

DAIRYMEN PLEDGE PRICE ORDER FIGHT

Kent and Sussex dairymen charged Monday night federal price supports at Milford would mean bankrupt distributors and higher prices of milk for the public.

All 10 Kent and Sussex independent milk distributors who met at the Milford Hotel decided to fight a proposed federal order to create a giant milk-shed in the Philadelphia area which would include the two lower Delaware counties.

In a statement released by Manuel Buarque, a public relations man, the distributors stated their intention to hire legal counsel to fight the court order and to educate the public concerning federally priced milk.

Buarque told the group, "You will have no more freedom (under a federal price support); your business is put out on the street.

"The concept of this thing is the public be damned," Buarque charged. "They have got such a complicated program worked out, the Department of Agriculture, that it is chaos compounded."

The program under the U.S. Department of Agriculture sets minimum prices for different grades of milk and requires all designated dairies to contribute to a producers' settlement fund which is used to insure that all farmers receive the established minimum milk price.

Buarque charged the program is "the nearest thing to collective farming."

Archie B. Brittingham, an officer of Lewes Dairy, Inc., at the meeting, termed price supports for milk as communism.

According to Buarque, who is representing the group in public relations, imposing price supports on Kent and Sussex dairies will probably mean eventual raising of milk per quart here to 30 cents, and, at the same time lowering the price paid to distributors.

"I think this is a clearly defined pattern," he said. He noted that four huge dairy combines or cooperatives, control the fluid milk distribution in the United States. It is the large operator, he contended, who wants the federal price supports.

Distributors fighting milk price supports won a round recently when marketing orders were held to be invalid by the federal district court in Maryland.

However, the government has appealed that decision, and pending the outcome the marketing orders for that area will be enforced.

CHIMNEY FIRE AT CLEANERS

A chimney fire was extinguished by local firemen Friday morning at Atomic Cleaners on Thorpe Street. There was no damage.

State Denied Ft. Miles Land; McDowell Bill Fights Ruling

Surplus Ft. Miles land apparently will not be available to Delaware on an indefinite lease, and U. S. Rep. Harris B. McDowell Jr. is angered by the Defense Department's change of heart.

"This 'public be damned' attitude must not be allowed to prevail," McDowell declared Wednesday night. He said he would re-introduce a bill to give the land to Delaware free of charge, permanently.

Involved are 575 acres of the Sussex County beachfront reservation for which the Army no longer has any use. The town of Lewes will get 155 acres and an agreement appeared to have been worked out last fall to lease the remaining 420 acres indefinitely to the state.

McDowell said Wednesday night he had learned with "real dismay" that the Defense Department now plans to let Delaware lease the land for only one year and then offer it to all federal agencies through the General Services Administration.

The Delaware Democrat decided again to offer his bill directing Secretary of the Army Cyrus Vance to convey the land to the state without charge.

McDowell said he made the decision after he met with Robert F. Steadman, economic adjustment adviser to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. Steadman indicated that Vance and McNamara no longer intend to abide by the agreement worked out last fall, McDowell said.

Kent Girl Wins Fire Essay Prize

Judy Burgess took home a trophy and cash prize Wednesday night as first place winner in the annual fire prevention essay contest sponsored by the Delaware Volunteer Firemen's Association.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Burgess of Harrington and was Kent's first place winner.

Second place in the contest went to Janet Dickerson of Richardson Park, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dickerson. She was the New Castle County winner.

Third place was won by Peggy Sutherland of Rehoboth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sutherland. She had earlier won in Sussex County competition.

All three girls are 13 years old. An estimated 5,000 essays were submitted by students from the 5th to 8th grades.

William J. Himes, Seaford, president of the Delaware Volunteer Firemen's Association, presented the trophies.

Howell H. Barnes, Smyrna, secretary of the Delaware Fire Chiefs Association, gave them prizes of $15, $10 and $5 from his group.

Additional prizes of $25, $15 and $10 came from Van Leer Stephany, Seaford, chairman of the fire prevention and safety committee of the Delaware Insurance Agents Association.

Janet Dickerson also received a trophy as New Castle County winner from Charles Larkin, chairman of the New Castle essay committee.

More than 100 volunteer firemen at Wednesday night's meeting heard the girls read the winning essays. Presentation of the awards followed a dinner in the Camden-Wyoming Fire Company hall.

Reassessment Seen Hardship

Kent County's tax assessors say a general reassessment of county real estate will hurt longtime residents in Dover who purchased land and home before prices inflated.

Members of the county board of assessment met with the Levy Court Tuesday and William J. Paskey Sr., president, said "I talked to a lot of people and the big percentage said they didn't want it," (reassessment).

While the Levy Court intends to "go ahead and explore" the advantages of bringing in outside appraisers to reassess county real estate, the assessors defend their work.

After the meeting with the Levy Court, assessors said privately that a reassessment of all county property would work a hardship upon longtime residents of the county.

Paskey said these persons paid low prices for their land and homes and are assessed accordingly.

But newcomers to the downstate county and persons who purchased land in recent years are assessed according to the prices they paid—and real estate prices have shot up, said the assessors.

"It's a difficult problem," said one. "You can assess the rich but what about the poor people. What about the farmer with a mortgage."

Ervin P. Voshell, the only Republican on the board, asked who the county put into the Levy Court last November when the GOP made reassessment its main issue in the county.

(The Levy Court is all Democratic and the only incumbent Republican, Fred B. Carey Sr., was defeated by James B. Messick, now Levy Court president.)

Drive For Industry At Milford Holds $100 Plate Dinner

"Boost Milford" dinner Wednesday night, at the Shawnee Country Club, Milford, was attended by approximately 150 persons, some 125 of which paid $100 a plate.

The funds will be used to attract industry to Milford.

The principal address was made by Gerrish Gassaway, whose firms, Gassaway Associates, has been appointed to head the drive.

Harvey Marvel, president of the sponsoring group, Greater Milford Area Development Corporation, presided.

Gassaway, retired executive vice president of the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce, told of what his firm was doing, what it was going to do, how the community could help.

Al Roller, manager of the Industrial Department of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Baltimore, told of his view of Milford and explained the railroad's part in attracting industry along its lines.

Mayor A. E. Humes gave the invocation.

Felton Board Protests New Wage Scale

The Felton Board of School Trustees this week followed the lead of the Dover Board in protesting the new wage scale for school construction workers as established by the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations.

The inevitable result of imposing the wage rate increase will be either the elimination or curtailment of school building programs or larger bond issues to finance them, according to Virgil N. Jarrell, chairman of the Felton Board.

Jarrell stated that the first effect would seriously weaken the educational program of our state public school system, while the second effect would increase both state and local taxes for school building and repair purposes.

Wage increases ranging from 23 per cent to 74 per cent over those specified in last year's construction program at Felton are obviously unjustified and certainly do not reflect the prevailing wage scales for construction work in Kent County, according to the Felton Board chairman.

He also pointed out that members of the last legislature deny that such increases were ever anticipated when they approved the bill to give the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations the authority to determine state construction wage scales.

Businesses Displaced By Road Building to Get Aid

A system of providing relocation assistance to persons, or concerns, whose homes, or places of business is required for right of way purposes, has been devised by the State Highway Department and has been submitted to the Bureau of Public Roads for approval.

William J. Miller, Jr., Director of Operations for the Highway Department, said the plan was prepared in compliance with the terms of federal regulations enacted by Congress in 1962, requiring this action on the part of the state.

Mr. Miller said the operation of the relocation service would be co-ordinated with local real estate boards and information concerning the service would be made available to the persons affected by right-of-way proceedings at all public hearings on highway improvements.

According to law, as announced by Mr. Miller, a relocation counselor would be placed in each right-of-way office maintained by the Department. This person would receive requests from owners, or tenants for assistance, determine the type of assistance required and determine the price range of the owners, or tenants, requirements.

The counselor would then arrange for joint meetings between owners, or tenants, with representatives of the proper agencies, including social and welfare, civic improvement, public loans, business assistance, real estate and any other involved group.

The three Delaware Real estate boards would be requested to establish a committee of three members to be known as the Public Relocation Committee, which group would name a chairman who could be contacted by the Relocation Counselor.

This committee will maintain (Continued on Page 8)

CHARLES L. PECK SR., TO BE FETED AT TESTIMONIAL DINNER

Charles L. Peck Sr., immediate past mayor of Harrington, will be tendered a testimonial dinner Thurs., Jan. 24, at 7 p.m., in the Collins Education Building at Asbury Methodist Church.

The dinner is open to the public. Tickets may be purchased at $2.50 each at the City Hall, from Mayor Fulton J. Downing, and Peoples Bank.

Former councilmen and former mayors have been especially invited to attend. Past mayors, in addition to Mr. Peck, include his son, Charles L. Peck Jr., William Horleman, E. B. Rash, Ernest E. Killen, and Dr. Hewitt W. Smith.

Carvel Sees Extra $2.4 Million Available To Spend By 1964

The General Assembly has $2.4 million to appropriate, if it wishes, while leaving a $5 million surplus at the end of next fiscal year, as Gov. Elbert N. Carvel sees it.

His ideas on the state's spending ability for the next 18 months are important in view of the fact that many reforms are expected to be proposed, and these usually have big price tags. The governor's financial picture does not seem to leave room for any expensive reforms unless they are undertaken in a gradual way.

Carvel's over-all view of the state's financial picture through June 30, 1964—the end of the next fiscal year—is presented in a long page of figures issued by the governor's office.

It contains Carvel's revised estimates of the state's revenue for the present fiscal year and an estimate of revenue for the next one. It also includes the budget Carvel recommended to the General Assembly last week and estimates the surpluses he thinks the state will have on June 30 this year, and the surplus he wants it to have on the same date next year.

Carvel thinks revenue this year will be higher than estimated earlier, and he sees a surplus of $9 million at the end of this fiscal year 5½ months from now.

He wants the state to spend $4 million of that surplus during the next fiscal year and end up with a surplus of $5 million on June 30, 1964.

Assuming the revenue estimates hold up, the Carvel figures leave the legislature only $2.4 million to spend in supplemental appropriations without digging into the prospective $5 million surplus. One of the first appropriation bills introduced in the present Assembly calls for spending more than $1 million for school repairs. This would be part of the $2.4 million.

The state started the present fiscal year last July 1 with a cash balance of $5.4 million. The governor thinks the revenue by June 30 will add up to $99.7 million.

This means that those already in office will be continued automatically and there will be no town election on Jan. 19.

Two councilmen whose terms expired this year and who would have been voted on are Torbert and Lawrence Graham.

Ebe Reynolds will continue as auditor, but a second auditor will be appointed by the council later. This is for the term of the late W. Paul Lord. The present assessor who will continue to serve is Arthur Tatman.

No one has filed for office in Greenward for the past three years.

Seaford Blonde Named Jr. Miss

Blonde and blue-eyed Carla Wilkins of Seaford was named Delaware Junior Miss for 1963 here Saturday night.

Carla, 17, is the fourth consecutive girl from Seaford to win the contest in the four years it has been held in Delaware.

A dozen girls participated in the pageant this year. That made it the largest yet for the state, according to William Kramedas, chairman of the pageant committee of the Harrington Jaycees who sponsored the show.

Sale of Liquor At Racetracks Before Senate

Bills to legalize sale of liquor at racetracks and sharply regulate election campaign spending and contributions were introduced in the Senate Tuesday.

The Senate also decided to try to save time and money by printing its own calendar this year.

Sen. Allen J. Cook, D-Kenton, introduced a measure (SB 17) which would allow Delaware racetracks, fairs and exhibitions to apply for liquor licenses to the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission.

The bill, which Cook said was his own idea and not the result of any pressure, would repeal present law which requires the ABC to refuse a license to any racetrack or fair.

The bill was referred to the Temperance Committee where it probably faces a long rest.

At present racetracks such as Brandywine Raceway and Delaware Park do not sell liquor, although patrons may bring their own beverages and consume them in specified areas for the tracks, such as dining rooms.

Cook said enactment of his bill would allow the Delaware tracks and the Delaware State Fair to compete better with those in neighboring states.

The bill (SB 19) to regulate campaign income and outgo was introduced by Sen. Walter Johnson, D-Bear, for the administration. Gov. Elbert N. Carvel had recommended this legislation in his State of the State message last week.

The measure provides: Filing with the secretary of state of all nomination and election campaign expenses, if over $100, with the name of the donor, the amount and purpose.

A prohibition against contributions of more than $5000 during a two-year period by an individual for the nomination or election of any candidate except for the presidency of the United States.

A $50,000 limitation on the amount any candidate may spend, or allow to be spent in his behalf during a year.

Bill Eyes Capital Fund For Windfall

A bill setting up a capital investment fund for state taxes from the DuPont General Motors stock divestiture was introduced Wednesday in the Senate.

The administration-backed measure (SB 21) would include in the new fund revenue received from personal tax payments resulting from the court-ordered divestiture.

Although the bill is broad enough to include similar instances that might occur in the future, it is aimed primarily at earmarking the DuPont-General Motors tax money for permanent capital improvements.

Under the bill the Budget Commission would be the custodian of the money and would be empowered to invest it.

The commission also would advise the General Assembly on the condition of the fund as well as recommend what to do with it.

The plan was referred to by Gov. Elbert N. Carvel in his State of the State message.

The windfall from the divestiture over a three-year period is estimated to total $21 million.

Another of the governor's proposals was approved by the Senate, 17-0, Wednesday. That was an appropriation bill authorizing an expenditure of $30,000 to put an elevator in Legislative Hall, Dover.

The measure (HB 2) had already been passed by the House. It became the first bill passed by this session of the Senate, and goes to the governor for his almost certain signature.

Among the bills introduced Wednesday was one appropriating $43,500 to the State Highway Department and $10,000 to the Board of Game and Fish Commissioners to build a dam across Garrison's Pond, south of Smyrna on U. S. 13.

Sen. Henry T. Price, D-Smyrna, sponsor of the bill, said U. S. Sen. J. Caleb Boggs Wednesday telephoned Norman G. Wilder, director of the fish and game board, advising him that the federal government has available $10,000 in matching funds for the project.

The bill has been introduced several times before. Price said the pond has washed out several times and it could easily be turned into a showplace for the state, with ducks, geese and fishing.

He said the fish and game commissioners Tuesday night agreed to use the federal money for this project if state legislation can be enacted.

FENCE TALK

With George Vapaa

The once sleek P-63 Aircobra fighter plane sat near the airstrip minus the left wing, its propeller and one wheel. It had been grounded to furnish parts for the rest of the squadron which was giving aerial support to the British 8th Army chasing Rommel out of Africa. The time: December, 1942. The place: Youks-les-Bains, a small town in Tunisia.

Two words on the cover of a farm magazine: Preventive Maintenance recalled an incident of a generation ago. The instance cited above was an extreme example of what one does if he must to achieve a goal.

No business minded farmer can afford to neglect the "Ounce of Prevention" needed to keep his machines going during the busy growing season.

Most of the potato growers here in Kent County carefully dismantle, clean, repair, and reassemble their field machinery after each season of work. The purpose: Just to make sure that the machine will not fail in the field because of wear or neglect.

The expression farmers use is: "Take it down to the axle, and replace anything which shows unusual wear." Now is the time to do this kind of a job when you are not rushed with growing season deadlines.

Most farmers have developed a good workshop which can be heated in the winter. We have plans for converting old buildings or for building a new shop. We can also furnish lists of desirable tools for the shop.

Your county agent has a dream that someday a farmer will be able to replace whole subassemblies of his machines just as he now trades in the machine itself. Under such a plan, a man would be able to replace a tractor engine, a combine transmission, or some other complete working unit.

Come to think of it, he can do it now, but not as a regular part of preventive maintenance. Aircraft get an engine change after they have flown a given number of hours. The replaced engine goes back to a depot, is carefully serviced by a specialist and then returned to repeat the cycle. We will see this some day on our farm machinery.

In case you are wondering, that 6-3 did eventually fly again by salvaging parts from other damaged aircraft. It is an expensive way to have to operate in the field. But wartime situations often isolate you from supplies. Rarely can a farmer tie up his capital investment this way.

Cows remember the "doctors" office, Penn State Dairyman, Stephen B. Spencer says "Many dairymen with loose housing have used the milking parlor for treatment purposes, insemination, or blood testing. Some cows become gun shy, and the parlor is no longer a pleasant place. Milk production drops."

A working and squeeze chute near the holding area makes a safer and better arrangement. Woodrow Haas, of Wyoming, can divert his cows separately at the milking parlor exit for treatment. We can furnish plans at little or no cost.

I hope someone will remind me to say something about farm leases and farm records in a couple of weeks. The reason for waiting is because a case is still being discussed in the local court as I write this item. It seems prudent to hold off comment until the final decision is given.

Don't auction off your future in farming. There are important management lessons to be learned from the 130,000 farmers who leave the farm each year.

Harold Guither, economics editor at the University of Illinois, lists these six ways to stick with farming:

1. Develop an operation that uses the full time of one, two or three men.
2. Learn to use credit. Some will admit they had too much credit which was not used for production purposes.
3. Plan for a larger volume of business. You need $12,500 gross to get $5,000 net.
4. Buy machinery you can use on enough acres to cover ownership cost. If not do custom work, or hire custom work done.
5. Keep complete business records. Study them to spot the strong and weak points.
6. When capital is short, avoid risky operation. Cattle feeding has been a high risk enterprise with heavy losses for some enterprises.

Agricultural engineers at Iowa State University report that they are testing farm equipment designed to reduce the power and costs required for tillage operations. One machine they have developed is a strip tiller that uses the principle of the rotary tiller. It cultivates a 10-inch strip preceding the corn planter. This method approaches a once-over operation, which reduces the time required for preparing the soil for planting. The Iowa engineers say that the use of the strip-till operation reduces the power required for tillage, cuts operating costs and lowers the machinery investment for tillage implements.

Zwaanendael Museum Notes

An authentic model of a Nanticoke Indian Village is the feature of a special exhibit on display now at the Zwaanendael Museum. It was made by Meril-Lee Dunn, Jr., of Laurel, and members of the Sussex Society of Archaeology and History say that it is a true picture of the Indian settlements in this vicinity. Meril-Lee has used for his design a copy of one of John White's famous water color paintings made at the ill-fated Raleigh Colony in Virginia about 1587. John White's beautiful paintings of the American Indians, their villages, and customs, are the earliest representations recorded and now hang in the British Museum.

Meril-Lee Dunn, Jr., age 14, is presently a 9th grade student at St. Paul's School for Boys at Brooklandville, Md. He spent many weeks during last summer making his model because of his enthusiasm for the archaeology and history of Sussex County. The model is on a wooden base and shows the typical one room huts which the Nanticoke Indians made of tree limbs, bark, and grass. For these huts, Meril-Lee has used Balsa wood and paper. The trees in the background are made of Lychene and natural sponge and the vegetables, growing in the fields, are made of paper. In the village there are three refuse pits, a drying rack, campfires, a fish trap or "fyke", and dug-out canoes with the long wooden poles or paddles.

Meril-Lee is the son of Mr. Meril-Lee Dunn, of Laurel, who is associated with Valiant Fertilizer Company and Mrs. Dunn, head of the Art Department of the Seaford Special School District. The model was made entirely on his own although his parents were naturally interested in the project.

The Museum exhibit also includes a copy of the picture by John White which was used in making the model and Indian artifacts found in this locality. Because many school children are now studying about the local Indians, this exhibit will be continued for several weeks. It can be seen during the regular visiting hours at the Museum which are Tuesdays through Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Sundays and holidays, 12:30 to 5:30 p.m., closed Mondays.

Delaware Food Market Report

Weather does make a big difference, particularly if it is bad. The sharp freezes in Florida in December have brought prices up on many fresh fruits and vegetables. Now, what the effect will be on local markets since many growing areas in the Southwest have had and still may have freezing temperatures, is a situation we can only watch at present.

The effect of the Florida freeze on supplies is expected to be only temporary since replanting has been done which will bring the tender crops back to market in six weeks to three months.

Citrus fruit mainly from Florida is generally higher. But California lemons which have been doing some fancy price soaring recently, kept pace with Florida by going up 10 to 14 cents a dozen. Some stores in our area are selling lemons as high as $1.50 a dozen. California has suffered cold temperatures also.

Oranges are up 12 cents, averaging 65 cents a dozen, but the large Florida orange is as high as a $1.00 per dozen. Grapefruit are up also, averaging 14 cents each.

Frozen orange juice concentrate is expected to continue in good supply because of the more than 34 million gallon carryover from last year's pack. The fact that thousands of extra workers were brought in to help gather and process fruit into frozen concentrate further increased supplies that could have been lost.

The banana shortage continues, since no bananas have been unloaded in the United States since the longshoremen's strike began. Bananas in local stores are coming from warehouses and the quality bears watching.

Shortenings are showing signs of change also, not up but down. Vegetable shortenings have dropped as much as 10 cents in price on the three pound can. Lard is down also. Many margarines are a penny or so cheaper and butter has also dropped a penny.

Beef production continues at a high seasonal level and steaks are not out of reach. If the budget shows continued need for ease from holiday spending, ground beef made into spaghetti sauce, beef-burgers or flavorful chili is in order.

Pros and Cons of Pesticides Discussion Planned for Farm and Home Week

There's a generation of Americans now growing up who have never bitten into a wormy apple. The reason for this, according to entomologists, is the rapid development of pesticides to control insect and plant problems that have plagued man's past efforts to feed himself with high quality foods.

One such entomologist, a national expert in the field of pesticides, will appear as a speaker on the Farm and Home Week program, February 5, 6 and 7, at the University of Delaware's School of Agriculture.

He is Dr. George C. Decker, head of the section of economic entomology at the University of Illinois. Dr. Decker will speak on "Pros and Cons of Pesticides" during the 11:30 a.m. general session at Agricultural Hall, on Tuesday, Feb. 5.

Agricultural scientists from 11 universities, including the University of Delaware, will appear on various Farm and Home Week programs. Other universities represented are from Maryland, Iowa, New York, Illinois, Ohio, Virginia, New Jersey, Minnesota, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

In addition, representatives from industry, agriculture and government will speak during the 23 sessions.

The use of pesticides has created a nation-wide stir since "Silent Spring," a book written by Rachel Carson, was published last year. Miss Carson contends, among other things, that the use of pesticides upset the natural world's delicate balance which may be detrimental to future generations.

Dr. Dale F. Bray, head of the Department of Entomology at the University of Delaware, said that there is no scientific evidence to support the contention that insecticides are in any way associated with mutations or with any human diseases—if the materials are used as recommended.

One exception is with allergies, Bray said, but these are generally limited to individuals that are already allergic to other things.

If properly used, Bray said, insecticides are not dangerous to humans—either in the short or long run period.

Decker, in a recent trade publication article (National Agricultural Chemicals Association News and Pesticide Review, August, 1962) said the consumer benefits the most from the use of pesticides.

Pesticides, Decker contends, increase production, reduce losses and reduce labor costs of grading and sorting of vegetables, fruits and other agricultural crops. These savings, he said, have forced the prices of these products downward—despite abrupt rises in packaging, transportation, marketing and distribution costs.

Coordination Is Key To Stretching Wardrobe

The key to stretching your wardrobe is co-ordination, and it isn't necessary to spend a great deal of money for clothes if you have a well-co-ordinated wardrobe, according to Janet Reed, extension clothing specialist at the University of Delaware.

Her advice is that when adding to your wardrobe, always buy new garments or accessories which can be worn with clothing you already have. By building your wardrobe around suits, jackets, blouses, sweaters, skirts and slacks which can be traded about, you need never feel that your wardrobe is limited, she says. A large wardrobe filled with "orphans" that can't be worn together can make you feel you "haven't a thing to wear"—regardless of how much you paid for them.

If she chooses the proper style for her figure almost any woman can wear separate skirts and blouses, Miss Reed notes.

The woman with very large hips should avoid both tight-fitting and very full skirts because she usually looks better in skirts with an easy fit and a moderate flare.

Pressed pleats are more slenderizing than unpressed ones, and they give an illusion of height. Firm fabrics in greyed colors are the most slenderizing, so bulky fabrics in plaids or prints should be avoided by the woman who does not wish to emphasize her size, Miss Reed advises.

Blouses contrasting in color with skirts tend to cut apparent height and add to width; and overblouses, while sometimes concealing figure irregularities, may emphasize size of hips if their hemlines come at the fullest part of the body.

Regardless of your size or shape, wool skirts, should be lined in order to prevent stretching the loosely woven materials across hips or knees, says Miss Reed.

"Free Advice" Sessions at Farm And Home Week

Two "free advice" sessions on furniture and interior decorating will be featured at Farm and Home Week at the University of Delaware on Tuesday, Feb. 5.

Mrs. Gemma Usher, interior decorator for Strawbridge and Clothier, Wilmington, will present the morning program, explaining how furniture and accessories can be used to best advantage in a room. She will show a variety of new fabrics and give suggestions on how they might be used in combination with furniture already in the home. Mrs. Usher's theory is that, unlike the popular conception of "decorating," it is not necessary to start with everything new in order to arrange a home tastefully and comfortably.

The evening program will feature Emil Benarick of Your Home, Inc., Wilmington, who will explain how to finish unpainted furniture and how to refinish older furniture to blend with pieces already being used in a room. His suggestions will also include ways to change furniture by using different legs, knobs or other accessories.

Both programs are designed to help the homemaker use the pieces of furniture she already has to their best advantage.

Another Farm and Home Week feature planned for Delaware women is a series of discussions on home gardening and landscaping, to be held on Wed., Feb. 6. "Nature's Garden Wonders: Wild Flowers" will be discussed in the afternoon by Albert F. W. Vick, Jr., of Vick's Wildgardens, Inc., Gladwyne, Pa., who will show color slides of many wild flowers which may be used to add interest and beauty to home gardens.

Two landscape specialists from Rutgers University will discuss home landscaping problems and give advice to home owners at the evening program. Henry W. Indyk will explain how to establish and maintain a good lawn, and Raymond P. Korbobo will show many ways to use trees and shrubs in landscaping homes. A question and answer period will be included in the sessions.

In addition, a number of other programs have been scheduled for the three-day Farm and Home Week event which will interest both farm and city women. Among them are sessions on party giving and on keeping fit the easy way. A triple fashion revue is also planned, showing styles worn through 5,000 years of history, fashions made by Delaware women and new ideas for spring fabrics and styles.

The public is invited to attend any or all of these sessions, Feb. 5 through 7, without charge. The meetings will be held at the University of Delaware's Agricultural Hall, Newark.

U. of D.'s Ziller Receives Research Grant

Dr. Robert C. Ziller, associate research professor in the Center for Research on Social Behavior at the University of Delaware, has been awarded a $19,200 grant from the Office of Aerospace Research.

The institution is the basic research agency of the United States Air Force.

Dr. Ziller's project, "Effects of Changes in Group Composition on Group Performance," is concerned with the problems of the newcomer in an established military or civilian group. The effects of individuals leaving a group, or switching from one group to another, are presently under study. Through this research, it is hoped that insight will be gained into the techniques of minimizing personnel turnover problems, a major concern in the military and other organizations with transient members.

According to Dr. Ziller's previous findings, a newcomer to any group seldom finds ready acceptance. Although the newcomer may display abilities conspicuously superior to the "regulars" in the group, he invariably encounters difficulty in achieving "status."

"We have found," says Dr. Ziller, "that decision-making behavior in a group is so organized that the newcomer has the least power in contributing to a group decision. The newcomer, who must, through time, earn his way by demonstrating ability."

Dr. Ziller has also determined that a heterogeneous group, composed of individuals from various backgrounds and geographical areas, and with differing beliefs and personalities, will provide a better opportunity for the quick assimilation of the newcomer than does a homogeneous group, composed of individuals with similar backgrounds and beliefs.

"It has been determined that a group which can effectively utilize newcomers will be more creative," adds Dr. Ziller.

Studies will be undertaken into the role of the group leader in these circumstances. An effective leader, by knowing the interests of the individual men in his group, will be able to make the new man feel more at home as an individual, rather than, as Dr. Ziller says, "the undifferentiated collective" supposedly typical of the military."

The grant awarded Dr. Ziller and his research associates is part of over 4 1/2 million dollars in grants and contracts awarded by the office of aerospace research during the month of November, 1962. Fifty-six universities and 20 research firms in the United States and Europe were recipients of basic research grants and contracts during the period.

Dr. Ziller will experiment further along the same research lines described above. Previously, he and his assistants have utilized individuals from such diverse groups as prisoners, college fraternities and mental patients in the course of the research.

Imagination Limits Salad Variety

Even if you aren't the type of cook who can produce delicious dishes without following a recipe closely, you can let your imagination run wild when it comes to making salad—and turn out a delightful salad bowl every time, says Katie Thomas, Kent County extension agent.

The wide variety of ingredients you can use in salads gives you an opportunity not only to use up small bits of leftovers, but also to provide an excellent source of necessary vitamins and other nutrients, she says.

Cold, crisp, colorful and delicious salads are sure to appeal to the entire family. To provide a change from the usual lettuce or broken greens, Mrs. Thomas suggests that you add other foods to a tossed salad for texture, color and flavor. Diced cooked potatoes, diced raw turnips, raw spinach or raw cauliflower or broccoli, cubes of leftover cooked meat or fish are interesting and delicious additions to a crisp tossed salad. You might also add cubed or crumbled cheese, croutons, diced apples, avocado or carrots, she suggests.

Fruit salads are also popular for winter meals, and the variety of combinations is almost as wide as for tossed salads. Use fresh, canned, frozen or dried fruits for a salad plate or individual serving, top with a few nuts and a simple fruit dressing, and you have a delightful addition to any meal. A fruit salad might also accompany a main dish, she adds.

Fruit, Vegetable Topics Set For Farm Week

Information of interest to fruit and vegetable growers, including the latest University of Delaware recommendations on control of insects and diseases, will be presented during the 1963 Farm and Home Week at Agricultural Hall early next month, Kent County agent, George Vapaa, said this week.

Two sessions are scheduled for vegetables and one for fruits on Wednesday, Feb. 6—the second day of the traditional three-day winter program, Vapaa said.

In addition, two pesticides sessions dealing with equipment for application of agricultural chemicals, and a general session featuring a talk on the "Pros and Cons of Pesticides" by a University of Illinois entomologist are scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 5.

Folders containing 1963 recommendations will be available during the afternoon sessions on Wednesday.

George Decker, head of the section of economic entomology at the University of Illinois, will be the general session speaker Tuesday.

Speaking during the Tuesday morning pesticide sessions will be J. A. Meade, University of Maryland, on "Application of Materials by Spray," and W. G. Lovely, Iowa State University, on "Application of Granular Materials."

The afternoon pesticide meeting will include talks on "Mist Blowers: Air Blast," by Frank Irons, Ohio State University; "Speed Sprayer Concentrates," by Castillo Graham, University of Maryland, and "Problems in Airplane Spraying," by Joseph Hudson, of Lewes.

Wednesday morning, members of the Horticulture Staff will present new developments in horticulture during the vegetables session. Also on the program will be R. N. Hofmaster, Virginia Truck Experiment Station, speaking on "Vegetable Insect Control Research," and J. Howard Ellison, Rutgers University, whose topic is "Results of Asparagus Research Work in New Jersey."

The afternoon vegetables session will feature presentation of 15-ton tomato club awards by Delaware's Governor Elbert N. Carvel. Phillip A. Minges, Cornell University, will discuss "Successful Developments in Growing Tomatoes in New York," and Donald MacCreary, J. W. Heuberger and E. M. Rahn, School of Agriculture staff members, will present "Recommendations for Insect, Disease and Weed Control for 1963."

The session on fruit Wednesday afternoon includes "Fruit Insect Control," by Castillo Graham, University of Maryland; "Fruit Disease Control," by Robert H. Daines, Rutgers University; "1963 Fruit Spray Program for Delaware" by Donald MacCreary and J. W. Heuberger, and "Environmental Factors Which Affect Fruit Finish," by C. W. Hitz, Pennsylvania State University.

Other topics to be presented during Farm and Home Week include poultry, dairy, livestock and problems dealing with Delaware's changing economy and its effect on orderly rural and urban resource development. Twenty-three sessions are scheduled in all.

IRS Ready to Assist Tax Return Filers

The Internal Revenue Service is once more ready to give needed assistance to Delaware taxpayers in the preparation of their federal income tax returns.

Offices at Dover, Georgetown and Wilmington will be open

DELAWARE'S OLDEST BANK

All deposits insured up to $10,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation

Mondays through Fridays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. until April 15. On Mondays and Fridays the assistance staff will be augmented by extra employees because these two days have proven to be the busiest for filing in the tax season.

H. L. Brown, district director, urges persons who do not have to wait for W-2 forms—which show employment income received and tax withheld—to prepare their returns this month. His office staff will be able to give assistance more promptly now than when a rush develops at the end of January when W-2 forms are issued.

"We feel," Brown said, "that the majority of Delawareans should be able to complete their returns with the information provided by return forms and instructions."

Should problems arise in filing, Brown suggests taxpayers save time by telephoning for answers to their questions to Olympia 4-6131 in Wilmington; 674-1040 in Dover and 856-2207 in Georgetown.

He made it clear that the suggestion of telephoning was made in the interest of taxpayer convenience, and that anyone who chooses is still welcome to make a visit to any of the offices.

False Economy Can Be Expensive!
From the Sussex Countian of Georgetown

Just about this time at every General Assembly opening when the bids for printing are announced we usually hear "economy" squeals from certain members.

Each year it has been proven that individual printing concerns, when bidding competitively against each other, can do the job more efficiently and more economically than having the state buy its own equipment, hire another batch of jobholders and operate its own printing department.

And besides that, if the state can get into the printing business, why not get in the dry cleaning business, office supply business, fuel oil business, and then we can all be working for the state—or those without connections not working at all.

One especially noticeable solon who comes up each year since she's been on the printing committee with some very unpractical ideas, based mainly because she knows little or nothing about printing, is Sen. Margaret Manning.

In releasing some information to the Wilmington dailies it was stated that last Assembly the printing of the calendars came to $34,000 and that the state could buy its own equipment for $12,000. This is ridiculous because the state couldn't buy all the necessary equipment it would need for $12,000, not counting the extra personnel it would need to work nights and weekends.

Finally, the state did not pay $34,000 for printing its calendars last Assembly. The Harrington Journal printed the Senate calendar and the Sussex Countian printed the House calendar and the total printing bill for both did not reach $12,000 for the two years of the 121st Assembly.

Due to Mrs. Manning's great desire for economy, the Senate ended up last year with a smaller calendar and smaller type which everyone complained about and it cost more money than the conventional size because the bid was by pages.

Elimination of state services now performed by private firms could eliminate private firms. This could reduce tax revenue and then we're sorta working in a vicious circle.

Let's try to keep some private enterprise; we can't all work for the state. T.S.H.

Ford Foundation to Sponsor Artist

The University of Delaware is one of 30 institutions which will benefit this year from the Ford Foundation's program in the humanities and the arts.

The foundation will sponsor a campus recital by the distinguished American violinist Oscar Shumsky, in cooperation with the university's 1963-64 Artists Series.

Arrangements are being made to bring Shumsky to Delaware in December. He will perform, among other works, a composition commissioned by him, under terms of a foundation grant, by the Pulitzer Prize-winning American composer Quincy Porter, who is expected to be present at the Mitchell Hall recital.

Dr. George G. Windell, chairman of the Artists Series, explained that Shumsky is one of 15 concert artists who have commissioned new works by composers of their choice this year under the foundation's $120,000 grant and fellowship program.

The foundation's program, launched in 1959, is designed to give artist and composers opportunities to create new repertoire in American music. Ten artists benefited the first year, when works were commissioned for performance with symphonic orchestras rather than for solo recitals.

Shumsky teaches at Juillard School of Music and Curtis Institute of Music. He has toured extensively in the United States and Europe, giving recitals and playing with major orchestras.

Porter, Battel professor of music has composed symphonies, concertos and many chamber pieces, including nine string quartets. He won the Pulitzer Prize for music in 1963.

The Mitchell Hall concert will be one of three at which the new work will be featured, under terms of the grant. One other will be in New York City. The 15 soloists were selected from among 231 artists nominated at the invitation of the foundation by conductors, composers, singers, critics and others professionally engaged in the field of music.

The Art of Taking Final Exams

Fifteen helpful hints on studying and taking final examinations have been offered to the University of Delaware students in a memo issued over the signatures of President John A. Perkins and deans of the schools.

Regular classes for the first semester ended this week on the Newark campus with the ominous, all-important week-long "finals" period also set to begin this week. This will be followed by an anxious week of rest, while grades are compiled and distributed, before second semester registration on February 1.

"Final examinations are intended to be a learning experience as well as an evaluative process. To prepare properly for these examinations, you must organize and systematize your knowledge of the subject," the students were advised. "Many students are not able to tie things together or understand a course until they begin studying for the final examination."

Although the memo signers would not guarantee All-A grades to those who follow their advice, they offered the following suggestions:

1. Do your studying where you can be comfortable, where there is adequate light, and where distractions will be at a minimum.

2. Prepare a program for review that you reasonably can expect to accomplish in the time available. You cannot expect to learn a whole semester's work in the last day or two before an examination. If you have attended classes regularly and if you have done the expected amount of study throughout the semester, you undoubtedly know much more about the subject than you will take credit for knowing at this point.

3. Review the subject as though you were preparing to write an essay on the subject of the course. Your objective should be to understand basic principles rather than to memorize isolated facts and details.

4. Avoid "second guessing" the instructor. Do not limit your review to a study of the questions you think he will ask.

5. It is usually fruitless to "rob Peter to pay Paul" by cutting classes or postponing assigned work in one course on the excuse of preparing for an examination in another. Plan your time so as to meet all your commitments, and do not regard an examination as an emergency situation.

6. Avoid the aimless, disorganized "bull session" method of studying wherein a group gathers to recite isolated facts about the course. Only after you have completed your comprehensive review can you profit by reciting in a discussion group.

7. Avoid panicky, last minute preparations. Under no circumstances should you attempt to study throughout all or most of the night before a final. Adequate rest will do far more than the little you may learn during the hours after midnight.

Taking an examination: 1. Before you begin to write, take time to read quickly through the whole examination organizing the amount of time you are going to spend on each question.

2. Read each question with great care so that you understand what is asked. Students frequently make serious mistakes because they misread one or more questions.

3. Before beginning to write your answer, take time to outline or organize briefly (even if in your mind rather than on paper) your "plan of attack."

4. Generally speaking, it is good practice to begin an examination by answering an "easy" question first. This gives you self-confidence and put you in a better mental state to tackle the more difficult ones.

5. Make whatever you write concise and meaningful. Your instructor will not be fooled by your efforts to "bull" your way through an answer to a question.

6. In answering problem questions, it is important that you take special care to use proper units in solving the problem. All significant numbers should be labeled. Formulas used and the quantities substituted therein should be clearly indicated. All longhand and/or slide rule computations should be checked for accuracy.

7. Write neatly, legibly, and grammatically. Your instructor will grade your presentation as well as content.

8. Allow some time at the end of the examination period for rereading and checking your answers to questions. The student who leaves the examination room early without doing this is foolhardy indeed.

Seminar On The Physiology of Man At U. of D.

A series of seven seminars entitled "Trends in the Physiology of Man" has been scheduled at the University of Delaware to extend over a five month period.

Internationally-known physiologists will serve as visiting lecturers, each discussing basic concepts and current trends in his own special fields of research.

Physiological areas to be represented will include general physiology, nerve-muscle physiology, nutrition and metabolism, excretion and body fluids, and cardiovascular and respiratory function.

The series will open on January 24 at 8 p. m. in Wolf Hall auditorium with Dr. Carl W. Gottschalk, professor of medicine and physiology at the University of North Carolina, speaking on "The Countercurrent Mechanism for Urine Concentration."

Sponsored by the division of extension, the series is a sequel to the popular course, "Fundamentals of Physiology," conducted during the fall by Dr. R. R. Ronkin and Dr. R. A. Nystrom of the department of biological sciences.

Although designed for members of the scientific community having limited acquaintance with physiological concepts, the seminars may interest others wishing to gain greater understanding of detailed body functions, especially persons in medical fields.

Subsequent lectures will be held on February 14 and 28, March 14 and 28, April 11 and May 2.

Other lecturers and their topics are Dr. William L. Nastuk, professor of physiology, College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, "Physiological Mechanisms in Neuro-muscular Transmission"; Dr. James Leatham, professor of zoology and director of the Bureau of Biological Research, Rutgers University, "Hormones and Reproductive Aging"; Dr. Teru Hayashi, professor of zoology and chairman of the Laboratory of Biophysics, Columbia University, "Current Studies in Muscle Contraction."

Also, Dr. Bodil Schmidt-Nielsen, associate research professor of physiology and zoology, Duke University, "Comparative Kidney Physiology"; Dr. Robert E. Forster, professor and chairman of physiology, Graduate School of Medicine, University of Pennsylvania, "Exchange of Gases in the Body," and Dr. Stanley J. Sarnoff, chief of the laboratory of cardiovascular physiology, Public Health Service, National Heart Institute of Health, "The Adaptability of the Heart."

Registration fee for the entire series is $10, with tickets available at $2 for each single lecture. Registration may be completed by mail by sending check, payable to the University of Delaware, to the Cashier's Office, Hullahen Hall, specifying for which lectures tickets are desired. Registration forms may be obtained from the office of the division of extension. Tickets also will be available at the door on the night of the lectures.

The basketball game with Dover Air Base High School Tuesday marked the opening game of the season for the Lionesses. The varsity girls defeated the Falcons 31-10. Great improvement has been made in the squad since the beginning of the season. The game proved to be long and hard, but the varsity team remained ahead for the entire game. The presence of the few spectators was greatly appreciated by the teams. Our next game is Friday with Holy Cross on our home court.

Points Coady 2 Smith 8 Nielsen 2 Walls 1 Blades 7 McDonald 3 Brown 5 Thomas 1 Jarrrell 1

Our young inexperienced J.V. team lost to Air Base 9-6. Although they have a long way to go, we are confident that they'll make it.

Egg Cooking Contest to Be Held

Delaware housewives are familiar with the National Chicken Contest which is held each year in this area in connection with the Delmarva Chicken Festival. This year a similar program is being held for egg cooking, reports Harold B. Short, Georgetown, Delaware's State Chairman of the National event.
The program runs something like this, reports Mr. Short. Get your entry blank from your favorite supermarket or electric or gas utilities service center, or from the County Agent's office. Fill in the entry blank and submit your favorite egg dish recipe following the directions on the entry blank. The blanks must be postmarked not later than February 15, says Mr. Short.
Plans are now being made to hold a statewide contest on March 29 and 30 at the State Fairgrounds in Harrington. Two divisions are made — adults 18 years of age and over, and juniors 10 to 18 years. Appropriate prizes will be offered in both divisions with the top state award in both trips to compete in the National Big Cooking Contest in Chicago on May 16 and 17.
The contest in Delaware is sponsored by the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association with cooperation from the Delaware Power & Light Company, the Delaware Electric Co-operative, the Suburban Propane Gas Company, the University of Delaware Extension Service, and the Home Economics Division of the Department of Public Instruction at Dover. Industry and cooperating agency representatives met at Dover on January 3 to set up committees to conduct the state contest.

V.F.W. Seeks More Dough For Orphans

The Veterans of Foreign Wars this week backed a program to increase the Delaware War Orphans Education program and ordered its legislative committee to work with the American Legion in drawing up a suitable bill to present to the General Assembly.
It was decided to join the Department of Delaware American Legion and ask for $15,000 annually for the program.
VFW State Legislative chairman Robert N. McCormick pointed out that currently only $6,750 is appropriated annually to aid in the education of the state's war orphans. During 1960-61 assistance was given to 29 such students. In the 1961-62 school year the number of applicants increased to 41 students.
The state Department of Education has certified 83 youths to receive grants for 1962-63, which McCormick termed "a mere pittance and of very little help to anyone."
"It seems to me," McCormick told the VFW Council of Administration in Dover Monday night, "that if we want to be of any help to the children of our departed comrades, we must speak up and see that such help is properly given and not merely a token or lip service to give the state a chance to say it did something."
McCormick said that Department Commander James L. Catts of the American Legion and VFW Department Commander Samuel A. Lynch were in complete agreement in approaching the subject together to work out a bill calling for higher grants.
The Council voted to have McCormick, David S. Hugg, Milford and L. W. Ricards, Wilmington, meet with the Legion Legislative committees to draw up a bill to be presented to members of the General Assembly.
In other VFW business Monday night, it was announced that an all-out effort will be made to have big VFW state convention in Wilmington on June 21 and 22 to assist the city in its 325th anniversary observance. A Friday night street parade followed by fireworks in Rodney Square was announced as part of the agenda.

Rural Housing Loans Prove Very Successful

The Farmers Home Administration in Georgetown reports that Rural Housing loans made in 1962 to families owning lots in rural areas are 100% current. Towns with a population of less than 2,500 are also considered rural areas. During 1962, eighteen families built new homes in the Sussex County area with loans obtained through Farmers Home Administration. Homes built under this program are modest but meet the needs of the individual families.

Ed Ruos, County Supervisor, feels that the success of this Rural Housing program is due to the integrity and resourcefulness of the people to whom these loans were made. Some of the loans were made for 100% of the cost of the home. In most cases, the families did some of the work themselves to keep the cost down to the appraised value of the property, which determines the amount that can be loaned. The interest rate is 4% with terms according to the family's ability to repay, up to 33 years.

These new Rural Housing loans are only available to individuals who can meet Farmers Home Administration qualifications and who are unable to be financed through banks or other types of conventional credit.

Money is made available to the Farmers Home Administration in Delaware and all States for these loans on a quarterly basis. During the last year these funds were not completely used up due to the lack of eligible applicants. As of January 1, 1963, a new allotment has been made available to finance rural homes for more families in the Sussex and Kent County area.

The meeting is at Seaford, Feb. 10.

Keeping Fit Is Feature of U. D. Women's Program

"Modern conveniences are wonderful time savers for the homemaker, but because they cut down on the physical labor once required for house work, most women these days aren't as trim as they should be," says Katie Thomas, Kent County extension agent, home economics.

"But even if your figure isn't what you would like it to be, your case isn't hopeless—and you don't even need a program of frantic exercise to correct the problem," she points out. "You can learn the secrets at one of the Farm and Home week programs next month at the University of Delaware."

Miss Coral Morris, extension home management specialist, at the University, will show how to "keep fit the easy way." Miss Morris has a theory that a homemaker can get the proper kind of exercise while doing her every day work, and she will explain how to do it at the Thursday morning session of Farm and Home Week, Feb. 7, at the university's agricultural hall, Newark.

"As her children get old enough to look after themselves, a mother doesn't use as much energy taking care of them, and, almost without realizing it, she begins to look—and feel—older," Miss Morris says, quickly adding, "It doesn't have to happen."

By using the proper muscles, you not only can make your housework easier, but you can get the exercise you need without taking any extra time from your busy day, Miss Morris feels. Muscles improve with use, she points out, and her program will show how to use them to your best advantage, without getting exhausted in the process.

In addition to showing how to keep fit, there will be a wide variety of other sessions of interest to women during the three days of Farm and Home Week programs. Among these will be three sessions on home gardening and landscaping and programs on party giving, finishing and re-finishing furniture, interior decorating and a fashion revue showing styles which women have worn through 5,000 years of history.

"We know there's a program to interest every woman in Delaware, and everyone is invited to attend any or all of the sessions, free of charge," Mrs. Thomas said.

Ft. Delaware Society to Meet

Dr. Norman B. Wilkinson will describe DuPont family connections with Ft. Delaware at the annual luncheon of the Ft. Delaware Society Jan. 19.

Dr. Wilkinson, who is research associate for the Hagley Museum, will discuss some of the engineering work supervised by Lamont DuPont at the fort while he was stationed there as captain of a company of the Fifth Delaware Regiment in 1863.

Mrs. Sophie DuPont, wife of Admiral Samuel F. DuPont, conducted a wide correspondence with prisoners at the fort and with Union officers there during most of the war.

The public is invited to the luncheon meeting at the University and Whist Club, 9th and Broom Sts. Reservations may be made by writing Mrs. Roger C. Voter, 40 Paxon Drive, Penarth, Wilmington 3, the treasurer, according to Miles L. Frederick, president.

Dr. Wilkinson will speak immediately after the luncheon so that non-members may leave if they desire before the annual business meeting of the society is held.

During the business meeting there will be a report on the progress of efforts to have the National Park system take over Ft. Delaware. Although the advisory board of the system refused to approve the project, Delaware's U. S. Rep. Harris B. McDowell has introduced a bill in the House to make the fort a national historic site.

The election of officers will be the feature of the business meeting. All reports other than that on the national park project will be written and distributed to members in order to keep the meeting as brief as possible.

The new slide projector, wired for sound given to the society by the Delaware Federation of Women's Clubs and which will be installed in the museum next season, will be on display.

The luncheon, which will begin at 12:30 will be preceded by a social hour beginning at noon. W. Emerson Wislon is program chairman.

Calendar of Events Available

As part of an accelerated statewide effort to stimulate tourist travel into Delaware during 1963 the State Development Department is currently distributing a five-fold, twelve-panel pamphlet that lists many of the outstanding events occurring in "The First State" during the first five months of the new year.

While the new edition of the "Delaware Calendar of Events" covers only the period Jan. 1 through May 31, it lists 247 events indicating that Delawareans and visitors to the state may exercise considerable range of choice in making selection of activities.

Twenty-six "permanent attractions," open to the public all or most of the year, are also listed in this new edition.

Information for a later edition of Delaware Calendar of Events, covering the period June 1 through Dec. 31, is now being compiled by David S. Hugg of the Development Department staff. All Delaware organizations are invited to submit information concerning events occurring during this period.

Copies of the new edition of the "Delaware Calendar of Events" and other informational literature may be obtained by writing the Development Department at 45 The Green, Dover, Delaware.

Veterans News

In its program of service to veterans and their dependents, the Veterans Administration disbursed more than $4.9 million to 6,200 veterans in the State of Delaware in compensation and pension payments during 1962, Leon Fields, manager of the VA Regional Office in Wilmington said this week.

The VA also reported at year's end that dependents of deceased veterans, including parents, widows and orphans, in Delaware were paid $1.8 million in death compensation or pension.

Mr. Fields said that a state breakdown of the payments became possible through the usage of the electronic data processing equipment at the Hines, Ill., VA Automatic Data Processing Center.

The payments are up over a year ago because of the enactment of a law that increased compensation payments from $1 a month for those with only a 10 per cent disability to $25 a month for those with 100 per cent disabilities. In some special cases the increase was as much as $150 a month.

Compensation payments are paid to veterans of the Spanish-American War, World War I and II, Korean Conflict and peace time service with service-connected disabilities.

Pensions are paid by the VA to veterans whose disabilities are not service connected and whose income does not exceed certain statutory limits. Pensions are also paid dependents of deceased veterans whose deaths were not due to service-connected disabilities and whose incomes are within limits fixed by law.

Fry hit for 19 points, which is a seasonal individual high for H.H.S. Wayne Collison and Tom Milspaw added 10 and 8 tallies, respectively.

Lions Pin Air Force Matmen

Mike Mock's Harrington High School wrestling team won easily over the Dover Air Force Base High School grapplers to even their season's log at one victory and one defeat. The score was 38-17 in the meet held here last Wednesday night. The Falcons from Dover won only three times and drew one of the twelve matches.

Jim Cain, a freshman tyro, won a 5-2 decision in the 103 pound class for Harrington's first win. Cain trailed 0-2 before rallying strongly to get the verdict.

Larry Garey, scored his second straight pin win in the 112 pound class as he flattened his foe in 80 seconds.

Nelson Reed scored for the Lions with a 5-4 decision. Fred Greenly, a fast, clever gripster, appeared to have his rival pinned in the 127 pound division but the referee was one of the few in that large crowd who didn't see it that way. Later the Lion's shoulders brushed the mat briefly and the arbiter didn't hesitate that time. Bam! A pin was recorded for the Falcons.

George Jerread, at 138, had the easiest night's work as he won by a fall in 27 seconds.

Clyde Mullins drew with his opponent in the 145 pound section. Bob Smith pinned the Falcon's 154 pounder with one minute left in the third and final round. Lewis Starkey, remained unbeaten at 165 pounds as he flattened his rival in 1.04 of round 2. Starkey's foe was the Dover team's classiest matman. He was in trouble all the way and made several clever escapes but he was only postponing his defeat.

Gayle Fry won by a pin in 1.40 of the first round. The 180 pound match was close until the Falcon suddenly fell into the pinning hold and couldn't get lose.

Ron Melvin glued his rival's shoulders to the canvas in 58 seconds to conclude a great evening for the Lions.

Delmar wrestles here Jan. 21 at 7:30 p.m.

Felton Loses To Rehoboth

Rehoboth's Seahawks continued their unbeaten ways and belted a tough, Felton High quintet to the tune of 63-44 in a game played Friday night. The Green Devils matched baskets with the winner on almost even terms for three of the four periods. A poor third quarter did the Greenies in as they could muster but nine points while Rehoboth was pouring in 22.

Tom Williams was high scorer for the loser with 17 points. Joe Kern's tossers are now 0-2 for the season.

H.H.S. Junior High Five Wins

Jim Hawpe's Harrington Junior High team defeated the John M. Clayton juniors by a score of 31-23. Everyone played as the local's starting five opened up a big lead after which the reserves took over.

Ellis Myer and Chuck McNally led the scoring. John Greenhaugh rebounded well. Wayne Porter excelled on defense. Marshall Hatfield played a good all-around game.

Greenwood Edged By J. M. Clayton

Greenwood High's basketball varsity lost a squeaker 48-44 to John M. Clayton and were knocked from a first place tie in the Western Division with Bridgeville as a result. The Foresters now have 3 wins and 3 losses for the season.

In the contest played at Greenwood Tuesday night, the Bears led most of the way as the Foresters got close with rallies in the second and fourth periods.

David and Bruce Henry with 17 and 12 points respectively, led the Greenwood attack.

Felton Scores First Victory

Joe Kern's Felton High tossers broke into the win column for the first time this season when they outlasted a Rebel quintet from Selbyville in a cage fray at Felton Tuesday night. The score was 50-43 in an unusual game.

Felton jumped out to a big 21-7 lead in the first period and appeared to have things well in hand. The visitors then outscored the Green Devils by 28-17 over the second and third quarters to pull within three points of them. Just in time Felton regained the upper hand to pull away again.

Williams and Reible led the victors with 17 and 14 points respectively.

22,225,000 War Veterans

There are 22,225,000 living veterans of all United States wars or of the career military service in the nation, according to Leon Fields, manager of the VA regional office, Wilmington.

This compares with 22,735,000, the all-time high in veterans population, in March, 1953. But it will be approximately the year 2003 before the total drops to 4,429,000, the population level figure on the morning of Dec. 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor Day.

Looking ahead and barring future wars, Mr. Fields said that VA estimates show that the veterans population total will dip below the 20 million mark in 1972 or 1973.

By 1980, it is expected that there will be about 17,841,000 veterans still alive and by 1990 the number will be down to 13,689,000.

By 2,000, Mr. Fields said, there will be 8,657,000 veterans still alive. They are expected to consist of about 5,220,000 World War II veterans, 3,435,000 Korean Conflict veterans and 2,000 World War I veterans.

Spanish-American War veterans, now about 24,000 strong, will be gone from the American scene by 1987 or 1988, barring a handful of exceptionally long-lived individuals. There may be some few score World War I veterans still alive by 2010 and World War II and Korean Conflict veterans are expected to be with us in small number by 2040.

Some few Korean Conflict veterans may still be alive near the mid-century mark in 2050.

In Delaware it is estimated there are now 56,000 veterans, 39,000 of them are World War II, 12,000 Korean and about 5,000 World War I. Of this number it is also estimated that over 5,000 of our Delaware veterans are women; about 950 Korean, 3,850 World War II and 200 are World War I.

Mr. Fields explained that these predictions are based on projections made by the V9 in order to plan future work-load programs in administering the various benefits provided by Congress for veterans. It aims to be accurate in a general sense and not in exact figures for any particular period.

As 1962 ended, there were 4,550,000 Korean Conflict veterans, 15,110,000 World War II veterans, 2,400,000 World War I veterans, 24,000 Spanish-American War veterans and 26 veterans of the various Indian Wars alive as well as about 140,000 career military veterans carried on VA's compensation rolls.

and provide a current listing of available sale and rental properties and will meet for consultation with the Relocation Counselor.

Mr. Miller explained that under this plan the State Highway Department will be removing itself from interfering with the orderly procedure of private enterprise and the owners and tenants will be gaining in expert advice and assistance and at the same time the Highway Department would be relieved of the responsibility of maintaining listings of available sale and rental properties which are subjects of instant and rapid change.

Lion Cagers Drop Close Game

Harrington High's basketball varsity lost their third straight game as they bowed to John M. Clayton's Bears at Dagsboro Friday night. The home team's 55-47 victory was recorded with the aid of a big 19-10 margin in the third quarter. The Lions outscored the Bears for the other three periods of the contest. Harrington led 26-23 at halftime.

Bill Adams again led the locals in the scoring column as he flipped in 16 points to tie for game honors with Clayton's Don Long. Jeff Adams was the only other Lion in double figures as he hit for 13 tallies.

H.H.S. was out-classed by Rehoboth in the conference opener but Selbyville and John M. Clayton are teams of about the same caliber as Harrington. The Lions could beat most of the teams in the loop on a good night. Rehoboth, Lord Baltimore and Bridgeville appear to be the powers at this writing.

22,225,000 War Veterans

There are 22,225,000 living veterans of all United States wars or of the career military service in the nation, according to Leon Fields, manager of the VA regional office, Wilmington.

This compares with 22,735,000, the all-time high in veterans population, in March, 1953. But it will be approximately the year 2003 before the total drops to 4,429,000, the population level figure on the morning of Dec. 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor Day.

one year or both. The Senate Printing Committee decided to print its own calendars this year although the House has awarded the job to commercial printers.

Sen. Walter J. Hoey, D-Milford chairman of the Senate group, said the committee had rejected all bids and would purchase equipment costing $4,500 to do the work itself.

An estimate of the Senate printing bill for a year, given on the floor, was about $12,000.

He stressed that the Senate is in no way against printers but merely wants to see if by doing the work itself it could save money. He said there will be other printing tasks on contracts—such as the printing of rule books, backers and stationery.

The bid to print the calendar for the House was awarded to the Sussex Counting of Georgetown.

The Georgetown weekly newspaper which also operates a printing shop, was the low bidder.

Albe-Mar Printing Service of Wilmington, submitted the low bid of $215 and won the contract to supply bill backers. The other bid, $250, came from the Harrington Journal.

No bids were received for five roll call books and the bid was negotiated and awarded to the Harrington Journal for $100. The committee deferred action on bids for rule books. The plan is to print one book containing both the House and Senate rules and the two committees must get together to arrange details.

Exley said this will be done as soon as the Senate agrees on its rules for the session.

The Bureau of Sports Fisheries of the Department of the Interior has already announced the intent of building an 11,000-acre refuge on the Sussex marsh south of Fowler Beach and James Carr, a reality officer, has been busy for months negotiating property sales and obtaining options to buy.

Clifton, who owns 500 acres in the tract under consideration, said his bill will call for a bond issue to provide the state agency with funds to make the property purchases.

The bonds would then be paid off with money obtained under the Pittman-Robertson Act and additional state sources.

Clifton readily admitted that the Game & Fish Commission has no right of eminent domain whereas the Bureau of Sports Fisheries can condemn property needed for a federal refuge, but he said that should not prove a handicap.

He said he doesn't think there is any basic opposition to the refuge, but merely a situation existing where people would rather have it controlled by the state than by the federal government.

The Milton legislator also said that he visualizes the state acquiring the necessary land over a 10-year period since there is no urgency for immediate development of the refuge.

Clifton said that despite his ownership of a large land area in the region under consideration, his bill is not motivated "by personal reasons."

He expressed confidence that the federal agency will pay fair prices, but said that is not his point.

"Delaware people are different," he said, "particularly in Sussex County, and they don't want the federal government doing something for them that they are able to do for themselves."

Clifton said also that if the state owns the land it will be able to dictate through the Game & Fish Commission and the General Assembly, if necessary, the uses that are made of it.

"But," he concluded, "if the federal government owns it they can shut sportsmen out altogether if they so choose, and there is nothing we can do about it."
