Four small children, ranging in age from 5 years down, lost their lives late Wednesday evening when fire destroyed the house in which they were living two miles northwest of Harrington on County Road 275.

The fatalities were listed as follows: Daniel Pritchett Jr., 5; Richard Pritchett, 3; Dwain Pritchett, 2, and Ida Mae Thomas, 1.

The Harrington Volunteer Fire Company responded to an alarm at 11:30 p.m., at the residence of Earl and Caroline Thomas Jr. The four-room house, owned by Leslie Kemp, was an inferno when firemen arrived and they were unable to save anything.

The three Pritchett children were being cared for by the Thomas family as their father, Daniel Pritchett Sr., is a patient in Veterans Hospital, Elsmere, and their mother works in Felton.

State police and deputy fire marshals from all three counties are investigating the blaze, origin of which has been undetermined.

Mrs. Arnett Potter and Mrs. Franklin Derrickson, of the auxiliary, provided firemen with coffee and sandwiches in the Fire House.

They will cook three meals on the trail, spending Sunday night where evening finds them. They will leave camp about 2 p.m. Monday and will return home about 7 p.m. Monday night.

Fat-Based Detergents May Help Solve Water Foaming Problem

Foaming in streams and other water supplies that may result from disposal of spent detergents would probably not occur if the detergents were made from fats, U. S. Department of Agriculture scientists believe.

To test this theory, Agricultural Research Service chemists are studying the extent to which bacteria in rivers and sewage plants can degrade or break down fat-based detergents, thus destroying their foaming tendencies.

Proof of degradability would give fat-based detergents an advantage over today's widely used petroleum-based detergents that might lead to a larger market for farm-produced fats.

Because foam interferes with efficient treatment of wastes at sewage plants and sometimes even forms a head on tap-drawn water, there is a growing demand for detergents that are readily degraded biologically. Producers of petroleum-based detergents are seeking economical means of modifying them.

Since soaps, which are made from fats, are inherently degradable biologically, ARS chemists say it is reasonable to assume that detergents from fat would be degradable too, or at least could readily be made so. The Eastern utilization research laboratory at Philadelphia is therefore taking another look at detergents made from fat. Chemists there have been doing research on fat-based detergents ever since petroleum-based detergents began to replace soap.

Although some fat-based detergents are produced commercially, the demand is limited primarily because raw-material costs have not permitted prices competitive with those of petroleum-based detergents.

Electronics Firm Building Near Frederica

It is anticipated the facilities will be ready for occupancy in June. Johnston further stated that as soon as legal details were completed, a further announcement will be forthcoming.

The topic for the meeting was "Symbols of the Church" with the leader, Mrs. W. W. Sharp. She explained the symbols of the seasons of the church, noting that Pentecost is designated by red, Kingdomtide by green, Lent-purple, Christmas and Easter-white and Good Friday-black. Continuing the subject she explained the cross, telling the members that it was once the symbol of disgrace, horror and degradation and now is the most sacred reminder that Jesus died for the redemption of mankind.

As such it is afforded the highest place of honor in our religion. The letters I H S, she pointed out are used in many places in the church and stand for the first three letters of the Greek word for Jesus. The famous painting of the Last Supper by Leonardo da Vinci and Christ in the Garden by Hoffman were also shown.

Mrs. Sharp concluded her remarks with a suggestion that all should enter the season of Easter with a sacredness suggested by these symbols.

Assisting Mrs. Sharp were Mrs. Jehu Camper and Mrs. Abner Hickman who sang "Above the Hills of Time" accompanied by Miss Charlotte Rapp. Mrs. Sol Martin and Mrs. Leonard Masten gave Bible readings. "What Does Easter Mean to You?" and inspirational poem was read by Mrs. Fred Greenly, Sr.

Mrs. Fulton Downing conducted the business meeting which followed.

Mrs. Harrington asked the members to remember the Snack Bar which the Society will conduct during the antique show on April 24 and 25. Help will be needed during the three shifts of 10 to 2, 2 to 6 and 6 to 10. Anyone who can serve during these times is asked to call Mrs. Harrington or Mrs. Frank Derrickson.

Miss Frances Downing will attend the Girl's School of Missions again this summer. Another girl will be selected to attend with her, at some later date.

Refreshments were served by the members of the Esther Circle, Mrs. Milton Welch and Mrs. Ruth Ryan leaders.

The next meeting will be the pledge service Tuesday, May 7, with Mrs. Marvin Richardson, leader.

A guidance counselor in Harrington schools told of the excitement and pageantry of the visit of Prince Bertil, of Sweden, to Wilmington Friday in honor of the 325th anniversary of the founding of Wilmington by the Swedes.

Alan Rutledge, who attended the event with Rep. George H. Exley, said at a covered-dish supper of the Ninth District Democratic Club in the Farmington Fire House Tuesday, he spoke to the prince and to Vice President Lyndon Johnson. Speaking in ceremonies at The Rocks, the landing place of the Swedes, Prince Bertil remarked on the fine weather and recalled that 25 years ago, when he attended the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Swedes in Delaware, a heavy rain ruined his uniform, that of an admiral, Rutledge said.

Exley, president of the club, announced the names of the delegates and alternates to the annual convention of the Federation of Democratic Clubs Saturday in Dover. They were as follows: Delegates—Exley, Harrison Melvin, William Minner, George Vincent, and Maurice Adams. Alternates—Tony Brown, Carl Wright, Raymond Dean, Watson Baker, and Clarence Dyer.

Exley said he would be unable to attend as he was going to the hospital to get his teeth pulled.

He is also a member of the Asbury Methodist Church, director of the Harrington Lions Club, and vice president of the Little League Baseball and Football Organization.

Mr. Walls said he would be unable to attend as he was going to the hospital to get his teeth pulled.

Restaurant Owner Thought Mitchum's Face Was Familiar

Mrs. Rae Smith, proprietor of Rae's Restaurant, thought her customer looked familiar; yet, she could not place him. One thing for sure, he wasn't from Harrington.

Mrs. Smith, being of a friendly nature, struck up a conversation with her guest and finally asked his name.

"Bob Mitchum," the diner replied.

Mrs. Smith was so dumbfounded, she was speechless. "He probably thought I had flipped my lid," she commented.

State Told Its Gallows Out of Order

While Delawareans stand to find out soon if their whipping post works, they have been told their gallows doesn't.

Delaware went back to capital punishment 15 months ago, but no one yet has been under the death sentence.

As for the gallows: "It's covered with dust. It's inoperative and we hope we don't have to use it," admitted I. Hammond Cabbage, chairman of the Delaware State Board of Corrections Wednesday.

Cabbage called the gallows "one of those relics for the archivist's collection."

Six men were hanged by the state in the 1930s. Delaware dropped capital punishment from its law books April 2, 1958, but the legislature restored it over Gov. Elbert N. Carvel's veto.

Since then the state hasn't purchased a new gallows and hasn't put together the old collapsible model. Prison Director Harry Towers is certain it won't work.

"We went down and looked at it," he said Tuesday. "We'd have to put the thing together and see what it looks like."

Towers said the gallows is stored at the New Castle prison and is broken down in numbered parts so it can be assembled easily.

It was made for transfer to the three counties for executions.

Fire Police Hear Attorney General Tell Why He Became a Barrister

Some 200 persons heard Attorney General David Buckson tell why he became a member of the bar Saturday night at the annual banquet of the Kent County Fire Police Association at Farmington Fire House.

The attorney general, also prominent in the harness-racing industry, said he had determined to be a doctor until he went to the scene of an automobile accident in which there were six fatalities.

Because fire companies, in those days, had no ambulances, as they do now, some of the fatally injured were taken to the hospital in fire trucks.

Other prominent guests besides Buckson, who was master of ceremonies, included Mayor Alonso Humes and Chief of Police; Frank Hazel, president; Capt. Gray, commander of the Bridgeville troop of the state police; Frank Hazel, president of the State Fire Police; Vic

It is hoped that every Christian in town will avail themselves of the opportunity to worship in this co-operative way during this period of three hours that represent the time spent by Jesus on the cross. Worshipers may come and go as they desire. The service will be broadcast in its entirety.

Theft Trial Defense Began Yesterday

After two days of involved testimony, the defense was to begin its case yesterday in the Superior Court trial of a woman charged with embezzling.

According to Deputy Atty. Gen. John B. Maybee, the case may not go to the jury until today, but could be continued until Monday.

An unusual feature of the trial is that the investigation and arrest of Mrs. Kathryn Goodrick, Milford, and another woman was handled by a private detective firm.

The investigators also presented the information for indictments to the Kent County Grand Jury where the state took over prosecution.

Mrs. Goodrick is charged with embezzling an estimated $4,500 from her employer, Ragain's Pharmacy, over a period of 900 working days. She is being tried separately from Mrs. Mabel Davis, also a former Ragain's employee, who faces the same charge.

Talk Asked On Federal Milk Orders

A face-to-face meeting of Delaware dairy farmers, private milk handlers and the secretary of agriculture is expected to be arranged within three weeks.

Weldon Brittingham, who is spearheading the 10 independent dairies' fight against milk marketing orders, said he has contacted Gov. Elbert N. Carvel's office to set up the meeting with Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman.

"We are hopeful that we can meet with the governor the early part of next week," said Brittingham, secretary-treasurer of Lewes Dairy, Inc.

After the conference with the governor, Brittingham said, "two weeks will be ample time to make arrangements for the meeting with the secretary of agriculture."

The discussion is expected to center on extension of governmental price control of milk into the lower Delaware counties and Maryland's Eastern Shore.

A group of Kent and Sussex County and Eastern Shore dairy farmers have lined up with the 10 private milk handlers to fight regulated price schedules now paid by national milk buyers.

Meeting in Georgetown last month, the dairy farmers voted to journey to Washington to inform Freeman personally of their decision.

The farmers also went on record to ask the General Assembly to oppose the inclusion of Kent and Sussex Counties in any federal milk order.

Jr. High Pupils First In Harrington Annex

Students here moved into one room of the high school's new addition Monday and two or three others are expected to be in use before the term is out.

Junior high students are occupying the new room and will also use the rooms which are expected within two weeks, according to Alan Rutledge, co-ordinator of pupil personnel services.

Only a few of the rooms will be available during the current term, Rutledge said, but that by next September the school would have full use of the facilities.

None of the labs for chemistry, biology or physics will be ready this term, he said.

Rutledge said that the rooms present less of a problem at this stage than does furniture that is needed to make them usable.

The school expansion program is costing about $1.25 million and is being handled by Brohan Construction Co. of Cambridge, Md.

The high school now has 450 regular students and 170 students from the elementary school.

About 25 students were moved to the room which was made available Monday.

The City Council, at its April meeting Wednesday evening, approved a number of improvements in street, sewer, water, and lighting, as well as in other fields, in a 3-hour session.

Outstanding were the recommendations of the Street Commission on improvements of streets and lighting. Approved by the Council were the following:

Extending curb on Railroad Avenue to catch basin at Liberty Street, with replacement of sidewalk; resurfacing at Fleming and Liberty Streets, with replacement of curb and walks. The Street Committee advised the City to pay for sidewalks in replacing existing ones, but property owner was to pay on new properties. City Manager Alfred Mann was authorized to proceed with the negotiations.

Regarding the condition of a sidewalk, mentioned as unsatisfactory by the Council at its March meeting, that body took a different stand after a report from the Street Committee. It was mentioned in March that the sidewalk in front of the Harrington Package Store and Outten Insurance Agency was in bad condition. The Committee said its investigations revealed the walk in front of the package store was in good condition.

Continuing on sidewalks, the Council agreed to establish a grade on all sidewalks in Harrington Manor when the money was available, and that markers be established at the City limits.

After a query by Councilman Burton Satterfield, the city manager and the Street Commission, comprising Councilmen Luther P. Hatfield, Howell Hitchens, and Lawrence Price, were asked to see the Paul Scotton Company, which had resurfaced Liberty and Mechanic Streets last fall, to ascertain if another coat of tar was to be put on the thoroughfares. Mechanic Street was bumpy and springy, said Satterfield, who lives there. He said patching had been done. Some councilmen believed that the streets were to have received a partial improvement last fall, with final coat slated for this spring.

Getting back to Mechanic Street, Harry Farrow Sr., told the Council gravel had been swept from the street and that, at his request, the truck driver had given him some. It was thought that the gravel, mixed with tar, was not suitable for ordinary use. Farrow said additional gravel, which the Council said belonged to the contractor, was withheld by the driver who said he nearly lost his job because of his action. Farrow wanted to know who was getting the gravel and the city manager said he was having it piled near the waterworks.

Farrow also complained that a traffic sign on West Street, near the West Harrington Elementary School, still reads "25 miles per hour" after it was voted recently to lower the speed limit there to 15 miles per hour.

Street Lighting

The Council approved the recommendations of the busy Street Commission on improved lighting. The Committee thought the City needed a gradual upgrading on lighting and decided on the installation of 3350 mercury vapor lights in the following places as a trial: All of Dorman Street, Center Street from Dorman Street to West Street; a light at the corner of the J. Millard Cooper Funeral Home which would eliminate a shadow on the curb on Second Avenue, and one at Liberty and Dixon Streets.

Sewer and Water

The city manager revealed that the No. 1 well and pump, at the waterworks were in good condition, according to a report from R. D. Grier & Son, of Salisbury, but an overhaul was recommended on the No. 2 pump next year. Controls were advised, with an alternator, an electric switch, to switch from pump to pump as needed. An hour meter was suggested for each pump to estimate the gallonage, since it was figured a good pump pumped 180 gallons of water per minute. Cost of controls has to be determined.

The Council also agreed to permit the Delaware State Fair to use City water for a few days until the fair's pumping station has been repaired.

Turning to the sewage disposal plant, the Council approved the purchase of a pump after the city manager had said that one of the two pumps had been in use 30 years and it was in poor condition and too small for modern

FENCE TALK

With George Vapaa

The ecologist is a new breed of scientist, who reminds us that there is more system to nature than most of us realize. He says we should plan to live in harmony with nature.

Many of our transplanted Long Island potato growers still receive their Nassau County Agricultural News magazine. The March issue has an article which describes how man is changing the landscape in metropolitan areas. The author, L. S. Hamilton, of Cornell University, says that we should plan for the best use of our natural resources. He cites these examples:

1. Prime soils are often gobbed up for urban uses leaving better adapted alternate sites as wasteland. Short range development costs overlook the long range growth that is possible with planning.

2. Flood plain housing along streams deliberately flouts nature. Homes do not belong in low areas.

3. Important forest watersheds may be sacrificed for developments, so that water supplies become polluted.

4. Valuable gravel deposits may be lost to use because of planned residential use. Good planning would provide housing away from these resources.

5. Key waterfowl areas must be saved or forever be lost to posterity.

Nature achieved something of a balance between people and their environment in our early history. Poor planning or no planning of our communities will waste our resources and the population expands.

Dr. Robinson points to Copenhagen, Denmark, as a city which conserves nature as a part of its planned growth. The Utterslev Marsh within the city is cherished for its waterbirds. There are also several sizable tracts of managed forest. These make recreational, esthetic, and scientific goals to community living.

Nine future farmers were recognized for excellence in project work at the Felton School parent and son banquet. The students and their projects were: Lee Moore, for directed practice work; David Alexander, for beef steer; Joseph Postles, for farm theory (best grades); Robert McCloskey, for best vegetable project; Robert Good, for beef heifer; Tommy O'Day, for best field crops; Shelby Harrington, for best poultry work; John Short, for best swine project; Robert Thompson, for best farm mechanics work.

Each of these awards was presented by a local businessman who sponsored a given project activity. The Viola-Felton Ruritan Club presented the awards banquet in co-operation with the Home Economics Club of the school. All are to be commended for their support.

I was especially interested in the traits needed by a young farmer today as described by the speaker, Daniel Koble, the state director for vocational agriculture. He said: "Today's young farmer needs ability, a keen interest, burning ambition, and a willingness to make sacrifices to be a success."

It's pruning time for roses. Here are some tips on pruning Hybrid Teas and Teas:

If your objective in pruning is for exhibition blooms, the bushes should be cut almost to the ground with only three or four canes left on the bush and no more than three growth buds per cane. This concentrates the strength of the plant in a few growth buds resulting in long and strong shoots with large flowers.

If your preference is for a number of flowers for cuttings, then the pruning should be moderate, with the canes being cut back about six or eight growth buds. This light pruning leave more growth buds with more shoots and smaller but numerous flowers.

It is good to remember that most flowers are produced on shoots originating from last year's growth; so your aim should be to maintain one year old wood, cutting out old branches which are not producing such wood.

For a clean cut, the pruning knife or shears should be sharp. In pruning, cut close to the main branches and avoid leaving stubs. When shortening shoots, cut a quarter of an inch from a bud.

For orderly and quick pruning follow these steps. First cut out all dead wood and weak shoots coming from the base of the plant. Next remove diseased branches. Cut all old branches out that are producing weak shoots. Shorten the remaining canes according to the objective you want.

Follow these procedures for pruning and your roses will be full and beautiful this season.

Every homeowner has the problem of selecting shrubs that best suit his property. Confusion often results when plants are hastily purchased. That's why one should get to a local nursery see just what various plants may have in color, bloom, form, size and maturity, color of bark, and other attributes which may add something to the collection on the property.

With evergreens, both narrow-leaved and broad-leaved types, the size, density, color and shape are all important. The nurseryman can help the homeowner decide which shrub will best suit desired needs. Some evergreens may grow too tall or too fast and may be, within a few short years, a liability instead of an asset. Don't buy plants that can become "white elephants" in a few years.

Planting intentions—The Maryland - Delaware Crop Reporting Service reports that Delaware farmers intend to plant 17 per cent more corn and 4 per cent less soybean acres in 1963. If intentions are carried out, corn acreage will run 147,000 acres — 21,000 acres more than 1962. Soybeans acreage would drop 10,000 acres — to 212,000 acres.

Sheep Shearing School — Operators interested in becoming more skilled in sheep shearing should mark April 29-30 on the calendar. These are dates of a sheep shearing school at the Andelot Farms in Worton, Md. Ed Warner, filed representative for Sunbeam Corp., will instruct.

Vaccinate against sleeping sickness—Horses must be vaccinated every year for immunity against equine cephalomyelitis, better known as sleep sickness. The virus is carried by mosquitoes in the summer months but it takes 6 to 8 weeks for the horse to become immune after vaccination.

The most dangerous part of the hog cholera season is just ahead. Livestock health authorities are fearful it may bring a setback this spring to their new, nationwide drive to completely eradicate the disease.

Not enough pigs have been vaccinated against hog cholera at this time, according to the American Foundation for Animal Health. This leaves broad areas in some states wide open to disastrous outbreaks. Since there is no cure for cholera, vaccination in advance of an outbreak is the only sure protection.

When to vaccinate and what type of vaccination to use should be left up to the veterinarian, says the Foundation. Pigs need to be checked to determine whether they are in proper condition to receive vaccination. Also, the type of vaccination used depends on health conditions, and needs to be decided after proper evaluation.

Farmers are urged to report all suspicious cases which may look like cholera. A constant alert against outbreaks is another key feature in the drive to eradicate the disease completely.

Public Warned On Sale of Social Security Books

W. J. Bulkley, social security district manager in Dover, today warned the public to be wary of advertisements promoting the sale of books that promise to tell how to "get around" certain provisions in the social security laws.

Some of these advertising materials, Mr. Bulkley noted, say the books, offered for sale at $1.95, $2.99, and sometimes $5.00, will also show how to get twice as much social security, or even how to can get social security for doing absolutely nothing.

"Actually," Mr. Bulkley said, "these books cannot tell the reader anything basic about the social security law that he would not find in the free booklets available at the Dover social security district office."

In fact, if advice contained in some of the books were followed it might result in extensive investigation by this office and thus delay social security payments rather than expedite their issuance. Further, following some of the advice might place the individual in a worse rather than a better financial position.

"If a resident of this area has any questions about his social security benefits," the social security district manager said, "I suggest he come in and talk to someone in our office. The people in our office will be glad to give you full and realistic information tailored to your particular situation."

The social security district office in Dover, Del., is located at 230 West Lookerman St.

Measle Vaccine On the Way

Measles, that itchy scourge of the nation's small fry, is about to go down for the count.

If everything works, this year will usher in the first wide-spread use of an effective measles vaccine. And the illness that Dr. Luther L. Terry, Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service, calls "the number one disease of childhood" will, it is hoped, be conquered.

In a recent article in the magazine, "American Professional Pharmacist," Dr. Terry describes the long search for a measles vaccine.

In 1944, there began wide-spread use of gamma globulin, a component of the blood. It provided short-term protection, but probably inhibited development of the body's natural resistance to the disease in adulthood.

Extensive research, several important national and international conferences, and many studies with both animals and children have brought the search for a measles vaccine into its final stages.

Since late 1961, both live and killed measles vaccines have been tested in field trials sponsored by the Public Health Service's Communicable Disease Center. Children in Seattle, Cincinnati, Atlanta, Buffalo and Syracuse have taken part in these tests and results have been carefully analyzed.

Prior to full approval of the vaccine, the following final steps will have taken place: Clinical evaluation of the vaccines, manufacture by individual drug companies of the first full batch of measles vaccines, evaluation by the Public Health Service's Division of Biologics Standards of these vaccines, and development of regulations for the safety, purity and potency of the vaccines.

After all of this, the vaccines will be licensed for commercial use—and measles will have met its match.

Wheat Vote Push Charged in Felton

A national Farm Bureau leader complained at Felton Tuesday night that county employees of the U. S. Department of Agriculture are pushing a "yes" vote on the upcoming wheat referendum.

Dr. Kenneth Hood, director of the Commodities Division of the American Farm Bureau Federation, spoke at a dinner meeting of the Kent County Farm Bureau attended by 200 farmers and guests.

The state chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, Jacob Zimmerman, challenged Hood's statement about county employees after the speech.

Hood didn't specifically mention Delaware ASC personnel or extension agents but said such people are pushing a "yes" vote—the Administration position—in other states.

Hood charged Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman is supposed to conduct a fair and impartial referendum but has taken "a virgorous uncompromising position in favor of a 'yes' vote." The secretary becomes both the umpire and pitcher in the ball game," Hood asserted.

The wheat referendum will be held May 21, and it proposes so-called "supply management" high prices supports—in general a stricter wheat program.

Hood maintained that U. S. officials and even employees of the Agriculture Department in the states and counties should be impartial but aren't.

While advising the farmers to vote as they see fit, Hood also said the federation is opposing the referendum and proposes a "no" vote.

Zimmerman said after the meeting he "resents" the charges about county agriculture employees.

Zimmerman was asked by one farmer why President Kennedy met with all ASC members in Washington last summer.

He replied it was not to influence their viewpoint but to educate members on their jobs and noted that Kennedy talked with the members for only a half hour.

Hood outlined farm bureau positions on farm issues and said the national organization once supported farm price supports but has become "disillusioned" with the program and wants a change.

He called for more freedom and free enterprise for the American farmer.

Bicycle Accidents Take 500 Lives

Bicycle accidents took 500 lives last year, including two in Delaware, Richard H. McMullen, president of the Delaware Safety Council reported this week.

With spring weather coming, bicycles stored in garages and basements over the winter will be out on the streets and roads again, with their operators endangering their lives if they don't know the proper, safe way to handle their bikes.

He urged parents to make certain they remind their children of safe bicycling habits before letting them ride their bicycles. The most important point to emphasize, he said, is that a bicycle is considered a vehicle under the law and must obey the same traffic regulations as cars.

That means that cyclists must ride on the right side of the road. It also means they should obey all the traffic control signals and use the proper hand and arm signals for turns and stopping.

They should ride in a single file, preferably, and never more than two abreast on a street. Stunting and showing-off should be saved for a yard or field.

A cyclist should never try to squeeze in between two lanes of traffic, whether the cars are moving or stopped. He should watch carefully for cars pulling into traffic and for sudden opening of car doors.

At busy streets, crosswalks, or intersections, it's safest to get off the bike and walk it across. If a bike is ridden at night, it should be equipped with a light on the front and a reflector on the rear. The cyclist himself should wear white or light-colored clothing after dark.

McMullen also advised parents to encourage their children to take part in the bicycle rodeos that are held in many neighborhoods under the sponsorship of civic organizations. The rodeos help promote bicycle safety, he said.

Shortcuts Save Time For The Homemaker

Modern conveniences in the home have shortened the homemaker's work week greatly in the last few years, says Coral K. Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware. But the watchful homemaker is ever on the lookout for time-saving shortcuts. She may work outside the home, or spend her day caring for small children, yet the search for new ideas never ends.

Planning may take only ten minutes of free time, and it is a time saver in the long run. A few minutes of thought about what has to be done the next day, giving priority to important jobs, prevents wasting time later in deciding what to do first, Miss Morris says.

Jotting down items to buy at the grocery store as you use them or run low saves time while marketing, especially if you plan your list to follow your trip through the market. You are also less likely to forget items and have to make extra trips for small purchases. Quantity buying is good if you have storage space and if you get good buys. According to frequency of use, some families may find that three small containers are better than one large one.

Convenience foods are a blessing when preparation time is short. Miss Morris recommends keeping several quick meal recipes on hand, ready to use so you won't be caught off guard when extra guests come for dinner.

When making meatloaf, casseroles, croquettes, stews, or meatballs, it is a simple matter to double the recipe and freeze half for later use. This works equally well for cakes and cookies. Hamburgers can be prepared ahead and frozen on a cookie sheet and then put in a plastic bag for storage.

Serving meats "au jus"—with their own drippings—is flavorful and much less work than a thick gravy.

Colorful and nutritious, raw vegetables are simple to prepare. Cauliflowerettes, shredded turnips, green pepper strips, carrot sticks, and cabbage wedges for variety.

With a few free minutes, you can add a personal touch to commercially prepared pies—ginger-whipped cream on pumpkin pie, cinnamon sour cream on apple pie. Garnishes, such as fruit slices, grated cheese, sliced hard cooked egg, and watercress add pleasant appeal.

A tray or cart is handy in the kitchen for setting the table, serving and clearing. Dishwashing time will be shorter if you rinse utensils after use and let them soak while you enjoy your dinner. Have a special place to keep your sales slips, bills, records, equipment instructions and guarantees. A small file is an excellent way to do this. They are less apt to be misplaced, and you can put your finger on them in a minute's time.

Use your telephone instead of your legs to locate items that may be difficult to find in department and grocery stores. This is one time saver that is often overlooked.

For reminders to yourself and the rest of the family, place a bulletin board or blackboard where all can see it. In the laundry room, provide separate bins for different types of soiled clothing, dry cleaning, and commercial laundry items. Then, wash a load or two a day from the fullest bin while occupied with another task. Fold clothes that do not need ironing directly from the line or dryer, and separate them into piles for each member of the family. If you have time to iron immediately, take the cloths from the line or dryer while still damp. Group articles together which should be ironed at the same temperature.

These are just a few of many kitchen short cuts. For each family and each individual homemaker there are hundreds more, notes Miss Morris. Don't be afraid to experiment and try new ones, she adds. If one method doesn't work for you, make changes until you are satisfied.

U. of D. Plans Aerial Attack on Shade tree Disease

Early in April the University of Delaware will launch an aerial attack on the most destructive shade-tree disease in the United States.

The plan is the result of teamwork involving Roscoe L. Exley, superintendent of grounds and two agricultural specialists, Dr. Dale F. Bray, professor of entomology, and Dr. John W. Heuberger, professor of plant pathology.

Dr. Carl M. Voss, entomologist and president of Agrotors, Inc., of Gettysburg, Pa., will provide the mechanized equipment and battle plan.

Concern for the preservation of the more than 190 stately American elm trees which line the university campus and for other fine old trees of this species in the Newark area has prompted the previously untested method of spraying in Delaware from the air rather than from the ground.

Despite the fact that Exley initiated a regular schedule of spraying when appointed to his present position about four years ago, the incidence of disease among the trees has increased. From 1944, when the first report of Dutch elm disease in Delaware was made by Dr. Heuberger, to 1961, about two trees per year were found to have the disease. Last year five trees became infected and had to be destroyed.

According to Dr. Bray, the disease fungus is carried principally by two species of elm-bark beetles which feed in tender twig crotches near the top of the tree. Through openings made by the feeding beetles, the disease fungus enters the tree's vascular system and quickly spreads, wilting the foliage and usually causing death in one to three years.

Infected trees must immediately be cut down and destroyed by burning, Dr. Heuberger said, to prevent the spread of the beetles and disease fungus to other trees. So serious is the disease that once it has been positively identified by the examination of a culture specimen, the state can require the owner of the tree to cut it down and destroy it.

Both professors agreed that DDT is the most effective of the sprays used to control the disease, but its use has been abandoned by the university because it also kills birds if used in too heavy a concentration. In recent years, under Exley's direction, university maintenance men have used a hydraulic sprayer and methoxychlor, one of the least toxic insecticides to birds and mammals.

Where once there was the unpleasant choice of injuring birds or losing elms, the more recent program combining the use of a slightly less effective chemical and prompt removal of diseased elms has greatly increased the welfare of both. It is also believed that the preservation of the university's elms is likely to succeed because of the low population of native elms within the state. This factor minimizes the threat of disease from trees beyond the campus area. Since diseased trees on the campus are immediately replaced with new elms, a distinguished feature of Delaware's maintenance program, the university campus may eventually be one of the few places in the U. S. where a good stand of elms may be seen.

The theory for the success of helicopter spraying is that directing the spray from above on the tops of the trees where the beetles generally feed will be more effective than spraying from the ground level. Dr. Voss, an experienced insect and plant disease control specialist, who has sprayed crops, forests and areas bordering utility lines, concurs with the university experts on this approach.

Developments at several universities and experiment stations offer encouragement for the future. Excellent results in the preservation of American elms through spraying have been achieved on the University of Massachusetts campus at Amherst under the direction of Dr. Malcolm McKenzie.

At Delaware, entomologists are seeking a repellent for elm-bark beetles. If an effective repellent can be found, it may be possible to prevent the beetles from feeding on elms and thereby prevent further spreading of the disease. And the Connecticut Agricultural Station at New Haven, reports success in the development of new varieties of elm, hardier and more resistant to disease yet having the same general appearance as the American elm.

Owners of elm trees within the city limits of Newark who are interested in having their trees sprayed while Dr. Voss is working at the university are invited to call Mr. Exley at the university's maintenance center for additional information.

Gov. Carvel Misses Swedish Society Dinner

Perhaps the last person to be remembered by the Swedish delegation which came to Delaware for the 325th anniversary jubilee of the first permanent settlement at Wilmington was Governor Elbert N. Carvel.

During Friday's rededication exercises at Fort Christina Monument, which was already quite lengthy, it was decided by members of the Swedish Embassy that only the gift to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson should be presented there—and Governor Carvel would receive his memento at the Delaware Swedish Colonial Society dinner at Longwood Gardens.

Fate decreed that Governor Carvel should not attend the dinner, since he arose from a sickbed for Friday's activities and decided to return to Laurel with Mrs. Carvel and prepare for a brief vacation to recuperate. So he was not on hand to receive his gift. Lt. Col. Vernon B. Derrickson, one of the governor's aides, attended the dinner to represent him.

However, Monday morning before Jan Erik Anderbjork, director of the Swedish Glass Museum in Vaxjo left for New York, he arranged to leave the gift—a handsome cut glass plate—at Delaware Art Center for Governor Carvel—so an international incident was avoided.

Director Brue St. John of the Art Center said the display of glass by nine Swedish manufacturers has been drawing record crowds. More than eight hundred people visited the Center on Saturday and again on Sunday. The display, along with the Vasa Ship and Kalmar exhibit, will remain at the Center until April 21, when it will be moved to Philadelphia and other American cities are also scheduled to see it.

The collection is described as "simply beautiful and outstanding" by St. John. He said all who saw it were thrilled by the presentation.

Meanwhile, Samuel B. Bird, chairman of the Greater Wilmington Sister Committee, said that plans to keep that organization intact are moving forward. Much good will was exchanged between the Swedish visitors and their American friends. Invitations have been issued to Delawareans to visit Kalmars on June 5 for a big Swedish-American Day celebration and Jonkopping wants the group on June 7, when a large international exhibition opens there.

The two-day and night jubilee in Wilmington attracted more than 100 Swedes from overseas plus many more from various parts of the United States. A press corps representing all Swedish and American papers filed story after story. The Stockholm Telegram is said to have carried at least a page of copy each day on the Delaware celebration.

Mr. Bird also pointed out that the Delaware Travel Council, the Diamond State Chapter, American Pen Women, officers of Winterthur and Hagley Museums also had contributed greatly in entertaining the Swedish tourists who were not a part of the official party.

Summed up, the official delegation paid tribute to all of the Wilmington committee, particularly to Mayor John E. Babiarz and the City Council of Wilmington for what Lars Schott, vice chairman of the Kalmars Council said was "just like having a dream."

Delaware Food Market Report

In the past half century, we have made some definite changes in the amount and type of food we use. Today, we are consuming 140 pounds of less food than we did in 1913. This may be due to processing changes, and the fact that we need fewer calories, as a result of more urbanized society. The types of food we eat have changed also. There has been a shift from crop to livestock products. The use of meat, poultry, and dairy products have increased, while use of cereals, potatoes, and sweet potatoes has dropped.

It makes sense, then, that 25% of our food dollar goes for meat—red meats (beef, pork, lamb, and veal). For most families, beef and pork make up 90 to 95 percent of the red meats eaten. This indicates that it is crucial to know how and when to buy beef and pork.

Marketing of cattle and hogs continue to increase seasonally, bringing prices down. Many stores are selling cuts of these two meats well under their late December and early January highs. We can expect to find lower prices for beef and pork for several weeks to come. Those of you who own freezers, can wait several weeks before stocking the freezer with meat cuts and still buy at seasonally low prices. Just don't let the time slip past, though.

The up-swing in fishing operations that occurs with good spring weather, is beginning to show with larger receipts of fresh fish at most local markets. Bluefish, butterfish, porgies, haddock, flounder, and whiting are all selling for lower prices than they did a few weeks ago.

The look of spring is everywhere, and the vegetable counter is no exception. Many vegetables are good buys. Heading the list is California asparagus, volume is up sharply, prices are down, and quality good to excellent. Other good choices are: sweet corn, green onions, egg plant, green beans, green peppers, tomatoes, potatoes, sweet potatoes, and onions.

The fruit picture remains much as it was last week, with bananas, Florida strawberries, honeydew melons, and grapefruit being the best buys. If you are looking for a touch of summer, the first watermelons have come to market. Prices are high and quality varies. Many imported fruits are coming down in price.

Eggs continue to be excellent buys, with the large size egg the best choice. They will advance in price as Easter approaches. A wise choice would be to buy eggs for holiday baking, now.

This Sunday is Palm Sunday. At St. Stephen's there will be a special Palm Sunday procession at the 11 o'clock hour. Everyone will be provided with a Palm branch and at the time appointed, led by the choir, will re-enact the procession of our Lord into Jerusalem. This is a beautiful service to which the public is invited, and is followed by a coffee hour for all.

It is hoped that everyone will give close attention to all the events in the calendar of the week. Holy Week comes only once a year and is observed by all Episcopalians in a very serious way. Please notice particularly the service of Holy Communion on Maundy Thursday at 8:30 p.m. at which time we commemorate the institution of Our Lord's Supper; also the service at St. Stephen's on Friday, which includes a special sermonette for children and youth at the 10 a.m. service. Then at 12 noon will begin the three hour service at Asbury Methodist Church, during which the seven ministers of our town will preach on the "Seven Words of Christ on the Cross." All are invited to come and go during these three hours as you can. Then, again at 5:15 p.m., let us remember the Litany and Ante-Communion at St. Stephen's.

Easter Sunday morning, instead of going directly to the classes, church school children and youth and teachers will go directly into the church where there will be the presentation of mite boxes. It is hoped that all adults will help these children and youth to remember to share their worldly goods with those less fortunate at that time.

Sunday afternoon the Vicar and the Episcopal Young Churchmen are invited to attend a special youth service at the AME Church, where the Vicar will speak on the "Challenge of our Present Day to Youth." Let all youth be at the church at 3 p.m. where they will go in a body to worship as fellow Christians at the AME Church.

The Vestry and Vicar wish to thank the former parish secretary, Mrs. Creadick, for continuing her good work this past week on a voluntary basis, and at the same time, to announce to the congregation the name of the new secretary, Mrs. Harold Fry has accepted that position to begin some time in June. Meantime, Miss Cecile Kirwan is working as parish secretary on afternoons, Monday through Friday. It is a pleasure to welcome these new workers. It should be noticed that the office, therefore, will be open from 1:30 to 4 p.m. instead of the former morning hours.

The congregation will be pleased to know that three car loads of senior high school youth attended the annual Youth Conference at St. Andrew's School near Middletown this past Saturday, thanks to the leadership of Mrs. Perry and Mr. Masten.

The 1963 Confirmation Classes wish to thank the Men of St. Stephen's for the splendid communion breakfast which they served last Sunday morning. Also the Vicar wishes to remind the confirmation classes that with the exception of the coming week, they are to continue for a short while longer.

SULKY SLANTS

By Mrs. Dave (Pat) Smith

Last week was a busy time out here at the track, but this week we really saw some fast miles. With Buffalo Raceway opening tomorrow several more horses have left for up there. Del Manges, Ken McNutt, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Hoyt, Allen Hill all left this past Monday. Most of the stables that are left here will ship to Ohio, others to Rosecroft. Paul Vinyard shipped eight head to Yorkers raceway. The balance will stay here for time being. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy spent the weekend here at his trailer. He too has part of his horses here and part up to Yorkers. Gordon Smith, president of the Delaware State Fair and Kent & Sussex Racing Association, is visiting out at Arcadia, Calif., where he has his two horses, Meadow Russ and Meadow Battles, at the beautiful Santa Anita track. The famed Del Miller is racing his horses for him. Mr. Smith plans to stay in California till the meet is over. Ellis Meyer Jr. spent the last weekend with his Aunt Virginia Holloway. Virginia took him to Dover to see the Del-Vets Minstrel Show. Virginia said he was so excited and really enjoyed it. One wonder why Mr. Kepart, the blacksmith out here at the track, stays in such a happy jovial mood. Ran into him in the restaurant here at the track and Oh, boy he was so dressed up that we thought he was giving up blacksmithing and going in for preaching. Mr. Simpson, our general manager here at the track, gave me this information at his office yesterday. A new beautiful administration building will be going up before long. The plans were lying on his desk. As to the exact location out here no one seems to know just yet. Some how I hate to see the old office moved. There will always be a lot of pleasant memories. And in years to come, tall tales will be told about the old race secretaries office. For it's in this small office where we all get together for our like and dislikes. Mostly the poor secretary catches it all. No one has his horse in the right spot. Anyway this is the secret Mr. Simpson promised me and it's a first for The Harrington Journal. Was glad to see Bill Chambers talking to Mrs. Thomas here at the office. He has been confined at his home for a few days. Frank Alverson owner-trainer, is very ill in the Milford Hospital. Asked Mrs. Thomas in the office what's new. Oh! Nothing, Pat. So they say, no news is always good news. Mrs. Marie Robinson is visiting her husband up in Rockingham. Be gone another week. Austin Turcotte tells me he has two white deer and two that are brown and white spotted will be out at his farm the last of this week. Bet they will be pretty. Paul, you seem to be a very busy man behind the counter here at the track. Don't let Lucy work you too hard. Dorothy and Paul's little granddaughter has been ill in the Seaford Hospital, but is home now and doing very good. Les Hopkins, there's a question out here at the track. Did you or didn't you get married? Pete Loose again is able to train and jog horses after his serious accident. Pete now makes his home with Irene and Harry Adams. The 24th anniversary banquet of the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association was held March 28, at 6:45 p.m. at the Delaware State Fairgrounds. Lucy Quinn had charge of the banquet and her dining room was very attractive. And thanks for the introduction for myself and The Harrington Journal from the 200 guests. Bobby Carter, are you sure that's just a new porch going up? And not putting in a swimming pool? Charlie Price out to the track for a coffee break. Now for some news around town. Mrs. Sally Swain, assistant at the newsstand, and Mrs. Mary Sipple were shopping and visiting friends in Wilmington this past weekend. (And I don't mean a lost weekend.) Mr. Collins chatting away with John Holloway on the corner. Jack Pitlick sporting a new pickup truck. Makes your station look good, Jack. Mr. Trotta standing out in front of his store. Well, you have a right too, for your windows look very attractive. Nelson Rash, you sure have some beautiful trailers out on Route 13. At least we can ride by and wish we had one. Mom Stubbs, Gene and Gene Manges paid me a visit this past Sunday. Mom tells me Gene Manges will stay with her till school is out and then join his parents in Hamburg. Mr. Tatman, we are all so glad you are expected home this weekend. Everyone out here at the track wishes you a speedy recovery.

See you all next week.

4-H News

Clifford Hudson was presented the outstanding Poultry 4-H member of the year award recently. Cliff, a member of the Paradise 4-H Club, has been raising chickens since his first Junior Broiler entry in 1960. Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hudson, parents and Mr. and Mrs. Lister Hall, leaders, attended the D.P.I.A. banquet in Harrington to see the presentation.

The Andrewville Speedies 4-H Club is happily welcoming their new club leaders, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wright. Have been receiving reports on various club activities. Fox Hall Club and Farmington 4-H report successful bake sales. Chestnut Grove members are ready with plans to serve at the April 13 Black and White Show. With 4-H Short Course in June and 4-H camp in August our members are trying to swell their treasuries so that the clubs can pay part of each members fees for these events. Mrs. Herbert Stayton of Houston Cardinals tells me her first year clothin' girls have all completed their first blouses and are now starting on skirts. These 4-H'ers are preparing for the May 11th Dress Revue. The tailoring classes that are now in their fourth week are showing great progress. 4-H leaders who are participating are: Mrs. Madeline Wiebel, Mrs. Grace Tinley, Mrs. Jafes Moore, Mrs. Herbert Stayton, and Miss Marie Clinton. 4-H mothers are: Mrs. Fred Stities, Mrs. Paul Roach, Mrs. Calvin Hollis, Don Burton, Assistant Livestock Specialist, report that the Feeder Pig Program will get underway about April 11. Our eighteen Kent County participants will be raising 36 feeder pigs for the roundup at the Delaware State Fair. From Houston will be Karen Brown, David Marvel, Vernon Hood, Kenny Blessing; Chestnut Grove, Sam and Lillian Dixon; Millwood, John Davis; Andrewville, Earl Thompson; Paradise, John Hall, Jay and Steve Robbins; Westville, Nancy Webb; Blue Hens, Wayne Blackburn; Honey Bee's, Larry Larimore, Mike Bullock, Wayne Hendricks; Whiteoaks, Jerry and Jimmy Charles.

The Kent County Order of Links is anxious to receive applications for membership. This group is composed of former and older active 4-H'ers. Under the leadership of president, Mrs. Louise Pearson, this group supports our County 4-H program both financially and with the continued interest and time. Having received a few inquiries about 4-H recently may I briefly explain our program. 4-H is available to any youth between 10 and 20. Local clubs are formed with adult leadership, meeting usually once a month. Each member carries a project of his choice. The projects vary from the urban type such as Photography and home beautification to the more rural type of livestock. Members develop their skills and knowledge through projects which are carried generally for a year. Opportunities are provided for 4-H'ers to develop poise, confidence and leadership through participation in such activities as public speaking, visual presentations, judging contests and project contests. To organize a club a community may invite interested members and parents together with the club agent. The program will then be explained in more detail. A club is then formed with one or more parents as leaders. Officers are elected and the club plans their yearly program. The club agent guides the club to fit the members and the community's needs and interests. A spring training for leadership is being planned. Any adults interested will be invited. Many 4-H leaders start club work with little knowledge of 4-H but with much love for youth. They learn with their members. Contact your Kent County Club agent, Marion MacDonald at 736-1448 for more information. 4-H is for all youth—join our wonderful family.

NSF Grant Given To U. of D.

The National Science Foundation has awarded a grant of $4,890 to the University of Delaware for an in-service mathematics institute for elementary teachers during the 1963-64 school year. Dr. G. Cuthbert Webber, chairman and professor of mathematics at the university, will administer the program under which 25 to 30 teachers from throughout the states and neighboring areas will study new techniques and concepts in mathematics one night a week for two 15-week sessions. The grant is one of 46 awarded by the foundation for programs in math and science. The foundation said it believes that sound instruction in these areas is important at the elementary level and that such in-service supplemental training helps teachers provide it. Dr. Webber said a brochure on the program is being prepared and will be distributed along with application forms to all area elementary schools.

Kent & Sussex Raceway to Sponsor Two Benefit Matinee Races April 13-20

Harrington, a bustling little town, one of the nation's hotbeds of harness racing, located 60 miles south of Wilmington, is all agog over two big matinee programs which Kent and Sussex Raceway will stage for the benefit of the CKRT American Legion Post's Child Welfare program.

President J. Gordon Smith, general manager, George Simpson and members of the Kent and Sussex staff are going all out for the two matinee cards scheduled on successive Saturdays, April 13 and April 20, starting at 1 p.m.

Virginia Holloway, whose late husband, Britt, served as General Manager here and spark-plugged the sport for years in this area until his death, is one of the busiest workers on the grounds. And Virginia truly has her heart in her work in helping to stir up interest in the approaching events. She has a personal interest in the beneficiaries, the Legion Post, named after four men she knew so well—the first from Harrington to give their lives in World War II, Jim Callaway, Harry Raughley, Bobby Tee and Clarence Kemp, Jr.

Virginia has been rendering invaluable service in encouraging horsemen to participate in these well deserved matinee projects, and already Racing Secretary Dick Case has some definite commitments from the boys who race here, at Brandywine Raceway, Ocean Downs and other tracks in the Del-Mar area.

Brandywine Raceway, which opens a split season on April 26, is taking more than passing interest in the two matinees, in view of the fact that hundreds of horses on the scene at Harrington will be competing at Brandywine during the first 36 nights and for the subsequent 24-nighter beginning August 5. Harrington's meet is from September 2 thru October 5.

Some 325 horses have been training here, and the Legion cause is such that at least 33 trainer-drivers with substantial stables have promised to enter their trotter and pacers. Olin Davis, who trains for uncle James M. Davis, of nearby Clayton, has some sound performers in the swift Jay Direct, a 4-year-old; Lady Toney, Band S., Nancy S., Gail Reward and Impulsive Lady, and plans to be well represented. He, too, has a personal interest in the work the Legion is doing for child welfare.

Johnny Amato has indicated he'll have at least three of his four-year-olds competing — pacers Chic Adios, Queen Ann Dudley and trotter Lex Hanover. Driver Jim Wilson is entering trotter Homestretch Girl, now 6, and pacers Magnolia's Topsy, 3 and Afton Frisky, 4. And one of the more prominent participants Russel Rash is putting in is the 9-year-old Frisky Thomas, a pacer, who at 4 took a 2:01 mark, won 5 in 23 starts last year, and has amassed $59,525 in earnings.

From nearby Ocean Downs Raceway, where several hundred have been training, will come a flock of horses for the matinees, Dick Case announces. Others who have indicated they'll enter horses are Jim Stockley, Bobby Hobbs, Elwood Long, Cabbage Brown, Ford Baker, George Hobbs, Frank Long, Bud Albertson, Jim Crane,

Juniors Best Seniors in Girls' Intramural Game

The junior girls were victorious over the senior girls at the intramural championship game. The outcome was 23-25. The girls fought neck and neck throughout the game and no one knew until the last few minutes who would be the victor.

Christy Coady was high scorer for the juniors with 10 points. Jackie Russum and Nancy Blades followed with 9 and 4 points respectively.

Jean Thomas was high scorer for the seniors with 13 points. Members of the participating teams were:

Commander Earl Quillen, of the Legion Post, and his associates now are in the midst of a campaign to arouse greater interest in the two matinees. Admission will be $1.

Jean Thomas, Sue Brown Make All-Star Team

Two Harrington High School girls were chosen on the first team of the Henlopen Conference Western Division all-star team. They both played guard, Jeanne Thomas and Susan Brown. Christy Coady and Nancy Blades were chosen as forwards on the second team. This is the first time that any girl from Harrington has been chosen on an all-star first team of any kind. Coady made the second team last year also.

Scoring statistics on the girls team were as follows: Coady 141 points; Blades 100; Smith 75; Thomas 51; McDonald 23; Nielsen 8; Walls 5; Brown 4; D. Hopkins 2. The team scored 412 points against their opponents' 262 in compiling a 10-3 record.

H.H.S. Track News

Ten more prospects reported to Coach Harold McDonald this week to up the number of aspiring and aspiring candidates to sixty. This is by far the largest number of hopefuls in Lion track and field history. While the accent at present is on quantity, a track squad of this size is bound to furnish a number of surprises before the season is over. The new boys are John Masten, Gary Harris, Glen Smith, Dan Adams, Allan Breeding, Mannie Robinson, Harold Ellwanger, Bill Masten, Roger Brown and Joe Torres. Torres ran the 440 yard distance on an impromptu Chestertown High team in a quadrangular meet at North Carolina High last year. He finished third in good time. When he gets in shape, he could be a real help on the mile relay quartet.

Roger Brown made an impressive showing in a recent workout in the quarter mile run. Brown was spiked right after the start but recovered his stride and covered the distance in 63 seconds. Considering his injury, unfamiliarity with the event and the fact that the H.H.S. oval at present is in deplorable condition, his first effort was a highly satisfying one.

Randy Knox is looking exceptionally good in the high jump. He is flirting with George Pfeiffer's school record of 5 ft., 9 in. This is one of the school's better records but it doesn't look like it will hold up much longer.

Bill Adams and Tom Lord are surprising in the 100 yard dash. Richard Black is dominating the 220 workouts. Bill Sollars and Larry Garey are doing well in the middle distance runs. The discus and javelin appear to be weak spots at present. The pole vault is shaping up well with Frank Cain, George Bonniwell and Bill Adams holding forth there.

Bridgeville, the Lions first opponent, is slated to open at Seaford on April 5 thus getting a 12-day jump on the home team. This should make their April 17 appearance here a little more exciting. However, they don't figure to extend Harrington since the Mustangs only started the thinclad sport last spring.

Fans Have Rights Too - Borgia

Sid Borgia, one of the most colorful of sports officials says the sports spectators have rights as well as the whistle blowers. Some tyrants of the foot, especially those who work in smaller arenas, try to govern the behavior of everyone within earshot. Fans pay to see a sporting event and they don't like to be told that they cannot disagree audibly with the officials.

Borgia, a top National Basketball Association referee, says, "Fans and players have the right to express their displeasure to a referee. One blast of a ref's whistle can ruin a year's work for a team."

Recently we witnessed a scene in which a fan made one of the mildest comments. "Aw, come on, ref." The thin skinned arbiter blew his whistle halting the action, dashed over to the sidelines and began a debate with the spectator. First he offered to penalize the home team for their rosters comparatively inoffensive remark. Then he suggested that ejection was the next step if the hapless offender made anymore like observations. Last, there was the unspoken threat that if the partisan throng did not become more serene, they might have the evening's entertainment ended because of the sudden departure of the lone, allegedly harassed official.

Such inflammatory tactics are way off base and could cause trouble anywhere. Umpires, referees, field judges, etc., had better become thickskinned and deaf to the cries of the crowd or find another way to pick up their butter and egg money.

Borgia tells of an occasion when he made the mistake of reaching into a crowd after a man who had been giving him a verbal hard time. He never reached the culprit as a redneck in the front row stretched Sid out like a rug, by connecting with a roundhouse right.

Personally, we don't care for those fans who question an arbiter's ancestry. But we also don't understand those folks who will watch their team perform but will not open their mouths to give the home town kids a little encouragement.

COUNCIL

He was advised to get specifications on a large pump and advertise for bids. The City plans to repair a second pump, the better one. The out-of-date pump might be put in order for use as a relay in the sewer system, Councilman Wilson Bradley suggested. The purchase of a larger pump was boosted by Mayor Fulton J. Downing's belief that industries may come into Harrington and the device would be more than welcome.

The city manager added that a chlorinator and plumbing had been installed at the disposal plant.

Traffic Signs

Mann then, after showing the Council a property identification map of the community, turned to traffic problems. He said that, because of many accidents at Commerce and Clark Streets, he had asked, and received a study from the State Highway Department which recommended the following:

Erection of a stop sign on the eastern side of Commerce Street for traffic going across Clark Street; a sign below it asking right-turn traffic to keep moving. The city recommended a white line be painted in the center of Clark Street around the turn southwest into Commerce Street; that two parking places be eliminated at the turn on the western side of Commerce Street and one parking place be eliminated on the south side of Clark Street at its intersection with Commerce Street. Recommendations of the highway department and the City were accepted by the Council and the city manager was asked to check with the State since the pertinent streets are, for the most part, maintained by the State and are part of Delaware 14.

Police

The Council voted a raise of $5 per week to Patrolman Robert Darling after a request by Chief of Police David Peterson. The patrolman has been on the force six months and the action was routine.

In other police business, Councilman Bradley, chairman of the Police Commission, was authorized to get in touch with the chief to work out plans for police protection on Sundays from noon to midnight. The action took place after a complaint about the number of motor scooters which "hot-rod" around the community on the Sabbath when the weather is warm.

Personnel

The Personnel Committee, a new group for the City, made the following recommendations, all of which were accepted by the Council:

- To set up a wage scale in the future.
 - To grant the following holidays for all but police—New Years, Memorial Day, the Fourth of July, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, and Christmas.
 - Vacations—one week after one year's employment; two weeks after two years' employment.
 - Sick leave—Ten days a year, with a physician's certificate needed after the first day.
 - City Office to be open from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., on Fridays, beginning this Friday.
- The last-named measure was enacted in the belief that many citizens, who work in other communities, would have more time to pay taxes and water rent. Just how long the practice will be followed will depend on the use of the service.

Record Number of Cows In Herd Improvement Program

More dairy cows were enrolled in the National Cooperative Dairy Herd Improvement Program last year than ever before—even though the total number of dairy cows on U. S. farms continued to decline, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports.

This DHIA cows also reached a new peak in milk production last year. They averaged 11,032 pounds per cow — 4,149 pounds more than the average for non-DHIA cows, says Robert H. Miller, dairy husbandman of USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

In Delaware, DHIA cows averaged 10,793 pounds of milk per cow. This is about 3,400 pounds more than the average for all cows, 7,400 in the state, according to Dr. Wilbur R. Hestline, extension dairyman at the University of Delaware.

There were 2,783,500 cows in the DHIA program in 1962, or 16.3 percent of the dairy cow population. Enrollment was up about 16.3 percent of the dairy cow population. Enrollment was up about 56,000 animals, even though there were 312,000 fewer dairy cows on U. S. farms than in 1961.

This greater enrollment reflects the increased interest of dairymen in DHIA record-keeping programs. The records provide information that helps them feed each cow according to its production, cull poor producers, select good breeding-herd replacements, and reduce costs of milk production.

These practices raise milk yields and lead to increased profits, DHIA statistics reveal. For example, feed costs are about $2.30 per 100 pounds of milk produced in herds averaging only 7,000 pounds of milk per cow. In herds averaging more than 11,500 pounds, this cost drops to $1.75 or less. Feed costs represent about half the dairyman's cost of producing milk.

Record-keeping plans are available to all dairymen who wish to participate in record-keeping programs in Delaware. Interested herd owners can contact either the Extension Dairyman, University of Delaware, or county extension offices located at Newark, Dover and Georgetown.
