

NURSING HOME HAS MOVING PROBLEM

Messick's Nursing Home, with 14 patients, has a problem. The owner, Mrs. Mildred Messick, says she has to move because the building she occupies is wanted by its owner, Herman C. Brown. She was supposed to have vacated the building on Aug. 1, she said, and remains there now only by the grace of the owner.

She has purchased a better building, purchased from Dr. Clayton Luff, at Felton, but the structure does not have a sprinkler system.

Consequently, both the State Board of Health and the State Fire Marshal have decided she cannot move at the present time.

The reason the State Board of Health and William R. Favinger, state fire marshal, won't allow Mrs. Messick to move to her new building at Felton is a code both the State Board of Health and the Fire Prevention Commission have adopted.

That regulation is that all new nursing homes must be of fire-resistant construction.

Mrs. Messick's building in Harrington does not meet that regulation, but it was there before the code was adopted. This is the case with about 13 of the 15 nursing homes in Kent and Sussex Counties. Only about two of them, according to Dr. Mires, are of fire-resistant construction.

"It was a hard decision for us to apply the law," Dr. Mires said. "We all like Mrs. Messick and we think she is doing a fine job." Dr. Mires said that if Mrs. Messick would install a sprinkler system, she would probably be allowed to move to the Felton property.

Mrs. Messick said she would install the sprinklers, if the State would give her about three to six months to do so.

"All we want is for the state to be a little lenient. Let us move to Felton, and we will meet the standards of the state," she said.

Dr. Mires said that Mrs. Messick might ask to be heard by the State Health Board, and perhaps the period of grace might be permitted. "But I can't speak for the board," he said.

Mires and Favinger both said the new building Mrs. Messick has purchased in Felton is probably an improvement over her old building in Harrington.

Favinger said Mrs. Messick has the right to appeal the decision to the Fire Prevention Commission, but that he doubts the commission would grant Mrs. Messick time to install the sprinkler system.

"If they did, they'd be foolish," Favinger said.

Favinger said the commission would be gambling if it allowed Mrs. Messick to move her nursing home to its Felton location and install the sprinkler system later.

Favinger and Dr. Mires both said Mrs. Messick "made a big mistake" when she did not contact them before buying the Felton property.

National Guard Commander Wins Commendation

An official "well done" went to Col. Kenneth C. Madden as the Delaware Army National Guard's 1963 summer training program came to a close.

Col. Madden, who commands the Guard's 160th Artillery Group with headquarters in Dover, is responsible for the training and operations of all air defense units in the Delaware Army Guard—some 1800 men.

In civilian life, he is Dr. Madden, a resident of Seaford and superintendent of the Seaford Special School District.

He received his commendation from Maj. Gen. Joseph J. Scannell, adjutant general of Delaware, for "outstanding leadership and executive ability, particularly as reflected in the organization, training and administration during the past year of personnel and units under his command."

"The superior performances of units under his command reflect careful planning and a sound grasp of management techniques," the citation continued.

Col. Madden, who earned his doctorate in education at Penn State in 1950, is also a graduate of the Army's high-level five-month-long resident course at the Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kan. He is active in a number of educational organizations, as well as in the Masons, Kiwanis, and church work.

Southern States Hold Joint Meetings Here

Approximately 1200 members of Southern State Cooperative, their families and other farm people heard reports of their cooperative's services for the 1962-63 fiscal year at a joint meeting held at the Delaware State Fairgrounds at Harrington, Aug. 8.

The session was held jointly by seven of the cooperative's retail outlets in Delaware. These were:

Southern States Dover Petroleum Cooperative, and Southern States Dover Cooperative, Dover; Southern States Milford Cooperative, Milford; Peck Brothers Farm Supply Company, Inc., Harrington; Butler's Feed and Farm Supply, Harrington; Southern States Smyrna-Clayton Cooperative, Clayton, and Mills Supply Company, Greenwood.

In addition to the report, given by J. A. McHugh, manager of Southern State Cooperative's regional office in Seaford, there were reports given by managers of the seven Agencies, elections, and the celebration of the 40th anniversary of service to farmers by the organization. Edmund Harding, well-known North Carolina humorist, was the featured speaker.

According to McHugh, the cooperative's total volume—exclusive of affiliates and grain marketing—reached $99,000,000 down slightly from the previous year—and estimated net savings amounted to $2,875,000 for the fiscal year ended June 30. McHugh also reported that a patronage refund of 1 1/2 per cent on patrons' purchases is in prospect.

Samuel Sloan of Lewes, a member of the Southern States board of directors, served as chairman of the meeting. The Rev. Olin J. Shockley, pastor of the Asbury Methodist Church, in Harrington, gave the invocation.

Charles L. Peck, Jr., manager of Peck Brothers Farm Supply Company, Inc., at Harrington, was presented with a 25-year service award, during the meeting.

The following persons were elected to the local boards and committees:

Military Band To Play Tomorrow At Rehoboth

Military music returns to Rehoboth Beach for the second straight week Saturday when the 356th P. S. Army Band, Ft. Belvoir, Va., will be featured.

This was the night the Second Army Band from Ft. Meade, Md., was to have returned to the shore resort. However the band received a blanket leave of absence this week and Captain Hal J. Gibson arranged for the Virginia unit to substitute.

According to William J. Hayes, master of ceremonies for the concert series, the 187th U. S. Army Band, Delaware National Guard, was well received last Thursday night. A crowd almost as large as Saturday audiences gathered to hear the Delaware unit, which is on active duty at Bethany Beach.

Other activities featured at the Rehoboth Bandstand for the immediate future include the Rehoboth Kiwanis Club auction at 7:30 p.m. Sun., Aug. 18. This is an annual affair where merchandise presented by businessmen is auctioned to the highest bidder for the Kiwanis Welfare Fund.

Saturday evening, Aug. 24, the Delmar High School Band, under the baton of Joshua Taylor will perform. Hays says this is another outstanding Sussex County band and is expected to draw a capacity audience.

Another musical treat is in store for shore patrons on Sunday evening, Aug. 25. Lewis "Jerry" Wright, nineteen year-old organist of Collinville, Pa., will stage a one hour concert at 8 p.m. Wright is organist in the Westminster United Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, and has an outstanding reputation for a man so young in years.

Meanwhile Rehoboth Beach continues to play host to record crowds. August is the traditional "big month" at the shore, but this year it is passing all expectations. It is expected that plans will soon be announced that new facilities will be available next year to accommodate more people at Delaware's popular resort.

Telephone Co. Costs More Than $2 Million

The Diamond State Telephone Company and its supplier, Western Electric paid some $2,927,889 for Delaware products and services during 1962, reports Myrddyn Evans, general manager of the telephone company.

These purchases were made in some 53 Delaware communities from 861 suppliers.

In the Wilmington area, the telephone company spent $781,497 and Western Electric paid out $1,518,188.

Downstate, the purchases amounted to $462,000 by the telephone company and $41,880 by Western Electric.

Evans pointed out that during 1962, his company paid $123,950 as public telephone commissions to people in the state.

This is a sizeable contribution to Delaware's growing economy, Evans added, and it is in addition to $8,509,000 payroll of the Diamond State Telephone Company in 1962.

Accidents Take No Vacations Warns Safety Council

People take vacations, but traffic accidents do not, a safety official reminded Delaware drivers this week.

To be safe on the roads in vacation time increased vigilance is essential, said J. James Ashton, manager of the Delaware Safety Council. He suggested "Slow Down and Live" be adopted as the traffic watchword this summer.

"During the remaining vacation months, thousands of motorists are on the highways, and many of them are intent on cramming as much activity as they can before the end of the summer," he said. "The result is often tragedy."

He cautioned vacationers to be on their guard against speeders, drinking drivers and drivers who disregard traffic laws. Above all, he warned them to make sure they are never guilty of such offenses themselves.

"Many vacationers get into trouble by not allowing enough time to cover the trip comfortably," Ashton said. "Then they try to make up time by driving too fast for conditions, by driving when fatigued or by disregarding traffic laws."

The safety official advised motorists to observe the following rules for a safe and pleasant trip:

1. Plan your trip so that you have plenty of time to reach your destination and return in comfort. This means a minimum of eight hours of driving, no speeding or slow-poke driving, and no driving when fatigued.
2. Before you start on your trip, learn the driving regulations of the states you expect to travel through.
3. Never drive after you've been drinking.
4. Watch for and heed all road signs and speed limits.
5. Have your car (and trailer, if you use one) safety-checked before you start your trip.
6. Load your car carefully so that luggage and equipment do not interfere with vision and will not shift dangerously in an emergency.

Old Jacobs Building Damaged By Fire

Fire badly damaged the old Jacobs Shirt Factory building on Hanley Street early Wednesday morning.

The damage, confined by firemen to a corner of the building, will be minimized as the building, owned by Fulton J. Downing, was being razed.

The building once housed part of the operations of George Sherwin, shirt manufacturer.

Origin of the blaze has not been determined.

June Report Shows Traffic on Increase

With one exception increases in traffic were recorded at the traffic counting stations along main highways during June, as compared with the records for the same month of last year.

The exception was along Route 13, south of Greenwood where a

Kent Sees Revenue In Estate Tax

Taxes from estates may provide Kent County with sources of revenue it has not been tapping.

Levy Court Commissioners Tuesday decided to make efforts to obtain those taxes and directed H. Clifford Clark, register of wills, to notify attorneys engaged in settling estates to comply with the law.

The lawyers are required to file returns in 13 months after death, and the county is entitled to one per cent of the estate inheritance tax.

James B. Messick, levy court president said there is evidence some county revenue is long overdue simply because some executors have not filed the estate returns.

How much money is involved or how many estates are still overdue isn't known, Messick and Clark said.

The Levy Court also instructed Attorney N. Maxson Terry to draw up legislation giving the county authority to transfer $20,000 in long uncollected court deposits held by the prothonotary, into the general fund.

The commissioners said the money—uncollected by attorneys or clients in old cases—is beyond repayment and should go to the county.

Legal actions, perhaps dating as far back as 1775 required deposits before filing cases. This money stems in part from deposits never claimed when cases were dropped.

Terry's bill will call for transferring money from before 1950 estimated to be about $20,000.

TB Not Partial To Youth

A "disease of youth." That's the jaunty phrase, with its faint suggestion of stary-eyed sentiment, that used to be associated with tuberculosis in the minds of many people.

The image was aided by the knowledge that such romantically youthful figures of history as John Keats, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, and Frederic Chopin all suffered from TB.

But now comes the U. S. Public Health Service with a spate of figures to prove that the lung - damaging ailment which strikes about 55,000 new victims in the United States each year has nothing especially "youthful" about it, let alone romantic.

Take the group of people no longer young but not yet qualified as senior citizens—those between 45 and 64. Their chance of turning up with new cases of active TB, according to USPHS information, is two-and-a-half times as great as that of youngsters roughly classifiable as adolescents—those aged 15 to 24.

Even more striking, those who have advanced to the "elderly" bracket—65 or over—have a rate of new active TB that's three times as high as the youthful group.

The moral is plain. TB where present but inactive in the youthful person, can break out in active form when middle or old age is reached. Those now infected should have been protected against exposure in

McDowell Backs President in Chicken War

In a major speech in the House this week Congressman Harris B. McDowell, Jr. (D-Del.) strongly backed President Kennedy and the State Department in their moves to protect U.S. poultrymen in the growing international chicken war.

Christian A. Herter, former Secretary of State, who is President Kennedy's trade negotiator, has listed 19 items, from wine to cheese to trucks and buses, which the United States is prepared to remove from the favorable trade concession list unless the $46,000,000 in increased levies against U.S. poultry is removed.

Congressman McDowell told his colleagues that he strongly approved the public hearings scheduled to be held in Washington Sept. 4, and he said he would be glad to list with the Department of State all Delaware poultrymen who contacted him to give them priority rights in order of witnesses to be heard.

McDowell's speech in the House of Representatives follows: Mr. McDowell: Mr. Speaker, the State Department is absolutely right in its moves to counter the exclusionist policies and tariffs of the European Common market countries where our country's poultry is concerned.

Delaware poultry producers are united in backing the State Department and President Kennedy in this matter.

I strongly support the President's trade negotiator, Christian A. Herter in his move to list 19 items, from wine and cheese to trucks and buses, which the United States is prepared to remove from the favorable trade concession list unless the levies raised against this Nation's poultry-levies which have been tripled in the past year—are removed.

I have been in constant touch with President Kennedy and the State Department officials on this matter of Delaware's poultry.

This is a matter in which President Kennedy has shown deep understanding and great interest.

It seems to me to be the height of folly to open our own markets to products from the Common Market countries, give these countries $46 million in trade concessions on their products which compete in our own country against our own products, and then stand idly by while they triple their tariff levies against us on poultry.

I want to go on record as saying that I have invited all of Delaware's poultry producers to see my office for the duration of this emergency.

I shall do whatever I can to make sure that their case is heard at the hearings which begin September 4 in Washington, D. C. I am sure that all of the people of Delaware are united on this matter, and that they consider an injury to Delaware's poultry producers as an injury to all of Delaware's manufacturers and producers.

Milford to Observe 176th Birthday

Milford is about to observe its 176th birthday and while the "Garden City of Twin Counties" is not quite as old as some other Delaware communities, its history and growth parallels that of the area of which it has long been the business and cultural center.

In order that the 176th anniversary of their city's founding may be appropriately marked and shared with others, the Milford Historical Society, with the encouragement and assistance of Mayor Alphonso E. Humes and City Council, the Chamber of Commerce and other local organizations, is now completing arrangements for a series of special events during the month of September.

Highlighting the anniversary observance will be "Old Milford Days", Sept. 21-22, when more than a dozen old homes and buildings will be opened to the public. Also on display, in public buildings and in downtown store windows, will be many interesting collections of relics from Milford's history-packed past.

Focal point of the Old Milford Days observance will be the Parson Thorne Mansion on Silver Hill in the northwestern section of the city. This "newest" of Delaware's many historical shrines and tourist attractions is believed to be the oldest dwelling in the area and was the home of the Rev. Sydenham Thorne, co-founder with Joseph Oliver, of Milford.

An old English Colonial type structure, built just prior to the American Revolution, the Parson Thorne Mansion was acquired by the Milford Historical Society last year as a gift from Richard Draper, member of a family long associated with the industrial life of this area. The mansion is gradually being restored to its former stately appearance and proceeds from this year's Old Milford Days tours will be used to further this restoration work.

A small family burial plot near the mansion contains the graves of the parents of John M. Clayton, a Delawarean who attained international stature as secretary of state in President Zachary Taylor's cabinet.

Always of interest to Milford visitors is Christ Episcopal Church. This imposing religious edifice, begun in 1791 by the Rev. Thorne, its first rector, still retains many of the features that associate it with Milford's early days.

A Milford area home that will attract much attention on Old Milford Days is "Mordington", the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie I. March.

Situated on a tree-shaded knoll overlooking McCauley's Pond, this outstanding example of Georgian architecture was built around 1777 by Walter Douglas, who has extensive holdings that included, in addition to Mordington, considerable farmland, an iron foundry, a mill and wharfs near the headquarters of the nearby Murderkill Creek. The distinguished Delaware statesman, John M. Clayton, was a frequent visitor to Mordington.

In pre-Civil War days, Mordington was a "station" on the so-called "underground railroad" used by runaway slaves enroute to the North and freedom. While a tunnel used by these slaves has long been sealed off, evidence of slave quarters may still be seen in cellar and on the surrounding grounds.

The present owners of Mordington have furnished it with many beautiful antiques and have successfully preserved the charm of this gracious, old residence.

Old Milford Days tours will be conducted from 11:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m., on Saturday, September 21, and from 1 to 5 p. m., on Sunday, September 22.

Governor Elbert N. Carvel and other state officials will join with local officials and Milford Historical Society officers in a public reception at the Milford City Hall the afternoon of September 21.

Vegetable production in 1962 totaled 213.4 million hundredweight.

Williams Discusses The Grain Market

U. S. Senator John J. Williams (R-Del.) has accused the Department of Agriculture of manipulating the nation's grain markets and throwing "tremendous profits to grain speculators and dealers."

Williams made the charge in a Senate speech in which he said poultry and dairy farmers are paying about $5 a ton more for mixed feed as a result of the "manipulation."

According to the Delaware senator, the Commodity Credit Corporation practically stopped selling corn, barley, oats, and grain sorghums during July and August when farmers generally are buying grain to feed livestock and poultry.

"This decision of the Government to create an artificial vacuum in the supply of feed grains during this two-month period set the stage for spectacular profits for the grain dealers and speculators," he told the Senate.

"The Government has given the storage operators a golden opportunity to dispose of their grains at substantially increased prices," he said.

Williams said that Government sales of corn dropped 99% in July as compared with June, barley sales were off 90% in the same period, oats down 96% and grain sorghums sales dropped 80%.

Meanwhile, he said, corn prices jumped 17c per bushel in July, barley was up from 69c in June to 96c in July, the price of oats rose from 49c per bushel in June to 70c in July, and grain sorghums advanced slightly.

Firemen Plan Annual Fund Drive

The annual fund drive conducted by the local firemen will kick off earlier this year, with the mailing of letters of appeal to each resident in the community and rural areas served by the company, beginning this week.

The committee plans to solicit the business houses all next week and a house-to-house canvass will be staged next Wednesday evening, Aug. 21, between the hours of 6 to 9 p.m. One long blast of the siren will signal the beginning of the canvass. Everyone is earnestly urged to support this worthy cause.

Vegetable production in 1962 totaled 213.4 million hundredweight.

Mr. Anon. said it; many bosses second it: A man is only half a success until he has a good wife!

What else besides electricity does so much for you at such low cost? Frinstance, here are some estimated operating costs for typical use, by an average family, of some important electric "servants"—

- 100-watt light bulb—2¢ for 8 hours
Electric clothes dryer—5¢ to 7¢ per load
Freezer (6 to 8 cu. ft.)—5¢ per day
Range (4 in family)—2 1/2¢ per meal
Refrigerator—3¢ to 4¢ per day
Room air conditioner—2 1/2¢ to 4¢ per hour
Dishwasher—1¢ per load
Don't you agree, electricity is one of your best buys?

Allergic to angora? It may sound fantastic, but this trick really works: Put your angora yarn or sweater in the refrigerator for a few hours. This stops the fluffing that starts the sneezing.

Mr. and Mrs. David Alvin Greenly, Jr.

Miss Charlotte Louise Rapp Marries David Alvin Greenly, Jr.

Asbury Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Charlotte Louise Rapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Rapp and Mr. David Alvin Greenly, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. David Alvin Greenly, of Lincoln, at 7 o'clock in the evening of Aug. 3.

The Rev. Olin J. Shockley officiated at the double-ring ceremony before an altar decorated with white gladioli, pompoms, fern and candleabra.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a floor length white gown of silk organza over taffeta, featuring a slim bodice with semi-princess lines, portrait neckline and chapel sleeves. The basque waist and skirt were trimmed with delicate appliques of chantilly lace. The back fullness of the skirt had an obi sash and fell into a chapel train. A double crown pearl tiara held her imported silk illusion veil and she carried white carnations on a white Bible fastened with baby's breath and green ivy.

Mrs. Paul West, of Bridgeville, was matron of honor. She wore a mint green crinkle nylon gown with matching head piece. She carried a pale yellow carnation nosegay.

Robert L. Farley, of Lincoln, was best man. The ushers were Terry Johnson, of Harrington, and David Nichols, of Milford.

The mother of the bride wore pink crinkle nylon with satin trim and matching accessories. Her corsage was miniature white roses.

The mother of the bridegroom wore turquoise nylon with matching accessories. Her corsage was also miniature white roses.

Melvin Brobst played the wedding music and accompanied Mrs. William Kramedas, of Harrington, who sang: "Oh, Promise Me", "Because", and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride is a 1962 graduate of Harrington High School and is employed by the First National Bank, Harrington.

The bridegroom is a 1962 graduate of Milford High School and recently graduated from the Navy's Aviation Machinist Mate School at Memphis, Tenn. He is now stationed at N.A.F., Washington, D. C.

A reception was held in Collins Hall after which the young couple left on a honeymoon in the Pocomo.

Many Scorch Stains Can Be Removed

Even with the increasing popularity of easy-care fabrics, today's homemaker still does a lot of ironing. And occasionally she scorches a spot on her husband's favorite shirt or a good linen tablecloth.

Fortunately, however, most scorch marks on washable fabrics can be removed, says Katie Thomas, Kent County extension agent, home economics.

If the fibers are not damaged or weakened to a great extent, you can remove the scorch stains and still get a lot of use from the article. Severe scorching may cause permanent damage, however.

When the scorch mark is yellow or very light brown, the stain can usually be removed by a thorough laundering with plenty of hot water and a heavy-duty detergent, followed by a thorough rinsing.

If laundering does not remove the stain on white cotton, linen or rayon, immerse the stained area for 5 minutes in a solution of two tablespoons of chlorine bleach to one quart of water. Rinse at least three times in clear water.

To remove scorch from washable white silk, wool, colored cottons and acetate, mix two tablespoons hydrogen peroxide to a gallon of water and soak one-half hour, or longer if the scorch stain remains. If the fabric is colored soak an inconspicuous corner in the solution first to test for colorfastness. Rinse at least twice in clear water.

Another method for removing scorch stains is to hang the article in the sun while it is damp, re-moistening the stain occasionally, so that the sunlight may bleach out the stain.

Since even scorch which can be removed may weaken the fabric, it is better to prevent scorch stains than to have to remove them. Scorch most often occurs when the iron is too hot or when it is left in one spot too long, but it can also be caused when detergent is not thoroughly rinsed out of the fabric. Sometimes, too, starched articles seem to scorch more easily, so it may be necessary to use an iron on notch cooler than that usually used when the same fabric is not starched. It is very difficult to remove scorch from non-washable fabrics, and Mrs. Thomas recommends sending these articles to a reliable dry cleaner.

1000 Visitors View Ag Research

More than 1000 people took advantage of the University of Delaware's invitation to visit its Georgetown research farm during Farm and Home Field Day Aug. 7 and see some of the work being conducted there. In addition to a look at more than 80 agricultural research projects, there was time to visit with old friends, talk to University specialists about farm problems and shake hands with Delaware's governor Elbert N. Carvel.

One of the main attractions at Field Day was a sick plant clinic manned by School of Agriculture specialists. Visitors brought 77 different plant problems to the clinic for diagnosis and recommendation. Dr. John Heuberger, University plant pathologist, said this was an increase in participation over last year's clinic. Major problems centered around mites, thrips and nutritional deficiencies. Of the 77 specimens, 33 dealt with insects, 27 with nutritional disorders and fertility problems and 17 with plant diseases.

Heuberger reported that 350 people visited the clinic during the day to examine an exhibit on soybean diseases and insects and to talk about plant disease and insect problems.

The windowless broilerhouse, a topic of much conversation among peninsula poultrymen seemed to draw a lot of attention. Poultrymen had an opportunity to go inside the house and examine the birds. Frank D'Armi, research associate at the University Substation who is in charge of the poultry work, told them that the birds were making excellent progress. The 5,000 birds were placed in the house nine weeks before Field Day and, for all practical purposes, they didn't see the light of day until they were removed from the house and sent to the processors the day after Field Day.

Although carcass data won't be available for a few days, D'Armi feels the birds will outweigh birds raised at the Substation in conventional houses during this same period. It is the hope of University poultrymen and agricultural engineers that this new kind of housing will result in a better rate of gain, higher feed conversion and lower mortality rate.

The house is almost completely automatic. The birds are fed and watered automatically. Fans are operated by thermostats which kick in and out when the temperature reaches certain critical stages. The house is lighted night and day by a few small light bulbs. Workers at the University Farm indicate that practically no actual labor is required in managing the birds. "All we do is stop in occasionally to see that the automatic feeders are working and that nothing has gone haywire. So far we've had very few problems." The University plans to make a complete report on the windowless house available to producers as soon as the data has been compiled.

The effects of insect damage on crops has long been a topic of vital interest to Delaware farmers. Walter Connell, University entomologist, showed visitors to Farm and Home Field Day some experimental work he is conducting to determine just how much damage soybean plants can stand without suffering yield losses. In this experiment he removed leaves from soybean plants to simulate insect damage. In one plot all of the leaves were removed while the beans were blooming. In other plots 1/4, 1/2 and 3/4 of the leaves were removed at various stages of growth.

He indicates that when all of the leaves were removed during the blooming stage, a substantial loss in yield could be expected. Surprisingly, though, when as many as half of the leaves were removed during this stage there seemed to be very little effect on the plants. Connell told visitors that after the plants had bloomed, there seemed to be very little effect on the plant yield even when all of the leaves were removed. He plans to get yield data on the beans this fall. From this he feels entomologists will be better equipped to advise growers on the need for using insecticides to combat insect outbreaks.

Dr. Richard Cole, agronomist at the University, told visitors to his research plots that the problem of controlling weeds in soybeans hasn't been completely licked. He showed them several plots where different commercial weed control chemicals had been used. Some showed excellent results while others were quite disappointing. Cole is trying to establish a weed control method that will give excellent results with not cultivation at a cost of less than $10 per acre. He indicated that he has been able to get excellent control but the cost thus far has been prohibitive.

In another weed control experiment, Cole has been attempting to find out the effects of chemical residues on soybeans that follow corn. Atrazine, a chemical that is commonly used on corn, can have disastrous results on a soybean crop that follows the next season. Cole has been experimenting at various levels and forms of Atrazine application to see which method can be used safely. So far the only sure way to tell if the beans will be damaged is to use a fall seeded cover crop such as barley or rye. If the cover crop is damaged, then it's a good bet the soybeans that might follow would be damaged also, he says.

Bridge Traffic On Increase

Delaware Memorial Bridge traffic gained 11,061 vehicles in the first two months of the new 1963-64 fiscal year, officials reported this week.

Crossings for June and July totaled 2,559,184 as compared to 2,548,133 in 1962.

Actually passenger car traffic dropped in July by 43,590 vehicles, General Manager Frank J. Horty reported to members of the Delaware River and Bay Authority, but truck traffic in all categories was up by 21,538 vehicles. There was a decline of 2,030 crossings in the unpaid category the report shows.

Actual number of crossings in July was 1,343,403 compared to 1,367,845 a year earlier.

New rates went into effect on July 1 in anticipation of building a second bridge and establishment of ferry service between Cape May, N. J. and Lewes. Revenue jumped a healthy 64.1 percent for this reason over July of last year.

Total income in July was $476,053.35 as compared to $305,677.10 in July 1962. Total revenue for the two month period was $1,228,278.45, while a year earlier it was $909,983.25.

Harty said there has been an increase in the sale of commuter ticket books since the new rates went into effect. There were 178,919 crossings last month by users of the 50-trip commutation book good for a calendar month, while 20-trip book users made 43,076 trips. The 50-trip book sells for $5.00 reducing the rate to ten cents a crossing, while the 20-trip, two-calendar month booklet reduces fares to 20 cents a trip, Horty pointed out.

Farmers... Read How the Best Seed Costs You Less

How do you measure the value of seeds? The surest way is in terms of what they will produce for you, the amount of hay or grain you get by planting them. The best seeds you can buy always cost you less in the long run because the best seeds—such as Southern States quality Seeds—yield more tons of hay or more bushels of grain in relation to their price. When quality seeds are your best buy, why settle for less?

For example, many farmers still plant home-grown seeds or buy seeds from their neighbors. In many instances these seeds are not cleaned, not treated and not tagged. Often even the variety is questionable. These seeds could be the most expensive seeds in the world. Result: thin stands, weed-choked fields, disease losses, low yields, poor returns. Can you afford to take a chance on seed quality?

This year plant the seeds you can afford—Southern States quality Seeds. Get thick stands, disease protection, high yields and maximum returns. If the best costs less, why not travel first class? Phone or visit your Southern States Cooperative Agency now.

News On Second Delaware Bay Bridge

Just 12 years ago on Aug. 15, 1951, dedication exercises were held and traffic began to stream over the new Delaware Memorial Bridge—the first link between the First State and the State of New Jersey.

Now a dozen years later—with a volume of more than 108,000,000 vehicles recorded—a new bi-state commission known as the Delaware River and Bay Authority is contemplating the erection of a second span parallel to the present structure.

The need for such action is dramatically shown in a study of traffic figures for the decade in which the bridge has served as a crossroads of eastern travel for both tourists and commercial traffic.

There has been an average increase of 467,060 vehicles each year since the span started operation and total traffic has been far ahead of consulting engineers' estimates made prior to its construction.

There is ample reason for this differential bridge officials point out. The only criteria which engineers could work was the traffic pattern established by the old New Castle-Pennsville ferry. In its biggest year the ferry carried slightly in excess of three million vehicles.

The New Jersey Turnpike, which has been the principal feeder line to the bridge had not gone into the planning stage at the time Delaware legislators approved plans for a connection between the two states in 1945. In fact, the Turnpike was dedicated a year after the Bridge formally opened to traffic.

A study of annual traffic figures reveals there was just one year when crossings decreased. This was during fiscal 1957-58. It was in January and February, 1958 that the east coast had one of its most severe winters and traffic movement was at a minimum.

Although the maintenance department kept the bridge free of snow and ice with a minimum of delay, on several days when storms were in progress, people were just not venturing out doors. Thus in 1957-58 there was a drop of 234,249 vehicles over the previous year.

Checking compilations of other years these gains were shown: From August 1951 to May 31, 1952, a period of nine and a half months, 4,329,873 crossings were recorded. Then the first full fiscal year 1952-53 produced 6,995,019 crossings—an excess of the annual total predicted to be built up by the year 1960. This was the great awakening to the fact that the span was much needed.

Annual increases then became the order, producing these excesses except as mentioned in 1957-58: 1953-54, 5,033,402; 1954-55, 3,673,351; 1955-56, 5,981,163; 1956-57, 3,499,986; 1957-58, 234,249 (loss); 1958-59, 7,800,874; 1959-60, 6,574,459; 1960-61, 5,725,521; 1961-62, 7,163,386; 1962-63, 5,892,239.

Thus it is readily seen why several years ago attention was given to studying the feasibility of a second span. Traffic actually built up to a point where there were more than 60,000 crossings in a single day on several occasions. During peak days these last several years, a 50,000 daily count no longer created comment.

This meant that capacity at peak hours was nearing saturation and steps would have to be taken to find relief. The firm of Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, consultants since the first span was built, made the necessary study for a parallel span.

Secretary of the Army Cyrus R. Vance approved a permit to build the second structure just last week. It is expected that this will be a major item for consideration at the next Authority meeting which is scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 27.

Meanwhile the new Authority has also gone on record to establish ferry service between Cape May, N. J., and Lewes. It is expected that ferries and equipment will be purchased from the Virginia Bridge and Tunnel Commission. An option for such purchase expires Sept. 13.

The bridge has been under the direction and supervision of two political bodies prior to the establishment of the present Delaware River and Bay Authority which is composed of five Delaware and five New Jersey representatives appointed this year by the present governors, Hon. Elbert N. Carvel and Hon. Richard J. Hughes.

Originally a Delaware Crossing Division of the Delaware Highway Department was in charge of construction. After the first permanent manager was appointed, he reported directly to the State Highway Commission. This continued until 1955 when the Delaware General Assembly created a three-member authority known as the Delaware Interstate Highway Division. The new Authority was charged with planning for further limited access or controlled access highways and consideration of the feasibility of another crossing. The Division was composed of the late Garrett E. Lyons, director and J. Henry Topkis and the late Leroy F. Hawke as members. They took office on the spans fourth anniversary, August 15, 1955.

It became obvious by this time that New Jersey was interested in participating in an Authority for management of the bridge. Its legislature passed a bill in 1955 to impose a license fee on bridge properties located in New Jersey.

On October 3, 1955 Governors Robert B. Meyner, of New Jersey, and J. Caleb Boggs, of Delaware, met in Trenton with members of the New Jersey State Highway Department and the Interstate Division to begin negotiations to solve mutual problems.

Upon the sudden death of Mr. Lyons in February 1960, J. H. Tyler McConnell, a former chairman of the Delaware State Highway Commission was appointed to the three-man board and assumed the directorship. The Interstate Division continued until February 6, 1963 when the Delaware River and Bay Authority was activated.

Every indication seems to point toward bi-state cooperation in the planning and execution of the second bridge and ferry projects. It is felt that a second crossing between the states will open up an era of unprecedented development in southern New Jersey and Delaware — at least that is the fond hope of the ten men who now direct the fate of all future crossings between the two states.

In the interim years, improvements were made to the span and its facilities. An entire new lighting system was installed and extended to the plaza area. New and modern devices were purchased to insure safe passage over the span. Additional buildings on the plaza were constructed to provide for board meetings, maintenance housing and storage. The Division acquired 25 additional acres of land for the project.

The structure was declared the most beautiful span erected in 1951 by the American Steel Institute and also has become known as the world's best lighted single suspension bridge.

Dedicated to the World War II and Korea conflict dead of New Jersey and Delaware, a suitable memorial was developed which was dedicated October 20, 1956.

It was shortly thereafter that the Interstate Highway Division acquired an additional forty acres of land adjoining the memorial and running back to Cherry Lane. After his death the Delaware General Assembly passed a bill naming the area as the Garrett E. Lyons Memorial Park.

Delaware Memorial Bridge has become noted for many other things during its twelve years of service to the public. Receptionists in the Information Center have established a reputation for friendliness as they provide expert service and guidance. Outside the center are public picnic tables and umbrellas so that travelers or picnickers may stop there to have their lunch, augmented by soft drinks and ice cream from nearby vending machines. There's always free coffee available for truckers to keep them awake as they plod on with their loads of fresh vegetables or other merchandise.

Still listed as the seventh longest single suspension bridge in the world, it may have to move down to eighth when a new structure is completed in the New York area. But the Bridge does not have to bow to anyone when it comes to providing safe passage to the multitudes who use it.

Think of it—travel agencies estimate that the average passenger car carries 3.1 persons on the average trip. If this be so, then well over three hundred million people have traversed the Delaware River over this sleek structure of steel and concrete since August 15, 1951.

Does Your Car Have a Horn Ring?

Does your car have a horn ring? If it doesn't, do you wish it did?

Delaware Motor Club AAA, along with other AAA affiliated clubs throughout the country, is interested in finding out how you feel about the full-circle horn ring that has been missing from the steering wheel of new cars for several years.

"It's just possible," says William P. Markland, manager of the local AAA, "that car-makers goofed when they replaced the horn ring with buttons on the steering wheel. There have been complaints about this in some parts of the country. Women drivers, especially, have maintained that they can't locate the horn buttons quickly enough in an emergency. We're interested in knowing how Delaware motorists feel about this."

Markland is inviting postcards or letters on the subject from every Delawarean who drives a car. And while he can't promise that anything will come of it, he has agreed to forward all opinions to the Automobile Manufacturers Association.

"If enough people want to see the horn ring come back," he said, "there's no doubt that Detroit will restore it. After all, the car-builders are anxious to please the public."

Communications should be addressed to Delaware Motor Club AAA, 911 Tatnall Street, Wilmington.

July 1 Corn Stocks Lowest Since 1958

The U. S. Department of Agriculture's quarterly grain stocks report is evidence of the feed grain program's success in reducing surpluses, Chairman Jacob Zimmerman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee said today. The report shows July 1 corn stocks of 2,118,498,000 bushels—the lowest for the date since 1958.

For the second consecutive year, corn stocks on July 1 have been less than a year earlier and are now 700 million bushels below the record July 1, 1961 stocks of 2,816,056,000 bushels. Last year's July 1 report showed the first decline since 1952. The first two years of the feed grain program have resulted in rolling back the corn surplus by the amount that it was increased from the excessively large 1958, 1959 and 1960 crops.

The reversal of the feed grain build-up results from the better balance being achieved between feed grain production and consumption through the feed grain program, the chairman pointed out. In addition, the provision for financing the program through in-kind payments from Commodity Credit Corporation grain stocks has made it possible to use accumulated surplus in maintaining feed consumption and exports at high levels. This, with the adjustment in production levels, is pulling stocks down to more manageable size.

The quarterly grain report—including stocks on farms, in commercial storage such as mill, elevators, and warehouses, and in Commodity Credit Corporation bins—shows that the combined total of all feed grains was 11 per cent less this July 1 than last year. Corn stocks show a drop of 14 per cent from a year ago and are 9 per cent less than the 1957-61 average for July 1.

FENCE TALK With George Vapaa

Do you plan to make a fall seeding? A lawn perhaps? Does the field need lime? What fertilizer are you going to use and how much per acre?

If you don't have the answers to these questions, have the soil tested now. Don't wait until the day you make the seeding and then guess.

Doing the job right can make the difference between a successful "catch" and a poor "catch" or a failure.

A successful new seeding will start that field or lawn towards years of highly productive, high-quality forage.

Ask our office for information, telephone 736-1448, on how to have soil tested.

You can fish, hunt, or sit outdoors without having to fight off mosquitoes, gnats and other annoying pests. Simply use an insect repellent.

Many repellents are available in aerosol form or as lotions. They can be purchased at most drug or sporting goods stores. Best overall protection is obtained with lotions. One application on exposed skin or clothing gives protection for several hours. They're not irritating to the skin, and don't stain most clothing.

Just the same, you should read the label on the container before using these insect repellents. Follow directions. Some repellents may damage synthetic fabrics, plastic materials, watch crystals and eyeglass frames.

Grain must contain less than 14 per cent moisture to store without spoiling. A lot of small grain has been damaged by high moisture content. Do not combine too early in the morning, too late in the evening, or too soon after a shower.

If grain is too tough to store, and drying facilities are unavailable, spread the grain on the barn floor and turn it often until dry. Never store grain in bulk until you're certain it is below 14 per cent moisture.

Lower tomato plant leaves sometimes roll or curl during growing season. This usually happens when a hot, dry spell follows a good growing period. Older leaves become less active than younger leaves, and during dry or very warm weather these are the first leaves to show effects of this partial water deficit in plants by curling.

No disease producing organism or insect causes this type of leaf curling. It is likely to occur on vigorous plants, and is especially noticeable on plants trained to single stems and tied to stakes. Plant aphids sometimes cause leaves to curl. Aphids can be identified on leaves.

Hot hogs require three times as much feed per pound of gain as cool hogs. At 60 degrees, 400 pounds of feed will produce 100 pounds of pork compared to 1200 pounds of feed per 100 pounds of pork at 85 degrees. Anything you can do to keep them cooler will pay.

Hogs remain fairly comfortable at temperatures that do not go above 75 degrees. When the mercury jumps above this mark, hogs are likely to have difficulty in breathing and show little interest in eating except in the morning and after sundown.

Research by the U. S. Department of Agriculture indicates that an effective way of keeping hogs cool is to install a shower or sprinkler where the pigs can move in and out of it at will. Three pinpoint nozzles using as little as 2 1/2 gallons of water per hour per nozzle will supply a fine mist sufficient to keep a pen of 40 to 50 pigs comfortably cool all day.

Researchers have found that a cooling spray is an especially good management practice to use with pigs raised on concrete. The spray cools the concrete as well as the pigs.

A sprinkler can be used for pigs on pasture as well. A portable shade with sprinkler moved from one part of a field to another on successive days will avoid

Their mouths seem to be just right for spreading bacteria and viruses which cause diseases. They feed on many things by letting their saliva run onto the food. The saliva dissolves a small amount of the food and then the fly sucks up the mixture of saliva and food. They have the habit of buzzing from filth to your food whenever they can. Fortunately, screens keep this disease-spreading pest from our food most of the time. Some of the diseases associated with the housefly are typhoid fever, tuberculosis, leprosy, tapeworms, bubonic plague and abscesses.

Not only are they important in disease, but they are extremely annoying to people and animals by buzzing around and crawling on skin.

Most people think that the smaller flies around the house and barns are young houseflies. Any fly with wings is fully grown no matter what his size, shape or color. Young houseflies are maggots that grow through several stages before emerging as the winged pest that we know so well.

One female housefly may lay over 1,000 eggs in a lifetime. If all of the offspring of one female were to survive and produce the normal number of offspring on and on through one summer season, there would be enough houseflies in August to cover the earth 57 feet deep. This never happens because of the wonderful system of nature called balance, a system which keeps most numbers under tolerable control.

Houseflies can be controlled only by a thorough campaign which consists of proper disposal of manure, garbage, sewage, food wastes, dead animals, and organic waste. In most rural areas, this sort of campaign is nearly impossible—certainly very impractical.

As a result, insecticides must be used. One of the best fly sprays of recent years is Vapona or DDVP. It is considered fairly safe for man and animals and its short life as a residue is an added advantage. Pyrethrin, or pyrethrum as it is sometimes spelled, is also effective for knocking flies down, but it doesn't equal DDVP. Other materials which are effective are korian, ciodrin, and malathion. These are not trade names so you must look for the list of active ingredients on an insecticide container in order to be sure that you have one of them. Before using any of these, be sure to read the label carefully; do what it says—and only what it says.

Delaware Food Market Report

How many food items can you name that haven't gone up in price over the past 20 years? Chicken is probably one of a very few, and it's one of your best buys this summer. This weekend check this meat, since many stores are offering this fast-cooking bird at bargain prices.

It hasn't been so long ago when you bought a 3 pound chicken, the feathers, feet, and everything else was included in the weight on which the price was based. Today, things are quite different, you pay for only what you cook—and your purchase is usually cut up into easy-to-handle parts.

Poultry is a bargain, thanks to the many people who are more efficient, and the research done by the U.S.D.A. Beef, the mainstay among our red meats, continues low in price with specials frequent on a wide variety of cuts. Also, watch lamb specials, they are likely to continue throughout this week. Among the less expensive cuts of lamb, consider the shoulder, suitable for barbecuing as kabobs, when cut into cubes and marinated.

There is a wide selection of frozen and canned fishery products available. Cold-storage supplies of frozen fishery products on June 1 were nearly 30 per cent above last year. July and August are generally the heaviest months of the year for fresh fishery items, because weather permits large catches. But, demand is also heavy because fish suits warm weather meals. Abundant fresh fish include bluefish, porgies, swordfish, mackerel and flounder.

Eggs are cheaper, although this is the season for them to be going up. An extra carton or two in the shopping cart will give you a good incentive to use eggs more frequently and more generously. Eggs are versatile.

Fresh vegetables are leading produce counters in local stores despite the dry weather. Many vegetables are wearing lower price tags, also. Cabbage, radishes, sweet corn, cauliflower, peppers, eggplant, and lettuce are all cheaper. Regular tomatoes are not quite as good a value now as they will be later.

One bonus that hot weather is bringing to market is a big supply of fine quality cantaloupes. The brighter the sun's rays, the higher the mercury, the better the cantaloupes ripen. Other fruit choices include new apples for cooking, limes, eastern pears, and watermelons.

Farm Bureau Members Hold Picnic

The Sussex County Farm Bureau Picnic was held at Slaughter Beach, Thurs., Aug. 8.

A large group attended and after a fine meal had been enjoyed by everyone, ice cream and soft drinks were furnished by the Sussex County Farm Bureau. Many games were enjoyed by all. The highlight of the picnic came when Mrs. H. Edward Wheatley and Mrs. William H. Prettyman Jr. in charge of the queen contest presented five very pretty girls for the Sussex County Farm Bureau Queen contest.

Miss Charlene Workman, of Bridgeville, was selected as the Sussex County Farm Bureau Queen, and Miss Faye Seely as the runner up. Miss Charlene Workman will compete and represent Sussex County Farm Bureau in the finals for the Delaware State Farm Bureau Queen, on Wed., Nov. 6, at Dover.

Jr. Fishing Rodeo Tomorrow

Further proof that "Fishing in Delaware Waters is Fun" will be provided this Saturday when an estimated 3000 youthful fishermen compete in the sixth annual Delaware Junior Fishing Rodeo.

The competition, open to all youngsters between the ages of six and sixteen, will be held simultaneously from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at fourteen ponds and lakes throughout the state. Those landing the heaviest fish at each site will be designated as local fishing "kings" and "queens".

Contest rules provide that participants must furnish their own fishing gear and bait (any legalized form of live or artificial lure), must bait their own hooks, do their own casting and land their catches unassisted. All types of fresh water fish, except eels, will be counted, with the weighing and measuring being done by representatives of the State Game and Fish Commission.

A fitting climax to the statewide competition will be provided by the annual recognition banquet which will be held at the Capitol Grange, Dover, the evening of Sat., Sept. 7. Regional winners will be guests at this affair and will receive prizes in recognition of their accomplishments. U. S. Savings Bonds and trophies will also be presented to the boy and girl named as the 1963 Delaware Junior Fishing King and Queen.

Additional information may be obtained from the Delaware Junior Fishing Rodeo Association, P. O. Box 106, New Castle, Delaware, or from the sponsors of local contests.

Senior League Title Goes To First National

Ted Layton's First National Bank nine, winners of the first half title in the Harrington Senior Baseball League, defeated Jack Dill's Merchants, the second half champs, in two straight games to walk off with the league crown.

Wednesday night Steve Motter and Marshall Hatfield each pitched a five hitter with Motter getting the verdict when Tom Simpson made a nice catch of Bob Dean's line drive, with runners on second and third, to end the game with a score of 5-4.

Terry Yoder had two of the Banker's bingles. Raleigh Davis matched this performance for the losers. Glenn Smith and Motter again demonstrated their versatility. Both these lads pitch, catch and play the infield positions as well.

Thursday night both managers had to experiment in the pitching department since the front-line hurlers for both teams had used up all the innings they are allowed to pitch in a week. Ted Layton tried Tom Simpler while Jack Dill used Tom's brother, Jim Simpler. Neither could go the distance as the Banker's won an 18-9 slugfest.

Terry Yoder, a Little League pitcher last year, took the mound in the fourth inning and blanked the losers on one scratch hit the rest of the game.

Bob Reed, Dan Smith and Tom Simpler had two hits apiece for First National. Simpler and Steve Motter hit back-to-back home runs. Marshall Hatfield had half of the Merchants 4 hits.
