

CHILD DIES IN REFRIGERATOR

Services were held Sunday for 4-year-old John Charles Voies, who accidentally suffocated the previous Thursday in an abandoned refrigerator.

He was first noticed missing by his grandfather, John L. Wix, at about 3 p.m. Neighbors and friends began searching. They combed the area for two hours without success.

At 5 p.m. the Harrington Police, the State Police, and the Harrington Fire Department were called and they joined the search. The search continued for another three hours, until the boy's grandfather found his body curled up in the refrigerator.

The child was pronounced dead by Dr. Robert Weaver, a Harrington physician. Deputy Coroner Donald Durham certified that death was caused by suffocation.

State Police said that the tragedy is being investigated. The law states that an abandoned refrigerator must have the door removed.

The victim is the son of Mrs. Rosalie Voies, 2 Center St. here, and John E. Voies, Cleveland, O. He is also survived by his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Leon Wix, of the Center Street address; his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Voies, Cleveland, and a younger sister, Mary Louise.

Rites were at 1 p.m. at the J. Millard Cooper Funeral Home.

Hazel Buys Delmar Newspaper

The Bi-State Printing Co., which publishes the weekly Delmar newspaper, will change hands Sept. 1 when control is assumed by James K. Hazel Jr., Seaford.

Hazel purchased the business earlier this month from William C. Calloway, who leaves the company to become Delmar postmaster.

Hazel goes to Delmar from Seaford where he makes his home with his wife, the former Mary Elizabeth Adams, of Wilmington, and their son, Scott John.

Now chief of the News-Journal Sussex Bureau at Georgetown, Hazel has been with the News-Journal Co. since March, 1960, when he began his newspaper career in the Dover Bureau.

Born in Milford, he attended elementary school at Rehoboth Beach. He was graduated from Dover High School in 1953 and Wesley College in 1955.

He holds a commission as 1st lieutenant in the Delaware National Guard, and is assigned to the staff of the 160th Group at Dover.

The Delmar firm publishes the Bi-State Weekly, the local paper. Established in 1932, it was operated until 1948 by the G. T. Jones Printing Co., when it was purchased by Calloway, who has operated it since that time.

Brochure Details Play-Space Needs

A brochure outlining the need for space for outdoor recreation in Delaware will be mailed this week to 7,000 citizens of the state.

Prepared by 13 organizations, which contributed ideas, information, personnel and money, the brochure outlines the state's growth during the last 50 years.

In 1913, it notes, Delaware had a population of 202,000 with half living in Wilmington and the other half on farm, in villages and small towns.

Today, however, there are fewer farm people and fewer Wilmingtonians than there were then even though the population of the state has soared to more than 450,000. More than 400,000 live in urban or suburban areas.

The brochure points out that "in Delaware today there are simply not enough good, uncrowded places open to the public to be found. There are not enough parks with bathing and boating, not enough pleasant wild places for picnicking or nature study or camping, not enough public fishing or hunting areas."

It says House Bill 398 follows recommendations of the Welfare Council of Delaware, Inc., a Red Feather agency devoted to research, after a completion of a study initiated in 1958. The recommendation has been endorsed by the State Planning Council and many private and public agencies.

The two significant things remaining to be done are passage of the enabling legislation (HB 388) and acquisition of open spaces as soon as possible, according to the

School To Begin Sept. 4

The Board of Education and the Building Commission of the Harrington Special School District held its regular monthly meeting in the school office Thursday evening, Aug. 15.

Mr. Adams, superintendent, proposed that an adult education program be offered to citizens of the district during the winter months of 1963-64 school year. After discussion, he was authorized to proceed with the details of setting up such a program and find the desires of the citizens regarding courses to be offered. Although regular forms will be offered for people to express their desires later in the year, any request from citizens of the district will be gladly received for study at any time. It is suggested that such a program be started during the month of January and will probably run for 15 weeks.

Also, upon recommendation of the superintendent, the Board agreed that the school library would be open throughout the school year for two evenings per week for two hours each evening for use of both students and citizens of the school district. Under this proposal no reference material could be taken from the library, and citizens will be restricted to books not placed on a student reserve list by the teachers in the various subject fields. Any book drawn from the library by other than students would be for a period of one week with the privilege of renewing for an additional week if it had not been called for. The dates and time the library would be open will be established by the superintendent and the program begun as soon as practical after the opening of school. However, due to the necessity to catalog a considerable quantity of new books and the placing of carpet on the floor of the library, it is doubtful that this program can be undertaken before the first of October.

The Board approved making available to the students of the Harrington District a student accident policy as provided by Nationwide Insurance Company. The cost of such a policy will be $2 for students in grades 1 through 8, and $4 per student for those in grades 9 through 12. The Board desires to remind all parents that no funds are available to take care of any injuries at school or going to and from school in the operating funds of the school district. If a child does not have insurance, the only recourse for an injury received would be through a claim approved by the General Assembly of the State of Delaware. Although students are not required to carry this insurance, the coverage provided at low cost is highly recommended.

The Board also voted to provide insurance for members of the varsity football squad during the pre-season practice sessions and the regular season. Again Nationwide Insurance Company was selected as the policy to be used. The football insurance provided is for members of the varsity squad only since junior high players are covered in all sports including football in the regular student accident policy.

The Board unanimously elected Miss Phyllis Breakall as a teacher of commercial subjects to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mr. Mock. Miss Breakall has had one year experience in the Prince George County Schools of Maryland. She is a graduate in business education from the University of Maryland. Miss Breakall is to be married later in August and she and her husband hope to make their residence in Harrington.

The Board directed that the Harrington schools follow the dictates of the State Board of Education in regards to the reading of the Bible and the Lord's Prayer during the 1963-64 school year.

Mr. Adams reported that during the first week of school, on Sept. 4, 5, and 6, dismissal time for all pupils will be at 12:30 p.m. The doors of the building will open each morning at 8:30 and

Highway To Start Road Improvement Projects Soon

Some highway improvement projects, now on the program which the Delaware State Highway Department has pending before the Delaware General Assembly, have been waiting almost three years to get started because of the lack of construction funds.

At the present time a bond authorization of $35 million for highway purposes is stalemated in the General Assembly, where it has been awaiting action since February in the present session.

Action on a proposed authorization of $16.6 million in the 1962 session of the General Assembly was postponed and the authorization granted in 1961 was greatly reduced.

As a result some projects, that were selected for the 1961 program, are still being carried on the present proposed program with no planning, or other engineering work having been started on any of them.

William J. Miller, Jr., Director of Operations for the State Highway Department, has frequently indicated that the Department has several projects in connection with the Interstate Highway System that could be placed in operation just as soon as funds are made available.

But on other projects on the present program, such as needed improvements on primary and secondary roads, some of which are long overdue, and the continued improvement of dirt roads, all of the preliminary engineering work will wait until funds are made available.

In the meantime traffic on the main highways of the state has increased about 10 per cent and motor vehicles registrations have increased about 14 per cent.

Fight Brews Over Ferry Office Site

New Jersey members of the Delaware River and Bay Authority have vetoed a suggestion that Lewes be the site for administrative offices of the Lewes-Cape May ferry line.

The location for the main administrative office and service facilities for the ships will be discussed next Tuesday when the five Jersey and five Delawareans meet.

The Delaware members have indicated they are in favor of adopting the recommendation of the consulting engineer firm of Parsons, Brinkerhoff, Quade and Douglass.

Last month at the regular meeting some of the Jersey members said they did not care which town would be the site as long as the consulting firm could justify one or the other in study.

James J. Deputy, secretary of the authority, took a poll by telephone of the 10 members recently. The Jersey members gave no reason for their reversal of opinion.

Maurice N. Quade, representative for the consulting firm, said at last month's meeting it could be decided by a flip of the coin but this disturbed both Delawareans and Jerseyans.

They said the matter should be decided by a study of feasibility, not the flip of a coin.

So Quade was instructed to look into the problem and present his recommendations based on facts and economic advantages of one site or the other.

He submitted his report more than 10 days ago.

In his report, Quade first pointed out that he had previously recommended Lewes as the "home port" of the ferry.

Then he added, "It is our considered opinion that the main administration building, the maintenance shop, the warehouse for parts storage and for commissary services and the fuel storage and supply should be located at the same terminal in order to achieve the greatest possible efficiency and economy of operation."

"It is our further considered opinion that this installation should be located at the Lewes Terminal, located between the U. S. Coast Guard Station and the Fish Products Co. that was adopted by the authority, at its meeting on July 30."

Quade pointed out that Nolan C. Chandler, recently appointed general manager of the ferry line, concurred in his recommendations.

Quade said that the Lewes terminal offered about $100,000 savings in operations in the purchase of fuel and supplies.

He also cited "intangible values" on the Lewes site in better labor relations and a more favorable labor market.

Ever-Ready Class To Sponsor Flower Show

The Ever Ready Class of Asbury Church School, Harrington, announces that it is again sponsoring a Flower and Art Show in Collins Hall of the church on Wednesday evening, Sept. 11 and would like many people to exhibit both flowers and paintings. Since the Art Department has been added to the show, the attendance has greatly increased. Many who are interested in that line of Fine Arts come from other towns as well as do local residents. A cash prize has already been donated for the best painting which will be chosen by popular vote.

As usual three awards will be given to the winners of the most "blue stickers" in the floral division and this will be determined by the judges in the afternoon.

More detailed information will appear in these columns in later issues.

Tax Sales Net Kent $4,000

Kent Levy Court members heard the happy sound of money Tuesday as they got a favorable report on progress of its tax sales.

The commissioners learned from Receiver of Taxes Dorsey Torbert that Monday's large auction netted the county more than $4,000 in delinquent taxes.

But they were also told by Joshua Twilley, Dover attorney, hired to assist the tax office, that the 20 properties sold were all that remained of 80 set for the auction block.

The 60 delinquent bills were settled as tax bills were either settled or partially paid off, said Twilley.

And Torbert reported that the three sales held so far, the first in more than a decade—have evidently spurred tax payments.

He reports an increase in payments.

"I think we're over the hump," commented Twilley. "We've got the worst ones out of the way. What we're getting into now are people who can pay."

Another sale is planned for the near future and another block of delinquent bills will be advertised, he said.

The present Levy Court pushed tax sales when it took office in January as a means to solve the problem of overdue taxes and increase county revenue. Twilley was retained to help set up the sales.

Another note of optimism was sounded by Twilley when he said that very little hard feelings have been generated by the sales.

He reported hearing of little bad feeling or resentment of the county for selling land and buildings for which no taxes had been paid.

In fact, he said, in some cases the neighbors and communities appeared happy to see the substandard or unused property sold in hopes it would get an owner to care for it.

Most of the properties in the first three sales held this summer fell in this category. These are the older delinquent bills on the county ledgers.

Now, Twilley said, the county is getting into more recent bills and the owners are more inclined to pay up rather than see the properties sold.

Smiths Take Part In Trapshoot

Road Unit Balks; Annett Flies, Pays Later

The State Highway Department Wednesday refused to pay the cost of a round-trip ticket to Miami, Fla., used in June by State Rep. John H. Annett, R-Staytonville.

Annett attended a convention of the American Shore and Beach Preservation Association and said at the time that he was going at the request of the highway department. Annett now says he'll pay for the ticket himself.

"I don't see why we should pay," said Harry Bonk, an independent from Rehoboth Beach.

"What I want to know," said Frank H. Mackie Jr., a Republican from Wilmington, "is who asked him to go."

H. Maxson Terry, chairman of the commission, a Dover Democrat, said that Annett had talked with him about making the trip, but he knew of no commission member's having asked the representative actually to go.

One of the commissioners asked S. Samuel Arsh, department attorney, if it would be legal to pay for Annett's plane fare.

"No," Arsh replied, "I don't think it would be legal, unless he went on commission business at the commission's request."

Lemuel H. Hickman, former Democratic Senator from Frankford, pointed out, however, that "it is not unusual for legislators on the public buildings and highway committees to attend conventions relating to highway business and have the department pay their expenses."

A check followed, and it was learned that Annett is not a member of the House Public Buildings and Highway Committee.

That convinced Thurman Adams, Jr., Bridgeville Democrat, who commented, "He didn't vote to give us any money. I see no reason to pay his expenses."

(Annett has consistently opposed a $35-million bond bill for highway construction.)

Annett said Wednesday night that he would pay the cost of the ticket out of his own pocket.

"Terry asked me to go to Miami but didn't say anything about paying the transportation," Annett said. Later, he said Terry suggested that he introduce a resolution in the House for reimbursement but decided to end the matter by paying his own way.

Escapes Caught At Harrington

Two 16-year-old escapees from the National Training School, Washington, D. C., who had stolen five vehicles within the past two weeks and are suspected of local burglaries, were captured by State and Harrington Police, early Friday in a cornfield near here, after leading police in a wild chase in a stolen car. One of the youths is from Harrington.

Police say the boys' wild sequence of crime began in Washington, on Aug. 3, when they fled the reform school, stole a car and abandoned it in Silver Spring, Md.

The pair then walked to Baltimore, stole a station wagon, and drove it to Harrington Aug. 5, then abandoned it just over the Maryland line. This vehicle was recovered Friday morning, police said.

The boys then resumed their crime wave last Sunday, when they stole a pick-up truck here, owned by Kenneth Aiken, of Harrington. The pick-up truck was abandoned here after a joy ride.

On Wednesday, the boys stole another car, this one owned by Leonard Outten, of Harrington, which was recovered on the Harrington - Felton Road Friday.

Thurs., Aug. 15, at 10 o'clock, the youths stole another car, owned by William Parker, of Harrington.

Shortly after 10 p.m., the stolen vehicle was spotted in Harrington by State Police of the Bridgeville Barracks and Harrington Town Police, who gave chase.

The car careened wildly along the Frederica Road with police vehicles in hot pursuit. The stolen vehicle then ran into a hayfield and overturned, and the two boys fled on foot.

A K-9 Corps dog was brought to the scene and the animal tracked the pair for a mile but finally lost the scent.

Police said the boys then hid in a cornfield. They were spotted leaving at about 8 p.m., and immediately ran back among the cornstalks.

The cornfield was surrounded and the boys were captured a short time later.

Authorities said the other boy is from Belleville, Ill.

The boys will be held as fugitives from the Washington reform school and will also face local charges in Family Court in Delaware.

Police said the investigation of their part in various burglaries will continue.

Felton Girl Cut From Steel Drum

All ended happily Friday for a 12-year-old girl who was wedged in a steel drum for two hours.

Elaine Virginia Wilson, daughter of Mrs. Blanche Banks, of Paradise Alley, near Felton, toppled into the drum—partially filled with water—when she was playing outside her house around 1 p.m.

Elaine twisted her leg behind her back in the fall and lodged her knee securely.

After efforts by her mother and a neighbor, Mrs. Wade Mitchell, failed to dislodge the child, the Carlisle Hose Company, of Milford, was summoned and cut her free with a hack saw.

"Why she was in there just as tight as if you took a piece of pipe and hammered it down into the barrel," Mrs. Mitchell said.

During the ordeal, Elaine said she prayed to God.

Her mother tipped the drum to let the water run out, but the youngster said it then got very hot.

Volunteer firemen finally cut her loose at 3 p.m.

Classes Still Open For University Days Set For Sept.

Giving a designer's touch to the clothes you make, selecting drapes, experimental cooking, creative art and flower arranging—these are just a few of the class sessions scheduled for University Days for Women Friday and Saturday, Sept. 6 and 7, at the University of Delaware.

Sponsored by the home economics extension service, University Days offers an opportunity for all Delaware women to enjoy a one or two day "vacation with an education," according to Mrs. Alice King, state leader, home economics extension.

Registrations for day students are still being accepted by the home economics extension agent in each county, and there may still be a few dormitory rooms available for those wishing to stay overnight on campus, Mrs. King said yesterday.

Women may attend either one or both days and may choose the classes they wish to attend each day. Other classes include selecting and framing pictures for the home, music appreciation, food quality, literature, Japanese paper art and flower arrangements.

In addition, a banquet on Friday evening will feature Mrs. Randle Elliott, former dean of women at the University of Delaware, as guest speaker. A barber-shop quartet will furnish entertainment.

County home economics extension agents may be contacted for more complete information on University Days for Women. Approximately 300 women are expected to attend.

Hoffecker Jailed For 16 Months On Charge of Receiving Stolen Goods

Two counts of receiving stolen goods netted Anald W. Hoffecker of Wyoming 16 months in jail Tuesday before Common Pleas Judge William G. Bush III.

Hoffecker, 19, was sentenced Tuesday by Judge Bush after being found guilty in a non-jury trial June 21.

He was convicted a year ago in Family Court for Kent and Sussex County of aggravated assault for shooting Janet Pepper, who was blinded by the shot.

Hoffecker was sentenced to double fines of $100 and seven months prison for each charge. The judge added 30 days in default of each $100 fine to total 16 months.

Hoffecker was accused by the state with driving three other youths to the Rodney Village Shopping Center for a stealing spree.

In a case involving a charge of selling liquor to a minor, the taproom operator pleaded not guilty, while the youth pleaded guilty.

The state charges Franklin Swain of Swain's Hotel, Harrington, with selling alcoholic beverages to Frank Henry Vadakin, 18, of Harrington, on June 28.

Swain entered a not guilty plea and Judge Bush set trial for Sept. 9 at 2 p.m. Sentencing was deferred on Vadakin.

Judge Bush placed Stanley Waters, 44, of Dover, on probation after he was found guilty on a charge of being a public nuisance.

Arthur Thiel, 32, of Milford was placed on probation after pleading guilty to charges of cashing bad checks.

Sentences were imposed on three men found guilty of drunk-driving: Raymond Bodine, Maryland, fined $200 and costs plus 60 days in default of fine; Allen Norman Breeding, Harrington, fined $500, given 60 days in default and another 60 days mandatory jail term on two drunken driving charges; Johnnie B. Gilmore, Camden, fined $500 and 60 days in jail.

Maryland Eligible For Food Program

Congressman-at-Large Carlton R. Sickles, (D-Md.) announced that the Maryland Institution for Men and the Maryland Institution for Women would again be eligible to participate in the United States Department of Agriculture's donable food program. The Department had previously ruled the Maryland Institution ineligible.

Sickles noted that the donable food program was established to dispose of the agricultural commodities acquired under the various price support programs. The food is distributed to needy households and to many institutions. Correctional institutions, rehabilitative in nature, have been eligible to receive the surplus food. Correctional institutions, penal in nature, are not eligible.

Sickles said that the issue in Maryland revolved around the question whether or not the Maryland Institution for Men and the Maryland Institution for Women were penal in nature. After permitting the Maryland Institutions to participate in the program

Slaughter Beach May Seed Grass On Coast

The seeding of a mile and a half of coast here with American beach grass to curb erosion is being considered, an official said Tuesday.

Methods of carrying out the program have been discussed with James P. Gorman, a federal soil conservationist at Georgetown, according to John W. Holston, president of the Town Board.

Holston said the grass would be sown to supplement natural grasses already growing along the beaches.

Although Slaughter Beach would be the first community to undertake such a project, the State Highway Department has set up experimental plots of beach grass south of Rehoboth and used chemical fertilizer to feed the grass, applying the pellets from an airplane.

Slaughter Beach had pumped sand on its beaches before the March 1962, storm, and this was credited by Holston with turning back much of the storm's fury, which destroyed 34 beach cottages.

Holston said landholders are now being queried for permission to sow the grass, and added it is hoped that some work can be started in the fall.

Speaking of Insects with Dale Bray

There are more than 2500 species of wasps in North America. Fortunately, only about 50 species bother man. The best known is probably the yellow jacket. These small yellow and black pests produce a painful sting as any of the larger wasps, or for that matter, any of the bees as well.

Each year wasps sting several people to death in the United States, and the yellow jacket is believed to cause more of these deaths than any one of the others. Picnic in August and September are as likely to be visited by yellow jackets as ants, and it is on picnics that they are most dangerous. This is because they commonly land on food we are eating. If you don't watch every bite, it is fairly easy to chomp down on a yellow jacket that has started nibbling on your sandwich. Once inside your mouth, this wasp is almost certain to sting, with possible disastrous results.

Control of yellow jackets is difficult because they nest in the soil where the majority of them are well protected. Killing a few of them, as they visit a picnic area, doesn't have much effect because they are quickly replaced by others. Keeping picnic refuse picked up and buried is helpful. Spraying refuse containers weekly with DDVP is quite effective. Most people cannot obtain this insecticide easily, but it can be purchased from most of the larger pesticide dealers. Sprays or dusts of DDT or Sevin applied to the entrance of their nests in the soil is very effective. It is best to apply this treatment at night—for obvious reasons.

Another common stinger is the Polistes wasp. They nest under eaves and in hedges. Their nest is a single layer of paper comb that opens downward. Usually these wasps are mild-mannered and sting only if they nest is disturbed. In fact, the whole nest can be picked from its point of attachment and carried about freely without danger of being stung if it is not jarred. I have seen this and have noticed that about all the Polistes wasps will do is to wave their feelers threateningly while being carried about. I don't recommend that anyone try this because they are almost certain to accidentally shake the nest and then they're in for a royal sting session. These wasps also can be controlled by sprays or dusts of DDT or Sevin applied at night.

Bald-faced hornets build large football shaped nests in shrubs and trees. Their sting is about as bad as a yellow jacket, but they aren't encountered quite as much as the yellow jackets. Mud daubers also sting, but usually go their own way as long as you go yours. DDT and Sevin are effective for these pests, too.

Delaware Food Market Report

Popular for grilling and roasting at this time of year are the 8 to 12 pound turkeys. These young and tender birds are ideal when feeding a group as well as for family fare. You will continue to see specials on smoked ham, bacon, franks, cold cuts of all varieties, chickens, chicken parts and many cuts of beef. If this cool weather continues, expect to find many stores featuring steaks, and watch prices begin to climb on roasts.

Many seafoods offer low-cost eating this week. When shopping, be sure to check porgies, fillets of haddock and flounder, sea scallops, tuna steaks, and whitefish. Shellfish in good supply are shrimp, crab meat, and lobster tails. Abundant canned tuna is popular and economical for summertime salads and sandwiches.

Vegetable growers are taking more pains than ever to see that their fresh produce reaches the market in the best possible condition. New methods of rapid harvesting, pre-cooling, and fast transportation are bringing us vegetables with flavor, color, and crispness, unknown only a few years ago.

We, as customers, must help keep this quality by observing the rule of "Handle with Care." Don't poke, pinch, or squeeze fresh fruits and vegetables because this often results in damaged produce. The more damaged produce, the greater increase in price to make up for the losses incurred when produce is mistreated.

Fresh vegetables that are in good supply this weekend are summer squash, eggplant, green beans, carrots, beets, sweet corn, and local tomatoes. There's very good quality salad and pickling items—sweet and hot peppers, cucumbers, cabbage, and dry onions, and the cost on these is reasonable. Potatoes are good values also, check sweet potatoes, mealy balsus and reds.

Melons continue to be the best buy at the fruit counter with more specialty melons (cresshaw, honeydew, Persian and casabas) coming to market. Watermelons have once again reached late summer low prices and cantaloupes are also reasonable. Grapes, plums, cooking apples, and peaches are available at fair prices.

Parents are reminded not to be "Drop-It-Birds" but bring your children to Sunday School and stay for the class that is for you. 11 a.m. Worship Service.

Children's Clothes Get 'High Fashion' Designs

When school starts in a few days, many of the returning youngsters will be dressed in styles considered almost as "high fashion" as the clothes designed for their mothers...

This year, more than ever before, children's clothes are becoming high fashion items, and the school clothes shown for this season comprise one of the widest collections ever seen in children's fashions.

The ready-to-wear industry has discovered that clothing for children is big business, Miss Reed says, and the result is that competition between these manufacturers has produced a wide assortment of styles, color and design in youngsters' clothing.

Some department stores around the country are featuring designers' collections for children. One of the large mail order houses has introduced children's dresses by a noted Paris designer.

What does all this mean to the mother trying to outfit her children for school but still stay within her budget? Eliminating the very "extreme" styles which may influence, but not dominate, children's clothing, many of the new fashions are practical in design and even more practical in the fabrics from which they are made, Miss Reed says.

As with the newest fashions for women, the term "sportive" is one that describes the new styles for little girls. But such terms as "soft" and "romantic" are also in the picture.

The skimmer is the big style news for girls this fall, and since this shape doesn't lend itself well to limp fabrics, it has brought a big revival of corduroys, especially wide-wales, and wool-synthetic blends, both of which are washable. Some velveteens are also being shown for dress-up occasions.

Bulky sweaters—many of them in new man-made fibers or blends which can be washed and dried by machine—pleated, suspender, and wrap-around skirts and jumpers in clan plaids and many other versions are also headed for new popularity, Miss Reed says.

Although little boys' clothes haven't yet become high fashion items, she notes, perhaps the trend is coming. The suit, as opposed to contrasting jacket and trousers, is making a comeback, and some party velveteens for boys are shown in bright colors.

Knicker are being shown for both boys and girls. Vests are "in" for little girls but not for boys.

Most of the styles for little boys follow the trends of fashion for the college set—but the "little boy" colors are much brighter. While the college boy's blazer will be in dark blue-gray or olive, the grade school boy will wear a bright red or blue blazer.

Several manufacturers are beginning to notice a problem that has bothered mothers for several years—that of size categories in girls' clothing, Miss Reed says.

Many of these firms feel the current, traditional breakdown of sizes 3 to 6X and 7 to 14 is ineffective and out of date.

Their alternative would be to add sizes 7 and 8 to the 3 to 6X category and keep sizes 10, 12 and 14 as a separate group. The reasoning is that the older girls often have a strong voice in deciding which clothing to buy, and they usually want something different from the clothes worn by the younger group.

Some of the manufacturers even advocate an entirely new size category for the pre-teen group with emphasis on the new and the fashionable in children's clothing.

The present standards for both girls' and boys' sizes were developed by the commodity standards division of the U.S. Department of Commerce, Miss Reed explains. These standards are based on height and weight and can be of value in guiding the consumer in size choice.

However, it is a rough guide at best, she says, since not all manufacturers adhere closely to sizing standards.

Since the style of a garment can make a difference in the size the child requires, or the child's body proportions may not fit the standard, the best way to fit a child properly is to have him try on the garment, Miss Reed points out.

or slip down. The shoulders should be roomy and wide enough for free arm movement without binding across back or chest, but not so full that shoulder seams won't stay in place.

Slight looseness in the waistline will allow for growth and longer wear, Miss Reed points out. Elastic on part of the waistband will help keep blouses tucked in and will adjust with growth, but the elastic should never be so tight it causes red marks.

Blouses and shirts should be long enough to tuck in at the waist and stay tucked in. Generous hems will permit lengthening as the child grows.

When buying outer garments such as winter coats, be sure to have the child try on the garment over the kind of clothes he would usually wear, Miss Reed cautions. If he tries on a winter coat over a sun suit, it may be too tight when he tries to wear it over winter woollens.

In general, regardless of the influence of "high fashion", practicality, simplicity and color are still important in selecting children's clothes, and, in fact, all three of these factors are included in this year's styles for youngsters—even the "high fashion" styles. Miss Reed's final advice for mothers who want the most for their money is to choose easy-care fabrics for their children's clothes and to read and follow care instructions on the labels.

Veterans News QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Q—Am I automatically eligible for nonservice-connected disability pension because I have become 65 years old?

A—The V9 nonservice-connected disability pension is not based on age but on the fact that the veteran has become totally and permanently disabled. However, your age may be a contributing factor. Since each case is decided individually, you should consult your nearest VA office.

Q—How can I get the medal the government gave to all World War II personnel at the end of the war?

A—Write to the branch of the service with which you served and give your dates of service as well as your identifying service number.

Q—My claim for death pension for our children was denied in 1959 because their father had no service-connected disability. Should I reapply?

A—Yes, reapply immediately. On July 1, 1960, the requirement was eliminated that a World War II or Korean veteran must have a service connected disability at the time of death.

Q—Who actually pays veterans or dependents getting compensation or pension checks, the VA or Treasury Department?

A—Three Federal agencies join in the payment of compensation and pension checks. VA in its computer station at Hines, Ill., certifies the amount of payment to be made. From this listing the Treasury Department issues the checks and turns them over in mass volume to the Post Office Department which delivers them.

Q—Cannot veterans who hold the Korean GI insurance, called "RS" insurance, collect a cash dividend if they turn it in for "W" insurance?

A—Yes, but only until September 13, 1963, when the dividend offer expires.

Q—How many widows of Civil War veterans, either side, still draw pensions from the Federal Government?

A—About 2,000.

U. of D. to Sponsor Microscopist School

What is a feed microscopist? And how do you pronounce such a tongue-twister of a job name?

The secret will be out when Delamrva's first school for feed microscopists is held at the University of Delaware School of Agriculture substation division headquarters near Georgetown, Sept. 17, 18 and 19. It's being sponsored by the Delmarva Poultry Industry Association.

Attending will be graduate and student microscopists from a number of Eastern Seaboard states.

State microscopists A. W. Creswell of Springfield, Ill., will preside and demonstrate techniques for the students. The school will consist, in part, of highly technical feed mixing and feed testing trials employing some 55 different feed ingredients used in animal and poultry feeds of all kinds.

Feed microscopists are so-called because much of their work consists of identifying, testing and analyzing minute variations of feed formulas and addition of ingredients under a microscope.

Purpose of the 3-day school is to instruct feed mill technicians and feed researchers in the newest ways to tests and analyze feed mixtures. Included are poultry feeds, dog foods and livestock feeds.

Tuition fees for the three-day course are $25 per person.

Labor Leader Blueprint For Control

Over the years Delaware has had an exceptional reputation nationally as a good place in which to do business—a good business climate. We have had reasonable laws and taxes affecting business. We have had sound unemployment compensation and workmen's compensation laws. In most instances when questions are raised, they are quickly resolved. We have had little labor strife. Taken altogether, it has spelled economic progress and job opportunities.

But there is need for concern about the trend that is taking place.

March 1962 - Department of Labor Established

With increased pressure from labor leaders and apathy on the part of businessmen, a bill was enacted by the General Assembly creating a Department of Labor and Industrial Relations. Included within the Department is the Employment Security Commission, the Industrial Accident Board, the State Child Labor Inspector, the State Mediation Service, and the Employment Service.

Broad powers were conferred on this new Department by the Legislature. The power to regulate all labor laws of the State, to make investigations, examine records, and make inspections of places of employment. When the Department was created many said it could create a "labor czar" in Delaware.

What Has Happened in Just Over a Year?

As the politicians would say—let's look at the record.

ITEM: Legislation has been prepared and promoted by employees of the Department. Such was the case of Senate Bill No. 6 (elimination of the waiting week for unemployment compensation) when Department officials "lobbied" for the bill hand in hand with the auto workers union. This bill was not recommended in the Department's report to the Governor, nor was it considered by the Advisory Council of the Employment Security Commission. This union leader inspired legislation has weakened our Unemployment Compensation Law, will cost in excess of $600,000 a year, and will lead to a probable rate increase all of which is to be paid by the employer. And, employers were not consulted!

Pending bills in the Legislature increasing U. C. benefits for pregnancy and authorizing the elimination of the necessity to "actively seek work" are other examples of the type of thinking and legislation emanating from the Department.

ITEM: The bill creating the Department authorized the preparation and enforcement of rules and regulations affecting the health and safety of employees. The first of these "proclamations" has been issued—Rules Governing Sanitation. This impressive missile was almost adopted without any contact or knowledge of businessmen in the State. After this was brought to the Departments attention by the State Chamber, 150 firms made comments and recommendations to the Department through the State Chamber. A number of changes were made, but the final draft will still make it difficult if not impossible for many firms to comply with all the regulations.

More regulations are in the draft stage. These have the effect of law and yet are not reviewed by the elected legislators. The only way business can seek relief from an unreasonable rule is by appeal to the Department or through the Courts.

ITEM: It has come to the attention of the State Chamber that more and more "unreasonable" requests for inspections are being made by Department employees. No advance notice is given, and employers are being "threatened" by inspectors. The request for inspection is often made by a disgruntled employee. The inspectors, in some cases, are former union officials who have been appointed to their positions for reasons other than qualifications.

ITEM: The Employment Security Commission has ruled that an employer must challenge a claim for unemployment benefits within 3 days or lose the right of appeal! (Ruling effective July 27, 1963). Employers are not consulted, but are directed.

Some Questions?

1. Can Delaware afford to lose its reputation as a good business climate State?
2. Can you afford to grow and expand and make a profit if conditions continue to deteriorate?
3. Should our legislators abdicate their responsibilities and allow a Department to institute stringent rules and regulations without business representation? This is law by regulation and can lead to tyranny (labor czar).
4. Should such unreasonable and impractical rules be allowed to go unchallenged? Should "inspectors" hired by the Department of Labor be qualified?

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Maloney and family, entertained 30 guests from the Lord family reunion in their yard at a picnic supper Sun., Aug. 11. About 35 descendants of the Maloney family held their family reunion last Sunday, Aug. 18 at the Concord Church House. A picnic lunch was served at 12:30. A meeting was conducted by the president, Paul Maloney. A short business meeting was carried out. New officers elected were: president, Nelson Hubbard; vice president, Bob Maloney; secretary, Mrs. Ruth Dunlap; treasurer, Francis H. Trice Jr. The meeting was adjourned to meet again in 1965.

Windowless Broiler House Passes First Test

The Delmarva broiler industry may well be entering a new era if future experiments in windowless broiler housing prove as satisfactory as the first trial effort, according to Frank D'Armi, University of Delaware research associate in charge of poultry work at the Georgetown Substation.

The experiment was begun on June 4 when 5000 day-old chicks were placed in the completely insulated, windowless house. On the same day, to serve as a check on the new facility, 6000 day-old chicks were placed in a partially insulated broiler house and 8000 in a conventional, uninsulated house.

Nine weeks later, on Aug. 7, they were removed and prepared for market. Birds from the windowless house showed the best record, not only in average weight, but in feed efficiency and lower mortality rate, D'Armi reports.

The broilers raised in the windowless house weighed an average of 3.70 pounds, while those in the partially insulated house weighed 3.57 and those from the conventional house, 3.48 pounds. And the birds raised in the new house required the least amount of feed per pound of gain, D'Armi says. Those in the windowless house gained one pound on each 2.15 pounds of feed, while it took 2.27 pounds of feed for those in the partially insulated house and 2.26 pounds in the conventional house.

In addition, mortality rate for birds in the windowless house was only 4.77 per cent, while it jumped to 7.21 per cent in the partially insulated house and 7.29 per cent in the conventional house.

The new windowless broiler house was designed by E. W. Walpole, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware. The house is completely insulated and almost completely automatic, featuring an automatic ventilating system and automatic feeding.

Six 24-inch thermostatically controlled fans kept the birds as much as ten degrees cooler than those in conventional houses during the recent prolonged heat wave, D'Armi reports. The fans turned on automatically when needed, and they move a total of 25,000 cubic feet of air a minute.

Gas heaters with hovers kept the 40 by 96 foot building evenly heated, without even one degree temperature variation from one part of the house to another. This, along with the very limited amount of light, helped to keep the birds evenly distributed throughout the house, D'Armi said. The only light in the building came from eight 25-watt light bulbs.

Although the first test showed some very satisfactory results, D'Armi points out that more birds must be run through the house under different conditions to determine the overall suitability of the windowless house. A factor which still must be checked is whether the birds' weight and rate of gain makes up for the cost of the automatic systems. This will be done in future tests, D'Armi said, although he feels that most of the new automatic equipment will prove worthwhile in both time and money saved.

The next group of birds will go into the houses September 23. Among the factors poultry researchers will be watching carefully is the effect of the room temperature on the health and general performance of the birds. Since cold weather often causes poorer feed efficiency and more disease problems, D'Armi is especially interested in the results shown by the birds in the windowless, insulated house during this period.

Farmers fertilized 48 per cent of their cropland and improved pastures in 1959 compared with 30 per cent in 1954, the USDA reports.

U. of D. to Host German Scientist

A German botanist interested in the life sciences will teach and work at the University of Delaware during the coming year. He is Dr. Harald E. A. Lorenzen, a professor at the University of Göttingen, who will be one of 34 foreign senior scientists working at state universities and land-grant colleges under a new National Science Foundation program.

During his visit, Dr. Lorenzen will offer graduate level courses in algae physiology and the plant geography of Europe. He also will conduct seminars and offer public lectures at Delaware and neighboring universities.

In his relatively short professional career, Dr. Lorenzen, 35, has distinguished himself by a substantial record of published research of high quality and through his affiliation with Professor A. Pirson of the University of Göttingen. His research relates to that being done by University of Delaware faculty in marine biology and he is expected to be especially helpful in contributing to the graduate program in this area.

Some 53 scientists will be participating in the NSF Senior Foreign Scientist Fellowship program this year which is designed to enlarge the scope of science education in the U. S. and to promote international co-operation among scientists. All fellowship winners were chosen from among those foreign scientists nominated by the 80 institutions at which the fellowship activities will take place. Participating institutions were selected on the basis of total number of advanced science degrees offered, graduate science students in attendance and foreign faculty currently in residence. The visiting scientists have demonstrated ability in the mathematical, physical, biological or engineering sciences and all possess doctoral degrees or the research or teaching experience comparable to that required for the doctoral degree. All are proficient in English.

4-H Members Attend Camp

More than 160 Delaware 4-H Club members are spending this week at Camp Barnes near Selbyville in the first of two week-long 4-H camp sessions. An equal number will attend next week, according to James O. Baker, state 4-H leader.

Using the theme of "Plus Ultra" More Beyond, the campers are participating in crafts and special interest classes, swimming, boating, games, and special programs. The campers at each week's sessions are divided into four groups, named after Seneca, Cherokee, Delaware and Susquehanna tribes, for sports competition and participation in council fire programs throughout the week.

The council fire is one of the highlights of each day's activities, as the "tribe members" sit in a circle around the campfire, observing a strict ritual, for the evening program. The camp theme, "Plus Ultra," is taken from the story of old Spanish coins, Baker explained. It is said that during the 15th century, Spain felt that all land had been discovered and that there was nothing beyond the horizon. In keeping with this belief, they stamped on their coins "ne plus ultra," meaning "no more beyond." But, after Columbus made his historic voyages, it occurred to them that there was, after all, more beyond, and the Spanish government called in all the old coins and made new ones containing the words "Plus Ultra," or "more beyond."

"Today we know that there is always 'more beyond' for all who have courage to seek beyond known horizons, and we hope all 4-H'ers will benefit from this knowledge," Baker said.

Among the special assembly programs at 4-H camp are wildlife conservation, health, use of leisure time and a fire prevention demonstration. Daily classes include sessions on marksmanship, archery, swimming, Swedish embroidery, copper tooling and enameling, ceramics and wood finishing, as well as first aid, nature study and 4-club programs.

Broiler Industry Feels Competition In Common Market
By W. T. McAllister
Within the past year, the lowly little broiler chicken—only some three and a half to four pounds in size and nine weeks of age—has become an international celebrity.
The broiler got this way because he is such a fine, economical form of meat that the Europeans started buying it in large quantities from the United States. In 1962, the U. S. sold 173,000,000 pounds of broilers and frying chickens in Western Europe—more than $50,000,000 worth of chicken.
The U. S. broiler industry thought they had a good thing going for them and looked forward to a growing market year after year. They were sure no other country could match the tremendous efficiency of our broiler industry, and that there was a product we could trade to the Europeans for such things as chemicals, watches, compact cars and precision machinery — and everyone would be better off.

But, one of the characteristics of the competitive enterprise system is that when things look favorable, someone else will come along and take advantage of it. In this case, the farming interests of Europe decided that they could grow broilers. They came over here and studied our methods. They got their breeding stocks and feed formulas and management techniques from us—and in a few years they were in business.
But they still cannot produce and market a broiler as cheaply as we in the United States can, and this is where the trade barrier or tariff comes into the picture. They have higher costs than we do, and even in 1962, when our exports reached new highs, we were paying an import duty of over 12 cents a pound as well as the cost of shipment to Europe and still selling in competition with Europe's locally raised chickens.
However, the Common Market's new tariff regulations were set just high enough to keep U. S. poultry out. Now our exports are less than a quarter of what they were this time a year ago.
While insistence on the high tariff rates cannot be blamed on any one of the six member countries of the European Economic Community, perhaps France feels she has more at stake than the others. France is a grain producing country with more farm land than the other members. Her farmers believe they can get a better market for their grain by feeding it to broilers than in any other way. The farm organizations which are very strong in France and the other countries support the higher tariff even though it means that the urban citizen has to pay a higher price for the chicken he buys.
After all the tariff discussions are over, the present barriers will probably still be in effect and broiler production in Europe will probably continue to grow. Their costs will be higher than ours—particularly grain and soybean meal prices. But reports show they are getting excellent results, a pound of meat from 2.2 pounds of feed; they have modern processing and are organized in fairly large, efficient, well-financed production units.
Perhaps we will be selling them more soybeans and less chickens in the years ahead.

U. of D. Extension Division Lists Registration Dates

Three registration dates have been announced by the extension division of the University of Delaware for the fall semester.
Otis P. Jefferson, assistant director, said Monday that about 200 different courses and sections will be offered this year in Dover, Newark, Seaford, Wilmington and at the Aberdeen Proving Ground.
Registration will be held on Mon., Sept. 9, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Dover Air Force Base High School and on Tues., Sept. 10, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the university's Agricultural Substation at Georgetown. The largest registration, for students from the Wilmington-Newark area, will be held Saturday, Sept. 14, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Carpenter Field House.
Jefferson stressed the fact that no pre-registration forms are required of extension students, but those seeking graduate credit must have been previously admitted to the school of graduate studies.
In addition to formal courses, the extension division will sponsor a variety of public lectures, informal courses, cultural activities and other special events during 1963-64. Among these programs are a seminar, "Legal and Political Problems of World Peace," a lecture series entitled "Microbiology and Man" and six field trips for those interested in ornithology.
Other features include a graduate seminar in magnetohydrodynamics, a course and workshop in programmed instruction, a conference on leadership development, a seminar on the philosophy of science, several special insurance courses and a program on

Georgetown Area
Lack of rain still major crisis in area with only scattered showers. It may cost the loss of corn and soybean acreages. Cucumber harvest will be completed this week with most of the growers already completing season. Lima bean and tomato harvest are the main crops for most processors at this time. Watermelon harvest (100,000 to 120,000 daily) will be heavy until September. Cantaloupe prices declining past week; farmers are predicting another cut in acreage next year. Labor supply in balance.

Dover Area
Potato growers are completing the harvest at a record pace. Several growers have all their potatoes out and more will finish up this week. Tomato picking is at peak. A good set appears to be the rule but mostly small fruit being picked. Recent rains should help late varieties. Sweet corn harvest past peak but late varieties will use available help for another two weeks or more. Caney corn being harvested by machine. Crews completing work in the area are leaving for other commitments or looking for other jobs. Labor in balance and should remain so for the remainder of the season.

Delaware Farm Labor Bulletin
Some relief from the extended drought has been felt from recent scattered rains. In some areas the rainfall has been slight while others report over 1 1/2 inches for the week. The effect of the drought is indicated by statistics released by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. Yields on all major crops have been reduced. The average yield per acre for snap beans is 1.3 tons with this year's yield about 1.1 tons. Sweet corn is expected to yield 2.60 tons compared to an average of 3.14; tomatoes dropped from an average of 18.6 tons to 15.0 Late crops as field corn, soybeans and lima beans will show considerable loss. Recent rains should prove beneficial to late limas. The peak for labor requirements should be passed. The count of seasonal workers on Aug. 15, was 6,433, down 400 from the previous half-month period. Local seasonal workers totaled 2,500, southern migrants 3,575, and contract Puerto Ricans 358. It is expected that the southern migrant count will drop rapidly with the end of the potato and cucumber harvests.
Wilmington Area
Dig potatoes, pulling corn and picking tomatoes are the main activities. Potatoes are well past the 75% stage and should be near completion by Labor Day, corn is mostly mechanically harvested and no large amount of labor is involved. Tomato picking is about peak. Most growers report a heavy set but small sized fruit due to the dry weather. Labor in the area should be ample to finish the harvest.
Dover Area
Potato growers are completing the harvest at a record pace. Several growers have all their potatoes out and more will finish up this week. Tomato picking is at peak. Veterans News

Leon Fields, manager of the Wilmington Veterans Administration Regional Office, said this week more than 100,000 Korean veterans, who still hold "RS" insurance policies, have a month left in which to qualify for a special cash dividend.

These veterans can qualify for the dividends by exchanging their "RS" policies for "W" term insurance at a lower premium rate, or converting to low cost permanent insurance, Mr. Fields said.

Expiring on Sept. 13 is their eligibility to qualify for the special dividend which returns to them part of the premiums they have been paying based on the rate structure established by law. After that date, "RS" policyholders may still change to "W" term or permanent insurance, but they will no longer be eligible for a dividend.

In order to qualify for the special dividend before September 13, the "RS" policy holders have the choice of either:

1. Exchanging their "RS" term policies for "W" term policies, costing generally about one-third of what they are paying for their present insurance; or

2. Converting their "RS" policies to one of several low-cost, permanent plan insurance policies.

The permanent plan insurance includes six choices: ordinary life, twenty payment life, thirty payment life, twenty year endowment at age 60 and endowment at age 65.

The amount of the special dividend depends upon the length of time the policyholder has held his policy and his age. The dividend payments average approximately $100, Mr. Fields pointed out.

The President has authorized the Veterans Administration to activate and operate facilities and beds to care for 2000 nursing home type veteran-patients.

The authorization was reported this week by John S. Gleason, Jr., Administrator of Veterans Affairs, who said the 2000 nursing home beds would be operated in addition to the 125,000 hospital beds now authorized within the VA medical System.

The Presidential action, Mr. Gleason said, will greatly help in relieving the adverse impact on VA's acute medical programs by the influx of older veterans who now comprise one-third of all VA Hospital admissions, and who generally require long term care.

In his authorizing memorandum to the administrator, the president said:

"The changing characteristics of our veteran population, particularly those who served during the first World War, are resulting in an adverse effect on the acute medical programs administered by the Veterans Administration. Nearly 1,000,000 war veterans are aged 70 and over. The number will increase 50 per cent by 1966.

"Older veterans account for one-third of your hospital admissions and they comprise the bulk of the long-term care patient load. Many have attained maximum benefits of hospitalization but attempts at community placement have been unsuccessful because of the lack of facilities, inadequate financial resources, absence of family ties, and other reasons. Retention of these patients in facilities designed for acute care is costly and places an undue strain on the 125,000 hospital bed limit under which you are now operating.

"In order to relieve this situation, I authorize you to activate and operate facilities and beds for 2000 nursing home type patients in addition to the 125,000 hospital beds presently authorized. This will provide arrangements more consistent with patient requirements and improve utilization of acute care facilities. The higher patient turnover will also defer the need for increasing present bed levels. Existing buildings best suited for this purpose and appropriately located throughout the country according to your judgment, should be utilized. No construction, other than for necessary conversion of existing facilities, is authorized.

"This authorization is to enable the Veterans Administration to gain first-hand knowledge and experience in the operation of beds specifically designed for patients requiring attendant type services. It will be possible to evaluate a full range of care from domiciliary through acute medical care, restoration centers and nursing home care where outplacement is not possible.

"I am sure that as part of your administrative studies, construction control systems will be established so that direct cost comparison will be definitive; also that you will continue to work toward the development and utilization of community and private resources in the best interest of the veteran and the nation."

FENCE TALK

With George Vapaa

A plea—space for outdoor recreation in Delaware.

This is the title of a new brochure issued by the Parkland Acquisition Steering Committee which is pressing for House Bill 388 now before the General Assembly.

Very briefly, it calls for using a portion of the "divestiture" monies for future outdoor recreation lands while such lands are still available at reasonable prices.

The state population doubled in the last 50 years to 450,000, and will double again in less than 40 years.

The preservation of open space for recreation as state and local parks is recognized as a real need in Delaware. Many groups are working for the project.

Civic and service clubs are invited to request a program speaker for their meetings through our Extension Service office or through the Game and Fish Commission in Dover. Copies of the brochure are also available from these sources.

The state grange is host this week to ten farm leaders from Pakistan. It is all part of the farm world exchange program designed to increase food and fiber production through friendship and understanding among farmers.

Grange host families in Delaware include Francis Thomas, of Maryland; Ralph Clendaniel, of Hartly, Edna Dukes, of Smyrna; Granville James, of Laurel; Paul Mitchell, of Hockessin; Norman Dempsey and Daniel Harris, of Newark. Mrs. Lillian Raughley, of Dover, is coordinating plans for the visitors.

Pakistan was created as a Moslem state from British India in 1947. But the country traces its history to at least 3000 B. C. Ninety per cent of the people today are farmers, and strenuous efforts are being made to improve the social and economic life through the Village Aid Program.

The visiting farm leaders are here to pick up ideas for use at home. The group spent Wednesday at the University of Delaware Agricultural Substation, at Georgetown, the Townsend broiler dressing plant at Millsboro, and the Rural Electrification annual meeting at the fairgrounds in Harrington. They were the guests of Capitol Grange at a picnic supper on Tuesday evening, and (will visit) Governor Carvel at the State House Friday.

Besides Delaware, the Pakistan leaders have seen farmers in Vermont, Michigan, South Dakota, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas, and North Carolina. They arrived in New York in June, were briefed in Washington, D. C., and return to Pakistan the last of August.

We welcome them most heartily. I am sure our folks benefit as much from their visit as we hope they do.

The lister planter is a new plow/plant machine designed for new minimum tillage operations that may revolutionize farming again. It was demonstrated last week on the Schmidt brothers farm near Sudlersville, Md., by the Queen Anne Soil Conservation District at their field day program.

Conventional level land tillage permits the weeds to start before the crop. Too, the moisture is worked out of the soil by repeated discing and packing, which also breaks up the soil structure.

Minimum tillage with the lister planter lets the crop and weeds start together in the plant beds. Old crop residues are mulched in to hold moisture, preserve soil structure, and prevent wind erosion, according to J. T. McAllister, SCS engineer, who is recognized as the "father" of mulch tillage.

New larger farm tractors make mulch tillage practical today at a saving of man labor and lower unit costs. Many time worn notions are discarded. A good seed bed is no longer a finely worked clean seed bed. It is not necessarily level, but listed or trenched. During cultivation, the tractor rides on the undisturbed ridges for firmer footing at first. During the second cultivation, the wheel sweeps level out the ridges so that harvesting is on more level ground.

The Schmidts have 500 acres of lister planted corn, which appears to be the best in the community. We will try to get you the final yield story at the end of the harvest season. In the meantime, if you want to see the test field, drive west to Sudlersville from Hartly. Turn right just before you get to the cemetery and the farm will be on the right about two miles down the road.

4-H News

The first week of 4-H camp is nearing completion. Many stories of fun and laughter will be finding their way into Delaware homes. But the real meaning of camp is a difficult story to carry home. One hundred and fifty campers have worked hard all week to develop their camp. The real spirit is felt when our campers gather around the evening Council circle and share their ideas and talents. Talents, imagination and ingenuity are developed. Friday night at High Council outstanding campers will be recognized. The selection of the Spirit, Head, Heart, Hands and Health will be announced next week in this column.

The Junior Council meeting was presided over by Connie Moore, Dover, with Louis Starkey, Houston and Nancy Konchak, Hartly, assisting. Clubs attending were: Dover Diamonds, Paradise, Chestnut Grove, Houston Cardinals, and Whiteoaks. It was a stormy night so attendance was few, but Tony Fragale made the meeting arrangements for the Council.

Our County Favorite Foods Show is only a month away. 4-H'ers should be practicing preparing their favorite dish. In this event a member prepares their dish. The divisions are breakfast, lunch, dinner or a dessert. After being judged on their preparation, they then display it at an appropriate table setting. They must also include menus for the day. Judges will score on preparation, the product, menu and the table setting. The Suburban Gas Corporation will provide about ten stoves for the event, the ribbons for the county contest and sponsor the state contest. Each county winner is accompanied by her or his mother for an overnight stay in Dover. The State Cook-off will be held on Sept. 23. Plan to visit the Treadway Inn to see 4-H in action.

Mrs. Peter Rusanowsky is anxiously awaiting September when she'll join the Westville 4-H club as a clothing project leader. She's been reading our 4-H leaders manual to gain a better understanding of her job. Also, a recent leader addition was made to the Dover, Diamonds, Mr. A. J. Beruck became their photography project leader. Quickly the members got busy as displayed by their photo exhibits at the fair. There's a great need for adult leadership throughout Kent County. If interested, send your name to my office, P. O. Box 30, Dover. We'll be having a Leader Training Program in October and will welcome anyone interested in exploring 4-H Leadership. The basic requirement is that you like the work. Areas that are particularly in need are Smyrna, Clayton, Dover and Camden. However, throughout the county wherever there are 10 to 21 years olds, there's need for more 4-H clubs.

Our picnic recently was an example of the fun and fellowship of our 4-H leader. Fifty-one attended at Haven Lake. Joining us as future leaders were Mr. and Mrs. Les Coleman, Dover Mrs. Francis Thomas, and Miss Thelma Ford provided recreation. Alvin Brown carried watermelons and cantaloupes and from the sight of Billy Moore, Harrington, the watermelon was delicious and juicy. Mrs. Becky Hollinger, chairman planned a big meal for all.

Miss M. E. Reynolds Miss Mildred E. Reynolds, of 7 Eastview Lane, Clifton Park Manor, Wilmington, died last Thursday night in the Memorial Hospital, Wilmington. She retired after 40 years from the Bell Telephone Co., Philadelphia, and had lived in Clifton Park since then. Surviving are an aunt, Mrs. Homer T. Hopkins, Frederica, and several cousins. Services were at the Berry Funeral Home, Felton, Sunday. Interment was in Barratt's Chapel Cemetery, Frederica.

Windowless Broiler House Results Good

One flock doesn't tell the whole story but Delmarva's new windowless broiler house with special insulation and ventilation features turned up good results in its first test, according to Alden Loberg, of Preston, Md., chairman of the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., broiler housing study committee.

First flock to come out of the test house built under Delmarva Poultry Industry association sponsorship at the University of Delaware agricultural substation near Georgetown showed appreciably better weight, better feed conversion and lower mortality than in two other check flocks raised in one non-insulated house and one partly insulated house at other locations.

A summer flock, the 4987 birds in the windowless house came up with a weight of 3.70 pounds at 9 weeks and 1 day. Feed conversion was 2.16 and mortality 4.77. Kept until 10 weeks, the birds weighed 4.12 pounds then with a feed conversion of 2.21. Little difference in quality was noted between flocks in the three houses.

Frank D'Armi, University of Delaware researcher assigned to the test, reported that the new windowless house cooled off much more quickly in the evening hours than did the check houses with partial or no insulation. Ordinarily, the insulated house was several degrees cooler than the other houses. No birds were lost in this house because of heat.

D'Armi also reported that birds were quiet in this house and that they had very few bruises. Part of this he attributed to low light intensity in the house.

Cost of electricity for the six 24-inch fans which ventilate the 40 by 96 foot windowless house was around $5.10 (259 K.W. hours) per thousand birds for the 9 weeks of the test.

Housing committee chairman Loberg reported that this and results of other broiler housing tests and surveys now underway or completed would be reported in full at a poultry industry meeting for Delmarva bankers scheduled in Salisbury, October 17. Gas companies on the Eastern Shore are cooperating with Loberg's committee to produce a color movie of various types of Delmarva broiler housing which will be available for discussion at this meeting.

Belles Beat Laurel, 4-3; Bow to Chestertown, 8-7

Friday evening the Belles met a team from Laurel for the first time this season at the Moose field.

Laurel took an early 3-0 advantage over the Belles and were unable to score again as the Belles tie the score in the bottom of the fourth inning and neither team was able to score in two and a half innings of play.

At the bottom of the seventh inning, with the score tied 3 all the Belles were able to hit safely, which put the winning run on base. McCloskey got her only hit of the night as she hit a triple to bring across the one run needed to end the game. Pat Hawpe made the fielding play of the night with two fine running catches out in right field.

Sunday night, the Belles traveled to Chestertown to play the undefeated Chestertown team.

Chestertown had a 7-2 advantage over the Belles going into the top of the seventh inning.

The Belles finally started hitting and were able to pick up five runs before the third out, tying the score 7 all. In the bottom of the seventh inning the Belles were unable to hold Chestertown as they scored one run on a walk, which ended the game.

Tonight, (Friday), the Belles will again meet Chestertown at the Moose field at 8 o'clock. This will probably be the last time the Belles will play Chestertown this year and the last chance to beat them. The Belles have a better diamond than does the Chestertown team and this fact has hampered the Belles when they play them away from home.

Fish & Game News

Delaware hunters will enjoy modest relaxation in the seasons on both upland game and waterfowl this fall. The Fish and Wildlife Service and the various state game and fish commissions through game and fish commissions throughout the country are in a position, through careful studies of the seasonal breeding success of native wildlife, to pass on to the hunter any bonus in his sport if a particular species has had a good year.

Quail hunters will be able to hunt "birds" from November 15 through the month of January. In Kent and Sussex Counties the shotgun season for white-tailed deer will be November 6, 7, 8, and 9.

The 1963 waterfowl seasons and daily bag limit reflect improved breeding conditions on the breeding grounds in the Canadian prairie provinces according to John S. Gottschalk, Director of the Northeast Region, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife of Interior's Fish and Wildlife Service. The increase of one bird in the bag for ducks and the 10 days added to the Canada Goose season will provide more hunting opportunities without jeopardizing the essential breeding stocks.

Director Gottschalk warned that the federal bureau believes that any greater liberalization under present conditions would result in excessive shooting pressure and would likely delay recovery of black duck populations. The black duck, the northeast hunter's prime target, has not bounced back to the abundance of the mid 50's.

The duck situation, nationwide, is much improved, but the northeast gunner has no cause for a complacent attitude. Marsh destruction goes on at a rapid pace in the wintering grounds and may prove, in the long run, to be far more calamitous to waterfowl than the gun.

Because of special limits or restrictions on certain ducks, identification remains an important responsibility of waterfowl hunting. To assist hunters a 24-page, full color waterfowl identification guide, "Ducks at a Distance" is available upon request from the Delaware Game and Fish Commission, Dover.

Dove Hunting Changes Listed

The U. S. Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife has issued booklets containing information for hunters of waterfowl.

The three-way split in the dove hunting season has caused several changes, including a reduction from 12 to 10 in the daily limit.

The possession limit also has been changed and the booklet notes that the shooting hours on dove during the season opening Sept. 12 are based on daylight saving time.

Copies of the booklet may 107, Dover, or phoning 734-2304 or leaving a name and address.

in the high-power rifle competition for some of the most prized shooting trophies in the nation.

These matches have been held every year with the sole exception of the major war years since they were first authorized by an act of Congress in 1903. Originally a purely military competition, it was opened to civilian competitors as well in 1916. Camp Perry, the site of the contests, is in the resort area of Ohio on the shore of Lake Erie and was named for Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry whose famed victories over the British men-of-war 150 years ago were in the offshore waters near there.

Representing the Delaware National Guard at Camp Perry are Lt. Col. Georg R. Walton, Newark; M/Sgt. Charles E. Wiggins, Bear; Sfc. Robert T. Connell, Townsend; Capt. Robert L. Young, Lincoln; CWO-2 Harold R. Welch, Jr. of Harrington; Captain Charles R. Painter and Sgt. Edward Hadaway, Jr. both of Smyrna.
