

Carvel Urges All to Observe Bill of Rights Day Sunday

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel Tuesday drew from Delaware history to urge observance of "Bill of Rights Day" Sunday.

The governor said Delaware was among the early supporters of the first 10 amendments of the Constitution—the Bill of Rights. "These 10 amendments," he said, "tend to guarantee, protect and preserve the civil liberties and personal freedom of all Americans, thereby distinguishing our form of government from tyranny of totalitarian governments."

The chief executive said "the rights of freedom of speech, press, assembly, association and religious worship; the rights of due process under law, and equal treatment under law must be protected."

"The Congress of the United States, by appropriate action in 1941, provided that Dec. 15 of each year should be observed as 'Bill of Rights Day,' marking the anniversary of the adoption of these important amendments to our Constitution," Carvel said.

Carvel Gets Part of Budget, Rest Due Soon

A part of the state's budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 is in the hands of Gov. Elbert N. Carvel.

With hearings ended, Budget Director F. Earl McGinness said Tuesday that he is in the process of making his recommendations and relaying them to the governor.

Carvel's office said he set aside Tuesday and Wednesday for considering the budget requests.

McGinness said the governor will have the entire budget by Dec. 15. It is hoped to have it to the printers by early January.

The proposed appropriations bill need not be ready until early February, when the General Assembly begins its even-year session. But McGinness said he wants to find out how long it takes to get the job done so he can allow the necessary time for the 1965-1966 budget, which must be by the legislature by early in January of 1965.

The General Assembly will meet for its second regular session on the first Tuesday in February. The budget bill must be introduced within five days after that.

Neither the figures nor procedures in the budget are released until it is introduced into the legislature. After that the Joint Legislative Committee holds its own hearings and submits a separate budget bill to the House. It is that bill that the legislators consider and not the one submitted by the governor.

HB 166, the budget now in effect, contained appropriations and other expenditures totaling $101.8 million. Since then numerous supplementary appropriations have been passed by the legislature.

4 Ferries Head For Beauty Shop

Ships, like women, have to be pampered and prettied and occasionally taken in for a major revamping along exposed lines.

In the haute couture of ships, ferries rank pretty far down the list. But the four little fillies bought for the Cape May-Lewes run are headed for the beauty shop.

At a cost of about $150,000, the four ships will have their smokestacks altered and get new paint jobs inside and out.

The beautifying process was explained Tuesday by a New York naval architect to officials of the Delaware River and Bay Authority, which will operate the ferry.

The architect, David Beges, showed up with a variety of colored sketches showing the ferries in yellow or green.

The authority still has to decide what it wants, but the chances are it will pick green as the predominate color.

"The smokestack is the most dominant feature of a ferry," said Beges, "so we redesign the stacks on the old ferries, attach false contours—and half the job is done."

He also showed how different kinds of paints with different color bands can either heighten or lower the appearance of a ship.

Long bands of dark paint along the hull will make the craft look sleeker all around.

Beges figured that giving the

3907 Turn Out For Polio Vaccine In Kent County

Nearly 4,000 residents off Kent County turned out for the Type 3 Sabin oral vaccine Sunday in the second stage of the state's polio immunization campaign.

Dr. Henry H. Stroud said recently that tallies at the county clinics showed a total of 3,907 at the end of the day. This was an increase of about 200 over the November 3 clinic, when Type 1 vaccine was given.

Dr. Stroud said that a make-up clinic will be held from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. every day this week in the State Board of Health Building in Dover for persons unable to attend Sunday's clinic.

The most heavily attended clinics in the county Sunday were in Dover, where 1,405 persons passed through the lines, and in Smyrna, where 971 turned out.

In the state as a whole, 59,576 responded to the appeal. This was an increase of 6,627, or about 12 per cent over the 53,069 who turned out November 3, when Type 1 vaccine was given.

Sunday's clinics were the second in a series of three. The final day of clinics, at which Type 2 vaccine will be administered, will be held on January 19.

"We hope that many more persons will visit the make-up clinic this week, including those who missed the Type 1 vaccine," Dr. Stroud said. "We want to emphasize that they can receive Type 3 vaccine at the clinics this week, Type 2 on January 19, and Type 1 later from their family physician."

Greenwood Choir To Present Concert

The Community Choir will present a Christmas concert in the auditorium of Greenwood High School Tues., Dec. 17, 8 p. m. The guest soloist will be Mrs. Norma Heyde, lyric soprano. Choir soloists include Charles Dent, tenor; Denton; Joyce Dyer, soprano; of Milford; Lou Reynolds, contralto; of Bridgeville, and Leon Donovan, baritone, of Milford. The accompanist is Kathryn Cople, of Greenwood.

The following program will be presented:

"Praise Ye the Lord of Hosts"; "Benedictus"; Saint-Saens; "And the Glory of the Lord"; Handel; "In Excelsis Deo"; French carol; "Softly the Stars Were Shining"; Torovsky; "O Holy Night"; Adam; "Tell Us, Shepherd Maids"; French-Canadian; "Brother John's Noel"; French carol; "The Angels Song"; Tschesnokov; "The Sussex Carol"; English.

The program will also include audience participation in the singing of familiar carols. A quartet from Tressler Mennonite congregation will sing "Adeste Fideles" and "The First Noel." The concert is sponsored by the Greenwood Kiwanis Club.

"The Christmas Party" Presented At Century Club

The Christmas program at the Harrington New Century Club was held on Tuesday evening, December 10, at 6:30 in the club house. The event was marked by a covered dish supper to which the members brought their husbands or guests.

Mrs. Harry John Dill, Jr., was in charge of the program and also served as acting president in the absence of Mrs. Francis Winkler. Rev. Olin J. Shockley Jr., gave the invocation.

A color movie entitled, "The Art of Gift Wrapping," was shown with Mrs. Dill remarking that the husbands would surely benefit from the ideas on gift wrapping at this Christmas season.

"The Christmas Party," a one-act play was the highlight of the evening. Mrs. Dill directed the play, assisted by William Kohel. Those in the cast were Mrs. Charles Poushish, Robert Winkler, Thomas Clarke, Mrs. William Kohel, and James Rash.

Mrs. Dill concluded the evening by thanking the members of her committee and those in the play for their help in making the evening the great success that it was.

A reminder—club dues are due. Deadline was Dec. 1, but Mrs. William Kohel is still accepting money for this year. Members are urged not to wait until their program—but to make the payment now.

William Miller, Jr. Named Director of Bay Authority

The Delaware River and Bay Authority at a regular meeting on Tuesday, unanimously named William J. Miller, Jr. as director of operations at a salary of $26,000 annually. He was proposed by Theodore C. Bright, Authority Vice Chairman.

Miller has been serving as director of operations of the Delaware Memorial Bridge and State Highway Department and served in the same capacity for Delaware at a total salary of $21,000 a year. He will tender his resignation to the State Highway Commission.

A graduate of Wilmington High School, Miller earned his civil engineering degree at Drexel Institute of Technology by attending night school.

He began his engineering career with the New Castle County division of the Highway Department in 1936. From 1940 to 1942 he served as assistant traffic engineer there. From 1942 to 1946 he served with the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers in units in the United States and Alaska. He was discharged with the rank of Captain.

Following World War II he returned to New Castle County as traffic engineer. He was promoted to traffic and planning engineer of the State Highway Department and served in that capacity until 1955. He was then promoted to Highway deputy chief engineer and deputy chief engineer, Delaware Interstate Highway Division which then operated Delaware Memorial Bridge.

In 1961 he succeeded Chief Engineer Richard A. Haber and became acting chief engineer for the state office and the bridge. He was named director of operations by both boards in 1962.

Miller is married to the former Helen Virginia Hughes. They have four children, Mary Anne, Judith Allen, Sarah Louise and William J. III.

The Authority announced that the services of Chief Engineer Ernest A. Davidson and Bridge Engineer Joe S. Robinson would be terminated on February 1, 1964. Davidson and Robertson are expected to devote full time to the Highway Department and the Delaware Turnpike.

In congratulating Miller, Chairman J. H. Tyler McConnell said,

Bill Would Speed Laws to Governor

The first of two measures designed to make sure passed bills reach the governor's desk quickly was introduced Wednesday in the Senate.

Sen. J. Donald Isaacs, R-Townsend, who sponsored the bill (SB 273) and plans to introduce another, said they're drawn so that the Senate will always know the status of a bill already passed.

He referred to recent cases where a bill to enlarge the New Castle County Levy Court and to provide school construction funds were delayed between passage and arrival on the governor's desk.

The bill introduced Wednesday, Isaacs said, puts into law what is already in the joint rules of the General Assembly; that a passed bill be delivered to the governor within five days from its receipt from the bill clerk.

According to the procedure, the bill clerk in the originating House processes a bill, then relays it to the chairman of the Passed Bill Committee, which has five days to get it to the governor.

The governor then has 10 days in which to sign or veto. If he does neither, it automatically becomes law.

The second bill, which Isaac says is being prepared, would provide that no more than five days elapse between final passage and delivery to the chairman of the Passed Bills Committee. It is at this stage that bills are sometimes held up.

Lt. Gov. Eugene Lamont, Senate president, referred SB 273 to the Passed Bills Committee. But Isaacs talked to Lamont after adjournment, contending the Passed Bills Committee functions only to receive passed bills and not consider new ones. Isaacs said Lamont told him he would reassign the measure to the Revised Statutes Committee.

Isaacs intended to ask for a suspension of rules Wednesday to call for an immediate vote on the measure, but he was conferring with another senator and, by the time he realized what was happening, Lamont had already assigned it.

Student Advisory Committee Named

A three-member student advisory committee has been named to head up the planning for the second annual senior high school conference on smoking and health.

Named to the group are Ruth Jack, a senior at Brandywine High School and chairman of last year's student committee; Vito W. Accetta, Jr., senior at Dover High School; and Lorraine Warrington, a senior at Georgetown High School.

The trio will form the nucleus of a student committee which will plan a statewide conference on smoking for students in Delaware senior high schools. The conference, conducted with the assistance of the Delaware Division, American Cancer Society; Delaware Heart Association; and Delaware Tuberculosis and Health Society, will be held in Dover on Jan. 25.

The first such conference in Delaware was held last January

Two Murderers, 12 Other Prisoners Granted Paroles

Among 14 prisoners granted freedom by the State Board of Parole at Georgetown Tuesday were two convicted murderers — one of whom got his third parole in four years.

Most of the others granted freedom were serving short terms. The meeting—in the warden's home at Sussex Correctional Institution — rejected six petitions.

Leon E. Cannon, 39, of Georgetown, was granted parole by the board. Cannon was given a life term upon conviction of first degree murder February 14, 1949. The sentence was later commuted to 21 years.

He was first granted parole in 1959, but after being arrested for drunken driving, was sent back to prison for breaking parole.

Again, last May he was paroled and was reimprisoned in September on arrest for drunkenness.

In the other murder case, Harvey N. Hopkins, 56, of Thompstonville in Kent County, was paroled after serving slightly more than five years on a 12-year sentence for second-degree murder.

Hutchins incarcerated at Kent Correctional Institution was convicted of murdering his wife, Sarah, in 1957. He was denied parole last June.

Other men granted parole and their sentences:

Gerald Allabrand, 20, Dover, one year and 70 days on Jan. 29 for petty larceny and parole violation.

Clarence Davidson, 19, Frederica, 90 days for operating a motor vehicle during license suspension; a year for 4th degree burglary; a year for violating probation, and four months for escape.

William Evans, 65, Hartly, three-year sentence for assault with intent to kill his son-in-law.

William T. Matthews, Jr., 37, Seaford three years from Superior Court March 9 for fourth degree burglary.

Okey H. Peterson, 40, Laurel, three years for fourth degree burglary from Superior Court May 14, 1962.

Henry Surplin, 33, formerly of the 400 block Shipley St., Wilmington, five years for robbery from Superior Court in October, 1961.

John Stansberry, 36, New Castle, one year August 12 for

Knox Promoted to Lieutenant Colonel

Randall H. Knox Jr., has been promoted from major to lieutenant colonel in the Air Force Reserve, effective as of Dec. 9.

He was flight commander of Air Reserve Squadron 9498 at Dover Air Force Base from 1956 to 1963 and is now on the squadron staff.

In World War II, Col. Knox served from 1940 to 1945, part of the time in the Southwest Pacific Theatre of Operations, and was released from active service as a captain.

In Harrington, he is manager of the Protane Gas Corporation of Delaware.

Charles A. Jerread Dies Suddenly

Charles A. Jerread, 54, died Monday at his home in Harrington.

He had suffered a heart ailment for some time.

He was a former member of the Chamber of Commerce and a former City councilman.

Before his retirement, he operated a newsstand here. A veteran of World War II, he was a member of the Harrington American Legion Post, the Lions Club and Harrington Fire Company.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lucy Jerread; two sons, George H., with the U. S. Navy at Annapolis; Charles L.; four brothers, Nelson, Wilmington; William, Harrington; Brooks, Millsboro; Linford, Milford, and a sister, Mrs. Anna Smith, Millsboro.

Services were held at the McKnatt Funeral Home yesterday afternoon, with the Rev. Olin J. Shockley, pastor of Asbury Methodist Church, officiating. Interment was in Hollywood Cemetery.

Lions Placards To Memorialize Charles A. Jerread

Charles A. Jerread, who died suddenly Monday afternoon, will be memorialized this Christmas season when the Harrington Lions Club makes its annual distribution of baskets of food to needy families.

A placard will be put in the baskets stating they are being given in memory of Charles A. Jerread, who was chairman of the Lions Club's Health and Welfare Committee some 10 years. In this capacity, he was privileged to provide assistance to needy families throughout the year.

State C. of C. to Seek Outstanding Citizen of Delaware

Nominations for the annual Josiah Marvel Cup Award will be received by the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce until December 30 according to an announcement made by that organization. The award is available to any Delawarean regardless of race, creed, color or sex who has given outstanding service to the state, the community, society or to his fellow man. Any individual or organization is invited to submit nominations.

This will mark the fourteenth year that the award will be made at the annual meeting of the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce, held in January. Persons wishing to submit a nomination should include the name and address of the person to be nominated and an outline or description of their achievement. Four copies should be addressed to the Marvel Cup Committee, 1112 King Street, Wilmington, Delaware 19801. A confidential committee will review the nominations and name the recipient.

The silver cup, appropriately inscribed, was originally presented to Josiah Marvel, the President of the State Chamber of Commerce who served during 1913-1914, in recognition of his services in reorganizing the Chamber of Commerce. It was given to the chamber by Mr. Marvel's heirs for such use as the Chamber might decide. The name of the recipient and the date of the award is inscribed on the cup and a silver plate given to the recipient. The original Josiah Marvel Cup is permanently displayed in the office of the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce.

Previous winners of the award are: Dr. M. A. Tarumjian; J. Gorman Walsh; Margaret Irving Handy, M. D.; Henry T. Claus, I. B. Fikelstein, James W. Williams, Mrs. Pearl Glenn Herlihy, William Reilly Brown, John G. Leach, Clarence A. Fulmer, Maurice duPont Lee, Lloyd R. Leslie, and Dr. Ward I. Miller.

Miss Ann Carvel To Pay Tribute to John F. Kennedy

Miss Carvel, a mezzo soprano, will sing eight selections as part of a musical program titled "In Memoriam—A Tribute to the late John F. Kennedy." Miss Carvel is a student at the Julliard School of Music in New York.

Two May Change School Bond Measure Votes With "Conditions"

SGT. DAVID DILL

Sergeant Dill Discharged With Commendation

Sergeant David Wayne Dill has received his honorable discharge from the United States Army and has returned to his home near Whiteleysburg after two years of service in Germany.

Prior to his departure from Germany he was awarded the Army Commendation Medal by order of the commanding officer of the Fourth Armored Division. The citation states in part, "Sergeant Dill led the platoon in weapons qualification in 1962 and 1963, scored 100 on the Division Map Test in 1962 and 1963, and was Honor Graduate of the Division Artillery CW Radio School in 1962. His knowledge and mastery of the special skills required by the Battle Patrol Platoon were unsurpassed. The outstanding leadership, military proficiency, and dedication to duty displayed by Sergeant Dill are worthy of emulation and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service."

Sergeant Dill is a graduate of Felton High School, class of 1957, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Courtland R. Dill.

Cliff Miller To Celebrate 75th Birthday

Cliff Miller will celebrate his 75th birthday tomorrow. He was born in 1888 in Blairsville, Westmoreland County, Pa. In this area he attended grade school and high school.

At the age of seventeen he became employed as a brakeman with the Pennsylvania Railroad. He moved from foreman to assistant supervisor and then to supervisor of the signal department.

About 21 years ago he was transferred to Harrington. He and his wife have made their home here ever since.

Five years ago they built a home on the Paradise Alley Road, which is their present residence. Mr. Miller retired from the railroad in 1958.

The Millers have three children, Betty J. Clark, Harrington; Clifford L. Miller, Holland Park, N. J., and Eileen M. Black, Hightstown, N. J.

Felton Fire Co. Re-elects Officers

William J. Paskey was re-elected president of the Felton Community Fire Company at its recent meeting. Other officers re-elected were as follows;

Paul Woikoski, Sr., vice-president; Roland Neeman, secretary; Richard Crouse, financial secretary; John E. Moore, treasurer; J. B. Simpler, chief; Charles Smith, fire recorder; James Tatman, public relations; Charles Bostick, Jr., Wilbur Sherwood Jr. and W. Myers, Sr., directors.

Elbert Harrington, Jr., E. B. Warrington, Jr., and Freddie Casper were named fire police.

Two of the four Democrats who failed to support a school bond bill authorizing 100 per cent state funds for school construction now indicate they have changed their minds.

The measure, HB 469 amended, received only 22 of 27 needed votes when it was called up last week. The roll call was tabled.

Tuesday, Rep. Granville T. Lowe, D-Laurel, and Rep. George H. Exley, D-Harrington, said they have been having some second thoughts on the subject and will probably support the bill. But both have attached "conditions".

Lowe said he would want some assurances that passage of the bond bill would open the way for standardizing teacher salaries throughout the state so that district does not bid against district for the more competent instructors.

And Exley said he would support the measure, but would like to see it followed by a sales tax which he called the "only truly equitable tax we could impose."

Another Democratic representative, Majority Whip Glenn W. Busker, of Smyrna, said flatly that he will not support the bill for 100 per cent state funds.

He said that when Gov. Elbert N. Carvel hinted to a Democratic caucus that the legislation might necessitate additional taxes he lost all interest in supporting it. "No one has convinced me that the system we have been using and the bill we did pass are wrong," Busker declared.

Both Houses passed a measure, HB 426 amended, which provides bond funds for school construction on a matching basis with the state supplying 60 per cent and the local district 40 per cent except for certain exception for all-Negro schools and vocation institutions.

That bill is on Gov. Carvel's desk, but he has withheld his signature in the hope of getting HB 469 enacted.

One thing is clear. That is that the bill needs support from more than the two Republicans in the House who voted for it before if it is to receive approval.

Gov. Carvel talked with the Democrats about the new proposal, but did not meet with Republicans and they gave it only two of their 11 votes.

Even if Lowe and Exley switch, the bill would still need three additional Republican votes without support from Busker or Rep. Carlton Blendt, D-Blackbird Hundred, chairman of the education committee, who voted against it the last time.

Carvel has been using his influence to obtain support from the Democratic legislators but Busker said he is impervious to pressure from that source.

The majority whip did say he would go along with the bill if the House would first enact legislation to standardize both school construction and teacher salaries in all of the districts of the state.

Poet Laureate Bill Passed

An ancient English custom—naming of a poet laureate—may become official in Delaware.

The Senate Tuesday passed a bill without discussion to establish the post. The measure, SB 16, sponsored by President Pro Tem Curtis W. Steen, D-Dagsboro, received 14 favorable votes. Three were absent.

Mother M. Aloysisus Peach, OSU, of Ursuline Academy in Wilmington, is the present poet laureate. She was appointed last February by Gov. Elbert N. Carvel to succeed Miss Marguerite Weaver in the honorary post.

Her term will expire Feb. 1, 1964. Steen, who introduced the administration measure last January, told his colleagues the post had been inadvertently left out of the 1953 Delaware Code.

He said the poet laureate presents poetry on special days. The measure now goes to the House.

NEW CHEVELLE! BY CHEVROLET The kind of go—6 or V8—you'd expect from one of Chevy's great highway performers. Come on down and drive it. The kind of comfort you'd expect in a large interior. Come on down and sit in it. The kind of fresh styling—inside and out—that makes it the year's smartest surprise. Come down and stare at it. Now—Chevy spirit in a new kind of car! We built this one to do more than just stand around looking beautiful. Held its weight down in the 3,000-pound range. Then built four lusty engines—two sixes and two V8's—with output all the way up to 220 horses*! And if that makes you think this is one frisky car, you've got the right idea. You've also got a roomy car here. Yet its 115-inch wheelbase keeps it highly maneuverable in traffic and very easy to park. With its Full Coil suspension, it's got a ride that reminds you of the Jet-smooth kind the way it muffles noise and cushions bumps. And the fine hand of Body by Fisher craftsmen shows up beneath this one's suave good looks, too. Sound good? There's more. Like the fact that Chevelle comes in three series with eleven models—convertibles, sport coupes, sedans, wagons, even Super Sport models with front bucket seats. Like the fact that (and see if this isn't one of the nicest surprises of all) the new Chevelle comes at an easy-to-take price! Like to hear more? The listening's wonderful at your Chevrolet dealer's—and so's the driving. *Optional at extra cost See five entirely different kinds of cars at your Chevrolet Showroom—CHEVROLET, CHEVELLE, CHEVY II, CORVAIR & CORVETTE HARRINGTON MOTOR CO. St. George's Bridge To Be Tested

The U. S. Corps of Engineers has notified the State Highway Department of plans to conduct vibration tests on St. George's Bridge on Route 13 from Tues., Dec. 10, through Saturday, Dec. 14.

Recent pavement repairs have prompted the testing to determine if the structure has sufficient strength to handle the heavy trucks which are now using the bridge.

For more than a year the increased loads per truck—as much as 20% over old weights—have been travelling across the bridge. Tests will indicate any reinforcements which may be necessary.

The testing will be carried on with a minimum of inconvenience to the public and where possible the engineers will use existing traffic as a basis for tests.

Delaware Food Market Report

Many Jewish homemakers readying their shopping lists for the coming Chanukah festivities will, as traditional, select poultry as their main dish feature for some of the holiday meals. Turkey, the king of poultry, impressive and versatile, make a particularly good choice for the observance (Dec. 11-18) of the eight-day Festival of Lights.

This is a good week for broiler-fryers also, prices are down from last week and quality is high. Barbecued chicken, hot chicken salad, and chicken pot pie, are just a few delicious dishes made from this tender young chicken.

Beef continues to be plentiful with specials putting this meat in the economy bracket. Be sure to check price per serving when buying, because you will find a great difference between cuts. Take steak, for example. If porthouse and round steaks are priced the same per pound, the true cost it not what the price tag suggests. Round has less bone and fat waste and yields close to twice as many servings per pound. Thus, round is a better buy of nutrients for the money.

The season for cauliflower is beginning to come to a close, but cabbage remains to be a very good buy. Quality on Florida celery is much improved this week. Tomatoes from Florida are more plentiful and are a little cheaper. Other vegetables to watch for include: cucumber, eggplant, green onions, turnips, peppers, and sweet potatoes. Also, in many local markets are the dark leafy greens—kale, mustard, collards, spinach and water cress.

Avocados are a leading fruit choice now. Other fruits that are excellent choice are: cranberries, grapes, grapefruit, tangerines and many oranges. Both Emperor and Ribier grapes are available, with the Emperor the more reasonable. The 1963 crop of edible tree nuts almonds, filberts, pecans, and walnuts-is record high. Check these nuts for good buys when you shop next.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Bragg, Mary, Anna, David, Charlie, and Clyde Ira, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Isner.

Mrs. Ella Breeding was a recent guest of her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Breeding, of Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey Smith and Becky, of rural Greenwood, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Breeding and Donnie, last week.

4-H News

Chicago, a warm, friendly town for 4-H. For each of our Kent County delegates their 4-H Congress trip will hold many different, exciting experiences. For your club agent it has provided opportunities to meet many new persons and share ideas. It was with pleasure that I met Mr. C. W. Cook, president of General Foods Corporation and Mrs. Kelley, from the White Plains staff. As donors of the foods-nutrition 4-H program a special dinner was held for all state winners and their leaders. An exceptionally cordial group of representatives were hosts at each table. Another donor representative chatted with briefly was Carl Miller, Firestone Rubber Company. How nice to report to him on the local cooperation of E. W. Buchanan. A trip through the Merchandiser Mart was quite an experience.

One can go on and on about the interest the donors take in you 4-H'ers. Throughout the week all are so grateful to you at home who have given so much time and interest to these 4-H'ers representing you. Your Delaware delegation represented you well. No finer persons of our state could I find to send at citizens than 4-H'ers.

Jim Baker, State club leader; Ed Cordery, Sussex 4-H leader; and Marion MacDonald have been the privileged ones to travel in this company. I challenge you to explore the potentials of our youth. Eighteen delegates will be back in Delaware as you read this from an educational experience that can't be surpassed. These 4-H'ers will live, learn and serve through 4-H.

Veterans News

All veterans of World War II who have National Service Life Insurance today are urged by Leon Fields, manager of the Regional Office, Veterans Administration, Wilmington, to check the beneficiaries of their policies to determine if the right person, or persons, are designated to receive or share in the insurance.

Any change in family status, Mr. Fields pointed out, may require a change in beneficiary. Mr. Fields said "the matter should be given immediate attention by the veterans, for example, if a veteran marries, he may want to designate his wife as beneficiary, rather than his parents; if a veteran's wife dies, he may want to name a child as beneficiary, or a parent."

Mr. Fields pointed out the law requires the VA to pay the insurance claim to the person or persons listed as the beneficiary. Any veteran may change his beneficiary by advising the Veterans Administration in writing; the letter should be addressed to the VA office to which the insurance premium is sent.

LTCDR. ARTEMUS L. GATES. Artemus L. Gates was the first aviator to receive the Navy Cross. Gates achieved an enviable record during World War I. After helping build the Dunkirk Air Station in France he organized anti-submarine patrols which kept the enemy wary of our navy flying boats. His daring led him to attempt the first air sea rescue operation—the rescue of two downed British pilots from under the guns of an enemy shore battery. For this he received the Navy Cross. He was later shot down and captured. During World War II Gates served as Asst. Secretary of the Navy Air Force; later as Under Secretary of Navy.

MUCH ADO ABOUT SOMETHING

At least once or twice a month some starry-eyed citizen comes forward and proposes to hold funeral rites for an ancient and malevolent disease. The notion that tuberculosis has been "conquered" and now belongs wholly to the past is such a tempting one that some people are reluctant to let mere medical facts stand in its way.

Yet the medical facts are there, and so are the public health statistics: more than 50,000 new cases and nearly 10,000 deaths from TB in the United States every year. Fortunately, there are still plenty of people aware of this not altogether rosy picture, and eager to do something about it. Even a cursory look at some of their activities shows that vigorous action is being taken against this disease.

In Indianapolis, for instance, a group of dedicated people working through their local tuberculosis association recently carried out an intensive campaign of neighborhood chest X-ray examinations, during which more than 5,500 persons availed themselves of this form of TB checkup. In Kentucky an emergency fund was established so that indigent TB patients could get free transportation to and from clinics and hospitals.

In Essex County, Massachusetts, public health nurses were given a five-week education program on problems related to Tuberculosis. And down in the Southwest a "Resource Manual for Tuberculosis Control in Arizona" was published by hard-nosed TB fighter in the redoubtable state. The list of such vigorous anti-TB activities around the country could be expanded almost at will.

All of which invites two conclusions: that there is still far too much TB around, and that enough people still know it and are concerned about it to justify hopes of ultimate, though far from immediate, victory for our side.

WHY RUN FOR OFFICE?

Why do men run for office in a village or town? Let's look for the answer!

First, we're sure it isn't for pay because it isn't commensurate with the hours they must devote to their duties.

Secondly, they can't be doing it for selfish motives (favors) as they would be impossible to accomplish.

Thirdly, it is a cinch they don't do it for self glory as, more often than not, they catch more heat than they do praise as they try desperately to serve the needs of the people who elected them.

Having ruled out all of the above — could it be that these people who run for office do so because they feel there is a need for their services, that they think they might benefit the community in which they live by assisting in the guidance of the community.

I is our opinion that there is nothing sneaky about these people as some would have you think; no basis to the talk that they are conniving against the people who elected them.

The rabble-rousers often times have much to say about members of the village boards or city councils or even town boards. They often come in for ridicule, criticism or make enemies of people who once were friends. When these things occur it is a shame, for the people sitting on your particular board or council are there for the purpose of representing you.

In terms of actual gain, we'd say they often lose more than they gain. But they're making every effort to iron out problems that confront their constituents. Those of you who don't like the way things are being done could give more purpose to talk by running for the village board. To serve is a privilege, but at times we think it must be somewhat of a headache, too!

THE THINKING OF SOME JOB APPLICANTS IS APPALLING

During a year we interview quite a few persons seeking jobs. And whenever their first questions about an opening include, "How much will my take home pay be?" or "What does the job pay?" we are immediately hesitant about hiring them.

It continually amazes us the number of applicants who do not know how to go about seeking a job and responding to an interview. It is beyond us to understand why they do not approach a prospective employer with facts on how they can be an asset to his business.

An employer is hiring men and women to help, not add to his burdens. He wants staff people who can ease the load, not make it heavier. Yet, many, many will right off the reel ask, before they even list their qualifications and find out the hours involved and other requirements, "How much does the job pay; how much will my take home pay be?"

Many who make written applications—including college and university graduates—are atrocious spellers. And they don't know they should use the dictionary. Others only half fill out application blanks. Still others refuse to follow instructions by telephoning an employer's house rather than making written application as the advertisement requested.

During an interview quite a few applicants, without realizing it, make clear that what they really want is an easy job; something simple to get a paycheck at the end of the week. They ignore the fact that here is no excellence without labor. Too many applicants have a record of changing jobs frequently, indicating instability. Our advice to young people today is stated in the words many years ago of Samuel Johnson: "Those who attain to any excellence commonly spend life in some one single pursuit, for excellence is not often gained upon easier terms."

It is our observation, as it is of many employers, that a surprising number of persons are irresponsible. They will agree to give two weeks' notice prior to leaving a job, but end up giving only one day or no time at all. They forget that good reference are important to future jobs.

Most of the applicants for jobs we talk to never consider a plan of their own to save from their paycheck, no matter how much it might be. Instead, in this era, they talk about how much pay they can take home so they can pay for already purchased television sets, air conditioners, cars and so on.

We have employed some young persons who are mature in their thinking on these matters, but in a majority of cases they think in terms of how much they can make, rather than how best they can serve their employer, earn according to their talents and build for the future. Our preference is the more stable, more reasonable, more dependable middle aged or older person. This is in contrast, we know, to some employers. Our opinion is based on our experience.

We do not say here that all young staffers are not good. One this summer, for example, was excellent in every respect and we only wish we could employ her full time. She has the finest qualities of a mature, balanced experienced person.

Generally speaking, though, the seasoned, dependable, reasonable applicants, those who do not ask right off about the "take home," have a better chance of winning the approval of prospective employers.

Fortunately, most established businesses have several key persons who can be thoroughly depended upon, who take pride in their work and in the success of the overall business. It is these, with the dependable qualities, who make a business click, regardless of the quality of the day-to-day applicants.

The Daily Star-Journal, Warrensburg, Mo.

THE DOOR WAS CLOSED

We admire the public spirited individual who is willing to take on community jobs or head drives for worthy causes. Everyone should be willing to do his share. Unless citizens are willing to take their turn, a community tends to slide backward.

One can, however, become so involved in community affairs that he doesn't have time to run his own business. Years ago I knew a very likeable gentleman, long since dead, who was always in the forefront of civic affairs. One afternoon customers of his store found the door locked with a note reading, "open tomorrow." What had happened? He was serving lemonade at a Farm Bureau picnic.

What happened to his store? Because he didn't have time to keep his shelves stocked, his merchandise up to date, or even his doors open, he failed in business and at least some of his creditors were unable to collect what he owed them when the store closed.

He was a friendly, well-intentioned chap and most certainly civic-minded. It was nice of him to spend the day serving lemonade.

Of more value to his community, however, would have been a well-run store which would have helped attract business to the city from the surrounding area EVERY day. Certainly, it would have been of more value to the creditors he couldn't pay when he went out of business.

Communities need civic-minded men and women, people willing to take on jobs which need doing. One should be careful, however, to limit the offices he holds, the drives he heads, to the number he can handle while doing his main job well.

Nothing is more important to a city than well-run, well-managed shops and stores. The more successful they are, the more valuable they are to the community.

Nor only do their owners profit. The community as a whole profits, for the success or failure of a city depends largely on how successfully its business institutions are operated.

SMOKING AND ATHLETICS

As long as we can remember coaches, from high school teams on up, have told their athletes to cut out smoking since it cuts the wind. Usually the coach was believed and every athlete that wanted to amount to something avoided smoking.

Now science can prove that smoking really does "cut the wind"—that is, cause a marked decrease in breathing capacity.

The committee on Medical Aspects of Sports of the American Medical Association and the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations in a recent joint comment on smoking and sports point out that the ability to produce maximum efforts and to build endurance for sports is related to the capacity of the athlete to take in and utilize oxygen.

After reviewing reports on scientific studies of breathing capacity the AMA Committee recommends that athletes should be strongly advised against smoking. In fact, ten inhalations of cigarette smoke have been shown to materially reduce airway conductance to the lung. The decrease is as much as 50 percent and can last for as long as an hour.

One effect of smoking on breathing is to slow down the rate at which stale air can be expelled from the lungs. The heavy smoker has trouble in breathing quickly and easily under heavy exertion.

There comes a time in most team and individual sports when an absolutely maximum effort is required for a brief moment. It may be a hard sprint in football, a leap for a rebound in basketball, a fast run to try to beat a throw to first base in baseball, a quick jump to reach for a high tennis ball, a hard finish sprint in swimming.

The smoker, even though he may be a fine natural athlete, highly trained and skilled, may find that his capacity for that all-important finish spring or leap is slightly less than it might have been if he laid off tobacco.

In a close finish between well matched athletes, the non-smoker has the edge.

There is no longer any room for doubt that athletes should not smoke.

PARENTS CAN HELP BOOSTER STUDENT ACHIEVEMENT RECORDS

Most young people, like most adults, rarely operate at full capacity, but parents can take steps to help the child who is classed by educators as an "underachiever," according to Changing Times, the Kiplinger Magazine.

An article in the current issue of the magazine states that about half of all able boys and a quarter of all able girls fall into that category—bright youngsters whose marks show they are not doing as well as they should.

Most underachieving youngsters need more confidence and understanding, less nagging and reproof, the article advises. Parents who think their child falls into this category should have a conference with his teacher. "The important thing is to find out whether he is producing substantially below his ability and if so, why."

"Lack of interest in school, rebellion, frustration and personal psychological problems are causes of underachievement," the article continues. "So are unsympathetic teachers and unsympathetic parents. Boys need approval from their father plus the knowledge that their fathers respect education. They need to gain independence from their mothers. Girls need expressions of love from their fathers, and mothers who are not dominating and not dissatisfied with their role as wife and mother."

Most students in the underachiever category do learn the basic information and skills they need to move up through the grades, the article points out, but the work they turn out is close to the minimum they can get by with and far below what they are capable of.

In boys, the tendency toward underachievement shows up as early as the first grade and usually is pretty clear by the third or fourth, according to Changing Times. Girls aren't generally spotted until the sixth grade. "Though many an underachiever appears to be sailing blithely along, most are deeply concerned about failure and are disappointed in themselves, their teachers and their parents," the article notes. "They know they could be doing better but don't know why they should or how to get themselves to make the effort."

Veterans News

In response to President Johnson's directive for the earliest possible payment of the $234,000,000 GI Insurance Dividend for 1964, the VA said the first checks would reach veterans by Jan. 2.

In reporting this, Leon Fields, manager of the VA Regional Office, Wilmington, said payments to all of the 4,725,000 veterans participating in the dividend would be completed in record time—by Jan. 25.

The President, on Dec. 8, ordered the accelerated payments as a stimulant to the economy.

In the first speed payment of a dividend, ordered by President Kennedy in 1961, payments were completed by March 17. The stepped up payment of the 1963 dividend was completed last January 31. The VA plan to issue the 1964 dividend checks by next Jan. 25 will cut a week from the previous record processing time of 31 days in 1963.

The dividend payments in 1962, and in the years prior to 1961, were made throughout the entire year on the anniversary dates of the individual insurance policies.

Of the total distribution of $234,000,000, $15,000,000 will go to about 225,000 World War I veterans holding U. S. Government Life Insurance (USGLI) policies. The remaining $219,000,000 will go to 4,500,000 World War II veterans who hold National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) policies, Mr. Fields said.

The VA estimates that 12,480 veterans in the State of Delaware will receive dividends amounting to $616,800. Korean conflict veterans hold non-participating policies that do not provide regular annual dividend payments. The regular dividends are primarily a return to

Agency Views on State Jail Due

All agencies concerned with prison facilities will be asked for suggestions on the site of a new state prison.
 The Board of Corrections Committee seeking a site is lining up several to be inspected — some in lower New Castle County, the remainder in Kent County.
 At last month's Board of Corrections meeting Harry W. Towers, acting prison director, proposed a new building group in the Dover-Smyrna area.
 But New Castle County real estate dealers have approached the board's planning committee, recommending sites. Tuesday's discussion indicated several sites will be inspected in lower New Castle County.
 The committee is agreed the site should be away from any foreseeable population center.
 Land costs are another important factor to the committee, which agreed chances of obtaining land already owned by the state are slim because such land is reserved for parks.
 The Corrections Board recently listed these above steps in the long preparations for a final decision:
 —All agencies concerned with prison facilities will be contacted by two committee members for ideas on location, construction and size. Included will be police forces, parole boards, courts and the State Planning Office.
 —The board will inspect out-of-state prisons to gather planning and construction tips.
 —Planning committee members will investigate procedures for land acquisition and sale of land to state agencies.
 —State Planning Director John A. Bivens, Jr., and Donald K. Harneson, director of sanitary engineering for the State Board of Health will aid in building plans, as will an architect specializing in prison design.
 The new prison will be used for those who have been sentenced already. The three existing county prisons will probably be retained for holding prisoners awaiting trial.
 Present plans call for housing of 500 prisoners plus facilities for personnel. The offices of the Department of Corrections if approved by the General Assembly, probably will be located at the new prison.
 The poor condition of existing facilities is a major reason for the new institution.
 Towers said a locksmith has estimated that the cost of repairing 36 cells—a fraction of the number at New Castle — would be $7000. The board would have to spend $15,000 per 36 cells to replace the locks and remodel cell doors to accommodate the new locks.
 The consensus of the board was that a "great deal of money" would be needed to remodel all prisons to provide for maximum security precautions and fire safety measures recommended by the fire marshal in each county.
 The board agreed that New Castle prison can stand the way it is until a new prison is built, and that Kent and Sussex Correctional Institutions, relatively new buildings, are satisfactory for the present.

Caesar Rodney School News

The Department of Music of Caesar Rodney Schools will present a program of Christmas music on Thurs., Dec. 19, at 8 p.m. in the High School Auditorium, as a part of the regular monthly meeting of the P.T.A.
 This will be a varied program, utilizing the three major music ensembles of the school, and the selections to be presented will cover the wide scope of Christmas music, from traditional carols to the modern popular Yuletide music.
 The program will be opened by the Caesar Rodney Orchestra, consisting of 73 members, followed by selections from the 78-voice Glee Club, both organizations being under the direction of Mrs. Gladys M. Blaner. The program will be concluded by the Caesar Rodney High School Concert Band, numbering 68 members, and under the direction of Edwin Englehart, chairman of the Music Department.
 All members of the P.T.A. and the general public are cordially invited to attend this program in the auditorium Thurs., Dec. 19, at 8 p.m.

Chicken Cooking Entry Blanks Available

Have a yen to fly to Europe? Care for a West Indies vacation? Want to go on a $2,000 shopping spree? Or perhaps you'd prefer to win a household of portable electric appliances?
 All these, and many other valuable prizes are in store for 1964's top home chicken cooks.
 So bring out that favorite chicken recipe and try it on family and friends for their reaction as to its championship caliber. There's a chance at prizes and the glamour of being a national cooking champion no matter which way you like to prepare chicken.
 For the outdoor barbecue enthusiast, male or female, age eight to eighty, there's prospect of a trip for two via Pan American Airways to Montego Bay, Jamaica. Plus a nine-day stay at the glamorous Bay Roc Hotel on the shores of the warm Caribbean.
 The fry-pan minded of any age over eight can win a complete set of appliances from the Sunbeam line.
 For those 18 or over who prefer to do their cooking by range there's a senior division grand prize of two roundtrip tickets to London, Paris, Frankfurt, Brussels and Amsterdam by Pan Am jet, plus the fame and fun of being national chicken cooking champ.
 And, for the hard-to-please younger set who cook on ranges, there's a division and a grand prize all their own for under-eighteens. The junior champion wins a trip to Chicago where Polk Bros., world's largest center of brand names, will give him or her carte blanche to take home $2,000 worth of merchandise of the champion's own choice.
 In addition to these top glamour prizes, there are 53 other national prizes including deluxe ranges and color TV in the four divisions of 1964's National Chicken Cooking Contest. Additional prizes are offered in many states where there will be preliminary state cookoffs.
 You can get an earlier-than-usual start in the forthcoming National Chicken Cooking Contest, too. Contest sponsors, the Poultry and Egg National Board of Chicago, and the Delmarva Poultry Industry Association of Georgetown, report that entry blanks will start appearing in many supermarkets, neighborhood food stores, and appliance and hardware stores any day now. Deadline for mailing the entry blanks, along with your favorite recipe is February 15th. Copies of the entry blank also can be obtained free by mail any time between now and February 10 by writing to the Poultry and Egg National Board, 8 South Michigan Ave., Chicago 3, Illinois.
 Preliminary state recipe contests or cookoffs will be held during March to select four finalists per state in each division who will be eligible for the national cookoff. This latter event will be hosted by the Delmarva people June 18, 19 and 20. It's to be at Easton, in the Chesapeake Bay countryside, and will be held as part of the gala 3-day 17th Delmarva Chicken Festival there.
 National cooking finalists get free room and board at Easton. Judging is done by professionals including some of the nation's most distinguished food editors and home economists. No previous national champion is eligible to cook in the division in which he or she won a championship.

FOUR FERRIES

 four ferries—the Delaware, the New Jersey, the Cape May and the Cape Henlopen—a new look will cost about $50,000.
 Nolan C. Chandler, director of the ferries, estimated it will cost about $100,000 to burn off the old paint and apply the new exterior colors and also paint the interiors.
 The bistate authority also adopted tentatively an insignia—the letter D, symbolizing Delaware Capes, with streamlined decoration attached.

FENCE TALK

With George Vapaa

Swine producers should be thinking about protecting their pigs from the cold weather. Coldness, drafts, and dampness are profit cutters with all sizes and ages of pigs, but they are much more severe on the smaller pigs. For the first couple of days after farrowing, a little pig cannot endure the winter weather. A chilled pig at farrowing will tend to be a poor pig if it survives. Winter weather may reduce your profit if you feed your hogs in open lots, but if the pigs are protected from the weather, they can be fed more efficiently. The most efficient pork is produced in a temperature of 60 to 70 degrees where there are no drafts and where it is relatively dry. The better you can provide this type of environment during the winter, the more efficient your swine enterprise will be.

Good-quality corn silage can replace hay in the dairy calf ration without serious effects on the calves.

In a recent experiment, researchers divided 36 Holstein calves into three equal groups. One group received alfalfa hay, a second group was fed corn silage and the final group a combination of hay and silage.

All the roughages were fed free choice from birth to 20 weeks of age plus a calf starter fed at a maximum of three pounds per calf per day.

Average roughage consumption per animal for the 140-day trial was 431 pounds for the hay group and 1,244 pounds for the corn-silage group. The group receiving both hay and silage consumed 77 pounds of hay and 1,255 pounds of silage.

Dairymen who use corn silage to replace hay in the ration must make up for the vitamin D and calcium deficiencies in the silage. It's best to feed a vitamin D supplement as well as steamed bone meal along with silage.

It is also important that the calves eat the silage well, since they will have to consume about three times as much silage as hay to get the same amount of dry matter.

One way to encourage better corn silage consumption is to clean out the feed box and feed fresh silage each day.

Every emergency is different. Are you ready?

If an emergency catches you unprepared, what you don't know about protecting your home and family could be costly—even fatal—to them and to you.

In early America, every family had a survival plan. When a fire, flood, or Indian attack threatened, each person had a job to do. Natural disasters—tornadoes, floods, blizzards, fires, hurricanes, ice storms—still happen. Now, the possibility of nuclear war poses an additional threat to all Americans.

To survive, modern Americans must be just as alert, just as prepared as their forefathers. If you plan for an emergency before it occurs, your chances of being alive and healthy afterward will be greatly increased.

Pick the safest place in your home or on your farm. Add shielding to make it better. A shelter needn't be elegant, only safe. Be ready to take advantage of the best shelter available at all times. Store a two weeks' supply of food, water, and other everyday essentials in your shelter area.

These measures are do-it-yourself insurance against the time your life may be at stake.

Shelter, feeding and overall health of a beef breeding herd are of the utmost importance when it comes to planning a winter management program.

The herd should be sorted into age groups which are uniform in food and shelter requirements. If the cattle aren't sorted, some will always be overfed and other underfed. Groups having different nutrient requirements include dry cows, cows suckling calves, yearling or two-year-old heifers, heifer calves and bulls.

Yearling and two-year-old heifers must be handled differently from the rest of the herd, depending on whether they are bred to calve as two-year-olds or three-year-olds. Yearlings bred to calve as two-year olds probably should get a little grain during the winter. Heifer calves kept for replacement should be fed rather liberally if they are going to be bred as yearlings.

For the rest of the herd, the winter ration should consist largely of farm grown roughage. It will take approximately two tons of hay to winter a cow, or about 20 pounds per day. If silage is available, three to four pounds will replace one pound of hay. A protein supplement should be fed if the hay is of poor quality.

Sheltering the herd can be managed without the use of barn space. However there should be some type of shelter, such as an open shed with drained or paved lot. These lots should open into a pasture, so when the ground is frozen or dry enough, the cows will have their choice of the open shed or the pasture.

Wool Growers Urged To Keep Records

Wool growers who market their lambs in the fall should remember to keep adequate records of their sales so that they will be able to make proper applications for payment under the wool incentive program, according to Russell C. Bowdler, chairman, Kent Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The sales record for lambs sold should include the name of the buyer, his original signature, and the number and liveweight of lambs sold, plus the description "unshorn." Lamb payments are made only on lambs that have never been shorn, to discourage unusual shearing of lambs before selling.

The Chairman also reminds growers that current marketings of wool and lamb through Dec. 31, 1963, will qualify for incentive payments under the wool program for the 1963 marketing year.

(In previous years, the marketing year ended March 31.) Beginning in 1964, the marketing year will be the calendar year.

Kent County growers are urged to file their applications for payment, supported by the required sales documents, with the Kent ASCS County Office at Dover, as soon as possible after their fall sales are completed. While the final date to apply for payments on 1963 marketings will be January 31 of next year—covering marketings of wool and lambs from April 1, 1963, through Dec. 31, 1963—an application may be submitted at any time between now and then.

Mr. Bowdler said that lamb feeders particularly should keep accurate records which will establish the length of time they have owned lambs on which they apply for payment. Lamb payments are made only on lambs which a producer has owned for 30 days or more, and the amount of payment is based on weight gain of the lambs during the seller's ownership.

Grace Church to Present Concert

The Sanctuary Choir of Grace Methodist Church, East Market & King Streets, Georgetown, will present a concert of sacred Christmas music Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in the Sanctuary of the church. The director of the choir is H. Eugene Bowne. The organist is Mrs. Irma Roach. Soloists for the evening will be Mrs. Shirley Baker, Mrs. Jane Helm and Mrs. Betty Hill.

The program will consist of the following selections: "Sing Alleluia! Christ is Born", "Glory to God in the Highest", "Now Rejoice", "Praise Ye The Lord of Host", "The Snow Lay On the Ground", "There were Shepherds", "Behold That Star", "Draw Neigh, Immanuel", "A Child is Born in Bethlehem", "Softly the Stars", and carols.

Keep Christmas Safe As Well As Merry

The appearance of your tree on Christmas morning will reflect the treatment it has received since it was cut down, according to Ernest N. Scarborough, associate professor of agriculture engineering at the University of Delaware. The safety of the Christmas tree also depends on how it has been kept, he says.

Christmas trees should be stored outside, or at least in the coolest place available until time for decorating. Storage in a warm place will cause a tree to dry excessively, which, in turn, may cause needles to drop off and create a fire hazard.

Before placing the tree in its stand, a diagonal cut should be made across the trunk about an inch above the base. This cut will make it possible for the tree to absorb more water. The cut surface of the trunk should be completely covered with water at all times. When the tree is in a warm room, it may use a pint or more of water daily; therefore, a large container is desirable for the stand.

Scarborough says keeping the tree standing in water is the most practical, satisfactory, and convenient method in reducing the fire hazard and keeping the needles from discoloring or falling.

Live green boughs and branches make attractive decorations, but they will remain attractive longer if they are arranged in water to keep them fresh and to reduce the fire hazard. If it is not possible to place greens or trees in water, they may be made flame retardant by immersing, spraying or sprinkling with a solution of nine ounces of borax and four ounces of boric acid powder mixed with one gallon of warm water.

Christmas trees, wreates, mantles, and windows frequently are decorated with colored lights. These lights, however, can be a fire hazard or give a serious shock to children or adults if the cords and connections are not in good condition. Scarborough suggests checking all lights and electrical decorations before using them.

For safety's sake, he suggests discarding old strings of lights which have bad insulation and show signs of deterioration. When buying new lights, check to see that they bear the Underwriters' label of inspection, certifying good workmanship and materials.

Aluminum trees should never be trimmed with electrical decorations, Scarborough cautions. A break in the insulation of light strings used on these trees could conduct electricity to the tree and make the whole tree a serious shock hazard. He recommends using a spot lamp placed some distance from the tree to illuminate it.

By taking a few precautions as you put up your Christmas decorations, you can help to assure that your Christmas will be a safe one.

Heed Safety During Holidays Favinger Warns

Citizens of Delaware, I urge you one and all to do all in your power to prevent any incident which might mar the joy of Christmas time. It should be a time of fun and joyful reunion with friends and relatives. The possibility of fire greatly increases at this time of year due to the added hazards resulting from decorations, and wrappings from gifts, not to mention hastily discarded smoking material easily overlooked in the fun of celebrations.

Fire, striking during this festive season can quickly convert a joyous family reunion into a blackened, burned out frame of a once cosy dwelling ringing with laughter of children.

Please join me in elimination of any condition which could lead to loss of life and property and turn a joyous holiday into a heartache!

To all—I wish a Merry Christmas and a joyous New Year to all citizens of the State of Delaware and implore each to follow the safety hints which follows: Americans during December will buy and decorate around 45 million natural Christmas trees cut from the nation's tree farms and forest.

For these trees Americans will spend over $50 million.

To decorate them families will buy around 200 million new ornaments.

A tree contains natural resins which ignite easily and burn readily.

If proper precautions are taken, however, fire may be avoided. Particular attention should be given to trees in churches and schools.

Trees in addition, should not be set up close to stairways because in case of fire, the stairway as an exit from upper floors would be blocked.

With regard to the care of Christmas trees in the home, the fire marshal has these suggestions:

When you choose your Christmas tree this year, select one which appears freshly cut. Feel the needles to make sure they are firmly attached.

Keep the tree out of doors until just before Christmas. And keep it standing in a pail of water so that it will remain fresh.

When you put the tree up, place it in the coolest part of the room. It should be as far as possible from radiators, heaters and as far away as possible from the fireplace. This will reduce the chances of fire and keep the tree from drying.

Use a tree stand which has a water container in which the trunk can rest. Most trees "drink" water fairly fast, so fill the water container daily.

Christmas tree decorations should be flammable. Use only decorations made of glass metal or fire-resistant material.

Electric trains should be set up away from the tree. A spark from the train could ignite dry pine needles.

Use only electric lights to decorate the tree—never candles. Be sure to check lighting sets before placing them on the tree. Those with frayed wires should be discarded. When you buy a new set look for the UL tag or label of Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc.

When you open presents Christmas morning, put away gift wrappings you intend to keep. Gather up other wrapping and throw them away immediately after presents are opened.

Check the tree for dryness from time to time, if needles near lights have started to turn brown, change the position of the lights.

The lights on Christmas trees should be turned off when everyone is away from home.

When the needles start falling, take the tree down immediately and discard it outdoors.

Even if the tree is still fresh, plan now to dismantle it the day after New Year's.

Make sure your decorative lighting does not overload electrical circuits.

Wiring and electrical equipment used out-of-doors should be designed for the purpose.

If you are using a metal Christmas tree this year use off-the-tree lighting with colored lights to give a softer and more beautiful illumination. Placing strings of Christmas lights upon any metal tree sets up the possibility of electric shock if the cord becomes frayed or the interior of a light socket comes in contact with the tree.

Play it safe and use off-the-tree lighting with any metal tree.

George L. Martin

George L. Martin, aged 71 years, husband of Belle Martin, of RD 1, Harrington, passed away Wednesday morning in the Milford Hospital following a lingering illness.

Mr. Martin was born in Pennsylvania, son of the late

John A. and Elizabeth Martin and was a garage mechanic in Washington, Pa. for several years. He was honest, trained and drove harness horses and had lived in Harrington for fifteen years.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, Clair A. Martin, Baltimore, Md.; three daughters, Mrs. Lois Cope, San Diego, Calif.; Mrs. Helen Bard, Oklahoma City, Okla.; and Mrs. Jean Bryden, Los Angeles, Calif.; eight grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; two brothers, Thomas and Boyd, and three sisters, Mrs. Nannie Westlake, Mrs. Lillian Farabee, and Mrs. Esther Jones, all of Washington, Pa.

Due notice of funeral services will be given by the McKnatt Funeral Home, Harrington.

Mrs. Harry H. Williams

Mrs. Eleanor Grier Williams, 66, died Sunday at her home, 1818 Lovering Ave., Wilmington.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mildred Wagner, of Harrington, and Mrs. Pauline Magargal, of Naamans Road; two sisters, Mrs. Mary Foster of Newark and Mrs. Beulah Sharpe, of Chester; four grandchildren, and one great-grandson. She was a member of West Presbyterian Church.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon in the Gracelawn Memorial Park Chapel, with interment following in the park. The Chandler Funeral Home, Delaware Ave. and Jefferson Street, Wilmington, handled the arrangements.

U. of D. Board of Trustees Meeting

N. Maxson Terry, Dover attorney, has been elected to a six-year term as a member of the University of Delaware's board of trustees.

Terry succeeds the late George M. Fisher, a trustee from 1939 until his death in July of this year.

Re-elected were four incumbent trustees, Walter J. Beadle, Wilmington; R. R. M. Carpenter, Jr., Montchanin; Joseph L. Marshall, Lewes, and Warren C. Newton, Bridgeville. Newton is vice president of the board.

Other board actions at Saturday's semi-annual meeting on the university campus included approval of plans and allocation of funds for the enlarging of Mitchell Hall, principal campus auditorium, and acceptance of plans for a new dormitory complex, Gilbert Hall.

Two minor fee changes also were announced by the trustees. The first provides for an increase from $5 to $10 for the non-refundable fee required with each formal application for admission. The second establishes a non-refundable transcript evaluation fee of $10 for each applicant seeking advanced standing as an undergraduate. Both fees will become effective in the spring semester, 1964-65.

Terry, chairman of the State Highway Commission, is also president of the Delaware State Bar Association.

A graduate of Princeton Preparatory School, he received his bachelor's degree in business administration and his law degree at Washington and Lee University. He was admitted to the Delaware bar in 1929 and in June of this year was admitted to the bar of the U. S. Supreme Court.

Active in civic affairs, Terry has been a director of the Society for the Preservation of Antiquities, a member of the State Board of Education, president of the Friends of Old Dover, a member of the Delaware State Park Commission, and chairman of the 1963 Red Cross Drive in Delaware.

He was vice chairman of the Delaware Aeronautics Commission from 1948-50, and was for many years attorney for the Kent County Levy Court. He also has served as a member of the Commission to Reorganize the State Government, and as a director of the Baltimore Trust Company. He is a member of the Delaware State and Kent County Bar Associations and the Phi Kappa Sigma and Phi Delta Phi fraternities.

Recognizing the need for expansion of facilities available to the department of dramatic arts and speech, the trustees approved a functional plan calling for the addition of two wings to Mitchell Hall.

The wings, containing 6,960 square feet, will provide ten offices, two classrooms, workshop and storage areas for costumes and set construction, and six recording booths for corrective speech practice. The stage will be redesigned and slightly enlarged and the entire building air conditioned. Some changes may also be made in the seating arrangement of the auditorium to improve spectators' sight lines from side balcony seats. The estimated cost of the entire project is $449,000.

With the remodeling and additional space, the activities of the department will be brought together under one roof for the first time, a factor which is expected to improve departmental operations.

Anticipated heavy enrollment increases in 1964 and 1965 have compelled the university to move forward the completion date of Gilbert Hall, the next scheduled dormitory complex on the East campus.

In a recent national survey, Dr. Garland G. Parker, University of Cincinnati registrar, warned the nation to "be ready for a jolt" when the largest freshman classes in history enter the nation's colleges in the next two years. Since Delaware's freshman classes have been running well ahead of average national enrollment increases, Delaware's officers and trustees consider it imperative that the dormitory construction schedule envisioned in the university's long-range planning surveys be followed and, where necessary, stepped up.

The trustees approved plans to modify the design of Gilbert Hall, which is similar to Harrington and Russell dormitories, so that its capacity will be increased from 550 to 651 beds. Other new features include family-size quarters for a full-time residence hall adviser, a larger number of single rooms, and elimination of a long center corridor.

To finance the construction of the new structure, the trustees empowered university officials to apply for a self-liquidating loan of $3,580,000 from the Housing and Home Finance Administration.

In a further effort to meet rising enrollment pressures, the trustees approved three operating policies for 1964-65:

1. Limiting the number of out-of-state students to 230 in an anticipated entering class of 1,550.
2. Restricting the admission of "limited program" students (those not fully qualified academically) to those who successfully complete prescribed summer session courses. Priority on admission of Delaware residents will be given to those fully qualified and, if enrollments exceed facilities and staff, limited program students may be asked to wait until February, 1965 to enter the university.
3. Proceeding with plans and selection of a site for another new dormitory to be opened in September, 1966. Studies also are being made which will provide for the renovation of several small dormitories for temporary use in 1965.

The trustees also received copies of the annual report of President John A. Perkins which covers the 1962-63 academic year.

Society for Crippled Children Seeking Therapists

Do you have a love of people and a desire to help them? Would you like to help an injured child walk and play again or aid a disabled man to resume supporting his family? If you do, the career for you is that of a physical therapist.

Richard R. Leclair, executive director of the Delaware Society for Crippled Children and Adults, stressed the dire need for physical therapists in Delaware at a recent meeting of the Kent County Auxiliary to this Society in the home of Mrs. George Ehinger in Dover. This need is also felt in all the other 49 states. The Delaware Society is trying far and near to locate trained people in physical therapy.

Such a trained worker or therapist would be one of the specialists who carry out the physician's prescriptions for treatments provided through the use of exercises, heat, light, water, electricity and massage. As a qualified physical therapist, you would work with a medical team of physicians, social workers, vocational counselors, nurses, and occupational therapists toward the total rehabilitation of the patient.

At the present time there are approximately 5800 unfilled positions waiting for qualified physical therapists, and the need is expected to increase. Opportunities range from a choice of working situations in hospitals, schools, rehabilitation centers, physicians' offices and home-care programs to supervising, teaching, research and administration. The Delaware Society's Rehabilitation Center in Georgetown under the direction of Wilmer F. Loomis is serving the community as a therapy center. The load is increasing by the week and more therapists must be hired to help with this increase.

If you have an ability to work with people, are patient, and have good physical and mental health, you may be interested in a career in physical therapy. You will find scholarships available. For a list of approved schools, write to the Delaware Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc., 1324 Market Street, Wilmington 1, Delaware.

len, Felton, chairman; John H. Greenly, Felton, vice chairman; Derrickson Biggs, Felton, regular member; Samuel L. Webb, Frederica, 1st alternate, and William Paskey, Jr., Felton, 2nd alternate.

Community 9: Lester C. Larimore, Harrington, chairman; Merritt Camper, Harrington, vice chairman; W. A. Stafford, Harrington, regular member; Francis L. Needles, Harrington, 1st alternate, and Tony Gerardi, Harrington, 2nd alternate.

Community 10: Howard Warner, Milford, chairman; Heyman Roosa, Milford, vice chairman; Ralph Jump Jr., Houston, regular member; Charles West, Milford, 1st alternate, and Marvin Davis, Milford, 2nd alternate.

The ASC Community Committee chairman, vice chairman, and regular member automatically became the delegate, alternate delegate, and second alternate delegate, respectively, to the county convention where the ASC County Committee was elected. The County Convention was held Tues., Nov. 26, at the County Office.

The following were elected:

Russell C. Bowdle, Harrington, chairman; Joseph W. Ennis, Smyrna, vice chairman; Olin Gooden, Felton, regular member; Thomas P. Webb, Milford, 1st alternate, and J. Heyman Roosa, Milford, 2nd alternate.

The ASC County and Community farmer-committees are in charge of local administration of such national farm programs as the Agricultural Conservation Program, the Feed Grain program, the National wool program, acreage allotments and marketing quotas, commodity loans and storage facility loans.

VA Questionnaires Mailed With Pension Checks

The Veterans Administration in Delaware mailed some 3500 Income Questionnaires with the November 30th pension checks.

Leon Fields, Manager of the VA Regional Office, Wilmington, points out the annual income questionnaires go to veterans and dependents of deceased veterans on the VA's nonservice-connected pension rolls, and to parents of deceased veterans who are receiving dependency and indemnity compensation.

The questionnaires are punched, cards which must be filled out with the required information and returned to the VA before the usual deadline—January 31—or payments will be suspended. If, after suspension no questionnaire is submitted, Mr. Fields said, the pensioner will be required to pay back all payments received in 1963.

These forms are machine punched. The VA requests these cards be handled with care so they can be processed through tabulating machines when they are returned. They must not be folded, trimmed or mutilated in any manner.

They should be returned promptly to the address in the upper right hand corner. This address should be copied exactly as it appears on the form.

This early distribution permits those with fixed incomes to return the cards at once, while those with earnings or changing incomes may still wait until they get their W-2 forms or other information they need to know in order to answer the questions.

Veterans and dependents receiving pension under the law in effect prior to July 1, 1960, are required to report only their annual income. Persons on the rolls under the pension law that went into effect July 1, 1960, must also fill in a net worth item as required by law.

Mr. Fields said laws governing nonservice-connected pension payments require that the VA receive this income information every year. Payment of pension depends on the individual's need as determined by the amount of income received annually from sources other than pension.

Postage for Christmas Cards Same Today as 1847

"People sending Christmas cards today at the 5c first class rate pay the same to mail Christmas greetings as Americans did well over a century ago," Postmaster Howard W. Dill noted this week.

"Research shows that in 1847 the Post Office Department issued its first stamps, including a nickel stamp for the basic prepaid letter rate," Postmaster Dill said.

"And, of course, in those days a nickel could buy a meal where it usually can't even buy a cup of coffee today," Mr. Dill pointed out.

"Since 1932," the postal executive observed, "while living costs for the American family have skyrocketed considerably more than 100 per cent - the cost of mailing a first-class letter has only increased by two cents or two-thirds."

The Postmaster's comments were made in connection with a recommendation to Harrington residents to use the first-class 5c Christmas stamp on their Christmas cards. The stamp portrays the National Christmas Tree on the "Eastern Ellipse" in the Nation's Capital. The stamp is available at the local post office.

The 5c rate permits forwarding or return of the letter where necessary, allows the use of a handwritten message on the card—adding a personal touch—and also provides speedier handling and faster delivery, particularly for cards going out-of-town.

"In recent years, people have been buying better and more expensive greeting cards—and it seems a shame, when only 4c third class postage is paid and the addressee has moved that we normally can not even forward the card," Mr. Dill commented. "It is poor economy to try to have a few pennies and lose several dollars worth of cards in the bargain."

"Reports from the greeting card industry indicate it is not uncommon for an average family to send more than 100 cards during the holiday season.

"To avoid trouble and waiting in line, I suggest that two full sheets of the Christmas stamp - 100 to the sheet - be picked up when at the post office, and then there is no last-minute panic cards to send to those who have been overlooked or added to the list."

Christmas stamps, of course, are useable for postage at any time, Mr. Dill emphasized.

A Reminder to the Kiddies:

All letters addressed to Santa Claus, North Pole with the Zip Code No. 99701 used in the address and the Zip Code No. 19552, which is the number for the Harrington Post Office in your return address, will be answered by Santa Claus and his helper, Mr. Zita.

Mrs. Thomas Twigg

Mrs. Sue Twigg, 73, widow of Thomas Twigg, died Saturday night in the Country Rest Home, Greenwood, after a short illness.

She had served as a steward of Greenwood Methodist Church and was a member of its Woman's Society of Christian Service.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Eva Earp, Wilmington.

Services were held at the Fleischer Funeral Home, Greenwood, Tuesday afternoon.

Samuel Ellwanger

Samuel Ellwanger, 90, retired farmer, died in an ambulance Saturday en route to Easton Memorial Hospital.

He was being taken to the hospital after suffering a heart attack at his home.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Bessie Anthony Ellwanger; a daughter, Mrs. Eloise Smith, Denton; two sons, Leslie, Georgetown, and Harold, Harrington; five grandchildren; two great-grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. Matilda Thornton, of Arizona.

Services were held Wednesday afternoon at the Moore Funeral Home, Denton.

KEITH S. BURGESS — Sports Editor

H.H.S. Starts Basketball Practice

Coach Bill Smith has eighteen hopefuls scrapping for berths on his Harrington High School basketball varsity. Bill Adams, Wayne Collison and Barry Fry are returning regulars from the 1962-63 team. Leading candidates for the other two starting positions are Randy Knox, Richard Black, Joe Torres and Harry Bitler.

Last year's five showed improvement and Coach Smith hopes to continue the trend. With the entry of the Dover Air Force Base High School into the Henlopen Conference, the Lions will be unable to schedule any non-league foes. Harrington will play home and away contests with Dover Air, Felton, Greenwood, Bridgeville and Delmar, other western division rivals and single tilts with the eastern division group of Milton, Millsboro, John M. Clayton, Selbyville, Lord Baltimore, and Rehoboth.

Other Lion aspirants are Joe Taylor, Frank Welch, Larry Garvey, Ron Hughes, Henry Minner, Glenn Smith, John Greenhaugh, Marshall Hatfield, Sam Knox, Del Manges and Ellis Myer.

Three Lions on All-Henlopen Second Team

Gayle Fry, Joe Taylor and Barry Fry were picked on the Henlopen Conference second team in a meeting of league coaches on Tuesday. Gayle Fry is a tackle, Taylor an end and Barry Fry is a quarterback.

Bill Adams, Rusty Jack and Ron Hughes made the honorable mention list. Adams missed the second team by the narrow margin of one vote.

This is by far the largest group of Lion football players ever to be honored by the Henlopen Conference.

Bill Adams led the team in scoring in league play. Barry Fry was one point behind. Rusty Jack will be expected to carry much of the offensive load next year since Adams and Fry are seniors.

Banquet to Honor 4-H Club Members

Outstanding New Castle County 4-H club members will be honored tonight (Thursday) at the annual county 4-H achievement banquet. In addition, two business firms will receive plaques in recognition of their interest and support of 4-H activities.

The banquet will be held at Middletown High School, and some 250 4-H club members and leaders are expected to attend, according to Dean C. Belt, New Castle County 4-H club agent.

The business awards, "in recognition for meritorious service to 4-H," will be presented to Dan-neman Fabrics, Inc., of Newark and to White Brothers Supply, of Middletown.

In addition, 4-H club leaders will receive pins in recognition of their service.

Dan Koble, state director of vocational agriculture instruction, will be guest speaker. Awards will be presented by Belt and by James O. Baker, state 4-H leader.

Rogers, Carson Win Trophies In Philly Race

For the fourth straight year Harrington High cross-country runners did well in a 2.5 mile race in Philadelphia's Fairmount Park.

Ned Rogers and Wayne Carson were awarded trophies for finishing seventh and eighth, respectively. Rogers, a junior, was eleventh as a sophomore and 40th as a freshman. Carson was 34th in 1962.

The race starts at Vesper Boat Club. The runners cross the Schuylkill River on a bridge near the Philadelphia Zoo, run about a mile on the other side of the river, cross back over near the Philadelphia Art Museum and finish where they started.

Don Morgan, of Clearview Regional High, New Jersey, was the winner. A stiff wind and construction work near the finish line kept the runners from posting good clockings. Rogers was timed in 13.38 compared to a 13.13 last fall.

Ellis Myer and Bob Matthews, H.H.S. sophomores, made excellent showing as they captured eleventh and twelfth places in their first Philadelphia appearance.

Roger Betts was close behind in fourteenth place just four seconds ahead of Roger Redden.

Eighth grader Bob Dean surprised by beating varsity runners from the Philadelphia area. Dean, Matthews and Myer made a very fine beginning in cross-country this fall. When this trio reports in 1964 with the added strength and maturity that a year will bring, they will be in a position to lower their times greatly and as a result move even closer to the leaders in next autumn's meets.

Carvel Gets Charter Bills

The House sent to the governor Tuesday bills changing the charters of Lewes, Camden and Millsboro, but the Senate held action on a Rehoboth Beach charter amendment.

The House also approved legislation permitting Dover to use voting machines in municipal elections this January. It must be passed by the Senate. Meanwhile, Gov. Elbert N. Carvel signed a bill allowing residents of newly annexed areas of Dover to run for office in city elections in January.

The Lewes (SB 259) would permit the city to charge fines for traffic violations on state roads within the city limits. Minority Leader William T. Best, R-Rehoboth Beach, said there had been some question about the matter and the bill was designed to "bring the city's motor vehicle code into accordance with state law."

It passed without opposition as did the other three bills pertaining to municipalities.

The bill for Camden (SB 217) would permit the town to extend its boundaries by annexing an 8.5-acre tract of land if later approved by a referendum.

The Millsboro bill (SB 215) would permit the town to create the post of alderman, abolish that of constable and establish a police force. The alderman and police would be named by the town commissioners.

One of the reasons for action on so many charter changes is that they may not be considered during the even-year 30-day session of the General Assembly which will begin in February. The 90-day session of the assembly automatically terminates with the end of the calendar year. Amendments to the Rehoboth charter, withdrawn when it was found the enacting clause was improperly drawn, were explained by Paul Reed, city solicitor. Reed said the principal change is to allow the city to annex portions south of it (such as Dewey Beach), if approved by referendum, without coming again before the General Assembly.

Reed said it had been decided after discussion to continue to have six commissioners, of whom three would be non-residents. Other bills signed by the governor:

HB 429, allowing residents of areas annexed within six months of the election to vote in Dover's election.

SB 230, allowing two non-Amish children to transfer from the Amish Rose Valley School near Dover.

HB 390, directing the Kent County receiver of taxes and county treasurer to reimburse Mary D. Derickson McCurdy $15 for county and school taxes paid in error.

Lion Grapplers In Milford Meet Saturday

Harrington High School's Wrestling Lions are entered in the Milford Invitational Wrestling Tournament this Saturday. Many of lower Delaware's sciolastic teams will compete. By using three wrestling mats simultaneously, more than 100 wrestling matches will be held in the mat extravaganza that lasts all day and well into the evening.

Louis Starkey of Harrington, is the defending champion in the 165 pound class. George Bonniwell is rated at or near the top in the 120 pound division. Both placed in last year's state meet and could do even better this winter.

Frank Glazier is the new head coach. Several of last year's varsity wrestlers have not reported and as a consequence prospects for a good season are not bright at present. The first dual meet is not until sometime in January. If a much larger turnout of candidates is not secured, the locals will be unable to approach last year's good season and will have to take solace in the expected triumphs of Starkey, Bonniwell and two or three others.

Jim Cain, Dave Greenly, Gayle Fry and Ron Melvin are other capable matmen with experience. Cain will compete at 114 or 120. Greenly is the 95 pounder. Fry has his sights set on losing enough weight to take over the 154 pound spot. Last season he started in the 180 pound class but ended up the year with an important victory in the 165 pound division.

Melvin is the unlimited representative. With two years of experience he is shooting for a fine record in this, his senior year.

The Lions at present have no representatives in the 180 and 103 pound classes, but hope to have this situation rectified by the start of the dual meet season.

Other candidates are Steve Welch, Phillip Redden, Alex Argo, Mike Staylor, Dennis Rogers, Jack Hartzell, Bill Knox, and Charles Tribbitt.

2 Local Men Pass Officialing Exams

Two men from this town have passed the International Association of Approved Basketball Official Exams for the year '63-'64. They are Jay Brumbly and James Neeman of Harrington. They were two of the seven who passed the exams. Thirty-two men took the test.

Girl Outshines Men In Ag School

If you think agriculture is just for men, you may get an argument from Miss Theodora Wang, a junior in the University of Delaware's School of Agriculture.

Not only has Miss Wang invaded a predominantly male population, but she has achieved a distinguished record of merit in her chosen field. Now in her third year of studies, Miss Wang is a Dean's List student, and the top student majoring in horticulture, according to Dr. Charles W. Dunham, her advisor and a professor of horticulture.

Teddy, as she is known to her friends, is not a bookish female. Her out-of-class activities include membership in Beta Beta Beta, the national biological honorary society, dormitory activities and work on the business staff of the University of Delaware yearbook, "The Blue Hen."

As one of six female students in a School of Agriculture enrollment of 260, Teddy doesn't mind being out-numbered by the men, and she notes that the men don't seem to mind the girls, either, except to complain that there are not enough of them.

Plants have always been of special interest to Teddy, who relates that a high school biology course added to her desire to continue learning about what plants are and how they function.

Choosing to attend a state university near her home in Tenafly, New Jersey, Teddy could have gone to Penn State or Rutgers. She chose the University of Delaware because of its smaller size and the promise of better contacts with professors. "I didn't want to get lost in the crowd, or become a number attached to a seat," she says. With her excellent academic record, she surely won't get lost in any crowd, even after her school days are completed. She plans to attend graduate school, and hopes to do research on plants for the U. S. government.

From China to South America to the United States, the Wang family traveled with Mr. Theodore Wang as his job as a Certified Public Accountant called him to transfer from one country to another. The reason the Wangs moved from South America to New Jersey, U.S.A., was Mr. Wang's discovery that South American females were not encouraged to attend college, and he wanted his four daughters to have this experience. Both he and Mrs. Wang were CPAs in their native China.

Now a vice-president for a New York City shipping firm, Mr. Wang can look proudly on the accomplishments of his offspring. Betty, the oldest at 24, is working on her doctorate at the University of Maryland. Nina, 22, is a senior psychology major at Drew University in Madison, N. J. And not to be left out, high school senior Patsy, 16, plans to begin pre-medical studies next fall.

With her record of success to date, 19-year-old Teddy can certainly look forward to an equally successful future.

U. of D. Guernseys Are Classified

Two guernsey cows from the University of Delaware's purebred Guernsey herd in Newark have been classified in the top one per cent of all the cows of that breed. Nineteen others were classified "very good," which means they are among the top 16 per cent of the breed.

The classification program was conducted by a representative of the American Guernsey Cattle Club at an open house at the University farm last week. The open house was held to give University students and dairy breeders an opportunity to see the University's recently consolidated Guernsey herd and watch them being classified.

Through provisions of the will of the late Harold Shutt, of Chadds Ford, Pa., the University received the nationally known Spar Hill Guernsey herd a few weeks ago. Since space was limited at the University farm it became necessary to sell some of the animals from this herd and some from the University's existing herd. The two reduced herds were then consolidated into one working unit.

Dr. George Haelelin, who manages the herd, feels the University now has one of the outstanding Guernsey herds in the country. He says the merging of the two herds combines the excellent type of the Shutt herd with the high production potential of the University herd.

Dr. Morris Cover, director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University, explains the importance of this outstanding herd this way: "To properly instruct our students it is necessary for our educators to do more than just transfer knowledge from a set of notes. They must also demonstrate an understanding by operating the various pieces of technical apparatus involved in a particular field. The presence of a first class dairy herd at this experiment station is of prime importance to our teaching program."

"Cows of less quality would not be acceptable any more than a text book of ancient vintage or a deteriorated piece of equipment in the laboratory."

Dr. Cover feels that in order to lend support and strength to the School of Agriculture's efforts to keep agri-business informed through the extension staff, it is necessary to have the best animals, keep them according to the latest proved methods, and feed them in the most efficient and nutritious way to produce the highest quality product at the least cost.

Dr. Cover says none of this could be accomplished without the continuous inquiry of research into the whys, hows, and when. "To keep our teachers and extension workers well informed, it is necessary to have researchers working with the best mechanical and biological equipment available.

"Agriculture is most fortunate because agricultural scientists have kept well ahead with research results. These findings have been applied in the field through extension workers and to agriculture students in University class rooms. The result has been trained scientists, farmers and business men teaming up to make us the best fed people in the world, and to assure us there will be enough food for the future."

Lawrence Colebank, of the American Guernsey Cattle Club, who classified the cattle, likened the process to a beauty contest. He said only one per cent of the Guernsey cattle across the country classify excellent; "these are the Elizabeth Taylors of the bovine world."

Colebank said that about half of the Guernsey breed falls into the "desirable and good plus" category. "These are the work horses of the breed. They can't all be glamour girls." He went through the classification process while a group of college students and dairymen watched. He examined each cow, pointing out good and bad points and then indicating a classification.

PAROLES

toying with a minor.

Five prisoners won parole on one-year sentences for non-support: Nathan L. Bailey, 32, Laurel; Curtis A. Caesar, 33, Bridgeville; James Mann, 33, Georgetown; Leon Mayo, 32, Milford; and William H. Scott, 37, Dover.

The Board refused parole for Franklin Biddle, 36, Newark, one year for grand larceny.

Richard C. Bowden, 38, Milford, 390 days for five motor vehicle violations.

Raymond Bunting, 21, Milford, one year for probation violation on a drunken driving count.

Shelly Pauls, 39, Seaford, three years for toying with a minor.

Louis J. Strush, Salisbury, Md., four years for four charges of forgery.

Charles West, 19, Laurel, 18 months for feloniously and carnally abusing a minor.

Buckson Appeals To House To Pass Bills

Atty. Gen. David P. Buckson Tuesday appealed to the House to pass bills to tighten Delaware laws on consumer protection and to increase personnel and salaries in his own office.

He addressed the representatives for 10 minutes on the merits of four bills introduced in the Senate last week and urged them to pass the measures "when they come over from the Senate."

One bill would give Buckson an assistant attorney general to handle administrative details, increase retroactively the salaries of two tax deputies overlooked when other deputies were given raises July 1 and increase the salaries of state detectives in Kent and Sussex Counties.

Buckson said Wednesday morning the detectives, making $3,000 annually, "had to have some outside income but were in the office every working day."

He said the detectives' duties frequently require them to be out-of-state for lengthy periods on extradition work and he said they also are his office's only source for jury investigations.

He said the consumer protection law, which would give enforcement officials power to prosecute fraud and recover by law suit money falsely or deviously obtained from unsuspecting customers, was drafted after 10 months of conferences with other attorneys general and the Federal Trade Commission in Washington.

An administrator is needed, he said, to free the attorney general and his chief deputy to do more legal work.

The attorney general spoke for about five minutes in the Senate later in the afternoon and asked support for the bills.

Buckson emphasized that he has no one in mind for the administrative assistant job which under the bill would pay up to $15,000, but that the person would administer the consumer protection law in addition to helping the attorney general with administrative work.

After debating for an hour and a half Tuesday, a bill to place a 2 per cent assessment on liability insurance premiums, the House defeated it 20 to 9.

The measure (HB 195) would have placed a special tax on the gross premiums of casualty insurance companies and provide that the state treasurer turn over the money to police pension funds in the state, county and municipalities where such funds are established.

The sponsor of the bill, Rep. Paul E. Shockley, D-Wilmington, argued that such an assessment is needed because some of the funds are running a deficit.

Both he and Sidney Balick, Senate attorney who appeared to explain the bill as a court-
