

BUCKSON LEAVES DEBATE HALL AT LAUREL TUESDAY

Atty. Gen. David P. Buckson, campaigning for the governor ship, left a political forum at Laurel Tuesday night before his opponent has had an opportunity to speak.

Buckson said Wednesday he had to attend a Shrine meeting upstate.

He complained Tuesday that his opponent had ducked out of scheduled debates with him.

Buckson blasted his Democratic rival, Charles L. Terry, Jr., for "saying only what his writers want him to say." He said he had learned what Terry was going to say by reading advance text of his speech in a newspaper.

About 200 comprised the meeting in the Central High School auditorium arranged by the League of Women Voters.

After Buckson left, Terry called for creation of a bipartisan legislative council to serve as a year-round study arm of the General Assembly.

He promised that if elected he would introduce legislation to create the council with powers to plan, screen and draft legislation.

Other speakers included the candidates for Congress, Rep. Harris B. McDowell Jr., Democrat and James H. Snowden, Republican; and for lieutenant governor, House Speaker Sherman W. Tribbitt, Democrat, and House Republican Leader William T. Best.

Members of Terry's proposed committee, he said, would be the president pro tem and chairman of the Finance Committee from the Senate majority and the leader and whip from the Senate minority, the speaker and the chairman of the appropriations committee from the House majority and the whip and leader from the House minority.

Members would serve throughout the year both when the assembly was in session and in recess.

"It would be the duty and the function of the council," according to Terry, "to meet when the legislature is not in session and to plan for the forthcoming legislative session.

It would be the further duty of the council to study proposed major legislation and it would have a staff adequately trained and equipped to study proposed legislation and to draft legislation between sessions of the General Assembly.

"Along this line," Terry con-

Child Mental Health Service Urged

Delaware school children need more mental health services than are now available, the man in charge of analyzing the state's mental health programs, said on Tuesday.

"There's not much of anything outside of Wilmington and a few other school districts," said Dr. Matthew Ross, director of study of Delaware's mental health services.

Ross made the remarks at the opening of a public relations training conference sponsored by the Mental Health Association of Delaware at the Du Pont Country Club.

He told the approximately 70 persons attending the conference that the lack of mental health facilities in Delaware schools is "a very pretty serious problem. We need a great deal more in Delaware for our children."

Ross also deplored the lack of mental health facilities in Kent and Sussex counties and asked why a person with mental problems living downstate should have to travel all the way to the Delaware State Hospital at Farnhurst to get treatment.

"What's so special about mental illness that it can't be treated in your own community hospital?" he asked.

The study which Ross is conducting involves a large number of citizens as participants and will attempt to probe every facet of the mental health problem—from the incidence of illness to facilities for treatment. The study has been going on for 18 months and will probably continue for another year.

Other speakers at the session included Mrs. A. Felix du Pont Jr., president of the board of trustees of the State Department of Mental Health; Dr. Daniel Lieberman, the recently appointed state mental health commissioner; and Harry Milt, director of public relations for the National Association of Mental Health.

Carvel Admits 2d Term a 'Joy'

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel told southern governors in Texas on Tuesday he didn't enjoy his first term too much.

The second term? He said it has been "a joy." The secret, he told his colleagues, is "to take the public into your confidence."

Carvel was one of sixteen governors who spoke briefly at the Southern Governor's Conference, of which he is vice chairman.

"As the senior governor of this and of the National Governors' Conference, in terms of service, not age," Carvel said, "I'm going to share the secrets of what I think has been a successful gubernatorial administration."

"Often you have to learn the hard way," Carvel went on. "I had been lieutenant governor for four years before becoming governor and I thought I knew about state government."

But when I had been governor for two weeks, I wondered how I got there. The people give you responsibility and I soon was in trouble, realizing later that I had exceeded that authority."

Carvel then referred to a request from the National Guard that it practice firing over Bethany Beach. This was during the governors' first term, which ran from 1949 through 1953. He told how he gave permission and then felt the public outcry.

"I was very much embarrassed because I hadn't consulted with the people," Carvel told the other governors.

"No matter how good your program is, let the people be part of it. When there is a problem, broaden the base," he advised.

Carvel went on to name instances in which he had named "blue-ribbon, bipartisan" committees of interested citizens to help solve state problems. He referred to reorganization of the Highway Department, his Goals Commission, and committees to study educational television, fiscal changes in the correctional and mental health systems.

Following Carvel Tuesday was Gov. Frank G. Clement of Tennessee, who began by saying he was happy to "follow the biggest man from the second smallest state."

Clement and Carvel were together on a tour of Japan.

Throughout the session, there were many references by other governors to what Carvel had said. All agreed that his advice was good.

At the Monday session, which Carvel missed, the group discussed how a state could acquire land for recreation. At that moment, Carvel was in Delaware where the Senate approved Delaware's answer—usually windfall funds from the Du Pont-General Motors divestiture to purchase land for such purposes.

In this context, Carvel said he was pleased with Monday's work in the State Senate and declared he is confident that the House will follow through.

Many governors discussed specific problems within their states, touching on such problems as traffic safety, education, mental health and unemployment.

Final Registration Is Tomorrow

The final registration of persons desiring to become voters will be held tomorrow from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., it was announced this week by the Kent County Department of Elections.

The same date will also be the final day, before the general elections Tues. Nov. 3, for the change of addresses of voters.

See advertisement elsewhere in this newspaper for places of registration.

At Felton, registration will be held at the Grange Hall instead of the Felton Fire Hall, the usual place, because the firemen are having a supper on the registration date.

Tribbitt Considers Recalling House

Sherman W. Tribbitt, Speaker of the House of Representatives is considering recalling the House into session.

Tribbitt said early Tuesday morning that he is considering the action taken by the Senate Monday which saw the passage of the key divestiture fund bill, the school equalization bill and four bills considered by the Governor to be of major importance and requiring immediate action.

"I can't give an answer at this moment about recall of the House," Tribbitt said. "I'll have to get my facts together first. I am giving it thought, but I probably will not know until Wednesday morning."

The passage of the key divestiture fund bill (HS 1 for HB 388) came after a great deal of confusion about three previously adopted amendments and a fourth amendment offered Monday by Sen. Eugene Bookhammer (R-Lewes), and a plea by Sen. Reynolds duPont (R-Greenville) to consider two other bills in the divestiture package before acting on the key bill.

Sen. duPont called the matter of the amendments to the attention of the Senate, each of which was dated June 3, 1964. When the committee chairman, Sen. Walter Hoey (D-Milford) was unable to account for the amendments, he successfully moved to have them stricken from the bill, and in their stead, the Senate adopted Bookhammer's amendment which read:

"No funds provided for in this act ($2.25 million) shall be used for acquisition of public park, recreation and conservation lands my eminent domain."

DuPont also argued for consideration of the entire divestiture package before acting on the so-called "open spaces bill."

He said that HB 453 and HB 454, one concerned with a constitutional amendment involving divestiture problems and the other establishing a capital investment fund for the divestiture monies, should have action taken on them. "I don't say affirmative action," duPont said.

"I know my position is not popular, but I move to defer action of HB 388 until action be taken on HB 453 and HB 454."

His move for deferment was defeated and the open spaces bill was passed with 15 affirmative votes, one absent and one nay vote—that of Sen. duPont.

State Land Judging Contest Announced

Delaware Future Farmers of America and 4-H Club members are invited to participate in the second Delaware State Land Judging Contest. The event is sponsored by the Delaware State Association of Soil Conservation District Supervisors. Last year 40 4-H and FFA members took part in the first Delaware contest. The land judging competition will be held Sat., Oct. 31, at the Harris Livestock Sales Company located on U. S. Rt. 13 one mile north of Fieldsboro. The New Castle Soil and Water Conservation District will serve as host.

The event is planned to provide learning experience for youngsters interested in soil and water conservation. Such factors including soil thickness, texture, structure and color are considered in the soil judging process. Overall soil features, such as drainage, moisture holding capacity, erosion and capabilities are also considered in the scoring. Contestants are expected to select the most desirable use for the land being judged, and decide if it is best suited for continuous row crop, rotation pasture, and occasional plowing, permanent pasture, trees or wildlife and recreational use.

Wilmer Aist, Work Unit Conservationist for New Castle County is in charge of details for the land judging contest.

Vote Split Stalls Plans For Re-Zoning For Milford Plant

Milford Council Tuesday night failed to get the three-quarters vote it apparently needs to rezone the land scheduled for the Morton Hosery Co. plant there.

The zoning ordinance there says that if 20 per cent or more of the area residents protest the zoning change, the three-quarters margin on council is required. A council majority favored the plan.

At the sometimes-heated hearing, residents presented a list of complaints, and the school system reversed its opposition to the plant amid charges against newspaper stories on the situation.

The owner of the property, David Pack, asked whether 20 per cent of the residents had protested.

Council authorized City Manager Harold J. Hilliard to determine whether that many residents disputed the plan. It also asked City Solicitor Claud L. Tease for an opinion on Hilliard's findings.

After the hearing, Harvey G. Marvel, president of the Greater Milford Area Development Corp., which is sponsoring the plant, had said, "I feel that there is a great possibility that the ruling is in error and request that it be removed until it is determined whether 20 per cent protested the change."

After this complaint, council ordered the studies by Hilliard and Tease.

Dr. John Glenn, representing the Milford School Board, told

Deputy Sheriff Resigns in Kent

Kent County Deputy Sheriff William James formerly of Harrington, has resigned his appointment to work for an insurance firm.

James left Wednesday after courthouse employees gave him a farewell luncheon.

He has accepted employment with the Seibul Adjustment Bureau of Dover as an insurance adjuster.

James served one term as sheriff of Kent County before he accepted the appointment from Sheriff George S. Graham as his deputy. James is prominent in Democratic political circles in the county.

Graham has not named a successor in the position.

Deer Drops In For Breakfast But Doesn't Stay

A deer dropped in for breakfast at The Hub Restaurant, Dover, early Wednesday morning but didn't stay.

A 100-pound buck survived a crash through the window at 8 o'clock, but was killed by a car a few minutes later near Court Street, police say.

Police quoted one woman as saying she looked up from a booth in which she was seated and saw the deer halfway into the dining room. The animal then backed out of the window.

A few minutes later it was struck by a vehicle driven by Richard Leroy Hall, of Snow Hill, Md. The deer ran about 75 feet and dropped dead, police say.

Damage to the window at The Hub was estimated at $250.

Miss Mary Schuyler, of Harrington, a waitress, suffered a few scratches from flying glass at The Hub.

K. & S. Raceway May Continue Until Oct. 31

Kent and Sussex Raceway at Harrington will definitely continue its current harness racing program through next Saturday, and possibly through October 31.

William W. Shaw, director of racing, said this week that track officials will meet shortly to make a final decision on extending the current season.

"We have been forced to cancel four nights of racing so far," Shaw said, "so this means our scheduled 30 nights would carry us through October 22. It is certain that we would therefore continue for the remainder of the week, through October 24.

"Since we have the right to 40 nights of racing, I feel sure that the track directors will decide to continue racing through the final week of the month. This would give us a total of 38 racing nights this year, the same as in 1963."

A week of unseasonably cold weather held down last week's crowds at Harrington, but attendance and mutual handle still remained slightly ahead of last year.

Shaw congratulated Racing Secretary Dick Case in the excellent calibre of this year's racing, pointing out that the majority of races have found five or six horses involved in close finishes. Betting favorites have won almost 50% of the races to date, compared to about 30% in the past.

Ferry Use Lags; Agency Refuses To Pay $387,391

The Delaware River and Bay Authority received a proposed $5,119,000 operating budget on Tuesday, but spent most of its meeting airing problems of the Cape May-Leves Ferry.

The budget would cover the operating expenses of the ferry and the Delaware Memorial Bridge for 1965.

Among the problems of the ferry are:

Use of the ferry is averaging 300 cars a day instead of the 500 expected.

The operator of the food concessions on the boats says he has lost about $7,000 since ferry operations began July 1.

Authority members say house-keeping practices aboard the ferries and their appearance are not good.

The Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel Commission, from whom the ferries were purchased, wants the authority to pay $387,391, half the additional cost connected with putting the boats into condition to meet U. S. Coast Guard standards.

Two authority members are upset over the delay in getting specifications ready for the construction of the ferry approach road from Delaware 14 to the Lewes terminal.

Nolan Chandler, superintendent of the ferry line, said the lower-than-expected traffic volume was attributable to a false impression among travelers from New York and New England, who think the strike which ended Sept. 14 is still in progress.

William J. Miller, Jr., director of the authority, said weekend traffic has been exceptionally good, but week-day traffic could be better.

The authority agreed to an additional advertising budget of up to $10,000 to be spent in New England and New York newspapers to spark more traffic from those areas.

George Schatz of Bridgeton, N. J., operator of the food concessions, said business has been bad, partially due to the 18-day strike. The authority agreed to reduce its share of the gross receipts (Continued on Page 4)

Welfare Home Account Paid

Kent County paid that disputed bill from the Smyrna Welfare Home Tuesday, but did it under protest and indicated the battle is not over.

The Levy Court wants the three counties to meet and define which are capital improvements and which are operating costs—the latter the counties' legal requirement.

The $1400 for X-ray equipment was paid on a special request from the home so it could close its books for the year 1964.

The county had contended the equipment was a capital improvement, since the state budget director has ruled all equipment purchases by state agencies come under this category.

Kent served notice it would continue to protest such bills until the matter is cleared up. Sussex County had also questioned this and other assessments, but paid up eventually. New Castle has been more docile.

The commissioners voted to pay the bill after an appeal by the home. Director August Helmbold and other welfare home officials met with Levy Court.

The cost of maintenance and operations at the home are split equally between the state and the counties.

Levy Court President James B. Messick told Helmbold that "we are merely checking these more closely to do a good job."

"Because other counties give the home a blank check," there is no reason Kent should do the same."

Dept. Attorney General Ruth M. Ferrell presented an opinion she wrote on the liability of the Levy Court on welfare home expenses, stating that any expense clearly related to maintenance must be shared by the county.

She recommended, however, that the matter be turned over to accountants for further consideration.

She also recommended they be turned over to accountants for further consideration. She also recommended the questions be turned over to a committee of representatives (Continued on Page 5)

Felton Fire Co. To Hold Supper

The Felton Fire Company will hold its annual supper on Saturday, Oct. 17 at the Felton Fire Hall. The supper will consist of fried oysters and chicken salad and dumplings with dessert. The dinner will start at 2 p.m.

The Chamber of Commerce recommended the passage of a referendum for a bond bill Sat., Oct. 24, to improve the community's water system after it had heard City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann speak in favor of the passage of the voting Tuesday noon in a meeting at The Wonder R.

The improvements would call for a number of 8-inch and 10-inch mains and a well to be paid for by the $150,000-bond issue. Streets to be improved are Missillion, Thorpe, East, South, Simpson, Dixon, Liberty, Delaware Ave., and U. S. 13 south to the City lines.

Also to be improved would be a line from Thorpe Street, on the eastern side of the railroad, to Clark Street and Delaware Avenue.

That thoroughfare referred to as South Street runs from Thorpe Street, on the eastern side of the railroad, to Clark Street and Delaware Avenue.

That thoroughfare referred to as South Street runs from Thorpe Street to U. S. 13 and does not refer to a street of the same name running from Dorman Street to Calvin Street.

The Delaware portion of the project has been completed to permit improvement of the street by the State Highway Department.

A map of the improvements was printed in The Harrington Journal last week. Additional copies of the map are available without charge.

After City Manager Mann had told of the enumerable benefits of the proposed improvement, he said current income from the water plant was sufficient to pay operating expenses and the bonds off in 15 years.

The Chamber then recommended passage of the referendum on a motion by J. Edward Taylor, seconded by Randall H. Knox Jr.

In other business, the chamber recommended the City Council request Ken Meredith & Son, on U. S. 13 and Liberty Street, to take procedures to prevent unsightly cars from being seen from the street. It was also suggested that the Council get in touch with the State Highway Department about the matter.

Along the same line, President Thomas H. Peck appointed a committee of J. Edward Taylor, Mann, and Kessler M. Farrow to work with the Civics Improvement Committee of the Lions Club to ascertain what changes could be made to improve the appearance of the community.

Morton Melvin, president of Melvin Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of incinerators of chickens and other devices, told the chamber of the activities of his community and evinced his interest in community assistance. President Peck said he would arrange a meeting with Melvin and the Industrial Committee.

Equalizer Bills Cost a Riddle

The so-called equalization bill, designed primarily to provide more operating funds for poorer school districts, was passed Monday by the General Assembly, but it is impossible to determine its cost.

No amount was set in the legislation but the estimate most frequently used is $2.3 million, according to Dr. R. L. Herbst, assistant state superintendent of Public Instruction, in charge of business administration.

The money would be used as the state's share of additional funds to be made available to districts that are willing to pay more for their schools. The state would contribute to any district that wanted to participate in the plan but in varying ratio.

Poorer districts would receive a larger state share of supplemental funds than richer ones, thus producing the equalization effect.

The $2.3 million estimate is based on many variables, Herbst said. A figure of $1,000 per unit — 20 pupils in grades 7-12; 25 in grades 1-6—was employed by the Department of Public Instruction's research division in computing the estimate. But this unit value could change, as could the total number of units.

Under present law, the state provides $875 per unit in each school.

The state now pays an average of 80 per cent of each school district's operating costs. Under the bill, which needs Gov. Elbert N. Carvel's signature to become law, the 80 per cent base would remain the same, but the state would offer the additional funds to those districts that wish to participate in the new plan.

The amount of additional funds a district would get would be based on the district's property assessment and on the amount of money raised for schools within the district. Some—but not all—districts would require a local tax increase to meet their financial requirements.

Herbst said these provisions point up two other variables—the number of schools that actually participate, and changes in assessment.

The State Board of Education would make recommendations to the state budget director annually on how much money is to be appropriated. The legislature, using new calculations to be provided by the research department, then would fix a unit value and determine the amount to be spent.

Dr. Richard P. Gousha, the state superintendent of public instruction, has described the bill as "an incentive toward better education for all districts."

The minimum state payment to any district would be 20 per cent of the funds raised by the district; the maximum would be 80 per cent.

Figures provided by Gousha indicated that 22 districts would contribute more in local funds than they would receive from the state. Six of these would require a state tax increase.

The Alexis I. duPont, Gunning Bedford, Rehoboth Beach, John M. Clayton and Lord Baltimore Districts would contribute the maximum 80 per cent share of the increase. No district would receive the maximum 80 per cent share.

For example, Gousha's figures showed that the Alexis I. duPont District would gain an additional $82,400 for operating expenses if it participated in the plan. But the district would pay 80 per cent, or $65,920, and the state 20 per cent, or $16,480. Because of its financial condition, however, the district would not have to raise taxes.

Felton, on the other hand, would receive 73 per cent from the state and supply only 27 per cent of a $36,000 increase for current expenses.

Among all districts, those which would have to raise taxes to get the increases include Milt-on, Gumboro, Milford, Felton, Frederica, Hartly, Magnolia, Georgetown, Laurel, Lewes, El-lendale and Selbyville.

While the state, based on the Department of Public Instruction figures—which will require some revision—would pay about $2.3 million, local districts would supply a shade over $2 million.

Two Research Assistants Join U. of D. Staff

Two research assistants have joined the staff of the department of entomology at the University of Delaware, according to Dr. Dale F. Bray, department chairman.

Dr. Robert E. Jones and Jerry R. Longcore will work on a Delaware wildland ecology study designed to determine the plant and animal populations of various areas in the state. Project leader for the study is Dr. E. Paul Catts, assistant professor of entomology.

Dr. Jones holds bachelor of science and master of science degrees from the University of Idaho and a doctorate from Oklahoma State University. He was formerly an instructor at Washington State University and at Arkansas State College.

Longcore, a native of Alpena, Mich., earned his bachelor of science and master of wildlife management degrees from the University of Michigan.

The study, financed by a grant from the Christiana Research Foundation and federal money through the McIntire-Stennis forestry fund, was initiated as a result of increasing concern about rapidly disappearing natural lands in Delaware, according to Dr. Bray. He said it was felt that some of this land should be set aside so that its natural character could be preserved for future generations.

"Yet the use of such areas should not exclude the public. How to manage such land to keep it in as near a natural state as possible while permitting public usage is a job in applied ecology," Dr. Bray explained. "In order to know how to do this, some preliminary basic research must be done to guide the management of all forms of life in such areas—which is another way of saying the natural areas will be a proving ground for applied ecology management."

The ecologists will try to determine what happens in a natural wild-land when specific changes are made, Dr. Bray said. For example, they will compare the total production of all forms of life where natural lands are kept in a neat condition and where land is left in as natural a condition as possible.

Survey of State Office Space Utilization

There are 81 state agencies or separate divisions of major agencies in Kent and Sussex Counties. This information is part of a technical report entitled, "A Survey and Analysis of State Office Space Utilization in Kent and Sussex Counties, Delaware," prepared by the Delaware State Planning Office.

This sixty page statistical report is a part of the State-wide comprehensive planning program for Delaware. In announcing the report, John A. Bivens, Jr., director of the State Planning Office, said, "There were two purposes in making this study. First, information on current State office space use in Kent and Sussex Counties is needed if future State agency office space requirements are to be effectively met. Second, the study provides background information for developing a plan for the arrangement of State agencies and buildings in the Capital Complex in Dover."

A state office space study was completed in 1963 for the Wilmington and New Castle County area of Delaware. This earlier study revealed that there are 69 state agencies scattered throughout the Wilmington and New Castle County area with a mixed pattern of lease and ownership arrangements. Of the 69 state agencies in New Castle County, 21 were renting office space, 21 were in state-owned offices, 10 were occupying offices on a rent-free basis and 17 agencies reported no office. The state paid a gross annual rent of approximately $280,000 for office space in the Wilmington area in 1963.

The Dover Capital Complex houses 36 State agencies, and there are 12 state agencies in state-owned buildings in Kent County outside the Capital Complex. Delaware owns buildings that house 13 state agencies in Sussex County. In Kent County 13 state agencies rent office space while in Sussex County 7 state agencies use rented office space.

The gross annual rent paid by the state for offices in Kent and Sussex Counties is about $86,700. Rent amounting to about $72,900 annually is paid in Kent County while only about $13,800 is paid in rent in Sussex County. It should not be surprising that

Kent County claims a greater share since the state capitol is located there. The rental rate in Sussex County is also lower than the rate paid in Kent County.

The State Planning Office study indicates that a total existing net office space of 151,459 square feet is being used by state agencies in Kent and Sussex Counties. By 1975 it is estimated that a total net office space of approximately 238,000 square feet will be needed to house the State agencies in the two lower counties.

There were 5,418 State agency employees in the total state in 1963 excluding teachers and other local school employees. Approximately one half or 2,729 of these 1963 state employees were located in Kent and Sussex Counties. It is estimated that by 1975 the total number of state employees will reach approximately 8,900 persons if current trends continue. If it is assumed that about one half of the state employees in 1975 will work in Kent and Sussex Counties, then state agencies will employ approximately 4,450 persons in the two lower counties by that year.

Since the report, "A Survey and Analysis of State Office Space Utilization in Kent and Sussex Counties, Delaware," is a statistical and technical study, copies are not available for public distribution.

Rachel Rebekah Lodge to Sponsor "500" Card Party

The Rachel Rebekah Lodge #7 will be sponsoring a "500" card party the second Saturday of each month, starting with Nov. 14. It will be held in the Odd Fellows Hall located on West Liberty Street in Harrington. There will be prizes and refreshments.

These card parties will be held during the winter months and the scheduled dates are as follows:

Nov. 14, Dec. 12, Jan. 16, 1965 (exception, 3rd Saturday), Feb. 13, March 13, April 10, May 8. The public is invited.

Hog Prospects Good for 1965

More profit for hog farmers in 1965 is the prediction of a University of Delaware agricultural economist. W. T. McAllister, farm management specialist at the University, says the fall pig crop reports submitted by farmers in the ten states that grow 75 per cent of the hogs, shows farrowings during the summer to be down eight per cent from a year earlier. He says this is good news for Delaware hog producers.

Farrowings for the last quarter of 1964 are expected to be five per cent below 1963. The number of hogs on farms at the time of the reports was down seven per cent and breeding stock was down six per cent from a year ago. While the cutbacks in current supplies and future expectations seem large, McAllister says it must be remembered that these are percentage decreases from the very large hog supplies of 1963. These reduced supplies should cause rising prices for pigs marketed during the winter of 1965. Price improvements according to the economist should be at least $1 per hundred weight and could be as much as $2 per hundred weight above current prices.

McAllister says getting a better price for hogs at the market is only one part of the profit formula. He cites a study of 709 Illinois farms which showed that the greatest difference between high and low profit on hogs was due to feed efficiency and the cost of feed per hundred pounds of gain. Highly efficient farmers received $158 from each $100 invested in feed. Poor operators got only $111 return for each $100 spent for feed. Farmers that had low cost gains also were superior in other management factors having larger litters and lower mortality rates. Also they got an average price of 67c more per hundred weight for their hogs at the market place.

McAllister says this points out the importance of being a good manager. In good years or bad, the good manager is the one who makes the money.

State 4-H Favorite Foods Winners Named

Seven 4-H members received blue ribbons in the annual state 4-H Favorite Foods Contest held in Dover recently. Twenty-eight girls who had previously been selected in three county favorite foods contests participated. They competed for $275 in prizes.

First place winners in their respective specialties are: senior main-dish, Dorothy Schafer, Bear; senior vegetable, Judy Layton, Georgetown; senior breads, Marjorie Hudson, Frederica; senior dessert, Linda Stayton, Houston. Junior main-dish, Patricia Hopkins, Lewes; junior breads, Jessie Cordrey, Delmar, and junior desserts, Patty Zern, Townsend.

The Favorite Foods Contest, which is held each year at the Treadway Inn in Dover, is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service at the University of Delaware and the Suburban Propane Gas Corporation. The objectives of the event are to help 4-H club members improve their skills in food preparation, develop wholesome attitudes, character and personality traits and recognize 4-H club members in foods projects. The junior division includes 4-H members 10 to 13 years of age. Senior division entrants are 14 years and over.

Participants are judged on their appearance, working habits, selection of the material and utensils and safety habits. The eye-appeal, flavor and texture of the food they are preparing and the appearance of the table setting which is prepared in the final stage of the activity are also scored. A menu of a complete meal using the dish prepared and the recipe for the dish are also included in the presentation and are considered in the final scoring. Each youngster is required to actually prepare the complete dish before the judges.

Awards were presented at a banquet following the cooking event by Byron Mumford, sales manager of Suburban Propane Gas Corporation.

Local Little League Football Cited In Pa. Paper

It took a visit by a Pennsylvania resident to our town, a couple of years ago, to alert an Allentown daily newspaper to the fact that Little League football was being virtually ignored in the press in that area.

The column, in part, follows: Exciting Combat
Ray Wetherhold of 101 East Elm St., Emmaus, enjoyed a sight last Saturday that impelled him to write a letter to this columnist.

"On Saturday I witnessed a thrilling football game in Harrington, Del., played by small boys, all fully equipped with regulation togs. It is a small town and there are only three teams and each had only a few extra players. They played each other twice during the season.

"The Eagles realized they were facing defeat and what happened then was a thrilling as any high school or college game I have ever witnessed. Those kids did everything that older teams do—good passing, faking and long runs.

Trot Lines From K. & S. Raceway

The local meet is getting more and more better class horses. Many are now in to go this weekend that have been racing with success at Liberty Bell Park which closes Saturday.

Jim Stokley is starting Scott Hayes and Lady's Topper, for instance, and Johnny Belote has brought in the good trotter, Sandra May for the Open trot Saturday.

The Hobbs family has sent Hernel Direct and Pleasant Time to New England.
A race for lady drivers is being worked up by the race secretary for Wednesday or Thursday of next week. It will carry a purse of about $200 to be split up into six monies and only six will go to the post.

The ladies are Miss Nellie Ann Hobbs, Mrs. Mabel James, Mrs. Helen Looney, Miss Rebecca Wolfe, Mrs. Joe Moss and Mrs. Ruth Davis.

One of the most-liked trotters on the grounds is the little 4-year-old Hollywood Duke in the Frank Albertson stable. The little fellow doesn't leave fast, but he can come home with the best of them.

They still tell the story about Bill Allen who was driving a horse here a couple of years ago. Allen was in the two hole and he sensed that the leader was getting a little tired and Allen was getting ready to move out from the rail.

Richard Floyd, who, as the winning owner, received a turkey last week as a prize for winning the Paradise Alley Pace, killed the turkey and had a wonderful turkey dinner last Sunday.

Producer's Family Raises Fawn

June 5th was an eventful day for the Howard Hayman family who live on a farm two miles west of Greensboro, says Pet Dairy Chats.

"The fawn looked to be almost helpless, and about half dead when I picked it up," explained Mr. Hayman. "I put the little animal in my pickup truck and carried it to the house. My children took a liking to it right away. They began to feed the fawn cow's milk and it has made very good growth."

The fawn was named Specs because of the white spots over its body. These white spots are for camouflage protection only, and it will lose these spots when it becomes an adult.

Father, Son Attend U. of D. Together

Picture this typical campus scene—students Harry and Steve meet on one of the shaded walks at the University of Delaware.

Harry—"Hi, Steve, can you let me have a couple of dollars until Thursday?"

Steve—"Gee, I was just going to ask for a couple of bucks myself!"

There's nothing unusual about this dialogue on a college campus, except that the characters here are father and son!

Harry is Harry Jaeger, an ordained Presbyterian minister who has served as pastor of four churches, now attending the University of Delaware graduate school in philosophy. Steve is his son, a freshman in pre-law, majoring in philosophy.

The father commutes daily—130 miles round trip—from Milford, where he served for three years as pastor of the Presbyterian Church. Steve resides on campus. Mrs. Jaeger teaches 10th grade at Dover High School. Daughter Karen attends Milford Junior High School.

Jaeger last year gave up a vice presidency with a publishing company in Elgin, Ill., to devote more time to free lance writing. He has written more than 1000 articles and reviews for religious publications.

He has a bachelor of arts degree from Hampden-Sydney (Va.) College, and a bachelor of Theology from Princeton University. An ordained minister, he has been pastor of three Pennsylvania Presbyterian churches in addition to the one in Milford.

What prompted his return to academic discipline? He said, "I think the field of philosophy usually underrated by the public, offers a tremendous opportunity to reach young people."

Jaeger hopes to get his master's degree within a year, then start teaching and working toward his doctorate in philosophy.

Steve, a basketball handout during his Milford High School days, hopes to go in to the University of Virginia for his law degree.

"I propose that the Legislative Reference Bureau be placed under the Legislative Council and the director of the Legislative Reference Bureau be appointed by the council instead of the governor.

"Thus," he continued, "the reference bureau would be what it was originally intended to be, a true arm of the legislature."

Terry said that he would also propose that an assistant director of the Legislative Reference Bureau be an attorney and a member of the opposite political party from the one to which the director belonged. He would also be hired by the council.

As Terry visualized it, "Around this cadre of trained secretarial and legal personnel there would be a secretarial staff and additional attorneys, who are needed when the General Assembly is actually in session."

Buckson decided Terry's suggestion saying the same duties are rightfully the governor's and his staff's.

He said he has always wanted to be governor and has "attempted to equip himself for the post I want."

McDowell's speech dealt mainly with U. S. foreign policy. He charged that Snowden's ideas on foreign aid would make the program "nothing more than a paper tiger," and said: "Americans are under one long-standing misconception when they assume our foreign aid program is intended to buy friendship. It is really an effort to foster stable government."

From 15 per cent to 10 per cent. Among the complaints about the housekeeping and conditions of the ferries voiced Tuesday were that the boats are not kept clean, that the paint job merely covered old rusty spots and that a lot of the furniture that came with the boats is worn and not attractive.

The authority decided not to honor the request for payment of half the additional costs connected with putting the boats into condition.

The four ferries were purchased from the commission for $3.3 million. The Virginia ferry agency agreed to pay for the cost of bringing the boats up to Coast Guard standards. The cost, originally estimated at $100,000, rose to $774,782 before the Coast Guard was satisfied.

Expressing anger over the delay in getting specifications ready for the ferry approach to the Lewes terminal were James G. Smith of Dover and Howard S. Abbott Sr. of Georgetown. The invitation for bids was to have been Tuesday, but had been delayed until Nov. 3.

The $5,119,000 budget is for operating the Delaware Memorial Bridge and the ferry in the next calendar year.

The proposed budget is difficult to compare with current expenses because the bridge's fiscal year has begun June 1 in the past and the ferry has been in operation only since July 1.

In the new budget is $221,000 for a newly created administrative section for top-echelon employees.

The budget will be presented to the consulting engineers and trustees of the bondholders of the two facilities. After they have acted upon it, the bistate authority will take action, probably at its next meeting, Nov. 10.

Some of the items of the proposed 1965 bridge budget are: Allotment of $968,000 for salaries of employees; $163,000 for repairs and replacements; "unusual maintenance of the 'bridge'."

Some of the highlights of the proposed ferry budget: Allotment of $110,000 for traffic promotion and "related activities"; $190,000 for operation of the terminals; $570,000 for "general items, including administration, employee benefits, insurance and miscellaneous"; $750,000 for wages of the crews; $300,000 for maintenance of ships and equipment; $500,000 for fuel; $310,000 for maintenance of terminal channels and the Crow Shoal channel.

"Hedda Gabler" To Be Presented Oct. 29, 30, 31

Rehearsals are under way for the E-52 University Theatre's production of Henrik Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler" at the University of Delaware.

The play will be presented Oct. 29, 30, and 31 in Mitchell Hall on the Newark campus. It's the first of three major works scheduled this year by the E-52 players. Future works are "The Thru-Carnival" and "Kiss Me, Kate."

Dr. Turner Edge, assistant professor of dramatic arts and speech who will direct the first play, described Ibsen's work as a "study in frustration." He said, "Ibsen points up in subtle ways how artificial society works havoc on men and women."

Playing the title role is Lynn Martin, of Wilmington, a senior drama major. Others in the cast are Barbara Parkinson, of Newark, another senior drama major; Barbara Ann Daisey, of Claymont, a sophomore in dramatic arts; Alexia Barry, of Wilmington, a freshman in home economics; Phillip Bannowsky, of Wilmington, a junior majoring in English; Thomas C. Hammond, of Wilmington, an English major freshman, and Adam Osborne, of Newark, a graduate student in chemical engineering.

Costumes designed by Andres Greenhut of the Dramatic Arts and Speech department are being made by E-52 Theatre personnel on the campus.

Pack 'Magic' In Lunch Box, Nutritionist Says

A packed lunch for the school child or employed adult can be a good, nutritious meal instead of just a "sack of snacks", Janet Coblentz, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware, says in a new publication, "Lunch Box Magic."

In addition to foods with needed nutrients, Miss Coblentz' formula for a good packed lunch includes a "surprise" of some kind, as well as variety in the kinds of foods packed in the lunch box. Everyone gets tired of eating the same kind of food every day," she says, "and, of course, there's no reason a packed lunch can't be just as interesting and nutritious as a meal served at home. And a good packed lunch needn't take any longer to prepare than an uninspired one."

Any meal—including a packed lunch—should contain foods with the essential nutrients, Miss Coblentz points out. Select lunch box foods from the daily requirements of four or more servings of fruit and vegetables and of breads and cereals, and two or more servings of meat, poultry or eggs and of milk or cheese.

Sandwiches are not the only fare suitable for the lunch box, she says. Vacuum bottles make all kinds of main dishes adaptable to the packed lunch, and salads and desserts, too, can be included.

Hot dishes suitable for a vacuum bottle might include chili, all kinds of soup, spaghetti, frankfurters, stew, barbecued meat or other hot sandwich fillings. Cold chicken or seafood salad, shrimp cocktail, potato salad and other perishable foods can be kept cold in a vacuum bottle.

For hot dishes, Miss Coblentz suggests pre-heating the vacuum bottle by filling it with boiling water. To pre-cool the bottle for cold dishes, place the open vacuum bottle in the refrigerator overnight and then place the cold food in it in the morning.

Although sandwiches are traditional in the lunch box, they should be varied from day to day, using different kinds of breads and rolls as well as a variety of fillings. Miss Coblentz also suggests serving a main dish in the vacuum bottle along with a hard roll, biscuit or muffins for variety.

Bread for sandwiches might include not only ordinary enriched white bread, but cheese, pumpkin, rye, whole wheat or cracked wheat bread, poppy seed rolls, frankfurter or hamburger buns, banana, date or nut bread and many other varieties.

Unusual sandwich fillings and filling combinations add variety to the packed lunch, too, she points out. She suggests, for instance, roast pork and apple butter, sliced ham with jelly, meat loaf with baked beans, peanut butter with bacon, raisins or slice cucumbers, egg or tuna salad with chopped olives or nuts. Several thin slices of meat make a better sandwich than one thick slice, Miss Coblentz says. To accompany meat sandwiches, place lettuce and slices of onion and tomato in a small plastic bag to be added to the sandwich at lunch time. This prevents soggy sandwiches, she points out.

Perishable foods such as egg, potato, fish, meat or chicken salad and custards or custard fillings should not be kept longer than four hours if the temperature is above 50 degrees, Miss Coblentz says. These foods should be very cold when put into the lunch box, and it's preferable to carry them in a pre-chilled vacuum bottle. Another way to keep them cold is to freeze portion-size cans of fruit juice for the lunch. It will keep food cold and serve as the beverage—but don't forget the can opener. Be sure to include spoons or other utensils necessary for the meal, along with sufficient napkins.

Miss Coblentz will demonstrate some of her lunch box ideas on a WHY-TV program, Woman's World, Fri., Oct. 16, at 12:05 p.m. copies of her publication, "Lunch Box Magic," are available from the Department of Rural Communications, University of Delaware, Newark.

School Facilities Conference Set for Oct. 26-28 at Univ.

More than 150 educators, architects, and major suppliers will take a three-day look at school design this month at the University of Delaware.

The School Facilities Conference scheduled Oct. 26 to 28 is planned as the first of a series of meetings to help meet the building demands created by expanding school populations in the Mid-Atlantic area.

Major topics on the agenda include: "The Newer School Designs and Their Educational Justification," "Recent Technological Developments of Significance in School Plant Design and Construction," and "Educational Specifications for the Modern School: The Type Needed; Practical Approaches to Planning; Resources Available."

School planners from the Mid-Atlantic area will be joined by others from Florida, Kansas, California, Texas, New York, and Tennessee.

Delaware educators from the state and local level, along with university personnel, will play key roles in the conference.

Ten Wilmington architects and 10 Delaware educators will serve as co-chairmen of small group discussions on the first day of the conference.

Conference sponsors include the university's School of Education and Extension Division, the Delaware chapter of the American Institute of Architects, the Delaware Department of Public Instruction, the Philadelphia Council of the Producers Council, the Educational Facilities Laboratories and the School Facilities Council.

J. O. Small, president of the Delaware state board of education, will preside at the opening session Monday morning, Oct. 26. The speaker will be Dr. Cyril Sargent of Harvard University on the topic: "Educational Ideas Challenging Architectural Tradition."

Dr. Richard Gousha, Delaware superintendent of schools, will preside at a general session Monday afternoon, with the main talk delivered by William Caudill, a Houston, Tex., architect. He'll show a slide film travelogue entitled "Our Exciting New Schools."

The conference will split up into 10 smaller groups for two-hour discussions later Monday. Educators and architects from Delaware will serve as co-chairmen of the groups.

The educators include John F. Heiney, Mt. Pleasant superintendent; Leroy Olson, A. I. duPont assistant superintendent for instruction; Michael Visnovsky, assistant principal at John Dickinson; Robert Fisher, Marshallton supervising principal; Dr. Paul Smith, Wilmington superintendent; Edward Stevens, Forest Oak principal in the Stanton district; Gilmore Ott, Christiana principal in the Newark district; F. N. Postlethwait, Caesar Rodney superintendent; Dr. Dustin Wilson Jr., Dover superintendent; and Dr. Kenneth Madden, Seaford superintendent.

Architects participating include Weston Holt Blake, William G. Moeckel, John F. McCune III, William Bonner, Joseph Angell, Samuel E. Homsey, Richard P. Fox, Edwin Young, Walter Carlson, and Donald Wason.

Russell Anderson, president of the Philadelphia chapter of the American Society of Heating and Refrigeration of American Engineers, will preside at Tuesday morning's session. Charles Stock, national president of the Producers Council, will discuss "Industry's Role in Education."

Erling Dollar, president of Delaware's American Institute of Architects' chapter, will chair another morning meeting. Architect John Shaver, of Salina, Kans., will speak on "Designs for Flexibility: Using New Products and Processes to House New Programs."

Dr. Roy M. Hall, dean of the University's School of Education, will preside at an afternoon session Tuesday. A panel will discuss "The Communications Revolution—Its Meaning for School Design." Making up the panel will be Dr. Richard Barbe, assistant professor of education at Delaware; James Rosbrow, chairman of Delaware's Governor's Commission on Educational TV, and Dr. Robert Gates, of the Florida State Department of Education at Tallahassee.

A Tuesday night dinner, chaired by Dr. George M. Worriow, university vice president, will feature a talk on "Candlelight Planning in a Satellite Age" by Dr. James McConnell, professor of education and director of the School Planning Laboratory of Stanford University.

Dr. Craig Wilson, professor of education at Delaware and director of the School Planner Institute Series, will preside at Wednesday's opening meeting. Dr. John Gilliland, director of the School Planning Laboratory of the University of Tennessee, will speak on "Specifications That Make a Difference."

Leon Elder, superintendent of the Laurel district, will preside at a panel discussion on the topic: "Educational Specifications from the Vantage Point of Education, Architecture and Industry." Panel members will include Dr. Orin B. Graff, University of Tennessee; George Haney and John Birchfield, school board member and teacher from the Marshallton district; architect Bonner, Dr. Kent Stewart, Delaware department of education; Dover Superintendent Postlethwait; Stanton Principal Stevens; and A. J. Taylor, of the Delaware School Auxiliary.

Dr. Stewart will close the conference with a summation of the meeting.

S. W. Tribbitt Challenges William Best

Sherman W. Tribbitt, Democratic candidate for Lt. Governor, challenges his Republican opponent, William Best to explain to the voters of Delaware his votes against the following important pieces of legislation passed under the Carvel administration during Tribbitt's term as Speaker of the House of Representatives. Best's negative votes are especially hard to explain away due to the fact that most of the following bills he voted against were supported by many of his Republican colleagues. He voted against the following:

1. Changing the name of the old Unemployment Compensation Commission to the present Employment Security Commission. This bill involved no costs whatsoever. It represented a change in fact, a change in philosophy. After all the Commission has always gotten jobs for the unemployed.

2. The extension of unemployment compensation benefits to those laid off a job and unable to find work.

3. The elimination of the one week waiting period for securing unemployment compensation.

4. The creation of a Delaware Industrial Building Commission which to date has added more than 1500 new jobs for Delaware workers.

5. The Highway Bond Bill which every major company in Delaware and every major civic group favored.

6. The bill adding minority representation to all Boards of Election. Mr. Best voted against this bill which added Republican representation because he wanted the Boards to have equal representation. Whether he is right or wrong, his vote displays a mind closed to compromise, a mind totally at odds with his own party system and the two-party system.

7. The creation of a State Fire School to train volunteer firemen.

8. A bill giving increased funds to volunteer fire companies.

9. A bill which prohibited third parties from hiring strike breakers in strikes involving a recognized labor union. The obvious purpose of this bill is to prevent labor violence.

10. In the House of Representatives, Mr. Best voted against a bill to spend the three and one-fourth million dollars acquired from the duPont and General Motors divestiture for the acquisition of conservation of lands, parks and recreation areas.

In most of the bills listed above, a majority of the Republicans voted in favor of the bill, but not Bill Best.

Conference on Reading Set for Oct. 31 at U. of D.

Two approaches to reading instruction will be featured Oct. 31 at the University of Delaware's 15th annual reading conference for Parents.

The speakers will be Dr. Rebecca Stewart, director of elementary education in Bethlehem, Pa., and Mrs. Rosemary G. Wilson, assistant director in charge of reading for Philadelphia public schools.

Some 200 parents, teachers and college students from Delaware and surrounding states are expected to attend.

The conference is sponsored by the university's reading-study center, headed by Dr. Russell G. Stauffer, H. Rodney Sharp, professor of education.

Dr. Stewart will describe the Initial Teaching Alphabet approach to reading instruction. She will discuss the problems of transition and spelling and the advantages to the child of I.T.A., and also what the parent can do to help.

Mrs. Wilson's talk on the Linguistics approach is based on learning principles outlined in Dr. Charles Fries' book, "Linguistics in Reading". Dr. Fries and Mrs. Wilson are among co-authors of the series of readers using this approach now used in the Philadelphia schools.

The morning session, which includes the two talks, will be held in Wolf Hall auditorium. Chairman will be C. Edmund Maag, of Wilmington, president of the Delaware Congress of Parents and Teacher. Dr. Roy M. Hall, dean of Delaware's School of Education, will extend greetings.

Special exhibits from publishing firms and related industries will be on display in the Wolf Hall lobby.

Following a luncheon in Kent Hall dining room, Peter Binzen, education editor for the Philadelphia Bulletin, will present a talk on "Trials and Tribulations of Education Reporting."

Dr. Stewart has experience as a teacher in Pennsylvania and Ohio. She received her doctorate in education at Columbia University. She has been instructor in the graduate school of education at Lehigh University in Bethlehem. She belongs to more than a dozen professional organizations.

Mrs. Wilson has been with the Philadelphia schools' curriculum office since 1948. For 13 years, ending in 1960, she directed summer workshops for Philadelphia school children. She has been speaker at reading conferences at major Eastern and Midwest universities. She has written eight articles for professional magazines, and holds memberships in a number of professional organizations.

Reservations for the luncheon are being accepted until Oct. 21 at the Reading-Study Center, University of Delaware, Newark, Del. 19711.

U. of D. Enrollment Totals 9,409 For Fall Semester

Final enrollment figures for the fall semester at the University of Delaware show a record 9,409 students under instruction.

The total represents an 11.3 per cent gain over the 1963 fall enrollment. Last year the three divisions—undergraduate, graduate, and extension—enrolled 8,457 students.

The undergraduate enrollment stands at 4,383 this semester, compared with 3,995 in 1963, an increase of 388 students and 9.7 per cent.

Graduate student enrollment also is up, with 1,752 now enrolled, compared to 1,428 last year.

Extension students number 3,274 this semester, a 7.9 per cent gain over the 3,034 who were enrolled in the division last fall.

The total gain for all three divisions this semester is 952 students.

The undergraduate student body includes 2,470 men and 1,913 women. Freshmen comprise the largest class with 1,508, followed by 1,172 in the sophomore class, 859 juniors, and 778 seniors. There are 66 special students.

The School of Arts and Science has the largest undergraduate enrollment—1,844. Enrollments in the other schools are Agriculture, 213; business and economics, 430; education, 866; engineering, 592; and home economics, 257. There are 181 other students in agricultural technology, chemical technology, and secretarial studies.

The Felton High School will offer six evening courses this year. Registration will be held on Tuesday evening, October 20, from 7:00 to 9:00 P. M.

Courses will be offered in beginning typewriting, bookkeeping, shorthand, beginning welding, soil and fertilizer technology, and elementary clothing technology.

Persons interested in obtaining information about the course may inquire at the school office or phone 284-4564.

With the exception of the welding and soil and fertilizer courses which begin later, the first meeting of the class will be at 7:00 P. M., October 28. Classes will meet two hours each evening unless otherwise agreed upon by class members and instructors.

Registration fee for each course is ten dollars with the exception of the welding course which is fifteen dollars. Textbooks and other supplies must be purchased by the students.

McDowell Talks On "Foreign Policy."

In a debate before the Laurel League of Women Voters last night, Tuesday, October 13, Congressman Harris B. McDowell, Jr., (D-Del.), Oct. 13, charged that his Republican opponent, James H. Snowden, has no idea about foreign policy "except what it costs."

Congressman McDowell said: "Each year that I have served in Congress there have been thoughtless critics who assailed our foreign aid programs as efforts to buy loyalty and friends overseas. This is a cynical way of looking at this policy."

"It overlooks history and is marked by ignorance. From the time of our first president, our foreign policy has had one course to protect the United States."

"It is true that there have been disagreements from time to time as to method, but there has never been any question about the need for a strong foreign policy. The United States needs friends abroad just as the newly-emerging nations of Asia and Africa need friends in the United States."

"A good foreign policy requires reciprocal respect. The United States is trying to build on this objective."

Congressman McDowell pointed out that President Eisenhower, like his successors, Presidents Kennedy and Johnson insisted on a strong foreign aid program and he obtained it over the negative voting of many Republicans in Congress.

"As for myself," said Congressman McDowell, "I have consistently voted for an effective foreign aid program and I have sponsored committee amendments to reduce waste and inefficient expenditures abroad."

"My opponent and Senator Goldwater would cut foreign aid programs until they were nothing more than a paper tiger. I don't think Americans want to risk such unrealistic policies."

Tidewater Gives $4,000 Grant To U. of D.

Tidewater Oil Company and the University of Delaware are demonstrating the mutual advantages of cooperation between industry and education.

Tidewater is interested in geology and water resources. The university is training students and conducting research in these areas.

Tidewater employs business executives, engineers, secretaries and skilled workers of many kinds. The university is preparing young men and women for such assignments.

So for the fifth consecutive year Tidewater has given $4000 to the university for scholarship and fellowship grants. This year the contribution will be used, as it was last year, the university has announced, to support undergraduates majoring in geology and graduate and undergraduate students in the School of Business and Economics.

Last year, in addition to giving scholarship assistance to two undergraduates, the geology department established a Tidewater Oil Company Award to honor an outstanding student. Arthur Cohen, 100 Clearview Ave., Wilmington, was selected and received a Brunton compass which will be useful in his future work.

In the School of Business and Economics, James A. Venema, 805 Kenyon Lane, Newark, received a summer fellowship to work on his master's thesis on the topic, "The Effect of a Tax Reduction in Delaware, Particularly New Castle County." An undergraduate, Kenneth Roberts, 105 S. duPont Rd., Wilmington, completed his junior year on a Tidewater scholarship.

This year the unrestricted grant to the geology department has been renewed and a graduate fellowship in the School of Business and Economics has been awarded to Stanton A. Warren, 260 E. Main St., Newark.

George C. Caine, manufacturing manager for Tidewater, said, "We are glad to renew our support of higher education at the University of Delaware and to continue our pleasant relationship with the university, its faculty and its students.

"These contributions to the university are part of Tidewater's activities as an established and responsible citizen of the Delaware community."

Work on Second Memorial Bridge Progressing

Design and construction work on the second Delaware Memorial Bridge is progressing satisfactorily, Director William J. Miller, Jr., reported Monday to members of the Delaware River and Bay Authority.

At the monthly Authority meeting, the contract for suspended steel work on the second span was awarded to Bethlehem Steel Company, on the low bid of $5,855,350.00. This is approximately $800,000.00 lower than estimates of consulting engineers.

Approval was also given to the contract awarded to E. Earl Downing, Inc., Wilmington, for repair work and seal coating of the present bridge deck. This work is almost completed according to Miller. The cost will be $67,136.00, which was well under the $92,000 estimate of consulting engineers.

Plans to name the fifth ferry boat recently purchased from the Chesapeake Bay Bridge and Tunnel Commission was delayed until some appropriate means are found to do so. The matter was referred to the Authority public relations staff.

The Authority also voted that it did not feel responsible to the Chesapeake Bridge and Tunnel Commission for any further payment for repair work on the bay liners purchased from that commission. Originally the Authority contract with the Commission stated that liners would have to be repaired to meet Coast Guard standards before going into service on the Cape-May Lewes ferry line.

Permission was granted to Sussex County Civil Defense personnel to ferry vehicles to New Jersey for test drills without charge. Director Miller explained that this is merely a matter of cooperation with Civil Defense officials.

The Authority expects to call for bids on the highway through Lewes to give a more direct route to the ferry terminal on November 3.

Mr. Miller pointed out that ferry service, while not up to estimates of consulting engineers at the moment is showing daily gains. The walkoff in August interrupted what seemed to be a booming business and many people are still not certain that ferry operations have resumed.

Miller assured that the same schedule adopted and placed into effect on July 1 is still in operation. However, only two ships are currently in operation.

Permission was also granted to the Delaware Pilots Association to tie up the pilot boat at the Lewes ferry terminal during the fall and winter months.

Delaware Food Market Report

Over the past 18 years the National School Lunch program has fanned out to more than 68,000 schools in every state. It is providing nourishing and hearty lunches daily to approximately 17 million children. So it would seem a tribute to this program is in order. The President has proclaimed that this week, Oct. 11 through the 17th is National School Lunch Week.

The Agricultural Marketing Service of the U.S.D.A. administers this lunch program nationally, and in each State it is looked after by the State Educational Agency. This program is a true joint community effort which insures that an adequate and nutritious school lunch is available each day to school children, regardless of family or neighborhood income.

While assuring the youngsters of a good, well-balanced diet, the lunch program provides a means of using the country's agricultural abundance to advantage and increases the local market for food in communities in which it operates. Though supplemented by federally-donated foods, the lunches largely consist of foods purchased at local markets. On a national basis, last year school lunch managers spent a total of $688 million in local food markets, almost four-fifths of the total school lunch food bill. This is a program well-worth paying tribute to.

Because of the long drought in the East, the U.S.D.A. has reduced earlier forecasts of two leading fall crops—apples and potatoes. The apple forecast was reduced 1 million bushels, but it is still 20% greater than average. The major effect of the dry weather has been the keep the fruit from reaching normal size. The story is a bit different with potatoes, for as it stands now this will be the smallest potato crop since 1960. Recent rains came forth too late to help either crop, and final estimates for both may be reduced still further.

Another problem the drought caused is how it cut production of forage on dairy farms. It now looks as if farmers will have to buy large amounts of feed at relatively high prices. What will this mean to the consumer? We will have to wait and see.

Fire Company Auxiliary Notes

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Harrington Fire Co., met Monday evening with 26 members present.

One new member was elevated to membership, Mrs. Dale Dean. The door prize was won by Mrs. Richard Baker.

There will be a nomination of officers at the next meeting Nov. 9th at 7:30. The committee consists of Madeline Satterfield, Eva Raughley, Edith Shockley and Lillie Swain.

W. O. T. M. Notes

Chapter No. 1229, Women of the Moose, enrolled Mrs. Virginia Heritage, sponsored by Mrs. Eleanor Semans, at the regular monthly enrollment ceremony on Thursday, Oct. 8.

The next chicken and dumpling dinner will be served by the chapter on Sunday, October 18, from 1:00 P. M. until 5:00 at the Moose Home.

All members and friends should remember that October is Christmas for the children of Mooseheart and the aged at Moosehaven. We have a Christmas tree on which we put the name of anyone making a donation to help bring Christmas to the people at these homes.

Lions Top Blue Devils In Battle Of Unbeatens

Harrington High School sits alone atop the Henlopen Football Conference standings after ruing Millsboro's perfect record and Homecoming Day celebration by defeating the favored Blue Devils 12-7 on Friday night. Until Coach Frank Glazier came to Harrington no Lion football team had ever beaten Rehoboth, Delmar, Bridgeville or Millsboro. The first two bit the dust in 1953. The latter three have bent the knee this autumn to complete the cycle.

The host team had more troops than did H.H.S. Also they were bigger and faster. How do you beat odds like those? Glazier says that the Lions sometimes meet people who run over his charges but lose the game because Harrington makes fewer mistakes.

Millsboro started the game like they had a lopsided score in mind. Dave Layfield, brother of the departed Jim Layfield, gained 5 yards on the first play from scrimmage and then hit the middle for a first down. Clever quarterback Art Cathell bootlegged to the middle field. Cathell passed complete to the Lion 15 as two defenders failed to prevent the catch. Cathell bootlegged to the 9 where the Lions dug in and halted the advance. Unable to gain, H.H.S. punted out to the 44. Ron Adkins was apparently stopped but broke loose for 13 yards. Layfield turned right end for 5 yards. Adkins swept left end for 6 as the Millsboro speed began to assert itself.

Fullback Wright picked up four through the middle as the first period ended. Harrington had the ball for only one series of downs, thus far.

The home team had a first down and goal to go from the eight when Rusty Jack knifed through to spill Layfield behind the line. A pass was completed for a touchdown to Preston Wright as two Lions breathed down his neck. One of them could have intercepted the aerial if he had been watching the ball instead of the receiver. Layfield scored the extra point for a 7-0 Millsboro second quarter lead.

Wayne Porter, a coming offensive threat for H.H.S., picked up five yards in two shots at the penalty Blue Devil line. A 15-yard penalty for grabbing the face mask advanced the ball to the 45-yard line. Jack back to pass, had to run and reached the Millsboro 49. The drive reached no further and the Lions had to punt. The Sussex Countians couldn't gain either and Artie Taylor made a nice runback of a punt to put Harrington on the 41-yard line of Millsboro. Jack made a dandy broken field run of 35 yards. Chuck McNally started wide to the left and cut back sharply to the 2-yard line. Jack plunged for the first Lion T.D. McNally tried to sweep right end but his blocking broke down and though he tried very hard his extra point try failed by inches.

Trailing 7-6 at halftime the resurgent Lions looked like a new ball club in the second half. The winners took the kickoff and seven plays later had the winning tally. The first scrimmage play saw Jack streak from the Lion 34 to the 49. Quarterback Gary added three yards to reach Millsboro territory. Jack pitched to Richard Black for a gain of 24 yards to the 14. Jack, trying to throw again, was trapped for a loss of 10 yards, apparently ending the threat. Rusty bootlegged the ball against his hip for a few strides then fooled the Blue Devils by a quick toss to Black, who reached the two-yard line. Jack gained a yard and McNally hit right tackle for the winning points.

Cathell and Adkins sparked a drive that reached the Lion 35 before it was stopped. Attempting to put the game out of reach, Harrington almost succeeded. Jack carried 7 yards to his own 43. Porter swivelhipped 16 yards to reach Millsboro's 41. Another 15-yard face mask penalty aided the Lions. Porter picked up a few yards as the third quarter ended. Jack advanced the pigskin 12 yards as he drove off left tackle to the 17. Rusty added three yards and McNally gained nine more for a first down on the five yard line. A fumble was recovered by the host team and some heart-stopping football occurred before the Lions chalked up their seventh victory in a row.

Millsboro couldn't gain against the aroused, hard-hitting Lions and had to kick. On the next play Jack twisted his way from the Millsboro 41 to the 22. McNally reached the 19 but the losers refused to give up any more real estate.

A Cathell pass was ruled good on the Blue Devil 37, because of alleged interference as the 4 minute warning was given. To the chagrin of the Lions the officials made the same ruling again on the Harrington 49. Larry Garey became the hero-of-the-moment by intercepting a Cathell pass on the 21. A few plays later the locals used a fine punt by Richard Black to put the home team back on its own 30 yard line. Two long passes dropped incomplete. Cathell passed over the heads of the charging Lions into a clump of players at the scrimmage line. Unfortunately for him a couple of these wore the Blue and Gold, so the receiver was dropped for no gain on the last play of the game.

Over on the Millsboro side of the field a huge banner had been hung on the top row of the grandstand taunting H.H.S. with these words "We are the best Lion-tamers in the world". As the referee tossed the game ball skyward we turned to look for the banner. It was nowhere to be seen. We wonder what happened to it?

Outstanding for Harrington were: Jack, Porter, Black, Garey, Taylor, Dennis Simpson, Gayle Fry, Mike Walmsley, and Sam Knox. "We just can't bring ourselves to call a rough, tough, football player, Donnie." Knox did well as a blocker and defender. Chuck McNally has improved as a ball carrier to the point that the locals now have a quartet of backs who have to be watched closely. Ron Hughes again turned in some fine blocking.

Dennis Simpson, a pleasant surprise this year, is rated as one of the best linebackers in the Henlopen Conference. Simpson chalked up 7 tackles and 9 assists Friday night. Jack, another defensive terror, had 9 tackles and 4 assists. Porter had five tackles, and recovered a fumble, ran well on offense and shone, as a blocker but was a complete failure when it came to getting the water bucket on the field. Claimed he was too busy.

Coach Glazier states that Steve Welch may soon push someone out of a starting job. Steve Motter and Mike Kohel have come along ahead of schedule. Mike Stayton, Mike Welch and Ed Wheatley are improving and transfer student Gary Dalton is an inspiration to the entire team. Dalton, a transfer student from Middletown, is a husky lad but polio has left him with a pronounced limp. He can't run very well, so he doesn't see much action. However, he doesn't complain, never quits trying and the team is a better team because of his courageous example.

The Lions go to Milton Saturday afternoon. Two regulars are nursing pulled muscles but H.H. Thanks for your interest.

Mr. Sports Editor

DEAR MR. K. S. BURGESS:

In two past editions, September 15, 1964 and October 2, 1964, of The Harrington Journal in the Lions football column, you mentioned that three boys were injured in the Harrington vs Delmar football game. They are Charley Taylor, Garry Harris and Chuck McNally. In the September 25, 1964 paper you said that the Lions were without the services of these three boys. Last week you mentioned Chuck McNally's name, however several of us would like to know if the other two, Garry Harris and Charley Taylor, were injured badly or if they are back playing with the team. If it would be possible, when you are talking to Coach Frank Glazier about the games would you please ask about these boys and put it in your column? You have left us hanging in mid-air!

There are rumors going around that they are in serious condition in Milford Hospital. I am sure we are not the only ones who want to know, but since we live in Dover, we depend on The Harrington Journal for our information as to what is going on. Please help us by putting in your column what happened. We will be looking!

Just sign us,
TEN FAITHFUL READERS
IN DOVER

DEAR TEN FAITHFUL:

Garry Harris is also fit once more and back in action. Charles Taylor is out for the season as a result of a non-football injury. Thanks for your interest.

Rogers Gets Lost Again, Still Sets New C. R. Mark

Dennis Rogers, the Harrington Lions' bespectacled No. 1 harrier, can't see as well as he can run, so in two cross-country meets on foreign courses this autumn he became lost both times while leading the pack. Rogers has yet to taste defeat this year. Tuesday at Caesar Rodney's course he took a wrong turn, lost thirty seconds, dropped from first to sixth but came on to win in course record time of 12:05 for 2 1/3 miles. Rogers chopped two seconds off the old mark held by Ed Williams of North Carolina High.

Junior Gerry Garey, a first year harrier, continues to surprise as he keeps beating runners with much more experience. Garey also was under the old course mark. For a brand new harrier to work his way up to No. 2 on a defending state champion team, that has won 13 straight meets, takes some doing. In other words these are "name" competitors, not mediocre performers, who are eating the dust of the "Masten's Corner Comet."

Marshall Hatfield and Ellis Myer were not pushed as they easily captured third and fourth places in near course record time. Rhodes of C. R. was fifth and sophomore Dan Hicks was sixth as Coach Harold McDonald's boys were victorious by a score of 16-46, only one point away from a perfect score.

George Bonniwell, Don Wells and Bob Smith ran their fastest races of the year over rough terrain. Wells was 27 seconds under his best time for the same distance at Harrington. Smith was 47 seconds better as he starts to display some of the form that once earned him the No. 1 ranking on the squad.

Larry Bonniwell and Roger Betts had their swiftest clockings of the season, beat all the Riders but two and had the interesting experience of finishing just ahead of two former Harrington boys, Cabbage Brown Jr. and Clay Jester, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Jester.

Thursday, Oct. 15, Greenwood, Lewes and Harrington will race at Killen's Pond. Milford will test the Lions at the same site on Oct. 19 and on Oct. 21. Colonel Richardson of American Corners, Md., and North Carolina, of Denton, Md., will compete in a triangular meet on the H.H.S. course. North Carolina is perennially tough. If the Lions can get by the Bulldogs it appears the locals may run their all-winning skein, now at 13 straight, to 22 by the termination of hostilities.

Nick Morris Sets New Jayvee Mark At Caesar Rodney

Freshman Nick Morris, another of Coach Harold McDonald's stable of fine prospects, had himself a romp Tuesday afternoon as he chopped 14 seconds off the junior varsity course record. Senior Henry Minner also beat the course mark and third place finisher Dan Adams, tied the old standard. Adams had no previous experience and only joined the team the day of the race in order to get in shape for the wrestling season. Adams, a fine wrestling prospect, now rates as a comer in cross-country, too. Watch for even better performances a few workouts and races, hence.

Dennis Spicer was only seven seconds away from the course record as he bested his best clocking at Killen's Pond by 18 seconds. The junior varsity score of H.H.S. 17, C. R. 44 was like the varsity's, almost a perfect tally for the winning H.H.S. jayvees. Green and White grabbed seventh and eighth positions for the Lions, Lester Green and Jim White that is. White, only two weeks ago, was more than 3 1/2 minutes slower than he is now. This is spectacular improvement.

Eighth-grader Oscar Matthews continues his steady upward climb. Oscar was ninth in the last time of 14:10. Seventh-grader Louis Kemp was running 18:35's at Killen's Pond last month but seems to get faster every time out. Kemp, a Boy Scout, finished just four seconds behind another much older Boy Scout, who is a Senior Patrol Leader. Kemp's time of 15:12 is 12 seconds faster than his best effort at Killen's Pond.

Roger Hicks, Jack Warrington, Aubrey Brown, Ray Rash, Doug Wilson and Randy Coleman, seventh-graders all, completed the grind with aplomb and turned in some pretty fair times in the process.

yards on three running plays were forced to punt.

Chris Nielsen's kick was returned nine yards by Roger Klapp. Klapp carried three more times in succession, chalked up advances of twenty, five and ten yards to reach the Colt 22. Redden scored from there and Klapp ran for the extra point.

After the next kickoff John Christopher of the Colts had two passes fall incomplete. He picked up eight yards on two carries but the Eagles took over as the first quarter ended.

The Birds took a five yard penalty on the first play. Klapp carried for six yards and then went 28 yards down the left sideline for the tally. Roger added the point after touchdown for a score of Eagles 14, Colts 0.

Hurd returned the kick for six yards. Gary Simpson and Dale Motter stopped Christopher five yards behind to the line of scrimmage. Louis Kemp was thrown for a loss on the second down. Christopher bolted up the middle for ten yards on a quarterback sneak. An end sweep failed on fourth down.

Dale Motter gained five yards, then snagged an aerial from Redden for a pickup of 26. Klapp and Simpson totalled 11 yards to reach the Colt 10 as the half ended.

Gary Smith pounced on the kickoff at the 42 to start the second half. Redden carried twice for 19 yards. Simpson picked up 6. Redden gained 8. Klapp advanced 15 and Redden passed to Klapp for 7. Roger took a hand-off and crossed the wide stripe for the second time. The extra point was good and the Eagles had a 21 point bulge.

Chuck Hurd ran the kickoff out to the 38 for the Colts. On a second down play Louis Kemp lost 7 yards. Gary Simpson stopped John Christopher after a pickup of three yards. Christopher advanced the oval four more yards and the Eagles regained possession.

The Red and White attempted a pass for their first play in the fourth quarter but Ricky Welch intercepted for the Steeds. A fumble on second down was recovered by the alert Welch. A Christopher pass was picked off by Klapp and returned 23 yards to the Colt 22.

After a penalty and a loss on a running play pushed the winners back to the 30, Redden dashed 26 yards to the 4 yard line. Simpson scored the T.D. but the extra point try was no good.

Christopher carried four times in a row the next time the Colts got the ball but missed the first quarter end when Simpson took him out of bounds on the Colt 29. Redden carried for 18 yards before being downed by Rick Welch and Chuck Hurd. Redden could not locate a receiver so he took out overland to the 2 yard line. Chris Nielsen broke through to trap Bob Tyler of a 2 yard loss. Christopher brought Tyler down on the 2 yard line, one play later. With a fourth down coming up the Eagles went back to Klapp, the bread-and-butter-man, who plunged for the touchdown. Newton stopped Motter to foil the PAT attempt.

Nielsen fumble the kickoff and Redden recovered for the Eagles. Bob Tyler sped over from 28 yards out with the aid of good blocking on the part of teammate Gary Smith. Smith took a Redden pass for point No. 40 and the game was over.

This Sunday afternoon the Colts and Bears will meet on the Harrington High gridiron. Admission is free.
