

CARVEL LISTS GAINS OF HIS ADMINISTRATION

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel Tuesday night told of the accomplishments of his administration, and said he was taking part in a move for a federal constitutional amendment to permit prayer and Bible reading in public schools.

Speaking at a covered-dish supper of the Ninth District Democratic Club at the American Legion Home, he told of the duties of the Legislature.

He mentioned some criticism emanated from the northern part of the state, the Republican stronghold, about the delay in legislative activity. He mentioned Republican opposition, on the other hand, as holding up the passage of the highway bond bill a year during which time the highway department had to furnish 32 technical men for want of funds. The price for passing the bond bill, the governor said, was the appointment of three or four men on the election boards.

His administration, he continued, however, was getting things done, and enumerated some of its accomplishments, as follows:

1. Balancing the budget. Not much criticism when Boggs was governor. We took the lead and balanced the budget.
2. The Lewes-Cape May Ferry—Will help all of Lower Delaware.
3. Another Memorial bridge planned.
4. $5 Million dollars appropriated for schools.
5. Saved half million dollars in interest on bonds by balancing the budget. Had to say it five times at his press conferences before it got in the papers.
6. Established prevailing wage on state construction, thus enabling state contractors to compete more favorably with out-of-state contractors.
7. Correctional institutions had faces lifted.
8. Raised teachers salaries.
9. 20% more appropriated for schools.
10. Established state planning department. "We are looking ahead 20 years from now."

At the start of his speech and after hearing Mrs. Will Ward, the club treasurer, read her report, the governor congratulated the club on being in the black and commented "and so is the state. It wasn't that way when the Republicans had it."

Mrs. Esther Stubbs opened the meeting singing hymns and accompanied herself on the accordion. In one number, her small son took part on a vocal duet.

This gave the governor, a singer in Baltimore churches when he was a child, his opening cue. He condemned the Supreme Court's decision on prayer and Bible reading in public schools and said he was a member of a national committee working for a constitutional amendment to permit the practices.

He considered Bible reading devotional and inspirational and said man got little enough of inspiration. "We do not see enough that is uplifting and too much that is degrading. This nation was founded by men of God who prayed. I think this nation needs more prayer. I think the people feel that way, too," he concluded.

The object of this event is to encourage young players who otherwise would not have this opportunity to perform until they attain membership in their own senior bands.

Ross Evans, music director, for the Felton Schools will be host for the evening, and all participating groups will be guests of Felton School District for the evening.

The City of Harrington has paid off its sewer-bond issue of 1935. City Clerk Kathryn Derrickson said the final payment of $5100 had been paid Tuesday morning.

Senate Ok's Salary Hike For Governor

Legislation to give the governor of Delaware — beginning with the next one — a $7,500 raise, passed its first hurdle Monday by receiving Senate approval.

The measure (SB 33), backed by the administration although it would not be affected by it, would increase the chief executive's salary from $17,500 to $25,000.

Several legislators said Monday they thought the highest state official should be paid more and voted that some state employees are paid more.

Sen. Margaret R. Manning R-Marshallton, issued a plea for consideration also of employees at the other end of the salary scale.

J. Donald Isaacs, Republican senator from Townsend, said that "in view of the confusion over the state hospital and so forth, I'm glad the present governor is only getting $17,500."

The bill received 14 favorable votes, one nay (Majority Leader Leon E. Donovan, D-Harrington), one senator was not voting (George R. Robbins, D-Milford), and one was absent (President Pro Tem Curtis W. Steen, D-Dagsboro).

Watch Your Hallux Advises Safety Council Official

Watch your hallux, a safety official urged this week in a springtime message of caution.

The hallux is the big toe, and it is often in a dangerous position.

Sensible precautions in the use of power mowers prevent painful accidents to the hallux and other parts of the body, said Mrs. William N. Cann, vice president for home safety of the Delaware Safety Council.

With the coming of the lawn mowing season, care must be exercised for safety in using all mechanical tools, she said, and experience has indicated 12 points to promote safety in using power mowers. These are:

- Know how to disengage the clutch or stop the engine quickly.
- Follow completely the manufacturer's recommendations for operation and maintenance and consider them as standard operating procedure.
- Before you begin mowing clear the area of all obstacles such as rocks, stone, pieces of wire, sticks.
- Set the mower at the highest cutting point when using it on rugged or uneven terrain to prevent mowing from accumulating or ejecting an excessive amount of debris.
- Keep the cutting path clear of all persons and animals. While the mower is in operation, no one but the operator should be allowed near it.
- Never leave unattended a power mower which is running.
- Under no circumstances allow children, including young teenagers, to operate power mowers.

40-DAY RACING BILL OFFERED

A bill that would limit Brandywine Raceway to 40 racing dates a year was introduced Tuesday with backing from those supporting the veto of a measure to benefit the track.

Under HB 541, handed up by Majority Leader Norman A. Eskridge, D-Seaford, each county would receive 40 allotted days of racing which would not be transferable to any other county.

That would prevent Delmarva Raceway, Inc., which now gets the Sussex County allotment, from selling any dates to Brandywine Raceway, Inc., as it has been doing for the past 10 years, but it also would limit the Brandywine racing season, if passed, to 40 days each year.

Brandywine now races 60 nights each year, using the 40 dates allotted to New Castle County and "buying" an additional 20 dates from Delmarva.

Delmarva does not operate a race track, and there is no pari-mutuel harness racing in Sussex County. Eskridge's bill, while it would stop the payment to Delmarva, would impose a severe limitation on Brandywine by cutting it from 60 to 40 nights of racing.

Brandywine Raceway advocates led a House fight Monday, which failed by one vote to override Gov. Elbert N. Carvel's veto of HB 470, which would give each county 60 dates and eliminate the need for Brandywine to purchase dates.

The rollcall on that attempt to override has now been placed on the table in the House.

MCDOWELL HINTS HE'LL RUN AGAIN

U. S. Rep. Harris B. McDowell Jr. all but announced a re-election bid at the convention of the Delaware Federation of Democratic Clubs at Dover Saturday.

He told those at the meeting he has "relished and enjoyed every minute" of his work in Washington "and I hope that I may continue to enjoy serving you . . ."

The convention was one of the most harmonious of the 11 the group has held. Francis Downs, of Kenton, assistant secretary of state, was unanimously elected federation president.

McDowell and Gov. Elbert N. Carvel were given standing ovations. Carvel continued his attacks on the state's two U. S. senators (both Republicans) and did nothing to discourage the talk that he will seek the nomination this year against one of them, John J. Williams, if Williams is the GOP candidate.

Another Democrat mentioned for the Senate nomination, National Committeeman William S. Potter, did not attend the meeting.

The key speaker, Richard James Murphy, assistant postmaster general for personnel, reported on a survey of Alaskan postal service in the aftermath of the devastating earthquake there. Murphy returned from Seattle, Wash., Friday night.

He said postal service was restored in all Alaskan communities Monday after the Friday earthquake. In some cases, he said, post offices were demolished and in others, mail, stamps and equipment were "washed out to sea."

Among the resolutions passed Saturday was one asking that the federation vice president in each county be allowed to attend meetings of the party's executive committee. The measure passed without expected controversy.

Another resolution permits the federation to establish headquarters in various towns for the campaign.

A proposed resolution with political overtones was ruled out of order by Matthew Mitten, chairman of the convention and the new vice president for Kent County.

This was a proposal by Barney Lofland of Wilmington asking the convention to go on record in opposition "to intimidation of party workers and job holders." Lofland maintained such policies were destroying harmony in the party.

RACING DAYS BILL SURVIVES IN HOUSE

GOP Gathering Slated May 5

The Republican State Committee received several strong appeals for harmony and set the date which had been expected for its Little Convention at a meeting at Dover Tuesday night.

Republicans agreed the convention—which biennially elects the new state committee, and names 12 delegates and 12 alternates to the national convention—will be held May 5 in the Dover Armory.

The committee decided three delegates and three alternates should come from each of the state's four political subdivisions—the city of Wilmington and the three counties.

It also voted to have one delegate and one alternate from the Delaware Active Young Republicans and one delegate and one alternate from the State Federation of Republican Women's Clubs.

The appeals for harmony came from State Sen. Reynolds du Pont, R-Greenville, and National Committeeman Harry G. Haskell, a former congressman. Both have been mentioned frequently as possible GOP nominees for governor.

Haskell told the group, "I am worried about our chances to pull together in the coming election. There has been so much talk about contests for the state chairmanship and the various nominations that it is cause for concern to all of us.

"We have to have fights because there are reasons for the various divisions to want their own way, but we must have a Christian sense to make our friendships work and dominate over disagreements.

Let us all keep in mind that our purpose is to achieve what the Republican Party really wants — good government. I think if we do that we will come out better and have a better chance to win this election," he said.

DuPont and House Minority Leader William T. Best, R-Rehoboth Beach, in a legislative report, echoed Haskell's appeal for harmony. Du Pont said it is as important to have it now as in November.

Delmarva Broiler Growers May Add $370 To Income

Delmarva broiler growers, already tops in the nation in farm income from meat chickens, will add another $370 a year of broiler income to their cash receipts by the end of 1965 if the Peninsula's poultry industry continues to expand at a 6 per cent-a-year rate and if price-cost relationships of broiler production average out fairly close to last year's levels during the next two years.

This was the prediction of Edward H. Covell, Jr., of Easton, president of the Delmarva Poultry Industry Association.

He based his prediction on an anticipated increase of Delmarva's annual production to about 263-million chickens in 1966 as compared to the 235-million grown last year. The increase would amount to an average of 5,280 more young chickens per farm for each of the Peninsula's 5,340 broiler growers. At present they produce an average of 44,000 chickens per farm each year.

Noting that Delmarva broiler growers had a total net farm income of $5,542 in 1962 (latest year for which such income figures are available), Covell said that broiler farm income in Maine, the other large northeastern producing area, was $4,137 in 1962. In Georgia, the nation's largest producing area, growers earned a family income of only $2,234 for 1962.

Main reason for Delmarva's big edge in farm income of poultrymen, Covell said, was the long-time know-how of Peninsula growers and processors, the extra quality they build into their chickens, and the aggressive marketing practices of Delmarva in taking advantage of its nearness to big northeastern city markets.

Although Delmarva produced only 11.1 per cent of all the broilers marketed in the U. S. last year, the Peninsula actually took home a 12.75 per cent share of all U. S. broiler income. This meant an extra $18-million coming into Delmarva cash registers last year, he reported.

The House came within one vote Monday of overriding its first gubernatorial veto this session on a bill to extend the number of harness racing days in each county.

But at the end of the day, the roll call was defeated, keeping alive hopes of getting the bill (HB 470) through later in the session.

The measure came under intense debate and some sharp political fighting.

It would give each county 60 instead of the present 40 harness racing days, but the heart of the issue was not so much a matter of dates as it was a matter of money.

As the law now stands, Brandywine Raceway, in New Castle County, has to buy 20 of its dates from a Sussex organization called Delmarva Raceway, Inc., in order to race for 60 nights during its summer season.

Delmarva has been allotted the Sussex dates since the group was organized in 1954, but it has never actually conducted pari-mutuel racing. Its only ostensible connection with racing is a training track which it maintains at Georgetown. No other person or organization has applied for the Sussex dates in the past 10 years, according to J. Ewell Calhoun, executive secretary of the Harness Racing Commission.

If anyone else did apply, it would be up to the commission to decide who would get them. In the meantime Delmarva is allotted the dates and can do what it wants with them including selling them which it has consistently done in the past, reaping a "windfall" of $202,195.69 over a 10-year period in the process.

Several legislators, including Senate President Pro Tem Curtis W. Steen, D-Dagsboro, are stockholders in Delmarva Raceway, Inc.

The debate on the override Monday was conducted in two places—on the floor of the House and in the Democratic caucus where pleas were made, particularly by Majority Leader Norman A. Eskridge, D-Seaford, to sustain the governor's position.

However, a supporter of the bill, Rep. James D. McGinnis, D-Dover, said on the House floor that Gov. Elbert N. Carvel "told me the day before he vetoed the bill that it was one of the finest pieces of legislation ever put through and he wondered why we had not passed it before."

McGinnis said the governor "is on the spot and we can override his veto here and take him off." He said Carvel has never sent word that he is opposed to the override.

Opponents of the bill contended Carvel's attitude was inherent in his veto and even House Speaker Sherman W. Tribbitt, D-St. George Hundred, who voted to override the veto, used the caucus to make a mild plea to back the governor saying, "it would not look right."

During the debate on the floor McGinnis attempted to have read to the representatives a communication detailing how much Delmarva Raceway, Inc., over the past 10 years for its racing dates.

Tribbitt, however, said the communication had no bonafide signature and should not be read into the record.

Later McGinnis released the following figures which he said he received from Brandywine. They show that Brandywine paid (Continued on Page 8)

Fire Losses Can Be Avoided

Every minute of the day, an American home is destroyed or damaged by fire. Every day, 17 people—mostly the young and the aged—die in these fires.

In Delaware, ten people lost lives in home fires last year, and five of them were children under five years of age.

Prevent this danger from taking lives in your family by eliminating fire hazards and by teaching family members what to do if a fire does occur, says Coral K. Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Every room in your home has some potential fire hazard, she points out. Simple rules of fire safety tell you to remove clutter, not to overload electrical circuits, make sure that wiring is in good condition, and to be careful when smoking.

In the basement, a furnace which must operate at high temperatures to do its job can be a fatal friend if control measures are not taken, Miss Morris notes. Keep the furnace and near-by (Continued on Page 8)

Not only Episcopalians, but all good citizens of Delaware who can, should begin saving for the Wilmington Garden Day which comes on May 2 this year, on a Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Many of the most beautiful gardens in Wilmington, as well as many of the most lovely homes, will be on display at that time.

$3 will buy a ticket to all gardens and the Soda House, with an additional cost of $1 for each of the homes visited.

For those who wonder why this is addressed to all good citizens, let it be known that Wilmington Garden Day is a benefit day which is put on by St. Andrew's and Immanuel Episcopal Churches and the Cathedral Church of St. John, for the benefit of Wilmington's Big Brother movement, as well as St. Michael's Day nursery. Response to the proposed Big Brother movement could make the difference between the respectability and delinquency of an estimated 3500 fatherless boys in New Castle.

In addition to the good done by this project, it affords the people of Delaware an opportunity to visit these spots of beauty in the State's chief city. Certainly everyone will want to put aside May 2 on his and her calendars.

Friends of Franklin Fowler, Jr. were delighted to have him pay a surprise visit to Harrington beginning this past weekend. The occasion for the visit: a furlough prior to service outside the United States. Franklin leaves Long Beach, Calif., April 15, on the U.S.S. Princeton. We shall publish his address as soon as it is known.

• Farm weeds are easy to come by but hard to get rid of. This Canada Thistle may have come in a bag of cheap, cut-rat seed. Or in a bag of home-grown seed or neighbor-grown seed that had not been properly cleaned. Sure, weeds can be controlled by spraying and cultivating, but look at the effort and expense involved. How much easier it is to eliminate weeds before they start by planting only top-quality, thoroughly-cleaned, high-purity crop seeds . . . Southern States Quality Seeds. Your fields stay clean. PASCHAL TIME

We are now in the season known as the Paschal Time. This season began with the midnight Mass on Holy Saturday and continues until Trinity Sunday-fifty-seven days after Easter. This is a period of rejoicing because our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, has risen from the dead. The chief liturgical observances of this period are that white vestments are worn by the priest at Mass and the Alleluia is repeated frequently during all liturgical functions held in this period. The Alleluia is a Hebrew expression for "Glory to Him Who Is"; it is an expression of joy and praise that is found in the Psalms and in the nineteenth chapter of the Book of the Apocalypse. St. John quotes the Angels as using this expression in Heaven.

Delaware Food Market Report

Today, tomorrow, and everyday, beef belongs on the menu for beef is big news because it is abundant, top quality, and inexpensive. Right now an intensive industry - government drive is on to call the attention of all of us to this special news about beef.

What's the story? Marketings of fed cattle (they yield the high quality beef) are extremely heavy, up 6% from a year ago and this is after a year of abundant supplies. Commercial production in 1963, especially of high quality beef, was up more than 7% from 1962. To increase supplies even further, imports were 16% larger. As a result, beef prices are lower than they have been for some time. Buy beef now, serve it often, and if possible, freeze your favorite cuts for later use. Remember as the weather grows hot, quick cooking cuts become very popular and prices rise with the demand. So if, steaks are a favorite food in your household, buy now and freeze in air tight wrapping and enjoy this luxury later in the summer at economy prices.

Coupled with this bountiful supply of beef are abundant supplies of low priced pork and broiler-fryers. This brings the widest choice of outstanding meat values in many years. Newspaper ads and store signs will indicate the most outstanding values for a specific store. Fresh pork shoulders, roasts, hams, and other processed pork products should be among the best pork buys. Broiler supplies are increased seasonally, and this month they will exceed that of last year by 3 to 5 per cent. Turkey prices are declining also, and stores are offering low-priced features on ducklings and stewing chicken.

Better enjoy fresh vegetables now for results of last week's better weather in the majority of the Southern growing areas will soon be reaching local markets. Wide spread damage has been reported on many tender vegetables, in some areas crops have been almost wiped out. However, this week the following vegetables are among the better buys: Cabbage, carrots, mushrooms, spinach, green beans, broccoli, eggplant, and Maine potatoes.

At the fruit counter, prices are beginning to edge up as the season ends for such things as grapefruit, oranges and lemons. Apple prices are edging upwards, also, as supplies decrease. To make the picture brighter, honeydew melons from Chile are arriving in heavy volume and prices are quite reasonable. Avocados, pineapples and bananas, are economical again this week, and continued signs of Spring make themselves known with increased supplies of strawberries, cantaloupes, and watermelons.

PONDEROUS PERFORMING PACHYDERMS AND LOVELY LADIES — That's circus terminology for trained elephants and pretty girls! And the elephant ballet featured with the 1964 edition of Von Eros, Three Ring Circus comes to Harrington at the Delaware State Fairgrounds for afternoon and evening performances under the big top on behalf of the Harrington Jaycees, general fund. The big show will be here one day only, Wed., April 29. Members have advance sale tickets on sale now.

"KISSIN' COUSINS" at Reese, Apr. 9-10-11-12-13

Work is progressing at the Reese Theatre. The fast pace necessary due to the short time between shows is beginning to reflect the extra effort put forth in this complete renovation process.

The Game Room will be the center of attention for the carpenters and painting during the next few days.

Elvis is back! And what a show! With the management reporting that "Kissin' Cousins" is ringing the bell all over the country. Due to the immense crowds, extended engagements are in order.

Originally set for three days, at the Reese, the engagement has been extended to five days. "Kissin' Cousins" will play the Reese Theatre for five glorious days: Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, April 9, 10, 11, 12, and 13. Audie Murphy in "Gunfight at Comanche Creek" is the second hit for Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Robert Mitchum in "The Man in the Middle" is the second feature for Sunday and Monday.

The management states that this is the biggest ALL-FAMILY BARGAIN Show of the Year and positively there will be no advance in prices. Regular prices prevail! All children must pay at this show only.

Remember "The Village of the Damned," well, the sequel "The Children of the Damned," the spine tingling science-fiction drama of six uncanny children whose pose a world threat, is the top feature of another super weekend treat, Thu., Fri., Sat., Apr. 6-7-8. The requested and second of the Beverly, Hootenany Series, "Puddinhead," with the one and only Judy Canova, is the second feature with a Cartoon Party completing this great all family show. Girl Scouts Win Skating Certificates

For the past two weeks, Harrington Girl Scouts, Troop No. 679 have been taking roller skating lessons at the Diamond State Roller Rink, Felton.

Their hard work was rewarded on March 28 when they all passed their course and received roller skating certificates from the rink. They are now eligible for their merit skating badges which they will receive at their court of honor.

The girls who passed the course were: Linda Kates, Jean Harwick, Linda Harwick, Peggy Tibbitt, Gwyn Melvin, Jo Ann Thompson, Debbie Beauchamp, Shirley Matthews, Sue Knapp, Aleta Mason, Sandra Warren, Idelette Rice, Debbie Schepp, Beth Graham, Gloria Welch, Jo Ann Short, Kathy Coleman, Maria Cohee, Cheryl Klapp, Melodie Hoff. The troop leader is Mrs. Donald Dell and the skating instructor was Mrs. Mildred Steele. One of the requirements is to write a composition of the skating rules. The following paper was written by Idelette Rice.

- Rules:
1. When skating backwards look behind you
 2. Skate at your own risk.
 3. Skate in the same direction as everyone else.
 4. Don't do things that you aren't told to do.
 5. Don't trip people or push them down.
 6. When about to fall, throw your hand up. Don't fall on your wrists.
 7. Try to keep time to the music.
 8. Don't play dangerous games on the floor such as "crack the whip."
 9. Don't have more than three people skating together.
 10. When you stop, don't drag your toes. Stop by using the four wheel brake.
- I like skating because it is good experience and fun.

New Food Ideas Should Be Clearly Explained

Consumers don't need to have their appetites whetted for new food products—the temptation to buy is already there. What they do need is manufacturers who present new ideas and tell consumers how to use these new products. Mrs. Jean Rindlaub, retired advertising executive, told businessmen attending the recent Delaware Conference on Food Distribution at the University of Delaware.

"Supermarkets have 8,000 products to choose from and haven't bored their customers yet," she stated. "At least half of these products did not exist before 1959, and half of them may not be here by 1970."

Fresh fruits and vegetables preserved by liquid nitrogen and pressure-packed and dehydrated frozen foods are some of the new forms to look for soon. On the other hand, she said, there are more than 300,000 known vegetables—yet only 30 or so are being used by the human race.

From a consumer viewpoint, Mrs. Rindlaub told food distributors that what she wanted to see on the market was new ideas, clearly explained.

"Tell me how to cook acorn squash, combine vegetables, and make new sauces. If a recipe calls for a pinch of this or that, put it where I can reach it."

"Why aren't you giving me any help?" she asked the food distributors. "Don't bother about what you did for me yesterday. I know about all those convenience foods that are sometimes so remarkably inconvenient. And the packages that say 'press here'—so you do, and break a fingernail. But what are you doing for me today?"

"Of course, to be honest, a few producers are telling me what to do with their products. Some caught on long ago that the way to sell more of anything to anyone is to have an idea. Put a little news in it, put a little service in it, give it a little 'whoop!', make people see it in a brand new way," she told the food distributors.

"You went along for years brushing off the poor old potato-saying nobody wants to eat it, everybody's afraid of getting fat. And then somebody found out how to make instant mashed potatoes and instant scalloper potatoes and frozen French fries and dips for chips, and potato sales turned right around and went up and up."

"Give the consumer a morale booster with your product," Miss Rindlaub urged. "The orange didn't grow on a tree marked 'Breakfast.' Somebody had the idea. You think of mayonnaise on salad until somebody calls it a hot vegetable sauce. Sometimes all it takes is a label."

"Today's customer is living in a wider world—meeting more people, traveling more, reading more, spending more. The key to successful sales for the supermarket manager is how he can help the consumer to the life she wants to lead."

"Think of your product in a new way," she advised food distributors. Remember your customer, the woman who's looking for help. Put a little news in your product—fresh and fast. Put a little fun, understanding and service in, too."

"Look for new ways—bigger sizes, smaller sizes, hot and cold variations, and seasoning hints. Experiment to learn all you can about your product, then let the customer know."

Advertising is a bridge between people who grow or make things and people who need things, she pointed out. New products and news advertisements are a form of real and helpful and much appreciated service.

Food Distributors Meet at U. of D.

Nearly 300 food retailers, wholesalers and brokers from 17 states attended the seventh annual Delaware Conference on Food Distribution this week (March 30 to April 1) on the University of Delaware campus.

One of the highlights of the event was the presentation of awards to two University of Delaware students, three representatives of the food industry and the director of the University's food distribution management program.

Scholarships were awarded to Wayne F. Simpson, of Houston, and Richard J. Perello, 472 Weart Ave., Lyndhurst, N. J. Both students are seniors majoring in food distribution management in the department of agricultural economics. They were honored for their outstanding achievements in this field.

Simpson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Simpson and is active in the University 4-H Club and Alpha Zeta, honorary agricultural fraternity. Perello, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perello, is a member of Theta Chi social fraternity and the Society for the Advancement of Management.

Named Food Distribution Research Scholar of the Year was Robert W. Mueller, editor and publisher of Progressive Grocer magazine. Marie Kiefer, executive director of the National Association of Retail Grocers of the United States, received the award for Food Distribution Educator of the Year. Both awards were presented by Charles Neugebauer, vice president of Hearn Brothers Super Markets and chairman of the Food Trade Advisory Committee of the University. Neugebauer was honored by the committee as the Delaware Food Distributor of the Year, receiving his award from Dr. John A. Perkins, president of the University of Delaware.

A special citation was presented to Robert L. Bull, head of the food distribution management program in the University of Delaware department of agricultural economics, in recognition of his "dedication to the progress of food distribution and to the cause of educating young people for it." The award was made jointly by the National Association of Retail Grocers of the United States, the National Food Brokers Association and the National American Wholesale Grocers Association.

The awards were presented at the annual Delmarvalvous Chicken Banquet Tuesday evening. Featured speaker at the banquet was J. Lewis Powell, author and consultant.

Other speakers at the three-day event included Dr. William Reilly, director of the National Institute for Straight Thinking; Dr. Gorham Lane, professor of psychology at the University of Delaware; Melvin Evans, chairman of Human Development in Action, Inc.; Jean Rindlaub, retired vice president of Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn, Inc., and Marie Kiefer, executive director of the National Association of Retail Grocers of the United States.

The Delaware Conference on Food Distribution is sponsored annually by the food distribution section, Agricultural Extension Service, at the University of Delaware.

FENCE TALK

With George Vapaa

The Georgia cracker (farmer) stopped me on the road with his sign advertising "6 lbs. of paper-shell pecans for $1.00". He brought out some samples and proceeded to explain the merits of his various products in a very gracious if not unlettered manner.

"Now, here is the sweetest pecan that there is. Taste it. It sells 3 lbs. for $1.50. And here is the Mahan, the largest variety, 3 lbs. are $2.00".

I looked again at his 6 lbs. for $1.00 sign. "Well," he says, "those peanut sized pecans are for that price."

So I bought a bag of the sweet pecans—only to discover later that many were distinctly off-type, out of good condition, and undersized.

The lesson is clear. Let the buyer beware.

There is a pet hope of mine to see a Certified Roadside Market Association formed in our area. Much can be said for buying fresh produce at the farm. But there must be public confidence in what is offered. Our producers have learned this fact in offering produce to a processor or for shipment.

Some New Jersey farmers have a certified association which they control themselves. The member is required to keep a clean, neat, attractively displayed product. He can offer off-grade materials, such as bruised apples, as long as they are labelled so. And, of course, the big secret for success in roadside markets is satisfied customers who come back for repeat business.

Shorn wool payments for the 1963 marketing year will amount to 27.3 per cent of the dollar returns each producer received from the sale of shorn wool during the period April through December 1963. Russell C. Bowdle, chairman, Kent Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, reminded growers today. The rate of payment was determined recently by the Department of Agriculture as the percentage necessary to bring the average wool price of 48.5 cents per pound up to the previously announced incentive level of 62 cents per pound under the national wool program.

Producers will receive an incentive payment of $27.80 for every $100 received from the sale of shorn wool during the ninth year of the program. This compares with a payment of $30, per $100 of marketings for the 1962 marketing year.

The payment rate on sales of unshorn live lambs to compensate for the wool on them will be 54 cents per hundredweight. This payment on sales of live lambs that have never been shorn is based on the shorn wool payment and is designed to discourage unusual shearing of lambs before marketing. The payment rate compares with 57 cents per hundredweight for the 1962 marketing year.

Chairman Bowdle said that no payments will be made on mohair sold in the 1963 marketing year because the average price of 88.1 cents per pound received by producers was above the mohair support price of 76 cents per pound. A payment of $3.60 per $100 of marketings was made for the 1962 marketing year—the only year in which producers' returns from mohair sales have been below the support level.

According to the chairman, ASCS County Offices will begin making payments soon after April 1. Applications for payment had to be filed not later than Jan. 31, 1964. The payments will be made on shorn wool and unshorn lambs marketing from April 1 through Dec. 31, 1963. This year completes the shift of the wool program from a marketing year to a calendar year basis. Payments on 1964 marketings will begin in April of next year.

The percentage method of payment under the national wool program is designed to encourage producers to improve the quality and marketing of their wool. Under this method, the producer who gets the best possible price for his wool also gets a higher incentive payment.

Many farmers have found that last summer's very limited rainfall decreased their silage supplies. Plan for early pasturing this year to cut down on feed costs. Winter small grains and permanent grass pastures are excellent ways to accomplish this.

Winter small grains, especially wheat and rye, can provide pastures two to three weeks earlier than others. To increase pasture yields, the farmers should top-dress these crops soon with 75 to 80 pounds per acre of actual nitrogen.

Grain yield reductions of 10 to 30 per cent are normal with moderate spring grazing, depending on how much and how late in the season you graze. It is best to pasture only when soil conditions are favorable.

Permanent grass pastures can also provide early spring if top-dressed soon with 75 to 80 pounds per acre of actual nitrogen. Farmers should not overlook phosphorus and potassium in fertilizer programs. Soil testing, available through our extension service, will tell you how much is needed.

The peace corps needs 60 volunteers for 4-H Peace Corps projects in Latin America and the Middle East.

Training for these projects will begin in mid-June. The new volunteers will join 100 4-H Peace Corps members already serving on projects in Venezuela, Brazil and Uruguay.

Volunteers for Peace Corps projects must be U. S. Citizens, high school graduates 18 years of age or older and in good physical and mental health. The projects call for volunteers who have a background in 4-H, FFA or FHA.

Agronomists List Steps to Profitable Soybeans

Soybean producers will have to do a top job to make money during 1964, according to University of Delaware agronomists Dr. William H. Mitchell and Dr. Richard Cole.

They have compiled a list of production techniques that have been tested at the University of Delaware and on demonstration farms throughout the state. Many growers will need to make certain adjustments in their farming operations to comply with these recommendations.

They list these steps as necessary for high yielding profitable soybeans:

Use a recommended variety of certified seed. These varieties have been tested and found superior to the traditional varieties. If you plant an early maturing variety, expect poor seed appearance and quality. This can be partially offset by the high yield and oil content. If you select a full season variety, early frost may reduce yields and lower seed quality.

Large producers should seed some late maturing beans to help lengthen the harvesting season.

Lime and fertilizer according to soil test. Soybean growers will generally profit by spending less on lime substitutes and more on lime. More than half of the soil samples sent to the University of Delaware Soil Testing Laboratory for soybean recommendations need lime. Growers who submit samples know the importance of lime. Others who do not test apply expensive mixtures that are often unnecessary and, in some cases, even harmful.

Soybean growers who hold short term leases or rent land for one-year periods have a special problem. The effects of a single lime application will last three or more years. Many growers hesitate to apply lime for fear they will not recover its full value. They mix lime with fertilizer or band it at planting time. When it is banded, only a very small part of the total zone is affected. When it is mixed with fertilizer the liming rate is often too low and, at best, it's too expensive.

Phosphorus and potassium should be applied to maintain soil fertility. Although the soybean plant does not respond to direct applications in large quantities, low levels or unavailability of either nutrient in the soil will drastically reduce yields.

Fertilizer can be safely applied with the planter if it is placed about two inches to the side and two inches below the seed. Placement of the fertilizer close to the seed may seriously reduce a stand. Many growers prefer to broadcast fertilizer and mix it thoroughly by disking. This places the fertilizer throughout the plow layer and root zone.

Choose the best planting date—about June 1 is the best for maximum yields. Early plantings generally give larger yields if germination is good and weeds are controlled. Plantings made after June 15 usually yield less, and July plantings, are successful only when adequate moisture is available.

Plant in narrow rows. There is no justification for row widths greater than 36 inches for soybeans. Standard equipment can be adjusted to handle this width. The use of 36-inch rows rather than 40-inch rows will increase soybean yields to 6 to 8 per cent. If tool bar planters and tool bar cultivators are used, 28-inch row widths should be considered.

Plant enough seed—8 to 10 seedlings per foot of row. There's no point talking pounds of seed per acre. This depends on size of bean, row width and per cent germination. Late maturing varieties will produce more beans and less lodging if plants at less than 10 plants per foot. Ten plants per foot of row are required to maximize yields in late plantings.

Weed control is a must. Use a pre-emergence herbicide, rotary hoe or both if needed. Weeds affect soybean yield and quality, and may delay harvesting if they are still green.

4 Delaware 4-H'ers To Attend National Conference

Four Delaware 4-H Club members have been named delegates to the National 4-H Conference April 18 through 24 in Washington, D. C., according to James O. Baker, state 4-H leader. Chosen to represent Delaware at the national event are Janet Lloyd of Georgetown, Mary E. Woodmansee of Newark, Richard C. Melson, of Bridgeville and Allen Metheny of Hartly.

The four were selected on the basis of their 4-H activities, leadership abilities, citizenship and community service, Baker said. Purposes of the conference are to help the delegates learn more about important national issues and problems facing America and to help increase their understanding of democratic values and citizenship responsibilities, Baker explained.

One of the highlights of the conference will be a Congressional breakfast on April 23, when delegates will host the senators and representatives from their own states. Delaware Senators John J. Williams and J. Caleb Boggs and Representative Harris B. McDowell have accepted this invitation from the Delaware delegates, Baker said. In addition, the delegates will be luncheon guests of Senator Williams that day.

Tentative plans have been made for the delegates to meet with President Lyndon Johnson during their tour of the White House. Among the speakers scheduled for the conference are Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Indiana Senator Birch Bayh, Under Secretary of Agriculture Charles S. Murphy, Rep. Albert S. Quie, of Minnesota and Dr. Lloyd H. Davis, administrator of the Federal Extension Service.

Janet Lloyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lloyd, has been active in 4-H club work for seven years, receiving 22 county awards and 23 state awards for her projects and exhibits. She attended National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago in 1962 as the state winner in foods and nutrition, and has earned awards in county and state favorite foods, talent and public speaking contests. She is a freshman at the University of Delaware.

Mary Woodmansee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Woodmansee, 159 Haines St., Newark, and has been a 4-H club member for six years. She has earned 23 first place awards for her food, clothing and home improvement projects. She was state winner in home economics in 1962 and attended National 4-H Club Congress as her award. She has participated in talent, favorite foods, dress revue, demonstration and judging contests. She is a senior at Newark Senior High School.

Richard Melson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Melson, has been active in 4-H club work for eight years. He has received 57 state awards as well as a national award for his projects, which have included gardening, foods, wildlife conservation and swine. He attended National 4-H Club Congress twice, in 1962 as state garden winner and in 1963 as state leadership winner. He won first place in two state favorite foods contests, first in the state cherry pie baking contest and first in a state 4-H judging contest. He is a freshman at the University of Delaware.

Allen Metheny, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Metheny, has been a 4-H Club member for six years. He has earned 57 state awards for his project exhibits in gardening and conservation and has won first place in several state judging and demonstration contests. He was state gardening winner in 1961 and attended National 4-H Club Congress. He is a student at Goldey Beacom School of Business, Wilmington.

McDowell Supports Soil Conservation Program

Congressman Harris B. McDowell, Jr., (D-Del.), in a statement last Monday to the Subcommittee on Agriculture of the Committee on Appropriations of the U. S. House of Representatives, supported the Soil Conservation Programs in the State of Delaware and the Federal budget requests for the Soil Conservation Service for Fiscal Year 1965.

Congressman McDowell said the economic development plans of the Kent and Sussex Counties Economic Development Committees outlined the importance of soil conservation projects in both counties. Congressman McDowell presented to the Congressional

4-H News

With Marlon MacDonald

Visual presentations are being prepared by 4-H'ers throughout Delaware these days. Kent County will hold two Demonstration Days for members to show and tell about various phases of their projects. April 18th is our Indoor Day for clothing, foods, electric/entomology, home improvement, home beautification and gardening. April 25 is the outdoor type presentation for livestock, dairy, poultry, field crops, tractor and auto care and conservation. Members should note the changes in areas. Foods and nutrition has been added, this replaces Dairy Foods and vegetable preparation. Bread baking and poultry foods are still separate. Auto care has been included with tractor maintenance and conservation is a new area. Westville has held a practice day for members recently.

Junior Broiler projects are three weeks old now. The Feeder Pigs program started last week. Members participating are: Michael Bullock, Frank Collins, Bruce Collins, Danny Carey, Nancy Webb, Mark Blechman, Karen Brown, Jimmy Charles, Jerry and Kevin Webb, Jay Robbins, Edna and Sam Dixon, Joel and Kenny Blessing, James Harrison, Dana Gooden, Ray Wright, Gary Simpson, Clifford Hammond, Earl Thompson, James Boone, and Harvey Thomas.

Kent County Blue Hens and Chestnut Grove were host to the March Leaders meeting. Other clubs attending were Westville.

Congressman McDowell told the Committee:

"I concur in the views of the local officials in Delaware who are immediately concerned with the complex and costly problems which often result from poor and inadequate management of our natural resources and geography."

"I urged the Committee to give every consideration toward providing adequate appropriations for Fiscal Year 1965 toward stabilizing and preserving our watersheds and for the prevention of flood disasters in Delaware and throughout the United States."

Art and Art History Dept. Open House Sunday

The annual open house of the University of Delaware's Art and Art History Department on Sunday, will have a dual purpose.

First, most of the 100 students majoring in art and art history will have their work on exhibit. Second, a remodeled Recitation Hall will be opened to the public.

The Art and Art History Department moved into the refurbished Recitation Hall in September. A pillared portico was added to the 73-year-old building and the interior was modernized to accommodate classes and laboratories in art. Some rooms are multi-purpose and are used for language, English, and other classes.

The open house is scheduled from 2 to 5 p.m. There will be displays in every room, and slides of many famous works of art will be shown on the room-wide screen in room 103 throughout the afternoon.

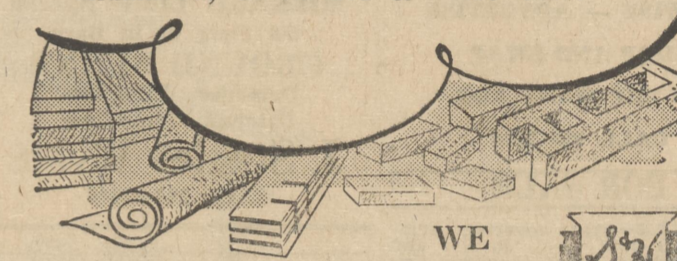

Students' work will be augmented by items from the department's permanent collection, mostly items of art from different historical periods and donated to the university during the past seven years.

Refurbishing of the building took almost 10 months to complete, and the Art Department then vacated Robinson Hall, now the headquarters for the new School of Business and Economics.

Recitation Hall was formerly used mainly for classes in physics and mathematics, which are now housed in the 1962-built mathematics-Physics building.

A Parent Asks; A Coach Answers

Question: Is football a dangerous sport? Is my son likely to be severely injured while playing?

Answer: The belief that football is a dangerous sport is a concept that has accompanied the sport from its early days when the death and injury rate were very high. Today that idea still persists even though facts prove that football can no longer be considered a dangerous sport.

Since the days of Theodore Roosevelt, great strides have been made which have virtually eliminated the causes of major injury. At the present time the leadership on the high school level is superb compared to the pioneer days.

In addition to these significant improvements, American manufacturing ingenuity has contributed by developing excellent equipment for the complete protection of each player.

The fact that healthy, aggressive youth demand a certain amount of physical contact and excitement is apparent in the interest they display for the automobile and motorcycle. Hunting and swimming also provide an outlet for the aggressive boy.

Knowing a boy's natural desire for excitement and physical contact, no parent can justify not allowing his son to play for the injury reason unless he also forbids the use of the automobile and frowns upon hunting and swimming.

If a boy is fortunate enough to have the physical equipment with which to withstand the contact, then it would be much safer playing organized football under capable leadership rather than majoring in the previously mentioned activities or playing in some unorganized game in an empty lot.

players. 5. A large staff which allows for greater supervision and development of more effective methods of teaching so that today's football player actually masters the skills involved in the game, making it much safer for himself and his opponent.

6. Acceptance by everyone involved, of the principle, that the boy comes first, if the choice has to be made.

7. Complete medical examination for each boy before he is allowed to participate.

area clean. Dust and dirt promote combustion, and surroundings may ignite from heat radiated from the furnace. Take a minute to check ceiling and walls near the furnace.

Have chimneys cleaned and inspected periodically by an experienced repairman. The fact that almost half of all home fires originate in heaters and chimneys should warn homeowners to take extra precautions in these areas.

If your basement also doubles as a recreation room for your family, be sure there are two exits and that both are kept clear. A sturdy fire door separating basement or bedrooms from the rest of the house is a good break-front to keep fire away and give you added time to leave the house.

Bedrooms are another place where two exits are necessary, since many fires occur during the night. Children should be shown escape routes and have fire drills to practice them.

"Many factors are favorable towards bigger markets for Delmarva in the near future," he noted.
