

BIPARTISAN LEGAL TEAM URGED IN HIGHWAY SUITS

A team of attorneys will soon be appointed to press suit for recovery of $627,000 in overpayments by the State Highway Department to an undisclosed number of contractors.

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel, Atty. Gen. Januar D. Bove, Jr., and members of the Highway Commission at a four-hour conference Monday in Dover hammered out agreement on how the suits would be pursued.

It was decided that the attorney general will direct a battery of lawyers in the suits — with contributions by the Highway Department in money and records.

Carvel, S. Samuel Arshat, counsel for the department, and N. Maxson Terry, chairman of the Commission, will confer again this week to appoint the lawyers. It was recommended at the meeting that they be equally divided as to political party. Bove recommended four — two Democrats and two Republicans, but the number was not discussed except when he made his recommendation.

Bove warned that there will be no easy road to recovery and that the suits will be long, costly, and complicated.

Secretary of State Elisha C. Duker made an educated guess that the suits might cost $225,000. Bove predicted victory "when we get down to the merits of the cases."

The litigation was strongly recommended by Bove in the final report of his investigation of the highway department. He had said, however, that it was up to the department to recover the money he claims was either illegally or improperly spent by the agency in previous years for highway construction.

During the conference, Carvel said he is planning to issue a code of ethics for all public employees as an executive order.

Bove suggested that the governor go further by having this code translated into law.

Before the conference ended, the attorney general praised Carvel for calling the conference and for his interest in the highway department reforms.

In turn, Carvel patted Bove on the back for having undertaken an unpleasant job in the public interest. He noted that Bove, a Republican, deliberately did not make the interim report of the Highway department investigation public during last year's political campaign, even though it was strongly critical of the Democratic Commission.

Governor Carvel Monday also appointed a committee to draft new bidding laws for the State. On the committee are Bove, Arshat, Terry, Frank H. Mackie Jr. of the highway commission; William J. Miller Jr., director of highway department operations; and F. Earl McGinness of the Governor's staff.

This committee will submit its recommendations to Governor Carvel.

In the course of the conference, Governor Carvel expressed the following opinions:

- 1—There must be a merit system in Delaware on a statewide basis — and "the sooner, the better."
- 2 — A well-paid, well-trained corps of highway department inspectors is the heart of the highway department's integrity.
- 3—It would be a good idea to translate into law many of the recommendations for highway department reforms made by the Kelly Committee of the old highway commission.
- 4—Considerable improvement in highway department operations has been undertaken since the Bove report and the reorganization of the department.
- 5—"When it comes to federal aid money for highways, Delaware must see to it that she gets every cent that's due her. I believe, in the final analysis, we

Home and Farm Accident Survey To Be Made

How many people get hurt—and how badly—slipping on rugs? The answer to that and many other questions will be sought in a statewide survey of home and farm accidents to be made by home demonstration groups in co-operation with the Delaware Safety Council.

The point in finding out the details on Delaware home accidents is to use those details in helping people avoid accidents.

"We have figures on fatal accidents on the farm and in the homes, and they are helpful in safety work, but we need to know more about the non-fatal accidents which are, of course, more numerous than the fatal ones," said J. James Ashton, manager

Washington College Offers Its Faculty New Leave Program

A new faculty leave program, designed to encourage "fulfillment of individual creative potential", has been adopted at Washington College in Chestertown, Md.

The College's President, Dr. Daniel C. Gibson, in announcing the program said it will replace the "traditionally accepted academic sabbatical which is used at most other colleges and universities across the country."

"Realizing that good teachers need to be continually striving toward the expansion of their intellectual horizons and whatever creative potential they may have, Washington College has instituted what we consider an effective and substantially more realistic leave program."

Under the new setup faculty members realize two basically different advantages: First, the professor will become eligible to make application for leave after completing only five years of teaching at Washington College. In the past, under the sabbatical program, the professor had to wait seven years.

Secondly, the college instructor who has not completed his graduate study may, after two years of teaching, apply for an interest free loan equal to one-half of his yearly salary or one full semester's salary in order that he or she might complete the necessary graduate work.

Under the new leave program the faculty member, whose application has been approved by the administrative and faculty committee, can receive either a full semester's salary pay or one half year's salary after completing five years teaching at Washington College.

Upon his return to the college the instructor's loan will be diminished 33 1/3 per cent each year the instructor remains at Washington College until the loan is forgiven. In the event, however, that his connection with the college is severed before the loan is fully amortized he will be required to pay the outstanding balance to the college in not more than three years.

"Creative work can not always be done by the clock or calendar," said Dr. Gibson, "and the new program thus provides greater flexibility in meeting the needs of the individual whose project is urgent or timely and who otherwise would have to wait five or seven years before qualifying for leave."

Dr. Gibson said the innovation represents another fringe benefit to the Washington College faculty members.

No Merit Code Yet In Highway Department

The State Highway Department still hasn't put a merit system for its 1,100 employees into effect.

"Although the old Highway Commission authorized a merit system in the agency last January, the reorganized commission appointed since has delayed putting it into effect in hopes the General Assembly will enact a statewide merit system. An administration bill (HB 240) to accomplish this is locked in committee.

William J. Miller, Jr., director of operations, said Tuesday the agency has taken the first steps toward a merit system by a classification of all jobs and an outline of job qualifications.

At a conference between Atty. Gen. Januar D. Bove Jr. and highway officials on Monday,

CARVEL CHARGES FERRIS SCHOOL WITH SLIPSHOD ACCOUNTING

State Insurance Commissioner's Father Dies

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel Tuesday used Ferris School for Boys and the Youth Services Commission as examples of agencies with "slipshod accounting procedures."

Waving a copy of an audit of the Ferris School books during a press conference, Carvel said: "This report lists 24 recommendations for improvement. It is the intention of this administration to follow up this audit report with the agency and assure that there is compliance with these recommendations."

Carvel said the books of Ferris School and the Youth Services Commission, which operates Ferris, hadn't been audited for three years under the Boggs administration.

Although not mentioning him by name, the Governor's attack was in effect a censure of Senate Minority Leader James H. Snowden, R-Wilmington, who is chairman of the commission.

The Governor hailed the Highway Department decision to proceed with suits to recover funds allegedly paid contractors illegally for highway work.

"We are not stopping with the Highway Department—our budget director and the attorney general are already working on recovery of funds and an improved system of control of school construction funds."

Disclosing that an audit of every school district is underway, Carvel charged that this is an area which has been "sadly neglected" over the years.

The Governor, as is his custom as each press conference, again commended the General Assembly for supporting his insistence on a balanced budget.

In line with this, the Governor disclosed that the state has only $19,621 remaining available for appropriation. He said the new revenue estimate is $86,605,000, while estimated expenditures will hit $86,585,379.

He said it is obvious that the state must raise more funds—principally through his cent-a-gallon gasoline tax increase—if the General Assembly is to vote any more appropriations.

Carvel said that when the General Assembly reconvenes late this month or early next month, he will push for enactment of home rule for Delaware cities and towns, zoning for Kent and Sussex Counties, supplemental funds for the University of Delaware, new standards for school construction and its supervision, and increased funds for audit surveys of state agencies.

Asked if he favored that censorship of such moving pictures as "La Dolce Vita," now showing in Wilmington, the Governor said "the best censorship is that practiced by intelligent people."

He said, however, that the legislature might have to take action if the showing of obscene films got "too bad."

The Governor again expressed the hope that the General Assembly will tackle the problem of reapportionment of the House of Representatives on an equitable population basis.

Rejecting the Republican party's insistence on a state Department of Finance to accomplish fiscal reform, Carvel said: "The Budget Commission presently has enough powers to accomplish fiscal reform without a Department of Finance and is doing just that."

The Governor cited gains already made by his administration as "proof that the essence of fiscal reform is not in some new structure for our Finance Department, but is primarily based on the dedication and integrity of our employees and our elected and appointed officers."

Baptists believe that true members of Christ's church have accepted Christ as Saviour—By the Holy Spirit they have been brought to a state of salvation. Every one of them, by his presence in the church, professes and declares that he has been born again, has passed from death unto life, has received the gift of eternal life in Christ Jesus. This means that he has received a salvation which delivers from the consequences of sin. The members of the true church of Christ, therefore, are differentiated from all other people by their hope of life everlasting.

There is new life within them. That life has been imparted by the Holy Spirit, to the end that they might become children of God. As children of God they have powers as well as privileges. If you are looking for a church with a gospel message, we invite you to come worship with us.

The ever popular Gordon Scott appears in "Tarzan," the second feature of this thrilling all-family show.

The all-time great, "Friendly

Persuasion" with Gary Cooper, Dorothy McGuire and Anthony Perkins plus Samantha, the Goose, is listed for presentation, Sunday and Monday, Oct. 8 and 9, along with the thundering turbulent story of Wyatt Earp, "Wichita" in Cinemascope and color. U. of D. Appoints Director of Urban Project

Vice President George M. Worrlow of the University of Delaware Tuesday announced the appointment of Dr. Edward S. Overman as director of the newly-established urban services project.

He will head a pioneering effort by the university to help Delaware communities deal effectively with problems associated with the state's tremendous population growth and industrial expansion.

Dr. Overman will be administratively responsible to Dr. Worrlow, vice president for university affairs. A $50,000 grant from the Ford Foundation will finance the project over an initial five-year period, President John A. Perkins has announced.

Dr. Overman comes to the university from Tennessee, where he was professor of political science and associate director of the University of Tennessee's bureau of public administration. He directed research, service and training activities on behalf of Tennessee state and local government units, and served as chairman of the council of the university's Municipal Technical Advisory Service.

Vice President Worrlow observed that establishment of the urban services project represents a major step for the university in fulfilling its role as a land-grant university in an urban society.

"We believe that the goal of a total university serving a total state population should be foremost. Our agricultural research and extension programs long have made the university's resources available to rural people. This urban counterpart of that successful program will help us better serve all the people of Delaware.

Dr. Overman's demonstrated leadership and his wide range of experience in metropolitan and urban problems made him an appropriate choice for this assignment," the vice president said.

He indicated that the new project will permit an attack on Delaware's urban problems through consulting and advisory services by urban extension specialists, and research activities.

Examples of the kinds of urban-related problems that demand attention are:

1. Lack of adequate water supplies for future domestic and industrial use.
2. Inadequate recreational facilities to keep abreast of population growth and increasing public demands.
3. Problems of increasing magnitude related to transportation.
4. Need in many communities for improved means of handling sewage and refuse.

5. Polygot urbanization and strip development, and the need for more adequate planning and zoning to cope with these problems.
6. General lack of knowledge on the part of the public about sources of information and procedures for getting effective group action to bear on urban problems.

"There are, of course, many more problems and needs relating to urban expansion in Delaware than we can hope to solve in the initial five-year period," Dr. Worrlow said. "At the same time, we expect to move vigorously ahead and work cooperatively with public officials at all levels of government, and with business and civic organizations, educational associations and other interested groups, in delineating major urban problem areas, in selecting specific problems for concentrated attack, and in planning detailed approaches to these problems."

A Virginian by birth and a graduate of the University of Virginia, where he also received his Ph. D. degree, Dr. Overman has devoted almost all of his professional career to research, teaching and services in the field of public administration.

After receiving his doctorate in 1940, Dr. Overman joined the staff of the University of Virginia's bureau of public administration as a research assistant. In 1941 he was employed by the Hampton Roads Regional Defense Council to help to ease sudden burdens on local governments caused by the war.

From 1942-1945 he was on active duty with the U. S. Navy, serving in addition to other assignments, as executive officer and later, commanding officer of the USS APC-32 in the Pacific.

In 1945, he returned to the University of Virginia as a research associate in the bureau of public administration. He was named assistant director of the bureau in 1953 and remained in that position until he assumed his post at the University of Tennessee in 1956.

During leaves of absence from the two institutions, Dr. Overman did research in public welfare programs in Alabama; spent the year 1954-55 at Harvard University on a fund for the advancement of Education fellowship, and in 1959-60 held a senior fellowship in law and behavioral science at the University of Chicago. During this latter period, he developed a research project dealing with the readjustment of boundaries of units of local government in large metropolitan areas.

He is the author of numerous publications and reports in the field of public administration and is a member of the American Political Science Association and other professional associations.

Dr. Overman is married to the former Nancy Jane Loving. They have four children—Nancy Elizabeth, 12; Edward Samuel, 10; Susan Anne, 7, and John Harvey, 3.

Quickie Field Day Program Set

Many farmers wonder what might happen if they double or triple fertilizer applications on corn. The University of Delaware Extension Service has been quietly running a small test on the farm of George Fischer east of Smyrna near Woodland Beach this year to see the effects of shooting for top yields of corn.

One plot received a total of 1800 lbs. of fertilizer per acre, with 21,000 corn stalks as a plant population. Other practices included chemical weed control with atrazine and minimum tillage.

The results will be announced at a "Quickie" Field Day program to be held for one hour at 1 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 9 at the Fischer farm on Delaware Route 9, located straight north of Leipsic. Dr. Richard Cole, of the University of Delaware agronomy staff, will outline the results and make comparisons with the stand and 100 bushel per acre plot next to the high fertility plot. One reason why the Fischer Farm was chosen was because there was provision for irrigation if needed.

Dr. William Mitchell will also show and outline the requirements of certified seed at the same time. Mr. Fischer has an excellent plot of the new Kent variety of soybeans for certification, with the Wabash variety close by for ready comparison.

The county agent George Vapaa says the "quickie" program is to give farmers a chance to see these developments in the field without breaking up the work day too much.

The hour immediately after lunch was deemed most convenient for the majority of farmers. The specialists will stay after the meetings to answer any questions which might come up.

Top yields usually make the farmer the most money, because his unit cost per bushel is lower. Anything we can do to improve efficiency should keep Delaware competitive with other areas, Mr. Vapaa says.

'62 Barley Feed Grain Signup Announced

Farmers who want to take part in the 1962 feed grain program for winter barley can sign up now, R. Harry Wilson, chairman, Kent County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, announced Thursday at Dover.

He said that notices have been sent to barley growers throughout the County, listing the individual farm's barley feed grain base, the established yield, and the "minimum" and "additional" payment rates. With this information, a grower may determine how participation in the program would affect his farming operations and income.

The chairman explained that the program seeks to prevent a further buildup of unneeded feed grain stocks, by offering payments to participating farmers for diverting a portion of their farm's barley base acreage from production into conservation. A list of approved conservation uses will be available in the County ASC office at Dover.

A farm's barley base will, in general, be the average acreage planted to barley on the farm in 1959 and 1960. To participate in the program, a grower must divert at least 20 per cent of the base, as well as comply with other provisions of the program. For this minimum diversion, the payment will be 50 per cent of the farm's normal yield, at the county support price of $1.04 per bushel.

For an additional 20 per cent diversion—up to 40 per cent of the base, the payment will be the county support price on 60 per cent of the normal yield. As under the 1961 feed grain program, advance payments will be made at the time growers sign up to take part in the program.

Eligibility for price support on the farm's "normal" yield of the 1962 barley acreage will depend on participation in the 1962 barley feed grain program and on meeting at least the minimum requirements of the program. These requirements include diverting at least 20 per cent of the farm barley base into conservation and not exceeding the farm's base acreage for corn and grain sorghum.

H.H.S. Eleven 12; Lord Baltimore 6

by Keith S. Burgess

Coach Bill Santo's Harrington High football team evened its season record at 1-1 by coming from behind in the second half to down the host Lord Baltimore Eagles 12-6.

Lord Baltimore started the contest in such a manner as to indicate that they would make short work of the Lions. They ran the opening kickoff back to midfield and marched the remaining distance to and over the goal. The Eagles were working a pincushion play with success around both ends for much of the first half. This play set up the TD and gave the Harringtonians fits until our ends learned the art of not committing themselves too early and started turning the play inside.

Bill Porter and Barry Fry led a local early drive that reached the enemy 28 before dying.

In the second quarter Porter gained five through the line and then carried again for a first down. Fry swept end for nine yards. Porter again went for the first down on the Eagle ten yard line. Two plays failed before Fry made five more yards and Porter was stopped on the one-foot line on fourth down.

The third quarter began with one frustration after another for Harrington. Porter three times gained good yardage but H.H.S. incurred three 5-yard penalties and had to kick.

The host eleven drove to the Lion 35 but were halted when David Harcum came up with a fumble.

The turning point of the game came when an Eagle back rambling toward the H.H.S. goal fumbled the ball. Bill Porter fielded the leather on one hop and charged down the field. A trio of Lords tore after him but the burly fullback, who at one time was a track sprinter, ran with every ounce of strength he could muster and raced 60 yards for the tying touchdown. If this fumble had not occurred the score might have been 12-0 instead of 6-6 and the locals would have been done in. Tim Strohl intercepted an Eagle aerial and set up the winning score. A 15 yard clipping penalty against Lord Baltimore moved H.H.S. down to the host 32. One of 11 5-yard penalties the Lions incurred during the day's action.

Mr. Fields reminded veterans, however, that the protection is in reality a loan against the policy and that the premiums and interest thus guaranteed must eventually be repaid by the veteran.

The policy also must have been in effect for at least 180 days before the owner entered active service and must be in force on a premium basis at the time of application for protection. U. S. Government and National Service life insurance policies are not eligible under the act.

Mr. Fields said the policyholder was then called but Fry hit Wayne Collison with two passes for a first down on the 1. Porter blasted through standing up to end the scoring.

The Lions then tried an on-side kick play which worked when the ball hit an opponent and was recovered. Porter went to work on the enemy line and racked up two more first downs.

The Eagles held but gave up the ball soon after when Joe Taylor recovered a fumble. Lord Baltimore started a desperation drive with only seconds left. Two penalties took them into Lion territory. Warren Bader slapped down a last-ditch pass to end the game.

Ron Melvin, 220 pound local tackle, was hurt and had to leave the game in the second quarter. The other tackle, Terry Johnson, did not play because of illness. Thus the winning rally game with the two largest Lion linemen out of action. Bill Parker did nobly in Johnson's spot.

Millsboro, an 18-6 winner over Lord Baltimore, comes to Harrington Saturday afternoon at 2 p. m.

Veterans News

Premium payments and interest in commercial life insurance policies of Reservists and National Guardsmen who are ordered to active duty may be guaranteed by the Veterans Administration under provisions of the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act, Leon Fields, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office at Wilmington announced.

This protection, Fields said, covers the policyholder's period of active service and two years afterward. It applies only to life policies that do not impose special premium rates for military duties or caluses limiting benefits because of service. The total amount that VA can guarantee must not exceed $10,000 in each case.

Mr. Fields reminded veterans, however, that the protection is in reality a loan against the policy and that the premiums and interest thus guaranteed must eventually be repaid by the veteran.

The policy also must have been in effect for at least 180 days before the owner entered active service and must be in force on a premium basis at the time of application for protection. U. S. Government and National Service life insurance policies are not eligible under the act.

Mr. Fields said the policyholder er must apply for protection on VA Form 9-380 to the insurance company and VA.

Once a policy is protected, it will not lapse or terminate for nonpayment of premiums, indebtedness or interest while the policy holder is on active duty, and for two years after his discharge, unless the owner requests withdrawal of the protective provisions.

If the policy holder does not pay the premiums and interest to the commercial company during this protective period, the amount due will be treated by the VA as a policy loan.

If the cash surrender value of the policy at the end of the protective period is less than the amount guaranteed, the policy will terminate and the government will pay the commercial company the difference. Any sum paid the commercial by VA will become a debt due the U. S. by the veteran.

Fire, And Then the Panic Starts

By Miss Patricia Middleton

Somebody shouted "Fire!" and hundreds of people were tramped trying to escape from a canvas tent with only a few exits. It happened a long time ago but the message is just as clear now as it was then: "Don't Panic!"

Do you know what to do in case of fire? Have you worked out a detailed plan with your family spelling out exactly "what to do."

One high school youngster, I know, had a plan. Written in front of a math book which he was forced to refer to occasionally was this message: "in case of fire, throw this book in." That brings up a very important point. When a fire breaks out don't stop to do anything, just get everyone out of the building. Don't stop to dress the children or try to save valuables.

You should sit down with the whole family and plan escape routes and emergency procedures. If you have small children, it should be decided to get what child. Many children have perished because each parents thought the other one had the children. Plan at least two escape routes from every room. Remember halls and stairways will probably be blocked by fire. Plan to use the garage and porch roofs, ladders, ropes and even trees to escape from upper floors. You should hold regular fire drills until even the small children know what to do. When the procedure becomes familiar there will be less chance for panic.

Here are some precautions the whole family should know. Don't open hot doors, always feel the door first to see if it is warm. A closed door can keep fire out for several minutes. This gives you time to find another way out, or for help to arrive. Beware of re-entering burning buildings. Even the smallest, most harmless-looking fire can give off deadly smoke and free gases.

Never leave children alone in your home. Almost daily, you read of tragic deaths occurring where children left alone set the house on fire. Instruct your baby sitter of your escape plans. Be sure she knows how to call the fire department.

Many deaths that occur in fires could have been avoided except for one thing "Panic". When a fire starts, people tend to panic and forget to open a window or door to freedom. Instead they crowd up in one corner and burn to death.

Don't let this happen to your family. Draw up a fire escape plan and make sure every member of the family is thoroughly familiar with it. Their lives could depend on what they do during the few seconds after a fire is discovered.

Harrington School Notes

New Students in School?
For the past week several students have been trying to enroll in Harrington School...

Although these new students carry no books to school they are quite eager to enter classes.

The present students of Harrington welcome these new students, but the teachers sometime become annoyed at their barking, pep rally and parade tonight.

The cheerleaders of Harrington High are sponsoring a huge parade and pep-rally with bonfire tonight beginning at 7 o'clock.

The parade will proceed from the high school down Dorman Street to the Fire House, up Fleming Street and Weiner Ave. to Center Street...

Included in the parade will be the town police who will lead the procession, horse-back riders, the high school band, cheerleaders, and the football squad riding in open cars.

Every student is urged to support this rally and come out to cheer our team both tonight and at tomorrow afternoon's game when we meet the Millsboro eleven.

Band Boosters Club to Meet

All parents of members of any of the bands of Harrington Schools are automatically members of the Harrington Band Boosters Club...

The primary purpose of this meeting is to review plans for the future that will help increase our band uniform fund so that uniforms may be secured by the spring band concert...

All band members are urged to remind their parents of this meeting and see to it that they attend!

Glee Club News

Three-fourth of Harrington's students came out of Glee Club with sore throats.

To sing correctly one must sit up straight and not slouch. Music directors say that singing should come from the heart and not from the nose.

Singers should follow the music note by note and if a student can not reach the high he should simply take the low ones.

Glee Club meets only twice a week but it is a good vocalist who takes his music home and learns his part.

Officers in Mrs. Graden's ninth grade homeroom were elected on Wed., Sept. 20. They are the following: president, Ann Hoffman; vice president, Charles Tribbett; secretary, Mike Wamsley; treasurer, Garry Harris.

The meeting of the Junior Class was held on Wed., Sept. 20. Officers were elected for the entire Junior Class. The officers are as follows: president, Kenny Garey; vice president, Tim Strohl; recording secretary, Faye Needles; correspondence secretary, Carol Ann McNally, and treasurer, Carol Smith.

Since it was the first meeting of the year, there wasn't any old business. The class voted for the mid-winter formal which will be held by the Student Council if the formal is passed by the students. The class is going to select committees to select a place to visit on the senior trip. The meeting was adjourned by Kenny Garey.

Donna Wetherhold went to Washington Sunday. She saw the white house.

Adam Hurd, Kathy Lobo, Leah Coady and Terry Turcotte have been absent part of this week.

Kathy Morgan has a new puppy named Micky. Joyce Gustafson has a new puppy named Teeny. Terry Cain has two turtles at home.

Members of the football team wore their jerseys Monday because of their victory over Lord Baltimore.

It is now their custom to wear their jerseys after every game that is won. Everyone hopes that the boys will have many chances to wear their jerseys.

Members of the library club have started a sprucing up project. Trophies in the library will Club, Drama Club, Yearbook Staff, J. V. Basketball, Basketball Manager, and on the Basketball Cheerleading Squad.

After graduation, Becky plans to major in history, and hopes to be accepted at Washington College.

4-H Dairy Team Places Fourth

Delaware's state 4-H dairy judging team placed fourth in the Regional 4-H Judging Competition at the Atlantic Rural Exposition in Richmond, Va., last week.

Teams competing came from as far as South Carolina and Indiana, according to Dr. Wilbur Hesselstine, University of Delaware dairy specialist who accompanied the youngsters on the trip.

Team members included Connie Vinyard and Ronnie Robbins, Houston; Richard Bennett, Milford and Lloyd Sheets of Middletown. Sheets earned the distinction of being the seventh high individual judge in the contest.

4-H judges from Virginia took top honors in the contest. They will compete in the national 4-H Dairy Judging Contest at Waterloo, Iowa this fall.

The Delaware youths earned the right to compete at Richmond by being high individuals in the state contest at the Kent-Sussex Fair this summer. In regional competition they judged three classes of heifers and three classes of cows. They were required to give oral reasons on the cow classes.

A class for judging purposes is composed of four animals, according to Dr. Hesselstine. "These youngsters have learned a lot about selecting high quality animals through this competition," he said.

Meals, lodging and travel expenses for the trip were provided by the National Dairy Corporation.

Rotarians Have Railroad Night

Cliff Miller, bulletin editor for the local Rotary Club, was the guest speaker at a 100% attendance meeting Tuesday evening at the Wonder R restaurant.

His line of thought was to remind that Harrington is still a railroad town with 83 tax-paying, active and retired property owners. While other means of transportation have brought about drastic curtailment measures in operation, the railroads still do things on a big scale and stand ready to pick up the load when bad weather hampers highway and air travel.

This was well proven during last winter's long cold spell and heavy snows and will be forcefully demonstrated if the cold war gets hot.

If, in the uncertain years ahead, some critic might shake his head in acquiescence of some part accomplished in the world of art, Be not among the tardy few. Give credit where there's credit due.

And whilst ye laud look deeper, ye To the railroads that showed the rest the way.

Farm Labor News

Delaware was very fortunate a couple weeks ago in that Esther for the most part brought very light winds and no abnormal amounts of rainfall. The rainfall was welcomed as it helped alleviate the dry soil conditions. Potato harvest still under way with most acreage in northern part of the state.

Approximately a third of the growers in the state have some acreage remaining to be harvested; it is estimated that as of this date there is slightly more than one thousand acres yet to be harvested. A depressed market and slow demand will probably cause the remaining digging to be a drawn out process.

Tomato crop for all intent and purposes has been completed. Pepper harvest has about two weeks to continue. Apple picking increasing but fruit still not coloring as desired. Lima beans, snap beans, and sweet potatoes are still being processed but the peak is passed. Labor is fairly well in balance with spotty shortages of individuals in a few crews. Spotty corn picking started during past few days, though moisture content still runs very high, many growers anxious to start harvest before any more storms threaten. Wilmington Area (Southern New Castle) Many acres of potatoes remain to be dug in this area, proceeding slowly due to depressed market and demand. Though crews are moving out as they complete jobs it is probable that the harvest as long as it continues at the present pace. Tomato harvest is over and baby lima bean crop is nearing completion.

Potato acreage in this area is still fairly large for this time of the season, digging is still proceeding at a slower pace due to a depressed market and weak demand. Remaining labor in area is ample to complete harvest as long as it proceeds at present rate. Snap beans being harvested for fresh market. Tomato and pepper harvest over for all intent and purposes. Apple harvest increasing but lack of color still a problem. Corn picking was started on a small scale during the past week, moisture content is running high at present time.

Speed Reading Course Innovation At University of Delaware

A new speed reading program—which can increase reading rate three to ten times—has been initiated at the Reading-Study Center of the school of education, University of Delaware.

The course began last week, and is being conducted by Mrs. Evelyn Dew, a student of the Evelyn Wood Dynamic Reading Method. Mrs. Wood was invited to join the School of Education staff in the spring of this year, and subsequently trained teachers to prepare for the one-semester program.

Also being taught commercially to aid business and professional people, speed reading has produced significant increases in word-per-minute rate while maintaining a high degree of comprehension. According to Dr. Russell G. Stauffer, director of the Reading-Study Center and Acting Dean of the School of Education, "Tremendous concentration is required in mastering the techniques." Dr. Stauffer emphasized that the program does not advocate a hasty, cursory manner of reading, but rather develops an ability to devote full attention to the printed page. Application of speed reading skills enables a student to ignore distractions and check mind-wandering.

Is "skimming" the method involved? "That's a semantic problem," commented Dr. Stauffer. "It depends upon the definition of the word 'skimming'." Delayed recall—or the degree of ability to remember material read months or years previously—is reportedly as good or better than that produced by conventional reading methods.

A select group of undergraduate and full-time graduate students, in addition to faculty members, has been picked for the program. Freshmen were required to have been in the top 15% of their high school class, or have made a high school average of 86 or better, a total College Board score of 1050 or better, or a total National Merit score of least 23. Upperclassmen selected were those who have maintained a 2.2 or higher academic average. Classes are meeting for two 90-minute sessions each week, and students are expected to practice daily for at least one hour. There are 12 undergraduate sessions limited to 20 students each; graduate student and faculty enrollment was limited to 25 for a separate but identical course.

When students have learned the basic principles of the Wood method, they will begin gearing their training toward the specific curriculum they are following. Chemistry majors will apply the techniques to such publications as chemical journals, and those majoring in other fields will study accordingly.

The Reading-Study Center staff has explained to students that the program is not a panacea for all problems of comprehension, but merely a tool for more efficient reading. The course is intended simply to increase ability to assimilate and organize material read.

The speed reading program is the latest in a series of projects undertaken by the Reading-Study Center, which was established in 1950 to help students in diverse areas of learning.

Wheat Marketing Quotas Approved

Approval by farmers of marketing quotas for the 1962 crop of wheat means that growers in commercial wheat-producing areas will have a broad program available for the next wheat crop to help adjust production and increase farm income, R. Harry Wilson, chairman, Kent Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, said yesterday.

Preliminary returns from August 24 referendum showed that 86.7 per cent of the Kent County growers voted approved marketing quotas for the 1962 wheat crop. Since this is more than the necessary two-thirds, the 1962 wheat program provided by recently enacted legislation will be in effect. The program will include:

Price support at a minimum national average of $2 a bushel, available to those producers in the commercial wheat area who comply with their 1962 farm wheat allotment and who participate in the special wheat stabilization program.

Payments to wheat growers who co-operate in the special 1962 wheat stabilization program for diverting a specified portion of their wheat acreage to conservation uses.

Farm wheat allotments for 1962 which are 10 per cent lower than they would have been under previous legislation.

Marketing quota penalties, at 65 percent of the May 1, 1962 parity price, on "excess" wheat produced on farms where the farm wheat allotment is not complied with.

The chairman explained that wheat producers subject to marketing quotas on the 1962 crop are those who will have an acreage of wheat in excess of the smaller of (a) 13.5 acres or (b) the highest number of acres actually planted to wheat on the farm for harvest in any of the calendar years 1959, 1960, or 1961.

Irish Writer-Critic To Visit U. of D.

Sean O'Faolain, Irish writer-critic, well known in this country and abroad, will visit the University of Delaware from Oct. 11 to 14.

Mr. O'Faolain will meet with students and faculty at luncheon and dinner meetings, speak at an English seminar, and present a public lecture on Tuesday, Oct. 12, at 8:15 p.m. in Wolf Hall on the subject, "Art and Science: The Single Culture."

His visit to the campus is jointly sponsored by the English department and the Delaware Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. Mr. O'Faolain is one of seven Phi Beta Kappa lecturers participating in the nationwide visiting scholar program for 1961-62.

Since World War II, Mr. O'Faolain has traveled extensively in Europe as well as in the United States. He has written Summer in Italy, South to Sicily and many shorter pieces, some of which appeared in Holiday.

In spite of his travels Mr. O'Faolain's roots are deep in Ireland. The Irish Revolution, in which he took an active part, is reflected in much of his work. He has become one of the best known interpreters of Irish life, and his books on modern Ireland and its people are praised as realistic and sympathetic.

Mr. O'Faolain's writing covers a wide range: biographies, histories, fiction, a play, critical essays, translations. His first writing was done in Gaelic, although this was an acquired tongue. He is perhaps best known for his short stories and for his novel, "A Nest of Simple Folk." His latest book of short stories, "I Remember, I Remember," was published by Atlantic-Little, Brown in October. A member of the Irish Academy of Letters, he holds degrees from the National University of Ireland and from Harvard.

Last year Mr. O'Faolain was writer in residence at Princeton University and in 1954 he gave the Christian Gauss lectures on contemporary literature at Princeton. The lectures were later published in his book, "The Vanishing Hero."

Atomic Fallout Sessions Set For Dover

What would you do to protect yourself and your family in the event of an atomic attack? It's a timely question and reserves immediate planning action, says Lt. A. C. Thompson of the Dover Air Force Base Disaster Control Center. He will be conducting the first of four sessions on Home Preparedness against atomic fallout starting at 7:30 p.m., Wed., Oct. 11 in the Kent County Courthouse on the Dover Green.

Everyone interested is invited to attend, although the meetings are set up especially for civic and service group leaders. They will continue weekly under the sponsorship of the Extension Service of the University of Delaware. The Business and Professional Womens Club and the Kent County Civil Defense Office until the series is ended.

Home defense preparations are quite similar to those one might make for a camping trip — or even a couple of weeks away at a cottage. The major difference is that you never leave home. And the advantage is the family has time to assemble all necessary supplies before the emergency, says George Vapaa, the county agricultural agent, who is charged with getting civil defense information to four groups.

No one need be concerned about preparations at ground zero in the event of an attack. But a much larger area would be affected by nuclear radiation and this is easy to defend against provided one knows what to do, adds Mr. Vapaa.

Many take a gloomy outlook at the prospect of spending up to two weeks in a shelter. But sailors have remained underwater in submarines at sea for months at a time, and the trick would seem to keep busy at diverting tasks. In any event, few will quibble at keeping under cover in an atomic emergency.

The atomic age has brought many changes which in turn demand adjustments. A comparison might be the changes in living habits brought by the automobile. We must discipline ourselves to prepare for these adjustments because we might well get only one chance, concludes Mr. Vapaa.

New Winter Oat For Delaware

A new winter oat variety Norline is being recommended by the University of Delaware, according to Dr. William H. Mitchell, University agronomist. This variety is quite winter-hardy and yields better than the ones commonly being used.

The Norline variety won't push the winter oat region much further north, he said, but it will protect growers who have had winter-killing in the past.

Records accumulated during the past three years indicated a trend over any other winter oat variety. In addition, it has fairly still straw, is short, and produces grain of relatively high test weight, according to Mitchell. The seed is available for planting this fall, but it should be planted early. Right now is plenty late, he said.

The other winter oat varieties recommended for Delaware are Dubois, LeConte, Forkeddeer, and Lee. Norline was introduced last year by Rutgers Experimental Station in New Jersey, according to Mitchell.

SHD Has List Of Traffic Signs

The State Highway Department now has a list of all traffic directional signs and lights, with their locations, on file at the offices of the Department, according to William J. Miller, Jr., Director of Operations for the Department.

Approval of the installation of these signs and lights was granted at a recent meeting of the Department and Mr. Miller said any additional installations will be submitted for approval to the Department and then added to the list.

The listing of the signs and lights, including a description as to location and type of sign or light in place, covered three complete volumes.

Almost a year ago, during an action involving the failure to observe one of these signs, the Superior Court, in an opinion, set forth that the approval of the installation of the sign at its location was necessary in order for the sign to become effective.

Following that ruling the Attorney General's Office sent a notice to the Highway Department concerning it and almost immediately a crew of men were sent out to list the signs and lights a every location on any type of highway in the State, outside of municipalities.

As a result more than 39,000 signs and lights were located, examined and tabulated, involving a cost of about $50,000.

In addition a number of municipalities had a similar action taking along their streets and the installation of the signs approved by their City Council.

Mrs. Helen Dufendach returned to her home last week after spending a month or more with relatives and friends in Indiana, the state where she was born.

We were greatly worried this Tuesday morning when the report came in that Mrs. Sue Harrington had suffered a slight stroke and is in Milford Memorial Hospital, and we do hope it isn't too serious and that she soon recovers. She is the teacher of grades 3-4 in our school and we trust she won't be out too long. Mrs. Ruth Sapp, a retired teacher, is substituting for Mrs. Harrington.

Mrs. Emma Morgan has received notice that memorial services for the late Louisa Marie Beeching, will be held from her home, 31 Clinton Ave., Plainfield, N. J., on Sunday, Oct. 15. Rev. Nicholas C. Veterans News

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Q—I am about to retire after 20 years of Army service. I received a Purple Heart for combat wounds during World War II. I have heard that veterans get a five-point credit on federal job examinations and that service-connected disabled veterans or those who were awarded the Purple Heart get 10 points additionally. Is that right?

A—No. Veterans get a credit of five points. Combat disabled veterans or those who have received the Purple Heart get a maximum credit of 10 points.

Q—My husband was killed in combat during the Korean Conflict. Am I eligible for a GI loan? If so, has my eligibility been extended by the law which recently extended the GI loan program?

A—Yes, you are eligible for a GI loan. In your case the maximum extension is granted—that is to January 31, 1975.

Q—With regard to VA benefits what period following the Korean Conflict is considered to be "peacetime" service?

A—Active service beginning February 1, 1955.

Q—I am receiving compensation for a 40 per cent disability incurred in combat. Others I know receive extra compensation allowances for their children under 18. Should I apply for these allowances for my children?

A—No. Additional allowances for dependents are granted only to veterans with disabilities rated at 50 per cent or higher.

Delaware Food Market Report

October once again features the dairy industry's annual Cheese Festival. Dairy counters all over the Northeast are lavishly supplied with a wide variety of cheese, which is an excellent way to point up the abundance of cheese. There is cheese to appeal to every taste and fancy, too.

What about the keeping quality of cheese? The fresh tasting, soft, unripened cheeses, such as cottage, cream or Neufchatel, are quite perishable, so be sure to get just enough to use within a few days of purchase. On the other hand, ripened or cured cheese will keep well in the refrigerator for several weeks if protected from mold contamination and drying out—use the original wrapper of covering when possible, or cover with wax paper, foil, or plastic wrapping material to prevent the surface from drying.

After a few days in the refrigerator, natural cheeses may develop mold, but it's not harmful and you can easily scrape or cut it from the surface. Ends or pieces of cheese that dry out needn't be wasted either—grate them and keep refrigerated in a clean, tightly covered glass jar and use for garnishing.

Apple harvesting continues and quality is excellent. The crop is a large one and there are many excellent buys to be had, so check this favorite fruit. Other fruits to check when shopping are lemons, California oranges, grapes and honeydears.

Beef, turkey, broiler-fryers, lamb and veal are all wearing attractive price tags. Not all cuts are available at reduced prices but enough are to make it worth while checking. Pork supplies are increasing seasonally also so look for dropped prices in chops and ham.

The vegetable situation is much as it was last week with more of the fall and winter vegetables appearing each day. Broccoli, sweet potatoes, turnips, rutabagas and greens are all reasonably priced. There is still a fair supply of green beans, tomatoes, egg plant and butter beans so summertime hasn't completely disappeared.
