

CITY HOPES TO OPEN NUMEROUS STREETS AND ALLEYS

The City is planning to open a number of streets and alleys, as was revealed Wednesday night in a lengthy September meeting of the City Council.

Before any action is taken, however, resolutions will be published in The Harrington Journal and arguments will be heard before the October meeting of the Council. Similarly, arguments will be heard and resolutions will be printed to change the name of Dixie Street, a one-block street from Clark Street to Liberty Street, to Dixon Street, and the name of Weiner Street, which runs from Franklin Street to Commerce Street, to Mispillion Street.

City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann said opening the streets and alleys would make the City eligible for more Municipal Aid since the mileage thereof is one of the determining factors of the amount of the aid.

Councilman Luther P. Hatfield added that opening up new streets would enable more development of property.

Because of the expenses of the project, it was mentioned the work would have to be done piecemeal, and there were still other alleys to be opened.

In other business the Council: Selected Frank Holton to audit the City's books after he and Isaacson & Stolper had been submitted by the Auditing Committee as applicants for the task. The committee comprises Tharp, Harrington and Lester Smith.

To drill small well at sewage disposal plant to enable more efficient operation of the chlorinator. The city manager mentioned the plant would need more extensive improvements in a couple years. The sewer bonds will be paid off next year.

To clean gutters in mid-October after most leaves have fallen. This action came after Mrs. W. T. Chipman had requested the cleaning of the gutter on Ward Street at the side of her residence.

Refused to pay bills shown by Albert Simpson for services and materials entailed by his laundry when the City cut off the water without notice. A portion of the water code was read saying the City was not liable.

Mayor and city manager will talk to Mrs. Agatha Swann about property she owns on Mispillion Street. Mrs. Swann complained about street water flowing onto her property.

Refused request of J. L. Manship, Weiner Avenue, for reimbursement of funds spent for installing a lateral sewer from the street to his house. Manship based his request on a poor patching job done by the City some years ago. The Council said anything from the main street sewer to the house is the responsibility of the property owner.

Councilman Wilson Bradley said that Horace Riley, Liberty Street and Delaware Avenue, told him that when Liberty Street was curbed recently that his sidewalk was not to be torn up, but it was and he has been billed for it. The issue was referred to the city manager.

City agreed to issue a letter of welcome to the Delaware Volunteer Firemen's Association which will hold its annual convention here next year at an undetermined date.

Hired Herman Kohland, a City employe, at $10 per week, to service the sewage pump on Liberty Street after his normal hours of duty. A new pump is being installed and should be in operation next week, the city manager said. Kohland replaces Wilbur Pearson who has gone to Smyrna.

Agreed to pay half the cost of 146 feet of 12-inch tile, and the costs of installation for two properties of Mrs. Elma Thorpe on West Mispillion Street. Mrs. Thorpe also will pay for sidewalk and half of curb.

Refused request of Enos Langrell for a streetlight at his home on Delaware Avenue and Liberty Street, 4 to 1, Councilman Bradley dissenting. There is a light across the street. Bradley recommended floodlights, and not spotlights for city lighting.

Councilman Luther P. Hatfield was chosen by the mayor to get prices on installing permanent lighting on water tower.

Carvel Set to Veto Rt. 18 Ferry Road

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel said Wednesday he will veto Rt. 18 as the ferry approach road unless the Delaware River and Bay Authority selects an alternate route by Tuesday.

Carvel promised to act after hearing protests against the authority's choice of the route at a 75-minute public hearing.

He said he would prefer not to veto the authority's action but would do so if the authority does not adopt a compromise between Rt. 18 and Rt. 24, the only approach roads mentioned until Wednesday for the Cape May-Lewes Ferry.

The Governors of Delaware and New Jersey have the power to veto any act of the authority within 10 days after receiving the minutes of an authority meeting. The 10 days in which to veto the Rt. 18 plan expires Tuesday.

The meeting Wednesday, attended by about 30 persons, was described as harmonious. The session was held to air protests from residents in the area of Lewes, Quakertown and Belltown, who told the group they opposed the use of Rt. 18.

The idea of establishing a new road somewhere between Rt. 18 and Rt. 24 seemed generally acceptable to those present. William J. Miller Jr., director of operations for the State Highway Department and chief engineer for the authority, indicated that an alternate route of that kind would be feasible.

The principal reason why Rt. 18 was chosen, he said, was that it would cost less than Rt. 24. Miller said the Rt. 18 approach would cost about $1.2 million, Rt. 24 about $2 million and the route discussed Wednesday about $1.7 million.

The federal government might pay about half of the $500,000 difference between the cost of the new route and Rt. 18. The authority would pay for the rest. The compromise route would cut from Rt. 18 to Gills Neck Road and then head straight toward the proposed ferry terminal.

Carvel said it has been "pretty well determined there can be alternate routes" and told the group:

"I believe the matter will be resolved in as satisfactory a possible manner for all concerned."

Much of the protest was voiced by Otis H. Smith, mayor of Lewes, who spoke for the town commission and Chamber of Commerce. He said the use of Rt. 18 would jam the town with traffic and tie up the only two chief arteries into Lewes.

He also said a proposed Hercules Powder Company plant would increase traffic in the same area as would a proposed state park at Ft. Miles.

Then, too, Smith said, the Rt. 18 access would severely limit access to Beebe Hospital and hamper police and firemen in their work. Increased traffic would cause congestion and add to the chance of accidents, he added.

Finally, Smith told the group, the historical value of the area would be damaged by the proposed high-level bridge.

Smith said his group does not oppose the ferry but feels use of Rt. 18 will give the town many

Reform Bills Chance for Passage Good

Leaders of the drive for state correctional reform this week expressed renewed optimism over chances for passage of eight bills which are the key to modernizing the state's prisons and youth training facilities.

Russell W. Peterson, chairman of the Three-S Citizens Campaign, said, "We're delighted at the widespread support for this entire drive to improve the correctional system."

The Three-S chairman also said Gov. Elbert N. Carvel has pledged his "wholehearted support" behind each of the eight bills. Four of the bills will be introduced in the House of Representatives when the General Assembly reconvenes Sept. 9.

Two of the new measures authorize bond issues to construct a new consolidated youth training school plus a security unit and a diagnostic center for juveniles, both on the school site. The other two bills would appropriate $17,000 to aid the 308 West St. "Half Way House" for prisoners in Wilmington and authorize New Castle County Levy Court to allocate some of its funds to the project.

Bills already introduced are: HB 296—which changes sentencing procedures to strengthen the probation and parole systems; HB 297—setting up a state Department of Corrections; HB 299—increasing the staffs of the state's family and juvenile courts, and HB 397—merging these courts into a statewide family court.

Peterson said leaders of the drive for correctional reform are confident all eight bills will pass because:

1. Support for the measures has been steadily growing both among the legislators and in the community.

2. The Joint Legislative Committee on Corrections, headed by House Speaker Sherman Tribbitt, is moving swiftly to review all the bills and report on them to both houses.

3. The bills themselves have been the result of careful preparation in which the heads of all involved state agencies and the Three-S Technical Advisory Committee took part.

4. The steps advocated in the bills call for moderate expenditures without getting into huge outlays for such things as new prison buildings at this time.

5. The bills have bi-partisan support and are unlikely to run into any substantial political controversy.

Peterson also said the Three-S campaign and its allied organizations are mounting a renewed statewide drive in support of the bills, after a summertime lull while legislators reviewed the measures.

ROAD BILL DEADLOCK STILL HOLDS

Continued deadlock and an interrupted or abbreviated session appear the prospects for the General Assembly, returning to Dover Monday after a six-week recess.

Legislators of both parties joined by other political figures had a jolly good time at Brandywine Raceway's annual party for the General Assembly Tuesday night, but compromise solutions to Delaware's key problems were not part of the program.

The highway bond bill is still stymied and concrete results on other key legislative matters may be even scarcer than concrete for the highways.

Republicans indicated they expect to continue their solid front in opposition to the bond bill for highway construction unless there are other concessions, and Democrats could be described as less than optimistic that those will be given.

"We'll be in at least four days," was all the comment that House Speaker Sherman W. Tribbitt, D-St. Georges Hundred, would offer.

Leaders of both parties in both houses will attend a legislative leadership conference in Boston the week of Sept. 16. President Kennedy is to speak on the final day. There is little likelihood any would pass it up. That means a one-week legislative session is likely.

There were rumblings from rank-and-file Republicans Tuesday night that they are disillusioned with their continued position of holding out against the highway bond bill, but little indication that they will bolt ranks.

The GOP members are scheduled for a luncheon caucus on Monday and chances are they will solidify their position there.

The legislators who have been most vocal in urging that something be done—such as Rep. John H. Annett, R-Staytonville, and Sen. Eugene D. Bookhammer, R-Lewes—also declared that they will continue to hew to the party line.

"I'm eager to vote for the bond bill—if and when," said Bookhammer, indicating he will vote for it if Democrats will meet a Republican demand that they bring certain other legislation to a vote.

William V. Roth Jr., state GOP chairman, predicted Republicans would be united in their stand when proceedings in the General Assembly pick up Monday where they left off in July.

The legislators were reluctant to even comment on the fate of the public accommodations bill (SB 183) now in the House Revised Statutes Committee. There was feeling that litigation may have removed the urgency on the bill.

They also said privately that they have been advised by lawyers in the reapportionment suit that the appeal of the U. S. District Court decision has rendered academic the court's October deadline for legislative action. As a consequence there is little likelihood.

Freedom Rally at Rehoboth Beach

Man's inherent love of freedom was graphically presented Sunday night at Rehoboth Beach in the resort's final public gathering of the current season.

Mayor Otis F. Smith, state chairman for Radio Free Europe and Richard J. Behrens, Westfield, N. J., were the sources of information at a freedom rally sponsored by Rehoboth Beach Post No. 4474, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S.

Smith told of the continued effort to penetrate behind the Iron Curtain and give hope to those people whose liberty has been curbed through Communist takeovers. He said ten hours a day of broadcasting in many languages are devoted to this effort so these unfortunate may have hope and hold on until a day of liberation.

INDUSTRY WANTS SITE AT MILFORD

An unidentified industry, which wants to build a factory just outside Milford, has been asked to look for a site within the city limits.

The Greater Milford Development Corporation told City Council Tuesday night the industry wants to build "a large manufacturing plant" on a tract northeast of Milford on the Mispillion River.

The relocation, council was told, depends on whether the plant can get city water, sewer and electrical service. City Manager Harold Hilliard estimated the cost of extending such services at $65,000.

After a three-hour discussion, councilmen agreed that $65,000 was too much to spend, if a site could be found where city services already are available.

Mayor Alfonso J. Humes appointed a committee of Councilmen Baynard Poor, James Bradley and Howard Furness to work with the Development Corporation in seeking an in-town location.

Cancer Society Awards Grant To Milfordian

The Delaware Division, American Cancer Society has awarded a $15,000 research grant for leukemia studies to a Milford native.

Dr. Joseph H. Burchenal, head of the division of clinical chemotherapy at Memorial Hospital in New York, has been given the appropriation to aid in his search for new effective compounds and methods of treatment of leukemia.

The grant was announced yesterday by Dr. Peter Van Wyck, chairman of the board of the Delaware Division. The research, paid for with funds contributed during the 1963 Delaware Cancer Crusade, will be performed in the renowned Sloan-Kettering Institute in New York.

The native Delawarean has been active in recent years in the effort to conquer leukemia. In the Cancer Society-sponsored project, Dr. Burchenal will work with a colony of mice, some of which are sensitive to conventional chemotherapeutic agents and other of which are resistant.

Survival of mice is taken as a measure of drug effectiveness. One of the problems Dr. Burchenal hopes to solve is a way to screen compounds that would be more economical and more rapid.

Combinations of drugs will be tested in an effort to circumvent the development of drug resistance, a phenomenon observed both in mice leukemic strains and in leukemia patients. The drugs being tested include the nitrogen mustard, other alkylating agents, the folic acid antagonists, purine antagonists, pyrimidine antagonists, analogs of various amino acids, and certain antibiotics.

The research project will continue from September, 1963, through August 31, 1964. The total cost of Dr. Burchenal's research will be $20,460, leaving about $5,000 to be made up from sources other than the Delaware grant.

After leaving Milford as a young man, Dr. Burchenal graduated from Princeton University and received his M.D. from the University of Pennsylvania. He served his internship, residency and military duty, and then joined the staff of New York's Memorial Hospital in 1946 as special fellow in medicine. In 1949 he was named assistant attending physician and later attending physician and chief of the chemotherapy service at the Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Burchenal was named professor of medicine at the Sloan-Kettering Institute in 1952. He has served as chief of the division of clinical chemotherapy at Sloan-Kettering since 1954, and head of the leukemia section, division of experimental chemotherapy at the Institute since 1947.

W.B.A. News

The officers and members of W.B.A. Review No. 4 were entertained by the president, Mrs. Leila Hopkins, Wednesday evening, at her home on Vernon Rd., at a covered-dish supper on the lawn. After the supper a social evening, visiting and games were played, after which the hostess served dessert. Mrs. Edith Massey won the door prize.

School Reopens With Record-Breaking Enrollment

Following the trend of the past few years, the Harrington Special School District Schools reopened for the 1963-64 school year with a record-breaking enrollment. Unofficial count shows that there are 526 boys and girls in the Elementary School, 471 in the Harrington Junior-Senior High School, and 115 at the West Harrington Elementary School for an overall total of 1112. This compares to 1078 on the opening day of 1962.

For this school year, the doors will open at 8:20 each morning. Bus drivers have already agreed to arrange their schedules so as to arrive at the school as near to this time as possible. However, should they arrive early, students will not be dismissed from the bus until the opening time. The parents of those children who do not come on the bus are requested by school officials to not allow their children to arrive at the school before the doors open. In case of necessity and during periods of inclement weather those boys and girls who must get here before 8:20 a. m. will be admitted to the cafeteria through the main entrance at the elementary school on Dorman Street. Unless the weather is bad, or unless the student has a pass signed by a teacher requesting his presence, no one will be admitted until the doors open.

All students driving cars to school have been assigned the center section of the parking lot in the rear of the school. All student cars are expected to be parked there at all times.

The new Junior-Senior High School was ready for occupancy at the opening of school. Although there is still work to be done in some of the sections of the building, the unfinished portions will not interfere with the conducting of classes. Things mainly lacking at the present time are items of equipment and not construction deficiencies.

Blow Torch Fire Damages Felton Home

The home of Irvin Wyatt, about 2 miles east of Felton, was damaged by fire at 4:45 p.m. Monday when fumes and sparks from blow torches, being used to replace some pipes, started a blaze inside of the partition.

When Felton firemen reached the scene they found the blaze inside of the partition extending from the basement to the roof and they had to open the wall to extinguish the fire.

The loss has been tentatively listed at about $2000.

Accidents Head List of School Children Fatalities

Accidents are the leading cause of death to school-age children, a Delaware Safety Official pointed out yesterday in a back-to-school time review of the facts on accidents involving youngsters.

Richard H. McMullen, president of the council, asked Delawareans to consider these facts: About 3,200 children 5-14 years of age were killed in 1962 in the nation in accidents involving motor vehicles.

1,500 of those children were pedestrians. A total of 150,000 children in the 5-14 age group are injured each year in motor vehicle mishaps.

One out of 12 students injured is on his way to or from school. That's the problem—and back-to-school time is when the problem reaches its peak, according to the Safety Council president.

For solutions to the problem, the council offered suggestions to parents and motorists. "Parents," McMullen said, "should teach their children to stop, look and listen before crossing streets or railroad tracks. It's not old-fashioned to be safe. Parents should also set a proper example. Don't expect a child to obey a rule you violate."

FIFTY CASES FACING JUDGE DUFFY

The September term of Superior Court opens Monday with more than 50 cases still hanging fire and some more in prospect after the Grand Jury completes its work.

During the summer the court took up no civil cases except divorces and now faces a backlog of 35 civil actions, 10 listed for jury trials.

Also pending are 19 criminal cases. This number would be increased by indictments handed up by the grand jury which meets Monday.

President Judge William Duffy will preside for the term. Nine criminal cases, all as a result of indictments returned by the June Grand Jury, are scheduled to be heard in September or later in the term, which extends until early December.

Among the criminal trials are two for murder in the second degree, one for manslaughter, one for abortion, three for forgery and two for assault with intent to commit robbery.

Also on the criminal trial list are 10 cases involving appeals from lower courts of which four are from the Court of Common Pleas, one from the Family Court and the remainder from decisions of magistrates.

Milford Asks Aid on Sewers

Milford City Council Tuesday night authorized City Manager Harold Hilliard to apply to the Housing and Home Financing Agency for a 50 per cent federal grant on a sewer project estimated at $185,000.

The sewer would serve the junior high school and would be a gravity line along Rehoboth Road and N. E. Front Street. A pumping station at the disposal plant would be included.

Council also decided to work with industrial concerns in an effort to establish preliminary sewage treatment at the concerns. The plants have reportedly overloaded the Milford sewage plant with their wastes.

26th Annual Flower, Art Show Set for Sept. 11

The 26th annual Flower and Art Show will be sponsored by the Ever Ready Class of Asbury Church School Wed., Sept. 11. As usual everyone in the community is asked to bring exhibits on Wednesday morning so they can be arranged for judging in the afternoon. Awards will be given to the man, the woman, the girl and the boy who has the greatest number of blue stickers for exhibits of flowers, plants, vegetables, etc.

In recent years the addition of painting by non-professional artists has been quite an attraction. It will be in charge of Mrs. Howard Cooper, assisted by Mrs. Clarence Jarrell and Mrs. Abner Hickman. A cash award has been given the chairman by an anonymous donor for the best painting as judged by popular vote by ballot.

There will be a variety table where articles will be for sale. Homemade cake and homemade ice cream will be for sale. Admission will be a freewill offering taken in the vestibule of Collins Hall where the show will be held. Doors will be open at 7 p.m. Proceeds will be used to reduce the church debt.

The following committees are in charge of the affair. Mrs. Reginald McKnatt, the president of the class will be general chairman.

Classifications — Mrs. Elmer Smith, Mrs. Preston Anthony, Mrs. V. S. Clarkson. Arrangements — Mrs. Clarence Kemp, Mrs. Samuel Raughley, Mrs. O. F. Gillette, Mrs. Benjamin Emory, Miss Elizabeth Sapp, Miss Della Ryan.

Publicity — Mrs. William W. Sharp. Tables — Mrs. W. Carroll Welch and her sons. Ice cream — Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson, Mrs. Ruth Ryan, Mrs. F. R. Bull, Mrs. Frank Derricksen.

Cakes — Mrs. P. C. Harrington, Mrs. J. A. Masten, Mrs. Bryan McKnatt. Judges — Mrs. Clarence Raughley.

Variety table — Mrs. H. C. Austin and Mrs. W. R. Massey. Art Department as named above.

Awards — Mrs. Reginald McKnatt and Mrs. Virginia Clarkson.

Kent Sheriff to Put Jewelry on the Block

Deputy Sheriff William T. James will auction off 189 pieces of costume jewelry—one by one—next Tuesday at 11 a. m.

The unique action came about when a Milford woman failed to satisfy a judgment against her and had to give up the jewelry under superior court order.

Deputy James—an old hand at sheriff's sales, is also planning to sell a more prosaic item—a car. But this part of the auction may not be held.

Buckson Speaks To Kiwanis Club

The speaker for the regular Thursday dinner meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Greenwood was Attorney General David P. Buckson, who was introduced by 2nd Vice President Lawrence E. Meredith. Mr. Buckson's address concerned his recent decision defending the reading of the Bible and the recitation of the Lord's Prayer at the beginning of the school day. A number of interested citizens attended.

The total value of the items is about $800. James figures selling it piece by piece will bring a higher price.

BROILER HOUSE PREVIEW—Two Delmarva bankers preview an experimental broiler house which will be reviewed as part of a full-dress banker and poultry industry conference to be held in Salisbury next month. They are, left, Abram Gottwals, agricultural advisor to the First National Bank of Maryland, and, next to him, Charles Hollis, assistant vice president, Bank of Delaware, Seaford. The house, a windowless one with special ventilation and insulation features, is located at the University of Delaware Agricultural Substation near Georgetown. It was designed and built under Delmarva Poultry Industry Association sponsorship as part of its industry research and improvement program. Pointing out ventilation features of the house is Alden Loberg, right, of Preston, Md., chairman of the poultry industry association's broiler housing committee. Beside him is Gene Bailey, DPI president from Millsboro. The four were part of a group planning the October meeting at which bankers from Delmarva and surrounding areas will discuss all phases of poultry industry financing and hear the results of studies and surveys on the future expansion of the Peninsula's poultry industry.

COME IN SHOP AND SAVE ON MANY OTHER ITEMS

Delaware Food Market Report

Look around you next time you go to the shopping center and notice how many items are on the Johnny-come-lately list. Super markets consider hundreds of new products every month, and the corner grocer checks over quite a number also. It's not surprising then, that the majority of foods in the store are new or changed in some way since World War II.

Take a walk around the grocery store this week and you may find one or two or even more new products. So clear the shelves for more new foods that are designed to make life easier and more interesting.

An interesting new food on the way is sweet potato flakes, a product developed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture to revive interest in sweet potatoes. These potato flakes are fine for casserole dishes, in sweet potato pie and for plain mashed potatoes.

Other new food products with a promising future are designed especially for the calorie-conscious and convenience-minded person. Developed by the food scientists at Michigan State University, they include a frozen whipped cream that comes in a rigid or plastic container and stores in the freezer compartment of the refrigerator. All you do is defrost it a few minutes before you use. This is an idea for "do-it-yourself" people, too.

Instant cheese made from powdered cheddar and blue cheese needs only the addition of water to be ready for use in a cheese sauce. It may be used, also, in its powdered form as a flavoring for soups, casseroles, pizzas and souffles.

Ideal for the dieter who doesn't like black coffee is a new cream replacement made from skim milk. It costs no more than nonfat dry milk.

Other new things still to come are frozen breakfasts on disposable trays, liquid cake batter in a carton, round push-up tubes of butter, lemon spray (the new aerosol is ideal for salads, fish, etc.), chocolate sprup in a plastic squeeze bottle.

Many new freeze dried foods will soon be coming to the grocery shelf. Right now five casserole dishes are available in some sections of the country. These dishes are shrimp creole, potatoes and ham au gratin, chicken and noodles au gratin, ham and noodles, and chicken and rice.

They cost about a dollar a package, and are supposed to serve 3 or 4. I am told these products are quite pleasing, and serve two people with good appetites.

More Than Memory

As long as the present adult generation can remember, parents and educators have been attacking the "tyranny of the examination." The arguments are familiar:

Examinations cannot be true tests of knowledge. Success depends too much on cramming and memory; there is luck in the choice of questions; some students suffer from "nerves" and are not at their best; performance throughout the term is a better indication of a student's knowledge than a short sharp, test.

Nonetheless, there is evidence that the public confuses success in examinations with real learning. The truth of this is often demonstrated by university graduates, particularly in arts, who—if they remember their course—can repeat parts of it but seem unable to draw on that breadth of knowledge that generates original thoughts and makes the truly educated man.

There is confusion in the ultimate aim of education. If it is to create Bacon's "fulle man," a cultivated individual, one cast in something resembling the Renaissance mold, then we must realize that we cannot achieve it through capsule-style knowledge and examinations which, however cunningly devised, test only memory.

Far too many examinations are based strictly upon the more mechanical functions of memory. When learning is like a stream flowing between high banks, with tributaries forbidden, then not only education but examinations, too, are but navigation tests of a straight course. A little intelligence and a good memory serve.

Youth Must Develop Its Own Initiative

There's a lot of talk over the country today about "finding and developing the creative and brilliant youngsters in our midst."

The theory seems to be that they are buried under a bushel or in the sand, and if no one digs them out and applies some sort of pressure to them, they'll be "lost to society and the nation."

We'd suggest that the process of digging themselves out is a major part of development—and that, to make it effective, they must do it themselves.

Certainly opportunity should be wide open to any youth who wants to take advantage of it. Mostly, we think it is—meaning that, with very few exceptions, any body can get an education today who's willing to work for it.

And after the education, opportunity is wide open to any youth who has a goal and has prepared himself for it—probably there never was a time when that was a true as it is today.

In taking advantage of that opportunity, the youth is going to need personal strength and initiative—and lots of it.

So it seems to us the goal of earlier education should be to teach fundamental knowledge and in so doing, create in the pupil a thirst for more, a desire to understand, a questing mind, and a knowledge of how to go about further learning.

In putting that into effect, the more of it he does himself, the more self-reliance he will develop, the more initiative he will find, and the more good he will acquire from the process.

The problem of education and youth leadership, it seems to us, isn't so much "developing" the brilliant youth, as it is to open the vista of knowledge and thought for him and—to that extent—help him to develop himself.

Too many of the theories today seem to involve too much pushing and too much dictation—and that, we think, is much more likely to hinder his real development than to help it.

Women and Learning

We have all heard much about the way jobs and factories are quickly outmoded in this fast-moving technical age. What we are just beginning to realize is that major portions of the world's knowledge are being outdated just as speedily.

Some educators are saying that the endless torrent of new knowledge has the effect of rendering college degrees relatively obsolete within a few years after they are granted.

But the impact of the "explosion of knowledge" is far wider than this.

For example, scholars may no longer master a specialty and then rest content within its comfortable confines for the rest of their lives. New probings may shift the frontiers of knowledge elsewhere.

The conferring science teachers seem to feel that the days are over when knowledge could be neatly packaged under simple labels like "physics" or "biochemistry." Constant fresh disclosures cause an ebb and flow across traditional subject boundaries.

Just as scholars will have to shift with these tides, so schools will have to revise steadily the course structure and content to keep up.

And, especially in important technical fields, school graduates who would make any pretense of "being current" will have to find ways of continuously updating their knowledge.

In Chicago recently, women's deans and counselors in U. S. colleges found this problem striking women graduates with particular force.

Most such women marry and raise families soon after graduation. Thus while their newly acquired knowledge is most usefully up-to-date, they have limited chance to employ it. Years later, when they have the time to seek work or enlist in civic enterprises, they find their schooling no longer fits the facts of life.

We used to think of our long span of school days as our great, golden opportunity to learn. It is still that. But, obviously, from warnings of educators, we can afford less and less to regard this period as our only learning time. Some educators argue today for expanded adult education as basically a "catch up" effort for millions of Americans whose original schooling was somehow deficient.

Perhaps adult training should be thought of just as much as a "keep up" effort to be made by all of us, in an age when not to undertake fresh study is to chain one's self to a world of knowledge that no longer exists.

(The Daily Sikeston (Mo.) Standard)

No Never

Even though we spend most of our days in a spin, it appears we just don't go around in the right circles.

Just when we discovered that the beauty shops have a new slogan: "Never Say Dye," and were about to comment on it, there came a haughty snort from our advisor on such subjects.

"That word 'dye,'" she said, "has not passed the lips of an avante (that's French for hep) beautician for more than 20 years!"

"But," we sputtered, "now-a-days, when the gals change their hair like they change their minds under them, what do they ask for?"

"Haircoloring," she said patiently, "is today's word."

So there you have it. But, we didn't get off that easy. It seems that, in the old days, there was something pretty irrevocable about getting your hair dyed. It took the courage of a Joan of Arc to go through with it. And if the lady (or her boy-friend) didn't like it afterward, she needed the patience of a Penelope (who waited 20 years for Ulysses to come home from a fight he got into about a horse) to correct matters. Her hair had to "grow out", which meant being sentenced to six months or more of two-toned tresses.

But today, a girl will pick a new color for her crowning glory with less concern than a man deciding on a necktie to match his morning mood. And why not? If she changes her mind tomorrow, she can get that haircolor washed out and try another one.

Thus today, as never before, the words of the poet (we can't remember whether it was Miss Clairol or Mr. Shakespeare) may be taken at face value:

"Age cannot wither her, no custom stale
 Her infinite variety."

But she had better never, never, never say "dye."

Ft. Miles Hearing Set For Sept. 11

Congressman Harris B. McDowell, Jr., announced yesterday that hearings have been set for Sept. 11 by the House Armed Services Committee on his bill to return to Delaware approximately 500 acres of excess beach-front land at Ft. Miles Military Reservation for a State Park.

President Kennedy has indicated great personal interest in having this excess land returned to Delaware, and has worked with Congressman McDowell to make this possible.

Committee Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) has promised Rep. McDowell to chair the hearings if at all possible.

The hearings will begin at 10 a.m., and will be held in the Committee's hearing room in the House Office Building, in Washington.

Among the scheduled witnesses are Governor Elbert N. Carvel, and Congressman Harris B. McDowell, Jr.

Also, W. Emerson Wilson, former city editor of the Wilmington Morning News, and a well-known expert on the history of Delaware, and the Civil War.

Other witnesses who will testify are John A. Bivens, State Planning Officer, and Peter Gelfod, State Superintendent of Parks.

Congressman McDowell said yesterday:

"The future development of Ft. Miles as an ocean beach playground is assured if Congress adopts my bill. This valuable and historic Cape Henlopen area must be returned to Delaware."

"The need for outdoor recreation areas in Delaware has grown tremendously in recent years.

Fifty years ago Delaware had a population of only 202,000, more than half of whom lived in farms and in small villages and towns. There were only 4 urban places in Delaware in 1910.

Today, more than 300,000 Delawareans live in cities or suburbs. An official publication of the State of Delaware declares:

"The trouble is that in Delaware today there are simply not enough good, uncrowded places open to the public for recreation. There are not enough parks with bathing and boating, not enough pleasant wilderness places for picnicking or nature-study or camping, not enough public fishing or hunting areas."

Drive Begins Against Skeeters

The worst mosquito outbreak this season has had Kent Countians swatting away and Mosquito Control Division spray planes spurting insecticides this week.

Spray planes were out Wednesday in the East Dover area in an effort to cut down the mosquito population, quell what Charles D. Murphy, Jr., division director, calls it the worst outbreak this year.

It should be small comfort to capital city area residents to know they are the only sufferers in the current outbreak—as Murphy claims they are. Murphy said the pesky flyers—activated by recent heavy rains and flood tides—are only bad in Central Delaware from Mispillion River to Woodland Beach.

He said the problem in New Castle — which has had its mosquito troubles this year — is "spotty." Sussex County isn't bad at all, he stated.

Murphy laid the blame for Kent County's trouble squarely on Delaware Bay's oyster. He said mosquitoes are a problem here because his planes haven't been able to spray favorite mosquito breeding grounds which are also oyster seed areas. This is in the mouth of rivers emptying into the bay and in marshes along the bay.

The mosquito division was asked to halt its spraying this summer by the state Shell Fish Commission which said the insecticide was killing the summer oyster spat (or seed) fall in the rivers and bay.

While the situation is bad, Murphy says it doesn't compare with other recent years.

Spraying in Kent County began after the band which had been in effect from the Mispillion River to Leipsic was lifted following the end of the oyster season.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear husband, Harvey Dill on his birthday.

God saw the road was getting rough. The hill was hard to climb. He closed your loving eyes and said "Peace be Thine".

You slipped away quietly. Your thoughts unknown. You left me memories I am proud to miss. I miss you—your gentle face. No one can fill your vacant place.

Sadly missed and dearly loved by your wife—PEARL 9-6 exp.

disadvantages whereas a route south of town would mean only advantages.

Miller said that besides the cost, the authority was influenced by estimates that Rt. 18 would attract more traffic for the ferry.

No local citizens attended to support the use of Rt. 18. Miller said that some assurance of federal assistance would be necessary before the cost of an alternate plan could be known.

Also at the hearing were authority commissioners James G. Smith, of Dover; Howard S. Abbott, of Georgetown; and William R. Murphy, of Milford; John A. Bivens Jr., director of planning for the state; James J. Deputy, highway department secretary and controller and an official of the authority, and Edwin Golin, director of the state development department.

Movers Ask PSC Regulation

A group of household movers once again wants to be regulated by the Public Service Commission.

Several years ago a bill was passed giving the USC authority to regulate all truckers. But some truckers expressed dissatisfaction, and this year the truckers were removed from commission jurisdiction.

Now the household movers have drawn up a bill that would place them under PSC supervision. They had scheduled a meeting late Wednesday morning to discuss the matter with the commission, which they want to endorse the measure.

Spokesman for the movers is Richard I. Merrill, president of Seaford Storage and Moving and Republican Van Lines of Wilmington. He heads the Delaware Movers Association, which he says represents 18 or 19 of the 35 movers in Delaware.

Merrill said the movers instigated the original bill to get PSC regulation and other truckers had decided to go along. Applications were sent out and returned, but the section of law was repealed before it ever got to the regulatory stage.

The move to repeal was prompted, according to Merrill by a PSC statement that persons wishing to protest applications would have to shoulder the financial burden.

"We movers think we're a little different set of pups from the freighters," Merrill said Tuesday, explaining that freighters have mostly steady runs while movers "render a personalized service" that anyone could "get a horse and cart" and do.

Merrill said he's not against free enterprise but some protection is necessary for the movers and the public.

There are, he said, necessary requirements for movers, such as a closed van, adequate equipment and insurance, fire equipment, experienced personnel.

Wednesday's session was expected to entail a discussion of the specifics to be involved in the bill. It will be similar to the bill of several years ago except the words common carrier will be replaced by the words household goods carrier.

Merrill said the movers decided to seek the legislation rather than to fight the bill repealing the act for all truckers. The Delaware Motor Truckers Organization was strongly for repeal.

He said he hopes the bill could be introduced next week.

The PSC also was scheduled Wednesday to consider an application by the Railway Express Agency to abandon its New Castle and Newport stations.

200 Women Go Back To School This Week

It's back to school time for nearly 200 Delaware homemakers who will attend University Days for Women on the campus of the University of Delaware on Friday and Saturday, (Sept. 6 and 7). But instead of the "three R's", the women will study such subjects as putting a designer's touch on the clothes they make, experimental cookery, creative art and flower arranging.

For about half the women it will also be an experience in college living as they stay overnight in student dormitories. Other women will attend as day students.

With the theme of "Widening Your Horizons through Understanding and Appreciation," University Days for Women is sponsored annually by the home economics extension service at the University.

Highlights of the two-day event are a panel discussion on "Science, the Arts and People," a symposium on family problems, a banquet and a tea, as well as 12 class sessions each afternoon.

"With the increasing problems and demands facing the woman of today, the new discoveries in science and technology and the changing values and goals of society, the American woman faces a real challenge," says Mrs. Alice M. King, state leader of home economics extension.

"University Days" seeks not only to help provide some of the answers, but to give Delaware women a chance to develop their own capabilities and to gain a new outlook through association with others experiencing the same problems.

Working with the home economics extension staff in planning University Days for Women is a committee of homemakers, including Mrs. Herbert Griffith, of Milford; Mrs. Marvel McWilliams, of Newark; Mrs. Everett Warrington, of Felton; and Mrs. Earl White, of Bridgeville.

and brakes. You can't blame the garage man if your car doesn't stop quickly enough in an emergency.

Drive slowly near schools, and slow down where children are walking or playing.

Expect the unexpected from children. Most of them get hurt running from behind parked cars or crossing in the middle of an intersection.

Remember that in Delaware traffic in both directions must stop when a school bus is loading or unloading.

Girl Scouts To Get New Handbooks

The Girl Scouts and leaders of America have eagerly awaited, Mon., Sept. 9, as that is the day the new handbooks and leaders guides will make their first appearance.

All Girl Scout equipment agencies within the Chesapeake Bay Girl Scout Council will launch the sale on Monday morning of four complete new Girl Scout handbooks. The four books represent successive stages in one continuous program for girls aged 7 through 17. The books are beautifully illustrated and are packed with facts, how-to-do-it information and ideas for projects encompassing every aspect of activity in the arts, the home and the out-of-doors.

More Than 200,000 Hold Del. Licenses

There were a total of 249,208 persons holding motor vehicle operator's licenses issued by the State of Delaware on June 30, according to the records of the Auditing Division of the Motor Vehicle Department.

Of the licenses in operation, 170,224 were the regular renewal type and 78,984 were permanent operator's licenses.

Of the regular renewable type licenses 144,663 were for the pleasure vehicle operators and 25,561 were for chauffeur licenses.

Of the permanent operator's licenses, 64,194 were for pleasure vehicles and 14,790 were for chauffeur and commercial vehicles.

During the fiscal year that ended on June 30, the Motor Vehicle Department handled 22,163 applications for learner's permits for the operation of motor vehicles.

Rapid Suburban Development Leaves Idle, Unused Land

Rapid suburban development is leaving numerous tracts of idle, unused land on the fringe of the cities, points out a new University of Delaware publication, "Idle Land In An Urbanizing Area: The Delaware Experience."

This unused land has contributed to rising public costs and seriously interferes with attempts to plan or direct proper suburban expansion, according to one of the authors, Gerald F. Vaughn, former U.S.D.A. economist at the University of Delaware and now an extension specialist at Texas A and M College.

Idle land adds to the problem of extending highways, utilities, and services into developing areas. Regional planning agencies say that orderly suburban development would be facilitated if many idle tracts were brought into use.

Vaughn, along with Edward C. Moore, consultant in planning for the University's Division of Urban Affairs, conducted research on idle suburban land in Delaware. The purpose was to aid regional planning efforts in guiding land resources into desired uses and to increase the understanding of "rural-urban fringe" land use and ownership problems.

In northern New Castle County, developed areas have increased from 15,000 acres in 1937, to 52,000 acres in 1960. In the development process, many idle tracts were left. Vaughn and Moore found that in 1960, 163 privately owned idle tract comprised 13 percent of all tracts of ten or more acres outside incorporated municipalities and suburban housing subdivisions.

Most of the owners of this idle land say they acquired the land for resale and more than a third indicated that this land was idle in 1960 because it was for sale or under option.

Vaughn and Moore note that nearly 70 per cent of the idle tracts had physical-locational characteristics that seriously detract from their development potential for uses such as housing or industry. Probably the best use for a number of these tracts would be as "open space": parks, outdoor recreational sites, wildlife management areas, or other pertinent uses, they say.

"However," says Vaughn, "comprehensive regional planning might indicate that certain suitable tracts should be moved into more intensive uses at the earliest possible date." The publication cites several methods for bringing land with excellent or fair development potential into intensive use.

The booklet is published by the Division of Urban Affairs and the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Delaware. A copy may be obtained from the University's Division of Urban Affairs.

Common Cold Cause of School Absenteeism

The common cold continues to be the largest single factor contributing to the 12.2 days per school year the average Delaware student is absent from school, according to a study by Schering Corporation, a leading pharmaceutical company.

Using statistics from the National Education Association, the study reveals that Delaware ranks fourth in days attended per pupil. The best attendance record for the 1962-63 school year was set by the state of Washington with an average of 10.5 days missed. Utah was second with 11.2. The national average of school absences was 18.9.

Medical survey indicate that children of elementary school age have five times as many colds as do adults. According to a 1963 U. S. Public Health Service report, respiratory illnesses were responsible for about two-thirds of school days lost because of acute illnesses or injuries during the 1961-62 school year.

The first onslaught of colds strikes the schools almost as soon as children reassemble for the new year. One contributing factor to this, according to research scientists, is that spread of colds like other virus-caused infections is accelerated by the mixing of populations. In fixed stable groups which are not exposed to strangers, cold-like infections tend to die out, and do not reappear until there is contact outside the group.

The best defense against the common cold is prevention. Warm clothing should be worn, and good diets planned. Whenever possible avoid contact with a person suffering from a cold.

Resort Traffic Report Shows Increase

Common Cold Cause of School Absenteeism

Traffic over Delaware highways to resort areas continues to show huge increases over last year, according to a traffic count prepared by the Planning Section of the State Highway Department.

A traffic counter along Route 14, northwest of Rehoboth, recorded an increase of 19.45 per cent for July in comparison with the same month of last year and an increase of similar size has been recorded each month this summer.

Along Route 113, at a point north of Milford the increase was 7.97 per cent and this point has likewise recorded an increase for each month this summer over the same period of last year.

The figures for Route 14, near Rehoboth show a daily average count of 15,966 for July; an increase of 2,600 over July of last year. The largest single day was July 27, when 23,219 vehicles were counted.

Along Route 113, north of Milford, the daily average was 11,274, an increase of 832 while the largest single day was July 21, when 16,591 vehicles were counted.

The report for July recorded decreases of 4.34 per cent along Route 202, the Concord Pike, which is attributed to a change in racing dates at Brandywine Raceway, and 1.35 per cent along Route 13, at a point south of Greenwood.

The daily average along Route 202 was 19,168, a decrease of 870, with the largest single day being July 19, when 21,692 vehicles were counted. The daily average along Route 13, south of Greenwood, was 8,019, a decrease of 465, and the largest single day was July 26, when 9,285 vehicles were counted.

Along Route 13, at a point north of Smyrna, the increase was 4.26 per cent, with the daily average being 18,857 an increase of 769, and the largest single day was July 28, with 23,022 vehicles counted.

A very slight increase, of 0.97 per cent was recorded along Route 40, at a point west of Bear, with the daily average being 21,973, an increase of 310, and the largest day was July 14, when 40,887 vehicles were counted.

An increase of seven per cent was recorded along State Route 2, the Kirkwood Highway at a point east of Newark, with the daily average being 17,600, an increase of 1,152, and the largest single day was July 19, when 20,706 vehicles were counted.

This school is designed to help Church School teachers to do a better job in their important task.

The publication, produced by the Department of Rural Communications at the University, is entitled "Food Distribution Management at the University of Delaware." In awarding the blue ribbon, the judges commented that the publication showed "excellent use of color" and was "well laid out."

The food distribution program at the University has become nationally known for its leadership in research, teaching and extension, according to Dr. McDaniel. Among its activities are providing practical food marketing information and management assistance to retailers, wholesalers, brokers and others engaged in food distribution.

In addition, the department offers a program of study for both undergraduate and graduate students, as well as conducting research in food distribution management, merchandising, engineering and packaging.

In addition to receiving top honors in the publication contest, the Department of Rural Communications received second place honors for a black and white photograph. Nearly 350 entries were judged in the 17 categories of the contest.

Greenwood to Have Homecoming

The annual Homecoming Service at Greenwood Grace Methodist Church will be Sun., Oct. 6, 2 p.m. The speaker will be Dr. George R. Seidel, manager of the Education Section of the duPont Company's Public Relations Department.

Dr. Seidel is chairman of the Board of Trustees, Sunday School teacher, and the lay preacher of McCabe Memorial Methodist Church in Wilmington.

He is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the National Science Teachers Association, and the Scientific Research Society of America.

In these capacities he has addressed many audiences throughout the nation.

Speaking of Insects with Dale Bray

Some folks think that cedar chests or cedar-lined closets will prevent clothes moth damage. This, like so many old-fashioned remedies, doesn't work, but there was one clothes moth protection that Grandma used which was effective. Remember when she would hang rugs and woolen goods on the clothesline during a clear summer day? She probably thought the airing helped them, but what really happened was that the clothes moths were exposed to sunlight which killed them. Actually, it wasn't the moth she killed, it was the caterpillar that came from the egg the moth laid. Very few housewives ever see the free flying clothes moth. It's not likely to be seen around the porch light as are so many other moths. In fact, it shuns light, seeking dark places. The adult moth is about the size of a grain of rice. It is golden-brown in color and can run rapidly for its size, that is, if it had only adult clothes moths we wouldn't have much of a problem. But they lay eggs which hatch, producing tiny white caterpillars. It is the caterpillar which gnaws the holes in your suit or socks. The most common clothes moth in Delaware spins a silken web wherever it goes. If it finds your suit to its liking it won't travel much more than an inch from the spot where it makes the first bite.

When the larva or caterpillar is full grown it changes to the pupa stage from which another moth emerges to start the whole thing over. Fortunately, these pests don't grow rapidly, and there aren't many generations per year. Otherwise we might have an even more serious fight on our hands to protect clothes, rugs, upholstered chairs, etc.

Clothes moth caterpillars prefer to feed on fabric that has minute amounts of food or grease which normally soil clothing—even our best clothes. Drycleaning will make the clothes less attractive to them. Some dry cleaners incorporate a special treatment with some clothes which protects them from clothes moths. Storing clean clothes in tightly closed plastic bags is an effective method to prevent infestations from starting. Storing of fabrics in air-tight containers along with a liberal application of PDB crystals is very effective, but be sure it's air tight. Spraying clothes with old-fashioned Larvex (which contains a fluoride) or DDT in oil solution gives protection, but only so long as the clothes are not worn.

Rugs and upholstery can be protected by sprays of DDT in oil solution. In spite of the bad things said about the danger of DDT, it can be used in this manner with safety if you keep pets and children from sprayed surfaces until the spray has dried.

The first meeting of the Asbury Woman's Society of Christian Service will be held on Tuesday evening, September 10 at 7:30. The meeting will be held in the Pathfinder's room instead of Collins Hall as was reported last week. The annual flower show will be in progress in the Collins Hall necessitating the change.

Mrs. Floyd Nasser, president of the society, is anticipating a busy and rewarding year. All members are urged to attend this and every meeting throughout the year.

FENCE TALK

With George Vapaa

Corn silage and alfalfa hay are the basis of good livestock feeding programs here in Kent County. Interest is high on both of these crops at the present time. Silage is the best form to use drought damaged corn. And if a farmer is short of hay, he can balance out his roughage needs for livestock with silage. Most people agree there is no better silage than corn.

Some folks feed 100% silage as their roughage. But most people prefer to see the cows get 5 to 8 lbs. of hay per day as a minimum, and give the cows all the silage they will clean up. We are taking yield figures on Jim Mitchell's corn demonstration plot near Smyrna. Last year several varieties produced better than 20 tons of corn per acre. We suggest that you look at the plots now. The 23 varieties used are all marked with signs. Fertilizer treatments are easily seen. The corn is quite yellowish where no fertilizer was used. The heaviest applications are still "pizon" green.

Several local fertilizer companies are offering "guaranteed stands" of alfalfa and our planted acreage may double this fall as a result. This simply means that people are confident we can get good stands if all the necessary steps of land preparation, seeding and fertilization are followed.

Few of us boast the skill or talent to be literary stylists. People often ask me why they can't get publicity in the paper or on the radio. The answer is: Prepare your story in good form and make it news worthy.

James A. Reynolds, of National Geographic magazine lists 10 rules of thumb: (1) stock to short, simple words; (2), shun tongue-twisters; (3), weed out wasted words; (4), cultivate vivid, vigorous verbs; (5), avoid passive voice; (6), strive for short, direct sentences; (7), beware of comma clutter; (8), translate "Gobbledygook"; (9), woo with verbal imagery; (10) dramatize statistics.

News outlets like to get their material typewritten, double-spaced, on one side of the paper. Good close up pictures, with usually not over three people, which make a novel point, will add to the news value. One final point. Don't wait till the last minute to give the story to your paper. Weeklies, in particular, need several days to set all of their type.

More and more farmers are asking questions about high level grain feeding of dairy cows. Will it work? What problems arise? Will it boost profits? What about low producers?

During recent years a lot of work has been done by experiment stations to find the answers to these questions. Research shows that most cows do respond to high level feeding. They will give more milk, but not all cows respond at a profitable level. Moirison's Standards and DHIA recommendations are still satisfactory guides for grain feeding. To safely go beyond these levels requires close management practices. Dairyman who fed heavily during the first few months of lactation have been more successful with high level grain feeding. You must watch closely the relationship between grain consumption and milk production.

When additional grain fails to produce an increase in milk production, cut back on the amount fed. High-level grain feeding is practical with only the best cows in the herd. In most herds, from 25 to 50 per cent of the cows can be profitably fed high levels of grain.

In regard to herd health, no problems have as yet been encountered with high-level grain feeding. If any single statement sums up the role of the feeding practice discussed today, it's this: High-level grain feeding has proven to be sound as long as it is conducted under good management.

Keep fertilizer out of the reach of all animals. Nitrogen and potassium salts in fertilizer are toxic to animals and an overdose may result in death. Recently 40 Angus cattle died because they ate from a bag of fertilizer. So we feel it necessary to gain warn farmers.

Fertilizer is not dangerous when used properly as a plant food. It is not meant as an animal food. Care should be taken to store fertilizer where it will be out of the reach of animals.

If spillage occurs, clean up the area. Fertilizer in the field should never be left to stand in piles. Besides being a hazard to animals, it may also burn plants.

Burning empty bags. There may be enough left in them to be harmful to an animal.

Before turning livestock into a newly fertilized pasture, wait until at least a quarter inch of rain has fallen, so that the material can dissolve into the soil.

Better check your conservation reserve contract before planting your 1964 wheat crop. These contracts require farmers to plant within their farm acreage allotments or in the case of wheat, 15 acres, whichever is larger.

According to law, to continue receiving conservation reserve payments, Kent County farmers must comply with their contracts. Farmers with wheat allotments less than 15 acres may plant up to 15 acres without loss of these payments. However, overplanting any size allotment will reduce a farm's wheat acreage history and future allotments.

Wheat farmers who plant within their 1964 allotments will be eligible for price supports averaging 50 per cent of national parity. There will be no marketing penalty for excess wheat acreage since there will be no marketing quotas in 1964.

Farmers who have questions about their conservation reserve contracts should check with the Kent County ASC committee. Their office is on the dual highway just north of the Camden traffic light. The phone number is 697-3294.

Much activity seems to be the order of the day at Movie Center as the managements seems to be engrossed, not only in renovation, but much preparedness is necessary in order to usher in the new fall season of gigantic hits.

The supreme example of this gigantic program of great hits is the listing of Guy Williams in the thrilling King Bros. production "Capt. Sinbad" with the sensational co-feature "The Slave" featuring Steve Reeves, to play this Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Sept. 6-7-8. Three hours and one half of undoubtedly the screen's greatest presentation of the spectacular. Regular prices prevail. All children under 12 years free if with parents.

It is with great pride and expectations that the management announces in this newspaper the coming of Walt Disney's "Summer Magic" with Hayley Mills, Burl Ives, Dorothy McGuire, and a host of celebrities, at Movie Center, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, Sept. 13-14-15. Producer control prices prevail.

4-H News

High Council was an exciting and rewarding experience for many Delaware 4-H'ers. At this final Friday evening Council Circle the H's and Spirit of the week's camp were selected. Head H was Tom Parvis, Houston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Parvis; Heart H was Paul Purcell, Houston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Armour Purcell; Sandy Corlick, New Castle, received recognition as Hands H, while Rita Hall, Frederica, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lister Hall, was recognized as Health H. Sandy Godnce, New Castle was the Camp Spirit. Selection of these 4-H'ers is based upon their contribution to the camp program throughout the week.

Second week campers arrived Monday morning, quickly settling to camp activities. Lois Wiebel, Hartly returned as a Counselor. Lois has been teaching a class in copper tooling among many other duties. Bette Clinton, Wyoming, participated in the first Vespers program.

The Spirit at 4-H Camp is a most rewarding experience. Members from throughout Delaware work and play hard. Most of the evening program is planned at camp. Imaginations are developed through skits and costumes. Over seventy Kent County 4-H'ers will share many experiences at home and with their local 4-H clubs.

Questions are arriving about the favorite foods show. In this event each member prepares their favorite dish which relates to their project unit. After preparation at the contest it is then displayed at an interesting table setting. The setting should contain only those dishes that would be used for the particular dish. This would probably include a beverage container, glass or cup and saucer, necessary serving utensils and silverware, napkin and table decoration. Remember the contest will take place on Sept. 21 at the Harrington Fairgrounds. Will your club be represented?

All members entering their records for State Award consideration must have included the Standard Report form and the correct photographs. No records will be submitted to the state selection committee unless complete. Join 4-H today. If there is no local club in your community send your name and address to the 4-H club office, P. O. Box 30, Dover or call 736-1448. New clubs should be organized soon.

Zwaanendael Museum Notes

The annual meeting of the Lewes Memorial Commission was called Wednesday, Aug. 28, at the Zwaanendael Museum by the chairman, Senator Harold W. T. Purnell, of Georgetown.

Present were Mrs. Robert H. Orr, of Yorklyn, Mrs. Harry C. Boden, of Newark, Leon DeValinger, Jr., and William Smith, of Dover; Senator Howard H. Dickerson, of Laurel; Mrs. Charles F. Kemper, Mrs. Frank T. Dickerson and Lawrence B. Knapp, of Lewes.

The regular business on the agenda included the budget, building up-keep, and plans for the future in accordance with the recently formed Planning Department of the State. Arrangements were also considered for the acceptance and placing of the Gobelintapestry of Capt. David Petersen DeVries and the silver model of a whaling vessel probably similar to the one used by Capt. DeVries on his whaling venture. These are to be presented to the Zwaanendael Museum in November.

ber. The curator reported an increased attendance during the past fiscal year, a total of 15890, which is 770 more than the previous year. Signatures on the register show visitors from 46 states and 18 foreign countries.

Officers elected for the fiscal year 1963-64 were Lawrence B. Knapp as chairman; Mrs. Robert H. Orr as vice-chairman, and Leon deValinger, Jr., as secretary. Senator Purnell, who has served as chairman since August, 1956, declined the office because of the pressure of business and other activities. During his seven-year tenure of office, he has contributed much to the growth of the Zwaanendael Museum with his constant concern for its advancement and always giving his faithful assistance to the staff.

Lawrence B. Knapp, the new chairman, was appointed a member of the Commission in January, 1961, and has served on the Building Committee of the Commission since his appointment.

Mr. Knapp, who has a sincere interest in the Zwaanendael Museum and the local history, will also have much to contribute to the future growth of the memorial.

Harriers Step Up the Pace

Many of Coach Harold McDonald's harriers got into condition early this season prior to the start of official workouts and as a result several of these have already surpassed their best performances of 1962.

Bob Smith is currently the top man with a sparkling 12.59 for 2.4 miles. This is well below his 13.42 of last fall.

Dennis Rogers at 13.07 is next followed by George Bonniwell and Roger Redden, who ran a dead heat Wednesday night in 13.12. Wayne Carson, like Rogers and Smith, has lettered two years. His 13.15 is several seconds better than his previous best.

Marshall Hatfield and Ellis Meyer with no previous experience are improving rapidly. Hatfield (13.26) and Meyer (13.28) are more than half a minute ahead of the clockings that would have earned them a varsity letter on 1962's winning team.

Roger Betts lowered his personal record from 14.14 to 13.30 and demonstrated his terrific physical condition by running seven miles in forty minutes and forty seconds. This occurred on a night when several of the lads felt like running further than the regulation distance. This is always a sign that a squad is mentally and physically ready. Dan Hicks, last year's mighty mile eighth grader, has lopped off 63 seconds, has been timed in 13.38 and as a freshman, is at least a year younger than any of the faster lads. With four full seasons of running ahead of him, he is perhaps the best runner pound-for-pound and year-for-year on the squad.

Bob Matthews has beaten 14 minutes and Bob Dean, a freshman tyro, has logged a fast 14.12.

Donald Wells in his first trip around the Killen's Pond course since last fall was 26 seconds faster than ever before.

Several other boys with experience are expected out Monday. It appears that Mac's Marauders are headed for another winning season. What the Lions want most of all is to capture the state Class B championship, to be contested in Delaware for the first time this year.

Ruritans Edge Harrington in 1st Playoff Game

In a thrilling contest, the Ruritans topped Harrington in eight innings 5-4 as Snooky Collins homered in the bottom of the 8th inning for the winning tally.

It was just two much Snooky Collins and Sam Henry all night. In addition to his homer, Collins drove in another run with a double. Henry scattered 8 hits and fanned five and didn't issue a free pass.

Jim Carroll continued his fine play as he knocked in two runs with two hits and scored twice for Harrington. Dave Adams also have two hits for Harrington.

K. P. Outten had a triple and a single to help the winners. Chester Short gave up nine hits and fanned four in a losing cause.

Our Lions Are Hungry

After three years of famine Harrington High's football Lions are in the mood for some feasting. On the menu (if the Lions can pay the price) are eight conference dishes and Dover AFB High School for dessert.

The locals have a new football coach, Frank Glazier, plus a new outlook. We watched the new mentor for a couple of hours at practice Wednesday afternoon and we can state emphatically that he is the hardest working football coach that we have ever seen. He's got the troops putting out, too. They look much better than in 1962. 13 lettermen are expected to carry much of the load. Three or four experienced lads, who sat out last season, have returned to strengthen the team.

Bridgeville, Millsboro, Rehoboth and Delmar have never failed to defeat Harrington in the past. We'd like to see this list cut in half. If the Lions don't beat at least one of this quartet, then it would become necessary to win all of the other five contests on the schedule in order to insure a winning season.

Milton High will replace North Dorchester on the Lion schedule in a fray here on Oct. 28.

Harrington evened the series at one game apiece in the best of five series with a 10 to 3 victory over the Ruritans. Harrington scored five times in the first two innings and were never headed.

Burrsville All-Stars Beat Hickman, 10-8

Last Sunday night the Burrsville All-Stars traveled to Hickman to play the Hickman Cardinals of the fast Hickman League. The local boys came out on top with a come-from-behind 10 to 8 victory in nine innings. The local boys pounded the Hickman pitcher for 17 hits as G. Collins scattered 12 safeties for the All-Stars.

The All-Stars were paced by Jack Porter, Bob Collins and Jack Sapp with 3 hits each. George Collins, Wickie Corkell, and Bill Lane chipped in with two hits apiece.

Hickman jumped on top with four tallies in the second inning, the All-Stars tied it in the 4th. Hickman then scored four more in the 6th, the All-Stars came within one with three in the 8th and then pulled it out with three tallies in the 9th on a bunt single by Corkell, a single by J. Adams, a run scoring double by Lane the winning run came in on a single by Porter and an insurance run on a single by B. Collins.

The fielding plays of the night were both pulled off by Jeff Adams as he flagged down a baseball bound ball and turned it into an around the horn double play. In the ninth he backhanded a line drive down the third base line that jumped out of his glove and he then made a bare-handed grab for the final out of the ball game.

This was a very good showing by our local boys and it shows that they can stick with some of the supposedly better talent.

Harrington Jr. Football League

Boys wishing to play Little League football this season should remember to register at the Armory this Sat., Sept. 7. There will be a late registration date on Sat., Sept. 14. All applications must be submitted and signed by this date. No boy will be accepted to play after the 14th. There will be a regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening, Sept. 10, above the First National Bank.

ROAD BILL

Most of those at Brandywine had a "let's wait and see" attitude about the bond bill for school construction with its complicated formula that has been worked out by the House Education Committee and the State Board of Education. There were, however, predictions that the original bill—HB 141—without its many amendments would be the one finally adopted.

Tuesday night's program included a ride around the raceway track by Gov. Elbert N. Carvel in an ancient survey, owned by Nutter D. Marvel of Georgetown. Dinner for the politicians and legislators and a violent, unscheduled storm which knocked out telephone communications and drove better in the grandstand to seek cover.

Ruritans Take 2-1 Lead In Title Cotnest

Tuesday night the Ruritans edged Harrington 10 to 9 to gain a 2 to 1 advantage in the best of five game series. Harrington got to Sonny Henry for three runs in the top of the first only to have the Ruritans come roaring back for four in the first, four in the second and two in the third to complete their scoring for the night. The Ruritans bombed Chester Short for 12 hits in the first two innings. Harrington's rally fell short as they scored four runs in the top of the seventh on a bases loaded homer by Dave Welch.

Corkell, Outten, Henry, Wilson, H. Collins, and G. Collins all had two hits to pace the Ruritans attack. Welch, Langford, Fry and Porter had two hits to pace the Harrington attack.

Rehoboth had another big weekend, with great weather thrown in. According to officials, many of the hotels and motels are fully engaged for next weekend. With fair weather prevailing the Rehoboth Beach Chamber of Commerce expects a record September business.

Although the Hotel Henlopen officially closes Sept. 8, with only the motor lodge in operation, most other facilities will continue to be available, according to Mayor Juel C. Stammer who attended the rally.

Tour Around The World

By Miss Amelia C. Phetzing

Miss Amelia C. Phetzing has returned from a two months tour around the world by air, starting from San Francisco, visiting Honolulu; Tokyo, Myanosshta, and Kyoto, Japan; Taipei, Taiwan; Calcutta, Benares, Jaipur, Agra, and New Delhi, India; Kathmandu, Nepal; Hongkong, China; Saigon, Viet Nam, Siem Reap; Bangkok, Thailand; two days on a houseboat in Srinagar, Kashmir; Beirut, Lebanon; Cairo, Egypt; Madrid, and Toledo, Spain; Lisbon and Estorial; Portugal.

In Jaipur, India, Miss Phetzing had a three mile ride on an elephant to the Maharaja's Palace with a violinist walking by the side of the elephant playing beautiful music all the way. The musician was extremely good which added to the pleasure of the trip.

In Toledo, Spain, Miss Phetzing attended a bullfight which was considered the best of the year, because the seven best matadores in all Spain met to perform. It was a real work of art with all the techniques equivalent to our football and polo games. In one fight the matadores fought on Arabian horses, but in the other five they worked from the ground. It was a real work of art; in spots to an American is was gory, but there was so much pagentry, every thing so spectacular that one rose above the bloodiness.

Our party of four were flown into Saigon during the fighting. That was also a very interesting experience. Our sightseeing was confined to the city. The surrounding trips were canceled, because nobody could leave the city. Inside the city the guide explained...

ed all the things we should see and were left to see them on our own which we did. On all four sides large armies were on the outskirts of the city; we went within a block of them and stopped. The armies probably recognized us as inquisitive Americans and did nothing but look at us. The next morning we were flown out on a special plane, the last to carry out other tourists and foreign businessmen. We got up at 4 o'clock in the morning, the hotel staff gave us breakfast at 4:30 and we were on our way at 5 o'clock. We felt the hotel must have heaved a sigh of relief when they got rid of us. As we flew out of the city we looked down and realized the monsoon rains had flooded every road. It was then that we realized how lucky we were and why they were so anxious to get rid of us.

There were only four of us on the tour. We had native guides who were college graduates, spoke the English language extremely well, and could give us much local color, and interpret native customs so much better than regular guides who do not know the countries so well.

Strawberry Taste Test Results Computed

Results of a strawberry taste test conducted at the recent University of Delaware Farm and Home Field Day show a newly developed variety holding a slight edge over the long-popular Pochontas as a suitable variety for freezing.

Visitors at Field Day participated in the informal test by tasting seven varieties of frozen strawberries and voting for the most satisfactory in flavor, texture, color and appearance. Miss Frances Shoffner, home economics extension agent in Sussex County, prepared the frozen samples from berries grown on test plots at the University Agricultural Substation in Georgetown.

The berry which ranked first in both appearance and texture, second in color and third in flavor has been developed by the University of North Carolina and the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It has not yet been named.

Pochontas ranked first in color, second in appearance and texture, and sixth in flavor, fifth in color, sixth in texture and seventh in appearance.

Other varieties included in the test were Midway and three yet unnamed varieties still being tested.

Nearly 60 persons participated in the test, but because the taste test was just one in a series of experiments, no recommendations are yet being made on the basis of these results, according to Miss Janet Coblenz, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware.
