TWO LARGE INDUSTRIES COULD LOCATE HERE AND IN MILFORD

Harrington and Milford could have two large industrial projects, it was revealed Monday when a bill was introduced in the Senate.

The legislation (SB 152) would raise the maximum project guaranty from the Industrial Building Commission from $2 to $3 million. This would indicate the local and Milford projects might run within this bracket.

Ernest S. Wilson Jr., attorney for the commission, said Monday night that if passed, the bill would allow the commission to undertake two large projects, one in Harrington and one in Milford. He declined to elaborate on these projects at this time.

However, there have been a couple very good industrial projects for Harrington for some time. Furthermore, Milford has been pushing for industry, with Gerish Gassaway Associates working on the deal.

The measure, with bipartisan sponsorship, was introduced by Sen. Allen J. Cook, D-Kent. President Pro Tem Curtis W. Steen, D-Dagsboro, and Minority Leader Reynolds duPont, R-Greenville. It was reported out of committee later in the afternoon. The measure, drawn by the commission, also includes non-agricultural areas of cyclical unemployment in the act and makes other changes which the commission feels will save it money and generally improve the recent law creating the commission.

The commission is authorized to pledge the credit of the state for projects it approves. The Leeds Travelwear plant in Clayton was built with commission support.

One feature of the bill changes the language of the state's guarantee. Wilson said the commission hopes the change would allow it to sell bonds at about the same rate the state does for general obligation bonds.

Last summer the commission got a rate of 3.5 per cent. Wilson said it is hoped to get a rate of 2.9 or even 2.7 per cent if the bill passed.

The result, Wilson said, would be "a more sophisticated bond issue." He said that although several specific projects would be allowed under the changes, the commission has had the changes in mind for about six months. They come from what was learned in the Leeds venture, he said.

The bill points out that there are non-agricultural areas in the state that experience cyclical unemployment and that this threatens the state's economic stability.

Modernization of a particular facility may help eliminate this problem, the bill states.

It also allows a cash deposit in lieu of a bond purchase by a lessee or other person assisted by the commission and authorizes the commission to participate in non-building capital goods financing.

All groups are to meet on the farm adjacent to the highway by 9:30 o'clock and move fifteen minutes later.

Following the services, a parade will begin to form at the Shopping Center, the time will be approximately 10:30 a.m. It will move up Clark Street to Delaware Avenue, to Center Street, west to Weiner Avenue, south to Commerce Street and on south to Milby Street where it will turn around the block and on down Hanley Street to the Harrington Lumber Yard where it will turn west into Commerce Street and retrace that street down to the Post Office and be dismissed by the Fire Hall.

All units who wish to participate in the parade are encouraged to do so and can arrange for placement by calling the high school office, otherwise they are to report at the Shopping Center by 10:30 a.m. Memorial Day.

School Bus Driver Hits Pupil

A woman bus driver, in a hearing before Sussex County Family Court Monday, admitted she hit a mentally retarded student passenger with a stick.

Judge Robert D. Thompson Jr. reserved decision in the case pending research of a law to determine if a crime has been committed.

The case involves Mrs. Josephine Draper, of Harrington, charged with assault and battery on a 12-year-old boy.

The legal issue in the case is the right of an employee of the public school system to act "in loco parentis," or in place of the parent when punishment is dealt out.

This is the second case on this point to be brought to the Sussex Family Court this month.

Jackson R. Dunlap Jr., Deputy attorney general for Sussex County, dropped similar charges against George Schollenberger, Laurel football coach, on May 2. Dunlap said at the time a teacher has the legal right to strike pupils when using "reasonable force for discipline."

His assertion was based, he said on common law, which includes the "in loco parentis" tradition.

There is no specific statute covering this point in the Delaware code.

In the Draper case, Judge Thompson said he will seek to establish whether "in loco parentis" applies to school employees other than teachers.

In Monday's trial, information filed by the attorney general's office charged that Mrs. Draper struck the child with a stick on her bus Feb. 19.

Mrs. Draper admitted hitting the boy on two occasions, but said she did so only after his mother

FALL RACE MEET CHANGES START

The fall meet of the Kent & Sussex Raceway will open Mon., Sept. 9, instead of a week earlier.

The change in dates was allowed to permit Brandywine Raceway to race an additional week, in its fall meet, to compensate for the loss of last week's racing because of a severe viral epidemic among its horses. Thus, Brandywine will close its fall meet Sept. 7 instead of a week earlier.

The action was taken by the Delaware Harness Racing Commission, which announced that it's move was "designed to safeguard the State's revenue based upon the original grant of 60 days." The William Penn Racing Association, of Philadelphia, a new track, also postponed the start of its first meet, to aid Brandywine.

School Board Eyes Tax Delinquents

At the regular May meeting of the Board of Education of Harrington Special School District held Thursday evening, May 16, the Board discussed the delinquent tax list as presented to it by the Receiver of Taxes of Kent County. Inasmuch as the Levy Court is attempting to aid in the collection of these taxes by notifying employers of the tax deficiency, the Board agreed to go over the list and list the name of the employers as are known. The Board also agreed to submit names of proposed candidates for the part time employment as a tax collector for the district working out of the office of the county tax collector.

The Board decided to publish a four-page newsletter on five occasions during the 1963-64 school year. This publication would replace the annual report provided by the Board and would, in the various issues, discuss the school developments and objectives. The letter would be mailed to each citizen of the district.

The bid of Harrington Motor Company for furnishing a 1963 3/4 ton pickup truck was accepted. Other bids were received from I. G. Burton of Milford and Webb's Ford & Mercury, also of Milford.

A head-on automobile collision near here Monday killed a Dover airman and his wife and injured three other persons.

The accident occurred two miles south of Killens Pond.

The victims were Airman 2.C. Leonard C. Butler, 35, and his wife Patricia, 22, of Genesee, Pa. They were killed when their car struck one operated by Dennard Griffith, 22, of Felton, on Route 384.

Griffith was reported in fair condition at Milford Memorial Hospital.

Also injured were Airman 2.C. Norman E. Porter, Dover Air Force Base, and Delbert Glandon, 25, of Felton.

State police said that dust raised by wind off a roadside field could have been a factor in the collision.

The accident took place as Griffith was driving Porter to the Milford Hospital for treatment of a foot he had injured in a boating accident at Killen's Pond.

Porter was listed in "not critical" condition at the Dover Air Base Hospital where he was taken after an ambulance took him to the Milford Hospital.

Glandon, also a passenger in the Griffith car, was listed in fair condition at the Milford Hospital, but has since been transferred to a Wilmington Hospital.

Butler and Porter are members of the Dover Base's 1607th Organizational Squadron, a base official said. The Butlers lived in Harrington.

The accident took place at about 3:05 p.m. and the couple was pronounced dead at Milford Memorial Hospital at 5:37 by Dr. O. A. James. State police said both suffered multiple fractures.

Police said the Butler car was traveling north on the road and Griffith was driving south when they collided.

Encouraging the why

Your telephone company advances education with its science programs from elementary schools through college levels

Youngsters are naturally curious. They wonder. Knowing the what is not enough for them—they want to know the why. This instinct to question is one of the most precious assets any nation has. But it must be cultivated. Here at the telephone company we recognize our obligation to share with educators materials that will fan young people's interest in science and communications. To elementary and secondary schools, to colleges and graduate schools, we offer films, displays and exhibits, lecture-demonstrations, books, kits, recordings. The subject range is broad: Telstar, transistors, the command guidance systems for satellites and man-in-space programs, microwave transmission, crystal structure, ferromagnetics and many others. In addition, permanent exhibits established by the telephone company at the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia and the Buhl Planetarium in Pittsburgh are visited by hundreds of thousands of interested students each year, often as part of the regular school curriculum. It is estimated that in 20 years the United States will require twice as many scientists and engineers as will be available if current trends continue. The need is real and pressing. The telephone company seeks to stimulate an interest in science, capitalize on young people's natural hunger to know, and so encourage them to pursue scientific careers. America will be the stronger for it.

Caution in Food Handling Necessary
Use extra care in handling food during hot weather, because the growth of organisms which cause food spoilage is speeded up by the warmer air temperatures, says Katie Thomas, Kent County extension agent in home economics.
Don't risk about with food poisoning, she cautions. Personal cleanliness and a clean kitchen, always important, are even more vital in hot weather, she says.
Prompt and continuous refrigeration is an effective way of preventing the growth of food spoilage organisms. Freshly prepared foods and leftovers should be refrigerated immediately. Cooked foods should not be left at room temperature to "cool" before they are placed in the refrigerator, as this time delay encourages spoilage. Even hot dishes, which are to be chilled, should be refrigerated immediately after cooking. The few extra minutes this may cause the refrigerator to run is a small price to pay for a safe food.

Teenage Work Force Expected to Reach 18,000 by '65

The youth employment problem will be especially acute in some states in the next few years, according to a manpower report released by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz. The report, entitled "Manpower Research Bulletin No. 3 - Young Workers: Their Special Training Needs," produced by the U. S. Labor Department's Office of Manpower, Automation and Training, was released in conjunction with Secretary Wirtz's testimony before the Senate Sub-Committee on Education in support of the National Education Improvement Act.
The report stated that the number of young persons in the 14-19 year category expected to be working at or seeking full or part-time jobs will probably rise from 6.2 million in 1960 to 7.7 million in 1965 and 8.4 million by 1970.
In the state of Delaware, about 5,000 teenagers are expected to enter the labor force between 1960 and 1965. This represents a 38.5 percent increase from 1960 to 1965 bringing the anticipated total number of teenagers seeking employment in the State of Delaware to 18,000.

The extent of the problem of assimilating the growing labor force heavily weighted with young persons is further indicated by the proportion of each state's labor force growth which is expected to consist of non-college bound youth. In the State of Delaware, 11 per cent or less of the total labor force growth between 1960 and 1965 is expected to consist of non-college bound teenagers, but it is significant that there will be a 38.5 per cent increase in the total Delaware teenage work force. This Delaware increase in the teenage work force between 1960 and 1965 is higher than the national average of 23.5 per cent.
Secretary Wirtz said that this report "sends up a warning signal that says to all Americans that the post-war population explosion . . . is now making itself felt on the size and makeup of the labor force." He stated that a random sampling of the facts analyzed in the report reveals the magnitude of the problem and called special attention to the problems faced by non-white youth, the children of migratory farm workers, the physically handicapped, and all young people who live in the nation's rural and urban slum areas. He further stated that we must have an omnibus educational and training approach which will encompass all our young citizens and noted, particularly, the need to improve and expand vocational education.

H.H.S. to Again Have Summer Music Classes

The Harrington Special School District will again sponsor a summer music school of instruction in band instruments to be given in the music room of the high school. Albert Adams, superintendent, said that while the sessions may begin in the old music room in the basement of the brick building, they will in all probability be moved to the new music suite as soon as it is made available.

Classes will include instruction for beginners, intermediates, and advanced students in all band instruments and are to begin Monday, June 17, concluding on Friday, July 26, with a gala concert on the lot by the Nazarene church on the corner of Dorman and Mechanic Streets.

So far almost a hundred boys and girls have enrolled, and it is anticipated that this summer's classes will include more students than in previous years.

Instruction is free to all boys and girls after the payment of a small enrollment fee, but each must provide his own instrument, although assistance is offered by the school to secure one.

Instruction is on a private and class basis and takes place in the most part during the mornings, with the afternoons devoted to band rehearsals of the Grade School and Junior Bands, the Senior Band rehearsing Thursday evening.

The purpose of these music classes has been to provide a musical activity between the close of school in the spring and the opening of classes in the fall as well as to provide a summertime activity for the boys and girls of our community.

In addition to the concert in July, other activities are the Memorial Day parade as well as a parade by the Senior Band at the Chicken Festival in Salisbury on June 15 and participation at the Firemen's State Convention in September.

The Grade School and Junior Bands are planning a trip to Philadelphia the last week of June to visit that city's new Aquarama, the zoo, and if time permits, the river front to inspect the boats in dock there.

Braves.
It is hoped that all boys and girls who are interested in participating in the music program this summer will contact the music department just as soon as possible. The beginners' classes already have the highest enrollment in recent years.
Melvin L. Brobst of the high school music faculty is in charge of the program.

Speaking of Insects with Dale Bray

We humans have done a fine job of making a lot of our problems. A good example of this is the way we have allowed foreign insects to slip ashore and spread across the country.

One of the most important of these insect invaders is the European corn borer. This pest landed in the Boston area about 1903. Now, less than 60 years later, it has spread to nearly all the corn growing areas of the country. If the corn borer limited its damage to corn alone, things would be bad enough, but it has an appetite for over 200 kinds of plants. It is a major pest of peppers. I have seen Delaware fields where every pepper fruit was destroyed by the corn borer. In one field all of the head lettuce was riddled. A heavy infestation in Irish potatoes can destroy the vines as though a fire had swept across the field. They damage countless ornamental plants and even get into apples and blueberries in some years. In corn alone, it causes a loss of millions of dollars per year ($349 million in 1949).

This insect passes through the winter as a full grown caterpillar, usually in corn stubble. With the first warm days of spring these begin changing to a dark brown resting stage, and then in early May, the moths emerge, fly about, and lay eggs on many kinds of plants, but strange as it seems—not on corn. There is a substance in young corn which is poisonous to the borer. So mother corn borer seeks potatoes, flowers, and other plants for egg laying. These eggs produce caterpillars which feed by boring in the plants for some time. They then change to the resting stage and later emerge as moths to begin laying again about seven weeks after the first eggs are laid. By this time, the corn has lost its poison and is no longer off-limits to the corn borer.

Infested corn usually has broken tassels which can be seen several yards away, even from a slowly moving automobile. Examine such corn closely and you will find sawdust-like grass protruding from small holes in the plant. By cutting the plant open at such a spot, you can find the flesh-colored borer.

In field corn there are only two ways to control the corn borer. One is to plow-down the stubble of last year's corn in mid-spring after the borers have changed to the resting stages or pupae. The other way is to plant only varieties of corn that are resistant to corn borer attack. Use of insecticides on field corn is not practical. At the University of Delaware, we have brought in certain parasites of the borer, and have had some success with one of these so far. Unfortunately, this particular parasite seems to be disappearing from Delaware.

Sweet corn, peppers, potatoes, and ornamental plants can be protected by sprays of DDT or Sevin. Although DDT is a little more effective than Sevin, it can't be sprayed on plants that are to be fed to dairy cattle.

The European corn borer is not all bad. When I was a boy, we used large numbers of them as fish bait in the winter time. They were so much in demand for bait that we sometimes sold them for as much as one dollar per dozen.

Veterans News

The state of Delaware has 414 Korean conflict veterans who have not yet exchanged their "RS" GI Insurance Policies for "W" type protection. By exchanging their policies before September 13, 1963, they will become eligible for part of an $18 million special insurance dividend fund.

Latest figures show 159,279 Korean veterans, holding $1,471,346,000 worth of "RS" type insurance, have not converted.

Leon Fields, manager of the Wilmington VA Regional Office, pointed out that the special dividend offer will expire September 13. The dividend offer applies only to Korea Conflict veterans whose insurance policy number is preceded by the letters "RS". No other GI policyholders are eligible.

The dividends, on a nationwide basis, will run about $100 each.
Korea veterans in Delaware have $3,826,000 in "RS" insurance in force.

To get the dividend, the veterans must exchange his "RS" term policy for "W" term policy at about one-third the cost he is now paying. Although this policy cannot be renewed after age 50, protection can be continued by converting to a low-cost permanent plan insurance policy at any time while the term is in force.

The veteran may also convert his "RS" policy to a "W" permanent plan insurance policy at this time if he wishes, Mr. Fields said.

TAKE CARE ON MEMORIAL DAY

Remember this: Memorial Day—one week from today—is a time for commemorating the honored dead, and not a time for adding to the list of the dead.

That grim holiday reminder was issued yesterday by J. James Ashton, manager of the Delaware Safety Council, who said holiday weekends have frequently been deadly affairs in most parts of the nation, but Delaware has frequently managed to get through them without a single fatal accident.

"Let's do it again," he said. "Prudence in driving and in all other holiday behavior is all that's required," he urged.

He suggested four common sense rules of driving behavior that safety officials consider prudent:

- 1. Hold your speed to the posted speed limits, even if the cars are passing you.
2. Be ready to stop in time if the need arises.
3. Drive with patience, courtesy and common sense, putting your safe arrival first in importance and the time of arrival at your destination low in importance.
4. Refrain from driving if you have been drinking or if you are sleepy.

"The size of the national death toll on the highways on the Memorial Day weekend will depend to a large extent on how well drivers follow those prudent policies," he said.

"FOOD FOR FREEDOM" PROGRAM

A PLAN WHEREBY THE MILITARY WOULD USE OUR FARMS AS THEY USE OUR FACTORIES TO WIN THE COLD WAR.

Have the military initiate a giant "Food for Freedom" Program utilizing present farm surpluses and starting with 1963 supplement the Program with approximately two billion dollars of military or foreign aid funds to purchase additional farm products over and above those originally purchased by the Department of Agriculture. This would permit the acquisition by the military of special foods to meet the needs of various religious or ethnic groups. It would also permit the military to order the production of products other than feed grains to supply various needs. The transfer of corn acreage to soybean production would materially help to remedy the world's food shortage as millions of the world's hungry to whom corn is unknown have known soybeans as a food since the dawn of history.

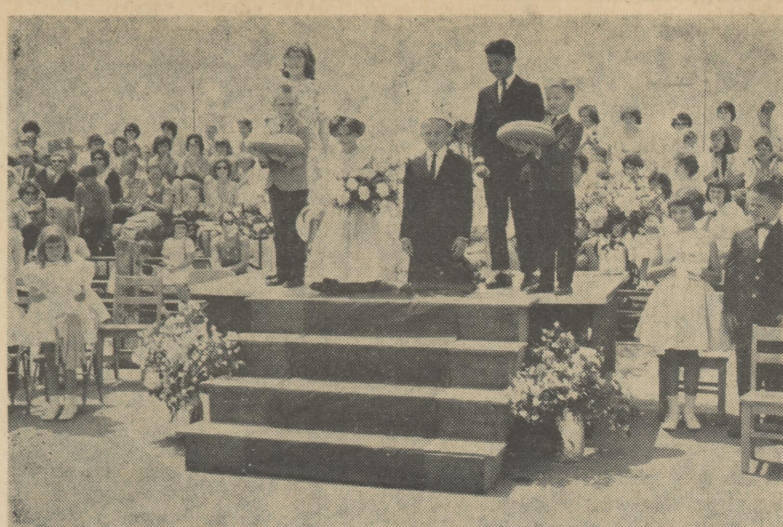

Suggestions have been made by leading Americans that this country's surplus food should be made available to the world's hungry through the United Nations. I would suggest instead that we merely notify the United Nations of the total tonnage of various foods we are willing to make available, but let the United States act only as an allocating agency, setting the amount to be delivered to each respective country.

I re-emphasize, DO NOT let the United Nations distribute our products. Have every pound of food carried broad by American ships, delivered by American Military Trucks, and distributed to the needy under the supervision of men clothed in the Military Uniform of the United States. In other words, have American armed forces approaching the foreign needy with a biscuit as well as a bullet, and thus build the image of a benefactor as well as a protector.

I would also suggest that in every package of prepared food supplied by this country, that we enclose a miniature plastic replica of the Statue of Liberty or an American Flag or a miniature Uncle Sam. Children would keep these and they would serve as a continuing underfoot reminder of American help. It is high time that America starts getting credit for her generosity. The psychological effect of a program of this type would be enormous.

If every American base overseas is a food distributing center, I cannot imagine any nation demanding that we remove that base as long as it is used to distribute food to needy of that country. In countries where there are no bases, establish military missions (with uniforms but without guns) to handle the distribution of all foods supplied by the United States. Men in uniforms of the United States distributing food to the needy countries will go a long way toward removing the stigma of "Militarists" and "Imperialists" so successfully applied to our Armed Forces by the Russians. That term just doesn't apply to a man giving you food for your needy family.

No doubt the charge will be made that we are destroying the markets of our allies, namely, Canada, Argentina, Australia and New Zealand. To meet this charge, I would suggest the following: Insist that any country participating in the United Nations allocating program must first purchase annually one-fifth of the total tonnage purchased during the past five years before they became eligible for additional assistance. This could be modified if it could be proven that economic changes within a country made this procedure impossible. This, however, will be the problem of the United Nations, but my personal thought is that we should insist on the adoption of this Grandfather Clause in order to protect our allies. It should be our intention to assist the needy - not the greedy.

In conclusion, the military of this country does things in a big way. We appropriate forty-five (45) to forty-eight (48) billion dollars for defense, and food for a freedom program should definitely become a part of our military operation. Building good will among the people of the world is as important as manufacturing guns with which to subjugate them. Thus taking one to two billion dollars of this military or foreign aid appropriation and going to the American farmers asking them to produce instead of curtailing production, then distribute the results of their efforts to the world's needy would build unlimited good will throughout the world and restore confidence to the American farmers. There are 2,800,000,000 people in the world and 1,800,000,000 of them go to sleep each night having consumed less than 2,000 calories of food. Communism thrives on empty stomachs and 1,800,000,000 of them is a fertile field in which to propagate.

Board of Ed. To Sponsor Church Music Institute

The Board of Education of the Peninsula Conference of the Methodist Church will sponsor a Church Music Institute on Sat., June 1, at Asbury Methodist Church, Salisbury. The program will begin with registration at 9 a.m. and conclude at 4 p.m. Choir directors, organists, choir members, ministers, directors of Christian education, and other interested persons from the churches in the Peninsula Conference are expected to attend.

The resource leader for the institute will be Dr. Austin C. Lovelace, minister of music at Christ Church Methodist, New York City. Dr. Lovelace, a native of North Carolina, received his training from High Point College, High Point, N. C. (A.B.) and Union Theological Seminary School of Sacred Music, New York. (Master of Sacred Music, and Doctor of Sacred Music). Before assuming his position in New York, he was minister of music at First Methodist Church in Evanston, Ill., and associate professor of church music at Garrett Theological Seminary in Evanston. He has been a lecturer, recitalist, and choral director in church music workshops from coast to coast. He is also a composer of wide acclaim, with over 150 works in print. He is a past president of the National Fellowship of Methodist Musicians, and presently chairman of the Tunes Sub-committee for the proposed revision of "The Methodist Hymnal."

The program for the day will include a demonstration of organ techniques on the new Casavant organ at Asbury Church, a session of study devoted to new anthems and choral techniques, and a symposium on the proposed revision of the Hymnal. The Rev. Charles D. Davis, minister of Ebenezer Methodist Church, R. D. 3, Newark, is director of the institute, and further information may be obtained from him.

SCHOOL BUS DRIVER

The bus driver said she used the stick only after the youth refused to obey her orders, and pulled away from her when she tried to move him from blocking the exit.

Both beatings are alleged to have occurred during the trip home from a special class for trapezoids conducted by the State Department of Public Instruction at the Harrington High School.

His mother told the court the boy had two bruises below the kneecap of each leg "about the size of a nickel". She said students riding the same bus told her Mrs. Draper inflicted the bruises with a stick she carried on the dashboard.

Under questioning by Jackson W. Raysor, Georgetown defense attorney, Mrs. Draper denied hitting the boy on the legs. She said she hit him "lightly" with the stick—about two feet long, by one-half inch thick by two inches wide—on the left thigh, and that "he just laughed at me after I cracked him." The mother said she told the bus driver to make her son mind, but that she did not mean for the boy to be beaten.

Raysor, argued that the shin bruises were the result of the boy turning his school desk over on himself that same week.

Judge Thompson reserved decision after a brief conference with Raysor and Sidney Schwach, assistant deputy attorney general for Sussex County. Thompson said he will turn to rulings in other states for guidance because there is no applicable case in Delaware law.

State Hospital Open House Sunday

Charles K. Bush, M. D., Superintendent of Delaware State Hospital, has announced that Sunday, May 26th, 1963, has been selected as the date for the annual Open House. The time is from 2 until 4:30 p. m.

Dr. Bush urges the public to join the staff and volunteers on that day in order to tour the facilities available to patients. In addition, there will be a panel discussion led by psychiatrists of the hospital, who will be available to answer questions concerning the method, treatment, and drugs being used in the present-day care of the mentally ill. The tour will include activity centers, treatment and ward areas, plus a Fair of patients' art work. Various displays will also be shown depicting therapies for in-hospital patients. Co-chairmen for the day's are Mrs. Rachel Tucker, R. N. and Dr. C. H. Un, both Delaware State staff members.

Free bus service will be provided by the Mental Health Association of Delaware. Buses will be departing from Fourth and Market Streets in Wilmington at 1:30 p. m. and will return to Wilmington at 4:30 p. m.

In view of the current publicity surrounding mental health facilities in the State, Dr. Bush is certain the public will be interested in participating in this event.

Soil Bank Payments Canceled

More than $1,000,000 worth of improper soil bank payments have been canceled by the department of Agriculture as a result of an investigation launched nearly two years ago by U. S. Senator John J. Williams (R-Del.)

The contracts involved two large tracts of land in Hidalgo County, Texas, which had been split up into 36 individual farm units. Under soil bank regulations, there is an annual payment limit of $5,000 for each producer.

Senator Williams called the matter to the attention of Comptroller General Joseph Campbell in July, 1961, and an investigation was immediately started by the General Accounting Office and the Department of Agriculture.

According to Campbell, the Department of Agriculture canceled the contracts as a result of the investigation on the basis that they were a part of a scheme to exceed the $5,000 limit.

In a letter to Senator Williams, Campbell said:

"The cancellations have resulted in the elimination of conservation reserve payments totaling about $1,068,000 that otherwise would have been made for 1961 and subsequent years. In addition, the Department of Agriculture has referred these cases to the Department of Justice for any legal action considered appropriate."

Work Space Increase Laundry Efficiency

Don't sacrifice convenience for room space when planning a laundry, says Coral K. Morris, home management specialist at the University of Delaware. "Do the steps you take on laundry day send you through the house to mend clothes before washing, to find the spot remover, to sort clean clothes, or to iron?" she asks.

Take a minute to think through your wash day — the supplies you use and the amount of room you need for equipment, supplies and working space. A laundry center gives maximum convenience when these are all in one area and are arranged in the order of the natural flow of work, Miss Morris says.

She stresses the importance of adequate storage and work space, adequate plumbing and lighting, sufficient wiring and outlets, proper grounding and venting of appliances, and a plentiful supply of hot water.

An efficient home manager will always have her tools where she needs them, when she needs them. A mending kit or sewing machine near the laundry center is a time-saver. Counter tops near the dryer make it easy to fold clothes before they wrinkle badly. And shelves or drawers are convenient for sorting each family member's clothes into piles, ready to be put away.

By arranging your laundry tasks and equipment so that you save steps, the job can be finished quicker and with less effort, Miss Morris points out.

Aids For Women Who Sew

Choosing the most satisfactory fabric for an item she is planning to sew can be confusing to a woman confronted with the wide variety of fabric bolts on the yard goods counters. But Miss Janet Reed, extension textiles and clothing specialist at the University of Delaware, says there are a number of qualities to look for in fabric which give clues to its behavior when made up into garments or other articles. With the many new man-made fabrics and finishes added to the already substantial list of natural fiber fabrics, it is important to choose the right fabric to do the best job, Miss Reed says.

A new publication written by Miss Reed explains the qualities to look for in fabrics, the problems involved if fabrics seem to be crooked, some of the fabric finishes which are available, a method for straightening certain fabrics, and many other items important in selecting the fabric to be done.

The publication, entitled "Buying Fabrics," is available free of charge from the Department of Rural Communications, University of Delaware, Newark.

FENCE TALK

With George Vapaa

A new broiler house design was unveiled at our University Substation at Georgetown last week. The key feature is "controlled atmosphere" on the growing birds.

Few changes have been made in house design since the broiler business started about 35 years ago. Most of the improvements came in feeding, improved breeding, better control of diseases and pests, and automated practices.

Ernest Walpole, our staff engineer, conceived a house which will hold the temperature between the optimum 60 degrees to 80 degrees F. and keep the humidity within a predetermined range using the stove heat and ventilation fans. New insulation materials will make the job easier.

The new house has no windows. The birds will get only enough artificial lighting to see their feed and water. This will also reduce feather picking and other nervous symptoms.

A new auger type feeder is also being used to eliminate crowding at feeding time.

Do these ideas seem fantastic? The hope is that we can continue to lead the industry in lowering the cost of production. And poultry leaders seem to recognize their worth. Witness the 30% increase in new poultry housing on the shore going on right now.

The care and feeding of farm reporters is a favorite project of this county agent. It's always a pleasure to have a reporter along to look at our current farm projects and programs. Our dry weather-short feed situation is a good example.

The nice thing about it is that a reporter gives the story a better twist. Our present dry spell has been rough for dairymen and this is just the way the reporter picked it up from the first two farms visited in a survey of Kent County. They define the problem and this of course is the news.

This situation is critical, but there are many things which can be done to temper it. Sow Sudan. Sow small grains for hay or silage. Plant extra corn for silage.

Plant German millet and Bethel soybeans for hay—you will harvest it in about six weeks. Plant 20 pounds of millet and 1 1/2 bushels of soybeans right away and the hay will be ready for harvest early in July. German millet, sometimes called Golden or Foxtail millet can be grown with Ogden or Bethel soybeans. It is frequently grown with the Black Wilson variety but seed supplies of this variety are limited and branching varieties such as the ones suggested are equally as good.

Should you be interested in a second crop, this same mixture if replanted in July will be ready for harvest in September. A total yield of four tons per acre is not uncommon. To insure good growth use 500 pounds of 10-10-10 fertilizer per acre.

All together we have some 12 or 14 suggestions in our dry weather feed recommendations. Call 736-1448 for a copy.

Farmers are looking favorably towards being host to paying guests. Your county agent has interviewed several farmers who are blessed with roomy homes and a wish to earn more income from vacation visitors.

"Doc" Webster, farm director of Channel 6 TV in Philadelphia, has been drumming up the interest of city people for a farm vacation. One of his viewers wants to try it according to a letter just received.

This venture is like plowing new ground. Already we are thinking of a local group to offer these services on the basis of "certified, grade A, standards." We can borrow some ideas from motel operators and resort areas, and add touches of local culture, and mix in some human understanding.

I heard Bob Powers, the Chester County Pennsylvania agent, surmise that people farm because they enjoy it. This rubs off a bit on visitors too, and is an experience to cherish.

Nuclear war may never come—at least we hope not. But then again it might. And those prepared can survive.

The first step, in a successful survival plan, should be to construct a satisfactory shelter for the family. Also, proper measures should be taken to guard your livestock and crops.

Many areas already exist around a farm for limited fallout protection. With improvement of protection ability, these can be adapted.

The best shelter is one built underground with brick or cinder-block walls at least eight inches thick. Before committing himself to any specifications, a farm operator should carefully check whether what he has in mind would do the job. Information is available at our county extension office on the second floor of the Dover postoffice.

A second step in the survival plan would be to stock the shelter with adequate food, water and medical supplies—enough to last at least two weeks. Help for planning supplies is also available from the county extension office.

Involve the whole family — each have a responsibility in making a plan. The entire family would each have a stake in survival, should the shelter be needed.

It's time to spray crops for pest control. Will you be the one who goes to the field and finds that the sprayer does not work correctly?

Inspect your entire sprayer before using it. You may find nozzle screens clogged with wettable powders, because you didn't clean it before storing last fall or perhaps rollers need replacing in the pump.

A sprayer should be calibrated to determine how much liquid is being applied per acre. This insures proper rates of pesticide and herbicide applications. Calibration may reveal that the nozzle tips are eroded to the point where they must be replaced. Brass tips erode so that the discharge (at normal pressure) will increase up to six per cent to three hours use and up to twelve per cent after five hours use, with the abrasive wettable powders.

Also, check the inside of the tank. Stainless steel and fiberglass do not deteriorate rapidly. However, a 55-gallon drum is a more common container for low-volume spraying. The plain steel corrodes easily, and the inside may become flaked. These rust flakes are ideal for clogging screens and deteriorating a pump. Change the barrel if rusting is too bad.

Nitrate poisoning is a danger to all livestock but poses a particular problem where cattle are grazing plants recently fertilized with high levels of nitrates. The problem becomes especially acute if the growth of the plants has been stunted by low moisture levels following the fertilization. Signs of poisoning are a bluish skin color, a staggering gait, rapid pulse, evidence of abdominal pain, bloat, excessive salivation and labored breathing. Animals believed to be suffering from nitrate poisoning should be removed from the suspected pasture and a veterinarian called.

Zwaanendael Museum Notes

The Zwaanendael Museum will be open to receive visitors during the regular holiday hours, 12:30 to 5:30 p.m., on Memorial Day, May 30.

A model Indian Village, made by Meril-Lee Dunn, Jr., of Laurel, will continue to be featured until the middle of June, especially for the many school, Brownie and Scout groups making their annual tours of the museum before the end of the school year. This model has been acclaimed by members of the Sussex Society of Archaeology and History as an exact representation of the villages inhabited by the Nanticoke Indians who were living in southern Delaware during the early 17th century.

Groups which have visited the museum during the past week include Mrs. Glenwood Harrington's fourth grade class of Lewes School, fourth grade classes from the Felton School and the Frederic Douglass School, Brownie and Scout groups from Frankford and Dagsboro and a group of 60 ladies, members of the Sussex County Home Demonstration Clubs. Generally these groups advise the museum staff of their planned visits. This is to prevent a conflict of their arrival time with other such tour groups.

The regular visiting hours are Tuesday through Saturdays, 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Sundays and holidays, 12:30 to 5:30 p.m., closed on Mondays.

Delaware Food Market Report

A few cuts of beef and lamb have increased in prices at the retail level. This is a result of a strike among a few of the meat cutters. Supplies, however, show no serious curtailment. In fact, red meat production is expected to continue to increase during May, June, and July. Most of the increase will be in fed beef, which means more top quality beef on local markets. The supplies are anticipated to be considerably above last year. With beef as plentiful as it is and prices reasonable, you might want to try the most tender beef cut of all, tenderloin. This cut is a boneless tapering muscle lying inside the ribs. Part of the tenderloin is found in porterhouse, T-bone, and sirloin steaks. Usually the more tenderloin in a steak, the more it costs per pound.

Steaks are at their best when cooked outside, especially at this time of year. When cooking outside, you might like to broil on aluminum foil if your grill or grate is hard to keep clean. The foil will protect the meat from ashes or rust and keep it from scorching. Take a double thickness of foil about the size of the grill and punch plenty of holes in it. Turn the foil over or so the punched-out edges stick upward. Then lay the steaks on the perforated foil and broil them until brown and done as much as desired.

May and June are the months of heaviest supplies and lowest prices for fresh fish, as most fisheries operate at its capacity. You can look forward to good supplies of bluefish, halibut, whiting, porgies, salmon, fillets of cod, flounder, haddock, and ocean perch.

This is the time of year when processors feature specials on canned and frozen items to make room for the new pack. There are extra heavy stocks of canned beets, corn, peas, spinach, tomatoes, and such tomato products as catsup, chili sauce, and tomato juice. Be sure to check the items and watch for special sales. Among the frozen vegetables, French-fried potatoes, corn, and lima beans are plentiful.

Canned fruits are in abundance and are likely to be offered on special sale. These include sour red and dark sweet cherries and purple plums. If you like plums, now is the time to stock up on canned purple plums, as prospects indicate a short crop and canned packs to follow for the next few years.

Egg prices are approaching their low for the year. Large eggs are now retailing at the same price level as a year ago.

WANT-ADS

OLD Mr. BOSTON

ARE YOUR MARTINIS TOO STRONG?

If you like martinis extra dry but not extra-powerful . . . switch to 80 proof gin.
If you like full gin flavor but don't want too much alcohol . . . switch to 80 proof gin.
If you like martinis but think you're spending too much . . . switch to less expensive 80 proof Old Mr. Boston Dry Gin.

FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT MARTINIS:
Using Standard 36 Proof Dry Vermouth	Using 90 Proof Dry Gin	Using 80 Proof Dry Gin (or Vodka)
3 — to — 1 (Traditional)	76.5 Proof	69.0 Proof
5 — to — 1 (Dry)	81.0 Proof	72.6 Proof
8 — to — 1 (Extra Dry)	84.0 Proof	75.1 Proof

(The "standard" proof for today's bottled Martinis is a moderate 67.5 proof!)

80 PROOF . . . EXTRA DRY . . . BUT NOT EXTRA STRONG
80 proof gin makes Martinis drier . . . without making them stronger. Twenty years ago, the 3-to-1 Martini was standard. Today with the trend to drier Martinis, they're made 6, 7, even 8-to-1. And as you can see from the chart on this page, the modern Martini has climbed from a smooth 76.5 proof to an overwhelming 84 proof! Solution? Mix with 80 proof gin. Gives you the same full, dry gin flavor, but returns the Martini to its original, more moderate proof.

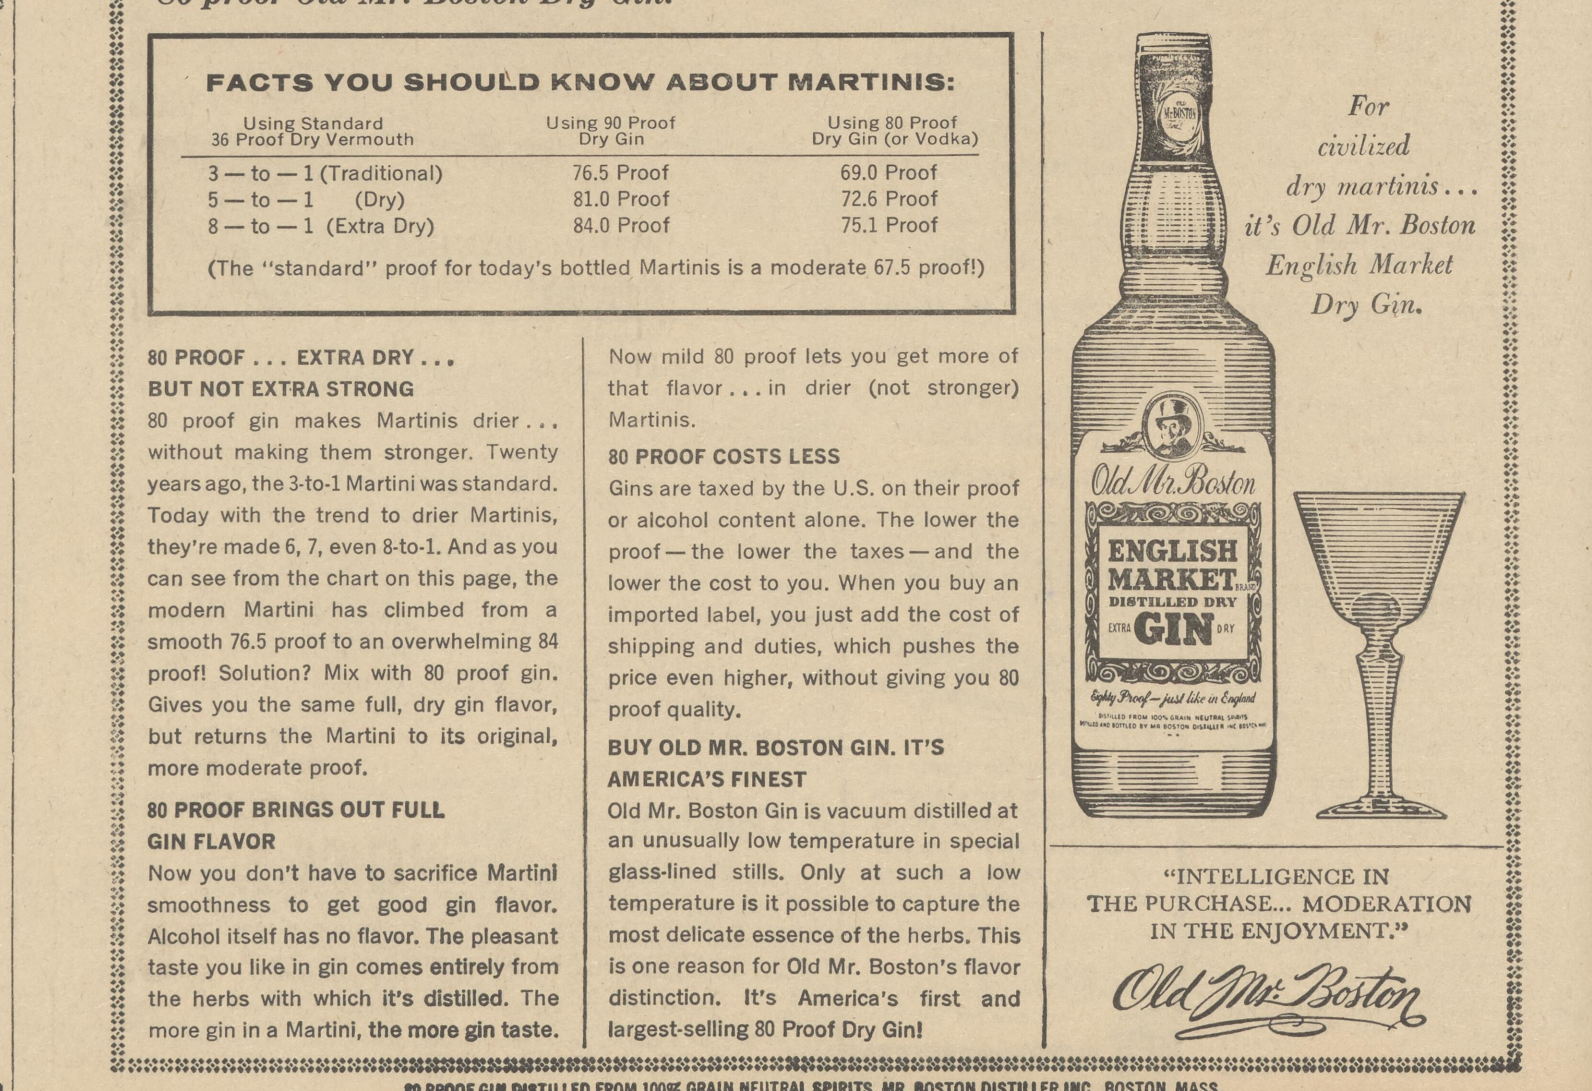

80 PROOF BRINGS OUT FULL GIN FLAVOR
Now you don't have to sacrifice Martini smoothness to get good gin flavor. Alcohol itself has no flavor. The pleasant taste you like in gin comes entirely from the herbs with which it's distilled. The more gin in a Martini, the more gin taste.

Now mild 80 proof lets you get more of that flavor . . . in drier (not stronger) Martinis.

80 PROOF COSTS LESS
Gins are taxed by the U.S. on their proof or alcohol content alone. The lower the proof—the lower the taxes—and the lower the cost to you. When you buy an imported label, you just add the cost of shipping and duties, which pushes the price even higher, without giving you 80 proof quality.

BUY OLD MR. BOSTON GIN. IT'S AMERICA'S FINEST
Old Mr. Boston Gin is vacuum distilled at an unusually low temperature in special glass-lined stills. Only at such a low temperature is it possible to capture the most delicate essence of the herbs. This is one reason for Old Mr. Boston's flavor distinction. It's America's first and largest-selling 80 Proof Dry Gin!

For civilized dry martinis . . . it's Old Mr. Boston English Market Dry Gin.

"DELAPEAKE" for BUILDING SUPPLIES
Our new name wins ACCLAIM

Less than six months ago a new name—"DelaPeake"—was created for our building supplies division. The name has now won both recognition and acclaim, as evidenced by an editorial published recently in the EVENING JOURNAL.

"DelaPeake is a beaut of a word" said the editorial — adding that it is "a refreshing new word" which "deserves recognition."

Of course we are very pleased with the editorial acceptance of the word "DelaPeake." But we are also especially gratified by the public's response to our policy of offering first-line, quality products at cash and carry savings.

Day by day more and more homeowners and builders from Delaware to Chesapeake — the renowned bays that inspired our new name — are becoming acquainted with DelaPeake Building Supplies. Not only are they showing appreciation of our new approach to marketing building materials, but they are enjoying much greater savings than ever before.

Homeowners and building contractors are equally welcome at DelaPeake. In fact, everyone is invited to stop in, browse around and compare quality and prices.

We're more than ready to agree that DelaPeake is a beaut of a word. And we're happy that more and more customers agree that DelaPeake is the place to buy and save on building supplies.

H.H.S. Nine In Second After Two More Wins

Jim Hawpe's Harrington High baseball team defeated Lord Baltimore on Thursday and Selbyville on Monday to move into a tie for second place in the Henlopen Conference with Felton and Millsboro. Both games were played here as the Lions improved their record to seven wins and two losses with one game left to play. This is the best Harrington team since the one a few years back that tied Greenwood and Bridgeville for the conference championship in the first year of the loop's existence. "Sports Odds And Ends"

Charles Blades, formerly of Burrowsville, became a member of the John M. Clayton Board of Education last week. Blades was a winning pitcher in Class B baseball but had to retire early because of a sore arm. He is a brother of Russell Blades, of Delaware Avenue here.

We have long ago given up the dangerous practice of picking up hitchhikers unless we knew them personally or had them outnumbered. However, we just had to stop recently to pick up a young man with a pair of track shoes draped over his traveling bag. He proved to be Wanza Poole, of Philadelphia. We heard of him when he ran a brilliant 47.8 quarter mile in a loss to Villanova's great Don Webster when the latter was at Kennett Square, Pa. High School and Poole was representing Overbrook High, Philadelphia. Wanza was on his way to compete in the Quantico Relay in Virginia.

J Harold McDonald, H.H.S. track and cross-country coach, recently received a phone call from the cross-country coach at Silver Spring, Md. It seems that news of Harrington High's record of yearly having a winning cross-country team had reached the ears of the caller, whose own team had won the Maryland Class A title in 1962. He stated that this team had lost no one by graduation and would like to meet with H.H.S. this fall. The local mentor explained that Harrington High School had only 80 boys in the last three grades and therefore had no business tangleing with a school with an enrollment many times that figure. The Maryland coach was very surprised that a school that small could produce a team good enough for him to hear about. He had thought H.H.S. was much larger. In Maryland the Lions would compete in Class C.

Coach McDonald also was notified that Delaware would crown two state champions this autumn, one in Class A for schools with more than 125 boys in the last three grades and a Class B championship for smaller schools with less than that figure. This is welcome news indeed. Under this system the Lions would have been Class B champions for the five years that H.H.S. has competed in the state meet at Rockford Park. The locals should be favorites this fall with eight lettermen returning out of nine monogram winners.

Lions Set 3 Marks In League Track Meet

Coach Harold McDonald's Harrington High track team broke three Henlopen Conference records and one H.H.S. standard in the league track meet held at John M. Clayton High Wednesday afternoon. The locals had been picked to finish third in the nine team meet but surprised by winding up in the runner-up spot with 49 points behind Rehoboth's winning total of 51 points. Millsboro and Bridgeville tied for third with 24 tallies, followed by John M. Clayton 16, Milton 8, Delaware 6, Selbyville 5 and Lord Baltimore 0. Felton and Greenwood were the only conference schools not represented. Frank Cain and George Bonniwell each cleared 10 ft. 6 in. in the pole vault to break the conference record of 10 feet, set by Rehoboth's Ernie Rhodes in 1961. Cain's H.H.S. mark had been 10

Lions Club To Sell All-Star Football Tickets

Tickets for the 1963 Delaware All-Star Football game are now on sale throughout the state by Delaware Lions, District Governor Joseph H. Brewer, of Wilmington, announced this week.

Lions ticket chairmen Lester Smith and Tom Peck, of Harrington; Maurice Power, Greenwood, met with Deputy District Governor Frank Beebe, Frederica, and representatives from 20 southern Delaware Lions Clubs to organize a ticket selling campaign for the annual game; played on behalf of Delaware's mentally retarded children. The meeting was held at the Rehoboth Beach cottage of R. R. M. Carpenter, Jr., president of the Delaware Foundation for Retarded Children, sponsors of the game.

This year's football game is set for Saturday, Aug. 24, in the University of Delaware Stadium. Lions have supported the annual event for the past seven years.

At the Rehoboth meeting Lions heard All-Star Game co-chairmen E. D. Trevorow and H. Lloyd Taylor describe the ways in which the $194,000 netted in previous contests has been used. Deputy District Governors Frank H. Beebe, Frederica, and Ralph Helm, Clarksville, have been designated to co-ordinate club sales in lower Delaware.

At 1 p.m. at the Moose Home, Bill Minner's Legion team will be opposed by Gary Harrington's Moose Club in the Little League opener. These boys are from nine to twelve years old. At the conclusion of this contest, the Senior Little League season starts with a tilt between Ted Layton's First National Bank team and the Shaw's entry coached by Tom Peck. Senior Leagueurs are ages 13 through 15. Jack Apt is umpire-in-chief. Mr. and Mrs. C. Tharp Harrington will serve as scorekeepers and statisticians for the Little League. Someone is needed to fill these posts for the older boy's loop.

The regular schedule starts Monday evening at 8:30 with a Little League game followed by a Senior League contest at the conclusion of the first. This format will be followed nightly. How about that? A double header every night. O. K. baseball fans let's get behind this worthwhile program. Upwards of 130 kids will have the advantage of supervised play, which will take them and some adults too out of unhealthy pursuits.

Jack Redden will pilot the Lions and Bill Morris will steer the Rotary Club in the Little League. The listings of all eight teams in both leagues are as follows:

Felton Splits, Falls to Second

The long awaited battle between the titans of the Henlopen Conference, Felton and John M. Clayton, took place last Thursday at Frankford and proved to be a humdinger as the host nine won 10-9 and gained sole possession of first place as Felton fell into a tie for second with Harrington and Millsboro.

The Green Devils held a 5-0 lead after their first turn at bat and still led 7-2 after two and a half innings. John M. Clayton erupted for five runs in the bottom of the third to deadlock the issue. Joe Kern's boys went ahead 8-7 in the fifth frame only to see the Bears regain control with two tallies in the bottom of the inning. Felton tied the score at 9-all in the seventh only to have Clayton score once in their half to win the wild and wooly game.

J.M.C. had 12 base knocks to 11 for Felton. Green, Harrington, Dill and Draper had two hits each for Felton. Bill Dill drove in three runs and Tom Williams knocked in two. Jim Blades and Mike Harrington of Felton and Clayton ace Don Long had hill duty as the batters had a field day.

Monday afternoon the Green Devils were involved in another one-run squeaker but this one ended happily as Felton came up with three runs in the final inning to edge Lord Baltimore 4-3.

Knox of the Eagles limited Felton's heavy hitters to one run over the first six innings but a triple by winning pitcher Mike Harrington, started a rally that pulled the fat out of the fire. Sam Ludlow drove in the winning run.

Greenwood Splits, Vacates Ceilar
Like Felton, Greenwood split a pair of one run decisions. The Foresters bowed to Selbyville 2-1 in eight innings and edged Milton 3-2. Greenwood's neighbors to the north, Harrington and Felton, aided the Foresters by each hanging a loss on Lord Baltimore. This turn of events brought Greenwood out of the cellar into a tie for ninth place with Milton.

Julian Woodall pitches all Greenwood games and did an exceptional job as he limited Selbyville and Milton to only six hits in fifteen innings. At Selbyville he was beaten 2-1 in an extra-inning game when the Rebels squeezed across a run in the eighth inning to break a 1-1 tie that had existed from the first inning. The little southpaw and Bob Wright accounted for the losers' two hits.

Monday afternoon at Greenwood, the host school picked up single runs in the second, third and sixth innings and halted a Milton seventh-inning rally at two runs. The Warriors managed only two hits off Woodall, while the Foresters had five safeties

Cleaning Hints by HALLETT'S

Q. The rug in our living room is beginning to curl up at the edges. How can I stop this?
A. First, check to see that the rug has about a two inch lap over the pad, then back roll the carpet in the opposite direction of the curl.
Q. There is an oil spot on my rug. I am afraid it will smear if I try to remove it. What would you suggest?
A. Most oil spots can be cleaned by applying a household cleaning fluid to the spot with an eye dropper, then wiping with a clean, white, unstarved cloth. If the oil spot is large, it is impractical to do it in your home. Send the rug to your professional rug cleaner.

Send for your FREE spotting guide and carpet care booklet.
