

Highway Department to Resume Major Construction Activities

Major construction activities on State Highway improvement projects will be resumed within the next several weeks, weather permitting, but this source of activity will not provide the large amount of employment that existed in some former summer seasons.

The lack of available state funds, through a bond issue authorization, has halted the Highway Department's planning for new projects for quite a number of months.

As a result some projects that might have been completed so that they could have provided some employment during the coming summer months, will not be available and the longer the Highway Department has to wait for this bond authorization, the worse the condition will become as far as employment is concerned.

Some projects, on which work was discontinued with the arrival of cold weather, will have work resumed on them within a few weeks but many of these projects will be completed by the middle of the summer and will employ less persons as the end of the work approaches.

The Highway Department has funds available for several projects which they expect to have under contract before June 30, but these projects will not provide for the amount of employment that will be dropped as existing projects are completed during the summer months.

The major prospects on which construction work will be resumed in New Castle County are Limestone Road, New Castle Avenue, Hares Corner intersection, Union Street, in Wilmington, and the bridge over Drawyer's Creek.

In Kent County work will be resumed on a resurfacing project the Wyoming to Willow Grove improvement and one dirt road project.

Sussex County will have work resumed on improving Millsboro streets, the highway from Cokesbury to Route 13, and several dirt road projects.

Food Supplements - Are They Necessary?

When it comes to vitamins, there is a general tendency to believe that, if a little is good, more would be better. With this in mind, Americans spend about a billion dollars a year for special dietary substances. However, it has not been proved that larger amounts are beneficial under ordinary conditions, and some may actually be harmful, according to Janet Coblentz, extension nutritionist at the University of Delaware.

Research has shown that vitamins are necessary for life processes, and since they are not made by the body, they must be taken in with other foods.

Vitamins are classified as water or fat soluble. Large quantities of water soluble vitamins cause relatively little harm to the body because they are eliminated in the same manner as other substances which the body cannot use. Fat soluble vitamins (A, D, E, and K) can be stored in the body until needed. When vitamins A or D are present in excess, they can cause a toxic condition which is dangerous.

Food Fallacies Can Cause Extra Work

Mistaken ideas about foods and their values have existed almost since the first meal was prepared. The belief that tomatoes are poisonous, and many other similar myths have disappeared, but new ones are continually added.

Many notions about foods that may have been true in grandmother's day have been made obsolete by modern advances. Leaving food in cans which have been opened is not dangerous if as much care is taken to prevent spoilage as you would for any other containers, says Katie Thomas, Kent County Extension Agent, home economics. Food left in aluminum pans is also safe when properly refrigerated.

While most food beliefs are not harmful nutritionally, their existence may cause extra work or expense to the homemaker.

Mrs. Thomas lists these facts about foods:

—Adults need breakfast as much as the younger set.

—Margarine and butter contain the same amount of calories and are digested equally well by the body.

—Brown eggs are just as nutritious as white.

—Milk is important for adequate diets of both children and adults.

—Frozen orange juice is as nutritious as fresh.

—Weight for weight, sugar and starch contain equal calories.

At the end of May, each entrant will select his seven best birds to be dressed out and judged in the finals at the Delaware State Fairgrounds at Harrington.

Blue Cross Benefits Increased

Delaware Blue Cross benefits have been increased to cover costs of the "intensive care units" at two Wilmington hospitals.

H. V. Maybee, managing director of Group Hospital Service, said the change in benefits was made on an experimental basis to find out whether it is feasible to provide, in the basic Blue Cross contract, coverage for the new hospital services, which can cost up to $60 a day. The charge for occupancy in the intensive care unit is $40 per day at Wilmington General Hospital and $46 per day at Memorial Hospital. In addition, payment for extras might cost as much as $20 per day.

An intensive care unit has been in operation at the Memorial Hospital since September, 1961. It is a six-bed special section designed for acutely ill patients. Around-the-clock nursing is provided, the personnel are specially trained, and the latest equipment, such as the cardiac monitor and the electric heart stimulator, is readily available in the unit. Blue Cross has been providing coverage for members treated there if they have the Extended Benefits membership. The Plan's Executive Committee has decided that now the coverage will be provided under the standard Blue Cross contract.

The new intensive care unit at Wilmington General Hospital was opened on March 4, 1963, and the first patient was admitted by noon of that day. Like the Memorial's Hospital's intensive care unit, it is a six-bed unit designed for acutely ill patients. It, too, has the latest in life-saving and health-saving equipment and around-the-clock nursing. When patients in the intensive care unit are sufficiently recovered, it is planned to move them to a special care unit, where there will be more than the usual amount of nursing attention but not so much as an intensive care.

Under the experiment, care in these intensive care units will be covered for standard Blue Cross members as if the intensive care cost were the same as the costs of a semi-private room. Under the standard semi-private Blue Cross contract, Group Hospital Service pays for its members the minimum charges for semi-private rooms plus many other hospital charges.

They will discuss problems of liability and required procedures as related to school board and professional employees. In addition, the group will hear former Attorney General of Delaware, Januar D. Bove, Jr., talk specifically on Delaware school laws.

Students Constructing Bleachers Students in the welding classes instructed by Melvin C. Luff are now engaged in a major construction project to demonstrate their skills in a practical way. Four sections of bleachers, each seating 60 spectators, will be built for the new athletic field. Supports will be of steel and seats of fir.

A similar project will be carried out by selected students of Lott H. Ludlow's Industrial Arts classes. They will construct risers of heavy plywood for use in concerts and also for additional seating at basketball games. These projects will not only save a great deal of expense for the district but also will provide valuable training in construction skills for students.

FENCE TALK

With George Vapaa

The dust on your furniture is a form of fallout. It's a harmless form, emphasizes Ernest Walpole, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware, but it's an example of how radioactive fallout could affect your life if this country ever suffered enemy nuclear attack.

Fallout is formed when a bomb explodes on or near the ground. As the fireball rises, it takes with it a great deal of earth and other material. Because of the intense heat, this debris melts and fuses with radioactive particles from the bomb. Large fragments descend almost immediately on the devastated area. Small particles, like the dust on your furniture or even smaller, "fall out" over periods ranging from half an hour to many months.

In an attack, most of the country would escape the direct effects of blast and heat. The main hazard in these areas would be radiation from fallout. You can't see, feel, taste, smell or hear this radiation. Distance, time and shielding are the only protection against radiation. Nothing can be done about the first two, says Walpole. They depend on the weather and the location of the bomb burst.

Shielding, on the other hand, is a matter of concern to everyone. With proper protection, people can survive even in areas of heavy fallout. An ordinary frame house would reduce radiation to half that outside. Selecting the safest spot now available and then adding more shielding could cut exposure still further. Our county extension office has further details plus plans and specifications for do-it-yourself shelter insurance.

Lime helps fertilizer to work if soils are acid. The use of lime encourages the use of fertilizer. Crops show a better response to nutrients, resulting in higher yields. These larger yields pull more nutrients out of the soil. This means that more, rather than less, fertilizer is required in the soil management program. Here are some of the benefits from liming.

1. Lime, where needed, helps promote the growth and development of soil microbes. These microbes convert organic nitrogen to the nitrate form which crops can readily use.

2. Liming adds calcium and magnesium to the soil. It also helps prevent the accumulation in soluble form of toxic amounts of aluminum, iron, and manganese.

3. Lime helps keep fertilizer phosphate available to crops for a longer period.

4. It improves soil structure by promoting a granular, crumb-like soil structure. Such a soil soaks up more water and allows air to move in and out more freely. It also provides "leg room" for crop roots.

5. Lime helps assure the growth and vigor of alfalfa and other legumes.

The heavier pigs at weaning time reach market first. To get more weight on weaning pigs, give them creep feeds. They produce larger, thriftier pigs at weaning time, thereby "shortening the road to market."

Suckling pigs from two weeks old to weaning make very efficient use of feeds. Some may gain a pound with as little as 2 pounds of feeds.

Start pigs on creep feed when they are 5 to 7 days of age. Put a handful of pre-starter feed containing 20 to 22 percent protein in a low, flat pan in the pigs creery or bedded area where the sow can't get it but where the pigs will be sure to find it—preferably under a heat light. Pigs waste much feed the first 2 or 3 days, but they start eating, and that is important.

Clean, fresh water is important for pigs to have a good start. They don't get enough liquid from the sow's feed pan or the sow's milk, but need a separate source of water. When pigs have consumed about 4 pounds of prestarter, start adding some pig-starter feed (18 to 20 percent protein) to the pre-starter. By the time each pig has eaten 5 pounds of feed they should be getting only starter feeds. Keep them on the pig starter until they have eaten about 20 pounds of this feed. If they are doing good and weigh about 25 pounds at this time start switching them to a pig grower ration (16 to 18 percent protein).

Farmers following a program of this type, or a similar one recommended by their feed dealers, have no trouble weaning pigs weighing 40 to 45 pounds at 8 weeks of age.

Four years of research by the University of Minnesota shows that ear corn, dried to 15 percent moisture and ground through a quarter-inch screen, may result in more efficient feed conversion for growing hogs. In the Minnesota test, pigs fed dried and ground ear corn gained a little slower than those fed ground shelled corn, but they were more efficient in converting the shelled corn equivalent of the ration to pork. Also, the pigs fed ground ear corn had slightly less backfat, slightly larger loin eyes, and tended to have leaner carcasses. The Minnesota researchers point out, however, that the benefit from feeding ground ear corn might come mainly from the reduction in storage facilities and less labor in handling it because some of the labor required to shell and store shelled corn would be eliminated.

Second Sabin Oral Vaccine Scheduled For Sunday

Sunday, March 31, from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m., the second dose of Sabin Oral Vaccine will be given to all Delawareans from age three months through forty years, at the same locations scheduled for the first dose, it was announced this week by Dr. Floyd I. Hudson, executive secretary of the Delaware State Board of Health. "Those persons who missed the first dose on Feb. 17, may still take the second on March 31," Dr. Hudson said. There will be no charge for the vaccine, however, a 25 cent donation will be accepted to help pay part of the cost.

The "crash" immunization program to wipe polio from Delaware is sponsored jointly by the Medical Society of Delaware, the State Board of Health, and the National Foundation Chapters in Delaware. The ultimate goal is 100% immunization of all Delaware citizens this year. The program will not be repeated.

"It is essential that people take the vaccine to protect themselves, their children and their community from the crippling effects of poliomyelitis," Dr. Hudson said. "The Sabin Oral Vaccine gives each person receiving it an excellent and lasting immunity to polio. It also prevents a person from becoming a carrier since wild polio virus is unable to grow in a vaccinated individual. These are the advantages that the newer vaccine has over the shots of vaccine used in the past. It is, therefore, highly recommended that persons take the new vaccine regardless of how many polio shots they had before," Dr. Hudson advised.

The Sabin Oral Vaccine will be given in all public, private and parochial school on either Thursday, March 28 or Friday, March 29, free of charge. Parents are urged to request that each child be given this protective vaccine now. It is definitely the most promising means yet devised to eliminate polio.

Farming Not
 "Way of Life"

Farming is an exacting, demanding business and no longer a "way of life" for those who cannot make their way in the outside world, a Virginia educator told a Delaware Bankers Agricultural Forum audience at the University of Delaware last week.

Dr. Wilson B. Bell, dean of the school of agriculture, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, predicted that some agricultural businesses will be gone in the next 10 years "but those that are left will be stronger."

Speaking on expected changes in agriculture, Dr. Bell contrasts agriculture of years ago—a business where the farmer himself raised his own seed and marketed his own products—to agriculture now which he termed "the industry of agriculture."

Other main speakers on the program, sponsored by the Delaware Bankers Association, were Duane Keat, general counsel of Doane Agricultural Service of St. Louis, and Dr. Robert S. Smith of the Cornell University Department of Agricultural Economics.

Today's agriculture—sometimes called "agribusiness"—consists of the off-farm agricultural business of suppliers and marketers on either side of the farm business, according to Bell.

He said the changes of agriculture are far from being over and challenged some 200 agriculture businessmen and bankers attending the forum to remain alert to these changes.

"We must think of the future of agriculture as an opportunity—not as a problem—and must re-gear our thinking to overcome the obstacles if we don't want to lose our vision of future needs," he said.

Some of the adjustments required to be made include sharply increased needs for capital investments, continued shifts in numbers and sizes of farms and production geared to specific needs of the market place.

He said off-farm agriculture business will also have to change to provide specific inputs of high quality for farmers. Processing and marketing must respond to the newer ways foods must be handled to meet consumer needs. He cited the possibility of sweet potato chips in his own state.

Keat, speaking on increasing need for financial and legal planning by farmers, cited eight "red flag" areas of movement or transition towards this goal:

1. The increased need for capital inputs into the farming enterprise. For instance, in 1950 the average farm used $17,000 of assets in production. By last year it had increased to almost $48,000.
2. Emphasis on liability or the tendency to want to hold someone responsible for injuries and/or damages. This is a universal development—that is reflected in everyone's insurance costs.
3. The complexity of the income tax laws and their effect on the farm business. One look at the depreciation developments over the past 10 years, plus the addition of the new investment credit, is enough to confuse everybody.
4. Social security and other retirement programs, with the tax implications and qualifications.
5. Complexity of programs and laws relating to agriculture.
6. The growing maze of laws effecting the farm such as eminent domain, zoning and farm labor restrictions.
7. The tremendous increase in the capital value of the farm business with the resulting problems of transferring the business from one generation to another within the framework of federal estate and gift taxes and state inheritance taxes.
8. The volume of transactions in the farm business. Again going back to 1950—where a dollar was spent for cash production needs, then; it takes $1.16 now—and this doesn't take inflation into account.

Smith, whose afternoon talk on incorporating the family farm business, suggested the following situations when farm businesses should consider incorporation:

- If farm owner or owners have significant amount of property outside of farm business, $20,000 or more.
- If farm operation involves unusual amount of contacts regularly with members of the public.
- If farm business is to employ large numbers of seasonal or regular laborers.
- If three or more families or branches of the same family are involved in ownership and operation of the business.
- If total assets of farm business are unusually large—$100,000-$150,000.

Felton F.F.A.
 Holds Parent-Son
 Banquet

Guests attending the annual Felton FFA parent and son banquet Friday evening were introduced to a broadened concept of the vocational agriculture program.

Daniel E. Koble, State Director for Agricultural Education, speaking before the group said that there is an increasing demand for agriculturally trained workers. The increase, he said, is in those industries which support agriculture and which deal directly with farmers. He also emphasized that due to the relatively low percentage of people engaged directly in farming, fewer of our agriculture graduates would actually farm.

Mr. Koble noted that many of these jobs will require additional training after high school so that the capable vocational agriculture student should include college in his educational plans.

Nine members of the Felton Chapter were awarded trophies for outstanding work in vocational agriculture. The awards are sponsored by community businessmen and other interested individuals. Those receiving an award and the sponsor of the award are as follows:

steer project, sponsored by Simpler Lumber Co., awarded to David Alexander; agricultural theory, sponsored by Melvin C. Luff, awarded to Joseph Postles; vegetable production, sponsored by Steward's Garage, awarded to Robert McCloskey; Short; farm mechanics, sponsored Felton Lumber Co., awarded to Richard Good; field crop production sponsored by Felton Hardware, awarded to Tommy O'Day; poultry production, sponsored by George Rothwell, Inc., awarded to Shelby Harrington; slaughter hogs, sponsored by the Felton Bank, awarded to John beef heifer project, sponsored by Wm. Chambers & Son, awarded to Robert Thompson; and supervised farm practice, awarded to Lee Moore.

John Short, president of the Felton Chapter, was toastmaster. The report of the preceding year's activities was given by James Hutson, chapter reporter. Shelby Harrington, chapter sentinel, led the group in prayer.

Mr. Charles A. Hoff, high school principal, welcomed the group on behalf of the Felton Board of School Trustees. Ronnie Robbins, State Vice-President for Kent County brought greetings from the State Association.

In addition to the boys and their parents, several distinguished guests were present. Among these were school board members Virgil Jarrell and Mrs. Jarrell, William Myers and Mrs. Myers, William Eliason and Mrs. Eliason, and Raymond Hughes and Mrs. Hughes. Charles A. Hoff, high school principal, and Mrs. Hoff, William E. Cline, elementary principal, and Mrs. Cline, Ralph Barwick, assistant professor of agricultural education, University of Delaware, George Vapaa, Kent County agricultural agent, James Green state secretary FFA, Samuel Sloan, president Delaware Council of Cooperatives, and Francis Raughley, State Grange Master.

Harry B. Semans, president of the VCF Ruritan Club, introduced the members of the Ruritan Club. This organization has sponsored the banquet for the Felton Chapter for the last several years as a part of its community service program.

The banquet was prepared by the members of the VCF Ruritanettes and was served by members of the 12th grade home economics class.

John George Handges, John George Handges, 63, of Frederica, died on Friday, March 22, at the Kent General Hospital after a lengthy illness.

He had been a partner with his son in the Delaware Shoe Repair Shop in Dover since 1948. He had lived on the Eastern Shore all his life.

He is survived by his wife, Arantha; two sons, George John, of Petersburg, and Anthony John, of Petersburg; two daughters, Mrs. John Holland, Petersburg, and Mrs. Margaret Bailey, Frederica, and seven grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the Torbert Funeral Chapel, Dover, with the Rev. George Bishop of the Frederica Methodist Church officiating. Interment was at Barratt's Chapel Cemetery.

Winterthur
 Gardens to Open
 April 2

The Winterthur Gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Francis du Pont, near Wilmington, Delaware, internationally known for their vast naturalized plantings of spring flowers and shrubs, will be open to the public this year for three months beginning April 2 and continuing through June 30.

This extended opening of the Gardens has been made possible by the carefully planned addition of hundreds of plants of many varieties in order to insure a continuous display throughout the spring and early summer. Almost every tree, flower and shrub which will grow in Delaware is represented in the Winterthur Gardens, noted particularly for the azaleas of great size and in myriad colors, which are massed in the Azalea Woods and border garden paths.

One new feature in the Winterthur Gardens this spring will be the Quarry, built of native stone, with twenty-five varieties of primroses flowering in its boggy base. Another will be a display of late-flowering azaleas blossoming in June.

Also new this year will be "guided tours" conducted by means of a verbal playback device which may be rented by visitors and which will carry a tape-recorded commentary about special plantings. These small, lightweight machines with individual earphones, may be turned off and on at will. The commentary, written by the Director of the Gardens, will be changed to keep pace with new blossoms as they appear.

There are more than two hundred species and varieties among the thousands of azaleas at Winterthur. The earliest are the purple Korean ones which flower against a background of yellow corylopsis as the season opens and when forsythia, primroses, and magnolias are in bloom. Great drifts of narcissi, pink cherry trees, and scarlet quince bushes will be seen by the middle of the month, and the blossoms of crab-apple trees, viburnums, and late magnolias will follow.

In May, azaleas and dogwood trees flower everywhere in the Gardens. By mid-month the Azalea Woods and thousands of blue scillas will be at their height, as will lilacs, rhododendrons, and peonies. Deutzias, weigelas, and philadelphus will bloom later. June will bring the flowers of the Chugai and native azaleas, Japanese dogwood trees, lilac species, spiraea, and lilies in great variety.

For five weeks, from April 23 through May 25, twenty-six period rooms in The Henry Francis du Pont Winterthur Museum will be open without advance appointment and may be seen in conjunction with the Gardens. Each of the period rooms in the Museum contains handmade woodwork from a house built along the eastern seaboard before 1840 and is furnished to the smallest detail with objects of daily life contemporary with the woodwork.

Winterthur is located six miles northeast of Wilmington on Route 52, between Greenville and Centreville, Delaware. From April 2 through April 21, the Winterthur Gardens will be open from 1 to 4:30 p. m., Tuesday through Sunday. From April 23 through May 25, they may be visited from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. in conjunction with the selection of period rooms in the Winterthur museum, Tuesday

Art Center to Exhibit Priceless
 Antiques

Priceless pieces of antique glass and modern creations in the same lustre material valued at more than $5,000 from nine Swedish glass factories will go on exhibition at Delaware Art Center, 2301 Kentmere Parkway, Wilmington, March 28.

Jan Erik Anderbjork, director of the Swedish Glass Museum at Vaxjo, has arrived to arrange the exhibit, which will continue through April 12.

The exhibition is a feature of the two-day 325th anniversary jubilee marking the arrival of the New Sweden Company under Peter Minuit which established the first permanent settlement in the Delaware Valley at Wilmington.

The Swedish glass industry dates back to the early part of the 16th century. Some treasured old pieces from one of Sweden's glassworks on Kungsholmen island in Stockholm, where the capital's famous city hall now stands, has been brought to America for the occasion. The exhibit will tour other American cities later on.

About the time the early British colonists in the first glass furnace in North America at Jamestown, Va., the center of Sweden's budding glass industry, moved from the Lake Malar Valley near Stockholm to the forested province of Smaland. Here the first glass factory was built in 1610.

Today some 40 of Sweden's 46 glassworks are found in this area, scattered in the lake-dotted, pine and fir forested landscape. The exhibition is a joint project of nine glassworks all situated within a radius of 12 miles of the cities of Kalmars and Vaxjo. Kalmars is Wilmington's sister city, and a delegation from that town of 35,000 people will be in Delaware for the ceremonies.

In addition to the glass exhibit, there will be an exhibit from the more than 300-year old warship VASA, which sank on its maiden voyage and lay at the bottom of the sea near Stockholm until three years ago when it was surfaced intact.

Many of the artifacts from the ship will be shown—and Delawareans for the first time will be able to see how people worked and the tools they used on sailing ships such as those which brought the first expeditions to the American continent.

SULKY SLANTS

By Mrs. Dave (Pat) Smith

They're finally getting up in the last stride for really fast miles out here at the track. It's really worth seeing as a railbird to watch the two-year-olds going through their lessons each day. As you sit there looking and wondering which one will go on to be a world champion, which one will be among the forgotten.

But it seems the competition becomes greater each year for these youngsters. Some tracks don't even want any two year olds unless they are staked. Sure makes it hard for small stables that so few to go on to get stables at various raceways. After all, where would racing be later on if it wasn't for these babies coming on.

You take the Haughton's, Miller, Simpson and Dancer, and other big name outfits. They have plenty second trainers to leave behind to take care of the ones you can't get stalls for. But not the small stables.

I see in the Harness Horse where there has been scheduled for April 13 and 20, matinee races at the Harrington fairgrounds. Virginia, here at the office, at the track, says it will be sponsored by CKRT American Legion Post and all the proceeds will be for their Child Welfare program. Certainly a worthy cause. Also all horses racing at the event will be under the U.S.T.A. ruling and be charted and official qualifying events.

Mr. Kennedy and his man, Friday left this past Monday for Buffalo Raceway. To see the trailers start to pull out always makes you a little sad. When you say goodbye, will see you next fall, you wonder, will you? But that's life at a race track. Here today, gone tomorrow.

Was over to visit Happy Gray last Sunday. He is coming along fine. His first time out for several weeks was last Saturday. He sat along with the railbirds in his car and watched some of the horses work out. Johnny Amato and Jack Quinn have been taking turns working Happy's horse for him since he has been on the sick side this winter.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Murphy were home over the weekend from Yonkers. They certainly have been lucky up there so far. But, as Murphy says, you can't be always. Your luck is sure to run out sometime.

Mrs. Marion Liska has her farm up for sale. Guess just the two now it is a little on the lonesome side. With just one daughter left, why keep a big farm. But she will still keep her horses.

Was out to visit the Jandak, who used to own the farm. He tells me he is going to make some of the northern tracks this summer. He said "Pat, I might not make any money, but I'll have lots of fun." It sounded so funny as now adays it is all so commercial.

Olin Davis' 21 horses in training out here at the track. And a little bird out here at the track said you really have some good ones. But don't you always. When I am on my way to Milford I always stop and go real slow if your colts and Judy's pony, "Passport", happens to be out there. The new all fire proof barn is certainly an asset to your farm. I know Miss Quick Lady is the star of your farm. After all, she should be. Ruth, does she ever go temperamental on you like most stars do?

Mr. Stokley has 20 head in training, along with three two-year-olds. Mr. Stokley isn't one to ever brag. All he will do is just grin and say, "I'm hoping."

Del Manges tell me he has nine two-year-olds in training this year and that is enough.

Ivan Yoder, who lives near Burrsville, but calls Harrington his home, has seven horses in training. Also hopes to make the Maryland circuit again this year.

Joe Jeread left a couple weeks ago to race in Rockingham and other tracks. His family will leave after the children are out of school.

Emil Adams, who has charge of the Rudnick equipment for horses, in Dover, having a coffee break along with myself, also Jr. Hubbard, Reese Harrington and Olin Davis. Emil, your new blue station wagon is really flashy looking.

Along with E. Anderson's red station wagon, for Kirby & Holloway, you both really stand out. With all my little remarks you both are swell. I know for sure the boys out here enjoy doing business with both of you.

And if you happen to ride out on highway 13 south of town, just take a look at the new building of Kirby & Holloway Transportation for horses. Like a village all its own.

Reese Harrington you certainly are not out of the horse business if you have a mare in foal. Now are you?

So sorry to hear of Mr. Hayes being back in the hospital in Milford.

Mr. Draper's stable consists of four head in training. He too plans on racing down here on the Maryland circuit. Ellis Myers of the famed Myers brothers, has 14 head so far in training. But time he gets to the races probably be about 30. Jr. Hubbard has one horse of his own, one for Nettie Landman, one for Evan Erskin, also jogging one for John Abbott. Jr. also plans to race the Maryland circuit.

Now for a little ramble around town— Good luck to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Dean with their new service station at Clark and Delaware.

And how about our law enforcement officers. Don't they have good looking uniforms? Reminds me of Canadian Mounties' outfits.

Was over to Sam Shorts Store just to say hello. Betty is still a fixture there. I asked Sam if he was still in the song writing business? Oh, yes, now and then, I pen one.

Was down to Mrs. Delongs to have the nails clipped on the Boston Bull Bob bought a year ago, when he was only four months old. I think he is one of the nicest Bostons to ever come out of her kennel.

Lollypop (his pet name) is by Our Special, the world's champion. I think he is even better looking than his father. He is perfect in every way. Course he is registered with A.K.C. Kennel Club as Bob's Special. But Mrs. DeLong sure has some beautiful Bostons.

Guess who his pal is? A Siamese kitten called Alexander. A female at that.

Was over to Irene Adams the other day to chat. And when I get there it is sure hard to get away. She and I are always reminiscing about this and that.

By the way, in last week's Journal I think I made a mistake. The weather when I was up there in Montreal in February was 22 below, instead of 2 below. Mr. Sloan from Montreal is here this week looking for some horses to buy. They said there was still 14 feet of snow when they left last Sunday. They can have it in the winter, but I really like it in the summer. I spent four summers up there.

So sorry, Mr. Tatman, you are ill in hospital. We miss you at the track.

See you all next week.

Delaware Food Market Report

April's a time of revitalization and challenge. Winter-weary landscapes responding to seasonal showers take on a fresh green look. Display windows blossom forth with a festive parade of springtime finery and menus depict the light-hearted spring-time fare. During April special meals will be planned for the Lenten and Passover seasons. Easter arrives on April 14 and many homes help celebrate this day with a festive dinner. So, plan now to use April's plentiful foods often during this season of special planning.

Pork is featured among the April plentifuls as near record large supplies come to market. Prices on many cuts have already begun to decline. Watch for specials on ham, bacon, and fresh pork roast. Take advantage of these specials. Brighten breakfasts with pork items—grilled ham, crisp bacon, or link and patie sausage.

Plan to serve three other protein-rich items that will be abundant in April. Record supplies of fed beef—the type that classifies as the highest grades—will continue to be available. As with work, several cuts are and will be retailing at lower prices than earlier in the year. Egg prices typically near their seasonal low in April. Milk prices, too, have come down as the seasonal increase in milk production gets under way.

From down Texas way, comes word that a record winter carrot crop is at the market. Large supplies in top quality carrots will be available at all markets at low prices during April.

Other foods to check during this first month of spring are potatoes, canned ripe olives, peanuts and peanut products, and canned freestone peaches. When all of these items are added together, we ought not to have trouble balancing the budget and feeding our families tasty meals.

This week vegetable prices have been sliding down. Only two or three fresh vegetables increased in prices this week, but the list is long for those that show a decline in price. Carrots, celery, potatoes, and sweet potatoes are outstanding choices again this week. The following are also good buys: cabbage, broccoli, egg plant, mushrooms, onions, green peppers, radishes, tomatoes, and green beans.

Fruit choices are more narrow than vegetable choices. Items include: avocados, bananas, pineapples, and rhubarb.

Veterans News

Today, more than two years after the law was passed, Veterans Administration officials said many widows and orphans of World War II and Korean Conflict veterans who were not disabled are apparently unaware they are eligible for pensions under certain conditions.

Before July 1, 1960, widows and children of World War II or Korean servicemen were entitled to pensions only if the deceased veteran had a service-connected disability at the time of his death.

Beginning July 1, 1960, widows and children of World War II or Korean servicemen were entitled to pensions only if the deceased veteran had a service-connected disability at the time of his death.

Beginning on that date, Congress provided pensions for the widows and orphans of these veterans on an equal basis with the pensions granted to World War I veterans' widows and orphans, according to Leon Fields, manager of the VA Regional Office, Wilmington, Delaware. It is no longer necessary for the veteran to have had a service-connected disability.

The pensions range from $25 to $60 monthly for widows. For each child, $15 a month is added.

The pension for orphans is $35 monthly.

This benefit, Mr. Fields said, may be payable to a veteran's child or children even though the widow is not entitled to the pension because she remarried or her income or net worth exceeds certain limits.

The income limit is $1,800 yearly for a widow and $3,000 annually for a widow with a child or children.

The income limit for orphans is $1,800 yearly, exclusive of earned income.

The pension is paid if the deceased veteran was discharged under conditions other than dishonorable and had 90 or more days of service or was discharged sooner for a service-connected disability.

Veterans News QUESTIONS and ANSWERS Q-Can a veteran buy a home in a foreign country with a GI loan guaranteed by the VA? A-The VA has no GI loan program in any foreign country. Q-What is the biggest headache the VA has in administering benefits to more than 22 million veterans? A-Veterans or their dependents who moved without notifying the VA of their new address. Correspondence, compensation and pension checks, insurance dividends and similar valuable mail is returned to the VA in thousands of instances each month since the VA and the Post Office have no way of knowing the new address of the mover. Q-Does the VA handle state veteran bonus payments? A-Bonus payments by states are purely matters concerning the state issuing the bonus. The VA is completely outside this activity.

"Sports Odds And Ends"

The tragic death of feather-weight champion Davey Moore this week illustrates a point. The human brain was not designed to withstand repeated heavy blows to the head.

Mrs. Walt Harwanko, of Wilmington, rode a horse in the St. Patrick's Day Parade in New York City. Her husband along with Walt Hatz and the late Jimmy Giles played for Harrington in the old Mar-Del Basketball League. We believe Harwanko was a teammate of Bill Minner and Ted Layton at Goldey College.

Betty Cuthbert of Australia, was a track star in the 1956 Olympic Games. Recently she came out of retirement and set a new women's world record of 53.5 in the 40 yard run. This is one-tenth of a second faster than the Harrington High School record held by Jim Schiff. Schiff ran in the event only once.

Bill Smith, basketball coach at H.H.S. teamed with Howard Faust to defeat Pat Patterson and Huck Betts in a golf match recently. Betts, of Millsboro, once led the National League as a pitcher for the old Boston Braves.

Sam Knox, H.H.S. freshman, broke an arm recently while high jumping. We've heard of pole vaulters breakig bones, but this is the first time in thirty years of track, that we have known it to happen to a high jumper. Knox is a promising all-around athlete.

Lions Start Baseball Practice

Jim Hawpe has 22 baseball candidates working out in preparation for the upcoming Henlopen Conference season.

The Lions have Bill Adams back again to handle the catching chores. Mike Walmsley is also available for backstop duties. Eight pitching aspirants include Jeff Adams, Dick Collins, Barry Fry, Rennie French, Walter Perdue, Joe Taylor, Charles Taylor, and Jose Torres. The first three named pitched last season. Most of the hurlers will probably see action at other positions when not on the mound.

Trying out for infield positions are: Roger Betts, Frank Collins, Rusty Jack, Glenn Smith. Outfield hopefuls are: Richard Black, Harry Bitler, Harold Brody, Gary Harris, Jim Carter, Artie Taylor, Mannie Robinson, and Dennis Simpson.

With no .300 hitters returning, Coach Hawpe hopes to compile a .500 or better record by relying on pitching and a stout defense. Unfortunately, several of the other league teams have good hitters and excellent pitchers returning. One outstanding example is Foster Flint, of Bridgeville. The big mustang has been a very fine pitcher for at least four years.

Record Turnout For H.H.S. Track Team

Fifty boys are out for the Harrington High track team. This is the largest number of candidates here in thin clad history.

Coach Harold McDonald has several boys up from last year's Henlopen Conference champion junior varsity team and a few veterans.

Bob Smith and Barry Fry are two of the key performers. Smith, a sophomore, is threatening school records in the mile, 880 and 440. Fry, a junior, was not on the team last spring, but has three years of competition under his belt. His strong events are the 220, 440, high jump and broad jump. Since a boy may compete in only three events, Fry and Smith will probably be juggled around depending on the strengths and weaknesses of the opposition. In some instances, they will undoubtedly be used in relay races.

Randy Knox, Henlopen Conference high jump champion, is already jumping as high or higher than 1962. Frank Cain, school record holder in the pole vault, has cleared 10 ft., 1 in., in practice, which is one inch over his old mark.

Joe Taylor has tossed the 12-pound shot 42 ft. Ron Melvin has reached 41 ft. The official school standard in the shot put is 40 ft. George Balderson is the record holder.

Dennis Rogers and George Bonniwell were No. 1 and No. 2 on the cross-country team last fall. Both can be expected to put up a good show in the mile and 880.

These events are two of the strongest on the team, with Smith, Rogers, Bonniwell, Wayne Carson, Roger Redden, Randy Knox, Frank Cain and several others able to do a good job if needed.

Wayne Collison and Charles Moore are working on the discus event. Stu Greenberg, last year's platter spinner, left a big hole when he left H.H.S. Moore high jumped 5 ft., 4 in. in 1961. If he can recapture that form it will enable Coach McDonald to make better use of Barry Fry's running ability.

Richard Black, Bruce Layton, Larry Garey, and Charles Taylor are a sophomore group with good potential in the sprints. All are capable of good times in the 220 yard dash. Layton, Taylor, Raleigh Davis and senior Paul Rash may be the top candidates for the 100 yard dash. Garey is also a prospect in the jumping events.

Tom Lord and George Jerred are leading javelin hopes. Bill and Jeff Adams are good possibilities for plenty of work in both the 880 and mile relays. Bill Sollars could help out in the high jump, 440, 880, and mile relay. Ron Broce has experience in the 440 and 880. Other candidates are Neil Sherwood, John Dickerson, Nelson Reed, Richard Schreiber, Fred Greenly, Frank Welch, Gayle Fry, Henry Minner, Artie Taylor, Ron Hughes, Charles Tribbitt, Bob Beene, Roy Porter, John Vogl, Doug Mills, and Jerry Trepasso.

Junior high hopefuls include Ken Correll, John Petrosky, Wayne Porter, Albert Ratledge, Allen Jerread, Ellis Myer, Jim Cain, Gerry Garey, Bill Garey, Bill Abbott, Dan Hicks and Willie Bonniwell.

With only five seniors on the squad, 1964 should be an even better track year at H.H.S.

Maryland Golf Tournament Begins May 11.

The Fourth Annual Berlin Milling Company Golf Tournament will be held at the Ocean City Golf and Yacht Club May 11 and 12. This tournament, the first of the season and the largest on the Shore, will lead a series of invitational tournaments sanctioned by the Delmarva Peninsula Golf Association. The event is being scheduled two weeks later than usual in hopes of more favorable weather.

Qualifying will start April 20 and run to noon May 5. A qualifying round and one practice round are included in the entry fee.

The 1962 Berlin Milling Company Tournament has a field of 227 entrants, with 144 qualifying for the two day test in six flights. This year's tournament provides for 168 qualifiers or 24 more than in 1962.

Last year, Sheldon Blades, Talbot Country Club in Easton, Md., took top honors in the flight with a score of 154 for the 36 holes in a play off with James Horney, also of Talbot. John L. Sanford, Ocean City, was medalist. Other winners last year were: First Flight, William Bryan, Green Hill; Second Flight, Phil Elliott, Elks Club; Third Flight, R. L. Bowersox, Elks Club; Fourth Flight, W. H. Lynch, Ocean City; Fifth Flight, William Groton, Winter Quarter.

Edgar Quillin and Shel Chandler, Jr. are Co-Chairmen of this year's tournament. Other officials include Bill Beach, Qualifying; Helen Chandler, Casie Quillen and Nancy Pigman, Scoring; John Pigman and Bill Phillips, Strating; Edward Phillips, Grounds; E. Bowen Quillin and O. Sheldon Chandler, Sr., Trophies; William Esham, Refreshments and Entertainment; and Fred Brueckman, Photos and Publicity.

George Gum, Greens Superintendent, and Mus O'Linger, Club Pro expect to have the Ocean City 18-hole championship course in top condition for the tournament and officials look for a record turnout.

Food Conference Scheduled for March 31

Businessmen in all phases of the food industry will meet on the Newark campus of the University of Delaware for the 1963 Delaware Conference on Food Distribution, beginning March 31st. The Sixth Annual Conference, presented by the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Delaware in cooperation with the Small Business Administration, will place special emphasis this year on the practical problems facing food distributors in their day to day operations.

"Closing Ranks for Timely Action" will be the theme of the 3-day short course, which begins with a banquet on Sunday, March 31st. Don Grimes, President of the Independent Grocers Alliance, Inc. will be the keynote speaker.

The next two days will be devoted to 20 workshop sessions and three general sessions, led by a faculty of prominent food industry leaders. Businessmen in the workshops will take up such questions as Store Modernization and Equipment Innovations, Wholesalers Retail Accounting Services, Sales Management for Food Brokers, Modern Inventory Management, and Site Selection in Competitive Market Areas.

The presentation of awards and scholarships on Monday, April 1st, will be followed by a special address by Bob Richards, Olympic Champion and Director of Wheaties Sports Federation.

Registrations for the Conference are now being accepted by the University of Delaware's living in areas food variety and quality are limited are persons for whom food supplements may be necessary. Miss Coblenz cautions, however, that these are not general rules and any food supplement program should be guided by a doctor.

Food Distribution Section. Further details are available from Dennis Hawkes, Conference Chairman, at 368-8511 in Newark.

The American Medical Association states that if the diet contains sufficient amounts of the key food groups—milk; meat, fish or eggs; vegetables and fruits; and bread or cereal—supplements should be unnecessary. The proper selection and preparation of foods is the most important factor in the achievement of an adequate diet.

Tong has a seven semester cumulative average of 3.78 in all subjects out of a possible 4.00 and has never received a grade other than "A" in any engineering, mathematical, physical or chemical course, including two advanced mathematics courses beyond normal curriculum requirements. His humanities program of concentration in German language and literature also consists of all "A" work. He has received no grade other than "A" for three years in any subject.

Tong is participating in the degree with distinction program, which includes the preparation of a thesis based on experimental work he is carrying out on the general subject of intelligent game playing machines.

He is vice president of the Delaware Student Branch of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers, a member of Tau Beta Pi and holds an RCA engineering scholarship. He was employed last summer as a student engineer by the United Engineers and Constructors, of Philadelphia.

Born and raised in China, Tong came to America with his parents in 1959. He was graduated that year from Alexis I. duPont High School. He will receive the award at a Students' Night dinner in Philadelphia April 3.
