

"Call A Cab" Is For New Year's

Drinking and celebrating do mix. Drinking and driving don't. For the celebrating, the Delaware Alcoholic Beverage Commission has extended drinking hours by two hours for New Year's Eve.

For the driving, Col. Eugene B. Ellis, superintendent of the Delaware State Police, has a suggestion: "Call a cab."

As on any other day, sales of liquor must end at midnight, but on New Year's Eve, Delawareans will be allowed to stock up and continue drinking until 2 a. m., Jan. 1.

That's just fine says Colonel Ellis, if the celebrators don't drive while they are at it. And that applies all during the holidays, not just on New Year's Eve, he says.

"The best present you can give your family is your continued presence," Col. Ellis pointed out.

"It doesn't make much difference whether they drink until midnight or until two in the morning," he said, "as long as they don't try to drive."

Col. Ellis said he heard of one group that attended a dance on New Year's Eve last year and chartered a bus to take them and deliver them safely home.

The beverage control commission said sales must end at midnight (as usual), liquor cabinets must be locked by 12:30 a. m., usually it is at midnight and the hour for consumption will be at 2 a. m. (usually also midnight).

Col. Ellis expressed disappointment at the fatal accident picture so far in December, pointing out eleven persons lost their lives in four crashes in the first half of the month. Children from two separate families from two separate families were left without parents as a result, he said.

"Operation Roadcheck," the annual State Police drive to save lives during the Christmas season, will be in full swing, Col. Ellis said.

"Don't drink and then drive, and don't ride with a driver who has been drinking," Col. Ellis said. "If you do, you may be caught, or killed," he added.

Nov. Rains Hike Grain Prospects

Last subsoil moisture was replaced and prospects brightened for winter grains as the result of near-record rainfall in November.

The bulletin of Maryland-Delaware Crop Reporting Service notes that most of the precipitation came early and late in the month, leaving extended periods of dry weather favorable for the harvesting of late crops and for some late planting of winter grains.

The harvest of corn and soybeans was in the clean-up stage by Dec. 1 over most of the two-state area.

Maryland's dairy herds produced 122 million pounds of milk last month—2 per cent above last year and equal to the record monthly high established in November of 1957. Production per cow in Maryland and Delaware crop reporters' herds average 21.1 and 22.0 pounds respectively, on Dec. 1.

Delaware's poultry flocks produced 9.9 million eggs during November, compared with 9.8 million in the same month last year. For the first 11 months of the year, production totaled 113 million eggs, as compared with 118 million for the same period last year.

Maryland's poultry flocks produced 18 million eggs last month, three million less than for November of 1962. Production for the 11-month period was 234 million eggs, six per cent down from the 249 million figure for the same period the year before.

2 Delawareans Space Graduates

Two Delawareans, including one of the new U. S. astronauts, were graduated from the Air Force's Aerospace Research Pilot School at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., Friday. They are Capt. Theodore C. Freeman, 33, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Freeman, Lewes, selected for duty at the Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, Tex., and Capt. James S. McIntyre, 516 N. Brighton Road, North Hills. He will work on testing of weapons systems at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio.

Advice Given Drinkers

Leander H. Thomas and Corrine Starkey Thomas, of Hobbs, Md., are celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary on Dec. 30. There will be a reception for them at the Community House in Hobbs on Monday evening, Dec. 30 from 6 to 9 p.m. Arrangements for the reception are being made by the ladies of Ames Methodist Church of Hobbs and by Mr. and Mrs. Leander H. Thomas Jr., of Easton. A joyful affair is planned and the many friends of Leander and Corrine are invited to call and help make this anniversary their most joyous. (No presents accepted).

Married at the Methodist Church at Farmington, on Dec. 30, 1903, by the Rev. D. J. Givan, they lived near Hickman, until April 15, 1918, at which time they bought the country store at Hobbs and moved there at that time. They retired from the store business in January of 1959. During those years Mr. Thomas was also the Postmaster at Hobbs.

There is one son, Leander, Jr., of Easton, Md., and two grandchildren, Leander III, of Easton, and Captain Bernard H. Thomas, U. S. Marine Air Corps, Kingsville, Tex., and three great-grandchildren, Holly, Michael and Blair, all of Kingsville, Tex.

Crash Pins Passenger

A 47-year-old Laurel woman was pinned under a car west of Georgetown for about 15 minutes after it went out of control during the height of the snow storm.

The woman, Mrs. Georgia Wright, a passenger in the car, was discovered by a state trooper. Police said when they arrived at the scene, shortly after noon, they thought there was only one person in the car.

While walking around the car, which had come to rest in a ditch beside Rt. 28, west of Georgetown, police heard the moaning of Mrs. Wright. The car was not moved until a wrecker appeared on the scene about 15 minutes later.

The passenger, and the driver of the car, Mrs. Shirley M. Funds, 36, Georgetown, were taken to Milford Memorial Hospital and are listed in satisfactory condition. Mrs. Wright suffered a broken leg and multiple cuts of the leg and Mrs. Funds cuts of the right temple.

Police said Mrs. Funds was driving east on Rt. 28 during the heavy snow storm when it skidded on the snow-covered road and hit a guard rail on the south shoulder. The car then slid across the road for about 180 feet and hit the north embankment and came to rest in the deep gutter beside the road.

Doctor Says Whip Sentence Bad For Cannon

Dr. M. A. Taramianz, director of Delaware mental hygiene clinics, testified Friday in Wilmington hearing that whiplashes would be injurious to the mental health of Franklin Cannon, 20, of Dover.

The State Supreme Court ordered a hearing last summer to determine the effect of whiplashing on Cannon when his case was appealed to the state high tribunal. They also returned the case to Kent County Superior Court.

Cannon had a suspended sentence of three year's imprisonment and 20 lashes invoked against him last April by Judge Stewart Lynch for breaking probation.

He was given the suspended sentence by Judge Lynch when he pleaded guilty to five charges of breaking and entering in November, 1962, and was charged with probation violation when he pleaded guilty to burglarly, in April.

Harold Schmittinger, defense counsel, said Monday a final decision on Cannon's case may be made in two weeks.

Denmin - Coffin, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Denmin, of Harrington, R.D. 1, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Susan Gail Denmin, to John R. Coffin, Jr., who is now in the U. S. Navy and stationed at Charleston, S. C. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Coffin, Sr., of Taylor Drive, Dover.

State Bible Law Backed by 5,000

Atty. Gen. David P. Buckson said Monday he has received petitions bearing more than 5,000 signatures in favor of upholding Delaware's compulsory Bible reading law.

Buckson will present the state's case in U. S. District Court Jan. 27 in opposition to a suit challenging the constitutionality of the statute requiring Bible reading and prayer recitations in public schools. He said Monday one petition signed by more than 1,300 New Castle County parents and teachers was handed to him in court last month.

A petition signed by more than 500 persons in the Townsend and Odessa areas came in shortly after the suit was filed last August. Buckson, who intends to develop the state's defense primarily through the testimony of witnesses, was asked what he has been doing about the petitions.

"About all we can do under the circumstances," the attorney general said, "is to thank the signers very much."

Meanwhile Irving Morris, attorney for the plaintiffs, Mr. and Mrs. Garry DeYoung of Middletown and Mr. and Mrs. W. Harry Johns Jr., of Dover, said he has withdrawn part of the complaint which opposes expenditure of state funds for purchasing Bibles to be used in school programs.

Morris explained he took the action because he couldn't prove the taxes his clients pay are anything more than minimal in comparison with total state tax revenue.

Bipartisan Windup Of Assembly Cited

Republican legislative leaders Monday attributed the legislature's December accomplishments to bipartisan cooperation after a six-month "appalling lack of majority leadership."

Senate Minority Leader Reynolds du Pont, R-Greenville, and House Minority Leader William T. Best, R-Rehoboth Beach, in a joint statement, urged that the cooperation of the last few weeks continue into 1964.

The taxpayers' money and valuable time were wasted, the GOP leaders said, "while the leaderless majority stumbled around Dover in a state of confusion aggravated by petty political considerations."

"After the governor rejected our offer of last December to work with the majority in a spirit of bipartisan cooperation," DuPont and Best said, "the legislature became embroiled in a lot of senseless wrangling during which the governor and his legislative leaders neither led nor followed."

"It was only after the highway bond bill deadlock reached the crucial point that the majority leaders realized that they needed the Republican members in order to accomplish something worthwhile."

DuPont and Best cited the highway bond bill passage, "partial" election reform, public accommodations, school construction, creation of a public defender and authorization of the White Clay creek dam as examples of the last-minute cooperation.

"Unfortunately," they continued, "a number of important matters became victims of the confused chaos which was permitted to exist in Dover."

"Among the vital legislation which the majority never allowed to come to a final vote were the key prison reform bills, the package of magistrate reform measures, the constitutional convention bill, merit system legislation and bills to help rehabilitate and protect our beaches."

"Lite-a-Bike" Campaign Being Conducted by VFW

V. F. W. State Commander Charles E. Mulholland this week reminded parents that Delaware members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are continuing the organization's "Lite - a - Bike" campaign and will welcome the opportunity to provide reflective safety tape to those that receive new bicycles for Christmas.

Dover Maps Plans to Get Chicken Festival

Dover City Council is interested in playing host to the 1965 Delaware Chicken Festival.

Council Monday night approved Mayor Crawford J. Carroll's suggestion that a letter be sent to the Del-Mar-Va Poultry Association expressing Dover's interest in hosting the festival. The 1964 festival will take place June 18, 19 and 20 in Easton, Md.

A letter from the association said that potential sites for the 1965 festival were being considered, and Dover had been selected as one of the possible host cities.

Several hearings concerning requests for zoning changes were held by the Dover Council Monday night. One request was denied. B & B Motors was refused permission to move a building to its property in the Edgeland section on the recommendation of Building Inspector Jack T. Roe.

Approval was given for a change from residential to commercial zoning for the Hotel Richardson plot, owned by the Bank of Delaware. Attorney N. Maxson Terry said the bank has no plans for the site. Council also approved a change to permit development of a bus center east of Dover. Mr. and Mrs. William F. Davis, residents protested.

NASA Looking For Site To Build Center

Congressman Harris B. McDowell, Jr. (D-Del.) urged all interested business concerns and professional organizations in Delaware to submit pertinent information to Mr. Richard L. Callaghan, Assistant Administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Washington, D.C., in connection with the proposed establishment of a $50 million dollar NASA electronics research center.

Congressman McDowell said that under Public Law 88-113, a five-man Area Survey Committee was established as a fact-finding group to gather information relative to the selection of a general locale of the proposed center rather than to specific sites. The Committee, McDowell reported, is now completing its work and will by early 1964 report to Mr. James E. Webb, NASA Administrator as to its findings.

Congressman McDowell said that the Survey Committee has been meeting in Washington, D. C., since October, 1963 compiling and reviewing information on all sections of the country, including the State of Delaware, which it felt would be pertinent and useful to the NASA Administrator in selecting the most suitable area. Some of the factors receiving careful analysis include the graduate technical character of nearby universities and colleges; concentration and quality of electronics industrial research laboratories, and the concentration of scientists and engineers in the work force. The Survey Committee, McDowell said, has not visited any of the potential areas but rather has studied the characteristics and resources of the general areas under consideration.

Congressman McDowell said: "I feel that the State of Delaware would be an excellent locale for the establishment of a substantial electronics research support center."

"There is no question but that local initiative in Delaware, which seeks not only defense business, but domestic and foreign markets as well, must direct itself vigorously to the exacting needs of the so-called space age.

"To this end, a concentrated drive must be made now by Delawareans in government, in business, in education, and in industry. Delaware is situated on the main stream of the great research and development effort of our national government and private enterprise which stretches from Boston, Mass., to Cape Kennedy, Florida.

"I feel that the resources and potentialities of the State of Delaware as a fitting locale for the NASA Electronics Research Center must be brought fully to the attention of NASA's Survey Committee."

H. H. S. Alumni To Meet

The Harrington School Alumni Association will hold a meeting Jan. 7, at 7:30 p. m., in the school cafeteria.

All committee chairmen and members of the committees are urged to attend. The executive committee will meet also.

Notice To Correspondents

Please have all correspondence in this office by Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 31. This is necessary due to the New Year holiday.

Governor Signs Bill For Out-of-State Study

A bill providing scholarships for Delaware students who wish to pursue studies not offered in Delaware was signed into law Monday by Gov. Elbert N. Carvel.

The administration-backed bill sets up the scholarship program in such fields as dentistry and law.

It provides $25,000 for the remainder of this fiscal year to allow some students to participate during the spring semester.

Carvel also signed a joint resolution requesting the states along the road between Boston and Washington to rename the portions of highway in their states for John F. Kennedy.

Another measure signed Monday allows Wilmington to tax up to 80 cents per $100 of assessed valuation for school operations. The old limit was 70 cents.

Carvel also signed Senate Bill 249, giving the New Castle County Levy Court authority to issue bonds for libraries in Mill Creek or New Castle Hundreds or both.

Other bills signed Monday include: HB 289, making changes in the law dealing with free public libraries in the state.

HB 344, giving the New Castle County Levy Court more flexibility in determining when to pay its employees.

HB 437 and 438, allowing the recorder of deeds and register of wills in New Castle County to use a facsimile signature.

HB 450 making changes in Wilmington's bidding laws.

Ag School Enrollment Grows

There is a revolution going on in American agriculture, and it is having its effect on the School of Agriculture at the University of Delaware.

More than one-half of the 264 agriculture students at the University come from urban or suburban areas. A surprising 40 per cent of the 1963 graduating class are continuing their formal education by working toward master's degrees in seven universities. Sixteen members of last year's graduating class are employed by firms in industries manufacturing and selling equipment and supplies to farmers or by firms which are processing and marketing agricultural crops.

Dr. William E. McDaniel, director of resident instruction in the School of Agriculture, says the emphasis in formal instruction in the School of Agriculture has shifted to basic scientific and academic subjects. "This change in emphasis has resulted in an increasing number of non-farm boys and girls selecting the School of Agriculture for their academic pursuits."

McDaniel says the shift has been from vocational subjects to the study of agriculture as an industry and a science. "This has meant emphasis on courses in the humanities, economics, and the social and biological sciences. These courses better prepare our graduates for jobs in the agricultural business complex which now employs 30 to 40 per cent of the nation's working force."

Polio Immunization Clinic Jan. 19

Sun., Jan. 19, the statewide polio immunization program will offer Type II Sabin Oral Vaccine.

These are some of the questions most frequently asked regarding the polio vaccine program.

1.—Q. I have a bad cold. Shall I take the Sabin vaccine? A. If it is an intestinal problem or it is accompanied by a fever, probably not. You might ask your doctor. Otherwise, yes.

2.—Q. I had three doses of Sabin oral vaccine last spring. Do I need a booster now? A.—No. Sabin vaccine is believed to give lifelong immunity to polio.

3. I do not know whether I have had Type II vaccine before. What should I do? A. Take it this Sunday if there is any question about whether you have had it or not. You will suffer no ill effects from having had it before.

4.—Q. Will I have any reaction to the vaccine? A. It is extremely unlikely, and even then, would not be serious.

5.—Q. How can I find the location of the Sabin vaccine clinic nearest my home? A. The list of clinics will be given in your local newspaper.

Polio may be caused by any one of three types of virus which can enter the alimentary tract through the mouth and pass on into the intestines to multiply.

When the virus enters the bloodstream and reaches the cells of the central nervous system in the spinal cord and brain, then, for the first time, the characteristic symptoms appear; headaches, stiff neck and painful muscles.

Salk vaccine is injected into the bloodstream and protects the individual by breaking the chain reaction by preventing the virus from reaching the central nervous system. However, it does not effect the virus which remains in the alimentary canal, so an infected person can still be a carrier and may infect others.

Sabin oral vaccine promises to practically eliminate polio, since it kills the virus in the alimentary canal before it reaches the bloodstream and so, prevents an individual both from getting polio and from giving it to others.

In order to achieve this goal of completely wiping out polio, it is necessary for all of us to become immunized.

So, don't neglect to take your Type II Sabin oral vaccine on Sun., Jan. 19.

L.O.O.M. Appeal For Clothing

The Harrington Lodge Loyal Order of Moose wishes to express their thanks to the many families who have donated used clothing and shoes during the past two years for our clothing bank.

Civic affairs chairman Earl Lee Yoder announced that this clothing has been given to families along the coast who lost everything during the disastrous storm of March 1962. Also to families who lost everything due to fires and to needy families.

Our clothing supply for children, from babies up to seventeen years of age is very low. We would appreciate any donation of used clothing or shoes which you do not intend to use anymore. Many children are warm these cold winter months with the clothes which have been donated in the past.

MOTHER, CHILD HURT IN CRASH; REPORTED IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Shop Fund Ok'd For Greenwood

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel has reached agreement with the board of trustees of the Greenwood 91 School District over money for an agricultural shop.

Monday the governor signed a bill (SB 245) making a special appropriation of $6,500 to the district for the shop, but with an understanding that the district will receive no money for two years from House Bill 111, which provides funds for vocational education.

Carvel vetoed an identical bill for the district (HB 334) and signed the second only with this understanding, his office reported Monday.

The first bill was introduced by Rep. John H. Annett, R-Staytonville, but the measure signed by the governor had a Democratic sponsor, Sen. Walter J. Hoey, of Milford.

When Carvel vetoed Annett's bill, a spokesman for the governor said it conflicts with the unit system used to allocate funds to school districts.

He also signed two other bills affecting the towns of Camden and Lewes.

SB 217 with HA 1 increases the town limits of Camden, providing the voters agree in a referendum. The land which would be annexed is in North Murderkill Hundred and lies on the northerly side of the street leading easterly from the railroad in the town of Wyoming to North Main Street in Camden. It includes 22 plots of land.

SB 271 allows the town of Lewes to sell water and sewerage facilities to properties which are located within one mile of the corporate limits of the community.

Bids Wanted For Contracts on D. R. and B. A.

Invitations to bid on two contracts for work on the proposed Cape May, N. J. to Lewes, ferry service have been mailed by the Delaware River and Bay Authority.

William J. Miller Jr., who will become director of the authority on Jan. 1, said the bids are returnable Jan. 13 when they will be opened at the administration building at the Delaware Memorial Bridge Plaza. He said interested bidders may obtain copies of plans and specifications at the administration building here now.

Miller said the contracts call for construction of ferry slips and two turning dolphins at the westerly entrance of Cape May Canal, along the northerly side of the Canal, to be used as the New Jersey terminus.

A perpendicular steel sheet pile bulkhead will be constructed at the inner end of the Harbor of Refuge, to be used as the Delaware terminus.

The dredging contract calls for dredging channels to depths of 17 feet in the westerly entrance to Cape May Canal, 20 feet across Crow Shoal in Delaware Bay and 17 feet in the Harbor of Refuge. Approximate cost of dredging is expected to be $2 million. Dredging is expected to start in February, Miller said, and will be completed sufficiently to begin ferry operation by the July 1, 1964 target date.

These will be the second and third contracts to be awarded in the ferry project. The first, which was awarded Dec. 16, called for construction of a stone breakwater at the Lewes terminal. McLean Construction Company, of Baltimore received the contract on a bid of $894,948. Miller said this contract will start early in 1964.

George S. Herrington

Services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Berry Funeral Home Milford, for George S. Herrington, 43, Milford, who died Saturday in Wilmington.

Mrs. Voies and daughter were transferred to a Wilmington hospital slightly after noon yesterday and at press time of The Harrington Journal.

A Harrington mother and daughter are reportedly in serious condition in the Milford Memorial Hospital as the result of an auto accident near Milford Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Rosalie Voies, 23, and her one-year-old daughter, Mary Louise Voies, both suffered severe head injuries and multiple abrasions in the crash. They were in a car driven by Roger J. Wix of 3 Center St., Harrington, who attempted to pass a car on Rt. 14, police said, but lost control of the car. It skidded across the road and hit a telephone pole, according to state police.

The accident happened three-tenths of a mile west of Milford.

Mrs. Voies is the sister of Wix. Police said they were taking the infant to the hospital for treatment of an ailment. Wix was uninjured.

SBA Opens Up More Contract Opportunities

More than $216,000 has been saved by the Federal Government through opening up more contract opportunities for small business bids during the first four months of this fiscal year, Edward N. Rosa, Regional Director of the Small Business Administration, advised recently.

Rosa, who heads SBA's Region 3—covering Pennsylvania, Delaware and southern New Jersey—explained that the savings resulted from the joint action of SBA and Navy procurement officials in breaking out 10 sole-source items for competition. These purchases included contracts on aviation parts which had previously been purchased on a sole-source basis from large manufacturers.

All 10 of the prime contracts were earmarked for small business competition under SBA's cooperative set-aside program.

Typical of these procurements was the purchase of electrical components comprised of five items. The proposed award was broken out for competition and set aside for small business bidders. Seventeen small firms submitted bids, and the total contract price was $30,736 less than would have been paid at previous unit prices.

SBA's set-aside program is conducted jointly with Federal military and civilian purchasing agencies. In cooperation with procurement officials, SBA representatives screen proposed purchases and earmarked those found suitable for small business award under the Agency's set-aside program.

Rosa revealed that during the first four months of this fiscal year, July through October, SBA's Philadelphia office has cooperatively set aside nearly 1,600 contracts for more than $80 million in proposed government purchases for small business awards.

Small firms wishing to get on government bidder lists, or seeking information on selling their products to the government, may contact SBA's Philadelphia office at 1015 Chestnut St., or the Agency's Pittsburgh, 107 Sixth St., for details.

Hit-run Car Kills Man, 73

A 73-year-old man was run down by a car and left fatally injured in the snow near Bridgeville Monday.

State police put out a statewide alert for the hit-run driver after Tilley Collins, who lived near the scene of the accident, died in Nanticoke Memorial Hospital in Seaford at 12:13 p.m.

Police are seeking information from anyone who might have seen the car, believed to be a dark blue Chevrolet, a 1963 or 1964 model. The left front or the left side of the car may have been damaged.

Collins, according to an eye witness report, was walking on the median strip of Rt. 13 two miles south of Bridgeville at about 10:30 a.m. with snow swirling about him when the hit-run vehicle skidded off the highway. It struck Collins and then took off again down the highway, trooper said. Police said they obtained the description of the car from the witness.

Collins was taken to the Seaford Hospital in critical condition. He had a crushed pelvis, a broken hip and a ruptured bladder.

FENCE TALK

With George Vapaa

My new year wish will be renewed. Renewed as it has been for several years. And renewed with real hope. For there has been progress. Even if it seems slow to some.

The wish refers to Kent County and community planning. Planning for the growth in population that must come as the bridge-tunnel and new industries open up Delmarva.

Several groups are organizing to work in a systematic way. Gov. Carvel has appointed the OEDP Committee (Overall Economic Development Planning) group for Kent County headed by Ernest Killen. The Levy Court is about to name a county planning study group. The state and several communities are moving into planning programs.

One of the newest projects is a blue print for Agriculture to be made by the University of Delaware. Dr. Gerry Cole, who took over my reins while I was away two years ago, will guide the study project.

Growth in population and job opportunities can be either a good or poor thing. Most of us are hoping that we can retain our "Land of Pleasant Living", which is so much a part of the Eastern Shore. Sound community planning can guide our growth. We need not waste these resources. Nor should we scatter nor splinter them. Rather let us cultivate, nurture, and renew our land to their highest and best uses.

The farm woodlot is the poorest land resource today in Delaware; there is good reason why this is so. Few people burn wood in the kitchen stove. Metal posts and electric fencing are easier and cheaper to put up than the split rail fence. The good timber was harvested years ago, leaving only hardwoods and weed trees of little cash value.

Yet woodland is important. Good tree varieties provide pulp for news print, and fill many other needs. Timberlands delay water runoff to the sea.

Walter Gabel, the service forester here at Dover, suggests that our farmers can develop good returns with careful planning. He and I are talking about a demonstration area to be considered near Dover.

Multiple uses are possible. Campsites or picnic areas. Nature trails are another. Horseback riding is enjoying a boom, but folks want to get off hard roads and away from traffic. Some of these uses can be put on a paying basis.

Cold winter weather can be one of the worst enemies of farm machinery. A piece of machinery will suffer greater damage from exposure to winter weather than it will during the period it is being used.

Here are a few suggestions for protecting machinery:

Drain crankcase oil from engines while the engine is warm, and replace it with new oil. Run the engine for a brief time to circulate the oil. Clean and service air and oil filters.

Drain all gasoline from the tank, carburetor and lines to prevent formation of gummy material in the fuel system.

Replace worn or damaged parts. It's better to do this before you forget what's wrong and while you have the time.

Apply rust preventatives or a heavy grease to polished parts of plows, disks, cultivators and shovels.

Chains that operate in dust or fertilizer should be removed, rinsed in kerosene, dipped in oil and stored in a dry place.

Lubricate all bearings and fittings.

Take particular care of more expensive pieces of equipment such as pickers, hay balers and combines.

A great amount of damage can be caused by rust. As a precautionary measure, squirt a little oil in and around movable parts to prevent rust from forming.

Making quality concrete is more than mixing sand, stone, and water. There are a number of good rules to follow to achieve the kind of concrete that will serve you best.

Use clean materials. Bank-run gravel should not be used. It is not clean and is not properly graded for top quality concrete.

Use enough cement. A cubic yard of concrete should have five sacks of cement for footings and walls below grade, and six sacks for exposed work such as walks or floors. Seven sacks per cubic yard should be used for heavy duty jobs, such as manger bottoms and milkhouse floors.

Don't use an excessive amount of water. No more than six gallons of water per sack of cement should be used. Extra water makes placement easy, but radically reduces the strength and life of the concrete.

Cure the finished concrete. The finished job should be kept damp from five to seven days. Rapid drying greatly reduces the strength of the concrete.

Don't overwork concrete surfaces. Place the concrete, spade it or vibrate it into place, screen off the surface, then use a wood float to remove small irregularities. Use a steel trowel after the surface has lost its water. Trowel for a smooth surface or use a coarse broom or a leaf rake for a coarse surface around ramps and sloping areas.

Proper care of hogs recovering from uncomplicated influenza is vital to prevent pneumonia and other respiratory disorders.

Influenza makes swine highly susceptible to these secondary diseases because the flu is caused by a virus that cuts down the number of white blood cells, the body's weapon for fighting off bacteria infections like pneumonia.

Since this natural protection is reduced, swine must be protected from further stress of cold, damp weather, lack of water and hard to digest food.

Animals should be maintained on a ration of easily digested feeds that give maximum nutrition while causing a minimum of stress on the digestion system. A bulk diet of oats, tankage or meat scrap is preferred to high-concentrate feed during the convalescent period.

L.O.O.M. Underprivileged Christmas Party

The Harrington Lodge No. 534 Loyal Order of Moose and the Women of the Moose Chapter 1229 gave a Christmas party for underprivileged children at the Moose Home, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 22.

One hundred twenty-eight children were at the party. These children were from the Harrington, Greenwood and Felton areas. The party began with Mrs. Franklin Cooke, who was chairman from Chapter 1229, leading the children in singing several Christmas carols.

The Reverend Olin Shockley, of the Harrington Asbury Methodist Church, told the Christmas story to the children.

Santa came into the Lodge room and gave each child toys, candy, apples. Refreshments of ice cream, cake, brownies, coca-cola and punch were served after which clothing was given to the children.

The Women's Chapter 1229 and Harrington Lodge No. 534 Loyal Order of Moose wish to express their thanks to the following:

The Rev. Olin Shockley for the time he gave to tell the most descriptive and interesting Christmas story to the children and staying while presents were being given. Also to Burris Wholesale, of Milford, Coca-Cola Company, of Dover; Bond Bread Company, of Harrington, and Sears Roebuck, of Dover, and Richardson Bros., of Dover.

Mrs. Franklin Cooke was chairman of party and her cochairman was Mrs. John Semans. Junior Simpson was chairman from the Lodge. Other committee members of the Chapter and Lodge who worked for the Christmas party the past several weeks are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. John Semans, Mr. and Mrs. William Butler, Mrs. Roberta Waselewski, Miss Edsel McCready, Miss Blanche Godwin, Benjamin Moore, C. E. McWilliams and Earl L. Yoder.

Many Farmers Seek Part-Time Jobs

As fewer farms are required to provide food and fiber, many farm operators will be forced to seek nonfarm employment. Many will prefer to live on the farm and work in local industries rather than move to cities. According to Dr. William M. Crosswhite, assistant professor of agricultural economics at the University of Delaware, this trend is already becoming apparent, with 45 per cent of all farmers working away from their farms and part-time farms making up 30 per cent of all farms in 1963. More than one-third of the disposable income of farm families in 1963 was non-farm income.

Dr. Crosswhite states in an article in the recently published 1963 Yearbook of Agriculture that part-time farming may be a transitional phase as people prepare to leave the farm. For others, it may be a permanent way of living, and for some, part-time farming may be a way of getting a start toward full-time farming.

Some farmers are regularly employed throughout the year. Others seek seasonal employment when farm work is slack. The trend since 1949 has been an increase in the number of employed farmers until today almost half of the farm operators seek non-farm employment at some time during the year.

Most part-time farms are small. Dr. Crosswhite states. More than half have fewer than 50 acres and three-quarters of them are smaller than 100 acres. They are found in all sections of the country, and are commonly concentrated near industrial areas and in the south.

Dr. Crosswhite cites economic, social, and personal reasons as factors in deciding to become a part-time farmer. Supplementing family income is a main reason. He points out that others become part-time farmers because they like farming, want a hobby, wish to give their children a farming experience, want to get away from city living, seek security and retirement, or look on it as a step to fulltime farming.

Disadvantages for small farms are found in higher costs of production and marketing. Limited resources in land, equipment and capital do not allow the operator to benefit from mechanization. Good management practices, planning and adoption of up-to-date technology are often neglected when a major part of a man's mental effort must be devoted to his non farm job.

Modern transportation, especially highways and the automobile, have made it possible for a wage earner to live some distance from his job. Industries are encouraged to move to medium populated areas. Examples of part-time farmers, taken from a study by Dr. Crosswhite, show that home-grown fruits and vegetables consumed by the farmer and his family lessen food bills, while surplus can be sold for additional income.

Investment Credit Important To Farmer Taxes

One of the biggest income-producing jobs that a farmer can do during the next few days is tax planning. W. T. McAllister, farm management specialist at the University of Delaware says many farmers can save tax dollars if they sit down now with their tax records and do a little figuring. But he warns this must be done before the first of January if it is going to help on this year's taxes.

He says the more you even out your taxable income from year to year, the less tax you will have to pay. McAllister suggests getting out record books now and adding up the columns to get an idea of your likely taxable income for this year. One thing to consider while checking your records is the proposed tax bill that, if passed, may reduce a farmer's tax rate by 20%.

Another important item to consider in tax planning is the investment credit regulation. Under certain conditions, he says, it permits a farmer to deduct, directly from his tax bill, up to seven per cent of the cost of certain new and used property.

Eligible property under this deduction includes machinery and equipment, (including freight charges), purchased this year for use next year. Major overhauling of machinery that will extend the life for four or more years qualifies for the investment credit. Silos, grain bins and storage facilities also qualify. Livestock and buildings do not qualify.

McAllister suggests getting a copy of the Farmer's Tax Guide as an aid in income tax problems. They are available by writing to him or to your county agent.

Houston

Sunday School at 10 a.m., Robert H. Yerkes, Sr., general superintendent; Alvin O. Brown, supt. of the Junior department.

Worship service begins at 11 a.m. with the prelude, Mrs. Agnes Webb at the organ. Call to worship by the minister, the Rev. H. Norman Nicklas, who will direct the service and deliver the message. The Senior and Chancel Choirs will sing special numbers.

The members and friends of the church are very grateful to Miss Rosanna Messick and her mother, Mrs. Pearl Messick, for the beautiful Christmas scene placed on the church lawn. It adds much to our local Christmas spirits and great thanks go to the Messicks.

The sum of $111 was given to C. Emory Webb, church treasurer, as proceeds from the Farrow sale Dec. 13.

Benjamin Wilson, who underwent surgery some time back in Milford Memorial Hospital, is out and is spending the recuperating time with his sister, Mrs. Robert Stafford, at Burrsville.

Mrs. Walter Studte Sr., who returned from Milford Memorial Hospital after undergoing surgery some time back, had to return to the hospital again on Friday, for observation and treatment.

Mrs. Eva Wilson is still a patient in the hospital and her condition remains about the same. Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley Johnson, is quite ill at this time, with a virus, which is quite prevalent in our town and community.

Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Warren had as dinner guests Sunday, their brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Spurry, of Frederica.

Drivers Urged to Keep Holiday Accident Free

Richard M. McMullen, president of the Delaware Safety Council, appealed to Delaware drivers and pedestrians to prevent the state's traffic toll from going higher in the remaining few days of 1963.

"The deaths and injuries on Delaware streets and highways are already high," said McMullen. "Let's make an extra effort for safety for ourselves and our neighbors, and prevent the toll from going still higher."

The holiday season is extra dangerous because drinking drivers are more prevalent and they make driving more hazardous for everyone, the safety official said.

He urged Delawareans to do four things for safety:

- Refrain from driving after drinking.
- Be on the lookout for those who fail to refrain.
- Exercise extreme caution because of the increased dangers of the holiday season.
- Use seat belts.

Hayward Hands

Hayward Hands, 64, an employee of the Felton Lumber Company, died Friday in his home at Felton.

He is survived by three brothers, Russell, of Harrington; Raymond, West Chester, Pa., and Alvin, Chadds Ford, Pa., and three sisters, Mrs. Jessie Warren, Chester, Pa., Mrs. Mildred Porter, Camden, and Mrs. Elizabeth Herring, Miami, Fla.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon, in the Berry Funeral Home, Felton.

IN THE WANT ADS SHOP AND SWAP

McMullen said the combination of the throttle and the bottle has been a major cause of fatal highway accidents in the nation on the New Year's weekend in the past. He asked Delawareans to be mindful of the danger and to "drive defensively, keeping a safe distance between you and other cars and watching for sudden actions by other drivers."

"This requires extra attention, but it can easily mean longer life," Mr. McMullen said.

When Does Cold Season Start?

The first day of school—that's when it starts. Research scientists have now proved that the spread of colds like other virus-caused infections is accelerated by the mixing of populations. In fixed, stable groups which are not exposed to strangers, cold-like infections, they say, tend to die out and do not reappear until there is a contact outside the group. Surveys also show that youngsters of elementary school age have five times as many colds as grown-ups and that colds continue to be the major factor in school absences.

Thus, it should be crystal clear what happens when all the kindergartners, or all the fourth-graders, or the eighth assemble from all over the school district to begin a new scholastic year. If there's one cold in the bunch, it will swiftly become common property. No doubt that's why they call this medical mystery the "common cold". The kids take their new-found infections home, and pretty soon, everybody's got a runny nose.

Actually, not quite everybody. There still are people, as the funny-man says, who "can't even catch a cold." But a recent study by the National Education Association shows that the average U. S. youngster missed 18.9 days out of the last school year. To realize the scope of this problem just multiply 18.9 by 40 million!

It is still difficult, however, to accept the idea that the common cold needs to be as common as it is—especially in the light of another recent survey by a drug industry publication which indicated that only one out of eight home medicine chests is fully equipped to meet ordinary family health needs. The recommended check list of 11 basic supplies included gargle, antihistamin-aspirin (such as Corcidin), cotton swabs, stomach settler, laxative, cough syrup, decongestant, fever thermometer, bandages and an analgesic.

Another curious fact is the wide variation by states shown in the NEA count of lost schooldays. The State of Washington is apparently our healthiest, with 10.5 days lost per student, and Utah with 11.2 days. At the other end of the scale, Nevada showed an average of 52 lost days per student, with Alaska next with 26.5 days.

Anyone who wishes to explain these figures may have a try at it—while we get some warm clothing for the chill fall days, plan a good, nourishing diet and try to see the fellow who has a cold before he sees us!

That ounce of prevention is still better than a pound of cure.
 —The Adams (Wisc.) County Times

Machine Age

With more than seven million 1963 models already off the assembly lines and automobile production exceeding the human birth rate, it doesn't take much imagination to predict what the world is coming to.
 It is estimated that by 1983 there will be 257 million people in the United States and 115 million motor cars. This assumes 1.7 million people will die during the 20 years while five million cars are being scrapped. But the way cars are killing people these days, it won't be surprising, if the mortality rates are reversed and in a couple of decades there are more automobiles than people.
 By that time the earth's surface can be expected to present a solid asphalt surface of highways and parking lots, and the atmosphere will contain more carbon monoxide than oxygen. Maybe it's thoughts like these that have made some people stop worrying about the atom bomb.

A Time For Simplicity

At the suggestion of a layman, the department of church and economic life of the National Council of Churches plans soon to begin a study of funeral and burial costs. Clergymen of various faiths are said by the New York Times to express a revulsion at "the neopagan corpse worship of the modern funeral."
 This and an article by Jessica Mitford in the Atlantic Monthly for June (followed by a book) have caused distress to the mortuary profession in the United States.
 "In 1960," writes Miss Mitford, "Americans spent, according to the only reliable government estimate, $1.6 billion on funerals, setting thereby a new national and world record." This, she finds, did not include some incidentals.
 It is only fair to recognize the value and good taste of the services of modern undertakers. It is at the same time true that an average family, confronted by need of making funeral arrangements for a relative, is easily influenced by grief, social sensitivity, and lack of information.
 Many assume that embalming is required by law, whereas this is required only in unusual circumstances. Rarely also is there a legal requirement for a vault for burial or a coffin for cremation. In some parts of the United States and Canada, funeral societies have been formed which arrange for services at moderate or even minimum cost.
 The predominant concern here, however, is not, of course, economic; for all wish to show respect to those who have passed. But there is a widespread feeling that this is done not so much by the arts of the embalmer and cosmetician plus an elaborate open casket as by simple remembrance and quiet ministrations of the faith of the living.

Winter Is Ka-choo-in' In

As predictable as Santa Claus, but considerably less welcome, is that other ancient tradition, the winter cold. Centuries of talk about it haven't helped much to solve the problem. Just the same it continues to rate high on the list of seasonal health topics for much the same reason that mountain peak compels the climber's efforts: it's (AH-CHOO) there!
 So far medical science hasn't had much to offer the common cold sufferer in the way of prevention or treatment. But it can at least hand him some useful hints about the right and wrong ways of trying to live with his affliction. Many people vexed by coughs and sniffles find it hard to understand why the doctor can't prescribe some antibiotic "wonder drug" and dispose of the nuisance just like that. The reason couldn't be simpler: such medical marvels are effective only against bacteria, whereas the common cold is caused by one of a huge assortment of viruses.
 What about nose drops, sprays, ointments, steam vapors—decongestants of various kinds? Many of them give temporary relief. But the best medical advice to the otherwise healthy person—the ordinary individual with no pre-existing chest condition—is that such aids to comfort should be used only to facilitate breathing and rest at night—and only on the first night or two. (Speaking of the best medical advice, it's what you should seek before applying medication of any sort.)
 Few doctors endorse the old wives' motto, "Feed a cold and starve a fever." Instead they recommend a light diet with ample fluids. Fruit juices are fine, but they work no miracles. Nothing wrong with plain old H₂O.
 Your Delaware Christmas Seal organization, concerned with the age-old struggle against all respiratory diseases from TB to the common cold, recalls the classic advice when sniffles and sneezes begin: "Get into bed and rest; if there's no improvement, call a doctor."

Carbon Monoxide Winter Danger
 Winter is the time for heating homes and cars, and for keeping doors and windows closed in order to keep out the cold air, rain and snow. It is also the time when the very dangerous gas, carbon monoxide, can trap the unwary.
 Carbon monoxide is present wherever fuels are burned . . . furnace oil, gasoline, bottled gas or wood.
 Carbon monoxide gives no warning of its presence. It has no odor or color and does not irritate eyes, nose or throat. It merely enters the lungs with the air we breathe and passes straight into the blood. There it competes with oxygen to be carried to body tissues by the blood pigment, hemoglobin. Since it is much more absorbable than oxygen, it takes place readily.
 Normally hemoglobin combines with oxygen in the lung blood vessels and moves to all parts of the body, setting free the oxygen as the body tissues need it. Car-

Six Tips For Safe Holiday Driving

Delaware motorists were urged to "Drive For A Safe Holiday" by following six driving tips this Christmas season.
 Chairman J. H. Tyler McConnell of the Delaware River and Bay Authority is sponsoring a "Drive For A Safe Holiday" program in cooperation with Auto Industries Highway Safety Committee. He offered these six tips for holiday (and year-around) driving:
 Allow enough time. Whether going downtown or on a trip, allow time to avoid feeling rushed. On long trips make frequent stops. Arrive relaxed.
 Have your car checked. Drive with good tires and properly adjusted brakes. Make sure lights, turn signals and windshield wipers function properly.
 Use seat belts. They help save lives, prevent injuries. Seconds will buckle a belt; a flick of the wrist will release it. Use them whenever and wherever you drive or ride.
 Be alert to hazards. Adjust your driving to road, traffic and weather conditions. Give yourself and others an extra margin of safety.
 Use courtesy abundantly. Every where—at intersections, while passing or being passed, at night when your headlights are on high beam — "Make Courtesy Your Code of the Road". It pays!
 Follow the rules of the road. Signs, signals and road markings are your guides to a safe, enjoyable drive around town or on a trip.
 McConnell reported he hopes each person will discuss these driving suggestions with family and friends. "While many motorists feel it's especially important to be conscientious while driving on long trips, it's just as important to be safety-minded during a trip around town. Studies show three of four traffic deaths take place within 25 miles of home and one-half of serious accidents

Zwaanendael Museum Notes

The 1963 Christmas display at the Zwaanendael Museum includes a variety of jewelry and personal items which were sure to have been gifts to loved ones for these Christmases of the late 19th Century. Featured are lovely hair necklaces and brooches, gold and silver watches for both gentlemen and their ladies, jeweled earrings, bracelets and necklaces and two beautiful card cases, one of mother-of-pearl and the other made of exquisitely carved ivory. There is also a small accordion with ivory stops, which, no doubt, furnished the melody for many Christmas carols.
 Still on display is the vertebra of the 70 or 80 foot Finback whale found at Indian River Inlet during last September. A smaller vertebra found in the surf during July near Beauville Beach by Armand Girard of Baltimore, and Michael V. Layton of Bridgeville, has been lent to the museum and will be on display for a limited time.
 Visitors will also enjoy the lovely Gobeln tapestry of Capt. Drevis and the silver model of an early whaling vessel placed in the Museum early in November.
 Visiting hours at the Zwaanendael Museum are Tuesdays through Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Sundays, 12:30 to 5:30 p.m., closed on Mondays. However the Museum will be closed on Christmas Day and on New Year's Day.

The 1963 Christmas display at the Zwaanendael Museum includes a variety of jewelry and personal items which were sure to have been gifts to loved ones for these Christmases of the late 19th Century. Featured are lovely hair necklaces and brooches, gold and silver watches for both gentlemen and their ladies, jeweled earrings, bracelets and necklaces and two beautiful card cases, one of mother-of-pearl and the other made of exquisitely carved ivory. There is also a small accordion with ivory stops, which, no doubt, furnished the melody for many Christmas carols.
 Still on display is the vertebra of the 70 or 80 foot Finback whale found at Indian River Inlet during last September. A smaller vertebra found in the surf during July near Beauville Beach by Armand Girard of Baltimore, and Michael V. Layton of Bridgeville, has been lent to the museum and will be on display for a limited time.
 Visitors will also enjoy the lovely Gobeln tapestry of Capt. Drevis and the silver model of an early whaling vessel placed in the Museum early in November.

Division of Aging Presents First Annual Report

A seven-point improvement program to meet the needs of the state's growing number of citizens over 65 was presented to Governor Elbert N. Carvel recently.

Dr. G. Gorham Lane, acting director of the state's division of the Aging, and Mrs. Herbert E. Dobbs, chairman of the Delaware Citizens Council on Aging, presented the report which summarizes the work of the Division since its establishment in 1959.

It calls for seven basic steps which the governing board considers essential if the Division is to meet its future obligations successfully:

*A budget increase which will permit the employment of a full-time permanent director.

*An extensive study of the needs of older residents of lower Delaware.

*Continuation of present studies of services for older people and the coordination of appropriate state agencies.

*Continuation and expansion of educational programs.

*Evaluation of Federal legislation affecting the aged and the dissemination of this data to appropriate individuals and agencies.

*Continuation and expansion of educational programs.

*Evaluation of Federal legislation affecting the aged and the dissemination of this data to appropriate individuals and agencies.

*Recognition of the personal worth and value of older citizens and the planning of ways to insure their dignity and independence.

*Establishment of local community councils on aging.

As spokesman for the Division and principal author of the report, Dr. Lane, a professor of psychology at the University of Delaware, said that, in 1960, the number of persons over the age of 65 in Delaware was nearly 36,000. Statistical studies indicate that this number will continue to grow.

"Citizens who are 65 years of age and older are a primary concern of the Division of the Aging," Dr. Lane said, "but their problems are not unrelated to those of all Delaware citizens. Alleviation of some of the problems which face older citizens is one facet of the task which the Division of the Aging must face. Another facet, and one that is equally important, concerns the preparation of young citizens for their own aging. Still another facet of the problem is concerned with the education of all Delawareans as to the implications of an increasing older citizenry."

The Division of the Aging established within the Board of Trustees of the State Welfare Home and Hospital for the Chronically Ill at Smyrna was created in 1959. Its earliest activities included the preparation of the delegates who represented the state at the White House Conference on Aging, Ten of the delegates, working in a volunteer capacity, have cooperated with the trustees of the State Welfare Home and Hospital in promoting the Division's activities since that time.

In May, 1963, through the interest of Governor Carvel, a grant was made which enabled the Division to send representatives to regional and national conferences, to undertake the coding of vast amounts of pertinent information about the aging, and to begin the preparation of the first annual report. The 122nd General Assembly followed the Governor's action by providing a modest annual budget which became effective on July 1, 1963.

The first annual report covers in detail such topics as income maintenance, employment security and retirement, vocational rehabilitation, residential care in public and private institutions and health care and rehabilitation. It also contains sections on education, free-time activities, housing, social services, research and a review of the responsibilities of the Division and recommendations for implementing and improving the programs with which the Division is concerned.

Elaborating on several of the major proposals, Dr. Lane said, "The budget for the Division of the Aging must be increased if an effective and continuing program is to be developed. The present budget allows only for minimal clerical assistance. All other activities are conducted by volunteers. The volume of work, the necessity for expansion of services and appropriate planning require sufficient funds for a qualified director, adequate secretarial assistance and operating funds."

Dr. Lane said that educational activities should include programs to inform citizens about the processes of aging and the needs of older citizens, to prepare citizens to adequately meet the problems of old age, to prepare older citizens for retirement and to retrain older citizens for suitable employment, or for the constructive use of leisure time.

"All state agencies serving older persons should be urged to continue to lead the community in recognizing the personal worth and value of each older citizen, thus insuring the dignity of all citizens of the state," Dr. Lane said. "Recognition of the older citizen must include the planning for flexible retirement policies, the availability of part time or full-time employment, adequate old age assistance programs for those who are in need, and adequate medical care."

The board of trustees of the State Welfare Home and Hospital at Smyrna includes J. Rankin Davis, president; J. Oliver Evans, vice president; Mrs. Esther Pratt, secretary, and Charles S. King.

Members of the Delaware Citizens Council on Aging, in addition to Mrs. Dobbs, are Dr. W. O. LaMotte, Jr., the Rev. Thomas J. Reese, G. B. Lorenz, Dr. Ruth M. Laws, Dr. Floyd I. Hudson, I.

B. Finkelstein, Clement J. Lemon, and Miss Elizabeth C. Elliott. Copies of the report may be obtained by writing to Division of the Aging, Box 595, Newark, Del.

"The Incredible Journey" At Reese Dec. 27-28-29

Never before has Movie Center had the opportunity to present so many gay holiday shows as is listed for Xmas week and New Year's week. Open for five days each week the Giant Holiday program starts with this Wed. & Thurs., Dec. 26-27 with the new 20th Century Fox all color and Cinemascope production "Lassie's Great Adventure" with June Lockhart supported by Hugh Reilly and Jon Provost. Lassie has come back to the screen in one of the most entertaining films of the season. The Young Hootenannys really go to town in "The Young Swingers", the new craze holding down the number two spot in this giant Xmas Show.

On Fri.-Sat.-Sun., Dec. 27-28-29 comes the much awaited Walt Disney super attraction, "The Incredible Journey." Never has the screen presented such a wonderful motion picture. The story of three unlikely companions. Together they face an unknown world of adventure. Extra added is Sportarama, undoubtedly, the greatest presentation of auto, boat, horse racing, including bowling, sky diving, and deep sea fishing. This is a "must" for the family.

On Wed. & Thurs., Jan. 1 & 2, it's the sensational Nervarama show. How much shock can one stand. It's "The Werewolf in a Girls' Dormitory" and Boris Karloff in "Corridors of Blood". Double thrills and double horror.

This super holiday program ends with a blast of happy entertainment in "Summer Holiday" Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 3-4-5 with the breath taking "The Skydivers" the co-feature.

Visiting A Sick Friend

When you visit a sick friend either at the hospital or at home, your visit will be much more pleasant and more successful if you bear in mind a few simple rules.

The purpose of your visit is to show your friend your sympathy as well as your interest and concern in his welfare. This can be achieved best by being pleasantly cheerful without being extremely gay or overly sympathetic. A genuine feeling can be expressed by your attitude and need not be conveyed with too many words. Be prepared to talk about something of interest to your friend, something which will amuse or cheer him rather than upset or worry him.

Do not be overly inquisitive about the details of his illness, but be willing to listen if your friend wishes to talk about it. Don't be critical of his treatment. His physician is the one who knows best what is advisable.

Don't tell a sick person that he looks wonderful when you are thinking just the opposite. He will know when you are obviously not telling the truth. Be honest in what you say, but be discreet. Do not help the patient break any hospital rules or go against his doctor's orders by bringing him food or other items you know he is not supposed to have.

Pattern your behavior on that of the visitor whose company you enjoyed most when you were last sick.

Do not promise to make another visit, if you know now that you will not be able to come.

Make your visit a brief one. Someone who has been ill is apt to tire easily and having to talk for a long period can be exhausting. The sick person is often lonely and feels out of things, so several short cheerful visits will do him more good than one long one.

2,000 Death A Year Due to Burns

The American Medical Association has estimated that 2,000 deaths a year in the United States are due to clothing's catching fire, and about 300,000 additional people are burned severely enough from flaming clothing to necessitate medical attention.

If clothing should catch on fire, smother the flames by rolling in a blanket or rug, or, if nothing is available, roll on the ground or floor. Don't run. Running only fans and increases the flames.

Careless smoking habits cause many fires. Don't smoke in bed or when you are sleepy. Keep plenty of ash trays on hand.

Do not use flammable cleaning fluids. Have screens around all fireplaces and open fires and don't hang clothing too close to the fire. Make sure that curtains can't blow into an open flame.

If, in spite of all precautions, someone should be burned, try to prevent shock and contamination and to control the pain.

For extensive burns, call a physician immediately. Cover the burned area with a clean cloth or clothing. Have the victim lie down with his head lower than his feet.

When someone goes into shock, the blood tends to rush out of the head and settle in the stomach. Putting the head lower than the feet will prevent this from happening.

If he is conscious and can swallow, give him plenty of water to drink.

For lesser burns, if the skin has not been broken, soak the burned part in clean cold water to relieve the pain.

If the skin is broken, soak a sterile gauze pad or clean cloth in a solution of baking powder and water, place the pad over the burn, and bandage it loosely.

It is important in all but minor burns to see your doctor, since burns can be more serious and deeper than they appear to be.

Greenwood

Edna and Eli Mast welcomed a son, Stephen Ray, into their family Dec. 10. He is a husky 9 lb. 1 oz. boy.

Christmas is the time of year when, among other things, we take time to remember those away from home. Joye Zehr will enjoy hearing from friends. Address her at: 7107 Furfeld KRF, Heilbronn, A-M, Schlossgut, Germany."

Here is the cafeteria menu for Jan. 2: milk, beef pie with crust, buttered stringbeans, buttered corn, peach half; Jan. 3: milk, tomato soup and crackers, grilled cheese sandwich, jello salad, fruit or apple crisp.

Best wishes for recovery are being sent herewith to Greenwood folk who are hospitalized, having undergone surgery. We hope that Mrs. Vincent Lobo, William Mervine and Mrs. A. Fay Grassmeyer will be able to return home soon, fully recovered in health.

Thursday evening the Kiwanis Club, of Greenwood entertained at dinner their wives and friends. Each one brought a gift to be presented to the folk at Delaware Colony for Christmas. Every lady guest received a small gift. Miss Grace Porter was at the piano and Mrs. Louis Mills had charge of the games.

4-H News

4-H'ers have many blessings to recall and look forward to at this season. Many 4-H friends have been involved in each members' life as they proceed along the 4-H path. And so a big 4-H thanks to each individual who has given their time in interest in 1963.

Our Kent County Junior Council has some terrific plans for 1964. Junior Council Advisor, Josephine Moore, Dover, called her officers together recently to plan for the coming year. The first meetings program will be a slide presentation of the past in 4-H. You'll have a chance to see your club members in 4-H activities. All club officers, Junior leaders and past council members are invited. Other officers present were Connie Moore, Dover; Louise Farrow, Viola; and Nancy Korschak, Hartly.

Public speaking is the first county event to be held on February 15. Start your preparations now—the members who prepare early and practice will make the best presentations. Remember there are four groups: Junior Boys, Junior Girls, Senior Boys and Senior Girls. Talks should be between 3 to 5 minutes for Juniors and 5 to 10 minutes for Seniors. Select your topics carefully and check your facts for accuracy. Many 4-H'ers will also want to start preparations for the talent show in March. Our busy season is arriving so live, learn and serve through 4-H by being prepared early.

Felton Cagers Whip Alumni

Coach Joe Kern's Felton cagers jumped off to a winning start Friday night as they turned back a strong Alumni quintet 71 to 60 in their final tune-up for the Henlopen Conference opener at home with Millsboro on Jan. 3.

Felton, which won the western division honors in the Henlopen last year, ran wild in the opening period to lead 30-13.

The Old Grads rallied and paced the scoring in the next three periods but the earlier edge proved to be sufficient for the victors, Felton used its entire squad to get a look at their ability under fire in preparation for defending their conference honors.

Alumnae tripped the Felton girls 39-17.

The Rev. and Mrs. G. Bryan Blair and boys are spending Christmas holidays with her parents and his parents in Virginia. In the absence of our pastor, the Rev. G. Bryan Blair, last Sunday morning, the Rev. S. R. Latham, a retired minister, filled the pulpit.

At the close of Sunday School last Sunday morning the annual Christmas treat was presented to Sunday School members.

There was a good attendance at the Hymn-sing in our church last Friday evening. Charles Wright conducted the meeting and several church choirs in the county were represented and took part.

Our W.S.C.S. members enjoyed the Christmas party held in the community house last Wednesday evening. Prior to playing games the president, Mrs. L. H. Thomas, opened the meeting. Mrs. Bertha Stafford read the prayer, then the Lord's Prayer in unison followed by the secretary, Mrs. Paul Stafford reading November minutes and roll call. Mrs. Paul Maloney received the Christmas selection after which gifts were exchanged and games played, conducted by Mrs. Francis H. Trice, Jr.

Mrs. Elmer Butler and sister, Mrs. Elsie Woodward, were in Dover last Wednesday. Mrs. W. G. Holbrook is spending Christmas with New Jersey relatives and friends.

Miss Elma Jean Stafford visited Miss Linda Stafford last Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Butler and Madeline, Tuckahoe Neck, and Mrs. Georgia Butler, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Salisbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil G. Edgell, Seaford, were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Thomas.

Mrs. Emma Nichols, Queen, Anne, has been spending some time with Mrs. Georgia Butler.

Paul Stafford is getting out on crutches having the misfortune to fall recently.

Mrs. Emma Nichols spent Sunday with Mrs. Harvey Harris.

Mr. and Mrs. Leander H. Thomas will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary with open house at the Hobbs Community House, Monday evening, Dec. 30, from 6 to 9 p.m.

Alumni Nips Greenwood, 46-44

Friday night the alumni nipped Greenwood High 46 to 44 in a hard-fought and well played contest.

Greenwood jumped off to a 10 to 4 first quarter lead behind the hot hand of David Henry, only to have the alumni stiffen on the defensive work of Bob Wright and Dick Hynson and the scoring of Ronnie Cannon, as the latter scored all of his points in heading the alumni to a 18 to 14 halftime lead, which was never relinquished.

In the third quarter the alumni widened their lead to 11 points.

In the final quarter the young boys began to move as they scored 21 points. Woodall headed the attack as he poured in 11 points in the stretch drive. Duane Anthony netted 5 and Schulze 4. Sheldon Hayman pulled the game out of the fire with a field goal and a foul shot in the final minute of play. Greenwood might have pulled the game out but for the loss of David Henry via the foul route early in the final stanza.

The winners were paced by Sheldon Hayman who took scoring honors with 15 points. Dick Hynson chipped in with 8 and Ron Cannon 7. Bob Wright, Dick Hynson and George Langford were tremendous on defense as was Dave Henry of Greenwood.

Greenwood was paced by Julian Woodall with 14 points and Dave Henry and Duane Anthony with 10 each.
