Charles L. Terry Jr. of Dover Monday was sworn in for a 12-year term as associate justice of the Delaware Supreme Court.

In a brief ceremony in the office of Gov. Elbert N. Carvel, attended by Terry's family, friends, members of the judiciary, legislators, and the press, Terry donned the robes of the state's highest court.

Associate Justice Daniel F. Wolcott of the Supreme Court administered the traditional oath a short time after the state Senate confirmed Judge Terry's nomination during a special session.

The Senate also confirmed the nomination of William Duffy Jr. to succeed Terry as president judge of Superior Court and George R. Wright of Smyrna to fill the Superior Court vacancy created by the advancement of Judge Terry.

Judge Duffy was sworn in during ceremonies in Wilmington Tuesday morning.

Wright, a deputy attorney general for Kent County, has announced he will not take the oath of office until mid-August to give him time to wrap up his work with the attorney general's office.

Duffy and Wright also were appointed for 12 year terms. Judge Terry will receive $22,000 a year; Judge Duffy $20,500, and Wright $20,000.

In accepting the commission from Carvel, Terry said:

"I am grateful to the governor and the Senate for this honor which I accept with a deep sense of appreciation."

In handing over the commission, Carvel called Delaware's judiciary "the most outstanding in the nation," and said that in Terry another great justice is moving to Delaware's high court. "You will serve with distinction," the governor told the jurist, who has been a Superior Court judge since 1938 and president judge since 1957.

Farm Field Day August 1

Farm Field Day offers something for the entire family, reports George Vapaa, Kent County agent. In addition to the usual tours of the experimental plots, there will be exhibits of interest to farmers and homemakers, a special homemaker's program and a chicken dinner in the grove.

The state-wide event will be held August 1 at the University of Delaware Agricultural Substation on Route 28 near Georgetown. Tour will start at 10 a.m. Included on the schedule of events will be tours of the research plots in field crops, fruits, and vegetables; a look at the latest poultry research; and exhibits for the ladies demonstrating what quality fruits and vegetables look like.

Featured speaker on the afternoon program will be Dr. W. E. Krauss, associate director of the Agricultural Experiment Station, Ohio State University. The title of his talk will be "Research Will Govern the Future."

Some of the vegetable research to be reported, according to Vapaa, includes work in potato pest control, variety trials, weed, disease, and insect control and fertilization.

Fruit growers will be interested in work being done on apply varieties and nutrition, color sports, peach varieties, blackberry varieties and fertilization of nursery stock.

Some important soybean studies will be discussed by the men who are doing important research in this area, according to the agent. These include new varieties; weed, insect, and disease control; defoliation, soybean breeding, soil insecticides, and tests of late maturing varieties.

Calendar of Events Information Wanted

All Delaware organizations that have events of general public interest scheduled for the period September 1, 1962, through December 31, 1962, are being requested by David S. Hugg, state information officer, to make information concerning such events available to him at the Delaware State Development Department, 45 The Green, Dover, at the earliest possible date. This information, according to Mr. Hugg, will be used in the next edition of the Delaware Calendar of Events, published and distributed by the Development Department. Information concerning some of the state's most significant Fall events will also be supplied by Mr. Hugg to various publications.

Rehoboth Beach Has New Look On Boardwalk

What's new at Rehoboth Beach?

According to the Delaware State Development Department there's much that's new at Delaware's No. 1 resort.

The state promotion agency points out that Rehoboth Beach not only has a new beach and a new boardwalk, replacing the ones washed away in the March 6-8 storm, but also has a "new look" along Surf Avenue—the business area facing the beachfront.

All along Surf Avenue, new construction is underway with new, more attractive buildings replacing those washed away in "The Great Storm of '62". Sharing in the "new look" are the resort's two largest hostels—the Atlantic Sands Motel and the Henlopen Hotel—which have replaced storm damaged areas with spanking new construction.

There's also much that's new in the way of entertainment, particularly for the young people. Recent additions to the local entertainment field are a puppet show that seems to have appeal for all ages and a brand new teenage "night spot."

The puppet show is given several times daily in a tiny 30-seat theatre in the Rehoboth Hotel building, Jack Jeglum, who formerly operated an off-Broadway theatre in Greenwich Village, is the chief puppeteer with wife, Harriett, and daughter, Janet, and Stuart Baker, Murphy Macdonald and Charles Stewart assisting. Jeglum also writes the scripts for these "off-Broadway, just-off-the-beach" presentations.

The new night club—The Zen Den—which came into being about a month ago, is located in a converted residence at 51 Rehoboth Avenue. Although membership is limited to those under 21, more than 1000 members have already joined and near-capacity crowds of teenagers are in attendance each evening, sipping soft drinks and dancing to the music of a four-piece combo. The club opens at 3 p.m. and closes at midnight. Club members help with maintaining order and with the cleaning of this unique "night spot."

License Plates To Have State's Motto

Recent announcement that future issues of Delaware automobile license plates will bear the legend "The First State" serves to call attention to the fact that more than one-half of the fifty states now feature a slogan, motto or some form of promotional gimmick on their auto tags, notes the Delaware State Development Department.

According to the state information agency, twenty-three states, including Delaware, now feature mottoes, nicknames or slogans on auto tags. Four states are reported as using the outline of their boundaries on their license plates and at least seven others use some type of pictorial gimmick.

Virtually all of the slogans, mottoes and gimmicks advertise either tourist attractions or food products. Notable exceptions are Indiana and North Carolina each of which uses slogans tied in with highway safety programs. Arkansas drivers remind passing motorists that their state is a "Land of Opportunity"; Maine licensed vehicles call public attention to Maine as a "Vacationland"; and Florida tags proclaim the state's fame as the "Sunshine State."

Stimulating to the appetite are the license plates of Idaho, plugging "Famous Potatoes"; Georgia, which designate that state as the "Peach State"; Nebraska, as "The Beef State"; and Wisconsin as "America's Dairyland."

ASSEMBLY TO RETURN FRIDAY

The General Assembly will be called back to Dover Friday for a race against the clock to consider reapportionment legislation this year.

Thirty-one political leaders and legislators of both parties agreed to a recall of the legislature during a three-hour meeting in the office of Gov. Elbert N. Carvel, Monday.

The leaders agreed to submit two proposed constitutional amendments on reapportionment to the legislature Friday in a last-minute attempt to avert a possible federal court order reapportioning the General Assembly.

The need for speed is dictated by the constitutional requirement that any proposed amendment adopted this year must be published in three newspapers in each county at least 90 days before the general election. That makes the target date Aug. 5, but because weekly newspapers go to press on Wednesday, the practical deadline is next Tuesday.

The package plan to be submitted to the Legislature would:

1. Reapportion both branches of the legislature to consist of a Senate composed of seven members from each county and a House composed of 35 representative districts, with additional seats assigned to districts on the basis of one seat for each 15,000 population or major fraction thereof.

2. Adopt a constitutional amendment which would permit a constitutional convention to be held by September, 1963—two years earlier than possible under the present Constitution.

3. Hold a special general election next June to elect delegates to the constitutional convention, provided the General Assembly adopts the amendment making the convention possible.

Although Carvel announced that the decision to recall the legislature was unanimous. At a special caucus of Democratic senators Monday afternoon, there were as many ideas about reapportionment as there were senators.

The consensus seemed to be: "I'm for reapportionment if you let me do the reapportioning." Many senators reportedly opposed watering down the power of each individual senator by adding four members.

Bader to Represent State in Teen Age Safe Driving Road

Warren Bader of 224 Weiner Ave., Harrington, will represent Delaware in the 11th annual National Teen Age Safe Driving Roadshow in Washington, D.C., Aug. 6-10.

Three college scholarships are the top national awards—1st place $2,000; 2nd place $1,500, and third place $1,000. Scholarships may be used at the college of the winner's choice.

Papers Completed On Shore Protection Work

William J. Miller, Jr., director of operations for the State Highway Department, announced that all of the necessary papers in connection with the save and hold agreements for shore protection work along the ocean front, have been forwarded to the Corps of U. S. Engineers.

This action, according to Mr. Miller, will enable the U. S. Engineers to proceed with competing this work along the ocean front and prepare to start along the Delaware Bay Shore.

Eliminated from the project is about 2500 feet of shore line at the south end of Bethany Beach for Sea and Pine, Inc., owners of property in the area, assumed responsibility for the shore protection.

Mr. Miller said that an application will be filed with the Office of Emergency Planning to eliminate the area to be used by Sea and Pine, Inc., from the program formulated by the U. S. Engineers.

Sea and Pine, Inc. have agreed with the Highway Department, according to Mr. Miller, to have the shore protection work in their area completed about the middle of August and in event it is not completed, grant authority to the Highway Department to proceed with the work.

The Lennon Sisters, one of the nation's most popular singing groups, will head the big grandstand shows on Friday and Saturday nights at the Delaware State Fair in Harrington. These will be the final two days of the fair which opened last Saturday. This Saturday afternoon the big auto racers, one of the most popular features of the annual fair program, will take over the half-mile track. Warm-up trials start at 1 p. m., with the races getting underway at 2 p. m.

June Records Show Decrease In Minor Accidents

There were less accidents on the streets and highways of this state, involving damage in excess of $100, during the month of June than were reported during the same month of last year, according to the records of the Motor Vehicle Department.

These records, as compiled by the Financial Responsibility Division of the Motor Vehicle Department show that a total of 676 of these accidents were reported during the month of June, which was 66 less than the number reported during June of last year.

Of the accidents reported during June of this year, 519 took place in Wilmington and rural and New Castle County, which is a decrease of 45 over the number recorded for June last year.

Kent County had 75 of the accidents reported and this is seven less than the record for June of last year, while Sussex County had 82 accidents reported, a decrease of 14.

Of the operators involved in the accidents reported during June of this year, 192 were from out of the State and 206 had no insurance. There were a total of 258 persons injured in these accidents.

Damages reported resulting from the accidents in June of this year totaled $255,570, an increase of $10,020 over the amount of damage reported during June of last year.

During the month of June, 91 motorists had their operational registration privileges suspended in this state for failure to comply with the Financial Responsibility Laws. This was an increase of two over June of last year.

Hay Needed For Drought Areas

The drought in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York State has reached a serious stage. Conditions are such that rather large amounts of hay will be needed from surrounding areas, according to Dr. William H. Mitchell, University of Delaware agronomist. There is a need for all types of hay from relatively poor quality hay used by mushroom growers to top quality hay used by dairy farmers and horsemen.

One mushroom grower has expressed an interest in obtaining 2000 tons of "hay that can be baled" for making compost, Mitchell reports.

Prices being paid will, of course, reflect the shortage. It is expected, however, that they will generally correspond to the level of hay quality.

Delaware alfalfa growers are seeing the ability of this crop to grow during dry weather, Mitchell says. Many farmers have cut their alfalfa twice this summer and many are prepared to harvest the third crop during the next week or two.

If you have some lespedeza hay coming along, there may be a good demand for it in the fall. The same thing applies to German millet and soybean hay, he reports.

If you have hay for sale, contact Dr. Mitchell in the agronomy department or your county agent. You can help your neighbors to the North as well as yourself by reporting how much and what kind of hay you are offering for sale.

Fifer Faces Opponent In Kent

A Republican contest in the Seventh Representative District of Kent County was assured Monday when the incumbent Harvey P. Fifer filed for a third term and Clinton E. Woolleyhan filed to oppose him.

Also filing was George Ehringer, who is completing his second term as representative from the Second District.

The two filings by representatives made it three out of four House Republicans who are definitely going to seek another term.

Arville Myers, from the Fourth District, filed last week, and Charles F. Richards, who represents the Fifth District, has announced he will file Thursday after a meeting of the District Committee tomorrow night.

Fifer, of Rising Sun, is a fruit and vegetable grower. He is the minority whip.

Woolleyhan, a securities salesman and liquor store owner, is former president of the State Federation of Active Young Republicans. He lives near Camden.

The primary will be held Aug. 18.

Ehringer has served split terms. He was a representative in the 119th General Assembly, was defeated by Henry Price of Smyrna for the Senate in the 120th Assembly, and then returned to the House for the 121st Assembly which is now sitting.

Ehringer is superintendent of the Murphy School in Dover, where he lives, and is a member of the State Board of Corrections and the Commission on Children and Youth.

There were two filings for delegate seats to the state convention and one for alternate.

Calvin Boggs, the GOP chairman, said delegate filings have been unusually slow. The deadline is Aug. 3.

One more Democrat filed for county office. He is John W. Pratt of Smyrna who will seek the Democratic nomination for the Second Levy Court district, a post now held by Republican Fred Carey, a candidate to succeed himself.

4-H Seeking Outstanding Alumni Members

Former 4-H Club members today number nearly 23 million, the largest alumni of any co-educational youth organization in the world, according to James O. Baker, State 4-H Club leader. The number is increasing each year as 4-H boys and girls reach their 21st birthday and graduate from the active rolls of 4-H clubs.

Up until the past decade, most 4-H members were sons and daughters of farm families, or lived in small rural communities. By 1970, according to Baker, the larger percentage of 4-H membership will be non-farm youth. This is the result of the shift of farm population, he says.

Consequently more former 4-H members will be filling city jobs or pursuing professional careers. For the last 10 years, there has been an adult 4-H activity which looks for former club members who have distinguished themselves. It is the national 4-H Alumni Recognition program.

Since 1953, the national gold alumni key award has been presented to 80 prominent men and women from 35 states. They are engaged in occupations ranging from homemaker to astronaut. Several thousand persons have received county and state awards.

Candidates for awards can be nominated. Nomination forms and further information are available at the county extension office.

A judging committee selects two individuals in the county who best measure up to standards set for meriting county certificates. From all those receiving county recognition, as many as four can be chosen for state honors. The winners receive a handsome, engraved, burnished copper and walnut plaque.

Eight national award recipients are invited to Chicago to attend the National 4-H Club Congress. Each is presented with the 4-H alumni key during the annual alumni banquet attended by 500 national and state 4-H leaders, educators, business officials and friends of 4-H.

Nature took a part in the nation's latest dance craze, "the twist", at the Delaware State Fairgrounds here Saturday evening, when a freak windstorm did several hundreds of thousands of dollars damage to the midway.

The storm, described as a baby twister, struck the fairgrounds about 9:30 p.m., on the opening day of the fair.

High winds twisted steel and shredded tents. Three large ferris wheels toppled, damaging equipment as they fell. The wheels were valued at approximately $300,000.

Ruth Johnson, of Georgetown, and Pat Dickey, of Sparta, S. C., were admitted to Milford Memorial Hospital with head injuries and bruises, suffered when the 92-foot skywheels, tallest ride on the grounds, fell.

There were no passengers aboard any ride when the wind struck, most persons having taken refuge beneath the grandstand from a rain which preceded the wind.

Nature's twist eliminated its competition in the huge tent of the "Club Morocco", which features exotic dancers, ripping the canvas from its moorings and overturning the front wagon.

Seventy persons, caught in the tent, escaped by crawling under the seats.

By Sunday afternoon another ferris wheel had been obtained and the shows were back in operation.

Old Fiddlers Picnic Aug. 4

Sat., Aug. 4, there will be held at Lenape Park on the historic Brandywine, some four miles from West Chester, Pa., and fifteen miles north of Wilmington, the 3rd annual Old Fiddlers Picnic which is largely attended by many persons from a number of states.

This old-fashioned frolic lasts from ten in the morning until midnight.

All fiddlers, musicians, singers and dancers—old and young, are cordially invited to take part. Warren Mercer of Corner Ketch and Christian Sanderson of Chadds Ford will serve as chairmen of the day.

There will be dancing afternoon and evening. Mrs. Daisy Kelly is Secretary of the Lenape Old Fiddlers Association.

The Three Musical Clowns and a number of outstanding musical performers will be present, as will Phile Kirkhuff the blind fiddler with noted musicians from Montrose, Pa.

One Hundred Millionth Vehicle Soon to Cross Memorial Bridge

If Delaware Memorial Bridge traffic continues at its present accelerated pace, the one hundred millionth vehicle should cross the span sometime in mid-November.

This is the prediction General Manager Frank J. Harty made in his June report to the Delaware Interstate Highway Division this week.

Traffic rose 7.8 percent in June over that of June, 1961 with 1,180,298 crossings. In 1961, 1,095,073 vehicles were recorded. This represents an increase of 77,555 passenger cars over June 1961, while trucks and non-revenue vehicles accounted for a 4,285 increase.

Revenue for the period rose by 5.3 per cent for the month, Harty reports. Total collections in 1961 were $411,399.80, while this June toll takers recorded $433,029.90.

This was the second time in 1962 that traffic passed the millionth mark. For the first time, there were more than one million crossings in April.

The June count brought total traffic over the span from its opening date on August 16, 1951 to 95,472,890 vehicles, Harty said.

The June count brought total traffic over the span from its opening date on August 16, 1951 to 95,472,890 vehicles, Harty said.

It was also announced that Stephen Zielinski and Louis Ferrier tied for first place among the toll collectors during June in their efficiency contest. Each was awarded a $50 U. S. Savings Bond. Emory Postles won second place and a $25 bond, while Howard Wilson, Rudolph George and Francis Riley finished in that order.

Felton Cyclist Hurt in Collision

A rural Felton youth Monday reported in fairly good condition from injuries he received when his motorcycle and a car collided.

William Stubbs, 19, was injured Sunday on Kent County Road 380, 2½ miles west of Frederica.

The operator of the car, Dewey Price, 66, of rural Milford, received minor injuries and did not require hospitalization.

State police said Price was driving south on Route 380 when Stubbs approached on the motorcycle from the opposite direction on the wrong side of the road.

place of business as its principal office and is responsible. Make your own check of the firm's references. Reliable firms welcome this.

4. If your state has a structural pest control law, make sure that you are dealing with a licensed firm.

5. Membership in the National Pest Control Association or The Delaware Pest Control Association is evidence that the firm has an established place of business and has met certain admission pre-requisites.

These Associations will gladly provide you a list of members in good standing serving your area.

Make yourself familiar with termites and their habits. The U. S. Department of Agriculture and your state college of agriculture can provide you with short, easily read bulletins on termites.

This will help you understand the proposal of your termite control operator.

Ask your termite operator to provide you with a written statement of the work he proposes to do and estimate on its cost. He will give you time to consider this.

It is customary to guarantee termite control work, sometimes on a year-to-year basis, sometimes for a five-year period. Make sure that you know exactly what guarantee is offered by the firm on its work.

You will probably be asked to sign a work order when you engage a firm. You should understand clearly what obligations you are assuming and what you are getting in return.

As with anything else you buy, purchase only from a reliable firm, and investigate to make sure the firm is reliable before you buy. Reputable firms welcome investigation.

Never permit yourself to be rushed in purchasing termite control. Termite damage usually develops slowly. You always have ample time to purchase your service wisely and at your own convenience.

Purchase your service from a reliable firm. Buy termite control service with the same care and discrimination that is necessary in the purchase of any other service for your property.

You should always assure yourself that you are dealing with a reliable firm with an established place of business. "Before you invest - investigate."

You can investigate in the following ways:

1. If a firm offers references of work done in the past, take time to check such references carefully.

2. For a local firm, check that it is a responsible firm with an established place of business (such as through your Better Business Bureau, your County Agricultural Agents, or the Chamber of Commerce).

3. For an out-of-town firm, make sure that it has an established

Harrington School Music Classes End

The summer music classes sponsored by the Harrington Special School District came to a close last Friday after a six-week session.

The occasion was marked by a concert by the Harrington Elementary School Band, the Junior Band, and the Senior High School Band, given in the parking lot of the Nazarene Church.

The concert was well attended by the largest crowd ever to attend these summer outdoor concerts.

Refreshments were sold by the Band Boosters Club and proceeds went into the Band Fund for extra equipment.

Thanks must go to Rev. Lorraine Ottinger and the members of the Nazarene Church for permission to use their parking lot, and to Mrs. Francis Winkler and her committee who conducted the refreshments, as well as to Miss Hazel Johnson and her sister, Lydia, who assisted with the refreshments.

Rehearsals of the bands were held each week during the six-week period, and each student enrolled, of which there were 119, received a lesson period each week in his respective instrument.

Instruction was given to beginners, those in the intermediate classes, and to advanced students. During this period the Senior Band participated in the Chicken Festival Parade, the Greensboro Firemen's Parade where they divided the prize money with the Felton Band, and won second prize in the parade at Preston, Md., which was sponsored by the Recreation Commission.

Termite Control Suggestions

Don't panic if you learn or suspect that termites may be attacking your house. Your house will not be ruined or collapse because termites are present.

Termite control should be considered merely as another repair that may be necessary to maintain your house in sound structural condition.

Never permit yourself to be rushed in purchasing termite control. Termite damage usually develops slowly. You always have ample time to purchase your service wisely and at your own convenience.

Purchase your service from a reliable firm. Buy termite control service with the same care and discrimination that is necessary in the purchase of any other service for your property.

You should always assure yourself that you are dealing with a reliable firm with an established place of business. "Before you invest - investigate."

You can investigate in the following ways:

1. If a firm offers references of work done in the past, take time to check such references carefully.

2. For a local firm, check that it is a responsible firm with an established place of business (such as through your Better Business Bureau, your County Agricultural Agents, or the Chamber of Commerce).

3. For an out-of-town firm, make sure that it has an established

Delaware Food Market Report

Vegetable news is mixed. Receipts continue heavy but the drought has done much to hinder some supplies. There are two reasons for abundant marketings of many vegetables. Earlier rainfall was sufficient to sustain growth and development. Also irrigated acreage has been expanded and now makes up a significant share of producing acreage. More rain is needed than we have had if things are to continue to be abundant.

In the meantime do enjoy and take advantage of ample vegetable supplies. Lettuce is of high quality, whether it be Iceberg, romaine, or Boston and prices are low. Other salad choices include endive, radishes, green peppers, green onions and tomatoes. Many stores are now handling home-grown tomatoes; if yours doesn't, ask them to. The flavor is excellent and prices have dropped quite a bit. During weekend sales, look for prices to average 13 cents a pound. Of the long list of good buys be sure to check the following: snap beans, egg plant, summer squash, beets, cauliflower, cabbage, sweet corn, beets, and potatoes.

Watermelon continues to make news in most fruit departments. They are selling as low as 59 cents during special sales, the average price is, however, 69 cents each. Cantaloupes and honeydew melons are also plentiful with quality high.

Peaches are among the most plentiful fruits, averaging 12 cents a pound. Plums are down in price this weekend and so are Bing cherries. Don't forget about summer apples for they too are quite reasonable.

All citrus fruits are a little higher. Oranges are up 2 to 3 cents a dozen and grapefruits are up a penny.

Egg prices are higher again this week, the result of hot, dry weather, tired hens, and a general culling of flocks. Average prices, including the increase, are still considerably less than a year ago.

Red meat supplies are near their mid-summer low. Hog marketings will start increasing in August. Pork supplies are expected to be about the same as last year until fall when they will drop below a year ago.

Beef production will also start to increase seasonally in the next few weeks. Light receipts of lamb have pushed prices up to the highest levels in recent years.

Letter to the Editor

We have a water leak in 10 West Street. I have taken this up with City Board, the Mayor, Mr. Peck, and City Manager and called Mr. George Graham's Garage, and the lady that answered the phone talked and soon as she found out who I was and what the phone call was for, she hung up in my face. I called back and some up start of a man told me not to worry about the leak, it would be taken care of by the Democrats. He told the truth. Leave it to the Democrats and nothing will be done.

The only answer I could get out of the City Board, Mayor Peck was they did not know who the leak was on; School Board, State Highway, or the town of Harrington.

Let me tell all of you, there is a way of finding out who the leak is on. Dig into the leak and then you will find out. You will never find out by sitting on your rear ends trying to guess who the leak is on.

If any of the town board, The Mayor, the City Manager, wants any of the mosquitoes that are breeding from this leak I will gladly catch some mosquitoes and deliver them personally to anyone of you that cares to have the mosquitoes.

This leak has been in the road for over a year. What we need is someone to take and look after the town.

The Search For Market Power

By Dr. Max E. Brunk Professor of Marketing

It doesn't take much of an analyst to conclude that farmers have little voice in determining the prices they receive for their products or pay for foods.

Industry usually sets the prices at which its products will be sold and exercises power over prices of raw products. Labor goes a long way in stipulating its wages and fringe benefits. Neither labor nor industry command any more of a secret weapon than agriculture in forcing their product on the consumer, but they've been able to exercise a greater degree of supply management than agriculture.

Market power implies a degree of industry control over price and it is assumed that higher price means higher income. Certainly after 30 years of experience we should know the folly of attempting scarcity pricing in an atmosphere of abundance. True market power lies in controlling factors affecting price and not in manipulating price itself.

Market power is sought in many ways, but chiefly is acquired by manipulating supply and demand through organization. Such organization may vary from government created monopolies to informal groups of voluntary members.

The failure of agriculture to establish a reasonable degree of market power voluntarily has led to all sorts of government programs designed to do this for farmers. But there is a vast difference in the effects of market power established by industry and by government.

Under free enterprise control, the principals making a decision must bear the financial responsibility of the results, good or bad. But under the government control, payments are made to farmers for services rendered to government, not to the market, making consumption subservient to production.

It is important for agriculture to remember it can maximize income only by producing products needed and wanted in the market place. No other goal can be consistent with the philosophy on which our economy is structured. The injection of government subsidy into the picture makes it increasingly difficult for both farmers and market agents to respond to the dictates of the consumer.

The workings of a competitive economy must have an equality of a bargaining power among buyers and sellers. When competitive advantage is gained by one group, we see pressures on price depending on whether that group is buyer or seller. This results in organizational counter-measures by the group which has lost power. This is the position of agriculture today.

At this stage it seems appropriate to ask a question. If organizational structures have given buyers more market power, why can't this same power be offset by sellers using this same device? We find part of the answer by looking at the characteristics which give organizational structures their market power.

First, it is relatively difficult to get into and out of business. There are many barriers to freedom of entry. Some are economically generated while others find their origin in the political considerations of trade groups or government. On the other hand, agriculture has established relatively few barriers to entry. If almost any group in agriculture is successful in negotiating higher prices, we find an immediate shift of new producers and resources into that sector.

Secondly, many of our most powerful marketing structures exist in industries which have few producers. The smaller the number of producers, the easier it is for them to come to agreement on issues involving price and income policies. Again agriculture has poor qualifications on this score. Not only do we have many producers of given products within agriculture but also we have strong competition among the producers of alternative products.

Third in importance, is alternative uses of product or resources. Certainly there is more ability to withhold products from market if they can be diverted to alternative uses.

Fourth, we find market power and large financial resources go together. Large financial reserves enable many industries to weather the storms of excess inventories.

Last, is the degree of price-making activities which government will sanction in a given industry. With all its inherent disadvantages in building organizations with some reasonable degree of market power, agriculture has faced few problems of anti-trust.

In attempting to structure our agricultural market organizations in the future, it is important we give attention to these characteristics. In spite of these handicaps, agriculture is beginning to exploit some of the market power of business organization.

In fact, the pattern to be followed by agriculture is fairly well established and includes, among other things, three distinct types of market organizations. They are: Sales organizations; bargaining associations; market development associations.

To a great extent, the success of any one of these in achieving market power depends largely on the existence of the others. Unfortunately, these three devices alone are not powerful enough to solve the surplus problems of agriculture created by the artificial prices of government support programs. However, judicious use of these devices will serve to lessen the need for such programs, thus restoring to the prices mechanism the function of reflecting the wants of consumers.

Real power in marketing, as in production comes from ownership. If farmers are to gain significant price-making power, they must get into the business of marketing and exercise control over the distribution of their products.

The development of sound co-operatives calls for capital, the full confidence of members, good management, efficient operation, established market outlets, and the ability to do the job better than competing structures.

I may be altruistic in my thinking, but I believe profit and co-operative organizations can establish formal working relationships so as to capitalize on the inherent advantages of each. We have recently seen such structures emerge, and in the future I think we will see more of them.

The establishment of sound marketing structures will go a long way in giving agriculture the market power it seeks and needs and government can get rid of part of its agricultural burden by doing more to encourage the establishment of such structures.

Howard F. Carroll

Howard F. Carroll, 73, died yesterday in Milford Memorial Hospital from burns suffered when a gas stove exploded in his trailer home a week ago.

Mr. Carroll, a farmer, lived near here.

A bachelor, he is survived by three brothers, William, Herman, and Thomas, all of Milford, and a sister, Mrs. Bertha Frock, Greenwood.

Funeral services will be Saturday at 2 p.m. from the Berry Funeral Home, Milford. Burial will be at Hollywood Cemetery. Friends may call tomorrow evening at the funeral home.

This is the time of year when many people go on picnics and outings in public parks, forests, and private recreation lands. George Vapaa, Kent County agent lists a few basic facts about picnics and camping on other people's land.

Woodlots and forests may give the impression that nobody owns them, he says, but you can be sure this isn't the case. Other people have been there before, and many people will follow you. Keeping this in mind, be careful about destroying flowers, ferns, or other vegetation.

In the case of animals, remember that many of them are legally protected by fish and game laws. Here's another important point from the county agent. Don't touch or destroy baby birds or animals. You may find a baby animal that seems to be lost or abandoned, but its parents are usually nearby, waiting for you to go away. If you pick up the animal or handle it, the parents will often reject it and leave it to die. It's better to keep clear of baby animals and let their mothers return to take care of them.

These reminders aren't anything unusual—they're just common sense. The basic rule is still the same: leave things as good or better than you found them.

Improve Your Haying "Luck"

If you made it safely through the first cutting of hay, maybe you were lucky. You can make your own luck by adding good judgment and common sense to your machinery know-how this haying season.

According to George Vapaa, Kent County agent, hay harvesting on a national basis—claims more lives than the harvest of any other crop.

By following these simple rules you can make your haying season a lot safer:

Always shut off the power before cleaning, oiling or adjusting any power-driven machine. Keep power take-off and other safety shields in place—they were put there to protect you.

Don't permit extra passengers on tractors or loaded hay wagons. Falls from wagons, mows, silos and stacks are all too frequent.

Watch your tractor speed on the road and in raking and mowing where higher speeds are used. Packing silage with tractors in trench silos is highly hazardous. Use only experienced operators who know the danger.

Pitchforks and hay forks can be dangerous. Handle them with care.

Hay safely. Don't add to the accident toll this year.

Historical Sketches

Historical Sketches of Christ Church, Milford, Founded in 1704

Written by the Rev. Joseph S. Hinks, retired pastor of Christ Church, Milford, in 1942.

With explanatory and Supplementary notes.

"God's tabernacle on earth is the faithful."—S. Augustine.

"When I oversee the Church, Christ oversees me."—S. Polycarp.

"Like as a grain of mustard at first sight seems but a little thing, both common and despised, giving no savor, shedding no odour, indicating no sweetness; but as soon as it is bruised, straightway it sheds its odour, manifests its sharpness, exhales a condiment of fiery savor, and is inflamed with such burning heat that it seems a marvel how so much fire was shut up in such trifling grains; so also faith at first."—S. Gregory the Great.

"The heir must believe his title to an estate in reversion before he can hope for it; faith believes its title to glory, and hope waits for it. Did not faith feed the lamp of hope with oil it would soon die."—S. Ambrose.

"Christians! They are full of God; His spiritual temples; full of Christ, full of holiness; adorned in all things with the commands of Christ; they love God supremely and always."—S. Ignatius.

In this sketch of Christ Church

we will consider it, as it historically and naturally divides itself, in three parts.

I. As a Colonial Parish. Founded 1704 (1704-1785)

II. As one of the original Parishes of the American Church. As one of the founding parishes of the Diocese of Delaware.

The transition from the Church of England jurisdiction to the American Church.

The part that the State and Diocese of Delaware had in this transition.

The participation of the Rector of Christ Church in the first Conventions of the church.

The transfer of the Church from Church Hill to Milford, 1836.

III. The completion of the present Church building. The consecration of the Church.

Resume of the past 105 years of parochial life and development.

The influence and contributions to community and Diocesan affairs.

Some supplementary notes, bearing on the history of Christ Church. Other explanatory comments that will help to picture the progress of a noble and holy inspiration and of sacrificial and enduring achievements.

Judge Richard Rodney, in writing of these Colonial Churches, said:

"There can be no Colonial history of the Church in Delaware for there was no church as we generally understand the term.

There was no cohesion, no convention, no Bishop or other ecclesiastical authority. Thinly scattered through what is now the State of Delaware were a few struggling charges, each independent of the other, and all under the care of a band of zealous missionaries furnished by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, which Society provided a greater part of the pitifully small stipends.

The ecclesiastical survey of Colonial conditions must, therefore, be either of the locations themselves where the seed was sown or consist of a consideration of those persons to whom was entrusted the arduous duty of laying the foundations in Delaware of the Church which was to come."

The limitations expressed by Judge Rodney are those to be realized by anyone attempting a review of this period of our State and Church history. So if this sketch appears to be fragmentary and "dry" it is because we have tried to gather from many sources a picture that we trust will portray to some extent the scenes and personalities of the time.

In order to get a clearer view of the conditions and circumstances of Colonial Church life—and this applies to Delaware and therefore to our study of Milford and vicinity—Dean Hodges summarizes this period:

"The little minority of churchmen were inevitably unpopular. Their neighbors had brought from England a strong resentment against the church and state. They imparted to their children animosity — To their minds, the church stood for the bigotry of bishops and the tyranny of kings. It represented a state of life from which they had escaped, and from which they hoped to be free.

"There being no bishop—ordination could only be had by going to London.—During this period the ministry of the church was chiefly replenished from the homes of planters, and not by the accession of men who were acquainted by experience with colonial life, but from England. There they were ordained and had commonly served an English parish before they presented themselves here. Even the good men coming thus into the backwoods, found it difficult to understand their parishioners, and their parishioners found it equally difficult to understand them.

"In addition to the disability caused by the absence of bishops, the Church in most of the colonies had the further disadvantage of unpopularity. The general conditions in the 17th century England favored not an episcopal but a non-episcopal emigration. Most of the colonies were founded at a time when the Puritans were pursued by the Authorities. Men of energy, and enterprise and conviction came over here to get away. In Massachusetts and Connecticut, the Congregationalists and the Presbyterians; in Rhode Island, the Baptists; in Pennsylvania; the Quakers; made up the great majority of the colonists. Churchmen, for whom England was a pleasant country and who had no strong reasons to be emigrants stayed at home. Except in Virginia and Maryland, they made up an inconsiderable portion of the population."

"The Puritans settled New England. New York was settled by the Dutch. New Jersey by the Swedes. Maryland by the Roman Catholics. Virginia was the only colony in which we find the Church of England as the established church—From Virginia we find the clergy coming to Delaware. First services—in Delaware—by the Rev. John Yeo, 1677."

1. Christ Church, A Colonial Parish. 1704-1785

The location of the first Church of the Parish is unknown, nor is the exact date known when this building was erected. Records do show, however, that a small wooden chapel was later built at a point known as "Church Hill" at a place three miles west of Milford. A small frame structure, thirty-six (36) feet long by thirty (30) feet wide. This church was familiarly known as the "Savannah Church."

Possibly because of the swamp nearby, or to distinguish it from the Three Runs Meeting House of the Presbyterians, situated two miles further down the creek. This church was officially designated Christ Church, Mispillion."

Surrounding this church was a churchyard. Dimensions: N. 83° E., 12.2 Ps.; N. 70° W., 18 Ps.; S. 83° W., 12.2 Ps.; S. 70° S., 18 Ps. — 1 A., 60 Ps.

The above plot represents one and 10/100 acres of land, situated now, 1878, on the public road leading from Milford to Harrington Station on the Delaware R. R. in Milford Hundred (formerly Mispillion Hundred) Kent County and State of Delaware whereon stood a house of worship known as "Savannah Church."

Copies from a survey at that time of land of the heirs of Daniel Polk, dead, Copied July 2, 1878 by Ch. Fleming, Milford, Delaware.

Copies from Mr. Fleming's papers by J. L. McKim, 3/29/1897.

During this period Christ Church was served by the clergy of Christ Church, Dover, who resided at the Glebe; Rev. Messrs. Crawford, Henderson, Fraser, Usher, Bluet, Inglis, and Magaw. These clergymen were responsible for all the church work in Kent County, which included the parishes of Dover, Mispillion and Smyrna. Their time and energies were concentrated entirely in Kent County.

It is most unfortunate that the Parish records for this period are not available. They have either been lost or destroyed. We suffer the great loss of all baptismal, confirmation and other important statistical information. Information that the clergy have been called upon again and again to supply for genealogical and legal purposes. To their regret and to the disappointment of those seeking the information, we have to reply "we do not possess these records." The same reply must be made to all inquiries for information of parishioners previous to 1880.

If the list of the clergy is correct, and there are no omissions, we find that from the year 1704 to 1777 the parish was without clerical service for thirty-three years. We cannot however, verify this. If it is true, (the list of the clergy is the official one), then the Parish suffered greatly from the causes mentioned in this sketch — the loss of Episcopal oversight, the lack of priests to serve the Colonial parishes and other impediments of the early American Church.

At this point of our history we must take recognition of the Parish at Cedar Creek, St. Matthew's Church. A church with a churchyard in Sussex County, about seven miles from Christ Church, Church Hill, St. Matthew's Church was founded by the S. P. G., as a chapel of St. Peter's Church, Lewes, and served from St. Peter's Church.

Due to length of article on Christ Church, Milford, it will be continued in next week's Historical Sketches page.

"Sports Odds And Ends"

Seaford Country Club will hold its 18th annual Invitation Golf Tournament Saturday and Sunday.

Local golfers include Tom Clendening, who tees off at 7:30 a.m. Saturday and Bill Johnson, who competes in first flight play at 2:20 p.m. Both are representing Shawnee Country Club, Milford. Another familiar name is Edsel "Jake" Minner of Seaford. Minner went to school here, then later lived in Felton.

Mickey Hubbard of Cambridge, a coach at South Dorchester High, Md., is known to Harringtonians, who remember some of the athletes and teams brought here by him.

A cartoon in a New Jersey newspaper shows two teenage boys looting in hammocks under a shade tree. The headline on a newspaper they are reading states "President Says 1/4 of Nation's School Children Flunk Physical." One of the lads is saying "It's all mom's fault. She hardly ever drives us to the gym. Those of the readers who witnessed the 1 1/2 miles and 3 1/8 miles races of the fair Tuesday night saw 13 boys from ages 13 to 20 who do not have to be driven to the gym to stay in good physical condition. These athletes train anywhere including paved sidewalks and roads in some cases.

George Bonniwell, 16, and Bob Smith, 15, of Harrington were prominent in this group.

Sandra Knott, a teenager from Cleveland, recently lowered the American record for the women's 800 meter run to 2:11.6. This distance is roughly equivalent to a half mile. We would like to see her make the acquaintance of Harrington's Harry Knotts, Delaware State X-Country Champion in 1960.

George Pfeiffer, our pick as the most versatile athlete ever at H.H.S., is home on leave from U. S. Marine training. George could do practically anything in the five sports in which he won varsity letters.

The Harrington entry in the Kent-Sussex Pony League rates right up with Felton and Georgetown as the best teams in the loop. When picking the All-Star Team for tournament play only three from here were chosen. To compound the issue this trio played a total of only eight innings as the Kent-Sussex All-Stars dropped two close games to the Seaford League All-Stars. Reynolds French pitched part of one inning. Ellis Myer caught one inning. Glen Smith, one of the classiest infielders in the league, played six innings in right field. The Georgetown pilot led the team. The Greenwood and Bridgeville players saw plenty of action. Greenwood's lone player played more innings than the Harrington trio.

The local Pony fans are miffed and in our opinion they should be.

The two cancelled games with Felton will be played later after all.

Jack Redden's Lions and Bill Minner's Legion teams in the Harrington Little League will settle the championship soon. Minner's squad won the first half title. Redden's boys took the second half.

In an interesting and unusual contest played last week, B. Norman Hopkin's teenage girls' softball team won a softball game from the Lions Little League boys team by a score of 14-13. The boys aged 9 to 12 fell way behind at the start then almost pulled the bacon out of the fire in the late going. Hopkin's crew also took a decision last week from the Burrsville ladies team.

Some coaches claim distance running and football are incompatible. Tom Landry, successful coach of the New York Giants, pro team, disputes this contention. Landry has his boys do plenty of running. When they are ready he puts them on the quarter mile track and has every member of the squad try to run a mile in six minutes. This theory is now famous as the "Landry Mile." Many of the squad eventually reach this goal and that includes beefy linemen in addition to most of the backs.

Marks Fall In Fair Foot Races

A hard, fast track enabled a group of finely conditioned athletes to smash records in both of the Delaware State Fair distance footraces.

In the first race Elsmere's Randy Jernigan and Harrington's Bob Smith staged a repeat performance of their hotly-waged 1 1/2 miles duel last year. In 1961 Jernigan, fresh from winning the state junior high half mile title, got away from Smith in the last few yards to win in eight minutes and thirty-three seconds. This year Jernigan again won in the final seconds as he was clocked in 7:52 to Smith's 7:55. Each had 41 seconds faster than in the inaugural test. The Elsmere lad is a year older than the Harrington youth and has a big advantage also, in the fact that his older brother, Roy, is a distance runner for the University of Delaware and can help Randy by tips on technique and by working out with them.

In the 3 1/8-mile race, Bill Greenplate, of Newark, a hard worker with no college experience, upset the apocryphal with a 15:37 clocking that knocked 13 seconds off the old record set two years ago by Wes Stack of Seaford. Greenplate led all the way and fought off challenges by Lee McMaster and Don Ladd, University of Delaware athletes. Roy Jernigan, No. 1 distance ace at Delaware, caught Greenplate in the homestretch and had the race won but misjudged the finish line and stopped too soon enabling the Newark lad to win the first place trophy. Jernigan also broke the old record.

George Bonniwell of Harrington, at 16 years of age, was two years younger than any of the other athletes in the 3 1/8 mile feature event. His time of 17:30 was very good when one considers that his career as a distance runner is only about six weeks old. Some of his rivals have been running for six years or more.

Three sons of Charles Harrington, a Harrington native, now living in Claymont, ran in the races. Charles Harrington, 18, ran in the big race. Brian, 16, and Gary, 13, ran in the opening event. All did well against stiff competition. In fact, no runner in either race should apologize for his showing as all 13 lads gave fine performances.

Fishing Lines

Since fishermen have caught several sharks in Delaware waters this season we thought a few facts about one of the most fascinating members of the "pisccatorial set" would interest our readers.

Unlike most fish, sharks do not have swim bladders. The lack of this buoyant organ, coupled with the fact that sharks are heavier than water, makes it necessary for them from the moment of birth to death to remain in motion to maintain their vertical position in the ocean. The fin structure makes it impossible for a shark to back up. If he misses he must swing and try again, traveling in a figure 8 pattern while feeding on smaller fishes.

Young sharks are born in an active and free living state. The reproductive capacity of the shark is small compared with other fishes. Usually there are 6 to 10 pups in a litter. However, some Blue Shark may give birth to 75 to 80 young sharks.

If you should happen to see the familiar upper tail lobe of the Thresher Shark riding high in the water as it pursues fish and squid be assured he mistakenly came into the bay. Sharks definitely prefer living a life of isolation far at sea.

Blues Plentiful

Last Sunday, while trolling for blues off Fenwick Island, Russell Dean on the Lydia Mae furnished six Doverites some of the best fishing of a lifetime. They docked at the Inlet about 3:00 p.m. with over 500 blues weighing from two to three pounds and quite a few bonitos. "Russ" seems to know the tricks for earlier in the week his party landed 14 tuna weighing between 25 and

Rowboat Fishery

Game and fish manager Tony Florio and family were at Bethany Beach last week actually living off the water.

Snapper blue fishing near Gull Island was excellent and flounder fishing fair. Some blues were running near the mouth of White Creek. Crabbing and clamming, as usual, was excellent.

Canada even gets into the slogan act with New Brunswick's "Picture Province," the Northwest Territory's "Canada's Northland," and the Yukon's "Land of the Midnight Sun."

Particularly eye-catching are the illustrations appearing on the license plates of some states. For example, Alaska displays its flag on which the Big Dipper and North Star flutter in the breeze. Colorado's green and white tags are edged at the top with what looks like rugged mountain peaks. Louisiana offers a pelican; New Mexico an Indian drawing of the sun; South Dakota a sketch of four faces on Mount Rushmore; Wyoming a bucking bronco with rider grimly hanging on.

Not to be outdone by their neighbors to the south, several of the Canadian provinces also use illustrations with Manitoba featuring a buffalo; the Yukon a sourdough crouched over his gold-panning operation; Quebec a fleur-de-lis emblem; Ontario a crown; and New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island their royal seals.

As every student of Delaware history knows, Delaware's designation as "The First State" is derived from the fact that this state was the first to ratify the Federal Constitution having taken such action 175 years ago this coming December 7—concludes the Development Department.

Quick Meals For Busy Homemakers

Have you ever wished you could wave a magic wand and a delicious meal would appear on your table? Although this isn't possible — yet, Janet Coblentz, foods and nutrition specialist with the University of Delaware, offers some tips in a new publication that can make the job almost that easy.

According to Miss Coblentz, the first thing to consider is the menu. "A meal well-planned is a meal half ready." She offers these tips to easy menu planning: Collect recipes and menus for quick meals; keep in mind a basic pattern for breakfast, lunch and dinner. Keep meals simple. Plan them around family likes and dislikes. Take advantage of foods in season and best buys. Double check your menus for necessary nutrients essential for your family's health. Select food that requires little or no preparation.

In the booklet Miss Coblentz has prepared entitled "Quick Meals for Busy Homemakers," she lists many recipes and menus that will help you take advantage of her suggestions for quick meal planning.

Other sections of the book deal with kitchen practices that save time and make kitchen chores more enjoyable. She says preparing whole meals in a skillet or broiler can save utensils, fuel and time. To save steps, Miss Coblentz suggests storing the equipment near the place it is used first. The coffee pot should be near the sink since the first step in making coffee is to put water in the pot. Potholders should be near the range; dishpan near the sink; salt and pepper near the food preparation area.

This free booklet on time savers for busy homemakers is available from the Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark. Ask for "Quick Meals for Busy Homemakers" by Janet L. Coblentz.

Clinic For Sick Plants Farm Field Day Feature

A clinic for sick plants, designed to help farmers recognize and solve problems caused by insects, diseases, weeds, and other factors, is being added to the 1962 Farm Field Day at the University of Delaware Substation near Georgetown August 1.

Field crop and vegetable producers are being encouraged to bring in "sick plants" for diagnosis by a panel of specialists representing all of the areas of plant growth.

Included in the list of specialists that will be on hand are: Dr. Dale F. Bray and Professor Donald MacCreary, extension entomologists; Dr. William Mitchell, agronomist; Professor Robert F. Stevens, horticulturist; and Dr. John Heuberger, plant pathologist.

Reese Theatre Re-Opens Sunday

As has been the custom for many years, the Reese Theatre closes during the fair.

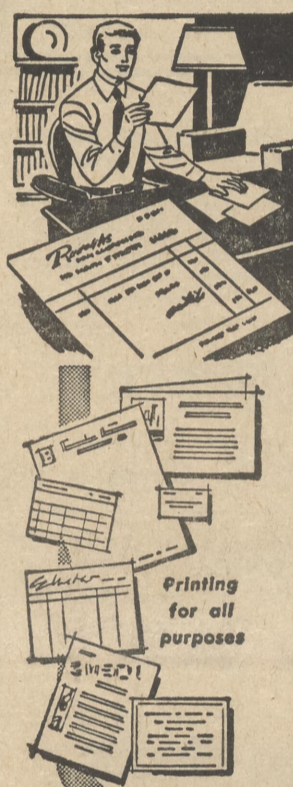

Naturally, the management makes every effort to secure a big opening attraction, and this year, from those in the know, the management has gone all "out" and has been successful in booking two of the most outstanding new hits of the present season.

The ever popular William Holden is the star of the new Paramount hit, "The Counterfeit Traitor," the first hit of the giant Grand Re-opening program Sunday and Monday, July 29 and 30. Alan Ladd in "13 West St." is the new co-feature in what is classified as the Top Re-opening attraction of any year yet.

Everybody is a 'ditter' with the announcement of the coming of the nation's fun hit, "Touch of Mink" with Cary Grant, Doris Day and Gig Young. It has developed into a laugh free-for-all the length and breadth of the country, and one cannot afford to miss it when it plays the Reese Theatre, Thurs., Fri., Sat., Sun., and Mon., Aug. 2-6, five glorious days.
