

TRUCK TIPS OVER TO AVOID HITTING CAR PASSENGERS

Lady Luck rode Route 13 near Harrington Wednesday, but a quick-thinking truck driver helped too.

It was Lady Luck that slowed down two vehicles just long enough to prevent serious injury to a mother and her two daughters as well as the truck driver, Bill Ruark of Salisbury, Md.

Ruark, 29, was driving at 45 miles an hour, state police said, when a passenger car attempting to pass him suddenly veered into his tractor-trailer. The impact catapulted two young girls onto the road in the path of the heavy wheels of Ruark's peach laden truck.

Instantly Ruark cut his wheels sharply to the left and rolled his truck over rather than risk striking the girls.

Ruark missed the girls, demolished the truck and its cargo but escaped virtually unscathed.

The girls were Gloria and Sheila Schriber, 13 and 16 respectively. They were riding with their mother, Mrs. Mary M. Schriber, 36, of Greensboro, Md. The daughters suffered abrasions of the head, arms, legs and body. The mother was unhurt. She had regained control of her car and steered it into the parkway separating the north and south bound lanes of U. S. Route 13 at a point 2.3 miles south of Harrington.

The Schriebers were taken to Milford Hospital, treated and released. Ruark was treated for minor bruises at the scene.

Mrs. Schriber later was fined $10 and costs by Felton Magistrate Elmer Poynter after state police charged her with improper passing and cutting another vehicle off.

Mrs. Schriber at the time of the collision, police said, was traveling between 55 and 60 miles an hour in an effort to pass Ruark.

She thought she had cleared Ruark's truck when she heard a noise, she told state troopers. Thinking something happened to her car she pulled to the right, she said. The collision occurred. Her car came to a stop right-side up in the parkway.

State police credited Ruark with deliberately steering his vehicle off the road to save the lives of the two girls.

Curbing Program Well Under Way

The curbing of Second Avenue is expected to be completed this week, City Manager George Graham said Wednesday, with completion of Reese Avenue and the curbing of Smith Avenue, in its entirety, expected to follow.

Contractors have been contacted for bids for resurfacing these streets.

The City has been mowing lots and it is estimated the work will be completed this week, Graham explained. This work, on private lots, will be paid for by the owner.

Mills Brothers Circus Sponsored by Rotary, To Show Here Thurs., Sept. 1

The "Call of the Calliope", those unmistakable and nostalgic notes heralding the arrival of the world's largest motorized circus will be heard Thurs., Sept. 1st.

Mills Bros. 3-ring circus comes to Harrington for one day only for 2 and 8 p. m. performances under the big top at the Fairgrounds.

The Harrington Rotary is sponsoring the gigantic canvas extravaganza to aid in raising money for its Scholarship Foundation.

Hundreds of youngsters who would not be able to thrill to a major three-ring circus will be on-hand at the matinee as guests of businessmen and firms who purchased tickets for them.

A gaily-painted fleet of nearly 100 motorized units rolls into town soon after dawn Thursday morning bringing a herd of elephants, troupe of nearly 500 persons from 18 nations, dancing horses, trained animals, tons of props and all the traditional spangled wonders that make "circus" a word of magic.

Early morning spectators will watch in awe as huge elephants join in hoisting heavy poles and canvas into position. Workmen will erect grandstands, bleachers, hang aerial rigging and do a thousand chores to change the grounds into a sawdust fairy-

K. & S. Racing Officials Getting Set For Meet

Officials of the Kent and Sussex Raceway at Harrington, are busy as the proverbial bees these days making final preparations for the 30-night harness meet which will open Sept. 15.

T. Brinton Holloway, general manager, said this week that indications are that during the coming meet more fans will watch more horses race for more purses than ever before at the Harrington oval.

Last year, which saw the Kent and Sussex Raceway meet extended to 30 nights, attendance at the track was almost 90,000 persons. Total purses amounted to almost $200,000.

While only a few horses are on hand as yet, Mr. Holloway said, reservations are being received daily from owners as far away as Hinsdale, N. H., Saratoga and Vernon Downs in New York.

For the first time race viewers will have available the track's new 300-patron restaurant located just to the rear of the grandstand. Built at a cost of about $80,000 the new facility was used for the first time during the recent Kent and Sussex Fair.

The new restaurant is part of an improvement program which has seen the spending of $80,000 in grandstand improvements and an extensive rebuilding of the race strip.

The grandstand improvements, made last year, provide an additional 35 pari-mutuel windows, including 20 sellers and 15 cashiers. This brings the total of pari-mutuel windows to 71.

Harrington High School football practice will be held at the school on Sept. 27 and 28.

Wm. A. Smith, head football coach at Harrington High School, has issued the first call for candidates for this year's team. The first session will be Monday evening at 6 p. m. and will be limited to members of last year's varsity.

Anyone who was issued a blue and gold uniform last year is in this group. Tuesday evening at 6 p. m. all other candidates are requested to report. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 6 p. m. everyone will practice. The first three drill will be in shorts and gym shoes.

There will be no practice over Labor Day weekend but the aspirants will rehearse again at 2 p. m. Wednesday, Sept. 7th and regularly thereafter each afternoon after school.

Permission slips to be signed by parents will be made available.

Arrangements are being made for insurance for football players and physical examinations will be made by Dr. Hewitt Smith beginning at 11 a. m. Wednesday, Sept. 7th in the high school field house.

C. W. HOPKINS DIES SUDDENLY

Charles W. Hopkins, 66, 210 Hanley Street, died suddenly Saturday night at his home. He was a city councilman.

A native of near Harrington, son of the late Walter E. and Addie Smith Hopkins, he was the husband of M. Louise Adams Hopkins and is survived also by a sister, Mrs. Amy Grauer, Philadelphia.

A block operator of the Chesapeake Region of the Pennsylvania Railroad, he retired on April 30 after 44 years with the railroad.

Mr. Hopkins was a director of the Kent and Sussex Fair, and served on the local council body from the sixth ward. He was a member of Harrington Fire Company, was an ardent Democrat and served as committeeman from the Ninth District of Kent County. He was a member of the Kent County Election Board at Dover.

Services were held Tuesday at 2 p. m. from the Boyer Funeral Home. The Rev. Nelson Benjamin, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, assisted by the Rev. Milton Elliott, of Deal's Island, a former pastor, here, officiated. Interment was in the Hollywood Cemetery.

Century Club Committees Are Announced

Though the time for the first meeting of the Harrington New Century Club is over a month away, Mrs. Charles Peck, Jr., has announced that the committees in charge of the various club activities are already at work.

The program committees has been working during the summer to assure the members of a varied and interesting year of meetings. The first meeting will be in the form of a covered dish luncheon at the club house, Tues., Oct. 11.

The Ways and Means Committee have also been gathering ideas for new and different ways to raise money. Their first activity will be a rummage sale Friday and Saturday, Oct. 21 and 22. Mrs. Francis Winkler, chairman, has asked that all members begin now to save their articles of clothing, etc. for these dates. Anyone who wishes to have the items collected may call her and she will pick them up.

Will Accept GOP Senate Nomination If Offered—Boggs

Gov. J. Caleb Boggs said Wednesday night that he will accept the Republican nomination for U. S. senator.

But he will make no announcement that he is seeking the nomination, said the Governor.

Governor Boggs' record as a five-time winner, non-loser in statewide elections is Delaware's best.

"Whatever the party wants—that's what I'll do. I'll support the nominees of the Republican State Convention," said Mr. Boggs.

"Suppose," he was asked, "the nominee for the U. S. Senate is you?"

Governor Boggs said "I will accept and do the best I can to win."

The Governor's remarks removed the limbo of gossip reports that he was ready to close his public career.

They also confirmed what his close friends have been saying for some time—that the Governor had made up his mind to run.

"I don't plan any announcement. I don't think I have been in the habit of making announcements in the past," said the Governor.

Upper Nanticoke Watershed Sees Drainage Work

Three earth-gobbling drag-line machines are gouging the earth east of Bridgeville, digging the ditches which will both drain water and prevent floods in the Upper Nanticoke River Watershed.

Work on the $6,061,876 project, which will be paid for by federal, state and private funds began last February and completion is expected in 10 years.

In the scope of the plan are approximately 187 square miles, or 119,775 acres, in upper Sussex.

SWIMMING POOL—The American Legion has begun the construction of a swimming pool at the post home on U.S. 13. The pool will be on the south side of the building. The blocks shown are those for the filtering system.

LEGION BREAKS GROUND FOR POOL, TO BE READY IN ABOUT 3 WEEKS

Ground has been broken for a swimming pool at Callaway-Kemp-Rauhley-Tea Post No. 7, American Legion, on U. S. 13, with completion of the project expected in about three weeks, in time for a few dips before cold weather.

In its regular meeting Thursday night, Aug. 18, agreed to give $5 to The Children's Bureau of Delaware and also $5 to the Delaware Foundation for Retarded Children.

Membership dues, for 1961, are due now and members are requested to get in touch with Robert Jester, Harold Melvin, or Leonard Horleman. Dues are $5.

The Legion would also like to remind the public to display the Flag on holidays. The 48-star or 49-star Flag can be used until it is worn or soiled.

Post meetings are held the first and third Thursdays of each month in the clubroom at the post home.

Any veteran of the armed forces, who would like to join the post, will be welcome any meeting night to see how the meetings are conducted and the post operated.

Delegates Battles Settled In Saturday's Primary

In Kent County, Democrats settled intra-party factional fights in five delegate contests at the primary Saturday. "Most, if not all" of the Kent delegates will be for Carvel, said Vernon B. Derrickson, Kent County Democratic chairman.

In a three-way contest for two Republican delegates seats in the first district of the Fifth Representative District, Mrs. Phyllis R. Horsey and Ralph R. Tischer were the winners and James P. Muir the also-ran. Mrs. Horsey polled 96 votes and Tischer 79. Muir was only seven votes behind at 72.

Muir had announced previously his support for John W. Rollins for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Buckson forces count Mrs. Horsey and Tischer in their camp.

Harold Remley, who said he was "harrassed" by Buckson supporters because he maintained a neutral stand between Buckson and Rollins, lost by seven votes in the first district of the Second Representative District. William J. Short won with 39 votes to Remley's 32. The small district has 149 registered Republicans.

The most hectic battleground was the Fourth Representative District (Hartly area) where 12 candidates vied for six delegate positions. Eleven candidates were listed in the alternates contest.

Successful in the delegates race were: Clifton R. Thompson (314), Harold W. Powell (309), William H. Draper, Jr. (303), Elmer C. Lutton (288) and J. (303), Gooden Darling (289), Morton Melvin (278).

Also running were: James G. McCrystal (254), Irving Garton (232), Addie Hufnal (211), Frederick M. Hubbard (207), Gustave Richardson (206), and Betty Rosengren (193).

Elected alternates in the Fourth were: Roland Carter (383), Carlton H. Sylvester (300), Nellie Craig (286), Francis L. Welch (280), Charles E. Hartnett (276), and Frances G. Crozier (269).

Failing in bids for alternates positions were E. Wallace Stafford (231), Mary Williams (230), Norval Rose (209), Carrie Sue Austin (200) and Wenzel Walischek (196).

In the first district of the Ninth Representative District the delegates chosen were: George S. Graham, Sr. (359), Benjamin Hughes, Jr. (327), and Leonard Taylor (272).

Losing candidates for these delegates seats included: Franklin H. Hendricks (266), Earl Sylvester (248), Clarence Rash (235), and Fount Billings (35).

Alternates from this district are: F. Lawrence Price (394), Merritt Camper (317) and Cora Bailey (276). Unsuccessful as alternates candidates were: Clarence Dyer (242), Benjamin Henry Kates (235), and Kenneth Aikens (233).

In the race for nomination from the Fourth Senatorial District, in Saturday's Democratic primary election, Leon E. Donovan topped George W. Cain. In the race for representative, in the Ninth Representative District, George H. Exley topped Charles L. Peck Jr.

Donovan tallied 917 votes to Cain's 586, while Exley polled 625 votes, to 417 for Peck.

These victories, with several others, were staged by the Frontier Democrats, an insurgent group opposing the organization.

There were no Republican contests in this area.

In the county, as a whole, Vernon B. Derrickson, Democratic county chairman, said nearly 4000 Democrats voted and called it a good turn-out.

The Democrats had 11 contests for county and General Assembly offices to settle as well as five fights for delegates to this week's state convention.

Republicans decided on their candidate from the Fifth Representative District, plus delegates from two districts.

Although the three Republican contests were closely watched, it was the voters' decisions among the Democrats which held the spotlight. Democratic nomination for county office means the candidate can almost county on election in November. No Republicans now hold elected county office.

Prime attraction among the Democratic contests was the Second Senatorial District fight between Senator Allen J. Cook, Kenton, president pro tem of the Senate, and Nelson Massey, West Dover. In what was expected to be a very close contest Cook won by 225 votes, 709 to 484.

Two incumbents were defeated in close races for the comptroller and register of wills nominations.

Harry S. Hanson, incumbent comptroller, Harrington, lost to Raymond Welch, Sr., Samuel S. Messick who was also-ran in this three-corner contest. Welch received 1498 votes, Hanson 1478, and Messick 1144.

H. Clifford Clark edged out incumbent Clarence E. Dixon for the register of wills nomination by 62 votes, 2060 to 1998.

Frank R. Hayes, Dover, won by a 2-1 margin over Emory N. Lynch, Jr., near Milford, in the prothonotary race. Hayes received 2599 votes and Lynch 1321 votes.

William T. James, Dover, who is now deputy sheriff, won the nomination for sheriff easily in his contest with Wilburn L. Meeks, near Dover. James tallied 3289 votes to Meeks' 685. James led the Democratic ticket.

J. Wesley Walls, Sr., the present sheriff, was not a candidate for re-election.

Walter Paskey, Harrington, received 1252 votes to George B. Vincent's 1082 in the contest for nomination for the Second District Levy Court seat. Vincent is also from Harrington.

There were our contests for nominations from representative districts. Glenn W. Busker won in the First, beating George D. Whaley 393 to 348.

Carl F. Prettyman came out first in a four-cornered race for the Third District nomination. He received 204 votes, while G. Francis Downs polled 171, Arnold Long 123, and C. Stanley Short, Sr. 39.

William W. Opydye Jr., incumbent representative in the Fourth, stood off a strong challenge from Leonard A. Covell. Opydye had 346 votes to 303 for Covell.

On the Republican side, Rep. Charles P. Richards, incumbent, minority floor leader of the House of Representatives, won renomination for a third term in the Fifth District.

He defeated one of the best-known Republican women in the state, Mrs. Vera G. Davis, who in the past has been state treasurer, representative, and as a state senator, president pro tem of the Senate, only woman in Delaware history to hold that post.

Richards polled 304 votes to Mrs. Davis' 220. He received 80 votes in the first district of the Fifth 72 in the second district, and 152 in the third district.

Mrs. Davis polled 50 votes in the first of the Fifth 72 in the second district, and 152 in the third district.

The Richards-Davis struggle held top interest in the state capital, which usually sends a Republican to the House of Representatives. Most of Dover is included in the Fifth District.

Ever Ready Class to Sponsor Flower Show

Again the Ever Ready Class of Asbury Church School will sponsor its Flower Show for the twenty third year. On Monday evening, Mrs. Fred B. Greenly, president of the class, entertained the chairmen of committees for the show at her home on Dorman Street. This year the show will feature not only flowers, but vegetables as well; and hobbies and antiques will be displayed in the class rooms adjacent to the auditorium of Collins Hall of Asbury Church. The date will be September 14, and as usual every one in the community is asked to bring exhibits of any or all kinds. Doors will be open at 7:00 P. M., and at 8:15 awards will be presented to the man, the woman, the boy, and the girl who has the most "blue ribbons", followed by a short program. The class will present the entire net proceeds to the reduction of the church debt.

The following ladies are chairmen of the various committees:

Classification and Entries — Mrs. Elmer Smith, Mrs. Preston Anthony and Mrs. Roy Porter.

Arrangements—Mrs. Clarence Kemp and Mrs. Samuel Raughley.

Judges—Mrs. Clarence Raughley.

Variety and City Table—Mrs. George W. Hansen, Mrs. Wallace Hanson, Mrs. H. C. Austin, and Mrs. W. R. Massey.

Hobbies and Antiques—Mrs. Howard Cooper, Mrs. Oscar Gillette and Mrs. Fred B. Greenly.

Ice Cream—Mrs. Clarence Jarrell.

Cakes—Mrs. J. A. Masten and Mrs. P. C. Harrington.

Tables—Mrs. W. Carroll Welch and Mrs. Samuel Raughley.

Program and Publicity—Mrs. W. W. Sharp.

A free will offering will be received in the vestibule of Collins Hall. Further announcement will be made in the issue of this paper prior to the date set for the show.

Golf In Full Swing At Shawnee C. C.

The golf season is in full swing at the Shawnee Country Club in Milford. The course has been put in excellent condition by Club Professional Hiram Taylor since it was opened on May 30.

The Club championship rounds are now under way with several interesting matches due this weekend.

Last weekend, in the Championship fight, Bob Hock defeated L. McGee 2 and 1. Ken Furnish defeated Wilmer Johnson 2 and 1 and Bill Nauman defeated local golfer Bill Smith 5 and 4.

In the third flight, Hayward Quillen, another Harrington entry defeated J. Baynum in a touch and go match that went 20 holes. Tom Clendening, local pharmacist was defeated by Henry Saunders in a first flight match 6 and 5. In a third flight match Geo. French defeated Frank Lynch 5 and 4 to go into the final in that flight.

Much interest will be centered on a Championship Flight round between Bob Hock and Ken Furnish to decide which of these two excellent golfers will go into the final in the top flight.

COSTUMES OF DAYS GONE BY—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Moore and their daughter, Mrs. Cliff Chambers, of Felton, garbed in costumes of the past century as part of the celebration of the 100th anniversary of Felton Methodist Church.

THE LIBERTY HORSES, one of the feature acts at Mills Bros. 3-ring Circus, coming to Harrington on Thurs., Sept. 1 for two performances at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m., is one of the traditional circus favorites which will perform. Sponsored by Harrington Rotary Club, proceeds go for the Scholarship Fund.

Delaware Artists Invited to Design '62 Christmas Seal

An invitation to design the 1962 Christmas Seal was extended to Delaware artists today by G. Taggart Evans, executive secretary of the Delaware Tuberculosis and Health Society.

"The last artist from our state to originate a Christmas Seal design was Howard Pyle," Mr. Evans said. "The first Delawarean to design the seal was Miss Emily P. Bissell in 1907."

Miss Bissell, of course, introduced the Christmas Seal to the nation as a weapon to fight tuberculosis. The distinguished Delawarean designed the first seal and placed it on sale in the Wilmington Post Office.

Now, more than half a century later, artists throughout the nation annually submit designs for the Christmas Seal. A $500 award is offered to the artist whose design is selected.

Delaware artists interested in creating seal designs are asked to write to the Delaware Tuberculosis and Health Society, 1308 Delaware Avenue, Wilmington, for detailed information.

All designs must include the double-barred cross, trademark of the National Tuberculosis Association. Colors and copy must be appropriate to the season.

Two years ago a design by a Delaware artist was selected as one of the 10 best designs submitted that year. Walt Stan, 112 Waverly Road, Fairfax, received a certificate of merit for his design incorporating the entire family in a double seal. He carried out the Christmas theme with gifts, ear muffs, fur trim, Christmas trees and sprigs of holly. Across the bottom was the inscription, "Christmas Greetings".

From 1907 through 1918 the Red Cross was included in the design of the Christmas Seal. In 1919 the double-barred cross and the Red Cross were both incorporated in the seal. Since 1920 the Christmas Seal has carried only the double-barred cross.

Many eminent artists have contributed to the progress of the Christmas Seal campaigns by designing seals which conveyed the spirit of this nationwide endeavor to wipe out a tragic disease. The list includes Howard Pyle, Ben Nash, Thomas M. Cleland, Rudolph Ruzicka, Ernest Hamlin Baker, Stevent Dohanos, Dale Nichola, Andre Dugo and Elmer Jacobs.

The Christmas seal is an American tradition. Through the years the annual Christmas Seal campaign has grown in strength. At present approximately $26 million is being contributed each year by the people of this country to support the work of more than 3000 state and local tuberculosis associations affiliated with the National Tuberculosis Association. Funds raised now through the Christmas Seal campaign make possible the extensive program of health education, case finding, community organization, patient services, and medical and social research sponsored by the voluntary tuberculosis associations.

Methodist Church To Celebrate 171st Anniversary

Several hundred visitors are expected to be in attendance at the 171st anniversary celebration of Old Union Methodist Church near Blackbird, Sun., Sept. 11, according to John G. Leach of Wilmington, president of the Old Union Church Society.

"The Trustees and officers wish to extend a very cordial invitation to residents of the Delmarva Peninsula to attend these services, which are held once a year in the historic old church," Mr. Leach announced.

Services are scheduled for 10:30 and 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., with the Rev. Larry S. Renner of Townsend officiating. Special music will be furnished throughout the day by the Townsend and Blackbird Church choirs. Miss Ethelwyn J. Maloney is music chairman and John Dickinson will direct the choir.

Old Union is one of the early landmarks of Methodism in the United States, having been founded in 1789, the same year as the adoption of the constitution of the United States.

During its history, the church congregation has numbered hundreds of members of families in the Delmarva and Eastern Shore area. Among its most notable members was Levi Scott who became a bishop of the church and one of the leading church scholars and authors of his day.

The church was closed about 35 years ago and the Old Union Church Society organized to maintain the historic edifice.

Meat Supply On The Increase

During the last quarter century, farmers have increased U. S. meat supplies at a greater rate than the rate of population growth, according to a U. S. Department of Agriculture study. Per capita consumption of meat today is about the same as it was 50 years ago, but much higher than in the mid-1930's the study shows. Meat consumption has increased since the 1930's concurrently with rising consumption of dairy products, eggs, poultry, and processed fruits and vegetables.

Ocean Swim Races This Weekend

Postponed from last week due to the threat of rough seas posed by Storm Cleo, the Atlantic Ocean Swim Races, an annual late summer attraction at Rehoboth Beach, have been re-scheduled for this Friday and Saturday, August 26-27, according to announcement by Col. C. B. Shaffer, secretary of the sponsoring Rehoboth Recreation Club.

Always eagerly awaited by those interested in competitive aquatic sports, the Ocean Swim Races involve South Atlantic AAU and Delaware State Championships, and usually attract a star-studded field of former Olympics competitors, college and club swimmers, and holders of national and regional swim titles as contestants.

According to Col. Shaffer, the ten-race card will remain intact with six SAA-AAU championship events, 220-440-880 yard races for women and similar distanced events for men, comprising the first day program, which will begin at 1 p.m., Friday.

Saturday's program, which will get underway at 2 p.m., will include two 880-yard events, one for men and one for women, open only to Delaware residents and involving state championship honors. Also featured on the final day's program are mile races, for men and women, the winners of which will be recognized as South Atlantic AAU champions. Additional information concerning the Swim Races may be obtained from Col. Shaffer, at Rehoboth 7273.

New Navy Re-enlistment Opportunities

Many Navy men coming up for re-enlistment will now have four years instead of two to re-enlist at their former ratings. Chief Petty Officer J. T. Filip announced that 87 per cent of ratings in both regular Navy and the Naval reserves have this opportunity available.

Reason for the new procedure is high turnover of trained men and the fact that men who enlisted at the beginning of World War II are now retiring, causing a shortage of experienced men.

For men already in the service a selective training and retention program, dubbed the STAR, is in effect. The benefits from this are:

Guaranteed schooling in Class A, B, or in some cases C schools. Promotions, without service-wide exam competition, to some Class A school graduates and to all third class Class B school graduates who enter classes from this program.

Ex-veterans should look into these opportunities by contacting the Navy Recruiter at the Dover City Police Station.

Chief Filip makes weekly visits to the Harrington Post Office every Monday from 1 to 2 p.m.

RICHARD SIMPSON

4-H's Attend Camp Miniwanca

"Joyce Warrington, Bridgeville, and Richard Simpson, Hous-ton, have been awarded 4-H scholarships to represent Delaware 4-Hers at Camp Miniwanca in Michigan this month," according to Dr. Samuel Gwinn, Assistant director, agriculture extension service, University of Delaware.

"Each year one boy and girl are selected on the basis of their 4-H record and leadership ability to attend this American Youth Foundation Training Camp, 35 miles north of Musgon, Mich.," Dr. Gwinn explained.

Miss Warrington has been in 4-H club work for 10 years and during that time completed 32 4-H projects. Her project work included poultry and swine production as well as work in clothing and food.

Joyce was president of her 4-H club, the Dublin Hill Yellow Jackets, and president of the Sussex County 4-H Junior Council. She attended the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago as state dress revue winner in 1956 and the Cherry Pie Convention also in Chicago, as state cherry pie contest winner in 1957. She also attended NEPPCO as state poultry foods demonstration winner.

Richard Simpson, in 10 years as a Houston Cardinal 4-H Club member, completed 20 4-H projects. These projects involved work in the fields of health, dairy, home beautification, junior leadership, gardening and electricity and yard improvement.

Richard attended the National 4-H Congress in Chicago as the 1956 state 4-H dairy winner. He captured the Kent County Achievement award in 1957 and 1958 and became leadership winner in 1959.

For the past four years, Richard has been a junior 4-H leader helping with dairy and gardening projects.

Leadership, service, self discovery, life planning, balanced development, life enrichment, and training are the eight underlying principals of the leadership training program at Camp Miniwanca. Daily camp activities are geared to young people of leadership capacity and are deliberately planned to test the campers ability to get a job done promptly and successfully.

Houston

Sabbath School at 10 a.m. Robert H. Yerkes Sr., general superintendent, Alvin O. Brown, supt. of the Junior Department, Mrs. William Scott of the Cradle Roll and Carl Prentice is superintendent of missions.

Billy Halfhill had the misfortune last Thursday to fall from his bicycle and break his arm at the elbow. It was quite a severe break, but it doesn't seem to be painful or give him much trouble.

Charlie Webb's condition remains about the same, very little improvement.

Mrs. George B. Thistlewood and sons, Freddy and George B. Jr., spent the time from Sunday evening until Wednesday night in Wilmington with her mother, Mrs. Annie Sharp and Tuesday afternoon while the boys were enjoying themselves at one of the city playgrounds, Freddy had the misfortune to fall from a fence and break his left arm at the wrist his arms seems to be doing all right.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Kirby were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Walter Wharton at the Sandpiper in Ocean City, Md., Sunday afternoon. On the way home, they stopped in Rehoboth and enjoyed visiting with friends on the board walk.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Emory Webb, spent the time from Saturday afternoon until Tuesday evening in their cottage at Riverdale.

Mrs. Helen Dufendach, Mrs. Ruth Sapp and Mrs. Elizabeth Daugherty were luncheon guests Thursday at the Treadway Inn, Dover.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Yerkes Sr. and daughters, and son, Billy, visited Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Yerkes at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mills in Cedar Neck on Sunday afternoon. They saw and held their new grandson, Duane Eric Yerkes.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wharton and Mr. and Mrs. Oley Sapp spent Friday evening at Riverdale and thoroughly enjoyed the movies Frank Sapp and his family had taken on their recent trip to California.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Palmer Anstine and son, Tommy, have been spending their vacation in the Lake George region of New York State. They visited historic Fort William Henry at the southern end of Lake George and have viewed the archaeological discoveries that were unearthed on the site during the recent reconstruction activities of the 18th century French and Indian War fortress, that was so influential in determining the course of that war here in American between the years of 1755-57. While at Lake George the Anstines stayed at Hearststone Motel.

Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Thistlewood and family and Mrs. Viola Thistlewood visited Mrs. Edna J. McCabe at Selbyville. Mrs. V. Thistlewood remained to visit for a while.

Mrs. Albert Anglin and sons, A. R. and Scottie, from Baltimore were overnight guests of her sister, Mrs. G. B. Thistlewood and family, as they were on their way to their summer home near Deals Island.

Variety Meats for Outdoor Cooking

"Hamburgers and hot dogs need not be the only meats served at summer barbecues. Poultry, chops, canned meats, steaks, fish, lamb, cold cuts, and variety meats such as liver, tongue, and sweetbreads are ideal for variety cookouts," Miss Janet Coblenz, nutrition specialist, University of Delaware declares.

"To insure that your barbecue meals have that special touch, Miss Coblenz offers a few helpful suggestions.

Cold cuts and canned meats should be one-half inch thick, and steaks and chops at least one inch thick. To prevent curling, slash the fat edges of steaks and chops before grilling.

Fish and other meats of low fat content are best barbecued on a greased grill. To prevent meat from sticking, commercial liquids that may be sprayed or brushed on the grill are available.

When pork is used for barbecue meals be sure it is precooked before being placed on the grill for the final broiling.

Meats should be placed two to three inches above the coals and turned only when necessary. This helps to retain those all important juices so necessary for flavor. Do not add salt until the last minute as salt draws the juices to the surface and contributes to juice loss.

To test for doneness cut a slit in the meat near the bone or the center of the cut. Examine the color. For poultry, move the leg bone or the wing to see if they turn easily. No blood or pinkness should be showing.

Barbecued spareribs are perfect for summer barbecues. Try this at your next cookout.

Barbecued Spareribs

Allow 3/4 to 1 pound of spare-ribs per person. Precook spare-ribs by steaming them for one hour or cooking for 20 minutes in the pressure cooker. After precooking, keep spareribs chilled until ready to grill. Just before grilling, brush with barbecue sauce and place them on the grill over briquettes 1/2 to 3/4 inches apart for the final broiling. Turn the spareribs often, basting each time with barbecue sauce. When ribs are brown, and the sauce is bubbling transfer them to a hot platter, slice the ribs apart and, if desired, brush generously with additional barbecue sauce.

Knickerbocker Barbecue Sauce

—1/2 cup salad oil, 1/4 cup minced onion, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon paprika, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 1/2 cup water, 1 cup chili sauce.

Place salad oil and onion in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring frequently, about 10 minutes. Add other ingredients and simmer 15 minutes. Stir occasionally.

Bacteria Both Good and Bad

Bacteria are good to mankind, for without them we'd never have tasty cheeses, fermented drinks, or health-giving antibiotics.

Pennsylvania State University specialists have prepared a correspondence course No. 108, Bacteriology, which explains about bacteria found in water supplies, sewage, soils, and milk. Lessons also tell of food spoilage, fermentation and disease. This practical course covers the whole field of bacteriology, written in non-technical terms.

Anyone may enroll for the course no 108 by sending $3 to Correspondence Courses, Box 5000, University Park, Pa. Registration fee covers the cost of the complete course of 12 lessons, together with examination papers and self-addressed envelopes for return of completed lessons. Checks or money orders should be made payable to The Pennsylvania State University.

Bacteriology is one of more than 70 courses in agricultural and home economics subjects offered by Penn State. A descriptive catalog will be sent free on request.

Save on Clothes With Easy-Care Fabrics

Up to one-fifth of the time normally spent in caring for children's clothes may be saved with easy-care fabrics, points out Fred C. Snyder, chairman, Correspondence Courses, The Pennsylvania State University.

A quick rundown on the desirable features of practical and attractive wash-and-wear fabrics is given in Correspondence Course 136, "Selecting and Buying Children's Clothes." One of 71 courses offered by the University, it was written by Thelma Baienl, extension clothing specialist. Lessons also give information on how to get good buys in shoes, coats, underwear, and snowsuits.

Interested persons may obtain this four-lesson course by sending $1 to Correspondence Courses, 202 Agricultural Educational Building, University Park, Pa. Check or money order should be made payable to The Pennsylvania State University.

Question papers at the end of each lesson highlight the main points. Cost of the course includes careful grading of question papers when answered and returned to the Correspondence Courses office.

VA Has New Law Concerning World War II Vets

Veterans of World War II and Korea who became totally disabled between the date of their application for National Service Life Insurance and the subsequent effective date may now file application for premium waiver, according to Leon Fields, manager of the Wilmington Regional Office.

The veterans Administration, in calling attention of veterans and their kin to this new law, explained that the total disability must have been incurred in line of duty between October 8, 1940 and July 31, 1946, or between June 27, 1950, and April 30, 1951. The insured must have remained continuously so disabled until his death or until June 8, 1960, whichever was earlier.

Mr. Fields stated that application for waiver of premiums must be filed by the insured, or if dead, by the beneficiary within two years after June 8, 1960. Application will also be accepted from persons representing mentally incompetent veterans.

Because of the time limit placed upon applications, the VA urges eligible veterans or their beneficiaries to apply promptly for the waiver of premiums.

Delaware's Per Capita Income Highest In Nation

Delaware's 1959 per capita income of $2,946 was the highest in the nation reports the Delaware State Development Department.

Residents of the first state also had, during 1959, the largest disposable income, income after taxes, of residents of any of the 50 states. According to the state information agency, this amounted to $2,516 per person last year as compared to a national average of $1,907.

Basing its findings on the results of a survey made by the U. S. Department of Commerce, the Development Department advises that personal income in Delaware last year reached $1,314,000,000, or almost one and one-third billion dollars.

Delaware's 1959 per capita income was approximately twenty-five per cent greater than the national average of $2,146.

Last year, Delaware regained the top spot, income-wise, from Connecticut, which led the Nation in 1958. The revised standings show Connecticut second with $2,817 per capita; Nevada third with $2,745; New York fourth with $2,736; and California fifth with $2,661.

Despite high wage rates, Alaska, the Nation's 49th state, could do no better than seventh place with $2,550, behind New Jersey's $2,608. Per capita income in Hawaii, the 50th state, was $2,139, about equal to the continental U. S. average.

The Department of Commerce survey for 1959 shows Arkansas as having the lowest income with $1,322 per capita and Mississippi just slightly higher with $1,362.

Delaware's leadership in "disposable income" has special significance in that this index is used as a measure of consumer purchasing power notes the Development Department.

Lamb Crop Shows Increase

The 1960 lamb crop totaled 21,584,000 head, two per cent larger than the crop produced in 1959 and eleven per cent above the 1949-58 average, according to the latest lamb crop information received at the Kent Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Office, at Dover. The number of lambs saved per 100 ewes this year is 95, which is 1 point below last year but 3 points above the average.

An increase in lamb numbers is in accord with the purpose of the national wool program, Lister V. Hall Jr., of the ASC office pointed out. Under the wool program, incentive payments are made on wool and lambs with the objective of increasing the national wool crop to 300 million pounds a year and thus reducing the deficit in wool production.

An Apology

One of the several letters we carried last week on politics, concerning the qualifications of Charles L. Peck, Jr., as a candidate for representative, alleged he was slow to move and had difficulty staying awake.

We deem this an unjustified attack and deplore the publishing of the letter. Of course, particularly in the roar and bustle of an election, it is possible that something like this might get by us.

However, because of the unpleasantness created by the letter of the previous week, we are seriously considering changing our policy of Letters to the Editor.

We believe everyone will agree with us Mr. Peck needs no defense for his actions or character. We have worked with him 12 years on various civic enterprises and his actions have justified our highest respect.

He takes his time to think out his problems and we would have been better off had we done so, but something is liable to slip by in the hustle and bustle of a newspaper wanting to make the deadline, especially at election time.

ALL we can say is that we are sorry we printed the letter and will double our efforts to prevent such an occurrence. Hence, our decision to review our policy of Letters to the Editor.

In the meanwhile, we believe it would not be amiss for the writer of the letter to make a retraction, and we are making every effort to see that it is done.

Fishing Lines

Late Fishing Season Expected

From all indications, Delaware's marine fishermen may look forward to an extra long fishing season; many different species are migrating into the Delaware Bay area.

Croakers Taken in Mispillion River

Possibly croaker fishermen should begin fishing in our tidal streams rather than principally in the open waters of our bays.

Fish Plentiful in Delaware

Throughout the season, approximately 10,000 fishermen have been interviewed concerning the numbers and species of fish caught.

Bass Fishing

Freshwater bass have been striking quite regularly, and many very large fish have been caught. A four and one-half pound bass was taken from the bank of Moores Lake, and it is believed that there are many more of equal size swimming in the depths of the lake.

Fish Plentiful in Delaware

Throughout the season, approximately 10,000 fishermen have been interviewed concerning the numbers and species of fish caught.

Second Span Study Wins Green Light

A second bridge over the Delaware River became something more than just speculation Tuesday.

Engineering and other studies were authorized by the Interstate Highway Division. Formal approval for the bridge can come only through legislative action at both the state and federal levels.

The site question was included in the discussion between the commission and its consulting engineers.

The cost of the studies, to be made by the consulting firm of Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, is estimated at $148,000. The funds will come from bridge tolls.

A preliminary report outlining procedures to be followed in making the studies was presented by the consultants and accepted by the division. J. H. Tyler McConnell, chairman-director of the division, stressed that in accepting the report the division was in no way committing the states of Delaware and New Jersey, nor the federal government, to any course of action.

No date was set for submission of the engineers' report, which will include present and projected traffic statistics, design suggestions and cost estimates. Not the least of the problems facing the consultants is the selection of a site.

Much opinion in the past has placed a second span close to the present Memorial Bridge, often within 1000 feet. This site was mentioned at Tuesday's meeting, along with the suggestion of State Senator Reynolds du Pont that the new span be situated North of Wilmington. Further complicating the selection will be national defense considerations, since, as Mr. McConnell pointed out, "the national defense agencies might not want two bridges too close together."

In other business, division members heard the consultants report that the repair to the deck of the bridge is no longer as urgent as originally reported. Cores cut from the roadway show cracks on the surface in most places to be due mainly to normal traffic attrition and not to deterioration of the deck.

The engineers said about 3400 square yards of the deck require patching. They recommended that the job be done by a focal contractor whose experience in handling the special concrete will assure a good job.

Harrington Wins Kent-Sussex Little League Crown

Jim O'Neal's Harrington Little League entry were returned as champions of the Kent-Sussex Little League after defeating Felton 4-1 in a night game played under the lights at the Moose Home. The locals and Felton had finished the regular season in a first-place tie. All of the games played between these two neighborhood rivals this season were hard fought and on at least two occasions had to be continued at a later date before a decision could be reached.

Chuck McNally delivered a timely hit in the big inning which brought across three decisive runs after a 1-1 tie had lasted for several innings.

Renny French went the distance on the mound for Harrington.

Softball News

Greenwood and Bridgeville, after finishing 1-2 in regular season play were knocked out of the Harrington Softball League playoffs by the Harrington Athletic Club and Felton respectively. Greenwood, after losing the first game to the H.A.C. nine last week evened the series at one each before losing the deciding contest. Felton knocked off Bridgeville twice to gain the finals against H.A.C. The last game was an extra inning thriller which saw Felton's Sikora and Bridgeville's Miller pitch scoreless ball from the fourth inning until the eleventh stanza. Felton pushed across a run to win and now have a chance to be playoff champions for the second straight year.

State's Teacher Lack 'Critical' Miller Reports

With only two and one-half weeks remaining before the term opens, Delaware schools need 51 more teachers. With reports in from only a portion of the districts, Dr. George R. Miller, state superintendent of public instruction, said Monday that "the situation is critical and is probably getting worse." Dr. Miller added that the Department of Public Instruction has already been granting emergency certificates. "We have issued far too many," he said, "but we'll probably have to issue a great many more." Of the 51 vacancies, 31 are in secondary schools with the greatest need in sciences and mathematics. Only 15 of the 39 districts reporting have full complements. Additional shortages are in business education, home economics, physical education and industrial arts. Dr. Ward I. Miller, Wilmington superintendent, reported that every Wilmington classroom will be staffed. There are no vacancies in the secondary schools, but there are eight to 10 permanent teachers needed for the city's elementary schools. These vacancies will be filled with fully qualified, temporary employees until permanent appointments can be made, his office said. Until all reports are in, Dr. Miller said, he will not be able to say just how many teachers will be required to meet the state's expanding needs. Last year the state's public school system employed a total 3400 teachers, 2823 outside Wilmington. The northern school districts are in better shape because they generally offer higher salaries, Dr. Miller said. Up to this fall the state's salary schedule had called for a minimum of $3,600 for a bachelor's degree, with a maximum of $5,500. This school year, beginners' salaries will be pegged at a minimum of $3,750 in the transition to a $4,200 starting minimum. Inquiries for positions in high and junior high schools, he added should be referred to Dr. Howard Rowe, head of secondary schools. They will be sent to individual districts. Dr. H. B. King will do the same for elementary teachers seeking to be placed, Dr. Miller said. Wilmington still is seeking a suitable replacement for A. B. Anderson, director of vocational education, who retired this year. Dr. Ward Miller's office reported.

SHD Warns Politicians Of Advertising On Highway Right-of-Way

The State Highway Department is requesting the State Chairman of the two major political parties in Delaware to advise their candidates concerning the placing of advertising along the highway right of way. R. A. Haber, Chief Engineer of the Highway Department, has sent letters to John Conway, Democratic State Chairman, and Ellwood S. Leach, Republican State Chairman, reminding them of the existing law and requesting their cooperation. The letter, in part, reads as follows: "I respectfully request your cooperation in notifying all candidates on the ticket that Delaware State Law forbids placing of placards, stickers, and signs on utility poles, traffic regulation signs and any other tree, fence or building which may be within the right-of-way of any street or highway owned or controlled by the State of Delaware. "The Department will move to prosecute anyone caught in the act of placing such signs and stickers to the fullest extent of the law. "I am sending this letter to the chairman of both parties in the hope that we may have the full cooperation of both chairmen in saving the taxpayers of the State of Delaware a considerable amount of money during this coming campaign."

SHD Ready For Any Emergency

The recent mishap at the bridge along Route 14, over the Indian River Inlet, demonstrated the necessity of the State Highway Department's staff being constantly ready to cope with any emergency that may arise, according to R. A. Haber, Chief Engineer of the Department. "Our Department is constantly aware of the necessity of having the highways ready for use as a part of our economic system to-day and the Engineering Division must be ready to act when something happens to halt the use of the highways," stated Mr. Haber. The Chief Engineer cited the necessity of first finding out what equipment is needed and the materials to be used and then have some knowledge of where both the equipment and materials can be located. "We can formulate and put into action, when needed, a program of activity in connection with snow removal in order to keep the highways open for the traffic that is constantly using them," stated Mr. Haber. Then, also, "we normally receive notice that a snow storm is enroute to our state and can alert our maintenance crews to be ready to go into action when the storm arrives," Mr. Haber says. "However," Mr. Haber stated, "in an emergency, like the one at the Indian River Inlet Bridge, we have no advance knowledge and, in fact, receive our first information concerning it after it happens, which is usually at a time when the highway involved is handling the season's peak traffic. "Our Department has been most fortunate to have within our organization, staff members and workers who give unselfishly of their time and efforts to overcome any condition arising from an emergency as rapidly as possible. "All of which is in line with our efforts of the past several years to have the State Highway Department become a public service organization, organized and in operation to render the best possible service to the traveling public within the means at our disposal."

Now Is The Time To Seed That Lawn

The best time of the year to seed a new lawn is in early fall, says the Kent County Agricultural Agent, George Vapaa. A great deal of interest has developed in the turf garden being established on the old Hotel Richardson property located on State Street in Dover, he adds. Lime and fertilizer have been applied according to soil test recommendations. The ground has been plowed and worked up by Maurice Darling of Marydel, who does a great deal of lawn seeding work in the Dover area. The actual seeding of the variety turf plots is scheduled for Monday afternoon, August 29. About eight or ten different mixtures will be used, so that home owners may see the type of lawn they might like to have. William Mitchell of the agronomy department at the University of Delaware is working with the county agent on the establishment work. "The ABC's of Good Lawns" is the title of a new leaflet just issued by Professor Claude E. Phillips at the University. The important points are summarized as follows: a. good seed mixture is first b. best to seed in early fall c. correct fertilization—March and September d. do not apply lime too often e. enough water in dry weather f. frequent mowing at 1 1/2 to 2 inches g. good weed control h. hard work when needed Copies of the complete leaflet are available from the county agent on the second floor of the Dover post office. The telephone number is REdfield 6-1448.

4-H Camp Ends

One hundred thirty 4-H campers moved out of Camp Barnes, near Millville in Sussex County, last Saturday (Aug. 20) by bus and auto after a week of classing and activities. The previous week 128 4-H'ers attended the camp. The 4-H'ers were organized into four Indian tribes and competed in games, classes, bedmaking, and participation in the evening activities around the campfire. Points were awarded to decide which Indian tribe was the best. Classes were given in archery, ceramics, woodcraft, swimming, outdoor cooking, leathercraft, marksmanship, flower craft, firearms safety, music and waterfront safety.

BE WISE — ADVERTISE

Increasing Use of Memorial Bridge Stresses Need For Second Span

Delaware has a multi-million dollar bear by the tail—and can't afford to let go.

It's that Delaware Memorial Bridge problem.

Within four years, it'll be carrying too much traffic. By 1964, look out for congested conditions on the four lane bridge, also traffic delays, increased accidents, and frequent breakdowns of autos and trucks.

Therefore, according to the best engineering advice in the country, a second bridge must be built within at least the next 10 years.

Here, the bridge officials are racing against time and swelling traffic lines.

Then there's the pesky problem of money.

The Delaware Memorial Bridge has been making so much money despite reduced tolls, that it'll be free of debt within three years.

Unless Congress acts in the meantime, the bridge will become a free bridge. No tolls.

That'll mean Delaware's tax money from Delawareans will have to maintain a bridge, about 90 percent of whose traffic is from out-of-the state.

It is estimated the maintenance cost will range from $750,000 a year to $1,000,000—for painting, repairs, policing, insurance, etc.

Can Delaware do anything about all these problems?

Sure—but Delaware is in a bind.

The northern neck of Delaware where the bridge is located is a corridor through which millions of cars and trucks zoom—going somewhere, other than Delaware.

The Delaware River in that corridor, is Delaware territory—up to the low water mark on the Jersey Shore. The bridge is owned by Delaware—and is a gateway to the north and south. At the moment it's Delaware's responsibility to keep the bridge in good condition and traffic moving—at a cost of only 25 cents one way for automobile and almost minimum rates for trucks.

Jersey would love to own the bridge and use it for her own advantage but it is administered by a fairly autonomous Delaware agency, the Interstate Highway Division of which J. H. Tyler McConnell is chairman-director.

It doesn't cost the state of Delaware a cent to maintain or operate the bridge. Everything is paid for out of the tolls.

But then Delaware can't use too much bridge money for other highways or other state expenses.

With the danger date only three years away—when the bridge will begin to be overloaded with traffic—the Interstate Highway Division or the Delaware Memorial Bridge commission, as it is known, is faced with some serious problems:

Political Problems

The General Assemblies of New Jersey and Delaware must approve a proposed compact for a New Jersey-Delaware Authority that would operate this bridge and build other bridges or ferries—before a second bridge can be built.

In Jersey, the argument is over where the five commissioners of that state will come from. Will Jersey's Governor Robert D. Meyner have the right to name whom he pleases, regardless of their county residences, or will he have to select commissioners from certain counties in southern Jersey?

In Delaware, the argument revolves about the proposed Cape May-Lewes Ferry. Will the bi-state authority be bound to build and operate that ferry?

Also, will Governor Boggs have the right to name the Delaware commissioners to the bi-state authority or will the General Assembly take over that power—for the initial panel of commissioners?

Will Congress agree to allow the two states to build bridges that will always be toll spans?

Will the national defense officials, including Army and Navy top brass and particularly the Chief of Engineers allow another bridge across the Delaware?

Will they permit a second bridge close to the present Delaware Memorial Bridge or insist upon it being farther up stream?

Engineering Problems

Where is the best site for a second bridge?

There was some thought a few years ago to have the second bridge about 1000 feet north of the Delaware Memorial Bridge. This would mean an east bound and a west bound bridge.

But this would require going through some of the valuable property of the Du Pont Company's Chambers Works on the Jersey shore.

A suggestion has already been made by State Senator Reynolds du Pont of near Wilmington that the second bridge be located north of Wilmington.

The second bridge will have to tie in with the proposed freeways of Maryland and Delaware and the Jersey Turnpike.

Financial Problems

It has been roughly estimated that a second Delaware River bridge will cost, all told, $120,000,000. The present bridge itself cost around $44,000,000, built between 1947 and 1951.

How will the bond market feel about such a bond issue?

Bond market experts have told the Delaware Memorial Bridge officials that they like the money earning capacity of the bridge, but on the other hand, there's nothing so skittish as the bond market.

In any event, the bond market will want traffic surveys and detailed feasibility reports first. Next, a new bond indenture will have to be drafted, making the bonds as attractive as possible for long-term investors.

Personnel Problems

Pending the establishment of a bi-state Delaware River and Bay Authority, the Delaware Memorial Bridge commission will soon have to set up a special engineering section devoted only to the second bridge problem.

This, too, will have political patronage implications.

If and when the bi-state authority is authorized, it may have to establish civil service regulations in order to get away from political patronage headaches.

Whatever Delaware plans or wants to do, ultimately it will have to work with New Jersey. Although the Delaware River near the present bridge is Delaware territory, Jersey will insist on being in the project.

Back in the late 1930's when Delaware was planning the present bridge, offers were made to Jersey to join with Delaware but Jersey showed little official interest or enthusiasm.

It tied in with the Jersey Turnpike, a gold mine, and within a few years, the traffic exceeded the most optimistic predictions of the experts.

The bridge tolls were reduced from 75 cents a car to 50 cents—and then to 25 cents—in an effort to cut down the revenue and delay the day when the bonds would be paid off and the bridge become toll free.

But still the money came rolling in—so much so that right now the bridge owes only about $10,000,000 to the bond holders out of a grand total of about $50,000,000.

This will be paid off by 1963—and according to an act of Congress, when that happens, the bridge must be free.

Five years ago when Delaware began thinking of refinancing the bridge—and eventually build a new bridge or use some of the toll money for Delaware highways, New Jersey stepped up and in effect said, "We want in—we want to be a part of all this."

Delaware appealed to Congress for relief. But Jersey with a larger delegation in Congress interfered. She claimed she had a definite interest in any and all river and bay crossings.

So Congress said—in words to this effect:

"We won't get into a fight between two states. Jersey and Delaware should settle their differences first—and then come to us for a solution of the problem."

Jersey argued that she had a greater interest in the Delaware

Memorial Bridge, for example, than Delaware. She based most of her argument on a survey that revealed 30 per cent of the bridge users were Jersey residents; only 11 per cent were Delawareans.

Jersey went so far as to suggest that she was entitled to 70 to 80 per cent of the bridge's revenues—over and above fixed expenses.

Delaware's representatives—the Interstate Highway Division, headed by the late Garrett E. Lyons—sneered at this. Jersey was reminded that after all the Delaware Memorial Bridge is actually an extension of the Delaware's highway system.

It was also pointed out to Jersey that the bridge has been planned and built through Delaware initiative—and that it belonged to the state of Delaware.

After a lot of maneuvering and polite talk, Governor Boggs of Delaware and Governor Meyner of New Jersey came to an agreement:

Each governor was to appoint a commission of five members.

This 10-man commission was to meet and work out a practical solution for the best interests of each state—and the traveling public at large.

Mr. Lyons headed the Delaware commission. State Senator John A. Waddington of Salem County, was chairman of the New Jersey commission.

They met here and over in Jersey. Republicans and Democrats were on the two commissions.

They insisted on having their meeting behind closed doors to avoid the temptation of making grandstand speeches for the benefit for their respective states. After each meeting, they issued amicable joint statements of progress.

They finished their job in the fall of last year—a remarkable achievement in inter-state negotiations with goodwill on both sides.

The "work horses" of the bi-state commission were James L. Latham, secretary for the Delaware Committee and for the Delaware Memorial Bridge commission, and Vincent P. Biunno, counsel for Governor Meyner and secretary for the Jersey Commission.

Out of their negotiations came the following:

1. A report that spelled out the problems of Delaware and Jersey and called for the establishment of a bi-state authority that would not only operate the Delaware Memorial Bridge but build and operate all other crossings of the Delaware River and Bay, including a ferry.

This was the first time that the official representatives of the two states could agree upon a joint plan for solving their problems.

2. A Delaware-New Jersey compact, pledging co-operation on the problems of bridges and ferries across the river and bay and creating a bi-state Delaware River and Bay Authority to handle everything in the way of crossings.

3. A proposed Delaware law ratifying the compact and setting up the Delaware side of the bi-state authority.

4. A proposed Delaware law for the appointment of the five Delaware commissioners of the bi-state authority.

5. A proposed New Jersey law ratifying the compact and appointing the five New Jersey commissioners.

6. Proposed federal legislation approving the compact, and amending previous federal legislation permitting the construction of another bridge across the Delaware and/or a ferry across the Delaware Bay, and charge tolls for these facilities.

So far, only Jersey has acted upon any legislation but Governor Meyner recently vetoed the measure by the General Assembly of his state because it restricted the geographical location of his commission appointments.

Delaware's General Assembly has yet to act upon any phase of the agreements.

Nothing will go to Congress until the two states have approved their sides of the bargain.

But in the meantime—back at the Delaware Memorial Bridge, traffic continues to increase at an alarmingly fast rate. It is "alarming" because the months are passing, more money is being taken in—and the day is rapidly approaching when the bridge will have passed its capacity and the bonded debt of the bridge will be paid off.

That's why Mr. McConnell, the successor to Mr. Lyons, as chairman-director of the Delaware Memorial Bridge Commission, with the consent of his fellow directors, has been pushing plans for the second bridge over the Delaware at this time.

In this way, he hopes to be that much ahead of the game when the two states agree on the bi-state authority and Congress acts favorably.

What about that ferry between Cape May and Lewes?

This is a hot issue in southern Delaware and Cape May County, N. J.

It appears to be one of the conditions for ultimate inter-state co-operation.

Mr. McConnell has taken the position that he is in favor of a feasible ferry. He is also willing to have such a ferry project undertaken at the same time a second bridge is constructed—and not put it off into the dim future.

The bridge commission already has an armchair assurance from bond market experts that a ferry can be figured in with a bond issue package proposition since the Delaware Memorial Bridge is noted throughout the nation as an exceptional money earner.

Right now, the biggest headache the Delaware Memorial Bridge commission has is the political pains.

As far as he or his colleagues are concerned, neither Jersey nor Delaware can move too fast in approving their respective sides of the bi-state agreement.

The Rev. Thomas Churn had as the topic, "Abraham-Man of Faith" for the Sunday service, Aug. 21st at the Trinity Methodist Church. Rev. and Mrs. Churn and son, Jimmy, had been on vacation for two weeks. They spent this past week at Camp Pe-Co-Meth serving as counselors. This Sunday is Miss Dorothy Warren's last Sunday as church organist of Trinity Methodist. Mrs. Elaine Jones and Mrs. Jean Churn will be filling in on a temporary basis for the next few months. Rev. Vonhagel, father of Mrs. Churn, of Salisbury, gave the last Sunday service benediction. Mr. and Mrs. George Davidson were the friendly greeters.

We wish a speedy recovery to Everett Wilson, who was admitted to the Milford Memorial Hospital last week.

S/Sgt and Mrs. Robert Thomason and daughter, Debbie, are visiting with the latter's parents, and relatives in Richmond, Ind. While there they will visit also with Mrs. Thomason's grandfather, who she hasn't seen for several years.

Visiting in the home of S/Sgt. and Mrs. R. G. Moore and family last week were Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Ettinger and family of Weyers Cave, Va. Mrs. Ettinger is a sister of Mrs. Moore. Before returning home they visited with Mrs. Ettinger's youngest brother and his family at Ridley Park, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. James Webb had as visitors in their home, Harold Robinson and son, Harold, of Linden, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Powell and family have given up residence in Frederica and are now living 3 miles north of Dover.

The Little Leaguers vs fathers of the Little League boys played a game last Sunday, Aug. 21 at the Frederica School with a winning score of 13-11 in favor of the Little Leaguers.

Manager Clem Turner and the Little Leaguers will tour to Washington, D. C. Sat., Aug. 27 to see a big league ballgame between the Washington Senators and the Detroit Tigers.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Lank are vacationing in Rochester, N. Y.

Frankie Dunning of Clayton, is spending a couple weeks with his cousin, Debbie Shuman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shuman.

In the absence of the Rev. Hugh Johnson the services at the Methodist Church Sunday were in charge of Laymen Lawrence Kates and Richard Adams, the latter giving a very good talk on "Seeing is Believing". The flowers were presented Mr. and Mrs. Howard Henry in memory of Arthur Henry. There will be services as usual next Sunday in charge of the Rev. Hugh Johnson except there will be no church school for the kindergarten, Primary and Junior classes. There will be an official board meeting at 8 p.m. on Fri., Aug. 26. All members are urged to attend.

Miss Nellie Hughes recently attended a celebration in honor of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Weldin Jr., of Gordon Heights. The affair was held in the Scottish Rites Cathedral in Wilmington.

Mrs. Blanche Allen and sister, Mrs. Bessie Ryan of Harrington have been spending several days in Ocean City, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Lawrence Kates and daughter, Peggy, were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Griffen in Washington, N. C.

Mrs. Lillian M. Turner of Rumson, N. J. and Gilbert Meredith of Roselle Park, N. J. attended the funeral of Mrs. Cora Meredith last week and were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Crockett at their home near Killen's Lake.

Jay McGinnis and Robert Stuck, a classmate at Valley Forge Military Academy, and of Selmsgrove, Pa., are spending a week at Rehoboth.

Mrs. George Harrington and son, Butchie, were in Wildwood, N. J., for a few days recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Moore with Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Gowne of Scarsdale, N. Y., have been spending the past week on a motor trip through the New England States. They will visit their son, Walter Moore, Jr. EN 2, who is stationed at the Naval Ship Yard at Portsmouth, N. H., before returning home.

The new baby son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thiel has been named Larry David.

Mrs. Reed Hughes has been spending several days at Rehoboth and has as her guests her mother, Mrs. Lennora Langrell and her aunt, Mrs. Mae Powell of Frederica.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Fletcher and children spent last week at Pocomoke City with Mrs. Fletcher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Artis.

Mrs. Lee Harrington has had as her guests, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Harrington and two sons, Jackie and Michael of Traneton, N. J., and also her brother, Masten Satterfield of Detroit, Mich.

Henry Van Sant, who spent two weeks recently at the Kent General Hospital is now recuperating at his home here.

The Rev. and Mrs. Hugh Johnson spent last weekend with relatives near Richmond where he officiated at the wedding of his sister Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Burton have had as their guest Mrs. Gertrude Wagenseller of Suplee, Pa.

Rev. Robert Hodgson, who has been on the sick list is improving slowly at his home in town.

Major and Mrs. Edward C. Burton with their three sons, were guests of Mrs. William Hargadine Monday. Major Burton has been assigned to duty in Montgomery, Ala. Mrs. Burton will be remembered as Miss Mary Virginia Palmer.

The committee in charge of the Feltonia exhibit in the Methodist Church during the centennial weekend wish to thank everyone who loaned their valuable keepsakes and treasures and in so doing helped make the museum a success. A full financial statement on the proceeds of the street fair will be available next week.

Among out of state visitors in town during the centennial weekend were: Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Huppert of Chadds Ford; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Higman of Millington, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Friedel of Drexel Hill, Pa.; Edward Banning of Trenton, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Case, Glen Falls, Pa.; Rev. and Mrs. Henry T. Caldwell of Rising Sun, Md.; Rev. and Mrs. John Diehl, of Salisbury, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rhodes of Towson, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. William Zenzer, Trenton, N. J.; Miss Ethna White, Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Woodward, Downingtown, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Byron Moore, West Grove, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hall and two granddaughters, Arlington, Va.; Masten Satterfield, Detroit Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Whitaker, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kinsey and two daughters, Philadelphia, and Richard Henry Hutton of Whitekirk, England. Many other visitors from nearby towns and other points in Delaware too numerous to mention were also present.

James Raughley is a patient in Kent General Hospital in Dover.

Mrs. Lloyd Morrow with Mrs. Paul Chase, Mrs. Luella George of Camden and Mrs. Maude Knight of Wyoming spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Ashton Jester at Prime Hook Beach.

Robert Hughes accompanied Masten Satterfield on his return trip to Detroit, Mich., and also visited his brother, Theodore Hughes and family in Wisconsin.

Q—Was the GI loan interest rate changed by the recent law which gave World War II veterans another two years in which to get a loan?

A—No. The interest rate was not changed. The maximum allowable interest rate is still 5 1/4 per cent.

Q—I am a Korea veteran, holding a term life insurance policy with the letters "RS" before the policy number. I understand I can exchange this policy for new type term insurance at lower cost. How do I go about it?

A—You may exchange your present term policy for one costing about a third as much, yet with the same protection. The new term insurance must be converted to permanent plan insurance before age 50, however, if you wish protection. Write the VA office where you pay your premiums, telling them you wish to make the exchange. Be sure to give your present policy number.

Q—I am a World War II veteran applying for pension for the first time. Do I have to include my wife's income in reporting my own income for pension purposes?

A—The first $1200 of your wife's income need not be included but all over that available to you should be. In cases where that would work extreme hardship, exceptions may be made under the law.

Q—The new pension law has caused a lot of talk about just what pension is and what is compensation. Will you define each kind of payment, as it applies to living veterans?

A—Compensation is payable to eligible veterans whose disabilities are Due to service. Pension is payable only to eligible veterans whose total and permanent disabilities are NOT DUE to service.

Delaware Food Market Report

There are many signs of fall appearing at the grocery store, for instance the new crop of sweet potatoes is beginning to come on the market. The first white turnips and early cauliflower are available for a reasonable price also. A number of varieties of hard shell squash are now at the vegetable counter - all adding a bit of variety to every day meals.

Salad bowl devotees will find when they shop that celery, cabbage, and tomatoes are all a bit cheaper this week. Cucumbers are up a penny and peppers are steady in price. Lettuce continues to stay at an average of 20 cents a head.

There are a number of other vegetables to check this week—such as snap beans, corn, beets, onions and some egg plants.

Watermelon and New Jersey peaches top the list of good fruit buys. Supplies are heavy and prices are a near bargain levels. Blueberries, limes and white seedless grapes also deserve a place on the shopping list. Later varieties of cantaloupes are beginning to come to market now with prices averaging 29 cents each. Harvesting the early varieties of apples continues with increasing supplies, so look for good buys on this fruit.

As far as meat is concerned, broiler, beef and lamb supplies continue plentiful. Price tags on broilers are sliding again as the 10% increase over last year's large supply begins to reach local markets. A large supply of lamb is expected for September, but right now there are real bargains to be found on this meat. Check your favorite store for leg-of-lamb, 3-in-1 combination packages, and shoulder chops.

Egg prices continue to fluctuate and this weekend they are going both way—both up and down. Grade A large eggs are up 1 to 2 cents a dozen, while Grade A medium eggs are down 2 cents. There is increasing supply in medium size as well as pullet eggs.

Rehoboth Art League News

Following its usual policy of giving "Unit" exhibitions to as many of its members as possible, the Rehoboth Art League opens Saturday, Aug. 27, a five member show. Betty Boyd of Harrington, Margaret Schiavoni of Baltimore, Loretta Paskey of Harrington, Jon Smith, a league instructor, from Pottstown, Pa., and Rose Pack of Milford, who is chairman. Balloting Popular Vote awards will be heard. This exhibition will be hung in the Corkran Studio to succeed the excellent Student Work Exhibition of this week.

Currently in the Paynter Studio, another member, Lucille Brown of Faulk Road, Boothwyn, Pa., will stage a very different exhibition of her painted tins and decorated furniture, largely in antique designs, very often antique pieces. Mrs. Brown, who is without peer as to her skill, in this type of decorative art, has once before had a successful exhibition here but in combination with paintings in the studio; this time she asked for the sole use of the smaller one, exhibitions will continue until September.

Pale Blonde Finnish Girl, 15, Arrives for Smyrna School

The plane trip from cold, crisp Finland was a tremendous experience for 15-year-old Mirja Larjanko, who will spend the school year at Smyrna as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Williams.

Attractive, blonde Mirja's appearance should be a tremendous experience for the students at the John Bassett Moore High School.

She has pale blonde hair, straight in a long bob, blue eyes, and tanned skin.

She will enter 10th grade, and upon her return to her home near Helsinki next year she will enter the senior secondary school.

Her mother is director of girls physical education in the school at Helsinki and is now at the Olympics as the leader of a Finnish group. Mirja expects to watch TV closely, expecting to see her mother.

She is not an exchange student but came as the result of a meeting between her mother and Mr. Williams, high school principal, who was one of 40 United States school administrators participating in two seminars in Europe last February and March on a Fulbright scholarship grant, the first in Finland. Mirja's married sister was hostess to five American educators at that time.

Mirja (pronounced Meria) has studied English for four years, Swedish for five years and will take three years of German.

Her main objective at school here will be study of the English language and "the American culture." The subjects she will take include American history, business education, home economics, and typing. Her keenest interest is in physical education.

"She does not like mosquitoes." She misses her steam bath. She delights in the variety of fruit, particularly of peaches, as in Finland they have only apples.

Mirja likes to swim and dance. She and her mother are alike in their love of all things athletic. Her sister is interested in modern dancing. Her father, a doctor, died in 1952.

Charles Emory Webb, Sr.

Charles Emory Webb, Sr., 87, died Wednesday at Houston following a long illness. He was the husband of the late Ella Sapp Webb, and was a lifelong resident of the Houston area.

Services will be held from the Berry Funeral Home Saturday at 1:30 p.m. The Rev. W. Kirwan, pastor of Houston Methodist Church, will officiate. Interment will be at Barratt's Chapel Cemetery, Frederica.

Friends may call at the funeral home tonight after 7 p.m. Mr. Webb is survived by one son, Charles E. Jr.; five grandchildren; 12 great-grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Laura Montcrief, Woodstown, N. J. Two sons, Ernest and Whitely, preceded him in death.

He was a retired farmer and miller. He was a member of the Houston Methodist Church and was active in community affairs before his long illness. He was known as "Uncle Charley."

20 Troopers Get Quarry After 5-Hour Search

Stealthy sleuthing by 20 state troopers in the Dover area Wednesday led them in a circle but "straight" to their quarry—a murder suspect.

The posse found William Perry, 28, of Jacksonville, Fla., cowering under a wagon a few yards from where he allegedly shot Billy James Allen, 24, of Brunson, S. C., to death with a .22 calibre revolver in the heat of a craps game arguments.

Perry was charged with murder after admitting the shooting, Police said.

Troopers said the shooting was witnessed by a dozen fellow residents of the Cartanza Labor Camp, Little Creek, at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

The witnesses alerted state officers and described the assailant to them. After Perry's capture they identified him as the man who killed Allen, state police reported.

Troopers searched through marshes, swamps and wooded areas near Little Creek for five hours following the trail that led to the suspected killer.

When he was captured, Perry could not explain what had lurked him back to the scene of the crime.

Wednesday night Perry told state troopers that he and Allen, also a transient laborer, got into an argument about a craps game and loaded dice. No one was able to determine who started the argument, though a dozen fellow residents of the camp witnessed the fatal fight, police said.

Allen had been shot through the left chest and was pronounced dead on arrival at Kent General Hospital at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Perry would give no explanation Wednesday night for carrying the gun and made no charges that he was attacked in any manner during the squabble.

Traffic Increased During July

Increases in traffic during July, in comparison with the same month of last year, were recorded at all of the traffic counting stations maintained by the Planning Division of the State Highway Department.

The largest percentage of increase was recorded along US Route 202, the Concord Pike, at a point 2 north of Talleyville, where the increase was 16.73 percent, with the daily average of vehicles counted being 18,268, an increase of 2,618 and the largest single day was July 9 with 21,321 vehicles being counted.

An increase of 12.08 percent was recorded along US Route 40, at a point west of Bear, where the daily average of vehicles counted was 30,433, an increase of 3,279, and the largest single day was July 30 with 9,235 vehicles being counted.

An increase of 10.06 percent was recorded along the Kirkwood Highway, State Route 2, at a point east of Newark, with the daily average of vehicles counted being 14,385, an increase of 1,315, and the largest single day was July 29 with 16,996 vehicles being counted.

No comparison was available for US 113, at point north of Milford, because the traffic counting station was out of service last year due to construction. The daily average of vehicles counted for July at this point was 9,785 and the largest single day was July 2, with 9,235 vehicles being counted.

Board Awaiting Kent Hospital Addition Plans

Final plans for a proposed addition to the Kent General Hospital are expected within a few weeks, Albert W. Holmes told the Dover Rotary Club Tuesday night.

Mr. Holmes, a member of the hospital board of directors and of its building committee, said it is hoped that ground for the project will be broken shortly after the first of next year.

The speaker explained the location of the new wing and provisions for further possible expansion in the next five or 10 years.

He also advised that the new wing will provide 42 more beds, increasing the number to 135, plus a modern kitchen, dining room for employees, administration quarters, and completely-equipped recovery room.

The need for the additional facilities has been apparent for several years as more persons are requiring hospital service due to the increasing population of the area, he said.

Mr. Holmes was presented by Dr. John A. Krieger, a member of the Rotary program committee and also of the hospital building committee. Among visitors was Walter B. McKendrick, Jr., formerly of Dover and a former chief engineer of the State Highway Department. He is now a member of the Ottawa, Ill., Rotary Club.

Most Democratic Bids Still Wide Open

Conflicting claims of candidates and their supporters left the choice of the Democratic candidate for governor completely up in the air Wednesday night.

This impression was also promoted by a report that some of the Sussex delegates actually had not made up their minds on what candidate they will support in the crucial Sussex caucus Thursday.

The net result was an air of confusion in which party leaders, for the first time in many years, admitted privately on the eve of the Democratic state convention they do not know what candidates the convention will nominate for governor and certain other offices.

The only solid predictions that could be made Wednesday night is that U. S. Senator J. Allen Frear, Jr., will be nominated for a third term in the Senate. Also there is no opposition to renomination of Ernest A. Killen as state auditor. But for every other post there are contests to be settled by the convention.

The major contest of course is for the nomination for governor and the decision hinges on the action of the caucus of Sussex delegates early Thursday afternoon. No one knows for sure how the Sussex Counts really stand, how many have not made up their minds and how many will change their minds before or during the caucus.

Former Gov. Elbert N. Carvel confidently predicted Wednesday night that he will have 40 to 50 votes in the Sussex caucus. If he is right he will receive the nomination without a fight on the convention floor. But, the accuracy of his count has been disputed. One of the Sussex delegates said his count indicates Mr. Carvel will have less than 30 votes.

So, all eyes will be on Sussex when caucus time comes tomorrow. It is expected the Sussex delegation will make its choice by secret ballot and that all other delegations will await word from Sussex before acting.

Adding to the confusion of claims Wednesday night, Insurance Commissioner Harry S. Smith said just as confidently as Mr. Carvel that a majority of the Sussex delegates have personally assured him they will vote for him.

J. H. Tyler McConnell of near Wilmington, who is not an announced candidate but is regarded as Mr. Carvel's major competition, was making no claims at all. But his supporters in and out of Sussex said that Mr. McConnell will emerge with the nomination after the Sussex fails to give Mr. Carvel the substantial majority he needs to swing the support of the delegates from the other two counties.

Mayor Eugene Lamont was in Sussex County Wednesday trying to line up support for his nomination lieutenant governor in the event Mr. Carvel captures the nomination. Another strong possibility however is Sherman W. Tribbitt, speaker of the House, from Odesa.

In the event Mr. McConnell is successful, the likely choice for lieutenant governor is Senator Lemuel Hickman of Frankfort.

U. S. Rep. Harris B. McDowell seemed Wednesday night to be the probable choice for renomination but there was some talk that Clifford E. Hall of Selbyville would be selected for that job, if Sussex desired to trade off the gubernatorial nomination.

The convention will also name a candidate for state treasurer. Mrs. Belle Everett the incumbent, seems to have the edge.

Questions in the minds of delegates and party leaders Wednesday night included these: Which candidate for governor will do the state ticket the most good? Which would make the best governor? Who can win? The answers were all a matter of opinion.

The Democratic state committee meeting Wednesday night at the Kent County Courthouse dispatched its routine business in a few minutes. Then the members talked about the confusing political situation in informal groups.

The meeting heard the reading of a list of delegates and alternates and adopted that list as the temporary roll of the convention. State Chairman John M. Conway was designated as temporary chairman of the convention and Mrs. Mary Cahalan was named temporary secretary.

It was announced that the Kent County caucus will be held in the Civil Defense Room of the Courthouse. The New Castle County and Wilmington caucuses was scheduled tentatively for the courtroom of the courthouse. City chairman James L. Latchum announced that Wilmington wishes to caucus separately. A separate location is expected to be announced Thursday for the Wilmington caucus. The Sussex caucus is to be held at a room in Dover High School.

The convention is scheduled to start at noon in the high school's Field House.

The convention will include a night session with an address by Gov. David Lawrence of Pennsylvania at 8 p.m. The governor is scheduled to leave to fly to Philadelphia at 8:45 p.m.

sex and lower Kent counties. Nearly 1,000 farms are in the area. Most of them are in Sussex. The project includes 18.6 per cent of the land in Sussex and 2.5 per cent of the land in Kent.

Plans were prepared by the Delaware State Soil Conservation Commission, the sponsoring local organization, with technical assistance from the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Of the total cost the federal share will amount to $2,339,304. Other sources will contribute $3,722,572.

A project study shows that the estimated annual damage in the area without the project is $14,014. Benefits from preventing floodwater damage and providing adequate farm land drainage are expected to total $284,027 annually.

Right now the drag-lines, which are crane-like machines which throw out a huge steel bucket and drag it back until filled with soil or muck, are working to dig the Northwest Fork of the Nanticoke River.

This ditch leads north to Kent County, where eventually two sub-ditches will serve an area south and east of Farmington.

Members of the Kent County Soil Conservation District visited the Bridgeville area digging last weekend for an on-the-spot appraisal of the project.

They saw the largest of the three drag-lines working in the muck of a low, marshy area. Emory Schartzler, engineer for the Soil Conservation Service for Kent and Sussex Counties, explained the plan and the progress to date.

Charter boats, operating out of the Indian River Basin, have recently been reporting marlin catches with blue marlins being taken well out in the Atlantic near the warmer Gulf Stream waters and white marlins being boated closer to shore.

Less expensive and favored by many fishermen who visit this area in summer and early fall is the offshore bottom fishing done from what are called bottom boats of head boats.

These boats depart daily from Bowers, Mispillion Light, Lewes and the Inlet in the early morning hours and are guided by experienced skippers to a predetermined location, where they are then anchored. This anchorage is generally over or near sunken wrecks which attract the small fish upon which some of the larger fish feed.

For a vacationist limited by a small budget, the bottom boats offer seafishing for about six dollars a head (from this they receive the nickname of head bots) and generally stock virtually everything an angler will need for a successful fishing trip, including, of course, bait and tackle.

In addition to offering rental service on rods and reels, many of the bottom boats have snack and beverage facilities and some are even equipped with tiny lunch counters offering sandwiches, coffee, soft drinks and even

608 July Accidents Sets 3-Year Low

There were less accidents on state streets and highways, involving damages over $100, reported in July than the same month the preceding three years.

According to records of the Financial Responsibility Division of the Motor Vehicle Department, there were a total of 608 of these accidents reported during July. This is 150 less than reported during July, 1959, 19 less than reported for July, 1958 and 27 less than July, 1957.

Of the accidents reported during July, 447 were in Wilmington and New Castle County, a decrease of 121 over July, 1959. Kent County had 79 of the accidents, a decrease of eight, while Sussex County had 82 accidents, a decrease of 21.

Of the operators involved in the July accidents, 238 were from out of state and 182 had no insurance. A total of 20 persons were injured in these accidents.

Damages resulting from the July accidents were totaled a $300,408, a decrease over July, 1959, but an increase over July 1957.

During July 104 motorists had their operational and registration privileges suspended in Delaware for failure to comply with provisions of financial responsibility laws.

Delaware Waters Provide Good Fishing For All

"Fishing in Delaware Waters is Fun", and numerous visitors to Delaware's coastal area are currently helping prove the accuracy of this slogan, advises the Delaware State Development Department.

According to the state information agency, the combination of calm seas and warm weather found along the Delaware coast in late summer and early fall seemingly affects fish and fishermen alike—bringing out both in greater numbers.

Currently, fish—in many varieties and sizes—are being taken from Delaware's many inland bays, and from the surf line and depths of the Atlantic. Included are flounder, bluefish, trout, mackerel, bonito, porgies, sea bass, ling cod and tautog, and even the more elusive marlin.

Charter boats, operating out of the Indian River Basin, have recently been reporting marlin catches with blue marlins being taken well out in the Atlantic near the warmer Gulf Stream waters and white marlins being boated closer to shore.

Less expensive and favored by many fishermen who visit this area in summer and early fall is the offshore bottom fishing done from what are called bottom boats of head boats.

These boats depart daily from Bowers, Mispillion Light, Lewes and the Inlet in the early morning hours and are guided by experienced skippers to a predetermined location, where they are then anchored. This anchorage is generally over or near sunken wrecks which attract the small fish upon which some of the larger fish feed.

For a vacationist limited by a small budget, the bottom boats offer seafishing for about six dollars a head (from this they receive the nickname of head bots) and generally stock virtually everything an angler will need for a successful fishing trip, including, of course, bait and tackle.

In addition to offering rental service on rods and reels, many of the bottom boats have snack and beverage facilities and some are even equipped with tiny lunch counters offering sandwiches, coffee, soft drinks and even seasick pills.

While most of the bottom boats schedule early morning trips, it is possible for late sleeping anglers to also get in on the fun as afternoon fishing trips are frequently scheduled, leaving port about one in the afternoon.

Bottom boat fishing will most likely attain even greater popularity when two artificial reefs, now under construction, are placed in position. Composed largely of concrete pipe, these "reefs" will be placed on the ocean bottom near the Inlet in the near future as part of an effort to develop additional fish feeding grounds in the area.

Many of those planning to fish Delaware's inland bays and coastal waters bring their own boats with them, and these, according to the Development Department, should be reminded that all motor boats operating in Delaware waters must meet various safety regulations and be registered (fee is $2). Information concerning these requirements and the registration procedure may, until Sept. 15, be obtained at the Dewey Beach office of the Small Boat Safety Division of the Delaware Commission of Shell Fisheries. Information may also be obtained at the commission's office in the State House Annex in Dover.

Saratoga Raceway Harness News

Friends from his home town of Ticonderoga and Saratoga Raceway will join next Tuesday night, Aug. 30, to honor one of the grand old veterans of harness racing, 79-year-old John Porter.

Special ceremonies will mark the occasion and the evening's feature will be named the John Porter in recognition of the man who drove in the sport for more than 50 years and who still does some training on his farm in his native Ticonderoga.

One who did most of his racing in northern New York, Vermont and Massachusetts, John Porter drove at the Rutland, Vt., Fair for 50 or more years and raced at Saratoga Raceway for many seasons. In fact, he drove the winner of the first race in the history of the Spa Raceway when he reined the trotter, Lucille Glow, to victory on opening night in 1941.

The most formidable horse Porter handled was the pacer, Guy Put, which earned a half-mile track mark of 2:03 1/4. Guy Put died only last fall at the Porter farm at the age of 27.

Michael T. (Mike) Akoury, the 48-year-old North Bennington, Vt., reinsman, went into this, the next to last week of the Saratoga Raceway summer meeting, as the leading driver of the meet with an average of .342. He had taken the lead from Don Corneau Aug. 12, lost it to Corneau the next night, but then regained the top a week ago Monday night and held it for the balance of last week. His .342 was the result of 11 wins, 16 seconds and 10 thirds in 68 drives. Others in the first five at the outset of this week were Don Huff of Rochester at .330, Corneau of Berlin, Md., at .304, Charlie Bogardus of Schorharie at .298 and Don Bromley of Hudson Falls at .297.

Mr. Budlong, the powerhouse that closed out his Saratoga Raceway invasion by setting a national season's record of 2:00 2/5 for four-year-old pacing geldings over a half-mile track, has moved on to Wolverine Raceway. At the Spa, he won six out of seven.

ate harriers are using this outfit as a conditioning test.

Wes Stack, Jay Lutz and Wayne Calloway are slated to represent the University of Delaware with John Creighton of Swartmore also an entry.

Gerry Ragsdale of Newark and Harry Knotts of Harrington are the top high school performers. This pair were third and fourth respectively in the Delaware State High School Cross-Country Championship race last fall. They figure to battle it out for the state title this year, inasmuch as the leading driver of the meet with an average of .342. He had taken the lead from Don Corneau Aug. 12, lost it to Corneau the next night, but then regained the top a week ago Monday night and held it for the balance of last week. His .342 was the result of 11 wins, 16 seconds and 10 thirds in 68 drives. Others in the first five at the outset of this week were Don Huff of Rochester at .330, Corneau of Berlin, Md., at .304, Charlie Bogardus of Schorharie at .298 and Don Bromley of Hudson Falls at .297.

Others from Harrington entered are Dwight and Clarence Hackett, Allen Wix, Tim Strohl, Barry Fry and Dennis Bradley.
