Memorial Bridge Shows Traffic Increase

Delaware Memorial Bridge continued its increased traffic trend in October when there were 30,624 more crossings than in October 1961.

General Manager Frank J. Horty in his report to the Delaware River and Bay Authority points out that the increase is 3.4 per cent over the previous year and represent the fifth straight month of the fiscal year in which advances have been recorded.

From June 1 to October 31 there have been 5,932,373 crossings as compared to 5,571,938 vehicles for the previous similar period, or an increase of 360,435 vehicles. This is a 6.5 per cent gain. The October figures also include the 100 millionth crossing from the time the span opened on August 16, 1961, Horty points out. That crossing was made at 9:30 p.m. on October 23.

It was also announced that a drawing for the redemption of 1185 Delaware Memorial Bridge bonds was made at the Bank of Delaware on October 8. This makes a total of $37,986,000 in bonds that have been redeemed either by direct purchase or calling by lot. There is an outstanding bonded indebtedness of $10,614,000, the report shows.

Revenue for the five month period in fiscal 1962-63 brought in $2,157,004 as compared to $2,055,147.5 a year earlier, or an increase of five per cent. During October collections amounted to $371,710.15 compared to $362,660.35 in October 1961 for a gain of $9,049.80.

Horty announced that Emory Postles was first among the toll collectors in the monthly efficiency contest and received a $50 U. S. Savings Bond. Francis Riley was in second place and received a $25 bond. Hubert Cassidy, Rudolph George and Stephen Zielinski placed in that order.

THE REV. WILLIAM W. Turkington, of Middleboro, Mass., to be in Greenwood beginning Sunday, continuing through Dec. 2, sponsored by the Greenwood Methodist Church. The first week, Nov. 18 through the 25th, the services will be held in the Grace Methodist Church. 33,000 Unwelcome Visitors Halted at U.S. Ports of Entry

An incoming plant pest was halted at U. S. ports of entry once every 16 minutes during the past fiscal year. These intercepted visitors included some of the world's most damaging insects and plant diseases, according to Dr. Dale Bray, University of Delaware entomologist.

U. S. Department of Agriculture figures indicate a total of 33,033 pests of quarantine significance were discovered. These included corn insects, mites, snails, nematodes and plant diseases and were found in such places as passenger baggage, ships' stores, and even in the mail.

The number of plant pests discovered was a third higher than in previous years, according to reports. This increase is easily accounted for in additional foreign travel and added plant quarantine inspection activities, Bray adds.

The golden nematode, enemy of tomato and potato crops, valued at half a million dollars a year was intercepted 83 times compared with only 29 interceptions a year ago. Three dangerous citrus diseases not found in this country but considered enemies

Interviewing of Aged Drivers, Others to Start About Dec. 1

The Motor Vehicle Commission will begin interviewing licensed drivers born before 1890 "about Dec. 1."

Simultaneously, examiners of the commission will interview all drivers whose license come up for renewal.

That was the word Wednesday from Russel W. Whitby, the motor vehicle commissioner, who said he will inform persons to be interviewed that the state is "beginning a new traffic safety program in 1963."

Whitby emphasized that his examiners will conduct interviews and not actual tests except in cases where the physical appearance of the person being interviewed seems to warrant it.

Larcenies Dot Life Of Man Facing Whipping Post

Franklin Wesley Cannon, Jr., who faces a whipping-post sentence of 20 lashes, is the oldest of six children of Franklin and Evelyn Cannon, 341 N. New St., Dover.

A summary of information compiled about Cannon by state probation officers follows:

He was a constant truant from public school and was permitted to end his education at the 8th grade for part-time employment.

His first brush with the law came in 1956, but the charge was dismissed. Cannon's police record, however, includes a series of petty larceny charges.

In 1959, he was committed to the Ferris School for Boys.

After Cannon was convicted of grand larceny charges Dec. 4 of last year, Superior Court Judge Stewart Lynch imposed the sentence of 20 lashes and three years in prison but the penalty was suspended in favor of a five-year probation. Cannon, according to the probation report, then obtained a job at Hayes International Corp. at the Dover Air Force Base, where he earned $1.70 per hour.

He was arrested on May 3 on a petty larceny charge by Delaware State Police. Four days later, Cannon was arrested on another petty larceny involving a theft of between $3 and $4 worth of goods from a drugstore.

Cannon was tried on the two charges before a magistrate and was sentenced to 60 days in the Kent Correctional Institution.

At the termination of the sentence on the petty larceny charges, Cannon was detained for breaking probation. Since then, he had been a patient at the Delaware State Hospital on four different occasions for examination by psychologists and psychiatrists.

Judge Lynch visited Cannon on four separate occasions since first imposing the lashes about a year ago. Tuesday, Judge Lynch re-imposed the sentence because Cannon had broken probation.

C. R. High School Student Receives Commendation

George Vapaa, a senior at Caesar Rodney High School, has received a letter of Commendation signed by Archie Jordan, the high school principal, for his high performance on the National Merit Qualifying Test given last March.

About 28,000 students throughout the country are being awarded these letters of Commendation in recognition of their excellent performance on the qualifying tests, and the commended students together constitute about 2 per cent of all high school seniors. This certainly signifies a worthy accomplishment.

Although the commended students will not receive Merit Scholarships, they will be considered for certain other scholarships that are offered through the facilities of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

George, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Vapaa, of Dover, plans to attend the University of Delaware next fall.

The elder Vapaa once taught vo-aga here. Mrs. Vapaa is the former Virginia Griffith, of Harrington.

C. of C. Readies Christmas Program

The Chamber of Commerce may be interested in the formation of a Kent County association of chambers of commerce, but not to the extent of losing its identity, it was brought out Tuesday at the November meeting of the local group at The Wonder R.

After receiving information from Fulton Downing, local member, the chamber thought the local group was especially necessary for local issues. Downing and Charles L. Peck Jr., however, were to attend a Dover meeting this week to secure more information.

The Tuesday meeting was occupied mostly with plans for the annual Christmas program. Thomas Peck, chairman of the Christmas Committee, announced the following committees and chairmen: Parade, Madalyn Tharp; three, Clarence Rash, and decorative lighting for houses, Thomas E. Clendening.

Details of the parade, to be held Sat., Nov. 24, are announced elsewhere in this newspaper.

The 40 et-8 locomotive is expected to be present.

State Fiscal Shakeup Urged; Governor's Committee Gets Report

The Governor's Committee to Improve efficiency in State Financial management received a preliminary report this week recommending sweeping changes in Delaware's bookkeeping methods.

The report was prepared by the firm of Cresap, McCormick and Paget and the committee met at 10:30 in the office of Secretary of State Elisha Dukes to discuss it.

These were the chief recommendations:

Establish the post of chief financial officer, serving at the pleasure of the governor and responsible to him for general management including budget preparation, budgetary control, pre-auditing, accounting and reporting.

Assign post-auditing functions to the auditor of accounts.

Abolish the budget commission, since it would no longer be necessary. This method would establish full responsibility of the governor for the executive functions of financial management and would provide appropriate checks and balances through an independent post-audit.

Veterans Day Exercises Held at Memorial Plaza

Delawareans remembered Sunday and Monday the sacrifices and services rendered by America's fighting men, both living and dead, and observed Veterans Day 1962 with appropriate ceremonies at Delaware Memorial Bridge and at various other locations throughout the state.

Inasmuch as November 11 this year fell on a Sunday, the Veterans Day holiday was extended through a two-day period with federal, state, county and municipal offices and banks closed on Mondays. Flags were flown before public buildings and homes on both days and many clergymen devoted part of their Sunday sermons to tributes to America's honored war dead.

As in previous years, exercises were held at Memorial Plaza, Delaware Memorial Bridge, on Sunday afternoon with a near capacity crowd joining the state's veterans organizations in what is traditionally Delaware's Official Veterans Day Ceremony.

Principal speaker at the Memorial Plaza was the Rev. Edward J. Karnis, World War II Army Air Force combat veteran and former F.B.I. agent.

Father Karnis, assistant pastor of St. Thomas R. C. Church, Wilmington, and a chaplain of the Delaware National Guard, in a well received message cautioned his listeners against the acts and words of those who "attempt to drive God out of every aspect of our way of life." These, he said, "plan to supplant the supreme personal being with the cult of

Woman Put On Probation For Husband's Death

Mrs. Sara Rose Lane, who accidentally shot and killed her husband, at their home near Houston, on August 2, was placed on probation for a year by Judge Albert Stiffel in the Superior Court at Dover Thurs., Nov. 8.

Her defense counsel, Herman C. Brown presented a complete review of Mrs. Lane's situation with her husband to the court and cited how members of her family had stood with her through the years of the difficulty. Two of her sons were with her in the court room.

Brown told the court that Mrs. Lane had no intention of shooting her husband but had only procured the gun to scare him away from hurting her, and, as she raised her hands to her face in a protective manner, the gun was fired.

Mrs. Lane had been indicted by the grand jury for first degree murder and on Oct. 15th, when her case came to trial, and an argument ensued concerning the selection of a jury, a conference between attorneys and the court took place with the result that Mrs. Lane entered a plea of guilty to involuntary manslaughter.

In other cases, John Roberts and Lawrence Elwood Scott, of Harrington, were given 18 months in jail on two charges of breaking and entering and robbery. On Aug. 18th they broke into the garage of Ethel Maguigan, east of Farmington, and on Sept. 1st they broke into the Watkins Auto Supply Store, in Harrington.

James A. Flamer, of Harrington, who broke into the home of Henry Buniski, near Camden, on April 16, 1959, and who has been in prison most of the time since, was given two years in jail. He is the man who came into court and pleaded guilty to this charge and then wrote a letter to the court saying that plea was in error, and was brought back into court for further action only to have him plead guilty a second time.

The theft occurred between Wednesday night and Thursday morning, Nov. 8. Entrance was gained through an unlocked rear double door off the patio.

The whiskey was taken from a liquor storage room. Also stolen was an undetermined amount of money from the juke box and the cigarette machine.

State police recovered the pick-up about three miles from the club on Route 212.

Rural Housing Loan Rules Expanded

Families or persons over 62 living in rural areas can now get loans for housing from the Farmers Home Administration under new rules included in the Senior Citizens Housing Act of 1962. Better housing will be available to many rural elderly as a result.

Loans are directly available to those persons over 62 who do not have adequate housing and do not qualify for credit from normal sources.

Three new changes were made in the loan terms for elderly persons in rural areas. First, qualified persons can obtain loans to buy a previously occupied house and its related facilities. Second, the lot as well as the house can be financed. Third, consigners may be used by elderly applicants who cannot otherwise obtain a loan. Loans could not be made under any of these conditions before.

Interest on direct loans for rural housing for the elderly is four percent. Repayment of the loans may be spread out over a 33-year period. Loans may be obtained for the construction, improvement, alteration, or repair

The trial of a Milford man charged with soliciting someone to murder his wife has been postponed until next Friday, Deputy Atty. Gen. John B. Maybee said Wednesday.

Dr. Cairns Addresses Land & People Conference

Addressing some 2,500 rural and urban leaders from the Northeast attending the Philadelphia Land and People Conference, Dr. Gordon M. Cairns, Dean of the School of Agriculture, University of Maryland, concurred that the future belongs to those communities whose people assume their responsibilities at the local level.

"In stressing the importance of local leadership, it was pointed out that we are part of a changing society. There is a definite need to find a way to change some of the traditional attitudes held by people. This can be achieved through public discussion and the development of an understanding of these problems. Through these means, it will be possible to arrive at solutions that can be implemented in a practical way to develop the local areas," stated Dr. Cairns.

"In our modern society, the length of the work week makes possible a reasonable amount of leisure time for recreational purposes. The natural resources of the country, the streams, lakes and other potential recreational areas become an important consideration. Through rural area development, these facilities should be developed in a manner that will benefit the economy of the region.

"Industry is vital to the development of an area and the gainful employment of many people therein. In many areas, it may be necessary to provide a system for the education or retraining for the industries best suited to the area.

"Technical assistance in the planning of these facilities is available through several agencies. The opportunities for obtaining financial assistance for recreation projects has been enhanced by recent federal legislation."

"Experience has shown that worthwhile programs and projects usually stem from local initiative. Community leaders need adequate information to make a true appraisal of the needs and opportunities of the area. The objectives of the rural area development program are to bring federal, state and local groups together to assist in developing the economic and human resources of the rural area."

"It has been traditional in the past for most projects to be considered on a political subdivision or county area. It is possible and often times will be practical to consider a larger area possible consisting of several counties where a program may be developed which can assist in the economic development of the area or region.

"Citizens committees should be made up of representatives from all agencies and interested groups. These committees can play a vital part in this development and lead directly into a total economic development program. The Extension Service is available to provide basic educational guidance to both state and local rural area development committees.

"After the inventory of the available resources has been completed, the problems of the area should be identified and analyzed. A list of the prospective projects should be developed. The economic feasibility of each must be considered. The next step should be to select projects on a priority basis and to plan the program for development. The financing, needed organizations, markets, competing enterprises, the cost of development, and potential returns, the management and location must be considered. Another review of the potential projects should then be made and those best suited should be recommended for implementation.

"In the final analysis, the decisions should be made by local people after consideration of all factors. The responsibility for the implementation of a project may be assumed by the county or area committee or by a public agency or private corporation, depending upon the individual situation.

"There is a difference between action and education for action," continued Dr. Cairns. "The land grant colleges have an opportunity to assist in providing resource information. We should at all times avoid duplication of committees and efforts. It is important that all available local resources be utilized. This may include local financing."

Concluding, Dr. Cairns summarized on how planning and implementation of economic development for a country or rural area can be accomplished, stating, "Our objectives should be for each agency, group or committee to supplement or complement one another and not to compete. In any event, extension should assist citizens organizations and committees and advise them of existing resource development organizations that may be available in the area. Wherever possible, projects should be developed that will involve many people in the community."

The Philadelphia Land and People Conference was the sixth of such meetings throughout the country. All were well attended, considered very successful and their approach is expected to go far in setting policy on land use planning, rural area development and other important issues during the months and years ahead.

Delegates to this final Land and People Conference and top Agriculture Department officials agreed that the solution to the economic crisis facing rural America lies in local initiative and leadership supplemented by assistance from Federal, State and private sources. Multiple use of land and water, with particular emphasis on recreation, was advanced as a practical approach to land use adjustment.

"We must apply to private land the multiple use principle that has been so successfully applied to publicly owned national forests and grasslands," Assistant Secretary of Agriculture John A. Baker said.

Shelters Made Available to State Residents

Shelter spaces will be immediately available for nearly 300,000 people in Delaware, due to a decision by the office of Civil Defense to lower minimum protection standards from 100 to 40.

This was announced this week by Lt. Col. J. Arnold Sullivan, director of the State Department of Civil Defense, following receipt of a message from Region 2, OCD, directed to the State CD director and Gov. Elbert N. Carvel.

The minimum protection factor for a public shelter had been set at 100, signifying that person in the shelter space would receive only one one-hundredth of the radiation outside the shelter.

Shelters in Category 2 (40 to 69 protection factor), in Delaware number 599 and have a capacity of 112,976. In Category 3, (70-99) there are 284 shelters with a capacity of 45,338. In Categories 4-8, (100 and over), previously meeting minimum Federal protection requirements, there are 760 shelters with a capacity of 118,932.

On a nationwide basis, the lowering of the minimum requirements would mean that from 110 to 120 million persons could be accommodated in shelters immediately available. Shelter space qualifying under the previous higher standards accommodated only 69 million persons.

The Region 2 statement revealed that studies of hypothetical attacks which might be possible over the year indicated that shelter space meeting this lower standard would save many lives in large areas of the nation not exposed to the most intense radiation.

The Region 2 statement emphasized the Cuban emergency told us two things: 1. when they have confidence in leadership, the American People are prepared to risk war to better their long-run chances of having peace with freedom and honor, and 2. In such periods, people want to do something to better the chances of survival of their families and communities."

"The esoteric, emotional and uninformed shelter debate dissolved in the realities confronting us," the statement said.

The CD official said there would be six major areas of emphasis during the intensified three months' shelter programs. Shelter marking procedures are being accelerated, the production of shelter supplies is being sharply increased, an intensified effort is being made to provide technical Civil Defense help to people in rural areas.

He added that three and four-hour workshops are being established throughout the nation to train architects, engineers and contractors in the techniques of locating shielding in buildings and improvising shelters, and that radiological monitoring and sheltering management training courses are being emphasized.

Beauty Skin Deep In Dairy Cows

Beauty is only skin deep when it comes to selected dairy cows, says George Vapaa, Kent County agent. A recent U.S. Department of Agriculture study reveals that the physical appearance of dairy animals is valuable only in helping to eliminate physical defects. Scientists have found only a slight relationship between "dairy type" and production.

In looking over the dairy classification score card, Vapaa indicates that among the different classifications listed, dairy character had the closest relationship to production. And, he adds, dairy character is the hardest of all classifications to define.

Some of the characteristics dairy judges have looked for in the show ring, such as a thin angular body or a full distended udder, may be a result more than a cause of heavy milk production. Well fed animals tend to show less of some of these traits than poorly fed animals, the agent reports, even though they have the same production ability.

Records are the only positive way of determining an animal's ability to produce, the agent concludes. Selection of replacement animals should be made on the basis of past performance if there are no obvious physical faults with the animal.

Don't Burn Leaves Agent Warns

Burning leaves is just like burning money, according to George Vapaa, Kent County agent. Fallen leaves, lawn clippings, weeds, vegetable refuse and other plant residues are valuable sources of organic matter and may be worth money to you.

These things that are left over when the fall clean up is completed should be added to a compost pile.

One of the simplest ways to start a compost pile is to dig a pit six to eight inches deep, four feet wide and long enough to accommodate all the waste material collected. Pack leaves and other waste material in layers six to eight inches deep. Keep the pile moist and sprinkle handfuls of commercial fertilizer on each layer. Fertilizer adds plant food to the mixture and helps speed up the decaying process. Although animal manure is recommended, you can have good results without it.

Keep adding layers of plant materials, manure and soil to the pile until it's about four feet deep. Use boards or poultry wire to keep the pile in place.

Vapaa says this material will be a valuable addition to next year's garden.

Medders Collection Given to U. of D. Archives

The National Food Distribution Archives at the University of Delaware announced receipt of the collection of country store antiques accumulated by the William Medders Company of Still Pond, Maryland. The announcement was made jointly by Mrs. Clare Medders Krebs, daughter of the company's founder, and Robert Bull, director of the food distribution program at the University. The Medders country store was a famous Maryland institution throughout its 85 years continuous operation. The founder, Will Medders, who purchased the store in 1894, was at the time of his death in 1959 considered the "dean" of country store keepers on the Delmarva Peninsula. His patronage came from a radius of 50 miles, and Mr. Medders enjoyed large portions of a three-state area. A skillful merchandiser, Mr. Medders had achieved an extraordinary reputation for advertising ingenuity by 1930, pioneering with many direct mail innovations.

May of his meticulous records on prices and inventory movement already have been transmitted to the University. Other collections of advertising materials and antique store tools and fixtures, as well as samples of grocery store products from bygone years, will be removed to the University in the coming weeks.

The Medders store was widely publicized during the 1940's because of its unique merchandising traditions and a merchandise assortment that in rural Maryland was generally described as "fantastic." Mr. Medders' sparkling humor and his practical store management philosophy often were quoted in local presses and around family dinner tables. A shrewd buyer of imported merchandise, he quickly bought out total supplies of leading importers as soon as news reached him of international tensions likely to curtail supplies. His strategy often made him the outspoken envy of leading department store operators. A strong individualist, Mr. Medders emphasized, in his advice to other businessmen, that one succeeds best by acting on the creative instinct of a good business sense, and not trying to copy what other merchants are doing.

Mr. Medders daughter, Clare, in arranging for the archives contributions, has very graciously announced her deep appreciation for this opportunity to give perpetual care to the valuable records and relics of the Medders country store institution, such as the University archives facilities offer. In the absence of family members in a position to continue the business, the large Medders store building and warehouse will now be offered for sale by Mrs. Krebs who resides nearby in Still Pond, Md.

In addition to its loan program, SBA offers an extensive personal counseling service on production, management, and procurement problems, and acts as a one-stop information center for small businessmen. During September, more than 100 small businessmen were given assistance with their management and production problems at the Philadelphia Office.

Full information on SBA's services to small business, as well as the assistance offered small businessmen by many other Federal Government agencies, is contained in a booklet entitled "Federal Handbook for Small Business," available free upon request from the Agency's Philadelphia Office located at 1015 Chestnut Street.

Small businessmen in Delaware may apply for SBA assistance at temporary local offices in Dover and Wilmington until Dec. 5, James Austin, Philadelphia Regional Office Loan Specialist, will be at the Treadway Inn in Dover Nov. 14 and 28, and at 801 West Street in Wilmington Nov. 21 and December 5. Subsequent to December 5, 1962, Delaware small businessmen should make application directly to the Philadelphia Regional Office at 1015 Chestnut Street.

Cannon Centennial Committee Holds Meeting in Dover

Six gold medals honoring the late Dr. Annie Jump Cannon, world-famous astronomer, will be presented to outstanding American women in the arts and sciences in Dover next year.

Announcement of the projected awards was made at a luncheon meeting of the Annie Jump Cannon Centennial Committee in Dover, by William A. Hughes, Centennial director for Wesley College. Wesley will sponsor a convocation honoring the career of its most famous alumna on December 11.

The centennial convocation committee, made up of 75 prominent Delaware women, is headed by Mrs. Henry B. duPont, Wilmington, for New Castle County, Mrs. Cummins E. Speakman, Smyrna, for Kent, and Mrs. John J. Williams, Millsboro, for Sussex County.

The Annie Jump Cannon Centennial medal will be presented to women voted as outstanding in science, literature, the performing arts, medicine, and the fine arts. A nominating committee will be announced shortly, and balloting by members of the committee and the college faculty and trustees will take place in the late spring.

Dr. Cannon, a Kent County native was cited during her lifetime as one of the world's greatest astronomers. She was the first woman to be given an honorary degree by Oxford University, England and one of two honorary fellows of the Royal Astronomical Society. A graduate of the class of 1880 at Wesley, then the Wilmington Conference Academy, Dr. Cannon received honorary degrees from Harvard, Mt. Holyoke, Ogle-to U. S. citrus crops were intercepted 949 times compared to 545 times in 1961. These included citrus canker, black spot of citrus and sweet orange scab.

Most of the plant pests and unauthorized plant material arrive in passenger baggage, the entomologist says. Agriculture Research Service inspectors co-operating with U. S. Customs inspectors examined more than 23 and a half million pieces of baggage during 1962, an increase of about one million pieces over previous years.

An increase in travel across the Mexican border accounts for a considerable portion of the inspection activities. More than 24 million cars and trucks entered the United States from Mexico last year. Improvements in the Pan American highway are now bringing travelers over land from such faraway places as Central America. And, they are bringing with them several damaging plant pests including the destructive Mediterranean fruit fly, according to Bray.

FENCE TALK
 With George Vapaa

The crop awards banquet of the Delaware Crop Improvement Association is to be next Tuesday, Nov. 20 in Dover. The meal starts at 7 p.m. at the Capitol Grange Hall. Tickets are available from the Extension Service Office, telephone 736-1448.

Plan to be early so you can see the Crop Show exhibits and other displays. The hay entries have never been of finer quality according to the judges reports.

Claude Gifford, managing editor of the Farm Journal, will be the guest speaker. He will show what the new European Common Market means to the Delaware farmer. About 80% of our soybeans on the shore have been exported to Europe. Other farm products also move overseas. The soybean king will be crowned and other awards will be announced at the banquet.

The following local officers can answer questions about the banquet or the program: Harry Lasch of Smyrna, Francis Winkler of Harrington, and Olin Gooden of Felton. Remember, we need your reservation if you want to attend the banquet.

Farm-City Week is the time we stress the great interdependence of the townsmen and his rural neighbor. Farming is big business in Kent County to the tune of $21.5 million gross farm sales in 1961.

Farmers are good customers of their city suppliers. They buy most of their "inputs" today—seed, feed, fertilizer and fuel. Farm-city weekends on Thanksgiving Day, a fitting reminder that the city consumer has better, tastier, cleaner food than ever before—and at a cheaper price.

Civil defense information may not be as urgent as a few weeks ago, but your county agent has these three bulletins available just for a telephone call to 736-1448: Family Food Stockpile, Fallout Protection Facts, You Can Survive, Rural Fire Defense.

Keep Parasites From Cattle

If feed is contaminated by manure, internal parasites can become a serious problem. During winter months open hay racks, troughs contribute to serious parasite problems in sheep flocks and cattle herds.

Simple changes in feeding equipment prevents parasite buildup and greatly improves sanitation. Animals should eat their feed outside the bedded area. Construct troughs and hay racks so feed is free from contamination.

There are many quality nurserymen who aim to serve their customers with the best plants and advice possible.

Many of Delaware's commercial nurserymen are highly trained people with years of experience in the field. Your best bet is usually a nursery that is convenient, well established and enjoys a good reputation. This is an obvious statement, but we make it for those home gardeners faced with their first shrubbery or tree selections. Our office can supply lists of the best adapted plants for the state.

VETERANS DAY

In his concluding remarks, Father Karnis pointed out that "when the children of veterans are taught that values exist without relation to God, then what the veteran fought for—peace with honor—becomes as sounding brass and tinkling cymbals—nothing."

Two other prominent Delaware clergymen, the Rev. Andrew J. White, past national chaplain of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Rev. Park W. Huntington, past national chaplain of the American Legion, had active roles in the program, with Father White pronouncing the invocation and Dr. Huntington giving the prayer for the departed and the benediction.

During the ceremonies, representatives of the state's veterans and patriotic organizations placed floral tributes at the base of the Memorial that commemorates the war dead of Delaware and New Jersey. Floral tributes were also placed by the Honorable Frank J. Hahn, representing the Governor of New Jersey, and Maj. General Joseph J. Scannell, representing Governor Elbert N. Carvel.

The Pledge of Allegiance was led by Miss Betty Bane of the American Legion; the National Anthem was played by the Delaware Army National Guard Band; and the Honor Volley was fired by the firing squad of the Polish American Post No. 3257, V.F.W., of Wilmington.

Honored guests included Gold Star Mothers and Spanish American War veterans.

Miles L. Frederick, a past state commander of the V.F.W., acted as master of ceremonies.

Following the outdoor ceremonies at Memorial Plaza, the annual Veterans Day dinner was held at the nearby Lod De La Warr Hotel.

Planning for Delaware's observance of Veterans Day was accomplished by a statewide committee headed by Anthony J. Ciccone, of Wilmington, a past commander of Caesar Rodney Chapter, Disabled American Veterans.

STATE FISCAL

entire budgetary and financial responsibilities of all state activities, including the requirements for various types of financial documents.

It also concluded the possibilities for improvement in both clerical and accounting procedures in all departments.

The report said the state finances, in whole or in part are a total of 191 agencies, institutions and schools.

It pointed out that "the present allocation of function does not insure adequate executive control over budgeting and accounting" and said the budget commission has no obligation to the governor since, except for the secretary of state, it is composed of officials who serve fixed terms of office.

The firm said the post-audit now assigned to the budget commission, should be done by "an independently elected official or the legislature, as in most states, to give independent assurance to the public that the executive branch has properly carried out the financial mandates of the legislative branch, and that the accounting system properly reflects all transactions."

The report also pointed out that the present conduct of budget hearings (now underway requires excessive time of high state officials.)

Altogether the report made seven observations concerning budgetary control and accounting, including:

"Present budgetary control system is not adequate for legislative or executive control. Without either an allotment or an encumbrance system, there can be virtually no control over spending until the entire appropriation, intended to cover the full year, has been exhausted.

"The requirements for approving appropriation transfers are a waste of executive time since five top officers of the state are often dealing with trivial budgetary matters.

"The present appropriation and expenditure accounting system does not meet agency needs (one report a month is not enough for an active account.)

There are many unnecessary duplications.

"Some financial reports in portions, are misleading, inaccurate and inadequate (most agencies do not make property as belonging to the state.)

"Post-auditing functions are hampered by being combined with budgeting and reporting functions."

The report recommended nine possible courses of action, some requiring legislative actions and some possible under present law.

They were:

1. Establishment of a system of allotments as a means of controlling the rate of expenditure by the agencies in periodic (quarterly) installments.
2. A central encumbrance accounting system. Without such a system, it said, it is not possible to determine accurately what the state's obligations are at any given time or to insure against the illegal over commitment of appropriations.
3. Improvements of coding system and the practice of reporting to agencies. It said the program should provide only the information which is useful but be flexible enough to facilitate the controls and reports needed by all agencies. A standard coding system applicable to special funds as well as the general fund should be adopted, it said.
4. More mechanization of certain reporting procedures and a reduction in duplication in record-keeping and reporting.
5. Development of more satisfactory methods for processing and reporting revenues.
6. Introduction of a clear and uniform practice regarding control over properties and inventories of supplies and materials should be introduced.
7. A detailed study on the use of data processing equipment.
8. Consideration of a strengthened budget staff. At present two accountants in the budget commission spend most of their time on budgetary matters, but they also have auditing responsibilities, it said. No one has the responsibility for working with the agencies in the preparation of their budgets or for following their progress throughout the fiscal year, it said. Deserving attention would be development and maintenance of a long-range capital budget, forecasting capital requirements for as much as six years ahead, the report concluded. It said methods of financing capital expenditures thus can be determined well in advance.
9. A realignment of the responsibilities for budgeting, budgetary control, pre-auditing, accounting and post-auditing.

In keeping with principles of sound financial management, the functions of budget preparing, budgetary control and accounting should be assigned to the chief executive and post-auditing elsewhere as an impartial and independent check of the chief executive, it said.

The report has been in the hands of the committee for some time. Tax Commissioner E. Hobson Davis is chairman. Other key fiscal officers of the state are members.

RURAL HOUSING

The rural housing loan program is specifically designed to assist rural people, including our senior citizens, to obtain housing that is adequate in size, design and cost.

Housing loans also make an important contribution to rural areas development. Construction provides job opportunities for carpenters, electricians, bricklayers, and others in the building trade. Businessmen benefit too, from the increased volume of sales of building materials.

Since the housing program started in 1949, almost 69,000 families throughout the U.S. have borrowed more than $24 million to improve their homes.

"Although rural families have traditionally cared for their elderly family members," Dr. Paxton Marshall, Agricultural Economist with the University of Maryland says, "many rural families will find these loans important in providing both improved housing and independence for all family members."

Dairy Cows Need Vitamins A and D

Vitamins are as important to dairy cattle as they are to people, according to George Vapaa, Kent County agent. Many high producing cows require supplemental vitamin A and D to insure maximum production.

Changes in feeding and fertilization practices in recent years have resulted in forages that often lack proper amounts of these forages, the agent reports.

Unless a sound feed program is being used to determine individual farm needs, dairymen with high producing cows should feed 30,000 international units of vitamin A and 60,000 units of vitamin D per head daily. This should be provided in the form of dry stabilizing vitamins or vitamin-mineral concentrates, according to the agent. If you're using manufactured dairy feeds or supplements, make sure adequate amounts of A and D are present. These supplements are very reasonably priced.

Supplemental vitamin A and D are extremely important in rations where large portions of corn or other silage are being fed or the forage intake is limited. Also, forages high in nitrate may increase the vitamin A supplement required.

All of these factors will be prevalent in feed programs this winter because of the drought conditions that prevailed this past summer. Vapaa says it is especially important to consider these vitamin needs this winter.

Waterfowl Notes

Delaware's waterfowl season opened at noon on Monday, Nov. 12. Ducks may be hunted until December 29 and geese until January 10, 1963.

For those looking for a place to hunt there are approximately 5,000 acres of marshland managed for public waterfowl hunting by the Delaware Game and Fish Commission.

Woodland Beach wildlife area is east of Smyrna with marshes stretching from Bombay Hook north to Woodland Beach.

At the Little Creek Wildlife Area, one mile south of Little Creek all blinds must be completed one week before the opening of ducking season.

The six hundred thirty-five acre Primehook Wildlife Area is near Milford. The commission-built blinds are on a first come, first served basis.

Management of the Assawoman Wildlife Area near Milton has been intensified this year. The refuge area has been enlarged considerably in an attempt to build up the waterfowl population.

Shooting Hours: Deer, pheasant, quail and rabbit: 1 hour before sunrise to 1 hour after sunset.

Follow NRA Code of Ethics: Sportsmen are urged by the Delaware Game and Fish Commission to respect the rights of landowners across the state during this fall's hunting seasons.

- a) I will consider myself an invited guest of the landowner, seeking his permission, and so conducting myself that I may be welcome in the future. b) I will obey the rules of safe gun handling and will courteously, but firmly insist that others who hunt with me do the same.

Delaware Food Market Report

Turkey is as American as Plymouth Rock, corn-on-the-cob and baseball as tradition tags turkey as the feature at Thanksgiving dinner. Supplies of this meat are abundant for the holidays, although somewhat less than last year's record.

Pork production continues to increase and retail prices are near those of a year ago. Pork products to check include shoulder roast, hams, bacon, sausage and loin roasts.

Broiler production is at a high level and you will see on local markets larger supplies than usual at this season of the year. November and December marketings are expected to be 10 to 15 per cent larger than a year earlier.

Frost, rain and snow have just about finished the fresh vegetable season in the eastern area. Vegetables are now coming from far off and the cost of shipping from Florida, Texas and California is pushing prices up on most things.

Most vegetables advanced in prices this week with celery, green beans, and squash heading the way. Supplies of Brussels sprouts, cabbage, sweet potatoes and turnips are excellent right now and prices are reasonable.

There is little change in the fruit supply for the past week. Apple harvesting is about over, but fairly large marketings continue.

Oranges and grapefruit from Florida are increasing in volume as the season advances. The size of both citrus fruits is improving and flavor is good to excellent in most instances. Limes and avocados are also in good supply now.

For those of you who are looking for chestnuts, coconuts, walnuts, and persimmons, all are available at most local markets.

KEITH S. BURGESS — Sports Editor

"Sports Odds And Ends"

Lawrence "Fido" Farrow, Jr., local bowler, won a News-Journal Award recently by rolling games of 219, 205, and 201 for a three game total of 625.

George Bonniwell III, local schoolboy athlete, is amassing a trophy collection in track, wrestling and cross-country. He recently added a trophy of a different type. The first day of deer-hunting season he arrived home from school at 3:30. By 4 o'clock he had bagged a 5 point, 170 pound buck. He is having the head mounted.

We read that three hunters felt the sting of other nimrod's lead this season. The lad in the item above this one had the right kind of luck. Got his deer in a few minutes and went home. With large groups of hunters in a comparatively small area, sometimes it sounds like the Fourth of July, when a deer come along. We try to keep out of the woods this time of year.

There is a rising tide of feeling in this country against the "star complex" that seems to rule many of our sports. An effort is being made to remove the shame of mediocrity in sports for those who really try hard but still cannot excel. "The average" person is tolerated in all walks of life but an average athlete frequently gets abuse and criticism from adult supervisors. Then we often run into this "group control jazz" where some coaches and physical education instructors bring pressure on the "offender" by encouraging the whole team or class to heap ridicule and sarcasm on the luckless one. A lady from the middle west has the right idea when she said "Why punish the ill-coordinated boy for something he has not control over? Such treatment might cause a lad to hate his own body and all sports". She goes on to say, that in her opinion it is better to have a fit nation than a few sports champs.

We feel that the small town boys are more fortunate in one respect than are those from more heavily populated centers. The boys, who go out for sports at H.H.S. for example, are almost never cut from the squad because of a superfluity of candidates. Track, football, wrestling and cross-country are sports in which most of the squad sees a lot of action.

Harrington High School's girls' hockey team finished an unbeaten and unscored upon season recently. The lassies coached by the personable Miss Violet Testerman, played to a scoreless tie with Georgetown to mar an otherwise perfect year. At Georgetown the H.H.S. girls scored several times but the official called every goal back on account of some real or imagined infraction. We have seen and heard about games in which one or two apparent tallies were nullified. But when four to six goals are voided in one game it appears that the arbiter might be biased or over-zealous to say the least. At any rate the Georgetown tie kept the girls from equalling the record of the 1955 team, which was unbeaten, untied and unscored upon.

Eagles Extend Win String

Ted Layton's Eagles downed the Bears 20-0 in Harrington Junior Football League play at the Moose Home Sunday afternoon. The Eagles, who have never been beaten or scored upon after two years of play, were given another reasonably close game by Bill Morris' Bears. The winners scored their third touchdown late in the game to better the 14-0 victory they scored the last time these two team met.

Despite this fact the game was more interesting because the Bears moved the ball well and racked up several first downs. Thanksgiving morning at 10 a.m. the Eagles will take on a squad composed of the best players from the combined rosters of the Bears and Colts. This could result in the most interesting tilt of the season. We predict another Eagle victory.

Dennis Rogers and Lions Win Loop Harrier Titles

Sophomore distance ace Dennis Rogers led Coach Harold McDonald's Harrington High cross-country Lions to the Henlopen Conference title, Wednesday afternoon at the Killen's Pond course. Since Millsboro dropped cross-country this year and Greenwood quit in 1960 only Milton High dared challenge the Lions for cross-country supremacy in the 11 team Henlopen Conference. The locals have had harrier teams for five years now and have never been beaten by a Kent or Sussex County team.

Six Henlopen schools have had teams at one time or another. This year's Milton squad is the best league unit ever to oppose the Lions, yet the ever improving Harrington team got personal record performances from its first four finishers and racked up a perfect score in winning 15-47.

Rogers was timed in a terrific 12:55 for the 2.4 miles hill and dale course. Only five harriers have exceeded 13 minutes on the present layout. Clarence Hackett's 12:23 is the record. Ed Williams of North Carolina (12:35) and Jim Harvey, of Easton (12:41) are the only runners of the many who have raced here, to excel Rogers' sterling performance.

George Bonniwell led for 2 1/4 miles before Dennis passed him in the final sprint to the wire. George joined Hackett and Rogers in the very exclusive "Under Thirteen Club" with a brilliant 12:59 clocking. George and Ed Williams are the only first year runners to break 13 minutes here.

Ken Garey, who did 13:08 last November, ran his fastest 1962 race to finish third. Roger Redden, freshman novice, was fourth in 13:18. Redden's best was 13:34. He is 21 seconds faster than any previous Lion freshman and has a couple of chances to improve even more. Randy Knox and Wayne Carson finished fifth and sixth just ahead of the first Milton harrier.

Rogers, Bonniwell and Garey won beautiful engraved trophies. The huge team trophy, captured by the Lions will be a handsome addition to the trophy case to be placed in the new high school building.

Henry Minner was the individual winner in the jayvee race as the junior Lions emulated their varsity counterparts with a perfect score, also. Henry's winning time of 14:09 was 23 seconds better than his prior best. Roger Betts in second came down from 14:45 to 14:14. Minner and Betts were faster than all but three of Milton's varsity runners. Bob Beene was third, followed by John Dickerson, Nelson Reed and Donald Minner. Dickerson came down 21 seconds. Minner reduced his time by exactly half a minute.

Allan Jerread had a record of 16:20 entering this week. He is now feeling much better at 15:07. Billy Abbott at 15:08 completed the list of Lion harriers with fastest times ever. Nine Lions out of seventeen made this roster.

Wednesday afternoon the locals will host the fifth annual Harrington High cross-country meet. Teams expected to toe the mark at 4 p.m. are North Carolina of Denton, Easton, Caesar Rodney, Milford, Milton, Holy Cross of Dover and Harrington. The Lions are aiming for a win in this highlight of the downstate harrier season. North Carolina gave H.H.S. its only loss in five starts. The Marylanders are unbeaten and have met all the teams in this area. The improved locals had three key men incapacitated by stomach upset in the North Carolina loss. In 1961 Lions lost to the Bulldogs in October but evened the score in November.

Easton could take the whole cake, also as they have a strong, experienced team led by Jim Harvey, who gave North Carolina's unbeaten Ed Williams his closest race, losing by only seven seconds. Milford's Jerry Miller, sixth in the Delaware State Meet, might beat both. Joe Boyle of Caroline, Rogers, Bonniwell and Garey of Harrington should be close to the front. This figures to be the most exciting meet ever at Killen's Pond with close competition expected in both the team and individual races.

Field Hockey News

Wed., Oct. 31, the Lions' varsity hockey team again won under very unfavorable weather conditions beating Delmar 4-0. Our girls played a hard game on a soft and slippery field. Pat Richardson was injured in the second half; fortunately there have been few injuries this season. Linda Smith, Jeanie Thomas and Sharon Walls tallied the goals.

The junior varsity triumphed with a score of 2-0. The girls played a great game. Sylvia Outten and Marilyn Walls scored the team's two goals. This was the second win for the J. V. team. Last Thursday, Nov. 8, the varsity team defeated Seaford High 2-0. The host team had an advantage knowing the terrible condition of the playing field, but H.H.S. was determined to finish the season with a fine record. The girls completed their schedule by remaining undefeated and unscored upon. This record has only been matched by the team coached by Doris Fry in 1955. Jackie Russum and Linda Smith scored for Harrington. This was the last game for co-captains Carol Smith and Claudia Neeman, Jean Thomas, and Carol McNally, who will all graduate this year.

The J.V.'s led Seaford 1-0 at the end of the first half, but Seaford rallied to win the game 3-1. Marilyn Walls scored for H.H.S. This junior varsity team shows great promise for future field hockey teams.

Rehoboth Eleven Romps Over H.H.S. 40-14

Rehoboth High School has an enrollment that most years is one of the smallest in the state. You wouldn't realize this though, by watching them in action on the gridiron. The Seahawks really know how to play football.

They toyed with Bill Santo's Harrington High Lions here, Saturday afternoon, winning by a lopsided 40-14 margin. Yet, this Rehoboth team is one of the weakest from the resort town in the last decade.

Five beachboys scored touchdowns as the winners scored in every period.

Jeff Adams played a tremendous game for Harrington both on offense and defense. The slender Lion quarterback passed for one touchdown and ran for another to enable his team to score as many points in this contest as they had in all five previous Henlopen Conference encounters this year. The Lions can claim a moral victory and perhaps they should in view of 1962's record of two wins and a tie in eight games. Unfortunately, the pair of victories was scored in non-league play.

Rehoboth took the opening kickoff and marched 75 yards to score with Mike Newton tallying from six yards out. Wayne Mitchell, leading Henlopen scorer, rushed over the point after touchdown.

Bayard Hendrick's twisting, 25-yard touchdown sally, later in the opening period, ran the count to 13-0, and caused some local fans to shudder in memory of the Seahawk's 54-0 shellacking of the Lions at Rehoboth last autumn.

Bill Adams and Dick Collins, two starters, were unable to play because of injuries. The weakened Harrington offense started a drive after the second touchdown that was halted by a pass interception. Wayne Mitchell rifled a long aerial to Hendricks that set up a short touchdown sprint by Bob Mitchell. Not a hand was laid on W. Mitchell as he added the extra point on a run.

Trailing 20-0, the Lions raced the clock in a furious effort to get on the scoreboard before halftime. Sturat Greenberg made a diving catch of an Adams toss. Charley Taylor snared another for a first down on the enemy 11-yard line. Exploiting the newly-found Achilles' heel, Adams passed successfully to Greenberg on the 3 and then found Taylor in the end zone for a six pointer. Adams ran over the PAT in the last play of the first half.

The beachboys got down to business early in the second half and sprung Newton clear on a 25-yard touchdown dash off tackle. Wayne Mitchell ran over the point.

Another pass interception led to another Rehoboth third period tally.

Joe Hudson scored from 40 yards out and Jim Jones added the point for a count of 34-7. Jones intercepted two more errant aerials in the fourth quarter. Barry Fry made a last ditch on Jones that kept him from a sure touchdown. Fry has made several saves of this type this year. The Seahawks worked the ancient statue of Liberty play two straight downs for a net profit of thirty yards. W. Mitchell went over standing up for a 40-7 beachboy bulge.

Tom Lord took a long Adams pass in the clear for a big gain, but was caught from behind by the one player who had a chance at him. Charley Taylor gathered in another pass on the Rehoboth 29. Fry cut up the middle and Adams hit him with a look-in pass on a beautifully executed maneuver. With the Seahawks looking for the Lions to continue the successful passing formula, Jeff Adams crossed them up and lit out for the corner of the end zone 18 yards away. Charley Taylor obliterated the only Seahawk with a chance to make the tackle. Adams passed to Lord for the point after touchdown.

Friday night the Lions close out the season with a night contest at Delmar. The Wildcats are on a three-game winning streak. One of these victories was over Rehoboth. It appears that the Lions are to be outclassed in the "Battle of the Felines." Local rooters are hoping for a miracle as Harrington tries to escape its first winless Henlopen Conference season.

Co-captains Jeff Adams and David Harcum will be among the Lion seniors closing out their grid careers.
