

Former Harrington School Teacher Named Outstanding Biology Teacher

David R. Snow, former teacher of physical education and science at Harrington school, has been named an outstanding Delaware biology teacher.

Now a science teacher at Gunn- ing Bedford School, near Delaware City, Snow is the first Delaware teacher to be so honored under an awards program set up by the National Association of Biology Teachers in 1962.

The program honors an outstanding biology teacher in each state. Dr. Robert W. Stegner, chairman of the Delaware selection committee, emphasized that the award is given to an outstanding biology teacher rather than the outstanding biology teacher of Delaware, since there are many excellent biology teachers in the state.

Snow teaches general biology, senior biology and general science. His principal, Stirling B. Brinkman, told the committee Snow has unusual ability to stimulate students to study and experiment.

Among criteria considered by the committee were academic and professional preparation, continuing professional growth, contributions to the profession and teaching effectiveness.

It put strong emphasis on teaching science as a process of inquiry rather than as an accumulation of unrelated knowledge.

Snow has been active in affairs of the Delaware Teachers of Science, Delaware State Education Association, National Science Teachers Association and other professional organizations and is a member of the Delaware State Science Fair Committee.

In writing of his work, Snow said: "A teacher must like to work with youngsters, must try to understand their problems and to instill in them a desire to learn. A teacher must continuously re-new and extend his knowledge of his field and make the work of teaching and learning enjoyable for both teacher and student."

The state award winners are eligible for regional awards, to be announced May 15.

New Wheat Program Offers Growers A Choice

The May 1-15 sign-up for the 1964 wheat program gives farmers an opportunity to express their feelings on government programs. This program is strictly voluntary—the only pressures for signing up are financial.

Wheat producers have these choices:

Sign-up for the program, grow within a pre-determined allotment and take advantage of diversion payments, price support loans, and marketing certificates.

Or stay out of the program, produce an unlimited amount and sell at the prevailing market price (about $1.50 a bushel in Delaware, according to Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service estimates.)

To comply with the program may mean destroying wheat planted last fall when there was no wheat program. Many farmers however, planted within their previous allotments thinking that a new program would be passed before harvest time. For them, compliance poses no great problem. The Delaware ASCS State Office says it's only a matter of signing up at the county ASCS office between May 1 and 15 and diverting 11.11 per cent of their wheat acres to a soil conserving use. This qualifies them for payments totaling about 47 1/2 cents a bushel for 9 out of every 10 bushels of normal yield plus a $5 or $6 diversion payment per acre depending on their normal wheat yields.

Those who planted beyond their acreage allotments have to decide if it is worth it to destroy wheat already planted and qualify for higher payments or stick with lower prices on more acres.

Growers who have been clamoring for less government in agriculture have an opportunity to stand on principle and be counted. It may cost several dollars but the net result might be satisfying. William Brady, administrative officer of the Delaware ASCS state office feels that a good sign-up would be around 25 per cent of the Delaware wheat growers. About half of the growers participating in last year's referendum said they disapproved of a compulsory program.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman says the new program is designed to raise grower income without increasing government costs or increasing the price of wheat to the millers. Wheat programs are already cost-

Know The Proper Way to Ride Bikes

A total of 92 bicycle accidents—including three fatal accidents—were reported to police last year in Delaware, Richard H. McMullen, president of the Delaware Safety Council reported yesterday. Of that total (8) involved youngsters 5 to 14. In 36 the riders were 5 to 9; in 35 they were 10 to 14.

With Spring weather here, bicycles stored over the winter are out on the streets and roads again, with their operators endangering their lives if they don't know the proper, safe way to handle their bikes, McMullen said.

He urged parents to make certain they remind their children of safe bicycling habits before letting them ride their bicycles. The most important point to emphasize, he said, is that a bicycle is considered a vehicle under the law and must obey the same traffic regulations as cars.

That means that cyclists must ride on the right side of the road. It also means they should obey all the traffic control signals and use the proper hand and arm signals for turns and stopping. They should ride in a single file. Stunting and showing off should be saved for a yard or field.

A cyclist should never try to squeeze in between two lanes of

Lubitch To Have Exhibit At Del. Art Center

Twenty years after he served as a U. S. Army Signal Corps newsreel photographer, A. Cypen Lubitch of Wilmington will have a World War II photography exhibit at Delaware Art Center, beginning this week.

Lubitch, who is also known for his fine oil painting and sculptor work is dedicating the display to the anniversary of D-Day, which occurred June 6, 1945 and launched the drive which brought final victory for the Allies over Hitler's Germany.

Lubitch left England on D-Day plus four and landed on Normandy Beach. From that time until V-E Day came, he was on the front lines with assault forces, eventually completing his mission at Buchenwald concentration camp.

Many of his photographs were featured in Stars and Stripes and other publications during and after the war. Most of the work to be exhibited was placed on tour in 1946 by the American Photography Society.

In a reflective mood, Lubitch has done away with the original titles, substituting quotations from Scripture, Shakespeare and other sources to reflect his think-

Postal Service Change Effective Here Monday

The limited adjustments in some postal services ordered in Washington March 10 by Postmaster General John A. Gronouski to save $12.7 million will begin to take effect in Harrington and other cities May 4, Postmaster Howard W. Dill said today.

Service changes planned locally include the following, Mr. Dill said:

1. Parcel Post Deliveries: Parcel post delivery service will be provided on a five-day week basis. The day on which parcel post delivery will not be provided shall be Wednesday, beginning May 6, since this is the day of the week which is consistently the lightest and also will work in conjunction with the Wednesday afternoon closing of business concerns.

Six day service will be continued on all rural delivery routes. Also, arrangements will be made to deliver first class parcels, air parcels, and perishable articles on the sixth day, in this case being Wednesday.

Special delivery parcels will be delivered in accordance with present policies.

2. Window services: Saturday window service will be reduced to one consolidated window, which will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon. Services offered will be limited to stamp sales, acceptance of parcel post, COD, registry, and general delivery service. Domestic and international money orders will not be issued on Saturday and all money order windows will be closed. Rural carriers who provide rural features shall not accept money order applications on Saturdays.

Patrons are encouraged to make maximum use of stamp vending machine located in lobby.

It is expected these service adjustments will substantially reduce expenditures without impairing essential postal services. The Postmaster emphasized that no essential major services are affected under the orders. There will be no change in home delivery or special delivery for example. Regular business mail deliveries will continue as usual. Letters and other first-class mail will be handled with the same priority as ever.

The economy step, Mr. Dill explained, is in line with President Johnson's programs under which the recent Federal income tax cut was provided.

Bill Walls Candidate for School Board

Mr. Walls states: "Your community is only as good as your school system." The answer to how good your school system is should not be judged by looking at the school building and counting the number of students going on to college. On the contrary, the school's system aim should be to develop well-rounded boys and girls who can go on to college, and pupils who have been taught that people live, think, and speak in various ways. A school board member holds the key to this aim.

Mr. Walls has been a resident of the school district for the past 16 years. He is the father of four children enrolled in the local school.

He has been very active in the community organizations. He is associated with the Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Lion's Club, and Little League Baseball and Football. He is also a member of Asbury Methodist Church.

He is employed by the Federal Government located at the Dover Air Force Base.

Strokes Can Be Conquered

When a stroke occurs, perhaps the hardest thing the patient must fight is a feeling of hopelessness and despair. Strokes are not hopeless. In the past ten years, medical research has given us many effective weapons against strokes: new drugs, surgical procedures, and physiotherapeutic methods which can restore muscle function to even severely disabled stroke patients. And the outlook for the future is even brighter.

A most important weapon at the service of the stroke patient is his own determination to recover—to strike back at stroke. One good example of how such determination pays off is Louis Pasteur, the French chemist whose numerous contributions literally shaped modern biological science.

During Pasteur's lifetime (1822-1895), practically nothing could be done for the stroke patient except to let nature take its course. Yet Pasteur lived and worked for 27 years after he had suffered a "big stroke" at the age of 45. What's more, much of his best work was done in this period in which, it is reported, he had another 50 "little strokes". Refusing to throw in the towel, Pasteur went on to make scientific history as the founder of microbiology and a principal architect of the conquest of germ-caused disease. We honor his memory every time we take a container of pasteurized milk from the refrigerator, or uncork a fine French vintage wine, product of vineyards saved from disaster by Pasteur's studies in fermentation.

In our own time, perhaps the most famous persons who have survived strokes to continue their important work are Sir Winston Churchill and former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Sir Winston was stricken at age 79 during his final term as Britain's Prime Minister. He celebrated his 89th birthday on Nov. 30, 1963.

In 1957, during his second term as President, Mr. Eisenhower had a stroke which was mild and transitory in its effects. He made

River Authority To Receive Bids On Twin Bridge

Delaware River and Bay Authority will receive sealed proposals on May 14 for the fabrication and erection of two, steel towers for the twin Delaware Memorial Bridge, Director William J. Miller, announced this week.

An advertisement for bids states that the contract will call for furnishing and installation of the tower elevators, aviation beacons, navigational lights and all electric work.

It will also be necessary to furnish to other contractors for erection the anchor bolts and frames for tower steelwork, including temporary bracing and incidental work.

The instructions state that more than 17 tons of structural carbon steel will be involved in this second phase of the $84 million dollar structure.

Miller states that a contract will be awarded or bids will be rejected 60 days from the opening of proposals.

Contract documents may be obtained at Delaware Memorial Bridge. They cost $25.00 a set. Documents need not be returned and no refunds will be made, Miller said.

Officers Installed At Century Club

The installation of officers and the President's Tea were the order of business at the last meeting of the Harrington New Century Club on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Lester Smith was formally inducted into her new position as president for the 1964-66 term.

Also on the agenda for the afternoon was a musical program by members of the music department from the Harrington school under the direction of Melvin Brobst. Included were Rene Quillen, Gloria Welch and Sue Ellen O'Neal from the grade school band. They presented a flute trio of "Glow Worm." Chuck Peck from the Junior High band played a selection entitled the Palo Duro Waltzes on the trumpet. Judy Burgess and Billy Knox demonstrated with a clarinet duet "The Trisch-Tratsch Polka." Donald Walls played "The Vivian Polka" as a trumpet solo. The sound and unusual qualities of the base clarinet were demonstrated by Daniel Smith in a solo, "Valse Grazioso."

Next was a woodwind ensemble featuring the oboe played by Sharon Walls, flute—Ceryl Warrington, clarinet—Billy Knox, French horn—Lois Larrimore, and bass clarinet—Danny Smith. The selection was entitled "Five for the Fun of It," a modern composition which the players obviously enjoyed. Concluding the program was a march, "The Spirit of Democracy," with Donald Walls and Judy Burgess joining the ensemble. This group represented the Senior Band.

In expressing her thanks to Mr. Brobst for the insight into some of the less familiar instruments which had been demonstrated, Mrs. Winkler commented on his willingness to take part in community programs whenever he is asked. She also presented him a check to cover the cost of two 1/2 scholarships to the Delaware Music Camp this summer. This is an annual gift of the club.

Mrs. Charles L. Peck, Jr., was the installing officer at the most impressive and beautiful installation service. Mrs. O. T. Roberts served as marshal, with Mrs. Ernest Raughley at the piano. Those beginning as new officers in Mrs. Smith's official family were Mrs. James D. Moore, 1st vice-president; Mrs.

Dover Residents Preparing For "Old Dover Days"

Lawns in Dover are receiving a final trimming; rare old silver is polished to its spotless best; colonial costumes for both men and women are getting last minute adjustments.

It's time for Old Dover Days, Saturday and Sunday, May 2 and 3 and the whole community buzzes with excitement while final preparations are completed.

According to Mrs. Oliver Farrow, general chairman, more than usual interest has been shown this year because of the diversity of homes, both ancient and contemporary which will be open to the public. There are more gardens too, Mrs. Farrow points out—and this attracts another kind of client beside the avid camera fan who is always present to get new shots of olden days on Dover's famous Green.

The gardens of N. Maxson Terry, chairman of the Delaware State Highway Commission; the Ridgely garden with its loaned statue by noted church sculptor Charles Parks; the Bradford-Loockerman garden; historic trees and boxwood at Woodburn, home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murray; the grand gardens at the John Dickinson Mansion, are just a few of the 25 homes, museums and churches which will be open to the public from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on both days.

Another residence open this year which is of special interest belongs to Mrs. William K. Paton. The center section was built prior to 1780 by the Rev. John Miller, pastor of Dover Presbyterian Church and father of Prof. Samuel Miller, who later became the first president of Princeton Theological Seminary.

In the Old State House, which will be restored to its original condition in the not too distant future, there is an early portrait of George Washington, and the First State's own "Liberty Bell" of 1763 hung there by Thomas Rodney in 1770. This bell was used to assemble the freeholders of Kent at the Court House in the town of Dover, to take into consideration the act of the British Parliament in shutting up the Port of Boston.

Dancing on the Green, which always proves delightful, will be conducted during opening ceremonies at 11 a.m. Maypole folk dances, the Minut and games of the eighteenth century will be featured. Games will also be played in Christ Church Yard, Dover and at Friends meeting House, Camden, which also will be open for public inspection.

Governor Elbert N. Carvel will hold his reception on Saturday afternoon and Mayor Crawford J. Carroll and members of Dover City Council will receive guests Sunday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. at the Old State House. Included among Sunday visitors will be some 30 travel writers and photographers from the Eastern seaboard.

High School Winners Named In German Contest

A Newark High School student and two Mt. Pleasant High School students topped Delaware entries in the regional German contest held at the University of Delaware this month.

Some 300 students from Delaware and eastern Pennsylvania competed in the event, sponsored by the American Association of Teachers of German.

None of the Delaware students finished tops in his class, but Eric Drewry of Newark finished second among third year German students.

The Mt. Pleasant students were Katherine Conner, a fourth-year student; and Virginia Machel, a second-year student. They finished highest among Delaware students, but were several points behind the regional winners.

The examinations, held April 10, include listening comprehension, structure and writing, reading comprehension, and culture.

Dr. Elizabeth E. Bohning, of the University of Delaware's Modern Language Department, has served as chairman of the examination committee since the contest began in 1960. Next year, she will assume the national directorship, now held by Prof. Karl Weimar of Brown University, Providence, R. I.

PLANNING MAKES FOR BETTER COMMUNITY, MEETING HEARS

Killen Speaks At Hartly

Last Friday, Ernest E. Killen, candidate for Governor, was guest speaker at a large gathering of the regular monthly meeting of the Fourth District Peoples Democratic Club in Hartly.

Mr. Killen discussed the many pressures of increased costs and their effect on the State budget, saying that the influx of new industry into the County calls for the expenditure of large sums of money for new schools and highways. Competition for competent employes makes mandatory the addition of a personnel department to coordinate and equalize State employes salaries.

From his vantage point as Commissioner of Elections of Kent County, Mr. Killen told the Club that Kent County has grown three times as fast percentage-wise in voter registrations as New Castle County and this should emphasize the importance of registering every prospective voter in the Fourth District.

Local water shed development was discussed in some detail and Mr. Killen assured the club that Congressman Harris B. McDowell was working with the Federal Government to assure the availability of funds for the drainage of farmland in western Kent County.

President Irving Garton thanked speaker Killen for his interesting speech.

Work Experience Benefits Teenagers

Jobs give teenagers an opportunity to grow toward adulthood by teaching them the importance of work and the value of money, says Katie Thomas, Kent County home economics extension agent.

Working for an employer gives a young person confidence in dealing with other people and knowledge of what is expected on both sides of an employer-employee relationship. If your teenager works during the summer, you might suggest that he vary his job each year. A variety of jobs will help him define his own career, Mrs. Thomas says.

For jobs during the school year, remind him to think of how he is earning his money, how he is using it and how his work fits into his program of activities. Help him set priorities on his time and energy. Long hours spent at a part-time job may mean too few hours left for study, relaxation, school and social activities. Encourage your teenager to set his own work limits and budget his time.

When your children work with you on the farm, the home economist recommends setting up a business-like arrangement. Don't impose on the youngsters, but don't let them shirk their tasks. "Make a definite contract," she advises. "Don't just give them what you feel like sharing after the corn is sold or the hogs have gone to market." Young people are likely to prefer the most menial of jobs with steady pay to such uncertain prospects.

More than 60 men and women will be initiated into Sigma Xi Society this Saturday night, according to Dr. Donald F. Crossan, president of the University of Delaware chapter.

The annual banquet is scheduled at 6 p.m. in the Dover Room of the Student Center.

Sigma Xi is a national honorary society with a principal aim of recognizing and encouraging achievement in scientific research. Scheduled for initiation Saturday are candidates for advanced research degrees and other persons in scientific fields.

The main speaker will be Dr. Lyman G. Bonner, director of development at Hercules Powder Co.'s Explosives and Chemical Propulsion Department. He will speak on "Energy Sources for Space Travel."

Dr. Bonner, who received his doctorate from the California Institute of Technology in 1935, was one of three Hercules research scientists to be presented the Navy's highest civilian award for distinguished public service for major contributions in the field of rocket propellants.

The main function of planning is to build a better community, John A. Bivens Jr., head of the State Planning Office, told some 100 persons at a meeting in the First National Bank Building Thursday night, April 23.

The gist of the discussion of the 2-hour meeting was this: The community establishes a planning commission which takes an inventory of the use of the land, buildings, utilities, etc. It then checks the information and determines how the community can be improved.

Planning involves the total community, said Bivens. It includes houses, parks, and other recreation, he explained.

The main purpose of an inventory is to publicize to the community what it has so it can determine what it wants. This would also include industrial development.

In this same vein: inventory is the important first step," said City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann, "before you set goals, because an inventory will determine what kind of industry you want."

In establishing a planning commission, Bivens believes this group and the zoning commission should be one. In establishing an inventory, Bivens and his assistant, Robert Pasley, called attention to a help-yourself program for small communities. "You take the inventory," he said, "and we furnish manuals and other assistance.

Pasley said the federal government provides two-thirds of the financial assistance if a professional or consultant is hired. If the community does it, the federal government pays for two-thirds of the technical assistance. Bivens thought the community should have a planning commission and that it could help the state group.

On the whole, however, he believed a planning commission for the county would be preferred as it could work with the state group better and would take care also of the areas outside the city limits. This would also permit uniform regulations, he explained.

The first leg of an amendment to the state constitution, provided for an enabling act on county zoning, has been passed, Bivens said. He hoped the General Assembly would pass the second leg next year. Then laws could be passed to permit a comprehensive program of planning, he said.

Getting back to Harrington, Mayor Fulton J. Downing said the City Council was getting ready to survey streets, sewer, and water facilities, but that it would be a long-range process.

Last week's meeting was instigated by the City government.

Breakthrough In Leukemia Possible

Is a breakthrough in leukemia possible? Many scientists think so. Leukemia, cancer of the blood-forming tissues, has long been considered primarily a disease of childhood.

It has now become a major cancer problem, not so much among children as among adults. The disease for some unknown reason seems to have leveled off in children, but has increased 17 per cent in adult males and 7 per cent in females in the last ten years.

It is estimated that in 1963, some 9,300 males and 6,500 females developed the disease. There is no known cure or prevention.

Dr. Joseph A. Arminio, president of the Delaware Division of the American Cancer Society, explains that the Society is seeking some of the basic answers to the growing leukemia problem. The answers, if found, may not only lead to a leukemia cure or preventive, but may help control other cancers.

Dr. Arminio pointed out that since 1945, the American Cancer Society has spent nearly $12,000,000 on leukemia research and currently has in effect research grants, directly or indirectly related to leukemia, that total more than $2,000,000—more than any other voluntary health agency.

The Society's leukemia research program, according to Dr. Arminio, seeks to answer these basic questions:

Do viruses cause human leukemia? It has been established that viruses can cause leukemia in animals.

Can leukemia be prevented by a vaccine or other means? It can be done in animals; it remains to be seen if it can be done in humans.

Can a drug be found which will be permanently effective in checking the course of leukemia? Drugs have been found that will arrest leukemia temporarily, but not permanently.

Dr. Arminio said that evidence seems to indicate that leukemia may be caused by a virus.

Many scientists place their hope in this theory. Should this be found to be true, then the possibility of developing a vaccine against leukemia in humans is possible.

"If a vaccine can be developed that will work against one type of cancer, there is a possibility that a vaccine may be developed that will work against many types of cancer."

Pointing out that the last 15 years have seen a marked improvement in the treatment of leukemia patients, including the prolonging of lives for months or even years, Dr. Arminio said,

"The course of leukemia has been slowed, even halted for a time, new drugs, blood transfusions, and other therapy."

Backed by this knowledge and experience, the American Cancer Society is constantly expanding its "conquer leukemia" program.

The Society began this program in 1945 with a modest allocation of a little over $11,000 for research in the field.

"Today, this modest investment has grown into a $2,000,000-a-year project," Dr. Arminio said.

Why this concentration on leukemia research?

"Because," Dr. Arminio said, "the experience of the Society has been that by concentrating on one form of cancer, a great deal can be accomplished. The death rate from uterine cancer, for instance, has been cut 50 per cent in 25 years. If every adult woman would have a 'Pap' test as part of a routine health checkup each year, cancer deaths for this site could be drastically reduced," he continued. "An annual protoglycoidoscopy examination once a year can save many lives from cancer of the colon and rectum. Also, we have learned that about 75 per cent of those who develop lung cancer would not develop the disease if they did not smoke cigarettes. With leukemia, we seem to be on the threshold of something very important."

Felton Avon Club Notes

The Avon Club of Felton met in the Fire Hall, Wednesday, April 22, for a business meeting. Mrs. Howard Henry, president, presided at the meeting.

The club voted to give $5 to the Cancer Drive Fund. The club will give the usual $100 scholarship this year and also voted to give $35 of the scholarship fund money to help students attend music camp this summer.

Mrs. Marion McGinnis and Mrs. Walter H. Moore will be delegates to the Delaware State Federation of Women's Club Convention to be held at DuPont Hotel, May 20 and 21.

Mrs. Mary Layfield, a former club member and president and now living in Cape Charles, Va., was made an honorary club member.

A tea, May 6, will mark the closing of the club year. All members are agreed to be present.

Wait Until Mid-May to Plant Annuals

The first warm days of spring seem to bring out the gardening urge in almost everyone — but there are some drawbacks to becoming too enthusiastic too soon. Besides the inevitable sore muscles, there's a good chance that a lot of the hard work will be in vain if flowers are planted so early that a cold snap could damage them.

Dr. Charles Dunham, horticulturist at the University of Delaware, points out that despite the warm days Delaware has seen recently, it's still too early to set out many flower plants. Even though many stores are already displaying these plants, he recommends waiting until about May 10 before planting either seeds or plants of petunias, dwarf marigolds, ageratium, snapdragons, geraniums, lantana and sweet alyssum.

However, he notes, pansies, dwarf plox and English daisies—

all biennials or perennials—can be planted any time.

Dr. Dunham has experimented for several years with many varieties of plants for the home garden and has recommended some which have been particularly successful in tests conducted at the University of Delaware. He suggests buying plants by variety name to be sure of getting exactly what you want.

Petunias are among the most popular flowers for the home garden, and many people like to plant beds of a single color or a specific combination of colors. Dr. Dunham recommends Red Satin as the best red petunia; Paleface, a very prolific white petunia; Coral Satin, silvery pink; Admiral the best dwarf blue; Glitters, a ruffled red and white striped petunia, and Sugar Plum, a novelty petunia with a very unusual silvery plum color. Those who prefer double petunias may wish to plant Cherry Tart, a red and white double.

Dr. Dunham says the best tall marigold is Climax. Dwarf marigolds, popular as border plants, now available in a soft primrose yellow called butterball; traditional red and orange Naugthy Marietta; a new variety, Brownie Scout; and an excellent bright yellow, Sunny.

Another favorite border plant is ageratium. Blue Ball grows to a height of about six inches, while Midget Blue is about four inches tall.

Dr. Dunham's recommendations for alyssum are the white Carpet of Snow, or the violet Royal Carpet.

Rockets snapdragons are the most vigorous of all the snapdragons, he says, and they are available in several colors.

All of these plants require good soil and full sun, and they should be planted only after danger of frost is past.

Cookie Sale Profits To Build Camp

At the annual meeting of the Chesapeake Bay Girl Scout Council held in Central High School, Dover, Monday night, April 27, Council President, Dr. Raymond C. Grills announced plans for the construction of extensive new facilities at Camp Todd near Denton, Md.

The prime items in the Camp Todd construction program are 36 new Adirondack shelters, each with 4 bunks, to house a total of 144 girls. The shelters will be organized into 4 units of 9 shelters each, to allow for troop camping.

Construction, to be handled by Donald Trice, of Denton, will be of highest quality. Only wood which has been pressure treated to resist rot and termites will be used.

In the past year Girl Scout enrollment increased by 28% to the present total of 14,575 girls, comprising 865 troops in 150 communities.

In 1964, the first international participant from this area, Miss Mae Fisher, Wilmington, will spend 6 weeks in Peru, learning about its customs and studying the program of the Peruvian Girl Guides.

Thirty-three training courses were held by the council for more than 1000 volunteers, and 6 staff members attended advanced training courses.

Officers named at the annual meeting were: President, Raymond C. Grills, Greenville; first vice president, Mrs. R. K. Meixell, Jr., Carrcroft; second vice president, Mrs. Weston J. Donehower, Sedgely Farms;

Directors elected or re-elected were: Mrs. M. W. Ackworth, Quantico, Md.; Fred C. Carlson, Wilmington; Robert W. Bedwell, Wilmington; Austin T. Gardner, Wilmington; Mrs. Francis J. Thomas Evergam, Denton, Md.; William Calloway, Jr., Seaford; Mrs. William L. Hart, Salisbury, Md.; Dr. Seth H. Hurdle, Salisbury, Md.

Girl Scouting is supported by United Funds or Community Chests. In areas where this affiliation is not possible, fund drives are held each year.

In 1943 he opened a small shop in New York City, but five months later he entered the service. After the war he came to Wilmington with Jack Bungartz to set up business.

A three-page spread in the current issue of Delaware Today gives an inkling of the quality of his work while on the battlefield in France, Belgium, Luxembourg, and Germany. The exhibit at Delaware Art Center is a note-worthy one, particularly for ex-GI's who may want to recall some of their war experiences.

Discouragement is a common side-effect of stroke, one that sometimes affects the whole family as well as the patient. However, the fact that should be stressed is that nine out of ten stroke patients do recover.

Another is that modern medical research will continue to provide new ways and means to help the patient fight stroke. Stroke can be conquered. It happens every day.

Horror of Party Beach "Curse of Living Corpse" Reese Sun-Mon., May 3-4

Work is now progressing on the ladies' lounge with the 'pinks' and turquoise dominating the decorations. Much emphasis is being centered on the gay colors, especially those expressing the carnival mood.

Undoubtedly, the most interesting show of the season is on tap at the Reese Theatre, this Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 30, May 1 and 2, with Burt Lancaster, Kirk Douglas, Ava Gardner and Frederic March in "7 Days in May," the astonishing story of an astounding Military Plot to take over these United States.

As a giant added attraction, belittling all others heretofore the management is offering the first area showing of "Ballad of a Gunfighter," starring the nation's top western recording star, Marty Robbins.

Regular prices prevail with all children under 12 years Free if with parents. Yes, we dare you to see it! And not without an escort. "The Horror of Party Beach," is 'enough to arouse the ghoulish beasts who live off of human blood, let alone "The Curse of the Living Dead," which is more terrifying than Frankenstein—more deadly than Dracula. It undrapes the passions of the living. Horrifying demons from the dead attack the teenage slumber party. Terrifying beyond belief, only strong hearted folks eligible to see two of the world's most uncanny thrillers. You may meet your ghoulish friends Sunday and Monday, May 3 and 4.

ing the taxpayers $1.5 billion a year—our most expensive farm commodity program. The real heart of the wheat problem lies in the fact that American farmers produce more than twice as much wheat as is needed for food in this country.

Most of the excess is exported—sold for cash or shipped under foreign aid programs. The remainder is used for seed and feed. Across the country, wheat production averages about 1,200 million bushels a year. We use close to 500 million bushels each year for food. Exports are expected to reach 850 million bushels this year.

U. S. consumers pay farmers about $2 a bushel for the 500 million bushels of wheat used for food. Foreign buyers get it at a much lower price. The prosperous nations pay about $1.50 a bushel. This export bounty is necessary because our price support program keeps U. S. wheat prices above competitive levels in other exporting countries.

Nearly three-fourths of our exports wheat is shipped under surplus disposal-foreign aid programs to the less prosperous countries. This costs U. S. taxpayers about $2.50 a bushel by the time it is delivered.

FENCE TALK
With George Vapaa

Rain, rain, go away—come back some other day, after we've had a chance to catch up on our farm work.

Your Extension Service is developing several farm field trials, and it's maddening to get ready to do a field job only to be stopped again and again—and again by our spring showers. We can use the rain yes, and we're grateful for it. But we prefer some in July.

Let's tick off the several projects:

Sugar beets—The major trial of eight varieties of seed is being conducted on the Samuel Walker farm north of Woodside on U. S. 13. So far we've managed to get on the fertilizer and the Tillam chemical weed control. We would have liked to plant the seed as early as two or three weeks ago. Several others are planting small plots in Delaware for trial: Virgil Jarrell at Viola, Charles Hartnett at Hartly, George Baker at Middletown, and our University of Delaware Substation Farm at Georgetown. We'll probably have some extra seed available if others would like to work a bit with it. Our objective this year is to see how well the crop might do under our climatic and soil conditions.

Flaebettle Control on White Potatoes—Joseph Jackewicz, of near Rising Sun is comparing a fertilizer mixture containing diazinon insecticide with his regular fertilizer to see what effects may be observed on comparative yields. Other producing areas have shown encouraging results with this practice. Joe has twelve rows of potatoes staked off on the Sundel Ranch across from his home treated with diazinon.

Spring Seeding of Alfalfa—New chemical weed killers have made this practice a good possibility for Delaware farmers. Charles C. Blendt of Smyrna is adding this demonstration to his variety plots for Dr. William Mitchell, our extension agronomist. The details will be spelled out in a special article later. Yes, the rains have made us late in plowing and planting here too.

Corn Variety and Fertility—This will be the third year in a row that we are repeating this trial on the same land in precisely the same manner. James L. Mitchell and his sons of Smyrna are once again cooperating on this project. The seed corn varieties are all here, the fertilizer is at the farm, and yes, we're waiting for it to stop raining enough so we can get on the ground.

A final word on our cooperating farmers. They help us tremendously at considerable effort and cost to themselves—and regard their efforts as their contribution for the growth and progress of the community. We hope that you farmers will join us in expressing a word of thanks for their interest.

Many Kent County businesses that depend on tourist trade are losing money by not making their facilities more attractive.

Motorists passing gasoline stations, restaurants, and motels for the first time often pass up those that are unsightly, poorly landscaped, or that have inadequate parking areas.

Restaurants will often plant shrubs around the foundation of their building, but neglect entirely the borders of their property. Unsightly adjoining property can be screened by a fence, hedge, or a row of tall evergreens if space is available.

And there may even be room for flowering trees to give an attractive display of color. Garbage and trash cans can also be screened by plant material or a fence.

During hot weather, motorists are more apt to stop at businesses with some shade. The importance of having a few trees for shade, or to provide a background for the main building is often overlooked.

Plant material around buildings should be maintained properly to keep it healthy. Sick or insect-riddled plants are not a good advertisement. Many firms make the mistake of not properly maintaining their plantings—after investing a considerable sum for shrubs and plants. One solution to this problem is to hire a firm that does landscape maintenance.

Money spent in developing and maintaining the grounds of businesses is a good investment and will help attract more business, we believe.

The sign-up period for the 1964 wheat program extends through May 15. Kent County farmers planning to take part in the program will declare their intentions and sign an agreement at the County ASC office at 2319 South Dual Highway, Dover—just north of the Camden traffic light.

Wheat producers who sign up and carry out the program provisions will become eligible for price-support loans on all wheat produced. They also will qualify for marketing certificates with a cash value and payments for diverting land to a conserving use.

Budget forms available at the county extension office which will help farms study their alternatives. By comparing estimated returns under these various choices, the farmer can make his decision on a realistic basis.

We suggest that wheat producers check with our county ASC or Extension office for more details about the program.

GARDEN NOTES

1. Prune spring flowering shrubs right after flowering. Forsythia, spirea and other spring flowering shrubs are best pruned immediately after flowering. Remove branches three or more years old a few inches above the ground. Head back wayward branches.

2. Finish pruning trees and shrubs. Fruit trees, evergreens and summer and fall flowering shrubs should be pruned as soon as possible.

3. Chrysanthemums produce better flowers and stronger plants if they are divided each year. Divide now before growth gets too high.

4. Leave foliage on bulbs. Spring flowering bulbs must have foliage for several more weeks to produce flowers next year. Do not cut off foliage from daffodils, tulips and other spring flowering bulbs but allow the foliage to die down naturally.

5. Gladioli can now be planted for early flowers.

6. Treat lawns for crab grass before crab grass starts. Pre-emergence crab grass killers are not effective later on in the season.

7. It's still not too late to plant some of the cool season vegetable crops. Salad bowl lettuce withstands warmer temperatures than many other varieties.

8. Annual seeds may be planted outside now. Zinnias, marigolds and many other annuals can be planted outside any time in the next couple of weeks. Seed thinly and transplant to give each plant plenty of room.

9. Strawberries that have been planted a few weeks will benefit by an application of fertilizer now. Two tablespoonsful of 5-10-10 around each plant at least four inches away from the crown will be beneficial.

10. Feed roses every 6-8 weeks using 1/3 cup of 7-7-7, 10-10-10 or similar analysis fertilizer.

Paradise 4-H Club reports that their Group Talent members: Rita Hall, Blake Powell, Emily Tuttle and Clifford Hudson presented their act at the recent Felton Junior Class Variety Show. We're always grateful for these outside opportunities provided to 4-H'ers.

Joy Gooden, Fox Hall reporter informs us that Sandra Kirk and Leslie Steele gave demonstrations at their April meeting. Nancy Collison was in charge of the meeting and presented a program on "What 4-H Means to Me".

Westville club reporter, John Comegys, announced the club planned rural life Sunday program on May 17.

A reminder to all girls who wish to enter the County Dress Revue. The revue information forms are due May 1st. Do indicate before then that you are interested. Mrs. Becky Nickerson is selecting her committee to plan this event. Miss Nancy Kenschak will again be in charge of the stage decorations. Two courts will be selected this year—a Junior Court from members 12 years and under and our Senior Court. The Kent County Links will sponsor the awards for both.

Kent County Leaders will meet tonight, April 30 at the Asbury Church in Harrington. A Judging Handbook will be provided the leaders to assist them on preparing members for this phase of our activities.

Dates to remember in May are: Dress revue, May 16; Junior Council, May 12; Foods Training, May 18, and Junior Brouler finals, May 20, 21. Automobile project members watch for the date of a training meeting soon. Buchanan's Firestone Store will be cooperating in presenting such an event.

Planning is important to 4-H'ers—decide now which events you will participate in this summer. Don't let any slip by as each provides you opportunities to learn how as well as the fun of seeing your friends.

Research Designs Farm Products To Meet Family Needs

If farmers used the same methods to produce farm products today that they used in 1940, consumers would pay an additional $13 billion for the food they eat each year. Each family would pay an average $260 more for farm products than they now do, states John H. Shropshire, associate professor of animal husbandry and extension livestock specialist at the University of Delaware.

Consumers now have about 8,000 products to choose from at the grocery store. New products, new twists on old products and specialties that grandmother wouldn't have dreamed of are right at your fingertips. Research and applied technology have accounted for lower consumer and rises in farm output, Shropshire says. As an example, average meat consumption 30 years ago was 131 pounds per person and cost 5.7 per cent of disposable income. Today, 4.7 per cent of your income buys 163.7 pounds of beef, veal, pork and lamb for each member of your family.

Some of the changes have occurred on the farm, where the farmer is producing higher quality meat at less work and cost to him. Other changes result from improved transportation, storage, decreased waste and spoilage and better packaging.

On the farm, researchers test for improved ways to feed livestock that will give larger percentages of preferred meat. The emphasis in livestock raising has been to develop high-meat, low-fat animals. This wasn't always the case. Shropshire notes that many years ago, when the price for lard was three-fourth that of ham, buyers didn't mind fat hogs. The current wholesale price for lard is about one-fourth that of ham, reflecting less use of lard, and buyers reject animals that are not going to give them a high per cent of desirable cuts.

Many approaches to developing high quality livestock have been made. One study at a midwestern university tagged steers on the hoof and experimented with different feeds and feeding schedules. After slaughter, quality of carcass was matched with feeding to determine where improvements could be made. Other studies in the past have lowered farm costs by reducing the time it takes to raise a steer. It used to take two years to grow the average 1,000-pound steer which is marketed at 18 months today. This means a feed and labor saving for the producer.

Time and money are factors the farmer has to consider when he sets out to improve beef quality, Shropshire notes. Breeding for desirable characteristics may supplement or eliminate the need for corrections through feeding, he says. But it is costly and time-consuming, since three to five years may be needed to evaluate offspring. The life-span of a bull is eight to ten years and soon after the producer has his results, he has to start looking for another sire.

A technical development which may speed up evaluation on the farm tells how much fat is present on the live animal. A mobile unit uses ultra-sonic waves to determine depth of fat through the animal's skin.

Too little fat on meat is just as undesirable as too much. With homemakers looking for less fat on the cut they buy, they sometimes tend to choose pieces that do not have enough fat for their cooking purposes. Fat content, Shropshire reminds, serves to make meat tender and moist and is necessary for all dishes. Proper preparation of different cuts of meat also determines the taste and appeal of the finished dish.

Delaware Food Market Report

Meet May with mirth because the job of keeping the beef eaters in your family happy will be a simple one this month. While a reduction from recent high levels is in prospect, beef supplies are expected to be higher than the liberal supplies of a year ago. Continue to look for beef "specials" at your favorite meat counter and an especially good selection of meat bargains.

May has been named "National Hamburger Month", but ground beef has a hundred uses in addition to being a sandwich favorite. Because May 1 is moving day in many towns, you can be a good neighbor by preparing a ground beef and noodle casserole for the new neighbor in your area.

Farm marketings of turkeys this May also will be large—about a fourth greater than a year ago. Cold storage holdings are up 12 million pounds. This means you should keep an eye on poultry counters. Turkey is just the thing for a Memorial Day cook-out. You can use a small bird on your rotisserie, or a large bird cut in half for on-the-grill roasting.

May and June are the peak months for fluid milk production. The nation's dairy herd will convert the lush green spring pastures of the period into one of America's favorite foods. Only about half the fluid milk production is consumed in that form, the rest is manufactured into a long list of dairy products. The warm days ahead are an ideal time to serve cottage cheese salads, yogurt, sour cream dressings and ice cream desserts. And ice cold milk makes good drinking any time of the day or night.

This season's record pack of ripe olives has produced 3.7 million cases—almost 18 percent more than a year ago. So, add ripe olives to your shopping list and use them in salads, for pizza toppings, canapes, hors d'oeuvres, in sandwiches, a part of many salads and as a teammate for cottage cheese.

Also, right in line with May as salad time is the large supply of salad oils and dressings available. Supplies of basic vegetable oils—cottonseed, corn, and soybean—which are used in the manufacture of salad oils and dressings, are at record levels.

A wide selection of fishery products, both salt-water and freshwater varieties will be available in ample supply and at moderate prices. This will also help diversify menu planning during the month of May.

Check the following for good buys: clams, crab meat, fish sticks, halibut, lobsters, porgies, shad, fillets of cod, flounder and haddock.

New Law Provides 1964 Voluntary Wheat Program

Wheat farmers now have a new voluntary wheat program available to help prevent the threatened drop in income from their 1964 crop, Jacob Zimmerman, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee, said this week. The program is provided by legislation enacted April 11, which amends the law under which the wheat program was to have been operated this year.

The new voluntary program offers wheat growers who participate (1) a cash payment of at least 47 1/2 cents per bushel for 9 out of every 10 bushels of the normal yield for the farm (paid at the county office). (2) price-support loans averaging no less than $1.50 a bushel in Delaware. (3) diversion payments for shifting wheat acreage to conservation uses (similar to the feed grain program). All of the above benefits are guaranteed regardless of yield or even crop failure.

The Chairman explained that wheat producers who wish to take part in the new voluntary program will need to sign up at the ASCS County Office—there will be no "automatic" participation. Only those wheat producers who sign up and carry out provisions of the program will be eligible for the program benefits. The sign up will start no later than May 1, and will extend through May 15, 1964.

St. Stephen's congratulates her communicants on this new business venture and prays that it will prove not only a blessing to them, but to the community.

Today is Law Day of the U.S.A. and is observed each year on May 1st as a day set aside for citizens to reflect upon our legal system and its meaning in our society. This date was specifically chosen because of its contrast to May Day celebrations in communist countries, which in essence become a big show day of military preparedness. Let us observe this day with prayer for peace and with a special prayer for our legal system. It is hoped that many communicants of St. Stephen's will attend the Ordination of the Rev. William Martin of All Saints, Delmar, to Priesthood, tomorrow, May 2, at 10:30 a.m. It isn't often that we have an opportunity to participate in this beautiful service. The Vicar and several of the young men of St. Stephen's will be attending. There is always room for one more, if desired. Attention! Women of St. Stephen's: Since this coming Sunday is Rogation Sunday, the United Thank Offering Boxes will be presented at the 11 o'clock service on the following Sunday, May 10, which is Mother's Day. It will be noticed from the calendar of the week that this coming Sunday is Rogation Sunday. After the Holy Communion Service here, the congregation will go out to the Winkler's where they will enjoy the beautiful rogation day service, after which they will have a covered-dish dinner. The rogation Sunday Service, which will be held on the Winkler Farm, includes special prayers for the soil and the seed, the laborers, farm implements and tools, the farm homes and farm yards, the animals and the families and for fruitful harvests over all the land. As the congregation pauses at the various stations, which include a freshly plowed field, a barn with animals, a shed with tools, and the farm-house itself, suitable hymns will be sung and prayers will be offered for all the people of the country as well as simply those of St. Stephen's. This is an outstanding service for St. Stephen's. Visitors are cordially invited. Next Monday, May 10, is Mother's Day. The men and boys of the Church will give a breakfast for the women and girls immediately following the 8 a.m. Holy Communion service. Those who have not made reservations for this breakfast are urged to do so today, by giving the names to George Johnson or Robert Nelson of the Men of St. Stephen's, immediately following the service. Others should call the church office during the hours from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. not later than Tues., May 5. Attention! Men and Boys of St. Stephen's: It is necessary that you complete your plans for the Mother's Day Breakfast without delay. The congregation are reminded to bring a special offering for seed for our fellow Christians in Uganda. The Burpee Seed Company send 25¢ worth of seed for every nickel we contribute. The youth of St. Stephen's wish to thank the people of Harrington and vicinity for helping to make their car wash last Saturday a big success. Mean time will the owner of a very nice brown floor mat please let us know so that we can deliver it to him.

On Saturday evening Monsignor Paul Taggart will be at St. Bernadette's for confessions from 7:30 until 9:00. Falcon Rally Beats Lions, 5-3

Harrington High's baseballers lost their third straight close contest on Thursday to Dover Air Base High by a score of 5-3. The Lions had the Falcons hanging on the ropes for six innings, only to weaken and lose the game in the seventh and last inning.

Walter Perdue was almost perfect for five innings as he blanked the Birds on one scratch hit. Tiring in the sixth he walked two men, hit another and gave up a single to Chap Wasson, which drove in two runs. Barry Fry relieved Perdue and fanned the next batter on a changeup for the second out. Rusty Jack on short-stop threw out the next hitter to end the sixth frame with the score 3-2 in Harrington's favor.

Dover Air scored three times in the seventh off Fry and Rennie French without benefit of a hit. Two walks, two errors and a play to the wrong base did the damage. The Lions went ahead 1-0 in the first inning as Bill Adams singled, stole second base and came across on a single by Walter Perdue.

In the third stanza, Frank Collins was on first base when Myers, the Falcon hurler, balked him to second. A wild pitch sent him to third. Perdue got credit for another RBI by sending a long fly to the outfield. Mike Wamsley, who had reached first on an error, went to second after the long fly was caught and scored on Rusty Jack's single.

Bill Adams made a good catch after a long run and doubled a runner off first base in the fourth inning. Frank Collins in right field made another fine catch in the next frame.

The Lions outhit the Falcons 4-2 but could do nothing at the dish when Chap Wasson took over for starter Myers.

At this writing the victors have a 4-0 record and are atop the Henlopen Conference standings.

Greenwood Wins First at Delmar

After dropping their first two games of the season, Greenwood High got in the win column by defeating Delmar 10-6 on Thursday afternoon.

Ron Breeding spaced seven hits for the victory as Julian Woodall rode the bench for the first time in several years. Woodall had pitched almost every inning for the Foresters during the last three seasons.

Wendell Hughes led the winners' attack with two hits and three runs driven across the plate. Heinz Retzlaff also had three RBIs.

Greenwood had a comfortable 6-0 lead before the Wildcats faltered in the fourth. The Foresters put the game out of reach with four more runs in the last two innings.

Delmar visited Felton Monday, struck quickly for one run and drew goose eggs for the rest of the afternoon as the host Felton High nine scored nine runs on only five hits to win easily.

Jim Blades again was the winning pitcher, holding the Wildcats to four hits. Ron Draper and Will Dill had two safeties each for the Green Devils.

Shades of Robin Hood, Archer Nails Rat

A huge rat was spotted in the neighborhood of Wheeler's Park on Friday by a worried housewife, who feared that the destructive rodent might be a resident of her cellar. Her fears were short-lived, however, for archer Gary Porter, the William Tell of Harrington Avenue, spotted the creature crossing his lawn and nailed the villain to the sod with one well-aimed shaft. Roy Porter, Gary's brother then delivered the coup de grace with a board.

A Parent Asks; A Coach Answers

Question:
 Of what value is football?
 Answer:

Football is the game of life. It preparation, participation, experiences, and results compare favorably with the life process as we go about our duties in the home, in the office, and in the community.

Football teaches the democratic principles of equality and unity to the spectators as well as to the players. Probably the only time the whole school and town are unified is on game day. On that Saturday afternoon, the worker and the executive are seen rubbing shoulders, eating hot dogs, and cheering the home team. People of various races, colors, and creeds are as one as their team drives for the goal or doggedly turns back powerful offensive thrusts by the opponent.

Football is a game which contributes to the total personality of the participant. It has been given a great deal of credit as a developer of character. However, we must keep in mind that a marble statue cannot be fashioned out of mud; neither can character be developed where none exists. Therefore, it is just as true that it takes character to play football, as it is that football builds character.

In contributing to the total personality, football develops a boy physically. It satisfies his immediate desire for physical exercise and physical contact. It provides an opportunity for him to go beyond the limits of normal endurance. Playing football puts a boy in excellent physical condition and teaches him good health habit which are essential to continued excellence. It gives him an opportunity to relax in a recreational atmosphere.

Emotionally, a boy must learn how to control himself in order to operate effectively under pressure. Playing football helps him develop confidence in himself and in others. It teaches him to defeat his weaknesses and fears. He learns that the human body, his body, can withstand considerable punishment, and yet overcome them in the pursuit of ultimate success.

Socially speaking, football helps a boy learn that he must operate under a pre-arranged system of rules and regulations. Within this framework, he learns how to respect, communicate, and cooperate with others who are striving toward the same ends. He experiences team play and loyalty—loyalty to himself, his group, and his community. He is taught how to win modestly and lose gracefully, but gracefully. Above all, he becomes an industrious person because he learns that laggards in a group are looked down upon.

Finally, football develops a mental toughness which is seldom experienced in our present day mode of living. This mental toughness is born of a burning desire to excel and succeed. This quality must conquer all of a boy's weaknesses, if he is to be victorious. Football is one of the few bastions of discipline left for the American boy. It is probably the only place where a boy will be punished immediately and effectively for a mistake or infraction. Not only will he experience punishment for his infraction, but so will all who are on his side.

A boy must have something to do; he must be taught how to do it; he must compete against his contemporaries and display a burning desire to accomplish. He must do all these things within a set of rules. If he cheats, he must be punished; if he loses, he must be consoled; if he wins, he must be rewarded.

H.S.S. Romps In Triangular Track Win

Harold McDonald's Harrington High track team won its second straight meet by scoring a resounding 90 1/2 points to 34 for Bridgeville and 12 1/2 for Milton.

Co-captain Dennis Rogers and senior Joe Taylor showed the way by winning two events each. Rogers captured the mile and half-mile runs, while Taylor won top honors in the shot and the discus.

Outstanding performances were turned in by Bob Smith in the 440 yard run and Frank Cain in the pole vault. Smith clocked a fine 54.3.

Barry Fry was not far back in the same race. Cain leaped 10 ft. 9 in. to lead a four-way Lion sweep in the pole vault.

Bill Adams, George Bonniwell and Larry Garey nabbed the next three spots. Garey's fourth place vault of 9 ft. 6 in. compares favorably with the 9 ft. 9 in., school record set by his brother, Don Garey, a few years ago and since broken by Cain.

Three dual meets in the big-school Blue Hen Conference the same day as the H.S.S. victory saw the pole vault won with heights less than 9 ft. 6 in. The other six Blue Hen teams could not match Cain's work.
