

House Passes Exemption For 'Giveaway' Prizes

The House Thurs., June 20, approved a bill to exempt from the state's lottery law chances to win prizes that do not require payment of money or something of value.

G. Tyler Coulson, Wilmington attorney, told the House that "the purpose of this bill is to revise the concept of consideration so that there must be money or something of pecuniary value put up by the participant before a plan can be called a lottery."

He explained that various advertising schemes for free cars and a host of other free commodities are participated in by people of Maryland and Pennsylvania, but cannot be used legally by residents of Delaware.

He said Delaware courts have consistently held that a lottery includes anything where the possible winner contributes anything at all, "even his physical presence."

"If you turn on a radio or clip a coupon, you are participating in a lottery if there is a chance to win something," Coulson explained. He also said that the Delaware Supreme Court upheld earlier Superior Court rulings (originating out of the movie bank nights of the 1930's) on the grounds of "precedent," but declared in the opinion that a legislative remedy should be sought.

He said that under the Delaware statutes a door prize is illegal.

Rep. Robert C. Davidson, D-Red Lion Hundred, asked if an advertisement in Wednesday's Morning News offering a carload of oranges free would be illegal under Delaware law.

"If anyone brought suit the offer would be invalid," Coulson replied. The statute specified is civil, not criminal, law.

Rep. Wallace P. Wooten, D-Frederica, asked the key question:

"Does present law protect the public in any way whatsoever against a wrong—financially or morally?"

Coulson answered "no" and the House proceeded to pass the bill with 24 yeas, 5 nays (Blendt, Clifton, Hocker, McGinnis and Pratt), 1 not voting (Davidson) and 5 absent (Fifer, Keenan, Quigley, Shockley and Shulties).

Processed Peas Show Increase In Delaware

Vegetable crop production has undergone many changes in Delaware during the past few years.

The production of peas, for instance, has changed from a minor crop of about 1,000 acres in 1949 to 8,400 acres this year. Increases of several hundred acres each year is the result of continued excellent, high-quality yields.

In 1962, an excessively dry spring severely reduced yields but this year production is expected to exceed the 3,000 pounds of shelled peas per acre of recent normal years.

Production of peas with lima beans is another factor bringing on the increase of pea production. Delaware, long a national leader in lima bean production, is losing some of this bean acreage. However, both peas and lima beans can be raised on the same land in one year and almost the same production and harvesting equipment are used. This means more efficient production since equipment costs are not duplicated.

Asparagus, in contrast with peas, has long been a stable vegetable crop in the state. This year acreage increased a few hundred acres but yields were down slightly due to the cool weather in May.

Strawberries were an excellent crop this year. Though yields were somewhat below normal, net returns from higher prices were greater. The Laurel Auction handled more strawberries (19,000 crates) this year than it has in 10 years.

Of other vegetable crops, white potatoes have maintained the same approximate acreage as a year ago with prospects of an excellent crop. Snap beans for processing have increased each year recently to the present 1963 acreage of 7,300 acres. Mechanical picking has decreased the labor costs for this crop.

Watermelon, cantaloupes and cucumbers are still important crops in the southwestern corner of Delaware with watermelon yields increasing and cucumber yields decreasing.

Oversupplies of processed tomatoes and peppers have caused a curtailment of these crops for 1963.

Redding Senior Elected To National Post

Lorraine Ellen Williams, 17-year-old senior at Louis L. Redding High School, has been elected national vice president of the National Association of New Homemakers of America.

Miss Williams' election was announced by Dr. Ruth M. Laws, state home economics adviser, vocational division, State Department of Public Instruction.

Miss Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshal Frank Williams, Newark, will also serve as president of the Delaware division of the New Homemakers of America during the next school year.

Results of the elections were announced this week, following balloting at the national convention just concluded at Bethune-Cookman College, Daytona Beach, Fla.

Miss Williams attended the national meeting along with Hazel Jarman, retiring NHA state president, W. C. Jason School, Georgetown; Octavia Ryder, state vice president, William Henry High School, Dover, and Mrs. Camille Jacobs, chapter adviser at the William Henry High School.

Miss Williams served last year as vice president of her school's chapter of NHA, and has been elected president of the year ahead. She also has served as a member of the French Club and the Student Council.

The new national officer hopes to attend college, possibly Delaware State, after her graduation from high school.

Senator Williams Favors Bible Reading

Senator John J. Williams (R-Del.) has called on Congress to begin work on a Constitutional amendment which would permit the reading of the Bible or the saying of non-sectarian prayers in the public schools.

The Delaware senator introduced a joint resolution to amend the Constitution to make clear that voluntary participation in such exercises is not in violation of the Constitution.

Offered in response to the recent Supreme Court decision knocking out opening exercises in public schools which require the Bible to be read, the Williams proposal would allow students to participate voluntarily in periods of Bible-reading and non-sectarian prayer.

Williams reminded the Senate that one of its own rules requires that each session of the Senate be opened with a prayer.

"No one has challenged the opening prayer in the Senate or the House of Representatives," he said, "and I see no reason why public school pupils should not be permitted to begin their day in a similar manner."

The Williams proposal does not dispute the Supreme Court ruling which forbids schools to require Bible-reading, but would make clear that the Constitution does not prevent students from voluntary Bible-reading or prayer.

The resolution must be approved by two-thirds vote in both the Senate and the House and ratified by three-fourths of the States within seven years before it would be effective.

A run-around track was built during the night at the scene of the nine-freight car derailment near Georgetown Monday.

Pennsylvania Railroad crews worked during the night to complete the half-mile long temporary track. With its completion, daily north and south train runs have been resumed.

The derailment occurred Monday morning three miles south of Georgetown, just north of Route 48 where two persons were killed in a wreck five years ago. No one was injured in Monday's accident.

Officials said a wreck train arrived Tuesday to aid in the clearing of the derailed cars. The track was replaced by Wednesday.

The amount of damage and cause of the wreck have not yet been determined, railroad officials say.

VFW to Convene At Rehoboth

Delaware Veterans of Foreign Wars and their ladies auxiliary voted to hold their 1964 annual convention at Rehoboth Beach at the close of their meeting in Wilmington, Saturday.

The vote came following the reading of a letter from Mayor Juell C. Stamper in which he informed the organizations that Rehoboth hopes to have a new auditorium ready in time for next year's meeting which is set for June 19 and 20. The City of Newark also sent a written invitation which was considered by the Time and Place Committee.

Identical resolutions passed at their respective conventions, the Department of Delaware Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. and Auxiliary called for action on these proposals.

1. That churches throughout the state be urged to comply with the request of Gov. Elbert N. Carvel to ring church bells for five minutes beginning at noon on Independence Day to stress the nation's religious freedom.

2. That steps be taken to fight the proposal of the Civil Liberties Union in its suit seeking to eliminate the words "under God" from the pledge of allegiance to the United States flag.

3. That the Constitution of the United States be amended to permit non-denominational prayers in schools. (U. S. Senator John J. Williams has already proposed such an amendment.)

In a final joint dinner at Hotel duPont Saturday evening, VFW officials surprised State Representative Paul E. Shockley by presenting him a certificate of merit for his endeavors on behalf of veterans and their dependents in the halls of the State Legislature. Shockley was a dinner guest.

Another award went to teenager Edward Okoniewski for his loyalty in playing taps at VFW memorial functions for many years. He performed this duty for the past six years at various functions in the city and state.

He is married, the father of two sons and lives at 23 Stephen Drive, Chestnut Hill Estates.

Clement J. Nevin, Blue Hen Post, No. 2863, Milford, moved up to Senior Vice Commander. Nevin has been an active Milford and state department leader for many years. He is also a U. S. Army veteran and is still active in the Delaware National Guard.

The three way contest for Junior Vice Commander saw Ronald Riale, J. Ferdinand Speer Post No. 615 win over Frederick Hudson, Sussex Memorial Post No. 7422, Millsboro and Charles Szymanski, Polish American Post No. 3257, Wilmington. Hudson was also defeated by James T. McClafferty, Jr. of Diamond State Post No. 2863, Richardson Park for Judge Advocate, but was unopposed for Surgeon, the post to which he was elected. McClafferty was named "Commander of the Year" by the State organization this year.

Lawrence H. Alsld, Dover Memorial Post No. 6922 was elected chaplain. Francis A. Sidowski was re-elected Quartermaster to complete the slate. The latter two men were unopposed.

Mulholland announced the following appointments following his induction into office by Past Department Commander Robert N. A bill designed to provide new prevailing wage rates for public construction, especially in lower Delaware, was introduced in the Senate Monday.

It was sponsored by five senators, George R. Robbins, D-Milford; Eugene D. Bookhammer, R-Lewes; Walton H. Simpson, R-Camden; Henry T. Price, D-Smyrna, and Walter J. Hoey, D-Milford.

The existing law—under which the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations can set prevailing wage rates on public construction projects—was not interpreted as the legislators intended, supporters of the new bill contend.

The wage was determined on the basis of the top wages paid, Price said Monday night, so that such companies as DuPont in Seaford and the Dover Air Force Base were forcing the scale upward.

The result, many feel, is that the cost of projects such as schools was pushed above what could be paid.

The intent of the new bill (SB-189), Price said, is to provide a more realistic rate, based on an average of all wages paid in similar types of work in that county involved.

The original bill, he said, didn't turn out as planned.

The new measure also provides that contracts costing less than $5,000 would not be included. The figure of $2,000 is in the present law. Also, the state would have to be appropriating at least one-half the funds for it to be included. Before, any state funds made a project eligible.

It was sent to the Revised Statutes Committee.

Travel Council Backs Tri-State Promotion

The Delaware Travel Council has promised to back the State Development Department in its effort to arrange tri-state promotion for Delaware, Maryland and Virginia in the Delmarva Peninsula.

President Seymour Gellens, Milford hotelman, said that with the proposed ferry from Lewes to Cape May to be promoted, "everyone has his work cut out for him and we want to help."

The first Tri-State meeting on this subject is scheduled to be held at the Atlantic Sands Hotel this week. Edwin Golin, director of the Development Department called the session.

The Travel Council, which has grown to nearly 100 members also arranged with Hessler, Inc. for erection of billboards to promote the state's seashore areas and places of historic interest. Gellens said the boards will appear during the balance of June and remain on display during the summer.

Participation in several fall and early spring travel shows was discussed by David S. Hugg of the Development Department. He said that space would be arranged at shows in Boston, Baltimore, Harrisburg and Philadelphia if the Travel Council would help man the booths. A survey will be made and Gellens says he believes the Council will be able to meet its quota of aides.

The Council will also assist in seeking persons who speak foreign languages who could be helpful when foreign tourists visit the first state. A co-operative list will be compiled from volunteers, stating the languages they speak and where they may be contacted. It is felt that such co-operation would encourage more foreign tourists to visit here, Gellens said.

It was reported that many requests arrive in the state for reservations at "due farms," but none are currently operating in Delaware. It is understood that at least one individual is interested in promoting such a recreation project and it may possibly develop in time for vacationers in 1964.

The Travel Council will hold a joint meeting with the Delaware Roadside sometime in July at which time plaques will be presented to winners in the roadside beautification contest which was recently concluded.

Mancus Club Celebrates First Birthday

The first anniversary meeting of the Kent-Sussex Mancus Club was celebrated Friday at the Kiwanis Youth Center in Milford, with Dick Jones presiding.

Mr. Jones brought before the group the idea of the Club assisting Mr. Butning of the rehabilitation center in much needed transportation of the handicapped in the down state area, when it is necessary for them to go to a clinic or a rehabilitation center. Mayor Humes made a motion that this be done on a trial basis and assistance be given the next four cases which would be brought to the attention of Dick Jones by Mr. Butning. The first patient was Miss Joanne, of near Ellendale, who was being sent to Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center in Fishersville, Va., by the Delaware Rehabilitation Center. Dick Jones furnished the transportation last Saturday and reports that Joanne is very happy and getting adjusted to her new surroundings, thanks also to Janice Ritter, of Lewes, who is attending the center and is a past secretary of the club.

Mrs. Frank Lynch, publicity chairman, gave a report on the Delaware Conference for the handicapped which she had the pleasure of attending at the Alfred I. duPont Institute last week. The members felt this future program for the state is very important to all of us and we shall be keeping up with its progress. Mrs. Hilda Cannon, program chairman and Mrs. Lynch will work out a program with all service clubs and other interested groups in the area to present the work of the Mancus Club and show a film to give the people a better understanding of the interest and needs of the handicap to his or her community.

The club and all handicapped have been invited by the Mother Club in Wilmington to attend their annual picnic which will be held, Sun., July 14, at Chester River, near Crumpton, Md. Anyone desiring to go and enjoy the fun of boating, playing games and eating, will please call the transportation committee, William Dickerson, 422-5671 or Albert Peterman, 422-5317. This should be fun, so come and join the gang July 14. Your name must be in by July 9.

Plans were tentatively made to have the members supply entertainment and refreshments several times during the summer at the Lewes Beach House.

Report from the Sunshine Committee was given by Miss Mamie Leverage and she was very happy to report that a down state gentleman was using her extra wheelchair, having suffered a broken hip.

Mrs. Maude Elliott and Mrs. William Dickerson served refreshments and a delicious and beautiful tiered birthday cake was enjoyed by all. Thanks go to Edith Kline, of Milford for this special cake. Wayne Banning, of Milford, supplied the entertainment with several piano selections.

The next meeting will be held Wed., July 3, at the Kiwanis Youth Center, Milford at 8 p.m. Remember each of you can "help the handicapped help themselves" by bringing a handicap with you from your community.

Young Men Are Fashion Conscious

Young men are just as fashion conscious as girls, and they want to be properly dressed, whatever the occasion.

"I was delighted to learn this fact at a recent 4-H style show for boys," says Janet Reed, extension clothing specialist at the University of Delaware, who usually works with clothing for girls and women.

Not only are the boys concerned with "what to wear when," but they are interested in details, such as which suit buttons should be buttoned or left open.

Developing a well-groomed appearance doesn't happen overnight. One should start early on good grooming practices so they become a habit, she points out.

Your first impression is a lasting one, Miss Reed tells young people. For instance, when applying for a job, your first impression may make the difference between getting the job or not. Boys should always wear a jacket and tie when applying for a job, regardless of the kind of work they are seeking. Shoes should be well shined. When you are well dressed you feel more confident and more at ease, she points out.

Today's style trend for young men is the "skinny" look. Many slacks and trousers are designed without pleats, and trouser legs are narrower. Some slacks are even designed with zip pockets as a reminder to keep hands out of the pockets and maintain the slim look. Ties, too, are narrow, and in keeping with the trend to minimize jewelry, tie clasps are small and inconspicuous.

There is also a trend to conservative solid colors in socks. Today, some 70 per cent of the customers buy solid color socks, and black is becoming an important color for socks. When wearing a suit, the socks should blend with the shirt. White socks should never be worn with a suit, men are reminded.

With a suit, a white shirt is always in good taste, so when in doubt, wear a white shirt, Miss Reed advises. A suit should never be worn without a tie. The present style is for the middle button of the suit jacket to be fastened, she says.

Fabric knowledge is important in getting the most for your money, Miss Reed points out. Many fabric blends are available, but one of the most popular is polyester and cotton. Polyester fabric, sold under various trade names, is used for wrinkle resistance and shape retention, while cotton gives absorbency and comfort. This combination is often found in "drip dry" garments, while polyester and wool combinations are frequently found in suits. Some casual slacks are made of cotton with nylon for extra strength and longer wear. Many items of apparel are now machine washable.

Clothing designers often add style details to captivate a young man's imagination. An example is the back tab at the center back yoke of a sports shirt. It serves no real purpose, but imaginative young people have found a use for it. In some circles, if it is clipped in a certain way it is an indication of "going steady" or of "playing the field."

The consumer influences the styles he wears, Miss Reed points out, and stores will sell what their customers want and demand. Take care of your clothes, she advises. They will look better and last longer.

Commutation Tickets For Bridge To Remain Same

There will be no change in the price of commutation tickets over Delaware Memorial Bridge when the new rate schedule goes into effect on July 1, Frank J. Harty, general manager has announced.

Recently the Delaware River and Bay Authority—a joint authority between the states of Delaware and New Jersey—voted to build a second span parallel to the present structure and also establish ferry service between Cape May, N. J. and Lewes, Del. This will be a $100 million venture.

In order to underwrite the revenue bonds which will be payable within thirty years, the Authority increased passenger car rates from 25 cents to fifty cents. All other vehicle rates increase in the same proportion.

Harty reminds that originally the passenger car fare was 75 cents, but due to the great usage of the bridge—12 million cars in 12 years—it was possible to make two reductions. Now it is felt, the increased service which will be provided will make it worthwhile for the motorist to continue to use the bridge at the new rates which become effective at midnight, July 1.

The fifty trip commutation book, good for a calendar month, which is used by employees on either side of the Delaware River who commute to work daily, will remain at $5.00 a book or 20c a trip.

The only change made at the suggestion of traffic consultants was to include 20 trip tickets in the book which was formerly ten trips, good for two calendar months. This book will sell for $4- or 20c a trip.

The commuter books are on sale at New Jersey and Delaware banks as well as at the Bridge Information Center. Purchases may be made immediately in order to avoid a last minute rush. The Information Center is open daily from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Make Sure Food Is Safe Warns Safety Council

The great American holiday—the July 4th weekend—is almost here again.

For millions of American families it will be a four-day holiday this year. And for almost every family the long holiday weekend will bring at least one family picnic.

The July 4th picnic is as traditional in America as the hot dog—which often is a main staple of the picnic lunch. Even the flies and the ants have a big time as picnics.

But now and then picnics end in tragedy, the tragedy of food poisoning. Most foods spoil quickly in hot weather and away from refrigeration. If there are a few staphylococci bacteria present, they need only a few hours of time and a warm temperature to grow rapidly. Some foods can become poisoned in as little as five or six hours on a hot day.

There are some easy and simple ways to avoid food poisoning on a picnic. One valuable item is a good portable icebox. Chill the foods thoroughly in the refrigerator at home. Use plenty of ice. Make sure the lid is tight. This will keep your perishables fresh.

Take along the sandwich ingredients in the original wrappings and containers and make up your picnic lunch on the spot, just before mealtime. Take the ham in a sealed can and open it at mealtime. The same applies to mayonnaise. Keep the boiled eggs and potatoes separate in the ice box, and mix the potato salad at the last minute.

Stick to canned foods and sealed jars and bottles that can be opened just before serving. Be careful about pies and cream-filled bakery items. They spoil very fast on a hot day. Fresh fruits keep better and will make good desserts.

It's actually not very difficult to insure safe picnic meals. Just follow your home practice of refrigerating those foods that need it. If you make up a hamper of sandwiches, load it into your hot auto trunk, head for the beach, and eat many hours later—well, you're asking for trouble.

"TAMMY & THE DOCTOR" At Reese June 28-29-30

The summer family formula of two big hits on a single bill at regular prices certainly made a hit with the past weekend patrons of the Reese Theatre.

An example of the new Fri-Sat-Sun. big combination show can be found in the presentation of Sandra Dee and Peter Fonda in "Tammy & The Doctor" co-featured with the new Pat Boone hit, "The Yellow Canary," this June 28-29-30. Two great hits together sure to entertain the entire family. Regular prices prevail with all children under 12 free if with parents.

Much interest is being shown after theatre fans heard that Paul Newman's new hit "Hud" is listed for showing at Movie Center, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 5-6-7 with Kent Taylor in "The Day Mars Invaded Earth."

Great entertainment is being offered by the Reese Theatre, and a glance at the program to be found in this newspaper might open many avenues of real enjoyment.

Navy Seeks Men For Missile Tech. Training

Farnk J. Markert of the U. S. Navy Recruiting Station, Dover, announced this week that the Navy will be seeking a large number of high caliber high school graduates for placement in the Navy's missile electronics technician schools. The high school graduate who volunteers and can qualify for this program will be enlisted in the Navy as a Polaris field electronics technician. Men choosing this particular field will first receive approximately nine weeks training at one of the Recruit Training Centers located in Great Lakes, Ill., or San Diego, Calif. The missile technician schools are designed to cover a wide area in the field of electronics, and students are thoroughly trained in the maintenance and operation of the intricate guidance systems which deliver the Polaris missile to its targets. After graduation from the specialized technical school, these technicians are then sent to the U. S. Navy Submarine School, New London, Conn., where they will receive an eight week course designed to qualify them in submarines. Complete details concerning this specialized field is available at the local Recruiting Station without obligation. Phone 734-7319.

Jean L. Coulbourn Wedded to William Brohawn

The double-ring ceremony of Miss Jean L. Coulbourn and Mr. William F. Brohawn Jr., took place in the Asbury Methodist Church, Harrington, on Sunday, June 23, at 4 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Martin B. Graham, Harrington, and the deceased Thomas J. Coulbourn, formerly of Seaford.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Brohawn Sr., of Cambridge, Md.

The bride's grandfather, George C. Brown, gave her in marriage. The Rev. Olin T. Shockley performed the ceremony. The reception was held at the Century Club in Harrington.

The bridegroom's sister, Miss Cynthia Brohawn, served as maid of honor. Her gown was deep maize of pure silk and a pill box of deep maize held a hall veil. Miss Emily A. Brown, of Harrington, and Miss Judy Wofford, of Wilmington, were senior bridesmaids and wore gowns in mint green of pure silk with bell-shaped skirts. Their head pieces were the same as the maid of honor in their respective colors.

4-H News

with Marion McDonald

4-H Short Course is now established as 4-H Conference. To the 3 Kent County 4-H members this statement has real meaning. For many years our annual short course program consisted basically of project training. Today the program brings outstanding speakers who provide discussion opportunities for our youth. I'm sure 4-H'ers throughout the state will be sharing their experiences with others in the next weeks. In rounding out conference several other events take place in which Kent Countians emerged with several blue ribbons. Sarah Moore of Harrington and Linda Stayton, of Houston, were named in the State Dress Revue Honor Court from a field of ninety. Paradise 4-H'ers, Rita Hall, Clifford Hudson, Blake Powell, and Marjorie Hudson, brought home a plaque for the talent group puppeteer act. Thelma Thomas, Marydel, participated in the pageant held on the last night. Lois Wiebel, Hartly, had the fun of being on the newspaper staff which produced an outstanding paper. All in all our 4-H'ers emerged with a greater understanding of themselves as our citizens.

Moving into our summer activities, may I remind you that most open class exhibit entries for the Delaware State Fair are due at the Fairgrounds by July 5. 4-H department entries are due by July 15. Send yours in early. July 11 is our County Dairy Judging Contest at which time we will select the best eight dairy judges to represent the county at the state contest. On July 15 we'll hold a training program for livestock judging which will include sheep, swine and beef. Dates are important—remember to read your 4-H materials carefully. Live, learn, serve through 4-H.

Weaver - Medford

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a gown of white silk organza over taffeta with short shirred sleeves, a scalloped neckline of embroidered alencon lace edged in seed pearls, a fitted bodice, the back featuring a large bow ending in a chapel train. The maid of honor, Miss Sandra Weaver, sister of the bride, wore a full length mint green dress featuring a scoop neckline, shirred sleeves with a deep green velvet sash. She carried a basket of mixed garden flowers and ivy, and wore an open crown picture hat featuring roses of self fabric attached to a deep green velvet band.

Speaking of Insects

with Dale Bray

Each year we experience several outbreaks of insects in the Delmarva area, but we have only begun to learn what causes them. The more we study insects, the more it looks as though climate plays the biggest role in preventing outbreaks. Just what kind of weather favors or hinders insects is known only for a few species. Some day we will be able to analyze the year's climate and predict the likelihood of outbreaks of insects with fair accuracy. To do so will require much research and many years.

This seems to be the year for a thrips outbreak in the Delmarva Peninsula. I find them on most plants in the field and garden. They have ruined half of my rose blossoms, and they are approaching the danger point on several crops in the area. By feeding in the developing rose bud, the thrips prevent the petals from opening properly. Heavily infested blossoms look more like a head of cabbage than a graceful flower. On corn, soybeans, snap beans, onions, and many other plants the feeding injury turns green leaves to a silvery-gray. At a distance of several feet, such leaves look as though they had been dusted with a fine silvery powder.

Thrips can be found on some plants by shaking the leaves or blossoms over your open hand. On corn you must peel the leaves from the stem in order to see the tiny, narrow thrips. They are about 1/16 of an inch long and vary from orange-yellow to black. Some are pale with black bands.

On ornamental plants, DDT will do a good job of reducing thrips, and it can be used on some food crops such as snap beans if it isn't applied within 7 days of harvest. It can also be used on sweet corn since the husks prevent the DDT from getting on the kernels which we eat. The stalks of such corn must not be fed to cattle however, since the DDT probably would get into the milk. Perhaps weather which helped cause the outbreak will help to get rid of it.

June is the month when several scale insects produce their young, and it's the young that are easiest to control—young insects, that is! It is only the young that move about. Once they settle down to feed, they don't move again. I think scale insects are the most important general pests of shade trees and shrubs. One reason for this importance is that they go unnoticed for years, and then, when the weather conditions are just right, they multiply in large numbers, causing serious damage to the plant on which they feed. The name, scale, describes these insects more or less. Most of them are built so that they can lie "pressed-flat" on the surface of a leaf or branch. They seem to be part and parcel of the plant itself. Some species secrete waxy shields which serve to cover the soft scale itself. These waxy covers are also called scales, so we have a scale within a scale. Scale insects can be flicked from the surface of leaves or twigs by a thumb-nail or some sharp instrument such as a knife blade. Other objects such as disease pustules and insect galls can't be removed so easily and cleanly.

Sprays of malathion or Sevin are effective for the crawlers. Use either one at rates recommended by the manufacturer. Although both of these materials are rather safe to humans, use them with common sense, and don't store them where children or pets can reach them.

Delaware Food Market Report

Come July, the full bounty of summer's seasonal abundance will highlight the scene at local markets, with many of the long awaited foods from nearby farms and gardens at last in evidence.

Summer turkey time will again be the order of the day. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Plentiful Foods List, there will be almost as many turkeys this July as the large numbers available in July 1962. Prices are and will remain attractive, this making turkey an ideal meat choice for the Fourth of July weekend, which will be a long weekend for many people.

Peaches and watermelon, old summertime favorites, will be abundant, too, as large crops are in prospect. Peach production in nine southern states is estimated at over 17 1/2 million bushels, 18 per cent more than last year.

Watermelon prices have been low for many weeks now, due to bumper crops. We can expect continued large supplies during July and prices will remain low.

The summer vegetable season will be in full swing, with nearby market garden production supplemented by good supplies shipped in from distant commercial growing areas. Tomatoes, corn, beans, beets, and lettuce will all be on hand in large volume.

Other July plantiffs will be milk and dairy products, peanut butter, and vegetable fats and oils.

More eggs are expected to come to market in the last half of 1963. Prices will not rise as much as usual this summer because of the increase in supply.

Beef continues to be the main red meat buy at local stores. Production of beef has averaged 8 per cent more than last year for the past 6 weeks. Production of other red meats is down from a year ago. Special sales on beef are almost a weekly feature whether it be during the week or on weekends. Broilers are a low-cost meat selection and should not be over-looked.

This week, we have the widest selection of low cost fruit choices since last fall. Melons, including watermelons, cantaloupes, and honeydews, are exceptionally plentiful and low in price for this time of year. Other low cost fruits include rhubarb, limes, strawberries, and peaches. Lemons are quite reasonable now but quality needs to be watched.

Mrs. Harry Preuss

Mrs. Anna G. Preuss, 71, of 324 Southeast Front St., died Saturday after a long illness. She was the widow of Harry Preuss. Her only survivors are several cousins.

Services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Berry Funeral Home, Milford.

ACP Helps Get Conservation Job Done

Conservation work costs money. That's why we have an ACP, R. Harry Wilson, chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, said this week. He pointed out that being convinced about the benefits of conservation is not enough, and expressed the belief that some farmers still may not understand that they can obtain program help in getting the conservation job done on their farms.

"Just drive around the country," the chairman declared, "and you can easily spot the farms where conservation farming is being practiced. In most cases, you would also find that the Agricultural Conservation program is co-operating with the farmer in carrying out the conservation practice on the land."

Farmers who wish further details about ACP are urged to call at the Kent ASCS County Office, at 2319 So. Dual Highway, Dover, Del. Phone: 697-3294.

More than 150,000 holders of GI "RS" insurance policies have three months remaining in which to qualify for a special dividend by exchanging for "W" term policies or converting to permanent insurance, the Veterans Administration said this week.

The special dividend, authorized for this purpose, expires Sept. 13, according to Leon Fields, manager of the VA Regional Office, Wilmington.

Wheat Program Provisions Are Reviewed

In response to questions raised since the wheat quota referendum May 21, R. Harry Wilson, chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Kent County Committee, this week reviewed certain wheat program provisions still in effect under existing law.

For 1964, the chairman, explained, the legislation provides that price-support at 50% of parity—about $1.39 per bushel, in Kent County—will be available to producers who plant within the acreage allotments which were established before the referendum. There will be no quota penalties for planting in excess of 1964 acreage allotments.

However, overplanting the 1964 allotments would reduce the acreage history credit for future allotments. Farmers who have Conservation Reserve contracts agreed to plant within the larger of the farm acreage allotment or 15 acres, and this means that the 1964 Conservation Reserve payment for the farm is dependent on planting within this acreage.

Excess wheat for the 1963 crop, since it is still subject to marketing quotas, may be stored by the producer in order to avoid payment of the penalty and loss of history in the establishment of future allotments. After July 1, 1964 this stored excess wheat also may be released without payment of penalty.

Q—Will the Veterans Administration exchange my 48-star American flag supplied after my husband's death five years ago? I would like a 50-star flag.

A—No, exchange is not permitted. However, it is perfectly legal to use your 48-star flag.

Q—I am an insurance company official. How do I get from the VA an abstract of medical records on veterans who are applying for insurance?

A—VA regulations state that a charge of $3.00 per request will be made to insurance companies for medical reports. Therefore, a check in this amount should accompany each such request to the VA.

Q—Is it true that most of the patients in Veterans Administration hospitals are over 65? If so, is the VA doing anything in the way of special programs to help them?

A—VA patients in the age bracket 65 to 74 far outnumber other age groups. Recognizing this, the VA has special programs for the rehabilitation of senior citizens. The VA Medical Research program with more than 7,000 different projects is aimed at improving the lot of the older veterans.

Be your own corn doctor. This is the best time of year to look at plants and see shortages of food elements.

Our Extension Service on the second floor of the Dover postoffice has a leaflet to pinpoint the "trouble" signs on corn. The things to look for are pictured in color. A healthy well fed plant has a rich dark green color. Phosphate shortage shows up as a reddish purpling of the leaves. Potash deficiency will fire and dry the tips and edges of the leaves. The nitrogen hunger sign is a yellowing that starts at the tip and moves back along the middle of the leaf. A shortage of magnesium will cause whitish strips along the veins.

Besides these, one can learn to recognize the signs of drought (rolling of leaf), diseases, insects, and chemical injury.

Farm chemicals, essential, as they are, will occasionally backfire if improperly used. This is especially true of some of the selective weed killers.

I have just looked at a 35 acre field of tomatoes which caught some 2-4 D air drift. The man's neighbor had used the chemical as a pre-emergence spray for soybeans and the wind carried some of the spray material onto the tomatoes. The signs are unmistakable. The tips of the leaves are curled and twisted. The blossoms set seedless fruit.

Another farmer called our office to say that his corn seemed to be twisted by 2-4D spray. The chemical seems to bother corn only at a very young stage, or when it gets into the whorl or growing tip. It is still a fine material to control broad leaved weeds. The safest way to put 2-4 D on corn is with drop nozzles between the rows along the boom of the sprayer. The corn should be at least 10 inches tall for a post-emergence spray.

Here is another reminder about the dairy tour to Kent County, Md., set for Tues., July 2. We will meet at 10 a.m. in Chestertown at the Washington College campus sign.

Plan to bring your family and a picnic lunch for a day of visiting dairy farms.

We're going to Bloomfield Farms first instead of Ed Fry's as announced last week. Bloomfield is milking 600 cows on one farm, and they have some unusual buildings.

Our office will have some marked maps and a time schedule for those who plan to go. Everyone is welcome, but we believe the trip will be of most interest to dairy farmers. Call 736-1448 for details.

Whether the hog drinks or eats his food evidently is not nearly the matter of concern to the hog as it has been to some of his owners in recent years.

Hog producers, always looking for ways to increase feed efficiency, have become increasingly interested in the potential value of liquid feeding.

Since the advent of large hog operations, this country's producers have gone from the old slop feeding to mechanized dry feeding. Of course, there is still a limited amount of liquid-feeding being done.

Research at North Carolina State College indicates there may be very little to gain from making a switch either way. One form of feed seems to have no advantage over the other.

Dr. A. J. Clawson, associate professor at North Carolina State College, conducted experiments with dry vs. liquid fed under both self-fed and hand-fed conditions.

The most significant finding of this research is that, under the conditions used, results from liquid vs. dry feeding are amazingly similar almost to the point of duplication.

For instance, under limited feeding using five pounds of feed per day on dry and liquid fed groups and three pounds on others, average daily weight gains were practically identical in all cases.

The five-pound dry fed group gained 1.27 pounds per day.

The five-pound liquid fed group gained the same amount. The three-pound dry fed pigs gained .89 pound per day and the three-pound liquid fed pigs gained .83 pound per day.

There was some negligible difference in the experiment in which self-feeding was used. The liquid-fed groups in this case made smaller daily gains than did the dry-fed pigs.

Dry-fed lot No. 1 gained an average of 1.72 pounds per day. Liquid-fed lot No. 2 gained 1.56 pounds. Lot No. 1 required 3.15 pounds of feed per pound gained, and lot No. 2 required 3.34 pounds of feed per pound gained.

While his experiments tend to offer no strong case for liquid feeding, Clawson pointed out that they are not conclusive. He added that tests conducted elsewhere have tended to support liquid feeding over dry. These, too, are inconclusive, however.

Reduced livestock feeding labor costs is on the minds of many livestock men today. This is especially true of beef cattle producers. Many of them are using horizontal silos either the trench or bunker type. Some have had success with self-feeding from horizontal silos.

Success with a horizontal silo is dependent on the following, says Tom King, Penn State livestock specialist:

Location
Locate where it is convenient to remove silage daily or for cattle to self-feed. Don't locate where surface water from the surrounding area will drain into the silo. It should be partially sheltered from prevailing winds, especially if cattle are self-feeding. Sometimes snow drifting is a problem. The feeding surface should be wide enough to allow about one-fifth of the cattle to eat at a time.

Floor and Sides
Solid floor is absolutely necessary. Too many trench silos become quagmire in wet weather. Earth sides on trench silos can crumble away. Sooner or later most owners construct permanent sides on their trenches.

Preservation
Proper fermentation makes good silage. Pack forage immediately. Silage quality may be determined within a few hours after ensiling. Running a tractor in all directions repeatedly over the forage is probably the easiest way to exclude the air. Wilted silage has some advantages over direct-cut silage, but excluding air from wilted silage is more difficult than with direct-cut silage. This places more emphasis on rapid filling and packing.

Surface Cover and Leaching
Much loss occurs when too much surface is exposed to the air and rain and snow leach away nutrients. USDA researchers found that silage saved by covering with some of the moedrn plastic sheetings was about three times what the tight cover cost. Covers were weighted with sawdust all over and with railroad ties at the edges.

Unlimited feeding of all dairy cows in a herd is generally not profitable, a U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist said last week.

If cows are fed individually according to their production, a few might justify extra rations, Norman W. Hooven, Jr., of USDA's Agricultural Research Service told the American Dairy Science Association, during a meeting at Purdue University.

In studies at Beltsville, Md., Mr. Hooven and Dr. Ronald D. Plowman found that a group of cows on unlimited feed produced about the same amount of milk as a group fed a controlled amount. But they ate more feed, gained more weight, and converted feed to milk less efficiently.

The ARS dairy husbandmen studied two groups of cows during their second lactations. The cows selected for this test had produced nearly the same amount of milk during their first lactation when fed rations that met their requirements for maintenance and production.

During this test, one group was fed an unlimited ration of grain, hay and silage. The other group was fed similarly at a rate 10 per cent higher than a standard ration, Morrison's, that is recommended to meet the maximum requirements for lactating cows. The big eaters produced an average of 13,234 pounds of 4 per cent milk (fat-corrected), compared with 13,232 pounds averaged by the control group.

Mr. Hooven reported that production of the cows on unlimited feed varied considerably. Some produced more, some about the same, and some less than cows on controlled feed.

IT'S EASY TO KNOW:

British thermal unit—this is the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water one degree Fahrenheit.

EVERY KILOWATT-HOUR of ELECTRICITY will produce an amount of heat energy that can be measured. This is equivalent to 1.34 horsepower per hour. It will produce a measurable number of BTU's in that hour.

EVERY CUBIC FOOT of HEATING GAS can be measured and will produce a measurable number of BTU's out of each cubic foot.

EVERY GALLON of FUEL OIL has a fixed number of BTU's and these produce a measurable amount of heat.

HERE'S YOUR MOST EFFICIENT . . .
LOWEST-COST . . . MOST COMFORTABLE WAY TO HEAT
YOUR HOME (or any building)

Fuel oil is the proved lowest-cost way to heat your home — or any building. Figures shown below have been fully proved over the years. The cost of heating your home comes along every winter. This is a lifetime cost. It is a cost you can measure in dollars and cents. It is good sense to use the most economical fuel.

The Reason Fuel Oil Is Most Economical Is Because More Efficient Use Is Made Of Every BTU In Every Drop Of Your Fuel Heating Oil

When You Build Or Remodel, Do Compare Costs:

ELECTRIC HEAT COSTS —
170,000 BTU's Needed — $270.00 to $353.00 for one heating season.

GAS HEAT COSTS —
170,000 BTU's Needed — $155.00 to $195.00 for one heating season.

OIL HOME HEAT COSTS —
170,000 BTU's Needed — $130.00 to $160.00 for one heating season.

It takes about 170,000 BTU's to heat a house of 1600 square feet. With electricity this could make your hourly cost nearly five cents (5c) an hour — actually it is $.0497 an hour.

It takes about 170,000 BTU's to heat a house of 1600 square feet. With gas this could make your hourly cost over three cents (3c) an hour — actually it is $.0315 an hour.

It takes about 170,000 BTU's to heat a house of 1600 square feet. With fuel oil heat this makes your hourly cost about two cents (2c) an hour — actually it is $.0225 an hour.

"Sports Odds And Ends"

Lester "Bunny" Lawton, of Ridgely, is now working in Harrington. In the late thirties and early forties he lived in Hartly and played on the strong Maryland Baseball League entry from that town. The local nine and Hartly waged some titanic battles during that period. Lawton played for several Maryland teams and never hung up the old mitt until 1957. His son, Fred, started in two or three sports for North Carolina High at Denton and last year he was drafted to play for the Dover American Legion team. The younger Lawton was one of the sparkplugs as Dover became Delaware champions and made a strong showing in eastern competition.

Tom Peck again is peddling tickets to the Delaware All-Star Blue-Gold football game to be held at the University of Delaware on August 24th. Football fans can contact him at Peck Brother's Southern States store at Harrington Ave. and Center St.

The Belles, local distaff softball team were beaten by the Little League coaches, men that is, by a score of 10-9. Tonight (Friday), they will play an exhibition contest against an all-star aggregation made up of three boys from each of the four Senior League teams. These girls "we use the term loosely" know how to play and usually put on a good show. For an evening of cheap and interesting fun come out tonight or any weekday night to Moose Home.

Glenn Legates, a son of former Harringtonians, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Legates, visited local relatives this week. Only 16, he tips the scales at 250 pounds and bears a remarkable physical and facial resemblance to Dan "Hoss Cartwright" Blocker. At a large North Carolina high school he dabbled in wrestling, shot putting and football. With those dimensions he could probably excel in several sports. His father was a basketball star at both Harrington and the University of Delaware.

We predicted last week that Wilmington's Vic Zwolak stood a good chance to win a trip to Russia in the AAU championship meet held in St. Louis last weekend. "He dood it." Pat Traynor and Zwolak, students at Villanova U, were 1-2 in the 3000 meter steeplechase and are Moscow bound.

An Elsmere lad sailed on Wednesday to spend an entire school year in Sweden. Randy Jerrigan, 17, will be remembered here for his two hotly-waged duels with Harrington's Bob Smith in the 1 1/2 mile foot races held at the Delaware State Fair in 1961-62. Jerrigan won both tests by three seconds but is a year older than his local rival.

We talked with former H.H.S. and University of Maryland star Jim Schiff this week. Schiff still holds Harrington High records in the 100, 220 and 440 yard dashes. We mentioned that Barry Fry and Bob Smith are closing in on the 440 standard. Jim states that his alma mater has now been competing in track long enough to have at least four runners capable of nearing his 53.6 clocking done in his only 440 effort. This would enable H.H.S. to field a mile relay quartet good enough to enter the Penn Relays in Philadelphia in April and the state meet at the University of Delaware in May. Schiff went on to say that he was certain that two more sub-54 second quarter milers were lurking somewhere in the depths of the Harrington High student body. Are you one of these two? If so, why not come out into the light of day and give the thinclad sport a whirl. It might be a very rewarding experience. It has for millions of others.

All-Star Football Coaches Named

Al (Buddy) Clark of P. S. duPont High and Claymont's Bill Holstein were named assistant coaches for the Blue team in the eighth annual Delaware All-Star High School Football Game.

The annual classic will again benefit the Delaware Foundation for Retarded Children, and will be played in Delaware Stadium Saturday afternoon, Aug. 24.

Dick Paciaroni, of P. S. duPont, is head coach of the Blues and will oppose Middletown's Bill Billings, who will tutor the Golds. Both teams are made up of the cream of the crop of last fall's senior players, all recent graduates.

Clark has served as an assistant to Paciaroni, while also being head basketball coach at P. S. duPont. Clark was a standout in football at Lafayette and only last month resigned his position at P. S. duPont to become basketball coach at Mt. Pleasant. Three of his Dynamiter teams won Blue Hen Conference basketball championships.

Holstein, who just completed his second year at Claymont, is a graduate of Davis and Elkins (W. Va.) and has a two-year record of 10-7-1 at the helm of the Indians. He also coaches basketball. Another P. S. duPont assistant football coach, John Rusnak, will serve as trainer. A graduate of Penn State, Rusnak coaches wrestling and basketball.

Mispillion Kennel Club To Hold Dog Show At Fairgrounds

The Mispillion Kennel Club, Inc., will hold a dog show match at the Delaware State Fairgrounds, Sun., June 30. Entries will be taken from 10 a.m. Obedience judging will state at 12:30 p.m. Conformation or regular classes will start at 1 p.m. This match is open to all pure-bred dogs over three months of age. All dogs must be registered or be eligible for registration. There are three non-regular classes, Adult Handling, Jr. Showmanship, 4-H class (for members of 4-H clubs only). There is no additional entry fee for these classes provided the dog is entered in either breed or obedience classes. Entry fee is $1 per dog. There will be plenty of trophies, ribbons and rosettes. A postponed first half game between Jack Dill's Merchants and Ted Layton's First National nine remains to be played. If the Bankers win, the race would end in a tie and a playoff contest would be played to determine the winner of the first half.

Jim O'Neal, league president, has announced that Brook's Armored Car, Inc., of Wilmington, has donated $100 to the Harrington Little League program. The Wilmington firm has thus joined the Harrington firms, clubs, organizations and just plain civic-minded citizens in making it possible for Harrington youngsters to have a fine baseball program this summer.

Tuesday night at the Moose Home second play got underway as Gary Harrington's Moose nine edged Bill Minner's Legion team 5-4.

In the Senior League encounter Ellis Myer pitched a five hitter as Shaw's downed First National Bank 15-5. Henry Minner led the winners' attack with three hits in four trips to the plate. Myer, Wayne Melvin and Richard Black had two bingles apiece.

First National's attack turned out to be a "Dutch Treat" as Terry Yoder had three hits and his cousins, Steve Motter and Lon Wirick got the other pair given up by Myer.

Top Drivers In East Expected At Kart Race

More than 50 kart drivers from Eastern Pennsylvania, among them some of the to drivers in the East, will compete in the memorial road race in Milford, July 4.

Alberg Goldberg, Phoenixville, president of the Eastern Pennsylvania Karting Association, said this week that six of seven tracks in that area are closing July 4 in deference to the Milford event.

The unsula race, which will be run over a circuitous route through the business district of Milford, will be held as a benefit for the Delaware Heart Association, in memory of patients who have succumbed to cardiovascular diseases. Proceeds from pit fees, collections and concessions will be used for the benefit with patients now suffering from these diseases.

Goldberg said that one of the most highly regarded entrants from Pennsylvania will be 16-year-old Mickie Bush, a Pottstown, Pa., girl, who is one of the top three women drivers in the nation. She has "raced all over the East and has won just about everywhere she raced," according to Goldberg.

Other leading contenders from Pennsylvania are Harold Wagner, of Phoenixville and Allen Colestock, of Downingtown, currently leading in high points in the A Modified Medium Weight Class, and Ed Jarrett of West Chester, the high point leader in the A modified heavyweight class.

Pennsylvania drivers compete on the basis of combined weight of kart and driver: the medium weight class includes combined weights between 234 and 269 pounds, while the heavyweight class is any entry with a combined weight of 270 pounds and over.

The Milford benefit road race will be the first in which the drivers from Pennsylvania as well as those from Delaware and the eastern shore of Maryland will have competed. Competition is normally held on a circular dirt or paved track. The novel event is expected to attract a large following of fans, both locally and from out of state.

Many of the drivers coming from distant points will come to Milford on July 3 and will stay overnight, bringing their racing karts in station wagons and on kart trailers. The races will begin at 2 p.m. July 4 and will continue throughout the afternoon. Eight classes have been established for men, women and boy drivers of hobby, stock and modified karts. Drivers will vie for position in each of the eight feature races by competing in short preliminary heats. Trophies will be awarded to the winners of each feature race. Drivers in the feature races will compete over a winding
