

GOVERNOR CARVEL FAVORS VOTER LIST LAW

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel says legislation is needed to keep Delaware voter registration lists correct and up to date.

The Governor said Tuesday in a letter to State Republican Chairman William V. Roth, Jr., that the state's present registration procedure must be improved.

Carvel disclosed that he was studying the type of legislation needed and that he had taken steps to produce the lists requested by the Republicans.

State Elections Commissioner Ernest E. Killen, responding to Carvel's request for a target date for the lists, said Wilmington names will be ready by the first week of next month, but that rural New Castle County lists won't be available for at least two months.

Carvel's and Killen's disclosures were triggered by a double-barreled effort launched last month by the GOP to get up-to-date voter registration lists: Roth appealed to the Governor to help get the information; New Castle County GOP Chairman Robert P. Maclary threatened Killen with a court suit unless the lists were supplied by Aug. 15.

Carvel wrote Roth that he had met with Killen and the chairmen of the three county elections departments to discuss the immediate problem and the long-range solution.

He pointed out that Killen said it was physically impossible to provide a corrected list of registered voters in the few days between the last supplemental registration date and the day of the general election.

The Governor wrote Roth:

To correct this serious handicap, the administration is considering legislation to assure periodic, comprehensive audits of the registration lists and to assure the availability of registration lists on the day of the general election.

"The legislation under study would provide that:

"A. The election commissioner be required to supply county chairmen of both parties with audited registration lists ten days prior to the first supplemental registration day in each year of a general election.

"B. The Department of Elections of the various counties be required to supply, prior to general election day, a supplemental list of the changes made from the date of issue of the audited list through the last supplementary registration day."

Carvel also asked Killen how soon he could supply the registration lists and the commissioner answered Tuesday:

"Our work on the audit of the 1960 general election and preparation of voters registration lists is proceeding in good order. As the voters' signature cards arrive from the New Castle County office, our files are being prepared for the tabulator.

"Mr. Hutchinson (Edwin W. Hutchinson, executive secretary of the New Castle County Department of Elections) reports that all of his work for the city of Wilmington signature cards will be completed by their office this week. Therefore we will be able to start giving out the lists by district the first week in September. He further states the work on rural New Castle County cards will not be finished by their office for at least two months.

"As we complete district by district, all county chairmen will be notified so that they might come in to pick up their lists.

"I can assure you there will be no time lost in making this information available to the public. We are now, as we have done in past, using the help in the auditor's office to help the staff of the election commissioner's office whenever there is an hour to spare."

Steps have been taken by two Senate Republicans to appropriate an additional $35,000 for Killen to hire a staff to get the lists in shape. The bill was introduced by Senators James H. Snow—

Local Legion Cited For Service To Children

C.K.R.T. Post No. 7 of the American Legion here has been cited by The American Legion National Headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind., for outstanding service to children and youth.

Announcement of the citation was made by Frank O'Neal, Commander of C.K.R.T., Post No. 7. "Child Welfare is one of the American Legion's major programs," Commander O'Neal said, "and we are proud that our efforts have been honored in this way."

The citation is personally signed by American Legion National Commander William R. Burke, National Child Welfare Chairman Percy A. Lemoine, National Child Welfare Director Randel Shake, and by State Child Welfare Chairman George Ehinger.

All American Legion Posts are required to submit an annual report of their work for children and youth. It was on the basis of this report made by Child Welfare Chairman Ted Layton that C.K.R.T., No. 7 won the citation for outstanding service during the past 12 months.

Among activities which earned this recognition for the Post, the Commander listed the following: Contributed to the American Legion Child Welfare Foundation, March of Dimes, Mental Health, Crippled Children, Retarded Children and Boys State.

For the annual Christmas parade and party, $25 was donated for fruit to be distributed to the children. The Post used the 40 & 8 locomotive and gave rides to about 300 children during this parade.

Clothing was given to some underprivileged children of our community.

The Post sponsored an 8-team Biddy Basketball League. Every Saturday during the season four games were played at the Field House. After the last game, a party was held at the Post Home where ice cream and cake were served to all. Each member of the Championship team was presented with a gold cup. Members of the Post donated their time to this very worthy program.

Through the untiring efforts of the members of C.K.R.T., Post No. 7, many children benefited during the past year.

The citation award will be framed and displayed at the next regular meeting. All members are urged to be present.

State Tax Refund Total Passes $5 Million Mark

State income tax refund checks being mailed this week will bring to $5,320,732 the sum returned to Delaware taxpayers since 1958.

Alexander R. Abrahams, state tax commissioner, announced Monday night that 3,902 checks totaling $91,098.03 are scheduled to be mailed out before Friday.

They will bring the total since July 1 to 17,603 refunds and $386,019.

Abrahams also reported he was mailing 104 refund checks to corporations Tuesday. The checks total $32,917.54.

The commissioner said the 189,000 checks mailed out in the past four years shows that the office "gives refunds very serious consideration." In the six-year period before Abrahams took office, checks totaling $1,496,682 were issued—less than 30 per cent of the dollar value of refunds in the next four years, which covered returns as far back as 1953.

Taxpayers entitled to refunds received Abrahams' assurance that their checks will be in the mail as soon as their return is audited. He pointed out that particular attention must be paid to returns which indicate a refund is due. Checks are held up in all cases of questionable deductions, exemptions or other errors until a further review is made. "Another reason for taxpayers to be more careful in preparing or making their returns," he added.

Guardsmen Get A Year Added Duty

Some Delaware Army National Guardsmen have been ordered to remain in service an extra year.

The order, which came from Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr, affects Guardsmen whose enlistments or reserve obligations service would have ended between Oct. 1 and June 30, 1962. Maj. Gen. Joseph J. Scannell, Delaware adjustment general, announced.

The number affected can not immediately be determined, although an unofficial estimate put it at several hundred. Monday's order by Stahr also temporarily halted active duty training required of Guardsmen who have just signed up.

But men who wish to apply for the few vacancies remaining in the Delaware Guard, have until Aug. 31 to do so, although they will not serve their six months of active duty until after Jan. 1, Scannell said.

Trainees already on active duty will complete their six-month terms.

Low Road Bids Total $276,991

The State Highway Department received bids Tuesday for five contracts, three for construction projects and two for maintenance supplies.

A total of 12 contracting firms submitted bids on the various projects, with the five lowest bids totaling $276,991.98.

Included among the construction projects was the replacement of two bridges over Beaver Creek, along Route 221 in northern New Castle County. Dabson Paving Company, Wilmington, was the lowest of three bidders with a $66,508 figure.

Another bridge project provided for the replacement of a bridge over Dirickson Creek, Sussex County, along the road leading from Roxana to Williamsville. George & Lynch, Inc., Wilmington, submitted the low bid of $34,073.50.

Six bids were received for the improvement of five dirt roads in Sussex County totaling 7.15 miles. The roads are generally west of Lewes. Douglas C. Hudson, Milton, submitted the low bid of $135,219.28.

Only one bid was received for furnishing 10,000 feet of treated timber in assorted sizes for use in Sussex County. It came from Simpler Lumber & Coal Company, Felton, whose price was $1,860.

Two bids were received for furnishing a total of 235,760 pounds of grader blades and 140,125 pounds of snow plow blades for use in the three counties. Valk Manufacturing Company, Carlisle, Pa., was low bidder at $37,588.50.

The blade requirements for each county were: New Castle—56,160 pounds of grader blades and 37,275 pounds of snow blades; Kent—20,000 pounds of grader blades and 34,000 pounds of snow plow blades, and Sussex—159,600 pounds of grader blades and 68,850 pounds of snow plow blades.

Car Skids 600 Feet, Felton Man Fined

A Felton man was hurt slightly Monday when his car hit a tree at Felton on Route 282.

State police at Bridgeville said Joseph W. Bradley, 25, skidded 600 feet before striking the tree. He was treated by a Harrington physician for a nose injury.

Bradley was fined $25 and costs on a speeding charge by Magistrate Elijah Harrington of Felton.

BEACH EROSION WORK TO START AT REHOBOTH

Rehoboth's long time beach erosion problems are nearing at least a part-time solution.

It was on this optimistic note that the retiring Board of Commissioners closed its regime at a meeting Friday night. The board wound up its affairs before the newly elected officers are sworn in Sept. 9.

A letter was read from the State Highway Department reporting that work would start this fall on repairs and extension to the present jetties with a fund of $130,000 just appropriated by the state.

The jetties will be extended 100 feet from the ends off shore. There is hope this will materially assist in correcting the erosion that has been damaging the shoreline many years.

Mayor Clarence K. Lynch presided at his last meeting, having been defeated in his bid for a fourth 2-year term. All members of the outgoing board were present with the exception of James T. Chandler, Wilmington, who lost his bid for re-election.

Sept. 9 the new mayor, J. C. Stamper, will be sworn into office along with two new commissioners, Frank S. Parker of Millsboro, and Mrs. Hilda B. Zoller of Rehoboth, and Charles W. Cole, of Seaford, who was re-elected another two years.

The retiring board will meet for one hour, 11 a.m. to noon, to finish up old business and then the new board will be sworn in and take office.

Teacher Pay Bill Law, Bove Rules

A bill giving full pay credit to teachers with out-of-state experience is in full force and effect, the General Assembly was advised Wednesday.

Atty. Gen. Januar D. Bove, Jr., released an opinion in which he said that House Bill 23, if it "has other requisites for validity," has become law.

The attorney general's opinion was in answer to a query by Vincent A. Theisen, then president of the State Board of Education, about the status of the bill, which the House of Representatives tried — but failed — to recall for Gov. Elbert N. Carvel.

Bove wrote: "In this opinion we assume the accuracy of the facts stated in your letter (July 26). Based upon these facts it is our opinion that Resolution of Recall is not valid and does not of itself prevent HB 23 from becoming an existing law. We conclude that if HB 23 has other requisites for validity that it has become an existing law."

HB 23 was approved by the House and passed by the Senate on June 7. Thereafter the House adopted a Resolution of Recall. The Governor failed to return the

State's Zero Changes: 1960 Polio Cases Found

Although Delaware had no official cases of polio last year, there were two.

Both cases are on the State Board of Health records for this year since they were diagnosed in January.

The first was a 2-year-old New Castle boy admitted to a Wilmington hospital Oct. 31 and diagnosed as aseptic meningitis. He had three Salk shots. The Virus Laboratory of Delaware eventually found live virus of non-paralytic polio in a specimen. Since this strain of polio virus can cause the symptoms of aseptic meningitis in a mild case, such as can occur when the patient has Salk vaccine protection, the State Board of Health listed it as polio.

There were newspaper reports of the other case this January. It was a 3-year-old Wilmington boy who had one Salk shot and came down with an illness around Christmas. Early the next month, the case was diagnosed as paralytic polio. The boy was in an iron lung for a time and has some permanent damage.

Movies Seek Photogenic Boar Here For Role in 'State Fair'

A Photogenic Hampshire boar has a chance to appear in the movies, with all the emoluments which go with it.

A director of the Kent & Sussex Fair here has received a letter from Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, Beverly Hills, Calif., stating the porker is needed for a movie, the shooting for which is to start in mid-September. The studio is seeking pictures of the grand champion Hampshire boar at each state fair. Each winner will automatically become a candidate for the starring role of "Blueboy" in the picture, "State Fair."

The letter, continuing, adds, "It must be understood that the disposition of the hog will enter into consideration. He must not have too unattractive a temperament. We cannot risk having an actor mauled, even by the greatest hog in the world."

Carvel Sets Up Meeting To Break Revenue Deadlock

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel has called a bi-partisan meeting of General Assembly leaders in an effort to break the deadlock over means of increasing the state's revenue.

The luncheon meeting will be held in the Governor's Suite at Dover at noon Friday.

Failure to enact into law the Governor's proposed one-cent increase in the state motor fuel tax is costing the state $200,000 a month in loss of revenue, the Governor said.

His invitation was extended to five senators, five representatives, and Lt. Gov. Eugene Lamont.

Senators invited are John E. Reilly, Sr. (D-Wilmington), the president pro tem; Curtis W. Steen (D-Dagsboro), majority leader; Allen J. Cook (D-Kentton), majority whip; James H. Snowden (R-Wilmington), minority leader, and Reynolds du Pont.

Those invited from the House are Reps. Sherman W. Tribbitt (D-Odessa), speaker; Norman Eskridge (D-Seaford), majority leader; George A. Robbins (D-Milford), majority whip; William T. Best (R-Nassau), minority leader, and T. Lees Bartle-

Youth Ruled Guilty in Blinding of Girl, 11

Ronald William Hoffercker was found guilty by Juvenile Court Judge W. Marion Stevenson Tuesday of firing a revolver shot that blinded 11-year-old Janet Pepper last Jan. 14.

Judge Stevenson placed him on probation for two years and required him to pay the costs of the case and also $1,000 restitution toward the hospital and medical expenses of the girl.

He specified that during his probation he must keep reasonable hours and otherwise behave himself.

The specific charge against Hoffercker, who was 17 when the shooting occurred, was that he was delinquent under the Juvenile Court laws by committing an aggravated assault and battery.

Hoffercker turned 18 last Saturday. He lives in Wyoming.

Henry J. Ridgely, attorney for the youth, indicated that he might take an appeal to the Superior Court when he asked Judge Stevenson the time limit in which he must take such an action. The time is 30 days.

Judge Stevenson based his decision on negligence on the part of Hoffercker rather than intent to make a target of the girl.

Judge Stevenson heard the case on July 11. At that time the youth maintained he was driving and picked up a borrowed .22-caliber Fire destroyed the last of Harrington's canning factories Friday afternoon when the R. W. Vane Cannery, at the northern end of Weiner Avenue, burned.

A neighbor turned in the alarm at 3:10 p.m. It is reported that some children were seen with a fire at the rear of the building before the alarm was turned in. Harrington police have been working on the case and State Fire Marshal Robert Favinger was here this week checking on the fire's origin.

The cannery had not been in operation for several years but one section was used as a storage room for gasoline and fuel pumps by Kenneth Aiken.

Fire Chief C. Douglas Mills said the blaze apparently started in this section of the cement-block-and-wooden structure. He estimated the building loss at $25,000 and $3000 damage to Aiken's equipment. The Vane property was insured.

The flames ate through the wire room, rented by Aiken, to the main cannery section and an adjoining office. A warehouse to the south was saved.

In addition to Harrington, fire companies from Houston, Felton, and Farmington responded to the alarm. There were 35 men in service.

Firemen had the fire under control in an hour and 20 minutes but it was 8 p.m. before it had put out the smoldering ruins and cleaned up and had its equipment ready for service.

The firemen encountered several difficulties. One was a wind from the east, estimated at 20 to 25 miles per hour. Another was low water pressure. The firemen had to use about 9000 feet of 2½-inch hose and 300 feet of 1½-inch hose to reach the first which was nearly a mile from the water tower.

With low water pressure, tank trucks had to get water from the Kent & Sussex Fairgrounds which has its own water system.

During the fire, a smokestack fell on a 2300 volt line, of the Delaware Power & Light Company, from Harrington to Felton, disrupting electric service about two and a half hours.

The Vane cannery, which straddled a ditch marking the northern boundary of the City, was originally known as Smith Cannery. Other canneries were the plants of John W. Sheldrake nearby, E. C. Reese, and L. B. Harrington. Vane started operating the former Smith cannery in the 20's and canned string beans and tomatoes. It was last in operation several years ago when it was leased by Parker & Hughes which also has a cannery near Burrsville.

Rain Clouds Silver-Lined For Farmers

The rain clouds that darkened Delaware skies Monday should brighten the prospects of farmers according to agricultural experts.

The storm, which covered most of the eastern seaboard, dumped one to two inches of rain on state crops.

William Mitchell, assistant extension agronomist at the University of Delaware, said the precipitation will be particularly helpful for fall planting, which until now had been delayed because the ground was too hard for plowing. In this light he called the rain "awfully important."

Gerald Cole, Kent County agricultural agent, said most crops will be helped by the rain. He pointed out, however, that some crops—corn in the Harrington area, for instance—had been damaged too badly to benefit. Harrington and vicinity had been suffering from a six-week drought, although most of the state reports a fairly good summer as far as weather is concerned.

The Sussex County agent, William Henderson, said the rain will help pastureland and late hay crops in the county. He also said soybeans and the later-planted limas should be benefited by the rainfall. As for the corn, he said some crops will be improved but others are too far gone.

The rain was termed "very valuable" to the state's fruit growers. It reportedly came in time to do a lot of good, especially for the state's peaches and apples.

Felton

Hilarious and entertaining are probably the best words to describe the baseball game played last Friday evening at Felton School grounds between the Felton Pony League team and their dads. Yes, the boys beat the dads 16 to 9, but it wasn't all the dad's fault because they had the boy's manager, Tom Kates, pitching. The boys finally knocked him out and Garvis Dinsmore had to finish the game pitching. The dads finished the game strong and would probably make a better showing if the sun had stayed out of Jim Blades' eyes and Zeke Dill had started playing on the right side of second base. Everybody, boys and dads had a good time. Immediately after the game the mothers entertained the boys with a picnic at the V.F.W. Home.

Monday night, Cliff Chamber's Pick-ups defeated the Pony League 8-0 in a well played game. This brought to a close a very successful season for the Pony League. A member of the Kent-Sussex Pony League, the Felton team won the pennant with 13 wins and 2 losses. The Felton Pony League, sponsored by the Adams-Simpler-Ware Post No. 6009 Veterans of Foreign Wars, is managed by T. L. Kates with Garvis Dinsmore and John Kates assistants.

Fishing Lines

West Indies

Recently a group of tourists at Bowers came upon some fishermen cleaning exceptionally large sea trout. Since they were planning a fishing trip for the following day, they inquired as to the location of this particular catch. One of the fishermen promptly replied that the fish were caught in the West Indies. Knowing the location of the West Indies to be between Florida and South America the tourists felt that the local inhabitants were joking with them. However, the location given in this group was entirely correct for the West Indies of the Delaware Bay is the name given to the oldest, most popular and most productive of the trout fishing grounds in the Delaware Bay area.

Derivation of the Name

The name "West Indies" was given to a small group of oyster grounds almost 100 years ago. Today there is possibly only one man in Delaware who can give some explanation as to why this ancient oyster and fishing ground was given the name "West Indies." Ninety-year-old Caleb Darrow, possibly Delaware's oldest living fisherman and oysterman, gives this explanation. In the late 1800's oystering in Delaware was exceptionally good, and the possibility of creating new oyster grounds close to shore was not practical. A site was chosen where the water was deep, clear, extremely rough, and a great distance from port. Eighty years ago 10 to 12 miles offshore was like taking a journey to the original West Indies; therefore, the oystermen gave this now famous fishing site the name "West Indies."

Trout in This Area

At present charter and small boats are making excellent catches of trout in this area. Trout in the 1 1/2 and 2 pound category are common. The water here at 20 feet is not exceptionally deep, thus providing a hooked trout the opportunity to run and show its fighting ability. Strips of bluefish are used successfully in catching large trout. The trout have just arrived and are expected to remain until late September, weather permitting.

Marlin

Until recently white marlin had been eluding the baits of anxious sportsmen, however, they are now striking and being taken consistently in the Indian River area. In one particular case the fish was taken too easily. Normally a marlin fights and jumps for nearly one hour in an attempt to throw the hook. This particular marlin was hooked and boated in six minutes, which should be a record. It was hooked extremely deep, and the trolling leader was wrapped around its bill possibly explaining the short fight. Marlin have some unusual characteristics, one being the fact that they kill their food before eating. When near a school of anchovies the marlin will go in thrashing and kill the anchovies with its bill, then swim through feeding on the kill.

Record Size—Record Number In addition to the six minute marlin landing, two other records have also been established. In the Delaware Bay a 10 foot, 600 pound shark was landed on game fish tackle. In the Indian River area 40 tuna were taken in one day's fishing.

Reese Theatre Notes

Glorious-Glorious! All attendance records broken last week for the Movie Center Summer Season. With a bevy of new hits under contract the management states new attendance records are sure to be broken. A glance at the Reese Theatre program, to be found in this newspaper might substantiate this prediction.

Happiness is the keynote of this Movie Center presentation, and MGM's new belly-buster, "The Honeymoon Machine" with Steve McQueen and a great cast, listed for this Fri. & Saturday, Aug. 25 and 26, surely hits the high spots in spontaneous enjoyment. It's truly the laugh spree of the season. Coupled with the requested "Picnic" with William Holden and Kim Novak, the whole presentation shapes up into unexcelled entertainment.

Hit the glory road. That's "Angel Baby". The ever-popular George Hamilton is the star of Allied Artist's controversial "Angel Baby", the new screen sensation tearing the screen apart. "Angel Baby" plays the Reese Theatre, Sunday and Monday only, Aug. 27 and 28. To miss it is to miss an evening of unusual entertainment.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—Will the Veterans Administration reimburse me, or the undertaker involved, in connection with the burial of my son in 1957? He was a war veteran.

A—Although payment not to exceed $250 is made by the VA toward the expense of the permanent burial or cremation of a veteran, the claim must be filed within two years after the burial or cremation. It would appear that the time limit for this claim has expired in your case.

Q—Since $15,000 may now be obtained through a direct GI loan, and since the house I am buying by this method will only cost $13,500, can I get an improvement loan for the remaining $2000 at the same time?

A—You can file for a direct loan to cover the cost of the house and for an improvement loan at the same time, if the total will not exceed $15,000.

Q—Is it necessary that I finish high school in order to enter training under the War Orphans program?

A—Certain vocational programs can be entered upon under War Orphans Act provisions without

SOYBEANS

NORTH CAROLINA
DELAWARE

Soybean Champs Compare Notes

Sudler J. Wilson, champion soybean producer of Delaware and Newton Hampton, North Carolina, state champ, discuss the importance of soybean production in the two states.

Wilson produced 51 bushels per acre of high quality beans to become the Delaware champion. Hampton grew 51.68 bushels per acre to earn his crown.

Hampton accompanied several North Carolina soybean producers touring Delaware recently. Both states have shown tremendous increases in soybean production during recent years. In 1954, Delaware farmers grew 80,000 acres. This year over 200,000 acres are devoted to soybeans.

This 250 percent increase in seven years means soybeans are rapidly becoming a leading crop in Delaware.

D.E.C. Holds Annual Members Meeting

Record attendance, 612 members, their families and friends filled the grandstand.

Early Bird Prize, Black Angus Rotissarie (donated by Rumsey Electric Co.) was awarded to Orrie Hobbs of Harrington.

Foot tapping music was presented by the 287th Army Band of the Delaware National Guard. One comment, they didn't play long enough.

Re-elected for terms of 3 years each were directors: C. Arthur Taylor, District No. 3; D. Gooden Pepper, District No. 6; and Taylor Vaughn, District No. 9.

Manager Walter F. Spence reported that at the organizational meeting of the directors, the following officers were elected:

Paris C. Kirby, president; C. Arthur Taylor, vice president; E. Laird Kratz, secretary and treasurer; Alden P. Short, assistant secretary and treasurer.

Henry C. Johnson Jr. was named as director to serve on the Board of the National Rural Electric Co-operatives Association.

Prizes

Electric sweeper, donated by Artercraft Electric Co., Wilmington, won by Arthur Theil, Felton; G. E. Clock radio, donated by the American Lighting Corporation, Memphis, Tenn., won by Joseph Penuel, Milford; 3-piece starter set with control and lids—by Westinghouse and donated by them, won by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Banning, Bridgeville.

Numerous prizes were given by the co-operative. Other gifts were donated by: Ernest Hover, Central Electric Supply Co., Graybar Electric Supply Company, Wagner Electric Company.

Electric heat displays were shown by: Artercraft Electric Supply, Salisbury; M. A. Keller, Lewis; Westinghouse Electric Supply Company, Wilmington; R. A. Johnson & Company, Glenside, Pa.

Roger Fleming, secretary-treasurer of the American Farm Bureau Federation, told members of the Delaware Electric Cooperative here that the long term interest of rural electric cooperatives and their user-members lies in strengthening the private, competitive enterprise system.

Alluding to moves being made by public power advocates to greatly broaden the scope of their activities, Fleming told the Delaware group:

"I can see no reason why nationalization is any more desirable for the power business than for any other business.

"The more commercial enterprises are taken over by government, the greater the tax burden on the rest of the economy. Every society which has experimented with public ownership of commercial enterprises has discovered that it is the politically managed sector of the economy that becomes inefficient, stagnates and must be subsidized by the private sector."

Fleming, who also is director of the Washington office for the nation's largest farm organization, spoke to the Delaware Electric Cooperative at its annual meeting at the Kent-Sussex Farm Grounds here.

The elected voting delegates of the member state Farm Bureaus at the most recent annual meeting of the AFBF, reiterated their opposition to the conversion of rural electric cooperatives into a public power system, Fleming declared:

"Cooperatives, like other private businesses, are owned by individuals, rather than by government," he went on. "Both seek to provide service on a business basis, both seek to minimize costs and to maximize returns, both endeavor to return any benefits from their operations to individual citizens rather than to government, both are managed by boards of directors representing ownership and membership and both are relatively free of government control."

He said he felt one of the things most needed is for rural electric co-operatives to cause their members to feel and know they own a specified interest in the cooperative, and to make that ownership more significant than mere possession of a piece of paper or a bookkeeping entry.

The power field is not the only area where government "planners" see broadscale government intervention as a panacea, Fleming went on.

He pointed to the proposal that federal marketing orders—successful on a localized basis for a few commodities—be expanded to cover the nation and to include all or most agricultural commodities.

Saying that federal marketing orders have been relatively successful in the dairy and fresh fruit and vegetable fields because they have been used locally, Fleming warned that national marketing orders are not cures-all for all farm problems.

Even in the dairy marketing order fields, he said, there have been problems arising from bloc voting and from attempted expansions of the areas covered by existing orders. Further, he added, Farm Bureau never has agreed that federal marketing orders should be used to control production or to collect money for advertising and sales promotion.

Marketing, he said, is the logical concern of farmers and their organizations and the Farm Bureau is aggressively pursuing marketing problems in several ways.

Recently, he added, Farm Bureau organized the American Agricultural Marketing Association to help farmers develop their own marketing groups. In addition, Farm Bureau has its own Trade Development Corporation, with an office in Rotterdam, Holland, to assist American agricultural develop dollar sales for farm products abroad.

Fleming told his audience that as desirable as improved marketing practices are, they should not be regarded as the whole answer to problems piled up as the result of the long-time disruption of agricultural production by unwise government programs, which have induced the production of huge surpluses.

He said Farm Bureau is continuing to push in the Congress for its cropland adjustment program under which 60 to 80 million acres of productive land would be retired on a voluntary basis to help farmers make the transition from surplus production for the market.

The cropland adjustment program, he said, would require a minimum of control and would allow farmers to produce for consumer demand rather than for government storage.

Chart of Bay Essential For Safe Boating

A chart of the Delaware River and Bay is an essential piece of equipment on any boat venturing out on those bodies of water, the Delaware Safety Council declared yesterday in a warning to the thousands of Delawareans who own or use boats.

The number of boats which run aground on the jetties in the river is shocking, J. James Ashton, manager of the council, declared, pointing out that on a recent weekend three boats piled up on the concrete and steel jetties. There are two jetties protecting the channel at big bends in the river—one extending from New Castle to Pea Patch Island, the other a little further south, off Port Penn. Both are well marked on the chart of the river, and should be no surprise to anyone who navigates the river, in spite of the fact that the jetties do not show above the water at high tide.

It is also important for small boat operators to realize that there is a swift current in the river, Mr. Ashton said. Before attempting to go swimming or rowing in the river, or venturing out in a boat with an unreliable motor, it is well to throw a stick in the river and see how fast the current carries it away to get an idea of the current's speed, he suggested.

Another of the dangers that go with boating on the Delaware, he continued, is the heavy traffic of fast moving freighters and tankers. Small boats must not only keep out of their way, but must be careful of their wake which can easily swamp an overloaded small boat, he said.

In areas of the Delaware Bay where small boat traffic is heavy, it is essential for the safety of all concerned that boat operators know and practice the pilot rules.

Mr. Ashton also reminded boat operators to:

1. Inspect your boat and equipment before you leave the dock or mooring.

2. Be sure the boat is not overloaded and has the freeboard needed to fend off rough water or wake.

3. Instruct passengers on safe behavior in the boat, and to remain with the boat if it capsizes.

4. Respect the rights of water skiers, swimmers, and fishermen.

5. Carry a fire extinguisher, water proof first aid kit, repair kit, spare parts, and extra fuel in a safe container.

6. Be sure your anchor and line are the right size.

7. See that you have a life preserver for each passenger, your bailing device, your whistle or horn, and the required lights.

Sewing is Easy With Stretch Fabric

It's easy, nothing to it—sewing on these new stretch fabrics that is.

Just keep in mind these few pointers provided by Miss Janet Reed, extension clothing specialist at the University of Delaware and those stretch slacks or dress you've been wanting to make should turn out beautifully.

1. Select a pattern that's been designed especially for stretch fabrics, otherwise you may have to make several pattern alterations. For example, if you're making some slacks and you purchase a standard pattern and fabric that stretches lengthwise, you'll have to shorten the pant legs and the crotch to allow for the stretch of the fabric when you have the slacks on. If you buy a fabric that stretches crosswise, you'll have to make alterations to allow for stretch in that direction. Since most pattern companies now feature patterns for stretch fabrics, you shouldn't have much trouble finding one you like.

2. Use textured nylon thread. This type thread will stretch with the fabric and thus eliminate a lot of seam splitting that might occur if you used regular thread.

3. To avoid pulling stretch fabrics out of shape, handle them as little as possible. You may want to eliminate stay-stitching when working with this type of fabric since it would mean additional handling.

4. Use sharp pins and shears. These tools make any sewing job easier and the products more attractive.

5. If your fabric ravel, finish the seam edges by pinking, hand or machine overcasting or by using a zig-zag stitch on them.

6. Since stretch fabrics are sometimes fairly heavy and quite resilient, hems should be turned up and hand or machine stitched in place without turning under the raw edge. Before stitching, pink the raw edge to give it a neat appearance. If your fabric ravel, finish the raw edge of the hem by overcasting or zig-zagging.

7. Garments made with stretch fabric should not be lined since there are no stretch lining fabrics on the market at the present time.

Keeping Cut Flowers Fresh

"Hokus pokus" such as putting aspirin tablets or pennies into flower vases won't do much to prolong the life of your cut flowers.

The secret of keeping flowers looking fresh is to maintain as much water in the stems as possible, according to Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

To keep flowers perky-looking, Stevens recommends you pick them in the early morning or late evening when the stems are full of water. As soon as you cut the flowers plunge the stems into a container of lukewarm water. Then place the container in a cool spot for several hours before arranging the flowers in a vase.

After arranging the flowers and making sure that no foliage is submerged in the water, place the flowers in a spot that's out of the way of drafts and direct sunlight. This will minimize the loss of water from the flowers due to evaporation.

When the flowers begin to wilt, Stevens suggests you recut the stems and again plunge them into lukewarm water to revive them.

Flowers with woody stems often have a hard time taking up water. To help them out, Stevens advises splitting the stems several inches up from the bottom. With more stem area exposed the flowers will be able to absorb more water, he explains.

USDA Moves to Conserve Rye Supplies

To conserve supplies of rye, sales of Commodity Credit Corporation stocks are being restricted and export programs are being discontinued, according to R. Harry Wilson, chairman, Kent County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. Production of rye this year is being adversely affected by severe drought in the major growing area.

The chairman said that CCC-owned rye now is not available for redemption of certificates issued under the feed grain payment-in-kind export program, and reduced export prices of CCC stocks have been discontinued for sales under the CCC Credit Export Sales Program and for barter exchanges.

U. of D. Plant Crabgrass Control Clinic

Crabgrass can be controlled, says John A. Covert, urban assistant, University of Delaware. The department of agronomy has prepared to prove it; they're planning a crabgrass control clinic to show the results of their experimental work. Covert says, 15 different chemical crabgrass control methods have been tested in the experimental plots at Agricultural Hall, Newark. The results vary from practically no results to 90 per cent control.

The crabgrass control clinic will be held September 13 at 7:00 p.m. at Agricultural Hall. The meeting will give those interested in a good lawn a chance to see these experimental plots and learn how to solve the crabgrass problem. Agronomists from the University will be there to answer questions and help solve individual problems.

If you're interested in controlling the biggest nuisance in most Delaware lawns, mark Sept. 13 on your calendar.

Teachers Complete Workshop At Univ. of Del.

More than 65 persons attending a teacher leadership conference at the University of Delaware heard a speech Tuesday morning by Taimi Lahti, an official of the National Education Association.

Miss Lahti, assistant executive of the association's department of classroom teachers, spoke on "You and the NEA."

The conference, sponsored by the Delaware State Education Asso- ciation in co-operation with the NEA, opened yesterday with a talk by Joseph H. Brewer, presi- dent of the DSEA and administra- tive assistant at P. S. du Pont High School.

Brewer urged the school lead- ers to strive to make teaching the most honored and respected of all the professions.

The image of teachers as jacks- of-all-trade and masters of none must be demolished, he said.

Teachers must develop and broadcast standards of proficiency and there should be some way, he continued, for the public to be aware of the differing ranks of teaching proficiency.

Just as other professions have interns, clerks, and novices so should teaching have a designat- ion of differences in knowledge and ability, he concluded.

Dr. Carl J. Rees, provost and dean of the university, Richard W. Doney, of Lewes High School, and Lillian T. Cottone, of Dover High School, also addressed the conference Monday.

The two-day leadership meet- ing, ninth in a series, ended Tues- day.

74 Licenses Revoked in July

A total of 74 motorists had their operating licenses revoked during July, according to a report of the revocation division of the Motor Vehicle Department. All but two of the revocations result- ed from convictions for drunken driving.

There was one revocation for a verdict of guilty in a man- slaughter case and another revo- cation that resulted from three sepa- rate convictions in one year on a charge of reckless driving.

Of the revocations 44 were Delaware motorists and 26 were from other states while four De- laware motorists were convicted of drunken driving in other states; 69 of the revocations were for male motorists while 5 were fe- males.

There were also 17 motorist who had their period of revoca- tion extended for driving while their license was revoked.

Of the revocations for drunken driving, 55 were first offenders, 16 were second offenders and one was convicted for the fifth time. 22 of the revocations were from Kent and Sussex County motorists with 7 being in Kent County, including Milford and 4 from the greater Dover area, and 15 were from Sussex County.

The age group of 46 to 55 had the most revocations with 23 while the 26 to 36 age group had 17 and the 37 to 45 year group had 16. There were 8 in the 20 to 25 year group and 5 in the 56 to 65 brackets with one being in the 16 to 19 year group.

Softball News

The Harrington Belles went to Gumboro Tuesday evening for a double-header with a team from Pittsville. Emma Carroll took over the coaching job in the absence of their coach, Harold McDonald.

The Belles had rough going in the first few innings, as nothing seemed to go right, but came on strong in the last two innings. The bid came to late tho, as the Pittsville team came out ahead 11-5.

After a few minutes of rest the Belles went into the second game and opened with two runs scored in the first inning. Brenda Woodall played exceptionally well as she substituted for D. Tip- sword, catcher, who was absent.

At the end of seven innings of play the score was tied 4-4. The teams were hitless in the next two innings and at the top of the tenth inning the local team was able to score one run when Bon- nie Satterfield stole in home on an error. The locals were able to hold the Pittsville team score- less to win the game 5-4.

Saturday night will see the Belles at Salisbury in another double-header against the Salis- bury All-Stars. This team has defeated the Belles in two pre- vious games. If the Belles are in top shape and play the way they did Tuesday night, they have a good chance to turn the tables on the All-Star team.

5 Studying For Dover Police Jobs

The Dover Police Department may add five more men after the first police recruit school graduates next month.

These five candidates have been spending six days a week since the first of the month study- ing laws and enforcement.

The five in school are those left out of a dozen who applied, in- dicated it isn't easy these days to become a policeman.

The candidate must pass a stan- dard intelligence test and then get approval from a state psychia- trist.

The four-week school at the Army Reserve Center on New Street includes: city ordinances, laws of arrest, firearms, finger- printing, defensive tactics, pho- tography, handling evidence, handling prisoners, and first aid.

Sgt. Howard H. Steele of the Dover force is the school's train- ing officer. He is aided by other members of the department and agent from the FBI.

Each Friday the recruits are given a 50-question examination on the week's instruction. The recruits are paid while at school.

If all complete the course, Dover will have a police department of 22 members.

"But academics aren't the only thing the boys learn," Steele adds, "we also stress the respon- sibilities of the job.

"We put them in situations they may later find themselves—ones in which it gets tough to remain a gentleman."

bill to the House. Theisen's letter said he believ- ed the bill fell into the category of one which becomes a law on the expiration of the 10th day after it was received by the Gov- ernor.

Explaining his opinion, Bove wrote: "To hold otherwise would mean that one House of the General Assembly could thwart the will of the other and more confusion would be added to an already dif- ficult legislative process.

"Further, the unilateral recall of a bill by either House would interfere with the rights and functions of the governor in such cases.

"This office has been advised that in connection with the bill in question, the Governor had already written a veto message and handed it to the House of Repre- sentatives when the House adopt- ed its unilateral Resolution of Re- call on the 10th day after the bill was delivered to the Governor."

Bove's ruling was restricted to HB 23, but legislators and school men are of the opinion it appar- ently applies also to HB 213, which appropriates $41,843.65 to the New Castle and Kent County Departments of Elections for the purchase of voting machines, and HB 12, appropriating $3,300 to the New Castle School District for the erection of a fence around the Booker T. Washington School.

Both were in the same recall re- solution with HB 23.

The amount of money the state still remains in doubt. Estimates range from $55,000 to $100,000.

Bove said his opinion had been delayed because information available to him had indicated the request for it would become moot. Since a reasonable time has elapsed and the question has not be- come moot, Bove said he chose now to answer Theisen's request.

He also acknowledged the im- portance attached to the bill by the Board of Education at a time when it is recruiting teachers for the coming school year.

Delaware Food Market Report

After Labor Day the vacation season comes to a climatic finish; family menus begin to take on a new look. Heartier and more substantial meals, with greater emphasis on the meat-type foods, once more come to the forefront. These are the foods that will be in most plentiful supply in September, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Not for a long time have top-quality, protein-rich items predominated this list as they will next month.

Most abundant of the September plentiful will be turkey. For three months in a row, turkey has been in excellent supply with quality high. This is the story for September. Marketings next month are expected to be 20 to 25 per cent above September 1960 levels, and the increase is only the beginning. Turkey supplies usually build up during the last four months of the year and reach a peak in November. Expect turkey bargains to continue throughout the year.

Chicken dishes of every kind will also be in order for tender, young broiler-fryers rate high among the September plentifuls. Northeast markets will feature them at bargain prices as marketings will climb about 10 per cent above a year ago!

Beef will also be abundant in the month ahead. More of the higher grade cuts will be available—those that come from the specially fed cattle that yield tender, succulent and flavorful meat. Be sure to vary your choice of cuts and preparations to make full use of all the beef supplies on hand.

Bountiful supplies of lamb are in prospect. Prices so far this year have been lower than a year ago. This situation is expected to continue during the remainder of the year.

To accompany the turkey, chicken, beef or lamb in September meals there will be a variety of late summer vegetables. Most markets will have tomatoes, sweet corn, egg plant, cabbage, snap beans, onions, green peppers, cucumbers and beets, for all are and will be in good supply. Remember, locally grown vegetables offer top quality at low prices.

Eggs Stay Fresh For Six Months

Keeping a six-month supply of fresh eggs on hand was unheard of in Grandma's day. But the magic of modern freezers has made it possible for your homemakers not only to store large quantities of eggs but also to take advantage of lower prices when eggs are plentiful in your local market.

To determine how many eggs you should buy at bargain prices for use during the coming months, first figure out how many whole eggs, white and yolks you think you'll need for cakes, custards, scrambled eggs and omelets. Next, decide how much freezer space you can set aside for storing eggs. Then buy accordingly.

Getting eggs ready to freeze is easy. Just recover the shells and place the eggs in rigid freezer cartons in the quantities the recipes you plan to use call for. For example, if you plan to make an angel food cake for your son's birthday next month, put the number of egg whites you'll need for the cake in a freezer container, label it and put it into the freezer. They'll stay fresh for three to six months.

There is just one little trick to freezing egg yolks by themselves or with the whites. To prevent the yolks from thickening and becoming hard during storage, add some salt or sugar to them before freezing. If you're freezing whole eggs, use 1 teaspoon of salt or 1 tablespoon of sugar for every 2 cups of eggs. For egg yolks alone, use 2 teaspoons of salt or 2 tablespoons of sugar for every 2 cups of yolks. Whether you add salt or sugar will depend on what you plan to use the eggs for later. If the eggs are intended for use in a cake batter, you'll want to add sugar. For scrambled eggs use salt. To prevent a possible disaster, it's a good idea to mark on the freezer container which preservative you've added.

Never fill the freezer containers all the way to the top. The eggs will expand as they freeze requiring additional space and if room for this expansion isn't provided, the container may burst.

Delmarva Poultry Industry Directors Reaffirm Stand Against Gov. Controls

The Delmarva poultry industry prefers to face present broiler price problems standing on its own feet rather than to seek help through government controls and marketing orders, said directors of the Peninsula's poultry association at their quarterly meeting.

With only one dissenting vote, they affirmed the action of their legislative committee which testified in Washington recently against including poultry production controls in the Administration's Omnibus Farm Bill. Their action followed discussion from the floor among the 46 poultry industry leaders present and backed up a report by DPI legislative committee chairman, E. Bowen Quillin of Berlin, Md., who told about activities of his committee in Washington relative to the Omnibus Farm Bill and, more recently at hearings of the House Small Business committee.

DPI president Jim Davis of Seaford presided at the dinner meeting. He stressed the need for all segments of Delmarva's poultry industry to stick together in the present price crisis and predicted that Delmarva would see this one through as it has many others in the past.

Bill Rodney of Laurel, DPI's general Festival chairman reported that bids have already been received to hold the 1963 Chicken Festival at Salisbury, and the 1964 Festival at Dover. Ocean City, Md., has asked consideration as a Festival site just as soon as its new Convention Hall is completed, he said.

Applications from other towns and cities wishing to hold the 1963 Festival will be accepted until September 15, Rodney said. Harrington, already has been selected as the site for the '62 Festival and National Chicken Cooking Contest finals.

Lloyd Geil of Chicago, general manager of the Poultry and Egg National Board, reported on results of the 1961 National Chicken Cooking Contest, listed plans for the '62 contest at Harrington, and said that this contest was now considered by many food editors and trade people to be America's biggest and most important annual poultry promotion event.

Several other reports followed on DPI promotion activities, including one from Salisbury's Dick Wooten who told how "Delmarvalous" chickens "invaded" the heart of Georgia recently during the National Junior Chamber of Commerce convention in Atlanta.

The Children's Bureau of Delaware, a voluntary child placing agency supported through private contributions, is presently conducting a state-wide campaign to stimulate interest in the adoption of Negro babies and young children. Negro couples interested in legally adopting children are being sought by the Bureau to secure permanent parents for children released to the agency for adoption placement. Ages of the children available range from infancy to school age and all are presently being cared for in approved boarding foster homes of the Bureau. Each child has been carefully studied by the agency staff and found to be a normal, healthy youngster who needs the security of a family to whom he can truly belong.

The Tuesday evening meeting will be presided over by Mrs. J. Edward Schell of Wilmington and Lewes Beach, president of the Board of Directors of the Children's Bureau and will feature a display of all the materials available on the recruitment campaign for clubs, churches, and organizations including posters and pamphlets. Mrs. King will explain the over-all purposes of the drive and outline the responsibilities to be carried by the Kent County Committee. Miss Elizabeth S. Feed Grain Program Is Major Success

The 1961 feed grain program, while accomplishing two major objectives of reducing stocks and cutting program costs, will increase farm income by about $500 million, according to U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates. This starting of an upward trend in the farm economy will have far-reaching results.

About 1.2 million of the Nation's corn and grain sorghum farmers are co-operating in the 1961 feed grain program. These co-operating farmers agreed to divert almost a fifth of their usual acreage of corn and a fourth of their grain sorghum acreage to conservation uses. The latest USDA crop report shows estimated production of corn for grain in 1961 at 3.2 billion bushels, compared with 3.9 billion bushels produced in 1960.

The diversion of corn and grain sorghum acreage under the program will mean saving U.S. taxpayers a potential cost of nearly $750 million over a period of years. In addition, the quantity of feed grains held in Commodity Credit Corporation inventory will be reduced by almost 400 million bushels, thus reversing a trend which has seen a sharply mounting accumulation of feed grains.

From 1952, the annual increase in surplus in stock in the U. S. showed the following rate (in millions of tons the first of each year): 1953, 6.9; 1954, 4.7; 1955, 7.4; 1956, 5.6; 1958, 10.2; 1959, 8.6; 1960, 7.0; 1961, 10.3; 1962 (est. 11.0).

Because of the stocks of corn accumulated, (1-1/3 billion bushels as of May 31), the Government now finds itself in the position where costs are about $1.50 for each bushel of corn produced in excess of current needs.

Savings will result from not having to pay storage, handling transportation and interest costs on corn and grain sorghums which would have been acquired under a 1960-type program during the long period (9 to 11 years) before they would be reached for disposal on a first-in, first-out basis.

Under the 1961 feed grain program, the Government pays an average of about 60 cents for each bushel of corn not produced.

Delaware's Income Highest in Nation

Delaware's 1960 per capita income of $3,013 was not only the highest in the Nation but the highest in U. S. history reports the Delaware State Development Department.

Basing its findings on the results of a survey made by the U. S. Department of Commerce, the state information agency advises that, during 1960, Delaware income increased an average of $86, compared with a gain of $63 for the nation as a whole. Delaware's gain was approximately thirty-six per cent greater than the national average of $2,223. per capita.

Total personal income in Delaware is estimated to have been $1,353,000,000 in 1960, compared with $1,285,000,000 the previous year. This was a gain of 5 per cent but Delaware's continuing population growth cut it to a 3 per cent gain on a per capita basis notes the Development Department.

The revised 1960 per capita income standings now show Connecticut second with $2,863 per capita; Nevada third with $2,844; New York fourth with $2,789; and California fifth with $2,741. Despite high wage rates, Alaska,

CCC Price-Support Status Reported

As of May 31, the Commodity Credit Corporation investment in price-support programs amounted to $8.6 billion, according to the latest Department of Agriculture report received at the Kent County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Office at Dover.

Of this total, outstanding loans accounted for $1.5 billion (including $711 million of loans financed by lending agencies), and the cost value of inventories was $7.1 billion.

As of May 31, 1960, the investment was $8.7 billion, of which loans out-standing amounted to $1.4 billion, and inventories $7.3 billion.

Price-support operations in five commodities accounted for the bulk of the 1961 loan total as follows: Corn, 750 million bu., $791 million; tobacco, 616 million lbs., $392 million; wheat, 97 million bu., $174 million; barley, 42 million bu., $33 million; grain sorghum, 14 million cwt., $21 million.

Some of the major items in the CCC inventory as of May 31 were Wheat, 1.3 billion bu., $3.2 billion; corn, 1.3 billion bu., $2.2 billion; grain sorghum, 399 million cwt., $1 billion; upland cotton, 2.2 million bales, $391 million; butter, 117 million lbs., $71 million; barley, 54 million bu., $64 million.

Agricultural Commodities purchased or otherwise acquired by CCC in May had a cost value of almost $122 million, bringing the total for the first 11 months of the 1961 fiscal year to more than $2.7 billion. For the same 11-month period a year earlier, purchases and acquisitions amounted to more than $3.7 billion.

Movement of agricultural commodities out of CCC's inventories in May totaled nearly $248 million, cost value basis, making a fiscal 1961 total through May of more than $3.3 billion.

Levy Court Endorses Work-Relief

New Castle County Levy Court Tuesday endorsed a plan for taking men off county relief roles and putting them to work in the county's park system.

Details of the work-relief project, co-sponsored by Levy Court and the State Department of Welfare will be worked out at a meeting Monday of the welfare board, Harry H. Lambert, Levy Court president, said.

In the meantime, John C. Taylor, county engineer, was instructed to prepare a budget for the new work-relief program, which will supplement a relief-work program under which certain relief clients are required to work off their relief grants.

The work-relief plan will provide jobs for 20 to 30 men on the basis of a dollar an hour for a 40-hour week. The relief work plan will be revised so that clients will accumulate a full week of owed work before reporting on the job.

There will be a time limit of possibly four to six months imposed on those who go from relief rolls to the county payroll under the new plan, Lambert said. He said the new program is expected to have definite psychological benefits.

State Summary

The seasonal work force continues to dwindle as crews complete work commitments and return home or go to work in other localities. The Puerto Rican work contingent is just about a quarter of the peak and is currently slightly above 400. Southern migrants will continue to be in the neighborhood of 2500 until after the potato harvest nears its end. Processing labor will continue to be employed until mid-November when the lima bean and pumpkin crops will be completed. Late snap beans are starting to come in. Rain over the weekend was general over the entire state and proved beneficial to crops which were becoming badly damaged by the continued dry spell. Sweet corn for processing and tomatoes for canneries continue heavy. The peach harvest is under way with a very light crop but excellent quality and good market. Labor generally is in balance with some spotty shortages of tomato pickers and women tomato peelers for work in canneries.

Dover Area

Kent County's important potato crop is about 50% harvested. The market continues its low price level but growers continue to dig. Soaking rain over the weekend proved beneficial to all crops as the moisture content of the soil was low. Farmers were having difficulty setting late cabbage plants unless they irrigated. Sweet corn for fresh market and processing continues heavy. Late fall snap beans will start to come in next week. Tomato acreage is small. Late peaches are slow to ripen with heavy picking of Elbertas put off until next week. Crop is light and most of it will be sold at the packing house or local road side stands. Crews are remaining on the job and labor women 25 years of age and crops.

Georgetown Area

This section of the state suffered most from the dry spell and the recent rains have been especially beneficial. Harvesting of lima beans is in full swing with 35-40 per cent of the crop harvested by last weekend. Dry weather, cool nights, mildew, and Japanese beetles have all combined to keep production down below normal. Tomato and sweet corn harvests continue heavy. Late snap bean harvest, about ready to start. Labor reported in balance with no shortage foreseen.

Prevailing Wage Survey

A wage survey conducted last week established the following rates as prevailing in the Kent Crop Wage Area for the harvesting of potatoes: Field pickers, .08c per field bag; grader hand-male, $1 per hour; grader sorters, female, .80-85-90c per hour.

Build Bomb Shelters, People Urged

Your best bet in the event of a nuclear war is a fall-out shelter.

Build one now! That is the studied advice of Capt. Robert N. Downes, director of the Delaware Department of Civil Defense.

Nothing can help you, Captain Downes said, if a nuclear bomb makes a direct hit in your area. But if it explodes some 40 miles or so away from your locality, then a fall-out shelter could save you, he stressed.

There are no public nuclear bomb shelters in Delaware. They would cost too much. There are no evacuation plans, either. Evacuation is thought to be impractical, Captain Downes said.

According to Captain Downes, this is what Delawareans face should we be attacked by nuclear bombs:

A direct hit with a 10 megaton nuclear bomb on Rodney Square would create damage zones with radii as follows:

"A" Zone — 0.0 to 5.0 radius.

Virtually all structures in this zone would be totally destroyed. This would include the City of Wilmington and the area of heavily populated suburbs bounded by a circle drawn roughly through the greater Wilmington Airport, Cranston Heights, Hoopes Reservoir, Talleyville, and Arden. It would, of course, extend over into Salem County, N. J. All persons in this area would be killed either by the blast or thermal effects of the bomb, or by the initial radiation.

"B" Zone—5.0 to 9.7 miles. All structures in this zone would be heavily damaged, probably beyond repair. This area would extend out to a circle roughly drawn from Marcus Hook, Pa., through Hockessin, Polly Drummond Hill, Chestnut Hill Estates, South of Christiana, and South of State Road. In this area, approximately 30 per cent of the personnel would be fatalities.

"C" Zone—9.7 to 14.0 miles. Buildings in this area would suffer moderate damage, probably requiring that they be vacated during repairs. This area would extend out to and overlap the damage zones from an attack on Philadelphia. Disregarding the effects of the attack on Philadelphia, this zone would extend out to a rough circle drawn through Chester, Pa., Media, Pa., Avondale, Pa., Maryland - Delaware line west of Newark, Kirkwood, and the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal south of Delaware City. Again disregarding the effects of the attack on Philadelphia, approximately 5 per cent of the persons in this area would be killed.

It is assumed that there would be sufficient warning for the people to take shelter. Even taking shelter in a basement would provide some protection and reduce casualties. Assuming that the wind factor is from the west, most of the heavy radiological effects of the attack on Wilmington would be carried across the river into New Jersey.

Assuming simultaneous attacks on the centers of Philadelphia, Washington and Pittsburgh with bombs in the 10 to 20 megaton range, Capt. Downes presented this picture:

The attack on Philadelphia would have little damage effect on Delaware except possibly shattered windows. According to Weather Bureau statistics, there would be less than a 30 per cent chance of a deposit of radioactivity fallout on Delaware from such an attack. However, in case of one of those rare instances when the resultant vector of the winds would be from the northeast, fallout in Wilmington and the northern third of the State could be heavy.

The attack on Pittsburgh would have no damage effects on Delaware. According to Weather Bureau statistics, there is less than a 30 per cent chance of a deposit of radioactive material on Delaware from Pittsburgh, within twelve hours of the attack. However, with the prevailing winds from the west, there is a distinct possibility that radioactive fallout from targets to the westward to cause a delayed deposit of fallout in Delaware.

The attack on Washington would have no damage effects on Delaware. Weather Bureau statistics indicate that Delaware, north of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal, has a 30 to 50 per cent chance of receiving fallout from an attack on Washington; the remainder of the State has a fifty to seventy per cent chance of receiving fallout from an attack on Washington. Such an attack could deposit a path across the State about 10 miles wide in which the fallout would be of undesirable intensity for exposed personnel in shelters, there would be probably no serious effects.
