

DETENTION HOME ASKED DOWNSTATE

A proposal for a downstate detention home for juvenile delinquents has been unanimously supported by leaders in the drive to improve Delaware's correctional system.

After a meeting in Dover last week, the Family Court of Kent and Sussex Counties, Russell W. Peterson, head of the 3-S Citizens' Committee, and the Governor's Committee for a State Corrections Program, all endorsed the facility.

Family Court Judge W. Marion Stevenson and Probation Officer Ed Morris of Kent County and Judge Robert D. Thompson Jr., of Sussex presented to the group the reasons why the detention home is needed.

The group decided to work toward legislation to make the home a reality.

A detention home is an institution used by Family Courts to detain some juveniles picked up by police until the court can hear their cases. The state has one detention home, Bridge House, built in 1959 at Wilmington.

Plans are being considered to build a small addition to Bridge House.

"The need for a downstate detention home is urgent," said Peterson. "Since the Dover meeting, I have discussed the problem with members of the Governor's Committee for a corrections program, with its chairman, Herbert L. Cobin, and with leaders of the 3-S campaign from all three counties.

"We all agreed to support the Family Court of Kent and Sussex Counties in its drive to establish a detention home. The cost of such a detention home has been established by an architect at approximately $350,000.

Now when a juvenile must be held in custody rather than released to his parents, he must either be transported to Wilmington or placed in either the Kent or Sussex Correctional Institutions.

At the Dover meeting were Judge William G. Bush, III, member of the Youth Services Commission and the 3-S Technical Advisory Committee; State Sen. Earle M. Tull, D-Seaford, of the YCS and a member of the Joint Legislative Committee on Corrections; Rep. Granville T. Lowe, D-Laurel, J. Frank Gordy and Ed Kelly, members of the Governor's Committee; Thomas McKenna, president of the Prisoners Aid Society and member of the Board of Corrections and the 3-S Technical Advisory Committee; William Bradford, chairman of the YCS advisory committee; R. Glenn Mears and Mrs. Max Terry, chairmen of the 3-S Campaign for Sussex and Kent Counties, respectively, and Peterson.

Henry G. Allyn, Jr., has been appointed regional manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad's Chesapeake Region at Baltimore, succeeding George M. Smith. In another move, John H. McGuigan succeeds John H. Budakin as superintendent of transportation at Baltimore.

PRR Regional Manager Named

Mr. Smith has been named to the top managerial post of regional manager of the railroad's Lake Region, with headquarters at Cleveland. Mr. Budakin has been advanced to regional manager of the road's northern region at Buffalo.

The appointments were effective Tuesday.

Mr. Allyn, who is 42, has had broad sales and transportation experience at a number of points on the railroad. A graduate of Princeton University, he entered the Pennsylvania's service at Philadelphia in 1947, and after advancing through several important positions in Washington, Newark and New York City, was named New England passenger agent for the PRR with offices at Boston.

In 1956 Allyn returned to New York City where he added to his sales experience, and later served as manager of freight sales at Cincinnati. In 1962 he was promoted to freight traffic manager at Detroit, automobile capital of the world.

Earlier this year Allyn became assistant regional manager of the Pennsylvania's operations in the Philadelphia and eastern Pennsylvania area.

Mr. McGuigan, who is 36, a graduate of Carnegie Institute of Technology, will occupy the important post of transportation

Principal Charles A. Hoff of Harrington High School announced last week that one of the school's students has been named semifinalist in the 1963-64 Merit Scholarship competition.

He said she became semifinalist through her outstanding performance on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. This test of educational development was given in more than 16,500 schools last March.

The student cited for her high achievement is Susan McDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. McDonald.

Police Chief's Dismissal Doesn't Stick

Town Council voted Wednesday night to dismiss the police chief—but then rescinded the action pending a hearing.

The hearing will be held Monday if all six councilmen can arrange to attend.

No grounds were given for dismissal of Chief David Peterson, 25, who has been on the force about three years. He has been head of the three-man force for a year-and-a-half.

The action came late at Wednesday night's monthly council meeting after Councilman Wilson Bradley, chairman of the Police Commission, gave a report.

Bradley then moved to dismiss Peterson. After discussion during which Mayor Fulton J. Downing noted that committee recommendations are always accepted, the vote was taken.

Two councilmen were absent. Of the four present two abstained and two voted for the dismissal. At this point, it was noted the town charter provides that municipal employees receive a hearing before council be dismissed.

Since two councilmen were absent, it was agreed to rescind the action.

Prisoner Walks Out on Judge

A Harrington man quietly slipped out of the Kent County Courthouse Monday while papers were being prepared to commit him to jail for six months.

Charles Clem Howard had been sentenced on non-support charges by Family Court Judge W. Marion Stevenson. While the clerk was preparing the papers, Howard stole unnoticed out of the office.

Judge Stevenson issued a warrant charging the man with escape and police were notified. As of Tuesday, he had not been apprehended.

Howard was brought into court charged with failure to maintain support for some children at Harrington and one in Texas, for which he was allegedly in arrears $2,400.

The charges were combined and Howard declared to be in contempt of court for non-payment. Judge Stevenson sentenced him to six months in jail and a fine of $100.

Bruce Wilson, 31, Dies of Injuries

P. Bruce Wilson, 31, (formerly of this city) died suddenly when his car overturned on Route 14, three miles east of Denton, September 29, 1963.

In addition to his wife, Doris Faulkner Wilson, he is survived by three sons and one daughter of Denton; his mother, Mrs. Charles Cook, Federalsburg; one sister, Mrs. William Faulkner, Bridgeville; one step-brother, Charles Cook, Federalsburg. He was the son of the late Wallace Wilson of this city.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from Moore's Funeral Home and interment was at Denton Cemetery.

No Solution Yet For Drainage On Short Street

A delegation of church leaders and other citizens approached the City Council, at its October meeting Wednesday night, with a pre-arranged problem—how to take care of the drainage in the neighborhood of Short and Misspillion Streets in time of flash rainstorms.

The general answer was that City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann would continue his investigations. However, later action by the Council, in another field, might provide the answer.

The representatives of Trinity Methodist Church, at Commerce and Misspillion Streets, revealed the lot in the rear of the church would be surfaced with tar and chip. Furthermore, Taylor Hardware, at Commerce and Dorman Streets, is planning to treat a lot in back of its store similarly, along with an alley running to Short and Misspillion Streets.

Drainage at the intersection goes into a 12-inch tile crossing a lot in the rear of Jacobs Store and proceeding to Commerce Street. This tile, apparently the only feasible outlet for the water, has not been able to handle the water from flash floods, thus flooding the area, including the lot in the rear of Jacobs Store on Dorman Street.

A possibility was that drainage could be turned westward on Misspillion Street to West Street, but the city manager said West Street had more water than it could handle, that it was the first place in town to flood, and that the grade of Misspillion Street to West Street was not suitable.

Mayor Fulton J. Downing said he realized there was a drainage problem on High Street and added "if there is anything we can do, we want to do it."

The possible solution turned up later in the meeting when the Council, at the behest of the city manager, agreed to pay a maximum of $800 to rent equipment to clean storm sewers.

Milford Teen Club Leader Arrested

One of the founders of the Milford Teen Club is in Sussex Correctional Institution in lieu of $5,500 bond on four counts of burglary.

Among his loot, police say, were a record player and two long-playing records.

Victor Henry Stene, 21, of Milford, was arrested early Wednesday with three juveniles. All were charged with the Sept. 17 burglary of Salmons Furniture Store about two miles south of Harrington on U. S. 13.

Harrington Magistrate Clarence E. Dyer set bond at $1,000 for Stene before he was taken to Sussex County to face three additional burglary charges.

The juveniles, two aged 14 and the third 13, were released to the custody of their parents to await Family Court action.

In Sussex, Stene was held by Ellendale Magistrate William Donovan on three charges of burglary during the summer. He was charged with breaking into the Ellendale fire tower and into the homes of Charles Boxendale and Norma Mae Lincoln, both of Milford.

Donovan sent him to prison in lieu of $4,500 bond—$1,500 on each count. He is being held for Superior Court.

Nine months ago Stene was one of the guiding lights in the establishment of the Milford Teen Club which, according to Milford Police Chief Philip Wagner, has been going strong ever since.

Wagner said Wednesday Stene acted as club steward. He said the club would continue its normal weekend activities although a statement would be forthcoming from the board of directors.

Wagner, a member of the board, said about 80 teen-agers go to the club functions every Friday night and about 150 every Saturday.

Wagner said there was no connection between the theft of the record player and club functions.

"We bought two record players and plenty of records when the club opened," he said.

STATE C. OF C. EXECUTIVE ENTERTAINED

M. Ross Anderson, executive secretary of the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce, was entertained Wednesday by members of the local Chamber of Commerce with golf at the Shawnee Country Club. In an impromptu tournament, Thomas E. Clendening had low net with 84 for 18 holes.

School Board Publishes First Issue of School Report

The first issue of The Harrington School Report, an official publication of the Harrington Special School District, was published this week.

The four-page newspaper, printed by The Harrington Journal, will be mailed to all citizens of the local school district.

The first issue was designed to introduce new members of the school system, provide knowledge of the major events scheduled for the school year, discuss a proposed adult education system, and furnish the annual report of the superintendent of schools and the Board of Education.

Future issues will be planned to provide an insight into the various departments of the school system. The school administration hopes readers will forward any comments they may have regarding these reports. Questions regarding the operation of the school will be welcomed and, if of interest to the general public, will be answered in a column devoted to this purpose.

For the school year, publication dates have been tentatively set at Oct. 1, Dec. 15, Feb. 28, and May 15.

Greenwood Post Office To Be Dedicated Tomorrow

Greenwood's new post office will be dedicated at 2 p.m. Sat., Oct. 5. Postmaster James L. Smith, announced this week.

The new facility, located at Mill and Market Streets, is part of the Post Office Department's unique commercial leasing plan, the local postmaster explained.

Under this program, investment financing is used to obtain needed facilities which remain under private ownership, pay local taxes to this community, and are leased to the Federal Government.

At the same time, the need for large outlays of money from the Federal Treasury for construction purposes is eliminated.

Like most of the new postal buildings that are going up across the country, this post office is leased to the Post Office Department. This gives the Department some flexibility in adapting its building program to changes in mail volume, transportation and population, Postmaster James L. Smith said.

The Department is now concentrating on constructing new postal units only where they are most urgently needed. In areas where it is practical to do so, existing buildings are undergoing renovation.

"The fact that Greenwood, has been chosen for a new post office," Postmaster Smith said, "reflects credit on our growing contribution to the economy and life of the nation."

"Our patrons will derive more enjoyment from doing business here, their mail will be handled more efficiently and this building and its up-to-date equipment will enable our postal employees to work under the best of conditions," the Postmaster commented.

"The new facility," he added, "will be a link with a postal system that today has over 34,000 postal installations. This system serves more than 180 million Americans and handles over two-thirds of the world's mail. Our 580,000 postal employees are handling about 65 billion pieces of mail a year, including over a billion parcels, "the postmaster added.

"National population increases will add nearly 3,000,000 people to the population in the next 12 months, with about one and a half million marriages and the establishment of 663,000 new households, including many in this community," the postmaster noted. "For example, 10 years ago revenue was less than $3,000 compared with over $25,000 today."

Vetoed School Bill Will Get 2nd Try

John H. Annett, Staytonville's Republican representative, won't take no for an answer.

He said he will reintroduce a vetoed bill—HB 334—that would appropriate funds for a proposed Greenwood School agriculture shop laboratory.

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel vetoed the measure last week. Charles S. Keil, the governor's administrative assistant, said the bill was vetoed because it conflicts with the unit measure used to allocate funds to school districts.

"It's a non-political bill," noted Annett, "and passed both the House and Senate without a dissenting vote."

He said the equipment for the $6,580 laboratory is needed for the school district which draws most of its pupils from farm families.

Annett also expressed mystification at why the measure was vetoed by Carvel but declared he would talk with the governor about it.

Annett described the reaction of the local board of trustees to the veto as "they're sick over it."

FARMERS ENDORSE ZONING FOR KENT COUNTY

Kent County Farm Bureau members came out strongly at Felton Thursday night for planning, zoning, a new State Board of Agriculture building—and redeemable beer bottles.

But on the controversial issue of selling wheat to Russia, the county bureau failed to act. The question which brought no action was: "Resolved, Are We Not in Favor of Selling Wheat to Russia?"

After a warning by State Farm Bureau President Roland E. Garrison, Dover, that the issue requires some hard study, no really clear voice rose on the question. No vote was taken.

This came as about 200 members of the Kent bureau held the annual business meeting which followed a roast chicken and fried oyster dinner at the Felton Fire Hall.

The group elected county directors from among which county officers will be elected at a future meeting. A director of the State Farm Bureau, J. Derickson Biggs, of Felton, was nominated for action at the state meeting.

Coming out against throwing away beer and soda bottles in favor of the redeemable kind may not seem vital to many persons but to a farmer who loses a $100 tractor tire on a bottle thrown on a roadside, it's no joke, it was said.

The beer bottle resolution was passed as it has been the last two years. Also passed was an endorsement of planning and zoning in Kent County—with the provision that a planning or zoning board have a "majority" of farmers.

This resolution also passed last year in a shift of alignment from traditional attitudes.

New Harrington High School Dedicated

The new high school here, built and equipped at a cost of $1.2 million dollars was dedicated in ceremonies held before an overflow crowd in the school cafeteria Wednesday night.

The building contains agricultural and industrial art shops, Science and language labs, home economics and music facilities, a library and 14 classrooms.

The dedication speaker was Dr. Howard Row, assistant state superintendent in charge of secondary education.

Dr. Row told of his trip to Russia in 1959 and his conclusion that Soviet education is "Education Without Choice." By contrast, in America, the pupils are being exposed to "Education for Freedom."

The educator went on to say that students in Harrington schools now have the facilities to get a better education than ever before. But, each student must work and not just go through the motions. As Dr. Rowe phrased it "You must put something in it to get something out of it."

After the program the audience inspected the new school. Teachers were in each room to show everyone around.

Representatives of the builders, Charles Brohawn and Son, Cambridge, Md., and the architects, Buchart Associates of Lancaster, Pa., and members of the Harrington Special School District, Board of Education, took part in the program.

The Harrington High School Band under the baton of Melvin Brobst, played several numbers. District Superintendent Albert W. Adams introduced the speakers and guests.

Rev. William Miller gave the invocation and benediction.

Refreshments for all were served in the school cafeteria.

Assessors Want Kent Land Maps

Those private county real estate assessors in Dover are on the prowl for more maps—all kinds and as many as they can get.

The two J. M. Cleminshaw Co. assessors told the Levy Court Tuesday they are searching diligently for all the maps of the county that are available.

The assessors ran into a serious shortage when getting preliminary work underway for a county-wide re-appraisal costing the county $125,000.

So far, said Kenneth Valentine, one of the assessors, they have located microfilm maps in the recorder of deeds office and at other offices—but still need all they can get.

The two men have been assigned an office in the courthouse basement and have hired two county key punch operators to make permanent records.

County commissioners told them Tuesday to make a list of requirements and submit it. But Valentine told them all he could say is that "any maps that can be available or are available we'll need."

Even so, he said, the assessors will probably only have enough maps to show details of buildup areas—not rural areas where the field work probably will have to be done without them.

The two farms are bounded on the west by U. S. 13; on the north by the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal and by Scotts Run on the east. This stream runs into the canal about a mile from the Delaware River.

Everett F. Warrington, of Georgetown, the principal attorney representing Biggs, was assisted by the firm of Longbardi & Schwartz of Wilmington in the deal.

Mrs. Norma D. Thatcher of Pine Leaf Stock Farms, Harrington, arranged negotiations between Union Carbide and Biggs, which opened the way to acquisition of the two farms.

City Eyes Valves For Controlling Leaks

The practice of turning off water throughout the City to repair a leak, may be a thing of the past in a few years.

At its October meeting Wednesday night, the City Council approved the expenditure of $200 to $250 for the purchase and installation of a valve for the water mains.

If the procedure approves satisfactory, it was hinted other valves would be installed.

These devices would permit the water to be shut off only in the area affected by the leak.

In the same vein, the Council also approved the purchase of a diaphragm pump, the cost about $250, to be used in pumping water at the leaks.

In other business the Council referred to the Street Commission the request of Charles Morris, Harrington Manor, for a streetlight.

Agreed to change the shade of a streetlight at Liberty Street and Delaware Avenue to permit a wider diffusion of light.

Authorized the city manager to prepare a questionnaire to be sent to citizens on City service.

Agreed to install parts of railroad rails on the Railroad Avenue adjacent to the door of Della Ryan. The door, it was said, has been damaged three times by automobiles backed into it from a parking lot across the street.

Accepted recommendations of State Highway Department not to make one-way streets of Dorman and Fleming Streets. The recommendation said the traffic was too light.

Read petition from property owners on Thorpe and East Streets, asking for installation of water and sewer mains. City manager Mann is to look into the problem and come up with an answer. The issue has been hanging fire for some years. The mayor, however, is looking at a long-range program in the general area, however, which may provide the answer.

Authorized the city clerk to write Mrs. Elizabeth Legates she cannot install a trailer in the City limits, a violation of City law.

Voted to contribute $200 to the Chamber of Commerce, part of the funds necessary to install lighting on the municipal water tower. White lights would illuminate the word, "Harrington", on the eastern side of the tank. Colored lights would encircle the tank and be turned on at Christmas. The lights would be turned on by a photo-electric cell and turned off by a time clock.

Two Farms Sold To Union Carbide

Title to two farms near St. Georges in lower New Castle County, last week passed to Union Carbide Corp. in a settlement for an undisclosed sum.

The two farms, totalling about 700 acres, have been announced as the site for a future basic chemicals plant. A timetable for construction has not yet been revealed by Union Carbide ranked as the second largest chemical firm in the nation. (The Du Pont Co. is No. 1.)

Last week, in the Wilmington law offices of Berl, Potter and Anderson, Delaware Trust Building, Franklin B. Biggs of St. Georges delivered titles to his farm, and an adjacent tract, known as the Colonel Needles farm, to Union Carbide. Biggs recently acquired the Needles farm from E. R. Needles.

Records in the office of the New Castle County recorder of deeds disclose the Needles farm of 303.715 acres was sold to Biggs for about $228,000. The transfer of the other tract has not yet been recorded.

Biggs said he has one year in which to move from his farm.

The two farms are bounded on the west by U. S. 13; on the north by the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal and by Scotts Run on the east. This stream runs into the canal about a mile from the Delaware River.

Everett F. Warrington, of Georgetown, the principal attorney representing Biggs, was assisted by the firm of Longbardi & Schwartz of Wilmington in the deal.

Mrs. Norma D. Thatcher of Pine Leaf Stock Farms, Harrington, arranged negotiations between Union Carbide and Biggs, which opened the way to acquisition of the two farms.

In all likelihood, Harrington will have a sewer tax in a year or two.

The tax was suggested by Mayor Fulton J. Downing Wednesday night at the October meeting of the City Council. He explained the current sewer bonds would be paid off next spring, but that we "should start giving it (the sewer tax) some thought now and tax should make the sewers pay their way. As it is now, we have to rob the water rentals. What will happen if we happen to have a major sewer problem?" he concluded.

Under the plan, after the sewer bonds are paid off next spring, money can be borrowed for sewer expansion and paid off from the sewer tax.

Downing also thought the water rentals should go for the water system and the town should not have to depend on water rentals to operate the City.

Continuing, the major suggested forming a committee to study the sewer tax, but did not appoint one.

In other business, the mayor suggested radios, citizen's bands, in the City Hall, the police car, and at the request of the city manager, one in his car. These radios, the mayor added, would be inexpensive.

Downing said the fire station had seven days' coverage, the City Hall had coverage on week days, and the radios would enable quicker contact with the police car. A radio in the car of the city manager would enable one to establish quicker contact with him when he is working out of the office.

The General Foods plant, under construction west of Dover, already has twice as many applications as it will have jobs to fill.

Company officials said wholesale hiring is not expected to begin until later this year, when the plant is ready to begin operations.

The Jello-O division plant now has 2700 job applications from which to fill 1300 spots, a spokesman said. In addition, 770 Jello-O employees have indicated a desire to move to Dover from General Foods plants which will be closed and moved here.

The 770 employees, most with families, have visited Dover and 172 have made commitments to rent, buy or build homes in central Delaware, officials said.

The Dover plant will consolidate operations now being carried out in plants at Hoboken, N. J.; Orange, Mass.; Dorchester, Mass., and LeRoy, N. Y.

A recent check shows that in addition to the 100 full-time General Foods employees now active, 1200 are working at the site for construction companies.

The Hoboken plant, which processes Baker's Chocolate, is expected to close this winter. The Orange plant, which processes Minute Tapioca and rice products, is scheduled to close early next summer.

The Dorchester plant, which also makes Baker's Chocolate products, is set for shutdown in mid-1964 and the Jello-O plant at LeRoy will be closed late next summer.

Much of the equipment in the four plants will be moved to Dover over a period of several months before the plant closings.

The Dover plant, which will be operated by the Jello-O division of General Foods, will cover about 20 acres of a 100-acre site on Hazletville Road. It is expected to produce about 70 per cent of the products sold by the Jello-O division.

In the process it will use more sugar, starch, rice, tapioca, gelatin, flavors and paper than any other food plant in the country.

Sugar will be one of the biggest items of raw materials listed with more than 600,000 pounds daily scheduled to be fed into the production plant.

A 136-foot storage silo for cocoa beans has been constructed at the rear of the site and the facility, which contains 44 separate bins, will have a capacity of 26 million pounds.

The movement of raw materials in and finished products out of the plant will generate considerable rail and highway traffic.

Early estimates are that 40 rail cars and 120 trucks per day will move into and out of the General Foods complex.

Sewer Tax Given Thought by Council

The tax was suggested by Mayor Fulton J. Downing Wednesday night at the October meeting of the City Council. He explained the current sewer bonds would be paid off next spring, but that we "should start giving it (the sewer tax) some thought now and tax should make the sewers pay their way. High Protein- New Trend In Milk Marketing

There's a new trend in milk production that is spreading across the Netherlands and it may be starting in the U.S. The trend—high protein milk.

Traditionally, milk has been sold on the basis of butterfat content and volume. Ten gallons of milk that contained 4.5% butterfat was worth so much. If it contained only 3.0% butterfat it sold for substantially less.

The reason for the price difference was simple — people wanted butter and milk with a lot of cream, and they were willing to pay for it. But slowly our buying habits changed. More people bought margarine instead of the "high priced spread." They were less willing to pay a premium for milk with a high butterfat content. In fact, there were even fears that too much fat might not be good for the health.

At the same time nutritionists were saying that we needed more protein and that milk was one of the best sources. Gradually the emphasis started to shift from high butterfat milk to high protein milk.

Dr. George F. W. Haenlein, Dairy Researcher at the University of Delaware, says scientists in the Netherlands have tested more than 23,000 cows to determine if there are some inherited differences in protein content and if animals can be bred for their ability to produce high protein milk. In these tests the protein content varied from 2.2% to a high of 4.8%. Also they discovered that certain cows and cow families have predictable amounts of protein in their milk.

Scientists also noted that protein and fat contents are related only in a general way. A cow that gives high protein milk doesn't necessarily give milk with a high fat content. Haenlein says it looks promising that some day a homemaker can ask her milkman for one quart of 5% protein—2% fat milk and 1 quart of 5% protein—5% fat milk.

Here in the U.S., research on this problem is being conducted at several agriculture experimental stations. Haenlein and other researchers at the University of Delaware have been working on milk composition for the past four years. Data are being compiled now and should be available soon. From it they hope to be able to assist dairymen in selecting cows that will produce high protein milk.

As the emphasis changes from butterfat to protein, the whole structure of the milk marketing system will change with it. Instead of the usual butterfat price that is our present basis for selling milk to the processors, there will probably be a protein price factor instead, or a combination price. Haenlein doesn't expect this to happen soon, but he does think it is something for producers to be aware of. As more and more research findings become available the change will be hastened.

As for the price of milk, he doesn't expect to see any great change. There may be some incentive to farmers, however, to encourage them to produce a high protein product, which does not necessarily mean a higher price to consumers.

Wesley College Alumni To Sponsor Concert at Dover

The 22-piece Stan Kenton Orchestra will appear in Dover Oct. 24 in a concert sponsored by the Wesley College Alumni Association.

The Kenton Concert, "New Era in Modern American Music" will be given in the Dover High School Auditorium.

The New Era in Modern American Music program is the latest phase of Kenton's music development. The new orchestra, built around a library of 150 freshly orchestrated scores, was premiered in Las Vegas, last April.

In the orchestra, in addition to the basic complement of five trumpets, five trombones, one tuba, five saxophones, drums, latin drums and string bass, Kenton has added four mellotrons.

The mellotron is an instrument designed specifically for the Kenton Orchestra, resembling the French horn, which makes use of coloration patterns that are said to have virtually lain untouched between the trumpets and trombones.

The New Era Orchestra marks the sixth phase of Kenton's musical career. He started in 1941 with "Artistry in Rhythm," followed that with "Progressive Jazz," "Innovations in Modern Music," "New Concepts in Artistry in Rhythm," and "Contemporary Concepts in Jazz."

Since the New Era Orchestra premiered in Las Vegas it has toured U. S. and Canada. Shortly after the Dover appearance Oct. 24 the group will go on an extended European tour. Kenton's last two European tours, in 1953 and 1956 were standing-room-only sell-outs. During the 1956 tour, Kenton wrote the ballet music for the wedding of Grace Kelly and Prince Ranier of Monaco. Upon his return to the U. S., he became the third member to be elected to the Down Beat Jazz Hall of Fame, an honor established for musicians who have contributed the most to Modern American Music in the 20th century.

Tickets for the concert, which benefits the Wesley College Alumni Association, are available from Wesley Alumni or by calling the Alumni Office, 734-7537, ext. 66.

Vapaa Receives National Honor

George K. Vapaa, Kent County Agricultural Agent, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Award by the National Association of County Agricultural Agents. The presentation was made at the association's annual meeting in Minneapolis Thurs., Sept. 26.

The award, given this year to 112 agents in 44 states, is based on outstanding work and professional improvement.

In making the presentation an association spokesman said, "This award for distinguished service is given to George Vapaa in recognition of his great interest in the problems of Kent County farm families, and his untiring efforts as teacher, counselor, and friend in applying research information and practical experience to bring about satisfactory solutions to these problems."

Vapaa has been Kent County Agent since 1952, doing a job he describes as "disseminating information resulting from research, and encouraging its application on the farms and in the homes of Kent County. He has helped to organize and promote many programs and projects including The Delaware Sheep and Wool Association, State Potato Growers Association, Roadside Marketing Association and many crop and livestock improvement demonstrations.

Vapaa is a director of the Delaware State Fair Board, a member of the agriculture committee of the Delaware Valley Association, the Greater Dover Chamber of Commerce, Kent County Farm Bureau and the Capital Grange.

He received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from the University of Delaware, and has attended Cornell University. Prior to becoming Kent County Agent he taught vocational agriculture at Harrington High School from 1937 to 1952. He is married to the former Virginia Griffith. They have one son.

'63 Small Grain Varieties Listed For Delaware

Choosing the right variety and using good seed can mean the difference between profit and loss on next year's small grain crops, according to Dr. W. H. Mitchell, Extension agronomist at the University of Delaware. He indicates too many farmers choose a variety by price or through tradition. He recommends using certified seed of a variety adapted to the climate and conditions of the state.

There are tremendous differences in many small grain varieties that are for sale in Delaware. Even the best of some varieties won't perform satisfactorily the specialist indicates. Characteristics such as yield of grain and straw, resistance to disease, stiffness of the straw, ability to perform well on high and low fertilized soil, and adaptability to climatic conditions should all be considered.

Small grain varieties recommended for use in Delaware during 1963 are: Barley, Wong; wheat, Tayland, Seneca, Redcoat—(fly resistant), Thano; winter oats, Norline, DuBois; rye, Balbo, Abruzzi.

Other varieties — either old varieties or promising new varieties are: Barley, Early Wong; wheat, Monon (early maturing); oats, Lee Cold Proof, LeConte, Forkedeer.

Mitchell says small grain varieties should be purchased by name. And to be sure it is top quality, look for the blue tag—the mark of certified seed. This means it has been cleaned and is at least 99% pure seed. Also the germination quality is more than 85% and it is free of all noxious weeds.

Mitchell says good seed doesn't cost, it pays. He cited an example of a farmer purchasing certified seed wheat at 25c a bushel above ordinary seed price. If he seeds it at the rate of 1 1/2 bushels per acre this means 38c per acre additional cost for seed. If he harvests only 1/4 bushel more he will justify the cost of certified seed. Mitchell says most farmers experience increased yields of from 4 to 10 bushels per acre from certified seed. Yet, he says, many farmers still plant their own seed or that of a neighbor to save 38c an acre.

Farmers Reminded of Right To Nominate ASC Committeemen

Farmers were reminded this week that any eligible person may be nominated as a candidate for membership on an ASC community committee by a petition signed by six or more eligible voters. Such nominations will be accepted at the ASCS county office at Dover until Oct. 25.

Russell C. Bowdle, vice chairman, Kent Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, points out that a special effort is being made to be sure that all farmers understand and take part in the committee nomination and election process.

"We've been holding these elections for 25 years," he said, but each year new farmers become eligible to vote. We want all eligible voters to know that they have a right to nominate any farmer for a committeeman who is eligible and willing to serve.

"ASC committeemen perform an important function in the formulation and administration of farm-action programs, and the best man available for this work should be chosen. By helping to select the most able, energetic, and forward-looking farmers for committeemen, farmers can take a major step to assure good service for themselves and their neighbors, and sound administration of ASCS farm programs in the community and county."

The "nomination by petition" method, according to the vice chairman, is as follows:

Petitions nominating persons for membership on the ASC community committee must be signed by six or more eligible voters and should then be filed at the ASCS county office at any time before Oct. 25, which is 20 days before the date of the election.

(An "eligible voter" is a farm owner, tenant, or sharecropper in the community, who is taking part or is eligible to take part in one or more of the national farm programs which the ASC committee helps administer. Such programs include the Agricultural Conservation Program, acreage allotments, marketing quotas, commodity loans, the feed grain program, the Sugar Act program, the National Wood program, farm storage facility loans, and others as assigned by the Secretary of Agriculture.)

If a person nominated by proper petition is found to be eligible and willing to serve on the ASC committee, his name will be included on the ballot. Any person who is found to be ineligible to serve on the committee will be notified of such a determination before the slate of nominees is completed, and he will be informed of his right to appeal to the ASC county committee.

(A persons eligible to hold office as a committeeman—among other qualifications—is a local resident who is eligible to vote in the election. It is highly desirable that nominees be currently active farmers who are best qualified for community committee work and who will be representative of the various sections and types of agriculture in the community. Further information on these and other qualifications may be obtained from the ASCS county office.)

The election of ASC community committeemen throughout Kent County will be held Nov. 18 by mail. All ballots must be received in the county office before 4:30 p.m. or postmarked before midnight on this date. All

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Alma M. Hatfield of Upper Darby, Pa. Graveside services were held Saturday afternoon at Mount Moriah Cemetery, Philadelphia.

Barnes, state 3rd vice president and president of the Seaford Club, will join the group here and escort them to the community hall, in Seaford, for the main dinner course. At 8 o'clock, Mrs. Ann Calio, president of the Laurel Club will be hostess for dessert. The officers will then spend the night at the Atlantic Sands, in Rehoboth.

Sunday morning, Oct. 6, the state officers will be the guests of Mrs. Myrtle Jefferson for the service at the Presbyterian Church in Georgetown. Starting north again, the travelcade will stop at Milford where the Mission Club will provide sandwiches and beverages. The next stop will be at Middletown to drink punch with Mid-County Club and its president, Mrs. Edna Lockwood.

The travelcade will reach its final destination when it arrives at the Concord Country Club at 5:30 p.m., Sunday afternoon. Members from the ten clubs of the Greater Wilmington Area will gather there to greet the travelcade and serve them tea. The presidents of the ten clubs will serve as hostesses. Mrs. Ruth Ellen Reihm, of Smyrna, chairman of Orientation, associate editor of Delaware Federation's magazine the "First State Woman", and past national recording secretary, originated the idea of the travelcade three years ago. This year the National Federation of Business & Professional Women's Club is sponsoring her idea for National Business Women's Week. This coming week will see the travelcade duplicated in many states across the nation.

Century Club News

Once again the Harrington New Century Club will open its year with a covered dish luncheon for members and guests. Mrs. Francis J. Winkler, president, will preside at the meeting to be held in the club house next Tuesday, Oct. 8, at 1 p.m. Each member will bring a covered dish and place settings. The program, hospitality and decorating committees will be in charge of arrangements.

The program for the afternoon will be floral arrangements by Vane's Florists. This promises to be an interesting afternoon and all members are urged to attend. Several outstanding events will be taking place this year for the club. The first is a trip for members Tues., Oct. 15, to visit Federation Headquarters in Washington, D. C. and meet the national president, Mrs. Dexter Arnold. Mrs. Millard J. Cooper has made all of the arrangements and the calling committee will be getting in touch with members in the next few days. Included in the tour which will leave at 8 a.m. from the club house, will be a visit to the old Presbyterian Church near the G.F.W.C. buildings and a visit with the Delaware congressmen and attendance at a session of Congress. All in all it promises to be a trip that everyone will want to take.

Mrs. Quay Rice, Conservation chairman, is planning another outstanding meeting. That is the "Blessing of the Trees" in which members of the Harrington Ministerium will join. This is a continuation of the conservation program Mrs. Rice initiated last year, in her word, "to bring more beauty and joy into our community." Nov. 26, at 2 p.m. a number of memorial trees will be planted. Citizens and organizations of the community have been invited to select trees or shrubs to be donated to churches, school, or the town in memory of some loved one. Mrs. Blanche Cahall or Mrs. Mark Willey may be contacted for further information.

These two programs are only two of the more than 14 that have been designated for the coming year. Every one will have something to offer each member of the club.

Mark your calendar now for Oct. 8, Oct. 15 and Nov. 26, and check the club year book for other programs of interest.

DPI To Meet Oct. 17 at Salisbury

"Plans are all complete for the October 17th meeting and we expect a large attendance at the Salisbury armory, beginning at 3:00 p. m., when bankers and poultry industry leaders will sit down together, discuss our poultry industry and explore ways that, with continued team effort between the banks and the various segments of the "Shore's" poultry industry, Delmarva can continue as a strong competing area of the nation's multi-billion dollar commercial broiler industry," said Alden E. Loberg, chairman of the DPI Housing Committee, in an interview this week.

The area's DPI organization through its Housing Committee and in cooperation with our universities for several months now, has been engaged in conducting field studies in an effort to find out more about savings to be gained through the use of insulation and new techniques of ventilation, as well as observing differences in other factors of housing.

Houses on Delmarva are being better built today from the standpoint of durability and cost of maintenance than has been true during the past. Many are being insulated and there is evidence that this improvement will realize a saving in fuel of from one-third to one-half in comparison to fuel costs of conventional houses.

"Such an improvement program as is being observed in many of Delmarva's communities is evidence of the confidence that poultry leaders have in the future of this important part of the "Shore's economy," said Mr. Loberg. Continuing, he pointed out that bankers have and continue to play an important part in our industry and it is fitting that we meet together from time to time to review changing conditions and discuss problems of mutual concern. Concluding his remarks, Chairman Loberg said, "From all indications, this meeting will be well attended and we are most appreciative that representatives of the banking profession are willing to sit down with us and explore ways that Delmarva can make even further progress in the months and years ahead."

Business Women's Week Oct. 6-12

Mrs. Wilhelmina Miller, president of the Delaware Federation of Business & Professional Women's Clubs, has announced that Business Women's Week will start its activities with a State Travelcade, Sat., Oct. 5. The officers will travel throughout the state meeting socially with the local clubs.

Mrs. Miller expresses the purpose of the travelcade as an effort to give expression to the human side of B.P. & W., to strengthen current ties, and promote new member interest. It is a social contact, for members to get to know their officers personally and the officers to keep 'in touch' with the individual member. It promulgates the goal of the National Federation, which, since 1919 has encouraged the development of talent and ability of women for leadership roles.

The state officers who will participate in the travelcade are: president, Mrs. Wilhelmina C. Miller, of Wilmington; 1st vice president, Miss Charlotte deB Abbot, of Dover; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Clugston, of Wilmington; 3rd vice president, Mrs. Elsie Barnes, of Seaford; recording secretary, Miss Verna McCormick, of Wilmington; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Doris R. Coughlin, of Wilmington; and treasurer, Mrs. Christine Morrow, of Smyrna.

Mrs. Elizabeth Clugston, general chairman of Business Women's Week, has announced her final plans for the travelcade. Breakfast in Smyrna with the Smyrna-Clayton Club will start the trek. Luncheon will be in Dover at the home of Miss Charlotte Abbott, state 1st vice president and president of the Capital City club, whose members will be hostesses. The Harrington Club will entertain at luncheon dessert in the home of Mrs. Mildred Minner, presided over by club president, Mrs. Hattie Thomas. At 5:30 p.m. Bridgeville will begin the dinner menu with appetizers served at the home of Mrs. Matilda Lord. Mrs. Elsie

Packed Lunch Should Be Nutritious and Interesting

A packed lunch for the school child or employed adult can be a good, nutritious meal instead of just a "sack of snacks," says Janet Coblentz, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware.

In addition to foods with needed nutrients, Miss Coblentz's formula for a good packed lunch includes a "surprise" of some kind, as well as variety in the kinds of foods packed in the lunch box. "Everyone gets tired of eating the same kind of food every day," she says, "and, of course, there's no reason a packed lunch can't be just as interesting as a meal at home."

Any meal—including a packed lunch—should contain foods with the essential nutrients, Miss Coblentz points out. Daily requirements for everyone include four or more servings of fruit and vegetables and of breads and cereals, and two or more servings of meat, poultry or eggs and of milk or cheese.

Sandwiches are not the only form suitable for the lunch box, she says. Vacuum bottles make all kinds of main dishes adaptable to the packed lunch, and salads and desserts, too, can be included.

Hot dishes suitable for a vacuum bottle might include chili, all kinds of soup, spaghetti, frankfurters, stew, barbecued meat or other hot sandwich fillings. Cold chicken or seafood salad, shrimp cocktail, potato salad and other perishable foods can be kept cold in a vacuum bottle.

For hot dishes, Miss Coblentz suggests pre-heating the vacuum bottle by filling it with boiling water. To pre-cool the bottle for cold dishes, place the open vacuum bottle in the refrigerator over night and then place the cold food in it in the morning.

Although sandwiches are traditional in the lunch box, they should be varied from day to day, using different kinds of breads and rolls as well as a variety of fillings. Miss Coblentz also suggests serving a main dish in the vacuum bottle along with a hard roll, biscuits or muffins for variety.

Bread for sandwiches might include not only ordinary enriched white bread, but cheese, pumpernickel, rye, whole wheat or cracked wheat bread, poppy seed rolls, frankfurter or hamburger buns, banana, date or nut bread and many other kinds.

Unusual sandwich fillings and filling combinations add variety to the packed lunch, too, she points out. She suggests, for instance, cheese and egg slices with chili sauce or mayonnaise, hard-cooked eggs and sliced frankfurters, roast pork and apple butter, sliced ham with jelly meat loaf with pickle relish, peanut butter with bacon, raisins or sliced cucumbers, egg or tuna salad with chopped olives or nuts. Thin slices of meat make a better sandwich than one thick slice, Miss Coblentz says. To accompany meat sandwiches, place lettuce, slices of onion and tomato in a small plastic bag to be added to the sandwich at lunch time. This prevents soggy sandwiches, she points out.

Perishable foods such as egg, potato, fish, meat or chicken salad and custards or custard fillings should not be kept longer than four hours if the temperature is above 50 degrees, Mrs. Coblentz says. These foods should be very cold when put into the lunch box, and it's preferable to carry them in a pre-chilled vacuum bottle. Another way to keep them cold is to freeze portion-size cans of fruit juice for the lunch. It will keep food cold and serve as the beverage—but don't forget the can opener. Be sure to include spoons or other utensils necessary for the meal, along with sufficient napkins, Miss Coblentz concludes.

Construction is his business. So he's not on our payroll. Not directly, that is. But we are continually putting up new structures, renovating and remodeling and adding to our older ones. We spend a great deal of money with his company... and with many other Delaware contractors as well.

Construction work, of course, is just one item in our budget. We buy an endless variety of products and services from local businesses, large and small, in the communities we serve throughout Delaware. Furniture, gasoline, printing... hardware... adding machines... detergents and burlap bags.

Your telephone company and its associate, the Western Electric Company, spend some 2 1/2 million dollars annually with over 850 Delaware firms. What if it all boils down to is this: a healthy telephone company helps other businesses grow and prosper and create jobs.

Wild Flowers. Do you ever think about them? I hadn't until a visit to a Wisconsin county agent's office. A bulletin on his display rack reminds us that our grandfathers worked a land quite different than we do today.

The midwestern states make an intensive effort to preserve their native wildflowers. Certain varieties in Wisconsin are protected by statute: the lotus, trailing arbutus, lady's slipper, trillium, and wild orchids, to mention just a few that we have in Delaware.

Their heritage offers these "Indian" rules for picking wildflowers and bringing them into the home:

1. Take only as much as you need.
2. Always leave a seed stock.
3. Do not destroy the whole (plant) in order to obtain a part (the blossom).
4. Observe the rights of others hunting ground (property).

I suppose that everybody finds it difficult to get away from a busy schedule. But many of us manage to meet with our peers at national meetings every year or so. Bill Henderson, the Sussex County agent, and yours truly are just back from an inspiring convention at Minneapolis, Minn. Some 1500 agricultural agents gathered together for professional and inspirational improvement.

These notes are being written at one session.

We had breakfast with George Queen, the county agent at New Orleans, La. His work is largely with urban consumers. In fact, his title is manager of the Agricultural Department of the local Chamber of Commerce. It is a dual function with the University of Louisiana. We aroused his interest in our own Delaware Retail Food Distribution program.

Garner Mitchell, of Coudersport, Pa., told us his farmers have hay to sell. His county is reasonably close from Delaware - perhaps 300 miles. (Unlike us) they had no drought problem.

We talked with John Rogers, of Accomac, Va., about sugar beets as a possible crop for the Delamara Peninsula. An Area Redevelopment study has also been recently completed in his county, pointing up a need for better vegetable marketing.

But enough. Conventions seem to be a peculiar American custom. They are a good example of democracy in action. One is able to feel the pulse and to sense the direction of our growth at meetings outside of our own communities.

Who can administer farm programs in the best interest of farmers—farmer committees or appointed professionals? I am talking about the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation programs, simplified as ASCS. Let's not confuse this with general farm organizations.

One farmer came before the county ASC committee this week, and inferred that farmers may not be well enough trained to decide farm problems. Curiously enough, the bureaucrats represented: Lister Hall Jr. (the office manager) and I (as secretary and as sort of technical advisor) strongly disagreed. And our county committee sided with us.

Even the Secretary of Agriculture, Orville Freeman, prefers the farmer committee system. This in spite of the fact that committee members may not actively endorse all of the farm programs. The farmer members, by and large, attempt to do a conscientious and impartial job of carrying out their elective duties.

National farm problems have become tremendously complex, even in such questions as soil and water conservation. Russia's dilemma has been that they give one answer for all situations. Local conditions demand a judgment factor. And elected farmer committees provide the most democratic, impartial method of arriving at decisions which truly represent local sentiment.

The democratic process provides for majority vote. And in most cases, decisions must be made with limited facts. It always amazes me how many more times group action proves to have been correct.

I take my hat off to our farmer committees here in Kent County. They are sincerely aware of their responsibilities. They make every effort to be fair in weighing facts and in deciding issues.

Most bureaucrats would look for a regulation, and rule on that. Too often, regulations become outmoded, are poorly designed, and ignore the human element. Let's not sell democracy short. It must be used in order to work. Laws provide the framework. They are developed by elected officials to fit given situations. We can't quit making laws. We should keep changing them. An appointed judge cannot change the law. He may interpret it - or he may rule it unconstitutional (although this is usually a team effort, i.e. the Supreme Court).

Oats are the least winter-hardy of all small grain varieties. They should be planted now to allow time for establishment and tiller development before the cold weather arrives.

Norline and DuBois are the varieties best suited to Delaware conditions. Norline is the most cold resistant variety available and it does produce high quality, heavy grain. Both varieties yield heavily. And they have stiff straw which makes spring top dressing of nitrogen possible for maximum yields with little danger of lodging.

Delaware Food Market Report

If you are partial to potatoes, you've got lots of company. Potatoes appear on the American table more often than any other vegetable. In fact, we eat about 103 lbs. of potatoes each year, an amount equal to all other vegetables combined, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

Available in many forms, potatoes in the fresh state can be bought washed and in different size packages. You also have a choice between bakers and boilers. In general, long potatoes bake best while round ones are more suited for boiling. There are also many forms of prepared ones such as potato chips, frozen french fries, and powdered potatoes. In fact, it is these prepared forms of potatoes that have stopped the decline in potato consumption.

How many potatoes should you buy at a time? It all depends upon your rate of use and storage space. It's true, the more you buy the lower the price per pound, but storage is important. The temperature should be around 50 to 55 degrees. Temperature much lower will encourage the starch in the potatoes to turn to sugar, spoiling the taste. Temperatures much higher will encourage sprouting. Air is important also, so open the bag so air can circulate around the potatoes. With supplies of this favorite vegetable so large now, buy them often and economize.

The first of the fall crop of broccoli arrived last week. Long Island is beginning to send cauliflower to market and growers there report "a vintage year" is coming up for this cold weather vegetable. Quality of broccoli, cauliflower and cabbage is excellent, as these winter favorites have benefited by cool nights and timely rains.

There is a heavy supply of late sweet corn from New York state, quality remains good and prices low. More cold weather greens are coming to market, so check them when you shop next.

Florida oranges are arriving now. They are small and prices are fairly high. Grapefruit in better supply has dropped as much as 5 cents since they began to arrive.

Other newcomers on fruit stalls are crab apples and small size pumpkins. The big pumpkins won't be along until a little later, closer to Halloween. Many other fruits are a bit higher in price this week, peaches are up, so are cantaloupes, bananas, and delicious apples.

Fresh pork supplies are increasing steadily and special weekend sales make it an economy meat. Beef prices continue to be steady with "Specials" making it a "good buy" each week.

Lions Impressive In Close Loss To Bridgeville

Frank Glazier's Harrington High football Lions took on a highly-touted powerhouse from Bridgeville Saturday afternoon and gave them such a battle, that the Mustangs were glad to escape with their hides. The visitors were blanked in the first half and held only a slim 9-6 lead until a gift touchdown in the last two minutes enable them to post a 15-6 victory.

Bridgeville had the big advantage of having played two games in out-of-conference competition, while Harrington was opening its season. The Mustangs also were blessed with more players and bigger ones than the Lions could put on the field. A forward wall averaging 6 ft. and 185 pounds and an experienced high-scoring backfield made the Sussex Countians a four or five touchdown favorite. However, the Lions proved to be made of much sterner stuff than Dover Air Force High and Colonel Richardson High, the first two victims of the Mustangs. The locals might even have won the contest except for a couple of fumbles and a defensive lapse or two.

Bridgeville kicked off to Harrington and were soon rocked back on their collective heels as Rusty Jack carried for seven yards to reach his own 47 yard line. Bill Adams gained 11 yards. Barry Fry tightroped down the sideline for 12 yards and a first down on the Bridgeville 30. A fumble on the next play halted the drive.

If the Lions could have gone on to score the entire result of the game might have been changed.

In the second quarter Bill Adams hurdled a would-be tackler and with the aid of a couple blocks broke into the clear for 40 yards. He was caught from behind deep in enemy territory. Barry Fry, whose handoff started the play, was able to get in front of the ball carrier and aid in the blocking. Adams then sliced to the Mustang 22. Another fumble saved the Bridgeville bacon at this point.

The winners took the second half kickoff and marched close to the double stripe only to be thwarted by a magnificent goal line stand. The Lions gave up two points on a safety as West of Bridgeville blew through the line to catch Barry Fry in the end zone. The red-clad invaders were right back knocking on the door again when they took a short Lion kick and shortly were lurking on the Lion seven. Bob Calloway found an unoccupied zone and too an aerial for a score. The extra point kick was good.

Trailing 9-0 Harrington threatened to get back in contention when Adams ran back a punt with the aid of a couple of timely blocks. Fry crashed for ten yards and a first down. A look-in pass from Fry to Tom Lord clicked for several yards. A run of ten yards by Fry carried to the five yard line. Adams twisted and squirmed over the goal but a missed try for the extra point left the count at 9-6.

Late in the final quarter the Lions had one more chance to win when Gayle Fry recovered a fumble at the midfield stripe. Runs by Adams and Fry brought H.H.S. to the Mustang 43. Calloway, a sprinter on the Bridgeville track team, gathered in a stray forward pass and outran all pursuers to put the game out of reach.

Still trying the Lions broke Adams loose on a broken field run of 30 yards as the game ended. The lack of a back, who can go all the way after he is in the clear, is hurting the team offensively. Fry, the Henlopen Conference 440 champion, is the only runner with good speed.

Harrington fans feel that their team played a very fine game. Dick Hopkins and Dick Friedel with 9 and 3 touchdowns respectively in only 2 games were shut out of the scoring column. As we predicted last week Calloway could be rough if Hopkins and Friedel were stopped.

Charley Taylor and Tom Lord were hurt in the game. It is hoped they can return to action soon as capable reserves are in short supply. Ron Melvin was injured in a non-football accident.

Joe Taylor and possible several others did the iron man bit and played all the way against one of the biggest teams in lower Delaware.

Lord Baltimore will entertain Harrington at Ocean View Saturday afternoon. The Eagles figure to be tough but are rated a notch below Bridgeville. Let's go to the game and support our boys.

Lion Harriers Down Easton 22-39

Coach Harold McDonald's Harrington High cross-country Lions proved rude hosts on Friday afternoon as they bested a veteran Easton, Md. squad by a score of 22-39. Jim Lore, the personable Warrior Coach, said before the test that he had four seniors on his team, that it was his best team ever and that he was expecting to wreak havoc in Maryland this season.

McDonald's team is experienced also but has only one senior, Capt. Wayne Carson. Led by Bob Smith, the Middle Atlantic A.A. U. Junior Olympic half-mile champ, the Lions posted an easy win as they finished eight men in the first ten across the finish line at the 2.4 miles Killen's Pond course.

Jim Harvey, of Easton, is running for the fourth straight year and took individual honors in easy fashion as he was clocked in 12:16. Jim goes all the way back to Harry Knotts, the Harrington lad, who had an undefeated season and won the Delaware State championship in 1960.

The Lion mentor was uneasy before the race as several of his boys have been slowed by one thing or another. Roger Redden was wounded in a hunting accident recently and did not practice all week, yet equalled his best performance ever. Smith, Dennis Rogers and George Bonniwell ignored their aches and pains to set new personal records. Ellis Myer and Marshall Hatfield, the last two members of the running wounded brigade turned in fine performances in their first races ever.

As Harvey crossed the finish line, Smith, Rogers and Bonniwell were in the home stretch. The next man to emerge in view was Bill Baker of Easton. Since the first five men to finish on each team determines what that team's score will be, Coach McDonald was anxious to see two more men in blue, but fast. As he voiced this thought, Roger Redden and Ellis Myer sprang around the walnut tree that stands at the head of the home stretch, and sprinted to the wire to seal the victory. Redden almost caught Baker, who was third in the six team Harrington Invitational last fall yet could only get fifth this time in a dual meet against the finely tuned Lions. To put the icing on the cake, the next three finishers after Myer also wore the Blue and Gold.

Carson, Roger Betts and Henry Minner did the honors as Minner clipped 30 seconds off his 1963 best. Hatfield won a stretch dual with Easton veteran Garrett, a ninth place finisher in the 1962 H.H.S. Invitational. Bob Matthews narrowly missed catching another Easton senior, Nelson, who was 15th in last autumn's 42 entry extravaganza.

Letterman Frank Cain, eighth grade hot shot Bob Dean, and Easton's Ruby sprinted 175 yards side-by-side and finished in that order in a nip-and-tuck duel. Dean clocked a new personal record.

Harold "Sonny" Russ was timed in 15:30, which is very good for a lad making only his second race at the 2.4 miles cross-country distance.

Nick Morris' time of 14:28 is like Dean's very impressive as Nick is only 13 years old. He could be one of the best around

In cross-country scoring seven men constitute a full team. But since it is desirable, where possible, for everyone to run, it is agreed that whenever more than seven men beat the fifth man on the opposing team, it will not count in the scoring. For example: Minner and Hatfield, the Lions eighth and ninth men in, tackled five points onto Easton's score, which then had to be deducted. Clear?

K & S Raceway Attendance and Mutuel Below '62

At the end of 14 nights of its 30-night harness racing program, the Kent and Sussex Raceway is running slightly below 1962 totals in both attendance and mutuel handle.

William W. Shaw, director of racing, announced this week that 44,900 persons have attended the Harrington races so far in 1963. This is slightly over one per cent fewer than last year. However, betting is down about seven per cent.

So far this season, racegoers have wagered a total of $1,262,707, an average of $90,194 per night. This compares with a total of $1,361,889 after 14 days last year, an average of $97,278 per night.

Shaw pointed out that both rainy and chilly weather have held down this year's attendance. October 9 has been designated at Governor's night at the Harrington raceway. Gov. Elbert N. Carvel and members of the state legislature will be the guests of track officials that evening.

The feature race of that night's program will be the Governor Carvel Pace and the chief executive will present trophies to the winning owner and driver. This past Saturday night saw the track reach the current season's top attendance and mutuel handle. 5,021 persons were on hand and bet a total of $153,666 on the 10-race program.

Eagles Tie Bears In Junior Football

Ted Layton's Eagles kept alive their record of never having been beaten in Harrington Junior Football League play as they held a heavier Bears eleven to a scoreless tie in a game played Sunday afternoon at the Moose Home. The Bears outscored the Eagles in their first downs by a 9-4 count.

The Eagles are in first place as a result of their victory over the Colts last week.

In the second quarter the Eagles clicked on a pass for good yardage but the receiver fumbled the ball away to the Bears when he was tackled. A Bear drive was halted by a pass interception. The Bill Morris coached Bears had another threat stopped just prior to the end of the first half.

Gary Smith picked up big yardage on an end sweep by the Eagles in the third period. Jack Redden passed to Nick Morris, who was finally stopped one yard from paydirt. The fired-up Bears then put on an inspired goal line stand recovered a third-down fumble on an attempted pass play.

Nick Morris swept end twice for good yardage on another Eagle surge that failed near the goal line.

Two pass plays to Oscar Matthews brought the Bears to the Eagle 18 as the game ended.

Next week the Colts meet the Bears.

SPOT THE SPOT Spot on your lung? Tuberculosis? Possible! . . . It need not be tragic. Early detection and prompt medical treatment defeats active tuberculosis. Modern drugs enable the physician to control TB to where today sufferers are returned to normal, healthy lives in relatively short periods of time . . . as compared with lengthy hospitalization of years ago. Have a chest X-Ray yearly . . . Spot the Spot. Your family pharmacist can give reliable, encouraging information about tuberculosis and the need for early detection. He can also direct you to your local tuberculosis association.
