and Tenth, George A. Robbins, incumbent.

Delaware Junior Fishing Rodeo Next Month

Delaware youngsters who like to fish can do so to their "hearts content"—and compete for prizes, too—according to James F. Godsey and Jesse J. Walling, New Castle residents, who are the prime movers in the Delaware Junior Fishing Rodeo, the third annual statewide version of which will be held Sat., Aug. 20, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

According to Messrs. Godsey and Walling, two new sites have been added this year making a total of twelve that will be available for the use of the more than 3000 youngsters likely to participate in this year's competition.

The new sites and sponsors are: North shore of the Brandywine Creek, between Market and Van Buren Streets, Wilmington, sponsored by the Wilmington Police and Firemen's Rod and Gun Club, and Lake Como, at Smyrna, sponsored by the Newnam-Lee- (Continued on Page 8)

Hal Rettberg Enters Harrington Car Races

Hal Rettberg, from Albany, N. Y., one of the hottest of eastern big car racers this year, is among favored entries in the United Racing Club events at the Kent & Sussex Fair tomorrow.

Rettberg, who won features at Hatfield, Pa., and Selingsgrove, Pa., will throttle the same sleek No. 2 car that produced the wins. A field of over 25 URC drivers is listed to compete.

Sam Nunis, in charge of the races, said that a 20-lap sweepstakes would cap Saturday's action. Other events include a 10-lap semi-feature, three eight-lap qualifying heats and opening time trials. The time trials open the bill at 1 p. m., with the first race set for 2:30.

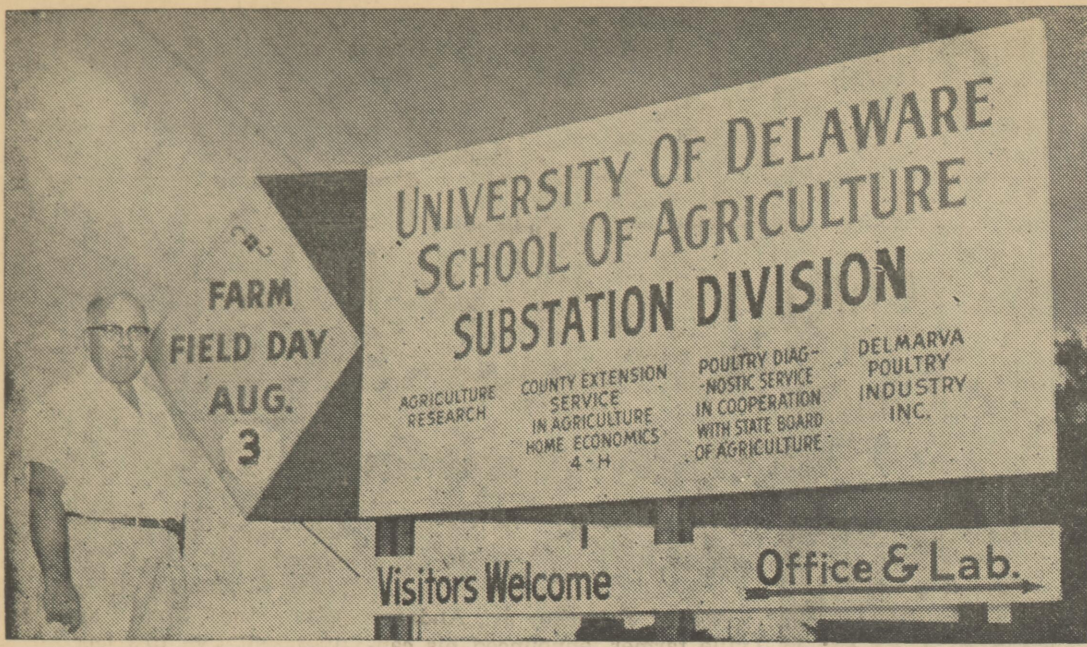

Included among front-running URC pilots set to battle Rettberg for fair honors here are three ex-champions, Buddy Powers, Philadelphia; Bert Brooks, Paterson, N. J., and Lou Johnson, Wilmington, Del.

Social Security News

At the end of 1959, as Federal Social Security was starting its twenty-fifth year, old-age, survivors, and disability insurance monthly benefits were being paid in Kent County to 3637 persons at the rate of $2,494,788 a year.

Payments to a retired worker with no dependents receiving benefits averaged $69 a month nationally at the end of last December; to a retired couple, both of whom were receiving benefits, the average payment was $121.

As social security celebrates its Silver Anniversary (the original Act was signed in to law on August 14, 1935) about 74 million working people are in covered employment or self-employment in the course of a year.

The table below shows the number and monthly amount of each type of benefit being paid in Kent and Sussex County, as of Dec. 31, 1959, the date of the latest available tabulation:

"Windbags" Can Relax Says Science

Vociferous persons who have been labeled "windbags" can relax. Science has given them an out.

Their recourse is to visit a laboratory on the second floor of the Delaware Hospital where accurately calibrated instruments will show that their "wind" is probably no more or no less than the normal person's.

The lab, of course, has a much more serious purpose. It is known as the pulmonary function laboratory and enables medical experts to study lung diseases of patients.

The equipment has been provided by the Delaware Tuberculosis & Health Society in an effort to step up its campaign against chronic respiratory diseases among Delawareans.

The work in the laboratory is under the direction of Dr. James M. Hoffer, a member of the staff of the Delaware Hospital, who is assisted by Mrs. William B. Clark, a medical technologist.

A quick tour of the facilities reveals a Tissot gasometer for measuring gas volumes and taking samples for analysis, a Van Slyke manometric gas analyzer for determining the amount of oxygen and carbon dioxide in the blood and for measuring the amount of nitrogen in gas samples, a Scholander micro gas analyzer for analyzing very small samples of gas, a Collins spirometer for measuring lung volumes, the usual quota of chemical reagents, valves and other equipment.

Their first stop is at the spirometer where lung volumes are measured. Through this means, the laboratory staff can evaluate the nature, seriousness and progress of the disease, can assist in making an accurate diagnosis, and can judge the patient's ability to withstand an operation.

If an abnormality is detected by the spirometer, additional tests are conducted. Next is the residual volume test, to measure the amount of air left in a patient's lung after he has exhaled to the maximum. The residual volume is elevated in various diseases, typified by pulmonary emphysema, a type of chronic lung disease.

Blood gas studies, while the patient is at rest and at exercise, measure the amount of oxygen being carried by the blood. The carbon dioxide content of the blood is examined also, to determine whether the patient has difficulty in getting rid of this gas.

The installation of the pulmonary function laboratory in the Delaware Hospital represents an important step forward in the respiratory disease program of the Delaware Tuberculosis and Health Society.

Respiratory diseases as a group are one of the most serious health problems confronting the nation today. They rank fourth as a cause of death. Furthermore, acute respiratory conditions are responsible for about 65 per cent of all acute health conditions, according to a recent National Health Survey by the U. S. Public Health Service, and chronic respiratory diseases are responsible for millions of chronic illnesses annually.

Intrastate Water Survey Report Completed

The report on the Intrastate Water Survey for the State of Delaware has been recently completed and prepared in book form for use of the various agencies and the U. S. Corps of Engineers in their study of the water situation in Delaware.

This report, the result of almost three years of effort by the coordinators, state agencies, county agencies and other interested organizations who participated, shows that the State of Delaware has changed in many ways over the past decade and indicates even greater changes, which will effect every citizen, in the future.

"It is with great pride and considerable pleasure that this report is presented," commented Gov. J. Caleb Boggs in connection with the publication of the report. "This report throughout points to the expected growth of the state and the need for water which must be obtained if our economic progress is to continue to the year 2060. It is my hope that this report will result in action which will contribute to the improvement and continued growth of the State of Delaware," the Governor added.

The report was compiled under the direction of the members of the Delaware Basin Survey Coordinating Committee for the State of Delaware composed of J. Gordon Smith, chairman of the State Highway Department as Co-ordinator; R. A. Haber, chief engineer of the State Highway Department as Deputy Co-ordinator; Dr. A. Joel Kaplovsky, director of the Water Pollution Commission, and Chauncey O. Simpson, Research Director for the State Highway Department, as Alternate Co-ordinators.

A limited number of copies of the report, in bound form, are available for distribution and it is planned to place copies in the public libraries throughout the state and at other places where they will be available to the public.

Likewise excerpts of each of the 28 sections covered in the report will be released through news sources from time to time.

Plan For Safety On Vacation Trip

Planning to take the family on a vacation trip in the car?

Here are some suggestions for a pleasant and safe trip from Joanne Reitz, Extension Home Management specialist at the University of Maryland.

If possible, leave early—you'll find traffic lighter and it'll be cooler, too. While you're still fresh, you can put on a lot of miles. Then later on during the heat of the day, you can just take it easier. Stop often when the weather is hot.

To make traveling more enjoyable for each member of the family, take surprise packages along for the children. Some new toy can keep them interested for miles.

Never drive when you're tired or feel drowsy. Pull completely off the road and rest—or let someone else take the wheel.

Always observe and heed road signs. On heavily traveled roads keep a safe distance from the car in front of you. Allow yourself a comfortable margin for safety.

Keep windshield clean for visibility. A dirty windshield can be a driving hazard—it increases glare, adds to eye strain, and cuts visibility. A clean windshield makes driving safer.

Check your car thoroughly before leaving on your trip. A thorough check up will assure you of peace of mind on the road. And your safety and that of your family may depend on it.

Harrington HDC Notes

The Harrington Home Demonstration Club will meet Wednesday evening, Aug. 3 at 6:30 p.m. at Wheeler's Park, for a covered dish supper. Mrs. Clarence Jarrell is chairman.

Something Old And New, Something Growing and Green

Old farm implements, new agricultural queens, new plant varieties, and ripe watermelons are just a few of the things to see or to eat at Farm Field Day at the University of Delaware substation division near Georgetown, Aug. 3.

The something old will be in the Antique Farm Implement Show which promises to bring back a lot of memories with a large turnout of well-aged machines and hand implements. Everyone that enters will receive a watermelon if not another prize; so you can't lose. In order to be judged, entries should be checked in at the grove at the substation by 10 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 3. So polish up that old antique and bring it along with you.

The something new covers almost everything else at the Substation including several agricultural queens and princesses, who will be on hand, as well as exhibits of new processes and methods of agriculture.

Some of the young ladies representing Delaware agriculture are Miss Jeanne Martin, Harrington, Kent County 4-H Dairy Princess; Miss Susan Richards, Bridgeville, Miss Delmarva; and Miss Doris Jarmon, Newark, Delaware State Grange Princess.

Among the new ideas to be presented with exhibits are pelleted hay and poultry manure. Free samples of pelleted poultry manure will be given away.

Brood mares being fed on pelleted hay will also be on exhibit along with the feeding results to date.

On the growing and green side of Farm Field Day there is a wide variety of experimental plots to be visited on the bus tours. Research scientists will be on hand at their plots to explain and discuss their work and its practical application.

Many vegetable and soybean farmers will be interested in the root-nematode control testing plots. Tomatoes, strawberries and soybean plots have been treated with fumigants to test their effectiveness. Several farmers have brought nematode damaged plants into the Substation recently.

Tomato growers will be particularly interested in the tomato variety trials and especially the two varieties being tested for mechanical picking.

Both home gardeners and commercial orchard men will want to see the fruit variety tests and the work being done with grafting on dwarf rootstocks.

Homemakers will have a special program in the substation's new kitchen. "Do-it-yourself" creativity will be the theme with demonstrations on making gifts from inexpensive and available materials.

Another item of interest to those farmers' wives who carry the responsibility for the lawn, is the lawn mixture plots next to the grove where the main program will be held. These plots have examples of four different lawn mixtures.

Poultrymen will be offered reports on several research studies on feeder space, litter materials, and vaccine evaluation. The litter study is designed to compare peanut hulls, stazdry fine corn cobs, peat moss and wood chips.

Commercial nurserymen will be interested in the nutrition experiment plots on woody ornamentals. Taxus, azela, holly, arbutus and Eucalyptus are being tested under a variety of irrigation, fertilization and chemical weed control situations.

An experiment of interest to lima bean growers is one comparing row seeding with drilled in lima beans. With chemical weed control it may become possible to drill lima beans with a grain drill. This test will indicate whether or not limas will yield as well or better than row beans.

The weed control tests on direct seeded peppers is also important to vegetable men. Several herbicides are being tested to see how they effect the weeds and the peppers at various rates of application.

The weed control plots on soybeans also show some interesting results. Several pre-emergence weed control chemicals are being tested at different rates. Soybeans show wide variations as a result of the different treatments.

Many other plots will be open for examination in all aspects of agriculture.

So come out and get some fried chicken, free watermelon and some of the latest information on crop production.

Beaches Have Special Appeal To Youth

While Delaware's vacation havens—Lewes, Rehoboth Beach, Dewey Beach, Bethany Beach and Fenwick Island—offer pleasure—in a variety of forms—for all age groups, it's the younger set and the senior citizens who perhaps find greatest enjoyment there.

Man and nature have, according to the state information agency, combined forces to make the twenty some mile stretch of sand paralleling Atlantic Ocean and inland bays an area that can—and does—provide pleasure, relaxation, fun, for all ages.

Wide and sturdy boardwalks are available at Rehoboth Beach and Bethany Beach for those who like to stroll, and, while the boardwalk at Rehoboth Beach offers some of the amusement, snack and novelty stands found at other larger coastal resorts, it is pretty much devoid of the blaring noise and glaring lights generally found in other areas.

It is this peace and quiet at night that serves to attract older vacationists and, to some extent, the parents of small children for here is the opportunity for needed relaxation and rest.

However, young folks still find much to do on sunny summer days and the pleasant evenings that accompany them. For the teenagers, the twelve-to-twenty group, generally recognizable by their faded blue jeans, T-shirts and school sweaters, there's laughter—and excitement.

And, there's dancing with that "special person" to that "special tune" at the increasingly popular Boardwalk Teen Hops, held each Wednesday on a roped off section of concrete boardwalk at the eastern end of Rehoboth Beach's "Main Dra", Rehoboth Avenue. Dancing from 7:30 to 10:30, is generally to recorded music although on occasions live music is provided.

For the smaller but equally active members of the "sand bucket set", there's sand and water with which little hands mold forts and castles that only too quickly are crumbled and swallowed up by the rising tide. There's mysteries to be fathomed and discoveries to be made. And at Rehoboth Beach there's a youth center with merry-go-round, racing cars, miniature trains and all the other devices that thrill the very young.

There's fun in the sun for everyone at the Delaware beaches, reminds the Development Department.

The Rev. J. Thomas Churn's Sunday morning sermon was "Resources for Christian Living—Prayer." Miss Dorothy Warren was organist for the service. Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Warner were the Sunday morning greeters. Mrs. Elizabeth Owens is a patient in the Milford Memorial Hospital, Milford, for observation and we hope she is soon home.

Fishing Lines

Kingfish and blue have now worked their way inshore and are awaiting shedder crab, shrimp and squid baits to be cast in their direction. The surf fishing season has been exceptionally late because of the lack of trout which usually provide these fishermen with a great deal of sport.

Finding the proper spot along the ocean shore is one of the secrets of successful surf fishing. Sandbars and shoals often develop along the shore, and between these areas there are stretches of deeper water which either parallel the beach or run perpendicular to it.

Surf fishing equipment consists of the long casting rod made of either bamboo or fiberglass with a casting reel. Many fishermen are now using the spinning surf since great distances can be obtained in casting with less chance of back-lashes.

Porpoises Sighted in Big Schools Recently a very large school of porpoise was sighted in the Delaware Bay area. This speedy animal has apparently been scarce this season because of the lack of food fish.

Bay Fishing Improving Delaware Bay is at last providing anglers with some good fishing. At present, it is the only local area in which flounder are being taken in any substantial numbers.

Fresh Water Fishing Bass and pickerel fishing continues to be good in Delaware's inland waters—especially in the southern part of the state. Pan fish (bluegills and crappies) are always abundant and have been providing plenty of excitement for fly rod fishermen.

Mildew Menace During Warm Humid Weather "Mildew is a menace during warm humid weather. It grows on just about everything. Cotton, linen, rayon, silk, wool, leather, wood, and paper are all possible mildew victims."

Preventive treatment can do a great deal to retard mildew growth, declares Miss Middleton. Good ventilation is imperative. Air the house only when outside air is cooler than inside air. Warm air will condense leaving more moisture in than it will take out.

Check for Poultry Parasites

Summer time is the season when external parasites multiply most rapidly. This is the season when poultrymen are usually the busiest with other jobs on the farm and the little things are often being neglected.

Checking some sample birds in the laying flock to detect the presence of external parasites should be a weekly chore says Ray Lloyd, Extension Poultryman, University of Delaware. These little "varmints" can only be seen by close observation of the birds.

The two most serious external parasites are poultry lice and poultry mites. It may be a good idea to examine the birds at night as some mites leave the birds in the daytime and hide in cracks of the building.

Check for parasites regularly, and if found take the necessary steps to get rid of them, says the specialist. They cause birds to lose weight, reduce egg production 10 to 20 percent and may even cause mortality.

Summer Language Institute at U. of D.

The concern of the national government for improved relationships with the people of other lands is being evidenced in 37 language institutes being held this summer throughout the nation.

Although the university has offered summer language programs before, 1960 marks the first year with government support which enables participants to enroll without financial hardship.

Already some of the participants have confessed that they have never worked so hard. Concentration does not end in the classroom, for language sections have been established in the dormitories and language tables are the rule in the dining hall.

Learning to Drive Lifetime Job Says Motor Club Manager

"Learning how to drive is not a five-easy-lessons proposition—it's a lifetime job!"

That point was made today by William P. Markland, manager of the Delaware Motor Club, AAA, and Charles W. Lawson, executive secretary of the Delaware Automobile Association in connection with the "Slow Down and Live" campaign of the Delaware Safety Council.

Mr. Markland and Mr. Lawson, both directors of the Safety Council, pointed out that the past decade has seen marked strides forward in automobile design and production, with the result that modern automobiles are faster and more powerful—and more numerous—than ever before.

"But the increased speed, power and traffic density require more control and greater skill in driving," the two auto club officials said.

Urging all motorists to keep up to date in their driving habits, they said that many drivers on our highways today are still using driving techniques as obsolete as the out-dated model in which they first learned.

"A motorist has to be alert to rapid developments in our highway system, too, especially with so many superhighways springing up over the country," the two men said.

"These smooth ribbon-like roads cutting across mountain and valley from one end of the country to the other are beautiful to drive on, but driving a modern high-powered car on them requires control, precision and highly developed driving skills," Mr. Markland and Mr. Lawson said. Pointing out that the comfort and ease of driving today has a dangerous tendency to dull the alertness of the driver to the increased dangers of modern traffic, they cautioned all motorists, especially those on vacation trips, to drive safely, to keep alert at all times, and to shun speed.

"A good motto for every motorist to heed," they concluded is "Drive to Arrive Alive—Slow Down and Live."

Upholstery Fabrics, Durability or Effect?

"Durability or effect, which do you prefer when choosing an upholstery fabric for that new chair?" asks Miss Patricia Middleton, home management specialist, University of Delaware.

Budget minded families can get high quality, low cost upholstery fabrics for their chairs and sofas. Tightly woven, heavy fabrics or vinyl upholstery can take those big-family battle scars.

Fragile, delicately colored upholstery fabrics are not designed for tough treatment. They are intended for families concerned more with effect than durability.

"Which fabrics are durable? How can I tell?" asks the shopper. Ask to see the available swatches. Hold them to the light. Stretch them diagonally. Look for thickness of threads and tightness of weave.

The shopper may have to judge a fabric already on a chair or sofa. To determine thread thickness and closeness of the weave, rub your fingertips over the fabric.

"Cat lovers should stay away from lubby textured fabrics," warns Miss Middleton. Claws will do great damage to long, looped threads.

Consider your families needs. Decide which it's to be, durability or effect. Shop accordingly.

State Has Many Aircraft... Although Delaware had only 228 civil aircraft registered in 1959 with the Federal Aviation Agency, the First State stands second among the fifty states in "density of aircraft per 1000 sq. miles" reports the Delaware State Development Department.

Basing its findings on the recently released annual report of the F.F.A., the state information agency advises that last year Delaware had 110.8 aircraft per 1000 square miles of area making it second only to New Jersey which had 162.6 aircraft for each 1000 square miles of its area.

Delaware's 228 civil aircraft included only 7 owned by air carriers, the other being private craft, owned by individuals or companies. The 1959 total included 35 multi-engine craft, and 86 single-engine craft seating four or more passengers. The remaining 100 seated three or less.

The state-based planes and visiting aircraft used the facilities of Delaware's 18 airports, 11 of which are for general use and 7 are for private or restricted use.

Ft. Delaware Dungeon Doors Put in Place

Two more original dungeon doors to old Ft. Delaware have been acquired and returned to their rightful place it was announced this week by Fort Delaware officials.

Just two months ago the Society was able to secure a well preserved door which came as a gift from Mrs. William R. Maris of Santa Barbara, Calif. It has been a prime exhibit at the fort museum which is open to the public each Saturday and Sunday from noon until 7 p.m.

Col. W. S. Corkran, well known as the developer of Henlopen Acres, Rehoboth Beach, read about the Society's interest in securing objects which once belonged to Ft. Delaware, and which, over the years when it was federal property were dissipated in many directions by vandals or souvenir hunters.

Col. Corkran served with the Delaware National Guard and recalls that he had duty on Pea Patch Island as far back as 1906 when he became intimately acquainted with the historical spot.

Known to have an interest in things historical, he recalled that in 1931 some boatmen came to him and offered him the two doors which they claimed they found floating in the Delaware River.

From their condition, it was deduced that vandals or scavengers had removed the bronze bars from one door and stripped most of the metal from both and then threw them into the river. One of the doors is solid oak and had no bars attached.

Col. Corkran said he stored the doors away, feeling that a time would come when they could be returned to their proper place.

"I have been reading about the Fort Delaware Society and the interest you folks have taken in establishing a museum there," Col. Corkran told Miles L. Frederick, president of the Fort Delaware Society, "and I believed the time had come for the doors to be returned."

Col. Corkran notified Society officials that he was ready to relinquish them, and upon notification that they would be acceptable to the Delaware State Park Commission, which administered Fort Delaware as a state park, arrangements were made for their return.

Through the good offices of Frank J. Harty, general manager of Delaware Memorial Bridge, a pickup truck was dispatched to Rehoboth. The doors were officially turned over to the Fort Delaware Society and they may now be viewed by visitors along with the one returned from California.

The condition of the wood in the door—which is bare of bars—is poor. Evidently having been waterlogged for some time before it was brought ashore by the boatmen, and then remaining in storage so long has had a telling effect. However, with proper care, it will most likely remain in the fort museum as a prized memento for a long time to come.

Many visitors from nearby states come to the fort in their own boats, which they moor near the pier on the Delaware side before inspecting the island. Those wanting transportation can find it at a Delaware City pier each weekend. Round-trip transportation is $1, with children under 12 years going for half price. There is no admission charge to the fort or island itself.

Take Safety on Your Vacation
Planning to take the family on a vacation trip in the car? Here are some suggestions for a pleasant and safe trip from County Home Demonstration Agent, Florence Y. Smith:

If possible, leave early—you'll find traffic lighter and it'll be cooler, too. While you're still fresh, you can put on a lot of miles. Then during the heat of the day, you can take it easier. Stop often when the weather is hot. One way to cool off is to park the car in a shaded spot and walk around a bit. When you get on the road again, you'll be more refreshed, more alert, and more relaxed.

To make traveling more enjoyable for each member of the family, take surprise packages along for the children. Some new toys can keep them interested for miles.

Never drive when you're tired or feel drowsy. Pull completely off the road and rest—or let someone else take the wheel.

Veterans News

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Q—Is VA issuing any new insurance? I have a $5000 policy I took out after service in Korea and am wondering if I can increase it.

A—If you were in service on or after April 25, 1951, and the VA finds you have a service-connected disability, you may, within one year from the time VA rates your disability service-connected, apply for an increase in your insurance up to $10,000, or a new policy if you were never issued one. Otherwise, no new GI life insurance can be issued by VA.

Q—Please explain the provisions of the new pension law as they affect my eligibility to receive pension. I am the widow of a veteran of the Korean War.

A—Formerly, as the widow of a Korea veteran, you had to show that your husband had a service-connected disability at time of death. You don't have to do that now. You need only show he had the required length of service, a discharge other than dishonorable, and that your income is within stated legal limits.

Q—When does the Korean GI training program come to an end?
A—January 31, 1965. Meanwhile, Korean veterans have three years from the date of their discharge to begin GI training, and eight years from time of discharge to complete training. But no training may be taken after the January, 1965, cut-off date.

Q—When I took out my GI insurance I named as beneficiary a relative who has since died. I want to put down my wife's name now, since I recently married. What procedures do I have to follow?

A—Changing your beneficiary is extremely simple. Just go to any VA office, get a change-of-beneficiary form, fill it out and send it in. VA will do the rest for you.

Fair Ends Tomorrow Night

At least 10,000 children were on hand Tuesday when the 41st Kent and Sussex Fair marked "Children's Day." The Fair ends tomorrow night.

T. Brinton Holloway, executive secretary of the association, said an estimated 4,000 adults also attended the fair. He said it was the largest turnout of youngsters in the 12 years he has been associated with the fair.

"Lost" children kept the paging system busy, officials said.

Fair Ends Tomorrow Night

Clay Culhane, star of the TV western "Black Saddle," provided thrills for the children in the afternoon entertainment.

A Delaware State Police barracks established at the grounds is staffed by a team of 10 men. Mr. Holloway praised the work of the troopers in numerous duties at the location.

A special fireworks display climaxes the daily programs at 10:15 p.m. Those given Monday night featured the GOP elephant and a Democratic donkey.

Alice Lon, former singing star of the Lawrence Welk television show, and better known as the original "Champagne Lady," headlined the entertainment Wednesday evening after the show was delayed by rain.

The fair will continue through Saturday. Sprint car racing will feature the track program in the afternoon of the final day. Billed as the entertainer Saturday night is Conway Twitty, recording star and TV entertainer.
