

GENERAL ASSEMBLY RECALL SET FOR MONDAY

The General Assembly will return to work at Dover Monday to take another crack at the highway bond bill stalemate.

The decision to recall the 52 legislators was reached at a meeting between Gov. Elbert N. Carvel and Democratic legislative leaders late Monday.

House speaker Sherman W. Tribbett, D-St. Georges Hundred—who along with Senate President Pro Tem Curtis W. Steen, D-Dagsboro, will issue a recall notice—said Tuesday night that “no particular strategy” was discussed at the meeting.

But the ranking Democrats talked for over 90 minutes and the highway issue apparently still dominates legislative thought.

Tribbett confirmed that the bond bill question seems to be the top item on the agenda.

Over 60 highway department employees already have been furloughed for a lack of bond money to pay their salaries, and it is felt that if agreement is not reached on a bond bill, a supplementary appropriation to pay the employees is likely.

Such a bill has been ready for several weeks.

Many employees have remained at work but highway department officials fear they will leave if progress is not made by July 22, the next pay period.

Tribbett declined to estimate how long the legislature will remain in session but recent talk has favored the idea of a relatively short meeting followed by another recess until late August or September.

Tribbett said there seems to be general agreement on next Monday as the return date. Carvel said before the meeting that it was his hope the legislators would return next week.

Tribbett also said he expected all but a very few of the legislators to answer the call. Legislators present at the meeting included Tribbett, Steen, Rep. Norman Eskridge, D-Seafood, House majority leader; Rep. Glenn Busker, D-Smyrna, House majority whip; and Sen. Calvin R. McCulough, D-Holloway Terrace, Senate majority whip.

Senate Majority Leader Leon E. Donovan, D-Harrington, was available by telephone, Tribbett said.

The General Assembly recessed until the call of the chair at about 2 a.m. on June 28 after failing to solve the bond bill dispute.

Bias Bill Showdown Is Likely

While the General Assembly is returning to Dover Monday primarily to wrestle with the highway bond bill, it is not improbable that primary attention will shift to Senate Bill 183.

This is the public accommodations bill passed in the Senate in the early morning hours of June 28th with a bare constitutional majority of nine votes.

The measure has never been read into the House of Representatives, but should be one of the early orders of business after the convening on Monday.

If the bill gets out of committee it is believed to have at least a 50-50 chance of passing. That phrase—“if the bill gets out of committee” might be the key one in determining SB 183's progress in the House. For that reason there will be great interest in where it is assigned by House Speaker Sherman W. Tribbett, D-St. Georges Hundred.

Tribbett, now serving his third term as speaker, has made it a consistent policy to assign bills only to an appropriate committee.

In other words he does not put a totally unrelated bill into a committee simply because he can depend on the chairman to report it out, or on the other hand, keep it bottled up so that it cannot possibly come to a vote.

In line with the speaker's policy, there appears to be three committees to which he could assign the bill—Revised Statutes, Judiciary or Miscellaneous. Revised Statutes is chaired by House Majority Whip Glenn W. Busker, D-Smyrna, now in his second term. On the basis of past public utterances and a conservative record, Busker is not regarded as favorable to the Public Accommodations Bill and it would require great pres-

Assembly Key To Furloughed Road Employees

The state highway commission will meet July 17 but there appears no chance it will make funds available to pay 45 of 64 furloughed employees who have continued to work.

“Everything depends on the General Assembly,” commented William J. Miller Jr., the department's director of operations, “and it seems to me that the next two weeks will be crucial.”

He explained that the furloughed workers normally would be paid on July 22.

“If we have the money to pay them or if it looks as though the money will be forthcoming, then they will probably go on working. But if the General Assembly gives no indications of passing either a bond bill or a supplementary appropriation then they will probably look for other employment,” Miller said.

The 64 have been furloughed because of lack of bond fund revenue.

Miller said the possibility of miscoding (borrowing from one or more funds to pay salaries) was discussed at the last meeting, but commissioners opposed the idea. He said the commissioners would be “gambling” if they took money from one account and put it in another since there are no assurances they could pay it back.

Instead of finding a way to pay those employees now furloughed, the danger is that the commissioners might have to furlough even more when they meet next week.

The highway department has made it clear that without funds, the furloughing of employees paid from bond revenue will have to continue indefinitely.

“Each person who goes affects the overall efficiency of the project in which he is involved,” Miller said, “and our wish is to keep them all.”

Greenwood Barn Cattle Destroyed

A large dairy barn and 20 head of cattle were destroyed in a fire at the farm of Walter J. Mills on Route 16, near Greenwood on Friday, and on Saturday several wooded acres were burned in a blaze at Camp Arrowhead, near Angola.

Damage at the Mills farm may go as high as $10,000, State Deputy Fire Marshall G. Edward Wyatt said today. The first estimate was placed at more than $50,000.

Seven head of cattle were burned to death in the fire which, Wyatt said, probably started by spontaneous combustion in 3,000 bales of hay stored in the barn.

Approximately 15 more burned so badly they had to be destroyed.

The destroyed herd included several prize heifers Mills was preparing to show on the fair circuit this summer.

Some 40 or 50 head of cattle were saved or saved because the wind was blowing away from the building, Wyatt said.

Workers, working near the barn, discovered the fire. Lewes and Rehoboth firemen fought a woods blaze at the Episcopal Camp Arrowhead for four hours Saturday afternoon.

Wyatt said the cause of the fire was not determined but that the fire may have been caused by an outdoor cooker being used by some picnickers.

All members of Little League teams (which includes Little League, Senior League, and Minor League) will take part in a door-to-door campaign for contributions. Donations will be acknowledged by a tag, designating the wearer as a Little League Booster.

If persons desiring to make contributions will be out of town on the day of the drive, they can make contributions by calling Mrs. Betty Jane Knox, 398-8558; Mrs. Janette Harrington, 398-3139; Mrs. Doris Fry, 398-8545, or Mrs.

Levy Court Gladly Raps Welfare

Kent's Levy Court had a chance Tuesday to complain about a favorite subject—welfare. The commissioners made the most of it.

The opportunity arose as two men participating in a survey of Delaware's Board of Welfare met with the commissioners.

The two, Lauren Hyde and Dr. Thomas F. Lewin, asked the Levy Court's comments on welfare practices in the state. They said they had already met with the New Castle and Sussex County Levy Courts.

“As I understand it, all we do is give them (Board of Welfare) a blank check,” said Levy Court President James B. Messick, also a member of the Board of Welfare.

Messick and Commissioner Edward Kelly said that the county budget is difficult to plan because welfare costs vary each year. It is impossible to predict them accurately, they said.

When the costs get too high the county must borrow money to operate, they noted.

“All we do is pay the checks,” said Messick.

Under state law the county pays half and the state half of all general assistance for persons outside the State Welfare Home at Smyrna.

The Commissioners also complained that when a person goes on relief county taxes are suspended—but the county isn't notified when the person gets off relief. Thus the tax can't be put back on again, they claimed.

Hyde and Dr. Lewin were also told the present Levy Court had never been visited by a welfare executive to explain policies or bills.

In addition the commissioners noted the yearly Board of Welfare estimate is just sent to the Levy Court. Nobody meets with the county group to explain it, they said.

Farm Fire Prevention Steps Given

Spontaneous combustion fires, which last weekend destroyed almost $100,000 worth of Delaware property, can be almost totally eliminated, State Fire Marshal William R. Favinger said Tuesday.

Favinger said two farm fires last weekend, one near Greenwood and another near Odesa, were caused by spontaneous combustion.

Late Friday night flames destroyed a barn and contents, valued at $50,000, on the Greenwood farm of Walter J. Mills. Near Odesa Isaac G. Cleaver suffered a $45,000 loss when his barn burst into flames which spread to his home, garage and a shed.

Navinger said improved and tighter construction of modern barns, making ventilation a problem, raised the danger of spontaneous combustion fires.

The fire marshal outlined the following preventative steps: Always watch hay since it is most susceptible to spontaneous combustion.

Never store or pile hay that is not thoroughly dry.

Watch out for the stalks of alfalfa, clover and soybeans, which dry out much more slowly than the leaves.

If hay which is stored damp or becomes damp through a leaky roof is to be kept, an electric, motor-driven fan should be used to cure it in the barn.

Inspect daily for several weeks any hay stored in a barn by driving a pipe into the stack and lowering a thermometer

BIDS MADE ON IMPROVEMENT OF HANLEY, MISPILLION STS.

Contracts were let Tuesday night for improvements on Hanley and Mispillion Streets after property owners had met the previous Tuesday and approved the projects.

Hanley Street is to be improved from Reese Avenue to Weiner Street and Mispillion Street from West Street to the City line.

The property owners agreed to blacktopping of streets, to pay one-half of the cost of curb and gutters and all of the cost of the sidewalks.

The meeting Tuesday of last week, the regular July meeting, was moved up a night to avoid a conflict with stock-car racing at the fairgrounds.

In other business, the Council voted:

To discontinue keeping the City office open Friday evenings because of lack of response from the public, and to close the office the week of the annual Delaware State Fair here, July 27 to Aug. 3, inclusive.

Ask users of City water to water lawns and gardens only from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., because of lack of rain.

Approved purchase of time clocks, to be placed about the community, to be used by the police.

Approved purchase of Police Department camera, one use of which will be for taking photos of accident scenes.

Kent Assessors Refuse Again To Sign Contract

Kent County's assessors refused again Tuesday to sign the Levy Court's reassessment contract—but the issue is apparently still open.

The three members of the Board of Assessment opposing the countywide reappraisal met with the Levy Court Tuesday in President James B. Messick's private office on the Green.

But, although the meeting lasted about two hours, no progress was reported.

Both the assessors and Messick were close-mouthed about the results—except that they admitted no progress was made.

But Messick said the assessors still want time to consider the issue.

Meanwhile Assessor Edgar Kates, of Felton, said William Paskey, president of the board, intends to bring the issue before his Eighth District Committee again.

Paskey said last week his district committee has instructed him not to sign the contract. He claims the Democratic district committee wants reassessment submitted to a county referendum.

The assessors' revolt is embarrassing the Levy Court since it has already awarded the reassessment contract to J. M. Clemenshaw Co. of Cleveland, Ohio.

When the Commissioners decided to advertise the project two assessors, William Paskey and Irving P. Voshell, approved.

After the contract was awarded Paskey and Voshell joined Kates in refusing to sign.

Last Tuesday the assessors agreed to consider the contract and report back to the Levy Court—hopefully in a week, said Messick.

Tuesday's meeting occurred after a bitter discussion of the problem by Messick, Edward Kelly and Carl Prttyman, all county commissioners.

But the session ended up in Messick's private office when it was evident that reporters and a few other persons would be present to listen in.

Three Kent Towns Need More Water

Three Kent County communities have short-term water problems in the midst of what the state geologist regards as a good long-term supply.

In no case is the problem serious and in each case community leaders figure they can solve the shortage by tapping underground water—which they feel is available.

State Geologist, Dr. Johan Groot, of the University of Delaware, supports this viewpoint with qualifications.

In Camden-Wyoming, one of the three communities, a joint water commission and system services the two separate towns. A spokesman said it wasn't so much a problem of short water as of heavy usage in hot summer spells.

The City of Milford is drilling a new deep well to be operational in August, while Harrington, the third troubled town, has no plans this year, according to its city manager.

In the rest of the county, water appears to be plentiful year around.

In other Kent communities water quantity from wells mostly deep wells and artesian was described as excellent.

“There is no reason to talk about a crisis,” said Dr. Groot. “Underground supplies are probably adequate for another decade.”

“In the county as a whole, I think there is plenty of water available if the development is done in a rational manner,” said Dr. Groot.

To rely upon one or two wells for a long period without constantly expanding to other sources is wasteful, he pointed out.

In this light he mentioned Dover which has good quality water in good quantity. And Dover is drilling test wells and trying to tap new sources.

In a long range viewpoint Dr. Groot said heavy settlement along the bayfront could cause trouble if water reserves underground are tapped.

The area could face salt water encroachment then, as good water is drawn out, he said.

“The situation depends a lot

Thorne House To Be Opened In September

Restoration of the rear wing of Milford's 18th Century Parson Thorne House is expected to be completed by September.

Miss M. Catherine Downing, president of the Milford Historical Society, said the entire house will be open to the public on “Old Milford Days,” Sept. 21 and 22.

Traces of the original weatherboarding, which may date back to 1735, were found below the cornice and under two layers of siding on the wing. The distinctive beading of these original boards is being followed in the new siding being placed on the building.

Albert Kruse, Wilmington architect, is consultant on the project. Norman Lankford of Georgetown is the contractor. The two-story frame wing extends back from the central brick portion of the mansion.

It is hoped to have one room fully furnished with antiques of the 18th Century and another room set aside as an exhibit area during “Old Milford Days,” Miss Downing said. She stressed the society welcomes donations of antiques for the furnishing of the house or of funds for the restoration.

The society has invited the Sussex Archaeological and Historical Society to excavate around the mansion for artifacts.

Three Hurt As Bus Slams Into Truck Near Harrington

Three members of a New Jersey family were hospitalized July 4 after their panel truck was struck by a bus and knocked 400 feet into a field, severing a utility pole.

All were reported in fair condition July 4 at Milford Memorial Hospital.

Injured were: Mrs. Margaret McCoy, 43, cuts of the head and right arm; a son, Ronald E. McCoy, 10, severe lacerations of the face and eye requiring 50 stitches to close; and another son, Horace Lee McCoy, 12, cuts of the face and head requiring 20 stitches.

A younger child, Denise, 7, suffered a bloody nose and was treated at the scene.

Governor Signs Bowers Beach Bill

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel signed late Monday a bill to provide for recreation facilities at Bowers Beach—despite warnings that swimming would not be safe there.

But discussion at a hearing the governor called before signing the measure convinced him that bathing is a small part of the project and that the bill is valid without it.

Also signed Monday were acts to make changes in Dover's city charter; appropriate funds to the American Legion for Boys and Girls State, and money to install a water line at Frankford School No. 206.

The State Water Pollution Commission said at Monday's hearing on the bill that waters off Bowers are unsafe for swimming but that it is not opposed to spending $75,000 for other types of recreation there.

The bill (HB 269) would give the money to the Game and Fish Commission to develop the area.

Dr. Harold L. Jacobs, chairman of the Water Pollution Commission told the group that tests showed Bowers Beach had a high bacteria count and that swimming would not be recommended.

But proponents of the bill said bathing was a small part of the overall plan, which emphasizes boating, fishing and picnicking. Bacteria from the St. Jones and Murderkill Rivers have been found in the Bowers Beach area, Jacobs said, raising the count above that recommended for safe bathing.

5 Men Tried In 2 Courts

Five young men had the unique experience in Dover Monday of appearing in two separate courts for two different crimes and receiving identical sentences in both courts.

The young men were Lee Boyce 21, of Easton, Md., Warren Dan Thomas, 24, Easton, Md., Edward Howard Murray, 23, of Greensboro, Md., William Thomas Nichols, 21, of Harrington and Charles H. Bordley, 24, of Ridgely, Md.

The young men first appeared in the Superior Court, where they had been indicted for grand larceny for the theft of five calves belonging to William Fred Parker, near Harrington, on Jan. 17.

They had previously entered pleas of guilty to the indictments and Judge George W. Wright ordered them to pay the costs of prosecution and gave them a suspended prison sentence of one year and placed them on probation for the same period.

Next they were taken before the Court of Common Pleas on charges of petty larceny through the theft of some soybeans belonging to Robert Collins, near Harrington, at about the same time the calves were stolen.

Judge William G. Bush, II, upon learning that restitution in both thefts had been made, imposed the same sentence on the men that they received from Judge Wright in the Superior Court.

Marvin Smith, Denton attorney, who was associated with former Judge E. V. Keith, as defense counsel for the men, explained in both courts that another man headed the episodes in which the five were involved and who was prosecuted for another crime at Denton. He cited that both episodes were a first offense for each of the young men.

Rehoboth May Get Pavilion

There may yet be a pavilion at Rehoboth for this summer's boardwalk strollers.

Paul C. Stokes, town Planning Commission Chairman, said Tuesday that designs for a wooden pavilion on the boardwalk at Norfolk Street will be submitted to the town commissioners July 19.

Pavilions located along the resort's boardwalk were destroyed in the March storm. This will be the first one to be rebuilt since the storm if the commissioners give the designs a favorable nod, Stokes said.

Stokes described the structure as simple in design, painted in colors and not drab, lighted and open, and constructed so it will not block the view of the ocean of nearby beachfront residents.

The cost has not been worked out, but Stokes called its construction “inexpensive.” Almost all beachfront landowners were in favor of the Norfolk Street pavilion and Stokes said that future structures would be considered if the landowners desire pavilions near them.

Henry H. Allman, a Rehoboth Beach architect, will submit the designs to the commissioners.

The annual tabulation of the municipal street aid fund by the State Highway Department shows an increase in aid to six municipalities and a decrease for 45.

The biggest single factor in the decline is the Dover annexation of last year which greatly increased the state capital's population and added miles of roads to its street system.

The highway department has $1.2 million to divide up for the program—the money supposedly equivalent to one cent of the gas tax—and it distributes the money on a formula based on miles of road and population.

Dover received an increase of $25,605.42 in the latest tabulation, meaning there was less to go around for the others. Other municipalities that got increases are New Castle, Bethel, Fenwick Island, Millsboro, and Ocean View.

The amount going to Wilmington will be $486,436.77, a decrease of $13,344.19.

The $1.2-million fund is distributed on the basis of 40 per cent for population and 60 per cent for street mileage, based on a total municipal population of 179,825 and total municipal maintained streets of 465.34 miles. The population figure was $2,669 per person and the street average was $1,547,255 per mile.

A municipality could gain in population or in street mileage through annexation or construction of new roads. It could lose population also or could lose mileage, for instance, if the highway department took over maintenance of a street.

Population figures were taken from the 1960 census, William J. Miller Jr., director of operations for the department, said. Exceptions were those municipalities where affidavits were signed by the mayor, city manager and president of city council setting forth a new figure.

Miller has forwarded a certification of the distribution to the state treasurer's office which will send the checks to towns and cities.

The amounts to be received by each municipality, with the amounts of increase or decrease over last year, follow:

Speaking of Insects

with Dale Bray

This is the time of year when insects are causing their greatest damage to plants. It is not surprising that the average farmer and home gardener becomes confused when trying to determine what insect is causing the damage to a particular plant. The number of insect species which can attack most plants is so large that it is no wonder people long for an all-purpose insecticide. Probably there never will be such an insecticide or mixture of insecticides. Anything potent enough to kill all kinds of insects would also kill most other forms of life, including the plant you want to protect as well as yourself. In fact, we are searching for just the opposite - ones that kill only a single species or a few related species. This presents a problem to farmers and home gardeners because they will need to be able to identify the damage done to their plants in order to know what insecticide to apply. One way to find out what kind of insect is damaging your plants is to take it to a specialist or a county agent. There will be a good opportunity to do this at the University of Delaware's Farm Field Day near Georgetown on August 7. A "Sick Plant Clinic" will be on hand during the Field Day, and anyone who has a damaged plant or an insect which they want identified can count on help from specialists in the fields of Entomology, Plant Pathology, Horticulture, and Agronomy.

The "Sick Plant Clinic" will also feature several live examples of the insects themselves. As repulsive as insects seem to be, some people have found certain species to be a tasty dish. For example, there is the popular specialty known as "Termites a la Bantu" - popular that is among certain tribes in South Africa. These tribesmen collect the flying termites by the hundreds and dry them on a flat rock which is covered with a cooking oil. Then to each pint of dried termites they add a tablespoon of vegetable oil and one-half teaspoon of salt. Following this, the termites are toasted over hot coals. They taste like popcorn - so they say.

Our American Indians ate the Ponderosa pine caterpillar after roasting them. Flies that emerged from lakes in great numbers were collected and eaten by some tribes. Even today, you can buy chocolate covered ants, fried grasshoppers and caterpillars as well as other "choice items" in some delicatessen stores. If anyone eats some of these canned insects I would be interested in their reaction to the taste etc. My scientific curiosity stops short of eating insects.

Farm and Home To Feature Sick Plant Clinic

A "sick plant clinic" will be one of the highlights of the annual Farm and Home Field Day on Wed., Aug. 7, at the University of Delaware's Georgetown Substation.

Visitors may bring problem specimens of house, garden and field plants to a panel of experts who will give suggestions on causes and cures. University of Delaware specialists in entomology, plant pathology, agronomy and horticulture will be on hand with microscopes and other equipment to identify insect, disease and other damage to plants.

The Sick Plant Clinic was held last year for the first time at Farm Field Day, and more than 70 plant specimens were diagnosed. Facilities are being enlarged this year so that more plants may be observed.

Among the problems diagnosed last year were mite control for lima beans, soil deficiencies, control of Johnson grass, black spot on roses and diseases on various other ornamental plants.

Along with the Sick Plant Clinic, there will be a display of plants showing various types of insect damage, as well as a display of insects on which visitors may test their recognition ability.

Free publications on plant problems will be available.

Another Farm and Home Day feature will be tours of some 80 experimental vegetable, fruit and field crop plots and poultry research work under way at the Substation. Among the operations which will be seen are plots showing the use of pesticides for control of weeds, insects and diseases. A newly designed windowless broiler house will also be opened to visitors.

Buses will be on hand to take visitors through the Substation grounds, and University and Substation personnel will be available to answer questions.

The Civil Defense exhibits will show models of fallout shelters, along with suggestions on shelter supplies, radiation detection equipment and other emergency preparedness equipment.

An outdoor luncheon will be held at noon, with a brief program to follow. Morning and afternoon programs for homemakers are also planned.

J. Frank Gordy, Substation director, is chairman of Farm and Home Field Day.

Wheat Legislation

Statement by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman at a Press Conference, June 26, 1963.

A number of questions have been raised in the press and by farm commentators as to the position of the Secretary of Agriculture on new wheat legislation.

The first question to be resolved is: What do farmers want? In this case, there are very real doubts as to whether any consensus actually exists. The referendum not only failed of a two-thirds vote, but fell short of a majority. Most of the big wheat states voted short of the necessary two-thirds.

Based on my mail and the discussions I've had with wheat farmers and with farm organizational leaders, I see little evidence that the wheat farmers desire a new wheat program. Editorial opinion within the wheat areas is sharply divided. Polls made since the referendum indicate a similar division among farmers.

These feelings are reflected in the current attitude of the Congress, and it is my judgment, based on their comments, that it would be impossible to pass any kind of wheat legislation. City Congressmen, in particular, have made it sharply clear to me that they are not about to vote for wheat legislation — and we live today with the fact that over 300 Congressional districts are now considered to be predominantly urban.

Obviously, wheat legislation cannot be passed without strong Congressional support. Every farm bill has hard going. In the last two sessions, the vote on the feed grain legislation has always been close, despite the acknowledged success of that program.

We are now and will continue to listen carefully as to whether there is a desire among wheat farmers for new legislation.

As to the nature of possible legislation you will recall that the President in a press conference on the day following the referendum said "Any plan that offered us a hope of reducing the surpluses, of maintaining the farmer's income, and was not excessive in cost, we will certainly listen to." The President said further he thought "it would be difficult to get a bill by Congress. As you recall the bill which led to the referendum was very close. There is no indication that there is a consensus on agricultural matters in the Congress between the House and the Senate."

In view of all these factors, the Department will continue to apply the standards it has consistently followed in farm legislation: As the President indicated, we seek to strengthen farm income, cut surpluses and reduce excessive costs. These standards are valid. Legislation will be measured by them. As the President said, we will certainly listen to any plan meeting these requirements. And, when and if we do hear from the farmer, we will listen very carefully.

Like A Sore Thumb

With the arrival of summer, most thoughts center on outdoor activities as we think of enjoying sports, gardening, and the balmy breezes and warm sunshine.

One of the most important things that should be undertaken is policing up the residential sections.

Regrettably many home owners who maintain clean, respectable lots are plagued with literal "junk heaps" just next door. In driving over the community you occasionally see old car shells, beat-up refrigerators, piles of fruit jars and cans and countless other trash strewn along front yards — right next to a spotlessly clean homesite.

It is time to take some type of action towards making neat, orderly homesites a mandatory measure.

The Bates County Democrat, Butler, Mo.

Governor Dalton's Sound Advice

Governor John M. Dalton gave sound advice the other day when he wrote to a friend who had just been elected to the city council at Jefferson City.

"You have the most important of jobs, at the grassroots of democracy," the governor told the neophyte council member. "If you can give your fellow citizens businesslike municipal government, living within its revenue; reasonably effective city services in accordance with the size and resources of your community, and sensible long-range planning for the improvements that will be necessary in the years ahead — why, then you will have done very well indeed.

"Be prepared for criticism, whatever you do and however you go about doing it, but don't let it turn you aside. I have found as attorney general and as governor that the only way to handle public office is to research every problem, get all the facts together, make the decision required by the circumstances — and never look back."

Public officials in all parts of the country will find in the governor's thoughts a basic, elementary foundation of good public service.

The St. Joseph (Mo.) News-Press

Pot Calls Kettle Black

Politicians at the state and other below-federal levels have done an effective job of focusing attention on federal fiscal policies. The public is much concerned about U. S. financial operations and the national debt. It seems not to bother that state-local debt has risen — and continues to rise — much faster. Washington is the bugaboo; so the heat is directed away from the free-wheeling policies followed at home.

Federal government debt in the five years through 1962 increased nearly 14 per cent. The debt of state and local government increased by about 55 per cent. Furthermore, a portion of the federal debt rise is attributed to the increase in grants-in-aid to state and local governments.

In the same five-year period federal government employment increased by 124,000 (5.6 per cent), while number of employees on state and local government payrolls increased by 1,435,000 (26 per cent).

The cry is raised by local-level politicians that the federal government is raking off an ever-increasing proportion of the tax-take potential. The figures do not support this claim. In the five-year period federal receipts increased by 27 per cent, whereas state and local government receipts increased by about 43 per cent.

Had the nation not been spending billions for defense and other cold war activities, the figures would present an even more interesting field for analysis.

Lt. Gov. James Allen, who spoke here this week to the League of Women Voters, contributed an observation that is pertinent to the discussion of fiscal policy, and one which supports the view that state policy often is less sound than federal policy.

In 1955, Lt. Gov. Allen explained, Alabama government bonded indebtedness was $55 million. Today it is $260 million, an increase of better than $25 million per year. The present State administration will sell another $100 million of highway bonds in the next four years, and the total bonded indebtedness in 1966 will be $325 million.

Lee County Bulletin, Auburn, Ala.

Odds and Ends

Advertisers — bless 'em — are continually on the lookout for some little competitive advantage in their advertising. For instance, motivational research experts say that the addition of a fresh, clean odor to soap adds sales-power to the advertising.

Several years back, the Times-Citizen — against the better judgment of the press crew — used this technique for a soap advertiser. No results of the soap sales were ever tabulated, but it was months and months before the soap smell vanished from the press.

Other advertisers have used their sense of smell on a variety of products. Not long ago, a Minneapolis coffee roaster tried the aroma of freshly-ground coffee to enrich its newspaper advertising.

The latest smell technique is a real dandy. The Chevrolet researchers have captured — believe it or not — the "new car smell" and are using it in some of their advertising. That may drive newspaper readers wild with the urge for a new car, but it could backfire.

For instance, used car dealers could spray this essence on their used car products to make them even more attractive. Or some smart operator could put this product on the public market. It could be used right after a wash job. After all, a car always seems to run better when it's shiny and clean, and PAID FOR.

BIAS BILL

sure to force him to bring it out of committee.

In fact, a House bill similar to the one passed by the Senate has been in the Revised Statutes Committee for months with no indication that it will ever be reported out.

The chairman of the Judiciary Committee is Robert C. Davidson, D-Red Lion Hundred. Davidson kept a public accommodations bill, HB 422, bottled up in the Judiciary Committee throughout the 121st General Assembly despite intense efforts by many to have him bring it out.

However SB 183 is far different from the bill Davidson sat on two years ago and the representative has said that he would vote for the Senate bill if it comes on the floor of the House. Since he has indicated his willingness to support it he might also be willing to report it out if it is assigned to his committee.

W. Harrison Phillips, Democrat of Laurel, is chairman of the Miscellaneous Committee. A businessman, his own views might be that the bill encroaches upon private enterprise, but Phillips also has a high sense of public duty.

He is a close personal and political friend of Gov. Elbert N. Carvel and, since Carvel is solidly for the Public Accommodations Bill, the representative would probably accede to a request from the chief executive to have the bill reported out of committee.

Once out of committee, the bill would still not have clear sailing, but with the governor's strong and steadfast support it should pass.

A survey of the house membership of 35 based upon their public utterances, known positions and voting records of the past indicates that at least 16 — only two short of a majority — would vote for it on an initial roll call without persuasion or pressure of any kind.

This includes nine of the 11 Republican representatives. Six of them — Bartleson, Casey, Correll, Downs, Hale, and Keenan — come from the northern part of New Castle County and would likely support it for that reason. The other three likely to go along are Best of Rehoboth, who has introduced public accommodations legislation, Jarrell of Dover and Annett of Stantonville.

Seven Democrats, for varying reasons, would be likely to support the bill.

They include Tribbitt, who has political aspirations, Dineen, Hanlon, Livingston, and Shockley, all of Wilmington, where so much of the state's Negro population is concentrated, and Davidson and Lowe.

Lowe, of Laurel, said he would vote for the bill because all of the business places that it would involve have voluntarily desegregated their facilities anyway.

Those 16 by no means represent all of the votes the bill could get. Majority leader Norman A. Eskridge, D-Seaford, while a conservative himself, has a powerful sense of obligation to the party and the Governor and could be prevailed upon for a favorable vote.

on the economic development of the area," he said.

Here is a recap, city by city: Milford — The city hired a water consultant last year to help it locate and bring up water. A new well will be pumped in August. The town has had a chronic summer shortage in long dry spells.

The problem here is mainly one of low water tables in summer which firemen fear will cause low pressure during a major fire.

Smyrna — Mayor Robert Ridgah points to a good water supply of good quality. He said the city has a new well.

Felton — Mayor William Myers says the town's water table is constant the year around. The town has two wells and hasn't had a shortage.

Magnolia — A town official calls the water supply "wonderful," with the addition of a new deep well last summer to supply a 55,000 gallon tank.

Harrington — City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann says there has been a ban on lawn sprinkling except from 6 to 9 p. m. for two weeks. This is a yearly problem, said Mann.

He said a new well would solve the problem, but added there are no plans to drill one this year.

Dover — Jack R. Woods, public works superintendent, said the city's water is good in quality and quantity.

Two new wells will be added soon to increase the supply. During June city wells pumped DIPSIDOODLE — At intersection of Liberty Street and Fleming Street and Weiner Avenue will be eliminated for h-with. A construction company has started going away with the dip.

PSC Sees Boomerang On Truckers

Recent legislation removing truckers from the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission has boomeranged against some of the very firms that supported it.

Lafayette Timmons, PSC executive secretary, said that the state of Indiana is now charging Delaware trucks to travel through that state because the legislation also meant the end of reciprocal agreements Delaware had with other states.

"I feel it won't be too long before some come begging for a return of the law," said Vernon B. Derrickson, PSC chairman.

Artifacts Sought in Dozer Wake

A gleaner for the old will follow workmen for the new as construction of the $1,722,000 Frederica bypass proceeds.

Contractors and archeologists have reached an agreement under which a competent archeological observers will follow bulldozers to retrieve any artifacts that may be turned up.

The work on the approaches to a new bridge is expected to be finished around Nov. 1 but the construction of the bridge itself will continue through the winter.

George and Lynch, Inc., of Wilmington, Wednesday moved heavy equipment to the Kent County construction site, but will not start grading until Monday.

The agreement was worked out by Robert Appleby, general superintendent for George and Lynch, and Dr. Allen G. Schiek, chairman of the State Archeological Board.

Digging at the site has been conducted by members of the Archeological Society of Delaware under John L. Ludlow, president, and the Sussex Archeological and Historical Society under Henry H. Hutchinson, for the past six weeks. They have discovered about 69 pieces of early Indian pottery, a number of arrow heads and other evidence of an early Indian village.

Dr. Schiek had requested Gov. Elbert N. Carvel for $700 to finance further digging at the site and for a delay in the start of the project. The governor expressed interest in the re-

Auto Titles Gain in June

New car titles issued in Delaware during June totaled 2,154, compared with 3,072 in the same month last year.

Despite the general improvement in car sales nationwide, the new titles issued in Delaware during the first six months in 1963 were 154 below the number put out in the like period of 1962. The totals were: first half of this year, 15,247; first half of last year, 15,401.

However, the title figures do not account for cars which may have been sold in Delaware to persons living outside the state.

quests but took no action on them. Ludlow said he and his fellow members would intensify their efforts over the weekend to retrieve as much as possible before the bulldozers move in. The site they are working on is halfway from the starting point of the grading at the south end of the project so it is hoped there will still be time to remove much of the material before the bulldozers reach that point.

FENCE TALK

With George Vapaa

Look carefully the next time you go into a garden supply store or center. You will be amazed at the amount and variety of goods offered for sale.

It kind of reminds me of the man who walked into a store and picked up a few packets of seed. Then he passed the hand tool display, the insecticides and fungicides, the weed killers, the plant food including hormone treatments, and finally, in resignation — he put back the seed.

But your garden store offers something else — service. The salesman has learned and it is continually picking up information about his products. He has a field representative who visits him regularly to help him understand these products.

Ed Hall, of Dover, probably best known for his Lions Club work, is one such local salesman for a local store. He brought George Runge, Jr. into my office for a conference on lawn questions. George was a former county agent who now works for a national seed company in New Jersey and Delaware. He sells nothing directly. But he helps Ed answer his customers questions. In effect he is still a specialized county agent and I'm glad to see him come in.

George was telling me about some of his demonstration plots. One he seeded into pure crab grass. He said the seed cost $5.50 per pound, and was cheap at that price. It seems that crab grass seed is small, light in weight, and hard to clean properly.

"It's picnic time," said Joseph E. Ennis of Smyrna, as he made the dairy tour with about 80 other Delaware farmers to Kent County, Md., recently.

This pretty well states the opinion of many people who milk cows twice a day. The small grain harvest is out of the way, everything is planted, and the only other urgent job is cultivating for some. Tho, come of it, much of the corn is already "laid by", or was never cultivated because of chemical weed controls. The dairy farmer is like the postman who takes a walk on his vacation. He likes to see what other dairy farmers are doing.

One group looked at free stalls for loose housing, fine pedigreed stock, and methods of reducing manual labor.

A second dairy tour is set for August 13th and 14th to west Maryland and central Pennsylvania. The group will travel by bus, and we are taking reservations. Call 736-1448 or check the schedule in the Delaware Dairy Digest for details.

It's the man in management that makes the difference between success or failure. This is a favorite expression of W. T. McAllister, our farm management specialist at the University of Delaware.

I spent all of Wednesday talking with just three people about management questions in depth. Most farm problems must be resolved with the man in man in mind. For example, a farm owner wanted to increase his farm income by adding more cows. He has a good tenant, but it had never occurred to him to ask the tenant about enlarging the operation.

This is the main reason why we will continue to see many kinds and sizes of farm operations. The farmer is first of all an individual who reserves his own right to make decisions.

The Planning Division of the State Highway Department on South State Street in Dover has a new county map which pinpoints each and every house except those immediately around Dover and in towns. It's done in five colors and cost $1.50. There is also a detailed map of the Dover area and all subdivision streets for an extra charge.

All roads are shown by an identifying number and there are maps for several towns included.

"Inspection plus correction equals protection." That's this year's slogan for Farm Safety Week — July 21-27. Most of us know the ground rules for safety, although we usually don't pay as much attention to them as we probably should.

An accident or emergency can happen any time. The sad thing is that most deaths and injuries could have been prevented if only the people involved had thought ahead and taken a few simple precautions.

This goes for all sorts of emergencies — falls, burns, poisonings, electrical accidents, and natural or nuclear disaster. Disasters of any sort provide all the hazards and add a few of their own. This would be especially true in case of an enemy attack on this country.

Since no one can predict when, where, or how a disaster will strike, the only protection is to be prepared for all possibilities. Find the safest place in or around your home, add as much extra protection as you can, and stockpile in with enough food, water, and other supplies to last at least two weeks.

Storage cellars for root vegetables and other produce give excellent shelter against wind storms and radioactive fallout. If you have a bulk feed bin in your barn, the area under or beside it may offer relatively high protection.

Farm Safety Week is a reminder to be prepared for emergencies of all kinds.

Did you know that Delaware was the first state in the northeastern United States to place all its DHIA records on machine calculations?

The calculations are made at Cornell University in New York which handles records from some 400,000 dairy cows.

A news item from Cornell University this past week indicated that the last 325 DHIA herds in that state, doing hand calculations, are now converting to the system that Delaware went on four years ago.

The machine system can arrive at detailed conclusions in short order. If a farmer has 70 cows, the machine will take about 20 seconds to calculate the daily and monthly milk and butterfat production, values of the milk in dollars, income over feed costs, grain feed, breeding dates, and day of calving, along with other useful information.

That's lightning fast work.

Water is one of the five required nutrients for beef cattle; yet it is often overlooked.

University of Delaware extension specialist, John Shropshire, reports that the amount of water beef cattle drink depend on these three things: the type of feed, the amount of water already in the feed and the temperature.

Animal feeding on dry roughage along with supplement are thirstier than if they are eating feeds with a higher percentage of water, such as silage or haylage. And cattle gain less if they don't have enough water.

The hotter it is, the more cattle drink. For example, in May a yearling steer drinks about 70 pounds (9 gallons) of water a day.

The Price of Sugar

By

W. T. McAllister, Extension Economist, University of Delaware

he present sugar price situation graphically illustrates one of the long run phases of the so-called farm problems. To fully understand what has caused rising sugar prices and how this relates to agriculture in general we need to look first at the overall demand situation for farm products.

One of the factors that determines demand for a product — farm or otherwise — is the number of good substitutes that are available. If there are lots of good substitutes demand will shift from one product to another as prices change. If there are few or no substitutes however demand for many products is affected very little by changes in price.

Economists call this the "inelastic demand" for farm products. This means there are no good substitutes for them and hence consumers have little choice but to pay the going rate. We still buy about the same amount of potatoes, flour, bread, milk and sugar regardless of the price. Those of you who remember the war years know how uncomfortable a lack of sugar can be. Had it been available you would have gladly paid much more for sugar than the present price.

This inelastic demand for farm products means that if farm prices fall the increase in total sales will be slight. And the rise in price will cause very little change in total sales.

For the past two decades consumers have been enjoying the relatively low prices that have resulted from an abundance of farm products. Now for the first time they are seeing the other side of the coin — that of a short supply and rising prices.

A small change in total sugar production has resulted in the inability of farmers to control their total output. Floods, drought, insect damage and other acts of nature cause short crops. An excellent growing season can mean a bumper crop. And since agriculture is made up of millions of independent producers it is difficult for them to get together to gear production to consumer demand.

If there is a good growing season resulting in bumper crops, incomes suffer, because this increase in quantity sold will be accompanied by a more than proportionate decline in price. The net result is that farm income will fall. Similarly, a short crop may boost incomes. Ironically for farmers as a group, a short crop may be a blessing and a bumper crop a hardship.

This helps to explain the sugar situation. World supply is short and prices are high. The same would be true for milk, wheat or other farm products that were in short supply. In this case its sugar and there just isn't a good substitute for sugar. Chances are you'll still buy five pounds a week, or a month if the price is 85 cents or 25 cents.

We're lucky to have this problem occurring with sugar since it accounts for such a small part of the total food dollar. I shudder to think what problems would be caused by a short crop of milk or meat.

4-H TALK

with Marie McDonald

Paradise 4-H Club is planning a club tour on July 13. The club has invited Helen Grampp, Oak Grove, and Gary Simpson of Houston to observe and discuss the 4-H projects. Early evening will find 4-H'ers, parents, and leaders gathered for a picnic. Helen and Gary will then discuss the future available to 4-H'ers when they take hold of opportunities available.

Barton Torbert, of Burrsville, reported they lost their first baseball game between his club, the Honey Bee's, and the Andrews-Speedies, whose leader is Carl Wright. Good to know our local clubs are having sports together.

Kent County links are planning a Link picnic for July 14. Contact a link member for details.

Hard to believe that 4-H will be busy preparing for the State Fair next week. Remember your 4-H office, P. O. Box 30, Dover, before July 15th.

Our 4-H girls who carry foods projects should be starting to prepare for the Favorite Foods Show this fall. Now while you have time, plan your entry. Your leader has a copy of the rules. Live, learn, serve through 4-H.

Date Changes For Atlantic City Trip

The new date for the Atlantic City trip will be Sat., July 20. Bus will leave the railroad station at 7:00 a. m.

Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Zita Hatfield by Saturday, 398-3726.

Food spoilage is one of the homemaker's most serious summer problems, even with today's improved storage and refrigeration methods. With this in mind, a special program on "Safety of Our Food Supply" has been planned for the annual Farm and Home Field Day, August 7, at the University of Delaware's Georgetown Substation.

Miss Janet Coblentz, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware, will discuss food spoilage, explain what causes it and how to tell whether food which has been stored is safe to eat. Miss M. Frances Spoffner, Sussex County home economics extension agent will also participate in the program.

Miss Coblentz will give detailed information on the length of time certain foods may be stored in the refrigerator and freezer. She will also discuss the danger of clostridium botulinum, a food poisoning organism, of which the public became aware when some contaminated canned tuna fish was found recently.

Methods of food preservation will also be outlined, with information given on freezing, canning, drying, and adding chemical preservatives such as acids, salt, sugar or other chemicals.

Miss Coblentz will also have a display of food items showing different kinds of food spoilage as an aid to homemakers in determining the safety of their own foods. Copies of a publication, "Storing Perishable Foods," will be available free of charge.

In the afternoon, homemakers will have an opportunity to view and taste seven new varieties of strawberries which have been frozen in a test to determine which varieties are best for home freezing. The strawberries were all grown on experimental test plots at the Substation. Miss Shoffner is conducting the home freezing tests.

Another farm and Home Field Day program of interest to both men and women will be the "Sick Plant Clinic," in which agronomy, entomology, plant pathology and horticulture experts from the University of Delaware may be consulted on individual problems with house, garden and field plants.

Two Civil Defense exhibits will also be set up, showing emergency preparedness procedures, radiation detection methods, models of fallout shelters and suggestions for shelter supplies.

Tours of the Substation's research plots will be conducted throughout the day, and a luncheon will be held at noon.

The hardest part about parking a Corvair is finding a nickel

That may be a slight overstatement, but such jauntiness comes easily when you're a Corvair owner.

And you can usually back it up—as easily as you can back up a Corvair. You'll find yourself doing that occasionally, if only to adjust the brakes—they're self-adjusting. That's all there is to it, and that's a good example of how delightfully easy Corvair is to own, drive and maintain.

But since we began by talking about driving, let's stick with that awhile. A large factor in the fun of driving a Corvair is the location of its engine in the rear. Why the rear? It gives Corvair extra traction on any road surface. It provides a nearly flat floor for more useable interior space. Best of all, it produces steering so light, so responsive, you wonder why no other American-made car thought of it.

Corvair's engine is also air cooled, we might add, which means there's no antifreeze or water for you to add. Ever.

All that pleasure from something so practical almost makes you think Corvair is unique among American cars. Which isn't surprising, because it is!

Blue Cross and Blue Shield Full-Time Protection for Full-Time Students

Being certain that your son or daughter has hospital-surgical-medical protection is an essential part of preparation for college. High-quality, low-cost coverage removes much of the risk of having to dip into savings for emergency medical or surgical expenses.

Your Blue Cross and Blue Shield family contract covers your sons and daughters completely until the end of the year in which they reach age nineteen. Therefore, other coverage is unnecessary, and there is no need to duplicate when you already have the best.

If any of your children are students and will reach their nineteenth birthdays during 1963, make certain they are protected continuously. Apply, or have them apply, for transfer to the Student Contract—NOW.

At the end of family contract coverage, student coverage can become effective as of January 1, 1964, on which date you will be billed. So, not one day goes by without complete and continuous protection.

Other students, over nineteen, up to twenty-three years of age, and not yet Blue Cross and Blue Shield members, ap-

There've Been Some Big Changes Made

The bus at the top was fine for 1938. It made frequent stops, operated on two lane roads, and encountered little traffic.

Today's bus is designed to run hundreds of miles without stops. Its motor is more powerful, yet quieter; and the coach is air conditioned, rest-room equipped.

But one thing is the same—the Trailways spirit of neighborliness and helpfulness to the traveler. This spirit, we feel, is why Trailways has grown in service to your community and the nation.

SPORTS

KEITH S. BURGESS — Sports Editor

"Sports Odds And Ends"

Tom Simpler, slugging center fielder of the First National Bank Senior Little League team, hit two more out of the Moose ball park Tuesday night. The first was a low, screaming liner to left. The second circuit smash was a high, towering loft over the center field fence. Tom's father now owes the outfielder two steak dinners. We like scrapple.

Everett Hobbs and Mannon Robinson, local harness horse drivers, were on the sports pages recently. Hobbs driving Jerry Mitewyn in a race at Meadows Raceway, Washington, Pa., saw his horse set a new personal record of 2:07 although it rained hard before and during the race. Meadows Raceway has a compound synthetic resin surface for all weather racing.

Robinson finally received his trophy for winning the Freehold, N. J., driving championship in 1962 with 39 wins in 200 starts. He is now leading driver at Hinsdale, N. H.

Harold Fry is another of the unsung people behind the scenes of the successful Little League baseball program at the Moose Park. He is available for many chores such as dragging the diamond, passing the hat, running the scoreboard and ferrying players home after the games.

Glen Smith, unbeaten right hander on Ted Layton's First National Bank Senior Little League team, is also a fine trap shooter. Glen added another win in a handicap shoot last week.

Bob Smith of Harrington will represent Delaware in the Junior Olympics half mile run to be held in Philadelphia July 28th. Smith won the right to compete when he took the half mile qualifying race in Wilmington recently. He will tune-up for the Philadelphia test by running in an AAU 880 at Baltimore next week.

Stew Greenberg, who transferred from Harrington High School during the school year, placed twelfth in the Massachusetts Class A Scholastic Track and Field Championship in the discus. He spun the platter 125 feet. This is one foot further than the H.H.S. record held by John Taylor. It is our belief that Greenberg would have exceeded 130 feet had he been competing in the milder Delaware climate. In New England, track starts later and is often interrupted by foul weather. An athlete is fortunate to be able to practice outdoors more than two days a week. Stew was amazed to report for track at his new school and discover that almost 150 boys were aspiring to make the squad. The Harrington lad was second in his conference meet. Now a husky, mobile 160 pounder, he would have made a fine end for the H.H.S. football squad this autumn. His present plans call for him to spend his senior year at Kent State College High School in Ohio.

Dan Hicks, as a 13-year-old, 4 ft. 10 in., 75 pounds, 8th grader, last fall amazed spectators at H.H.S. cross-country meets by whipping many juniors and seniors. Now a year older, taller and heavier, he is raring to go in the upcoming harrier season. Last week he warmed up by winning a distance race at Camp Barnes in Sussex County. Hicks won by a wide margin over boys from all over the state.

FIRE PREVENTION

down into the pipe. If the mercury climbs to 158 degrees, keep a careful watch. At 185 stop all ventilation and start moving all hot hay outdoors. Above 212 call the fire department, wet down the hay and prepare for a possible fire. It may burst into flames when exposed to the air.

Beware of large manure piles, and never leave them in stables or stacked against buildings. Piles of rags soaked in paint or vegetable oils are also susceptible to spontaneous combustion and should be watched. Favinger said that if these precautions are taken, he can "almost guarantee elimination of spontaneous heating". Other normal safety precautions advised are proper electrical installation, elimination of smoking within barns, avoiding placing of motorized equipment within the same structure as hay and having buildings provided with lightning protection.

Tentative plans call for the Senior League group to form an all-star team and engage in tournament play Wednesday night in Dover against an opponent to be named later. If the local nine should win the title in Dover they would advance to the regional tournament. The ultimate goal would be the Senior League World Championship tourney to be held in Williamsport, Pa. Delaware Farm Labor Bulletin

State Summary: Continuing dry weather causing constant use of irrigation systems by those growers that have them available. Pea harvest completed with some processors reporting poorer than average quality and quantity. Dry conditions are expected to reduce yield of tomatoes, seriously in some areas, especially where irrigation has been unavailable. The potato harvest is expected to get under way most any day but light demand and low market would indicate that digging will progress slowly at the start. Crews are arriving daily and indications are that ample labor should be available to harvest all crops requiring the use of migrant labor. Reports from several farmers indicate a record yield from the barley, rye and oat crops, while wheat seemed to fare a little better. Migrants now in the area are being used in the harvest of cucumbers, snap beans, blueberries, cabbage and some sweet corn for the fresh market.

Wilmington Area (Southern New Castle County): Temporary labor surplus prevails in the area due to early arrival of some crews and slow start of potato harvest. Some workers being used in irrigation and cucumber harvest, but unemployment will continue until potato digging begins.

Dover Area (Kent County): Light potato harvest expected to start within a few days. Migrant crews moving into the area daily. Harvest of cucumbers, snap beans, and cabbage progressing with ample labor available. Irrigation systems operating at capacity. Pea harvest completed with both quantity and quality below average. Labor shortage prevails until start of potato harvest.

Georgetown Area (Sussex County): Lack of moisture still main problem in area, spotted showers last two days not providing rainfall needed to replace moisture in soil. Workers being used picking cucumbers, blueberries, snap beans, potatoes, apples and peaches. Corn being picked for fresh market, but will be about 10 days late for processing. Tomato crop for processing expected to be reduced about 1/4 at this time, those being picked at present for fresh market are small in size. Crews without commitments should not report in area as housing not available for additional crews.

Reminder: The University of Delaware's annual farm field day will be held at the sub station farm near Georgetown, on August 7, 1963.

This was the third of a scheduled 4 night racing card. The next event takes place on opening night of The Delaware State Fair, Saturday, July 27th.

Summer Music Classes in Session

The summer music classes scheduled for students of this school district are in full swing in the music rooms of the new high school building.

While many of the instrumental classes are being held while workmen are still busy installing cabinets and other new equipment, they are continuing uninterrupted by any interference.

Instruction is being provided privately in some cases, but in most part by small groups for beginners, intermediates, and advanced players.

The three bands rehearse on a regular weekly schedule with the Elementary Band meeting at 1:30 on Thursday afternoons, followed by the Junior Band at 2:30, and the Senior Band at 6:30 P.M. on the same day.

The instructor, Mr. Brobst, is most satisfied with the response with this summer's enrollment of 107 boys and girls registered, with 377 other unregistered students from the high school who are only attending the Senior Band rehearsals, making a grand total of 144 members participating in the summer music program in one way or another. But he finds the heat of the new rooms very excessive in the afternoons and evenings when the sun on that west side makes rehearsal quite oppressive. It is hoped that by next summer works will be found that will make the band room air-conditioned so that on warm days music-making will be more comfortable.

On Friday, July 19, members of the Grade School and Junior Bands will make a trip by bus to Philadelphia where they will visit Aquarama, Philadelphia's new aquarium, then journey to the Philadelphia Zoo where they will have lunch and visit the residents there.

The summer program concludes at the end of the six weeks when an outdoor band concert will be held by all bands on Friday night, July 26, on the parking lot next to the Nazarene Church on Dorman and Mechanic Streets beginning at 7:30 P.M.

During the concert home-made ice cream and cake will be on sale and will be sponsored by the Band Booster Club with Mrs. Virginia Winkler in charge, assisted by Miss Hazel Johnson and sister, Mis Lydia Johnson.

This concert will conclude the classes and the band rehearsals until the fall school term. In case of rain, the concert will be held in the fire hall.

Poultry Plant Closes Doors To Seek Funds

One of the largest employes in Laurel—Matthews Poultry Inc.—temporarily closed its processing plant Tuesday after paying off its employees.

The firm has 117 employes, a payroll of $28,000 a month and annual sales of $7.5 million. The 14-year-old company works with about 20 contract haulers.

Ernest Matthews, who operates the business with his brother, Fred H. Matthews, said the shutdown will last "only a matter of days" as the company seeks funds from federal agencies to provide working capital and equipment changes.

The closing came as a result of the pinch of low poultry prices and expansion of processing facilities on the Eastern Shore which resulted in an inadequate supply of birds, Matthews said.

He said that what funds the company did have had been converted into facilities. "Our money is in facilities and we need working capital."

The firm also had suffered a financial setback in 1961 in dealings with a New York outfit and had never fully recovered from that, he said.

Matthews stressed that the company has not gone bankrupt and is in no danger of doing so. The employees were informed Friday that they would be out of work until further notice.

Health and Safety Tips

There will be an eclipse of the sun visible all over the United States on Saturday, July 20. DON'T LOOK AT THE ECLIPSE unless you have first obtained expert guidance on how to do it without injuring your eyes.

Ophthalmologists (medical eye specialists) know that with each recurring eclipse of the sun they can anticipate cases of serious eye damage, even blindness.

Dark glasses are no protection. There are NO FILTERS generally available that make safe viewing of an eclipse possible. This includes the sooted glass that many people once believed safe. Even heavy welders' glasses do not protect.

Telescopes and binoculars trained on an eclipse are particularly dangerous. They magnify and intensify the burn. DON'T PHOTOGRAPH THE ECLIPSE unless you are an experienced professional. Looking into the viewfinder of a camera pointed at the sun is highly dangerous. Even special filters don't help, unless they are chosen with great care.

Most people, especially children, don't realize the less than one second's exposure to the direct rays of the sun can, under some circumstances, cause permanent blindness. There isn't even necessarily any immediate sensation of pain before the damage is done.

The only safe method of watching an eclipse is by the "projection method." That is, the viewer looks into an image of the eclipse, rather than the eclipse itself. The image is projected onto a white surface and the observer, WITH HIS BACK TO THE SUN, watches the image.

Most of us have set fire to a piece of paper by focusing rays of the sun through a magnifying glass. It is this same burning power that damages the retina of the eye in eclipse blindness. The sun's rays are brought to focus on the interior of the eye by the optical system within the eye.

In fact, the safest way to view the eclipse is on television or through photos in magazines and newspapers. Unless you obtain professional advice from an expert — an ophthalmologist, astronomer or optical scientist — don't look at an eclipse.

McCConnell Lauds Ferries on Sale

The Delaware River and Bay Authority is impressed with the mechanical condition of the five ferries expected to be used on the Cape May-Lewes run, its chairman said Tuesday.

J. H. Tyler McConnell, back from an inspection trip to view the craft in Norfolk, Va., said they were in "very good mechanical condition" and the authority will talk price with the owner next Tuesday.

Lucius Kellam, head of the Chesapeake Bridge and Tunnel Authority, which is replacing the ferries with a bridge-tunnel system, will come to Delaware to bargain with McConnell and Theodore C. Bright of Pennsylvania, N. J., vice chairman of the local authority.

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel, nine of the authority members, and numerous staff members, made the trip to Norfolk to view the ferries and bridge-tunnel.

New Bridge Rd. Project Starts

Construction started this week on improvement of New Bridge Road (Route 141) from the J. H. Tyler McConnell Bridge to Rockland Road, New Castle County.

The distance of the improvement is about a mile. It is a federal aid project with the state and federal governments sharing the cost.

The roadway will be widened to a varying width with a six-inch waterbound macadam base. It will be resurfaced with three-inch hot mix asphaltic concrete.

The contractor is Greggo and Ferrara, Inc., of New Castle which has 180 working days to complete the job. The low bid was $247,232.90.

53 of 90 Older Drivers Passed

All 53 older drivers examined last month by the Motor Vehicle Division passed their tests. They were checked under the division's program to examine all drivers 63 or older during the next two years.

Of the 53, two needed certification from a physician and 10 were restricted to driving with glasses.

Altogether, 90 were cited to appear. Twelve asked postponements, 16 failed to appear and lost the right to drive until they do, three have moved from the state, five are deceased and one voluntarily surrendered his license.
