

Safety Expert Urges Drivers To Use Caution During Memorial Holiday

A grim reminder was issued today by a safety expert. The reminder is: "Memorial Day is a time for commemorating the honored dead—not a time to add to the list of the dead."

It came from J. James Ashton, manager of the Delaware Safety Council, who said holiday weekends have too often been deadly affairs. Last year 525 Americans were killed and over 18,000 injured in automobile accidents over the 4-day Memorial Day weekend.

Delaware has frequently managed to avoid fatal accidents on holiday weekends, Ashton said. Last year, however, the state's experience was unusually bad—three persons were killed in three separate fatal accidents.

The safety expert made an appeal for prudence in driving to prevent fatal and other serious accidents this weekend, during which an upsurge of traffic is expected because of the holiday.

He said common sense rules of driving behavior add up to prudent driving. These are:

1. Hold your speed to the posted speed limits, even if cars are passing you.
2. Be ready to stop in time if the need arises.
3. Drive with patience, courtesy and common sense, putting your safe arrival first in importance and the time of arrival at your destination low in importance.
4. Refrain from driving if you have been drinking or if you are sleepy.

"The size of the national death toll on the highways on the Memorial Day weekend will depend to a large extent on how well drivers follow those prudent policies," he said.

Boy, 8, Injured As Car Hits Bike

An 8-year-old boy was injured at Viola Saturday when the bike he was riding was struck by a car, state police said.

Injured was William Coombs of Viola. He was treated at Kent General Hospital where an official said the injury is listed as abrasions.

Police said the driver of the car, John Remley, 59, of Felton, was fined $10 and costs for failing to reduce speed.

Remley was driving on Delaware 32 in a reduced speed zone when the boy cut across in front of the car on his bike, police said.

Kent Home Doings

Enjoy Strawberries Now, Freeze Them For Later.

There will be strawberries in profusion this year from mid-May through June reports Kathleen Thomas, Kent County Home Economics Extension Agent. Find new ways for your family to enjoy them—in a cream pie, on pancakes, or in a punch, she suggests.

When you've eaten all you can, freeze some. Strawberries are the pride of the freezer. They keep their natural color and fresh flavor many months after strawberry time has passed. They're easy to freeze with these simple instructions.

Select firm, ripe strawberries—about 2/3 quart fresh strawberries for each pint of sliced berries to be frozen. Wash, drain, remove hulls, and slice the berries. Sprinkle with sugar—3/4 cup to each quart of sliced berries. Turn berries over and over until sugar is dissolved and juice is formed.

Pack berries in wide-mouthed, pint or quart containers. Leave 1/2 inch space at the top of pints, 1-inch space in quarts. Place a small piece of crumpled

Howard Williams To Retire After 52 Years With PRR

Howard Williams, local agent for PRR is retiring May 31 after 52 years of continuous service.

Born at Showell, Md., where he entered the service April 24, 1912 as clerk and block operator, later serving in same capacity at all points on the DM & V branch and also the main line, Delmar to Wilmington.

In 1917-18 he served as relay message operator in the general office at Wilmington.

He was made agent at Bishop, Md., October 1, 1920 and at Showell, June 15, 1927; East Newmarket, March 1, 1932 to July 1, when sent to Delmar and came to Harrington in March, 1938.

He is a member of the Harrington Fire Company, past president of the Rotary, Eastern Star and of the Masonic Fraternity.

Howard is proud of his service and, though still in good health and a clear mind, has decided to retire rather than have something happen that might mar his good record. He wishes to thank his many friends and associates without whom he says he could never have attained such a happy and healthful retirement.

Harrington is also proud of Howard and his wife, Blanche, with their beautiful home and flower-decked yard, which has added so much to Delaware Ave.

Speech Class Open In Milford

A unique speech class is held in Milford twice a month to provide speech instruction for persons left speechless by surgical removal of their larynx.

Classes are conducted by George L. Foster of Wilmington, secretary of Wilmington Laryngect Society. They are held in the State Health Unit, in the old Post Office, from one to 2:30 p. m. on the second and fourth Wednesdays. Sponsored by the Delaware Division of the American Cancer Society, the classes are free to all laryngect in the area.

A laryngect is a person who has had the larynx, or voice box, removed surgically, usually because of cancer. In order to speak, he must learn a new method of creating sound by causing the walls of the esophagus and pharynx to vibrate. This creates a low-pitched sound which the laryngect articulates into words with the tongue, lips, teeth and palate, as in normal speech.

The Milford class was started in February, 1963, to provide speech retraining for laryngects in lower Delaware and nearby Maryland areas. Some individuals learn the new speech process in a few weeks, others take as long as a year. Usually, there are about five persons at a time attending the class.

A similar class is offered in Wilmington by the Eugene duPont Memorial Institute, Kennett Pike, for laryngects in northern Delaware and nearby Pennsylvania communities.

Staffing the speech class is one of several services offered by members of the Wilmington Laryngect Society. At the request of a physician, they will call on a hospital patient who has just had his larynx removed, to demonstrate that it is possible to speak well with an esophageal voice.

At time, they are asked to visit the families of patients before hospitalization, to explain what they can expect to face after the operation, and to assure them that normal family life is possible.

Husbands and wives of laryngects are invited to attend the speech classes to learn methods of helping the patient with his speech retraining.

Cancer of the larynx is one of the most curable of all cancers if it is discovered in time. There were about 4,400 new cases of cancer of the larynx discovered

2 Women's Clubs Win Nat'l Awards By Dinner

Two women's clubs in Delaware have won national awards of $500 each for their roles in helping young people in their communities further their education. It was announced by Mrs. J. Frederick Miles of Seaford, president of the Delaware Federation of Women's Clubs.

The winning clubs are the Dover Century Club, Dover, and the Acorn Club of Seaford. Presentation of awards was made at the state convention of the Federation in the Dupont Hotel in Wilmington on May 20.

The awards are among 100 made nationwide in 1964 through the General Federation of Women's Clubs—Shell Oil Company Education Program.

Mrs. Charles L. Peck, Jr., State Scholarship Chairman of the Federation, of Harrington, said that the Dover Century Club won its award for providing financial aid to a child in kindergarten, special music instruction for junior and senior high school pupils, and a scholarship for a college student.

A full-tuition scholarship to the Dover Kindergarten was provided for a bright child from a broken home in order to insure a more favorable environment.

Delaware is one of the few states without public school kindergartens.

Junior and senior high school students in Dover interested in playing string instruments were insured needed instruction through a Century Club grant making it possible to bring a teacher from Wilmington.

A scholarship provided by the Century Club also enabled a local boy to complete a year of study at Wesley College.

The Century Club raises funds for its education program by selling advertisements in its telephone directory and by soliciting contributions from Dover residents.

The Acorn Club of Seaford conducts a diversified program of aid to education, including a scholarship enabling a Seaford girl to continue her studies beyond high school, support of the American Field Service Exchange Program and the Delaware Foundation for Retarded Children, and a Scholarship enabling a worthy student to attend the Summer Music Camp at Wesley College.

Sale of advertising in a local telephone directory provides funds for the club's scholarship program.

Democrat Post Goes to Dukes

Secretary of State Elisha C. Dukes of Selbyville was unanimously elected chairman of the Democratic State Committee at Dover Friday night.

Democrats, in one of their most harmonious reorganization sessions in years, also unanimously elected all other state committee officers.

William J. McClafferty Jr., president of Wilmington City Council, was named to succeed Dukes as vice chairman. Mrs. Edna Brasure of Milton, was returned as vice chairwoman. Mrs. John I. Calahan of Green Acres was elected to her 10th consecutive term as secretary and Maurice Williams of Wilmington was renamed treasurer.

Dukes succeeds John M. Conway, who voluntarily stepped down after being chairman four years.

Dukes, vice chairman for eight years, was defeated by Conway in a bid for the chairmanship in 1960. He has directed the party's last two statewide campaigns. He has been secretary of state since Gov. Elbert N. Carvel took office in 1961.

Conway commented: "It's been a lot of work, and a lot of headaches have been involved, but I made a lot of friends and as one goes through life, that is the best thing that can happen to him. There is a lot of work to be done. It is particularly important that we elect a governor. And I would like to leave you with this thought. Let your mind be a light that will shine for others to live by."

Dukes, in his acceptance speech, said, "This is the most harmonious meeting of the Democratic State Committee that I have ever attended. I hope it is not an omen that we are becoming lazy."

"This will be a challenging campaign. We will meet the challenge with vigor. I expect the best efforts of all of you, and we will come out winners in what promises to be a rough and hard-fought election."

Girl Killed In Go-Kart Crash

Deborah Lee Hignutt, a fourth grader at Frederica School, was killed Sunday when she drove the small, motorized car from a driveway of her rural home into the path of an auto on Kent County Route 380.

Miss Hignutt lived with her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin C. Trice, in a trailer, 1 1/2 miles west of Frederica. Sunday afternoon she was driving the Go-Kart—a small four-wheeled vehicle powered by a gasoline motor—on the land surrounding her home. The vehicle had been purchased for her a week ago.

According to state police, she drove the Go-Kart out the driveway and onto Route 380, into the path of an eastbound car driven by Clarence Voshell, 37, of Magnolia. She was pronounced dead on arrival at Milford Hospital by Dr. W. Lang Chu.

The Hignutt girl is also survived by her father, Harry Lee Hignutt, of New York City; her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Baker, Frederica, and her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hignutt, of Hickman.

Services were held Thursday at 2 p. m. at the McKnatt Funeral Home, Harrington.

Blood Bank to Celebrate Nine Years of Service

The first twins to receive aid from the Blood Bank of Delaware are thriving and growing—just like the organization which is credited with saving their lives.

John and Jane Zoladkiewicz marked their eighth birthday on Sunday at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Zoladkiewicz, 505 East Thirty-fifth Street.

The Blood Bank of Delaware, Inc., was nine years old May 15 and celebrated by increasing benefits for its clients, founder and president James F. McCloskey announced.

When the Zoladkiewicz twins were born in Wilmington General Hospital May 17, 1956, little hope was given for their survival. They were premature babies. John weighed in at two pounds four ounces, while his sister tipped the scales at one pound thirteen ounces.

In nearly all such cases premature infants need whole blood to help them survive through the first few weeks.

The Zoladkiewicz family was ready for the emergency. They had subscribed to the Blood Bank of Delaware on December, 1955 through the General Motors Boxwood plant, where Mr. Zoladkiewicz is still employed. This was just a few months after the non-profit organization was formed.

There was no need for the parents to hunt blood donors, nor was there need to purchase blood. Their membership assured hospital officials that any quantity used for the babies would be replaced.

The youngsters were given whole blood over a three-month period, and Mrs. Zoladkiewicz gives full credit for their survival to membership in the organization now recognized nationally and on which other banks are patterned in other states.

The system of blood replacement continues—and with the growth of the Blood Bank—McCloskey says it has nearly 47,000 members today—there is always assurance of a blood supply.

To celebrate its ninth birthday, McCloskey announced that beginning May 16, the out-of-state cash allowance for emergencies and operations will be raised from $300 to $400.

Members who have emergencies in other states, or who are to undergo out-of-state surgery ordered by a Delaware physician are eligible for the cash grant.

With the growth of the Blood Bank, members are called on less frequently for donations. Under the original contract it costs $1 for a member of a family to join, plus $1 annual dues. The subscriber also pledges to give a pint of blood when called upon to help supply the replacement program. After an initial contribution, it may be seven to ten years or more under normal conditions before a subscriber is called again McCloskey pointed out.

The subscriber is also assured that his entire family is protected in case of a blood emergency.

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel, as expected, announced Thurs., May 21, he will run for the U. S. Senate.

Nomination is considered in the bag for Democrat Carvel, who will oppose incumbent Republican John J. Williams.

In his announcement, Carvel didn't mention Williams by name, but his remarks were gauged toward the upcoming race.

In response to a question, Carvel said that if he were in the Senate now he would vote for immediate cloture to end the southern filibuster on the civil rights bill. As for the bill itself, Carvel said he might support some of the bipartisan amendments proposed for the bill but would follow generally the Johnson Administration line.

The governor said Delaware's next senator "must be a legislator, not just an investigator"—an obvious reference to several Williams-inspired probes into federal operations, the most recent being Robert G. (Bobby) Baker case.

Carvel said he favors a full investigation of the Baker case. "I don't say it has been cleaned up," he said, "but it should be. I favor and strongly favor eliminating any wrongdoing that exists in government."

He also said the press hasn't been diligent enough in asking questions about that $500 stereo set given to President Johnson and "the half-million dollars in gifts given to former President Eisenhower by oil interests for the development and operation of his farm at Gettysburg."

Carvel, joined by his family for the session, termed Williams as a reactionary who has done nothing to relieve poverty, increase medical care for the aged nor "in any way done anything to see to it that Delaware, which pays more per capita taxes than any other state, gets its fair share back from the federal government."

But Carvel also said he isn't interested in "any great increase in federal controls" along with increased federal aid.

Dismissed Teacher Drops Felton Appeal

Mrs. Anna M. Hogsten has dropped her appeal about her dismissal as a physical education teacher at the Felton School. She is in line for another job.

Her attorney, Nicholas H. Rodriguez, of Dover, said Monday he has written the school board announcing she is not pursuing the matter. He said he understood Mrs. Hogsten has a job for next year at Dover's Holy Cross School.

Mrs. Hogsten contended she was forced out because her girls basketball team had a disastrous (4 and 12) season while the boys were winning the Henlopen Conference crown. Statements from school officials indicated this was a factor in the decision.

The Rev. John M. Donohoe, pastor of Holy Cross parish, commented that, "We don't care if we lose some games." He said the parish school has given careful study to Mrs. Hogsten's qualifications.

He said he wasn't sure if the job had been offered formally, but he understood it would be. Her duties at Holy Cross would be similar to those at Felton, he said.

The Army's "Choice Not Chance" program has a special option for women college seniors who are looking for a promising job after graduation and for college graduates who have some job experience but want a greater challenge.

If qualified, these women can become commissioned officers in the Women's Army Corps and grade for grade receive the same pay, allowances and other benefits as their male counterparts.

Some of the more tangible benefits accruing to the WAC officer are top-level training in a specialized skill, additional education, development of executive ability, world-wide travel, companionship, 30-day paid vacation each year and salaries equal to or higher than in civilian life.

The young WAC officer is only obligated to serve two years on her initial contract. She can marry at any time and remain in the service or elect to resign her commission in favor of raising a family. The various jobs that WAC officers do within the framework of the Army are the counterparts of executive jobs spread throughout scores of civilian organizations. Many times, the skills learned in the Army prepare the WAC officer for highly paid executive jobs in civilian life. For additional information and answers to such questions as: "Will I be able to use my college training?"; "What about regimentation?"; "Living conditions?"; or any other of a dozen questions—see your local Army recruiter who will arrange a personal interview with a WAC Procurement officer. M/SGT. Walter R. Frazier, 218 South Governor's Ave., Dover, Del., phone 736-6937.

Job Openings In Navy For Women College Graduates

The Navy is currently accepting applications from women college graduates to fill administrative and executive positions in shore installations, such as naval air stations and naval bases.

The U. S. Naval School (Officer (Women)), at Newport, Rhode Island, will convene a class October 22nd, 1964, to train women for the duties of a naval officer. Upon successful completion of the first eight weeks, or the officer candidate phase, the women are commissioned in the grade of Ensign, U. S. Naval Reserve. After another eight weeks of officer indoctrination, they then serve for two years on active duty.

Women officers fill a wide variety of positions in the military. Jobs currently being performed in the operational field include aerology, computer research, microbiology, communications, legislative liaison at the Capitol, and public information. Others serve in finance, merchandising, supply, and comptrollership. In the field of management, where the primary need at present exists, women officers hold positions in personnel, administration and education and training.

Women having obtained junior status in college may now apply for the Navy's College Junior Program. These women would go to Newport for eight weeks between their junior and senior year and, upon college graduation, return to Newport for the remaining eight weeks. Appointments will be made for interested persons with Lieutenant (junior grade) Beth Coye, U. S. Navy, who represents the Women Officer Programs of the Navy in this area, with offices in Philadelphia, or contact the local Navy recruiting offices in Dover.

U. of D. Names Graduate Dean

Dr. C. Ernest Birchenall, distinguished professor of metallurgy at the University of Delaware, has been named dean of the University's expanding school of graduate studies.

His appointment as successor to Dr. James C. Kakavas, who retires September 1 after 35 years as faculty member and dean, was announced by President John A. Perkins.

The school of graduate studies, established in 1950, this year experienced a 26 per cent rise in enrollment over last year, compared with an all-university increase of 15 per cent. Both figures are more than double the corresponding national averages.

Dr. Birchenall joined the university in 1960. He has established a national reputation for his work in metallurgy at Delaware and Princeton Universities. He will continue to hold his distinguished professorship and remain active in teaching and research as well as handling his new administrative duties.

Dr. John W. Shirley, provost and vice president for academic affairs, said of the appointment: "His broad understanding of academic matters, his breadth of interests, and his wide experience in both teaching and research fit him admirably for this key administrative position. All of us anticipate that he will give stature and leadership as dean, as have his predecessors in this post, Dean Carl Rees and Dean James Kakavas."

Dr. Robert L. Pigford, chairman of Birchenall's department, chemical engineering, said: "It's a fine choice. We're sorry to lose the full-time services and talents of Dr. Birchenall, but know that he is well-equipped to further build and develop the university's graduate program."

Dr. Birchenall has written extensively for scientific publications on such topics as diffusion in metals and oxides, the oxidation of metals and alloys, and the use of tracers for metallurgical purposes. He also published a college textbook entitled "Physical Metallurgy" in 1959.

After receiving his bachelor's degree from Temple University in 1943, he took his master's degree at Princeton in 1945 and the Ph. D. degree the following year, working meanwhile as a research assistant in the Manhattan District Program on atomic energy and in chemical engineering.

In 1946 he became a research assistant in the Metals Research Laboratory of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, and later taught courses there in physical metallurgy and conducted and supervised student research in the same field.

In 1948 he was engaged in research on a project sponsored by the Office of Naval Research. During 1951-52 he worked on a contract on crystal growth sponsored by the Air Force Cambridge Research Laboratories. In 1952 he became associate professor of chemistry at Princeton University where he was in charge of the metallurgy research program in the Forrestal Research Center.

This February, the Office of Aerospace Research of the U. S. Air Force announced a three-year grant to the University of Delaware for study in the diffusion in crystals, the work to be done by Dr. Birchenall. He plans to continue the research.

Last March he was honored by Temple University as one of its distinguished alumni.

Dr. Birchenall is a member of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, on the publications committee of the American Society for Metals, Sigma Xi member, and a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

A native of Coatesville, Pa., he was married in 1948 to the former Ruth Tuttle of Attleboro, Mass. They have a son, who will be nine next month.

The School of Graduate Studies offers doctor's degrees in chemistry and chemical engineering, applied sciences (mathematics, civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering), behavioral sciences (education, psychology, and sociology), biological sciences (including agriculture), English, history, and physics. Master's degrees are offered in a much wider range of fields from dramatic arts and speech to political science.

Advanced degrees conferred by the university have risen dramatically over the past two decades. There were five advanced degrees given in 1939; 12 in 1940; 64 in 1948, including four doctorates; 129 in 1950, with 19 doctorates; 156 in 1959, with 24 doctorates, and 220 in 1962, with 26 doctorates. Advanced degrees to be conferred this June are tentatively given as 316, including 53 doctorates.

The number of students enrolled in the graduate school has also risen sharply. In 1945, there were 12 enrolled. By 1947-48, the enrollment was up to 279, then to 682 in 1957-58, to 1,100 in 1961-62, and last September, there were 1,428 students registered in the graduate school.

Food Packaging Is Big Business

There may not be many ways to vary the necessity of food for nourishment, but manufacturers have developed a knack for providing enough variations to keep housewives humming. Major new developments have made packaging the foods you buy a multimillion dollar a year business, says R. Dean Shippy, extension specialist in food distribution at the University of Delaware.

The proportion of manufacturing resources now going into designing new and different packages for the retail market has increased rapidly in recent years. Manufacturers are constantly looking for vivid new ways to present their products to the public. Package producers have estimated that 35 per cent more will be spent this year than in 1963 to increase their facilities and services, while the overall average of industry is forecast at about nine per cent, Shippy relates.

Housewives reap the benefits in added convenience, less spoilage and waste. New concepts in packaging have multiplied the uses for plastics and standard containers, often with a dollar savings over old methods. The packages you buy have become brighter, easier to read and more efficient to handle and use.

Easy-open cans, developed for liquids, have now spread to bottled products and solids, he says. Pull-tab openers that spiral around the edge of the can remove the entire lid without a can opener. These have been satisfactorily test-marketed with frozen concentrates and nuts, and more uses are expected. Snap-on plastic lids were innovated for use where opened cans are used later for air-tight storage.

Tear-tape openers are appearing on boxes and polyethylene bags, eliminating the push and pull tussle that often ends with broken fingernails. Resealable see-through packages hold cheese and crispy items such as pretzels and chips. A tear-string opens them; pressure tape seals them again.

Bread packages also feature resealable labels to keep contents fresh. Lunch meat in clear plastic containers that snap closed may be on the market shortly. Shippy reports that they were designed to solve the problem of protecting meat once it has been opened—eliminating torn wrapper when cellophane is used.

Boil-in-the-bag frozen foods speed from freezer to dinner table, while retaining nutrients that were sealed in at the factory. This method also allows the processor to add ingredients that might spoil if not frozen, such as butter, without fear of dilution or waste in home cooking.

"Shrink film" is being used more widely for meats, fruits and vegetables. Application of heat shrinks the plastic film up to 50 per cent and gives a tight-fitting cover that protects against bruises and shipping damage. Of the various types in use, some protect meats from frost formation; others allow produce to "breathe."

Dispenser conveniences now give the homemaker syrup in reusable pitchers, updated shapes in glass and polyethylene containers that are easier to grasp and manipulate. Canned beverages can be found in dispenser cartons which elevate at one end and roll replacements into position.

Cereals are arriving in shorter, deeper packages, called compacts. They hold the same contents and sell for the same price as comparable cereals. Homemaker approval was won because they are easier to store, less awkward to handle and offer less risk of toppling than taller, thinner boxes, Shippy says.

Other new conveniences in packaging for homemakers include snap fasteners on bacon packages and stacked cookies on a caddy for easy serving.

ROTC Cadets Finish Training

Five University of Delaware senior cadets in the Reserve Officers Training Corps are completing the ROTC Flight Training program at Greater Wilmington Airport.

The program, first authorized by the Department of the Army in 1956, is in its first year at the University. Cadets enrolled in the program receive 40 hours of actual flying time in Piper PA-18 Super Cubs and 35 hours of ground schooling in basic flying techniques. At the end of the course the cadets may qualify for the Federal Aviation Agency's Private Pilot Certificate.

According to Colonel Edward G. Allen, Professor of Military Science and chairman of the Department of Military Science, "the purpose of the ROTC Flight Training Program is to procure Army aviators. Graduates of this program are almost 100 per cent successful in completing the Army Flight Training Program which qualifies an individual to fly both fixed wing aircraft and helicopters, as well as instrument flying.

"The program leads to an interesting and rewarding tour of active duty as well as furnishing each graduate with a second career should he care to pursue it." One of the five students has applied for a career commission in the regular army. He is Bruce A. Blake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett C. Blake, 221 Harvey St., Claymont, Blake, a distinguished military student, is a physical education major who will graduate in June. He has been a cadet staff officer in the ROTC brigade this year. When commissioned as a second lieutenant, Blake will be assigned to the infantry.

Other cadets in the program, all of whom are being commissioned in the Army Reserve, are:

David Borgeson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Borgeson, 82 Garden Rd., Little Silver, N. J. Borgeson is a biology major at the university and will be commissioned in the artillery in June.

Russell L. Childress, a physical education major, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Childress, 6350 Crockett Pl., Springfield, Va. Childress will receive a reserve commission as an infantry second lieutenant.

Bruce Clark Frame, of Newark, is an economics major who will be commissioned in the U. S. Army Transportation Corps in June and will report to active duty July 1 of this year.

Alvin B. Roberson III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin B. Roberson, 20 Sunset Rd., Newark, who will be tendered a reserve commission in the field artillery in June.

When the newly-commissioned second lieutenants are selected for Army Flight Training they obligate themselves to a minimum of three years active duty—a year more than the normal two-year tour. The extra year is spent in Army schools, first the Basic Officers Course in the officer's assigned branch, which lasts about nine weeks, and then 47 weeks at the Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Ala.

Lt. Col. James F. Hayward, executive officer of the ROTC detachment, explained that "this is the first year that the Flight Training Program has been offered at the University of Delaware so it might be called an experimental program."

"At this point I can say that it has been a very successful experiment. Next year we hope to enlarge the program and offer the opportunity to participate to many interested students."

Atlantic Aviation Corp., located at the Greater Wilmington Airport, is the civilian contractor for the ROTC Flight Training program at both the University of Delaware and Pennsylvania Military College. Chief Flight Instructor Robert G. Latch said of the program, "It gives the cadets a preview of what the Army Flight program will be like in the service. It doesn't come as a shock. The cadets are prepared for the Army program before they report."

School Teachers Named for U. of D. Research Program

Eight Delaware high school science teachers have been selected to participate in a summer research program at the University of Delaware School of Agriculture and Agricultural Experiment Station. The teachers will work with University research scientists in entomology, plant pathology, animal and poultry science and horticulture, according to Dr. Morris S. Cover, experiment station director.

Assisting in entomology research will be Edward J. Kadda, 2104 Lynch Dr., Eastburn Acres, Wilmington, a teacher at Stanton Junior High School, and Claude G. Tisinger, Jr., 374 Gunning Bedford Dr., Dover, a teacher at Caesar Rodney High School.

Edwin D. Stowell, Jr., 900 Kenilworth Ave., Newark, a teacher at Christiana High School and George D. Stewart, 317 Nylon Blvd., Seaford, a Laurel Central High School teacher, will work in the area of plant pathology.

Selected for study in animal and poultry science are William D. Mort, Route 1, Greenwood, a teacher at Bridgeville Consolidated School, and Edward Malin, 104 Bestfield Rd., Wilmington, a Wilmington High School teacher.

Francis M. Gavas, 1902 Miller Rd., Arden, a Claymont High School teacher, and William M. Howlett, Route 2, Greenwood, a Bridgeville High School teacher, will participate in horticulture research.

The research participation program, now in its second year, is financed by a grant from S. Hallock DuPont. Participating teachers will receive graduate credit for their work during the eight-week session.

Summer Session Survey Results

Nine of every 10 persons who attended the University of Delaware last summer picked the university first and then decided on courses which fit their needs.

The other one in 10 picked the course first and then found a university offering it during the summer.

That was one result from a survey taken by the university last summer, covering more than 800 of the 2,650 students enrolled.

One moderate surprise from the results of the questionnaire came in views of the relative difficulty of the six-week course compared with the normal semester or quarter work, according to Norman Crawford, director of the summer session.

Almost 62 per cent found the six-week session "more academically demanding than the usual semester," with 23.1 per cent reporting it less demanding, and 15.1 per cent finding no significant difference.

"The responses could not be more encouraging," Crawford said. "Although students disagree about the relative difficulty of summer work, they agree that they have learned more. Only 11 per cent felt they had learned less in their courses than they would have if they had taken these courses during a regular college term."

Other responses indicated a student preference for class attendance during late June and July rather than later in the summer. Students, especially teachers, strongly endorse the six-week session as preferable to the eight-week session of previous years. Fewer than five per cent responded unfavorably to the further development of the two-session summer schedule.

The survey included these major categories—Delaware undergraduates, non-Delaware undergraduates, Delaware graduate students, teachers, and a miscellaneous grouping.

Both undergraduate groups saw the summer sessions mostly as a means of accelerating their education. Almost 10 per cent of Delaware undergraduates and 16.8 per cent of the non-Delaware undergraduates were taking enriching courses they couldn't fit into regular semester work.

Almost half of the teachers were using the summer courses as a means to qualify for teacher certification. More than three-fourths of the Delaware graduate students were attending primarily to earn credits toward a graduate degree.

The survey included questions about recreational activities and found that a greater percentage of commuters used the swimming pool in the afternoons than did students living on campus. Evening and weekend use of the pool shifted in favor of the resident students.

More than 700 commuters and 92 resident students answered questionnaires.

Percentage use of other recreational facilities—lectures, tennis, movies, concerts and others—was heavily in favor of the smaller group.

The University of Delaware this summer is offering more than 150 courses in two 5-1/2 week sessions. Registration for the first session is scheduled Saturday, June 13, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Classes run from June 15 to July 22.

A horse motel? Horses ride too, you know, when they travel today. There is a man in Colorado, who is developing a "travel guide for horses."

Elbert Golder, the executive secretary for the Greater Dover Chamber of Commerce, sends us a lot of his agriculture related requests. In this case, the letter writer is offering to list stable facilities at no charge in his proposed book. So we are in the position of helping to "refind" stables for the resurging light horse business.

The stable business of 1964 differs somewhat from earlier years. Owners are, or should be concerned about liability insurance. Too, there should be some concern about an exercise lot for the travel weary horse. A certificate of good health is required for the interstate movement of animals. A stable owner should be cautious enough to ask to see it. Diseases can move very rapidly with our modern modes of travel.

Anybody interested in a free ad in this man's horse travel guide? Call us at 736-1448, or drop us a note at the Dover post-office, and we'll give you the details.

New-type blades can make lawn mowing safer. Using one of the newly designed safety blades on your rotary power mower could save you or a member of your family from serious injury.

Power lawn mowers cause an estimated 80,000 accidents a year. Lawn-mower accidents happen mainly in two ways: hands or feet get under the running mower, causing severe lacerations or amputated fingers, toes or worse, and the rapidly revolving tips of the old-style straight steel blades, which may be traveling at more than 180 miles per hour, throw objects like rocks and sticks from underneath the mower with terrific force.

The new safety blades are designed to reduce injuries by eliminating severe lacerations or amputations and by not ejecting objects from underneath the mower. Various types of new blades on the market include a rubber blade, an S-shaped blade that usually will not eject objects, a disc blade and others.

Use these precautions with power mowers, regardless of the type of blade you are using:

1. Pick up rocks, sticks, glass and other objects before mowing.
2. Keep children out of the mowing area.
3. Never go barefoot or wear sandals when mowing — wear heavy leather shoes.
4. Never walk backwards pulling the running mower.
5. Be extra careful when mowing steep banks, hillsides and terraces.

The higher the price the individual wool grower gets for his wool, the greater incentive payment under the National Wool Act. The incentive payments on shorn wool are made at a percentage rate. The rate is the percentage required to bring the national average of the prices received by all growers for wool sold during the marketing year up to the previously announced incentive level. This percentage is applied to each grower's net sales proceeds from wool to determine the amount of his program payment for the marketing year.

For the 1963 marketing year, ended last December, the payment rate has just recently been announced at 27.8 per cent—the percentage necessary to bring the 48.5-cent average price received by growers last year up to the incentive level of 62 cents. This means that the wool grower receives a payment of $27.80 for every $100 he received from his sales of shorn wool during the 1963 marketing year.

The industry wants domestic wool that does not require extra work and unnecessary handling in the textile mill—a quality product which processors will find advantageous to use in competition with man-made fibers and imported wools.

Here are some things a grower can do: proper shearing and tying techniques; eliminate unscourable branding fluids, black fibers, tar, and chemical stain; avoid jute and other extraneous contamination; separate packaging of tags, crutchings, face and hock wools; and improve the individual wool package.

Improve your wool and you'll get a better market price and a higher payment under the national wool payment program. It's as simple as that.

Weed control, a must on cropland, is needed on uncultivated land, too.

Farmers diverting cropland to conserving uses in the 1964 wheat and feed grain programs will be interested in effective weed control measures.

Weeds retard the growth of soil conserving crops and rob the soil of valuable moisture. If uncontrolled, noxious weed stands can become a real problem, to farmers. And seeds from these weeds may infest adjoining crop and pasture land.

Many effective weed control measures are available to Kent County farmers. Recommended treatments vary with the kind of crops, extent of the weed problem, and the time of year. The county Extension office has complete information on recommended control measures.

Did your daffodils fail to "dance brightly in the breeze" this year? Daffodils are sturdy, hardy plants, but they can have their problems. The most common reason for no flowers is crowding. The bulbs have multiplied so much they are crowding themselves. To get flowers next year, divide the bulbs and replant immediately.

If your bulbs do not seem to be crowded, the weather of the past two years may be at fault. Lack of rain during the past two summers has been hard on bulbous flowers not regularly watered. This has hampered good food storage in the bulb. It has also hampered root development in the fall. Thus, flowers produced this spring are often small or don't grow at all.

To rejuvenate these drought-damaged bulbs, plenty of water is needed. Water regularly until the foliage dies down. Then start watering again in August and September to stimulate good root development.

Specialist at Pennsylvania State University offer the following: Farmers decide when to mechanize: It's a good investment if costs are no more than five times the amount of labor saved in a year. For example, if mechanization will save an hour a day at a dollar an hour, the farmer will save $365; then he could afford to pay $1,825 for the equipment. This allows 10 per cent for depreciation on the equipment, five per cent for interest on the value of the equipment and five per cent of the original cost for all other costs.

J. G. Stern, president of the American Institute of Cooperation, says, "While it is likely that certain chain stores have used tactics that are unethical and farmers have suffered because of it, it is also true that food distribution is a highly competitive field. This being the case, farmers had better move rapidly in the direction of coordinating their production and marketing efforts so as to have few sellers of their products to match the few buyers. This is the surest way to correct inequities in the marketing system." He asks the question, "What buyer will ever pay more than he is forced to for any product?"

Dean George M. Worrlow was signally honored last week by the oldest agricultural society in America, that of the City of Philadelphia. He was presented with the 1964 Award of Merit and a medallion as their top farm leader this year in the Delaware Valley region. The Agricultural Society is 179 years old.

Several of us were privileged to attend the presentation at the Union League in Philadelphia. The dean was cited for his services at the University of Delaware as an educator, scientist, and administrator for his humanitarian contributions to Delaware and to the region.

John Tarburton, the president of our State Board of Agriculture, went to the meetings with the wife and me. We were at a table with Charles Hallowell, former county agent in Philadelphia and now a lawn specialist with the American Golf Association. Paul Mitchell, his wife and Lewis Phipps, all of New Castle county, were also at the table.

It was a fine pleasant evening, and I like George Simpson's comment on the affair: "None deserves the recognition more than the dean for his leadership in agriculture and related fields."

Rarely have we had the excellent hay curing weather that we have experienced in the last couple of weeks. And it's surprising. Since the spring season as a whole was marked by heavy rains.

A man called me the other day wondering what might be wrong with his first cutting of hay. It did not heat up like it usually does once it is in the mow. The answer of course was that he put it up in fine shape. Low humidity, aided by strong spring breezes, gave midsummer weather curing conditions.

Many farmers don't even try to cure the first cutting of alfalfa as hay. They put it in the silo to feed out during the summer. This too is a good program, especially for the dairymen.

We've learned some facts about growing sugar beets already. Bob Stevens, our extension horticulturist and I spent last Saturday replanting about a third of the plot because the stand did not come up well enough.

We know now that a finely prepared, firm seed bed is absolutely necessary. Our substation plots at Georgetown had the benefit of a meeker harrow treatment prior to planting. But Sam Walker usually has no need for such a machine, and we tried to plant a seed bed which was adequate for tomatoes or corn, but not good enough for sugar beet seed.

The weatherman didn't cooperate either. Immediately after planting, the weather stayed cool and wet. Dave Greene, who has the feed store on South State Street in Dover, says that the seed bed has to be warm. Dave worked with beets in Colorado. He tells me he used to boss a thinning crew when he was only twelve years old. That was in the days when you chopped out extra plants with a hand hoe. And in this small planting, we'll still be obliged to do it this way.

This is the time to be experiencing our cultural mistakes. We're attempting his project on a commercial farm to more nearly experience actual field problems. Its often difficult to duplicate research farm plot work on the farm because so much extra care is taken to assure ideal growth conditions. Yet farm field condition must eventually be faced.

Average value of land and buildings per farm in Continental U.S. March 1, 1964 was $47,950. The range was from $14,300 in West Virginia to $403,000 in Arizona. Eleven states—mainly in Appalachian area—averaged less than $30,000 while six average more than $100,000. Those above $100,000 were Arizona, Nevada, California, Florida, Wyoming and New Mexico, in that order. Illinois was the top Midwest State with an average of $76,200 invested per farm. Where does Delaware stand? Bill McAllister, our farm management specialist at the University says, "I've had everyone in the Ag Economics Department looking for the source report from U.S.D.A. It's buried on someone's desk. But we know the figure is in excess of $30,000." Take notice Mr. Banker. Is farming big business? Why sure enough!

Numerous factors determine the success of swine enterprises, and a combination of several items, rather than a single factor, are generally responsible for the success or failure.

Most successful operators have a keen sense of observation combined with a well-developed knowledge of hogs and their characteristics. Other factors include adequate feed supply, a continuous program of sanitation and disease control and accessibility to a profitable market. Satisfactory facilities, equipment and labor force are other marks of a successful swine enterprise.

Efficient Use of Water in Soil Saves Resources

It's a well-known fact that plants need water in order to grow. But the amazingly large amount of water most crops require helps explain why the farmer often hopes for a rainy day.

For instance, a single acre of corn may use a half-million gallons of water to complete its growth. Needless to say, nobody harvest that many gallons of water per acre. In fact, says Dr. William H. Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware, a 20-ton corn crop contains about 80 per cent moisture. This amounts to only 4,000 gallons. Where do the other 496,000 gallons of water go?

This is the water which enters the plant from the soil, travels up the stem and is eventually evaporated from the leaves into the air, says Mitchell. The process is called transpiration. At first glance it seems to make plants almost as indifferent as humans to the wasteful use of water.

Water lost through plant evaporation is returned by rain. It is a continuous cycle, says Mitchell, but the problem faced by farmers is that rain doesn't always fall when soil moisture needs replenishing. To combat this, he says, farmers should try to conserve moisture that is already present in the soil.

Weed control is an important phase of any water conservation program. Water is lost through the leaves of weed plants in the same way as it is through other plants. During a dry spell, the water weeds use may make a significant difference in your crop yields, Mitchell says.

Cover crops that are allowed to make excessive growth before being plowed under can remove water that might be needed by the corn or soybean crop to follow, he adds. Six inches growth is recommended. Cover crops that grow to two feet or more before being plowed under destroy soil potential in several ways. The water they use may dry out the soil for two or even four feet deep. When plowed under, the excessive growth is too large to decompose with reduced soil moisture levels. In addition, Mitchell says, mature cover crops are usually low in nitrogen. Bacteria that play a key role in decomposing the cover crops can't function without an adequate nitrogen supply and will compete with harvest crops to obtain it.

Fertilizer improves the efficiency of water use by plants. Poorly fertilized plants require much more water to give yields equal to those with adequate fertilization. Water is wasted because of inefficient use and higher transpiration rates.

In the future, research indicates, we may be able to slow up transpiration without disturbing other plant processes, thus retaining a large part of our water resources in the soil for use as it is needed.

Delaware Food Market Report

June, with all its gala festivities—graduations, weddings, Fathers Day, picnics, vacations, and sundry other pleasant events—need cause you little concern as to the proper food to suit all occasions. The United States Department of Agriculture says markets will be well provided with foods to fill the needs of the season.

Milk and its products are always faithful standbys for the menu planner. Once again the dairy industry will be inviting the nation to participate in June Dairy Month as milk production hits the seasonal peak for the year. So far this year, milk production is running about 1.6 per cent greater than last year. About one-half of the milk is consumed as fluid milk while the remainder is made into dairy products. All of these are expected to be in plentiful supply throughout June and the summer.

Beef will again be listed on the plentiful list, this is the seventh month in a row this meat has been in abundant supply. Again the beef will top quality meat coming from pen fed cattle. Prices for beef, which were expected to strengthen during the second quarter of this year, will probably remain about the same as they have been during June.

There is a lot of colorful variety and tasty goodness in the abundant supply of spring vegetables which will be entering the markets in June. Some of the items that can be expected are: Golden ears of sun ripened sweet corn, bright red tomatoes, crisp green and creamy-hued celery, glistening green cucumbers, bright orange carrots and a variety of green vegetables - snap

"Operator, I need to make 339 emergency calls!"

On Saturday, 340 people had had a fine time at the church dance. On Tuesday, one of them came down with spinal meningitis. The dance co-chairman explained to the telephone operator how important it was to warn the others to see their doctors right away. Other operators in the area were quickly enlisted and, working as a team with the co-chairman, soon reached all those who had attended the dance. Without the help of the operators "we never would have succeeded," reported the co-chairman. Going out of their way to help is a tradition among telephone people. Glazier, Fry to Be In Blue-Gold Football Game

The Delaware Association for Retarded Children recently announced that there will be 13,000 tickets available for the annual Blue-Gold All-Star football game instead of the usual 9,000. The Association would like to sell 73 tickets in Harrington since Harrington High School will be represented in the game for the first time. Frank Glazier, head coach at H.H.S., will be an assistant coach for the Gold squad. Barry Fry, graduating Lion quarterback, will be on Glazier's team.

Joe Taylor Twice Sets Lions Shot Mark at State Meet

Joe Taylor, Harrington High's record-smashing senior shot put, enjoyed his finest hour in a Lion track suit, when he tossed the 12 pound shot 43 feet 8 inches and then 44 feet 7 1/4 inches in the Delaware Interscholastic Track and Field Championship Meet held at the University of Delaware's Frazier Field on Saturday afternoon.

Joe thus broke the H.H.S. school mark for the fourth and fifth times this year. His sixth place finish does not sound impressive until one realizes that the local boy is a comparatively short 165 pounder, while his rivals were behemoths reaching up to 6 ft. 5 in. in height and 250 pounds or more in weight. The winning throw by a giant, all-state football player was less than three feet farther than "Little Joe" threw. Taylor out threw many of the huge lads.

Dennis Rogers, a courageous, well-conditioned junior, finished second in the mile run for Harrington and received a handsome medal for his effort. He probably would have been a state champion today except that he got caught in traffic early in the race.

The winning time of 4:46 is well within the reach of Rogers, who ran 4:48 nearly four weeks ago, on a comparatively inferior track. Dennis, Jim Schiff and Harry Knotts, the three Lion thinclads to get as high as second place in a state meet all were unfortunate enough to make an error in judgment that kept them from being state champions, although Knotts reached that goal in cross-country. Schiff and Knotts scored seconds as seniors. Rogers has another try coming up next year. He could very well do it as he was actually the best in the race this year.

Randy Knox tallied four points for H.H.S. with a fifth in the javelin and a fourth in the broad jump. In the latter event, Knox made his best leap ever of 19 feet 11 inches and then really cut loose to soar 20 feet 8 inches. This last jump was ruled void because Knox slightly overstepped the takeoff board. George Pfeiffer's school record of 20 feet 7 inches is thus still on the books.

Bob Smith and Barry Fry finished second and third in their heat of the 440 yard run, just behind Claude McRae of Jason High. When McRae's time was announced as 53 second flat, it appeared that both Lions had broken Jim Schiff's fine 53.6 H.H.S. school record. The timers ruled otherwise giving them 54.1 and 54.2 respectively. The fast heat winners shoved Smith and Fry back to fifth and sixth. It is very hard for a boy to do well in the slow heat of an event of this type. You just don't get the competition you need to make you put out your best effort.

In the mile relay Dennis Rogers was replaced by untried Henry Minner since Rogers had competed in two events and was not allowed to run again. To the surprise of Lion fans, Henry ripped off a 55 second quarter compared to his previous best of 58.8. Richard Black, Barry Fry and Bob Smith carried the baton for the next three legs as Harrington clocked 3:41, the second best time in our nine years of track. This made five events in which H.H.S. finished in the point scoring, another new first for them. Minner's sudden emergence means that a mile relay team composed of he, Rogers, Smith and Black, all back next year, can run fast enough to qualify for the Penn Relays in Philadelphia next year. If H.H.S. should enter this, the world's largest and oldest relay carnival, other Lions might become inspired and run fast enough to boot one or two of the above quartet to the sidelines. What a pleasant thought to a track aficionado like this writer.

Mike Wamsley's Bat Sets Up Lion Finale Win

Catcher Mike Wamsley hit safely three times in three at-bats as Harrington High's baseball Lions defeated John M. Clayton's Bears 7-4 at Dagsboro-Frankford on Monday afternoon. The triumph was the fourth straight for the resurgent locals and enabled them to end their season with a respectable 5-6 record and a tie for sixth place in the twelve-team Henlopen Conference.

Wamsley had four runs batted in as he found the offerings of Wayne Long no puzzle. Long holds a victory over Felton and is rated one of the loop's best hurlers.

Walt Perdue won his fourth game of the season. Although he yielded eight hits, after giving up a total of one safety in two of his earlier wins, he kept them scattered and would have given up fewer runs except for fielding lapses by his teammates. Several Bears miscues greatly aided the Lions' attack.

Only one senior, Frank Collins, played an important part in the Lions' season-ending victory string. This fact gives rise to hopes that Harrington may be back in contention for the Henlopen title, as they were in 1963.

Perdue Just Misses 2nd No-Hitter

Walt Perdue, junior right-hander, earlier this season pitched a no-hit, no-run game against Rehoboth. Thursday afternoon the clever H.H.S. hurler was two outs away from a duplicate performance when Milton catcher, Wayne Brittingham, lined a single into left field to sport the bid. Perdue retired the next two men to complete a one-hit, 5-0 victory for the Lions' third straight triumph.

Glen Smith, Lion third baseman turned in a fine performance on third base as he had several assists and two hits in three trips to the plate.

Bill Cordrey and Bob Hitchens of the losers gave up only five hits but the Lions scored in four of their six turns at bat to win easily.

The victory upped the Lions' record for the season to four wins and six losses. Frank Collins was the only senior to see action.

Greenwood Unveils Lefthanded Third Baseman

Carl Baker, the Greenwood Foresters' coach, violated one of baseball unwritten laws by using the versatile Julian Woodall, a southpaw, at third base as invading Rehoboth cut down the Foresters 8-4 in a Thursday final game for both clubs.

Woodall is an exceptional athlete who had played second base on one occasion. He made the unorthodox move pay off as he threw out three of the four men who hit to him. Julian also had four-for-four at the plate to wind up the season with a husky .441 batting average. The little senior started at Greenwood in track, cross-country, baseball and basketball. He used to live at 219 Delaware Ave. here in Harrington and still carries an R.F.D. 3 Harrington address although, unfortunately for Lion teams, he lives in the Greenwood school district.

Wendell Hughes had two hits in three attempts as the Foresters matched Rehoboth in safeties. The Seahawks tallied four times in the first inning and put the contest out of reach with singletons in the second and third frames. Greenwood finished with a 3-8 record for the season.

Felton Clubs Selbyville, 8-3

Thursday afternoon Felton's Green Devil nine pounded the Selbyville Rebels into submission in a contest played at Felton.

Robert "Red" Dill had a large day at the plate blasting out two homers in two official at bats, driving three runs across the plate and scoring three himself. Third sacker Ron Draper also hit for the circuit. Jim Blades went the route and doled out three hits. The winners had an 8-0 lead before the Rebels got in the run column.

Felton was victorious for the ninth straight time after an opening game loss.

Peoples, First National, Rotary, Moose Win Openers

Buck Thompson's Peoples Bank nine won their Senior Little League opener with Tom Peck's Shaw's entry by a score of 12-4 in a game played at the Moose Home Monday night, May 18. Saturday afternoon, May 16, Ted Layton's First National Bank team had bested Jack Dill's Merchants 8-1 in the Senior opener behind the stellar hurling of Terry Yoder. Yoder fanned nine Merchants, twice striking out who hit to him. Julian also had four-for-four at the plate to wind up the season with a husky .441 batting average. The little senior started at Greenwood in track, cross-country, baseball and basketball. He used to live at 219 Delaware Ave. here in Harrington and still carries an R.F.D. 3 Harrington address although, unfortunately for Lion teams, he lives in the Greenwood school district.

Wendell Hughes had two hits in three attempts as the Foresters matched Rehoboth in safeties. The Seahawks tallied four times in the first inning and put the contest out of reach with singletons in the second and third frames. Greenwood finished with a 3-8 record for the season.

Felton Loses Bid For Second Baseball Title

Joe Kern's Felton High baseball team failed in its bid to win a second straight Henlopen Conference baseball title, falling before undefeated Dover Air High Falcons and their double no-hit ace, Joe Beiden, by a score of 6-2 in a game played at Felton, Friday afternoon.

The Green Devils' winning streak was halted at nine games as they had trouble doing anything right. Sloppy fielding resulted in several unearned runs for the Falcons, careless base running cut down at least four Felton base runners and twice the losers refused to try a squeeze play when one run would have meant an early lead against a top pitcher or a tie ball game as late as the fifth inning.

Felton pitcher, Will Dill, pitched a good game and did not allow an earned run until the waning moments of the contest. Dave Wood had two of the six hits off Beiden. Dill yielded only one more safety than did the Falcon twirler and deserved a better fate.

Although the season ended on a sour note, the Feltonians had a fine 9-2 log and have most of their team back for another run at the flag in 1965.
