

CARVEL NOMINATES WOLCOTT FOR CHIEF COURT JUSTICE

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel announced Wednesday that he is nominating Associate Justice Daniel F. Wolcott to be chief justice of the Supreme Court and Daniel L. Herrmann, a Wilmington lawyer, to be an associate justice.

The governor said that notification of the appointments is being sent to members of the Senate of the 123d General Assembly, elected in November, and has called them into session on Monday, Dec. 14, to consider the appointments.

The law requires the governor to give 10 days notice to the Senate on Supreme Court appointments.

Carvel said at a news conference that he has conferred by telephone with each of the 13 Democratic senators and they have expressed themselves as "quite happy with the solution."

Both Wolcott and Herrmann would receive 12-year appointments. Carvel said the matter of the Supreme Court appointments has "received practically all of my undivided attention during the past week. There has been much discussion and thought in order to come to this conclusion."

"I think these appointments will maintain the high caliber of the court."

Carvel nominated Herrmann to be chief justice last August but Herrmann, a former Supreme Court judge, failed to get the necessary votes of confirmation from the Senate of the 122d General Assembly.

Herrmann resigned from Superior Court in 1956 after serving five years of a 12-year term.

Carvel said he notified Governor Charles L. Terry of his appointments "after the matter was resolved."

The chief justiceship became vacant when Terry resigned last August in order to accept the Democratic nomination for governor.

"I thought I should not leave the problem unsettled and force a solution upon the next administration," Carvel said. "This was a problem that this administration had to resolve."

Asked why he had not consulted Republicans in advance, the governor said he had received no support from the minority party on his position in nominating Herrmann and that the Republicans indicated at that time that it a matter for he majority to decide.

Carvel said the Republicans will receive the 10-day notice sent out Wednesday.

The governor said it is quite possible that he will send a number of other appointments to the Senate when it meets here on Dec. 14 if the Supreme Court appointments prove satisfactory. He did not elaborate.

Wolcott has been on the Supreme Court since it was established in 1961 and was re-appointed an associate justice last year.

Ferry Use Below Aim, Miller Says

Use of the Cape May-Lewes ferry through Dec. 31 won't measure up to earlier engineering estimates for its first six months, the Delaware River and Bay Authority reported Wednesday.

William J. Miller Jr., authority director, blamed this on adverse results of the 17-day strike that shut down our service from Aug. 28 to Sept. 14.

Travelers in many parts of the country are still under the impression that the strike has not been settled, even though the reopening of the ferry has been advertised and broadcast in all travel circles, Miller said.

Approximate statistics for the ferry's business from its launching July 1 until the end of November show that 278,000 passengers and 74,464 vehicles crossed between the Delaware Capes on the boats.

Miller said an average weekday's business is now 250 vehicles when it should be around 450 a day. He reported, however, that business over the weekends in November has been "normal"—from 350 to 450 vehicles a day.

It is believed that even with a spurt in business during December, the ferry can not meet the predictions of traffic experts that the first six months of the year should be 130,000 vehicles

Carvel Signs Debt Aids To Schools

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel Wednesday morning signed the school equalization bill but line-item vetoed the section on state aid for bonded debt.

He gave three main reasons for disapproving that portion of HSI for HB 67 and suggested that "a distinguished and broadly representative committee should study and submit a report for legislative action to clarify and improve the approved portion of the bill."

The governor said that while there are weaknesses in the bill as signed he considers it "a forward step in education."

Carvel addressed a news conference at Dover, also said he thought the term "equalization" is a "misnomer" and told the press that he was "literally bombarded with telegrams and telephone calls right in this office the day before the 'election' from persons urging him to sign the bill."

The section of the bill which Carvel vetoed—and the legislature cannot override the action—provided that districts with outstanding bonded debt exceeding 2 per cent of the district's full valuation of taxable property would receive state matching funds.

Carvel gave his reasons for vetoing this section—which he said he did under authority in Section 18, Article III, of the Delaware Constitution as follows:

The state would have been obligated to match debt service costs for construction programs "contrary to the recommendations of the State Board of Education."

For instance, if a local district decided to add luxuries to its program and that put it over the 2 per cent figure, the state would have to help pay for them.

The "grave question" was how much this section would cost. Carvel noted there is a legal question as to whether the state would have to match all debt service costs of a district that qualified or just that portion over 2 per cent.

And even if the legal question (Continued on Page 8)

Holiday Traffic Sets Two Records At Mem. Bridge

Motorists returning from the long Thanksgiving holiday set two new traffic records at Delaware Memorial Bridge Sunday.

General Manager Frank J. Horvath announced there were 63,729 crossings on Sunday breaking the one-day record which was established on July 1, 1961 with 63,190 crossings.

The second record to fall was the highest number of cars to cross the bridge in a given one-hour period. That record of 4,782 vehicles stood since May 31, 1964. It was broken twice when there were 5,281 crossings between three and four o'clock and 4,592 between six and seven o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The long weekend traffic began pouring over the Delaware-New Jersey link on Wed., Nov. 25. There were 54,746 crossings that day. Total vehicles counted from Wednesday morning through Sunday night came to 248,514. This was 32,936 more than during the 1963 Thanksgiving period.

Despite the high count on Sunday, no three-day weekend record was set. Friday, Saturday and Sunday traffic, Nov. 27-29 totaled 148,756 vehicles. The three-day weekend record set on July 31-August 2, 1964 of 178,513 still stands.

School Christmas Program Set For Next Wednesday

The annual Christmas Candlelight and carol program by the Harrington Special School District will be held next Wednesday evening, Dec. 9, in the school Field House, beginning promptly at 8 o'clock.

Included on the program will be the traditional candlelight procession by the girls of the Senior High School Glee Club, as well as selections by the Grade School Chorus, Junior High Chorus, and the High School Chorus.

This will be the first time the chorus will be singing from the stage of the Field House, newly erected as an addition in this building.

The program is under the direction of Melvin Brobst of the school Music Department. Accompanists include Miss Sarah Moore who will serve as accompanist and organist for this program, and Sue Perry, Candace Peck, and Cheryl Satterfield.

Featured soloists from the high school will be Miss Bonnie Tucker who will sing the solo parts to the "Cantique de Noel" and Miss Lynn Bennett who will sing "He Shall Feed His Flock" from Messiah By G. F. Handel.

The program is free to the public, and everyone is invited to attend.

Dorsey Hammond Century Club Speaker

The Harrington New Century Club observed National Education Week last Tuesday at their regular meeting, by inviting Dorsey Hammond, Research Assistant at the Reading-Study Center of the University of Delaware at Newark, to be the guest speaker. The meeting was held in the Club House at 2 p.m.

Mr. Hammond told of the work that is being done at the center under the direction of Dr. Russell G. Stauffer. He spoke of the testing program which is carried on for children who have reading difficulties and some of the cases which have been successfully helped by the center.

He mentioned particularly the study which is being carried on in the first grade classes of the Harrington, Georgetown and Seaford Schools. This project is a part of a program of the U. S. Office of Education. Two different approaches to teaching beginning reading is being observed, the Language Arts approach and the Basal Reader approach. Mr. Hammond emphasized that in each school the method of teaching is the one that has been used by the teachers, that nothing new or different is being done, in the respective schools that has not been done in past years. The results of the study will be used to yield information to improve the teaching of reading.

Mrs. Charles L. Peck, Jr. was chairman for the afternoon. Mrs. Arnold Gilstad and Mrs. William Shaw sang a duet "We Thank Thee, Lord," accompanied by Mrs. Leslie Wix. Members of Mrs. Peck's committee were Mrs. William Stokes, Mrs. Reynolds French, Mrs. Joseph Konesey, (Continued on Page 8)

"The Thurber Carnival" To Be Presented at Univ.

There will be five performances of the University of Delaware's Readers' Theatre presentation of "The Thurber Carnival" this year.

The curtain goes up in Wolf Hall auditorium next Wednesday night for the first performance. The play will be repeated Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights, with a Saturday matinee interspersed. Usually the Readers' Theatre presents three performances.

The production is under the direction of Miss Judith Espinola. Readers' Theatre shuns standard staging, but lets the content of the play and the audience's imagination do most of the work. Thurber's incongruous works are especially suited to the medium.

Some of Thurber's stories which will be on the bill for the E 52 University Theatre production are "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," "The Unicorn in the Garden," and "The Night The Bed Fell."

Original music for the production is being composed by Dick Eckert, a U. of D. student. Scenery and costumes are under the direction of Andrew Greenhut, technical director.

Tickets are on sale at the Mitchell Hall Boxoffice on the Newark campus.

LARGE CROWD SEES C. OF C.'S PRE-CHRISTMAS PARADE

The Christmas parade bringing Santa Claus to Harrington last Saturday was a huge success according to Thomas Peck, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored the event. An exceptionally large crowd of people lined the parade route through the downtown business district and the shopping center to view the many beautifully decorated floats, cars, and the marching units. It was the consensus of opinion of the many people interviewed after the parade, that it was one of the finest and largest Christmas parades ever held in Harrington.

Mayor Fulton J. Downing, Chairman of the judging division, selected the following out of town judges: Miss Rosanna Messick, Houston; Mrs. John Rogers and Francis Silicato, of Milford.

Following is a list of the prize winners: Commercial Floats—First, Star Lite Shop; 2nd., Peck Bros. Farm Supply; 3rd., Trinity Meth. Church M.Y.F. Decorated Cars—1st., Hi-Grade Dairy; 2nd., Peoples Bank; 3rd., W&D Furniture Co.

"Lighting of Advent Candles" At Society Meeting

The Christmas program of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of Asbury Church was held in Collins Hall Tuesday evening at 7 p.m. Mrs. Marvin Richardson and Mrs. Melvin Wyatt, assisted by Mrs. Donald McKnatt, presented a short skit entitled "Lighting of the Advent Candles."

Miss Karen Minner and Ricky Hoffman portrayed a mother and father telling their children the meaning of the Advent Candles and lighting each candle on the five Sundays before Christmas. Miss Judy Wyatt read the scripture pertaining to the Christmas story. Others who appeared with the group to light the candles and sing the carols were LuAnn and Debbie McKnatt, Cindy and Terry Jarrell, Lisa Masten, Lynne and Howard Parker, LuAnn and Lisa Welch, Mary Jane Mason, Nancy Hill, Chip Moore, Chris Adamo, Robby Wyatt, Judy Tattman, Sandy Aiken, Patty Mintz and Angela Minner.

Mrs. Floyd Nasser conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Ted Storus was introduced as a new member of the Society in the Mary Circle.

Mrs. W. W. Sharp was thanked for presenting the devotions at the Zone 2 meeting held in Housatonic recently. Assisting her in the program were Mrs. Fred Wilson, Mrs. Virginia Clarkson and Miss Helen Peterson.

Gifts for the Neighborhood House in Wilmington were collected at the meeting. Mrs. William Taylor will be taking them to Wilmington some time during the next week. Anyone who did not take a gift to the meeting and who wishes to give a gift should call Mrs. Taylor before the week-end.

Mrs. Nasser read a poem entitled "A Christmas Wish" by Bishop Remington before adjourning the meeting.

Those still under the protected pension system in effect before July 1, 1960, must elect pension under the new law to qualify for the increase.

Mr. Fields urged all pensioners in Delaware to study carefully the election card and instruction sheet just received.

If pensioners still desire to remain under the old pension system, they need not return the card. However, the pensioners electing to make the change, should fill in the card, sign it, and return it in the window envelope included for the convenience of the pensioner.

FIRE DAMAGES HOUSE

The residence of William Walters, 306 Weiner Ave., was damaged an estimated $300 Wednesday by a fire which originated in a bed.

The local fire company extinguished the blaze in a short time.

Complete Fencing At Disposal Plant

The City Council, at its December meeting Wednesday night, authorized the city manager to complete fencing in the sewage disposal plant.

The distance, 220 feet, will be fenced with 9-gauge chain-link fence, at a cost of $560. The Pioneer Fence Company, of Newport, is to do the work.

An advantage of the fencing would be to deter children from playing on the grounds of the plant.

In other business, the city manager suggested putting up gasoline and fuel oil for bids. The City could install its own tank and pump, he explained.

The gasoline tank would hold 1000 gallons. The City furnishes the fuels for itself and the fire company.

The city manager is to get prices for the calendar years.

Top Performers To Participate In Seal Campaign

A record number of the nation's top-ranking performers in the entertainment field have volunteered their services in the 1964 Christmas Seal Campaign, the Delaware Tuberculosis and Health Society said yesterday.

The Christmas Seal Campaign, which continues through December 31, is being promoted this year in specially transcribed messages for radio-TV by Henry Fonda, Jimmy Durante, and Betsy Palmer. Miss Palmer, a panelist on "I've Got a Secret" over CBS-TV, is the 1964 National Honorary Christmas Seal Chairman. Eli Wallach made a special film trailer.

For the second consecutive year, Jimmy Dean, star of "The Jimmy Dean Show" television program on ABC-TV, is conducting the Christmas Seal Campaign's "Friendship Tree" project.

Dean is asking his viewers to send Christmas cards decorated with Christmas Seals to him. ABC-TV stations working with TB associations in their respective cities, will deliver the decorated trees before Christmas to hospitals, TB wings, children's wards and orphanages.

Also participating in the promotion of the 1964 Christmas Seal Campaign is the famed "Romper Room" program view by vast numbers of children in the United States. In some 74 American cities, the Christmas Seal Campaign is receiving public service support by means of a special "follow-the-dots" Christmas Seal game played thrice weekly on stations carrying the popular children's program.

In addition, there is a montage presentation of transcribed radio announcements by celebrities who have appeared in the past on behalf of Christmas Seals. They include Danny Kaye, Efram (Continued on Page 8)

Travel Council To Fete Gov. Carvel

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel, who leaves office Jan. 20, will be a guest of the Delaware Travel Council at its dinner-meeting Friday, Dec. 11 at Holiday Inn, Dover.

President Harry F. Green said that Gov. elect Charles L. Terry Jr., has also been extended an invitation so that he may acquaint himself with the activity of the Council.

Green is also hopeful that the new Winterthur Museum color film will be shown following dinner, and an out-of-state guest speaker is expected.

The Council's activities during the past year included sponsorship of the annual travel writers' visit to the state in conjunction with the Delaware State Development Department and local chambers of commerce; sponsoring trips to the New York World's Fair for publicity purposes and generally assisting in promotion of the First State as a tourist attraction.

Membership is at its highest level in the ten-year history of the organization, Green reports and as the area expands more activities will be added to the Council's program.

Reservations for dinner tickets may be secured from the office of Secretary Miles L. Frederick, 1010 Washington Street, Wilmington, Green pointed out.

COUNCIL READS ORDINANCE FOR PLANNING COMMISSION

Hitchens Doesn't Have to Run For Re-election

Councilman Howell Hitchens has the right to remain at his post two more years, the City Council heard from the City solicitors Wednesday night.

Grover Brown, of Brown & Brown, said there was no candidate in Hitchens' ward last year and thus, under state law, the incumbent remains for the length of his term. Thus, Hitchens has two more years to serve.

It was thought by some an election would have to be held in the municipal elections in January for the unexpired portion of Hitchens' term.

Under the law, says Brown, there was never a vacancy in Hitchens' case.

However, when a Councilman dies, moves out of his ward, or "otherwise," the replacement is appointed by the Councilman and he serves until the next election when a candidate is supposed to be elected to serve the unexpired term.

The City solicitor concluded, however, by saying he would check on it.

$35 Million Road Bonds To Be Asked

The State Highway Department is preparing a two-year construction program that will call for a bond issue ranging from $35 million to $37 million.

This was revealed Wednesday by Ernest A. Davidson, director of highway department operations.

The proposal will not include funds for the interstate highways in northern Delaware. They are provided for, to the extent of $17 million, in the current $45 million bond issue program.

The new bond issue would be for all kinds of construction, including dirt road paving bridges, and main highways which would be supported by federal funds.

Among the projects the engineers have in mind:

Widening of Centre Road and beginning the long-delayed Barley-Mill Road—Kennett Pike interchange.

Beginning of an interchange at Price's Corner.

Widening of U. S. 301, from the Maryland line to the Summit Bridge over the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal.

Further dualization of U. S. 113 toward Del. 14.

Improvement of Del. 14 south of Dewey Beach.

Pike Truck Stop Seen Dead Issue

The state highway commission, in closed session Wednesday, decided to shelve plans for a $1.9-million truck stop on the Delaware turnpike section of the John F. Kennedy Memorial Highway.

After an hour-long executive session, William J. Hopkins of Laurel, the highway commissioner who has been the chief booster for the truck stop, came out and said:

"It's dead—the truck stop is dead."

N. Maxson Terry, of Dover, chairman of the commission, wouldn't admit that the proposal is dead. He said it is "merely shelved until next month."

But no one on the highway commission seemed to be optimistic that the commission would approve the borrowing of another $1.9 million to build a truck stop. The turnpike already has a bonded debt of $30 million.

The establishment of a truck stop on the Delaware turnpike has been the hope of Gov. Elbert N. Carvel and Hopkins from the time the highway was opened late last year.

Their belief is that such a facility would attract many trucks and this would help to build up the state's revenue in motor fuel taxes.

Hopkins pushed the project energetically to the point where on Nov. 2 bids were opened for preparing the proposed site, near the present gasoline service center.

The lowest bidder was James Julian, Inc., of Elsmere at $914,929. The contract has not been awarded. However, it has been estimated (Continued on Page 8)

Council Approves Bank Drive-in

It appears the First National Bank will have a drive-in window, judging from the action of the City Council at its December meeting Wednesday night.

The bank had put in its request at a previous meeting. The city manager then outlined the plan to the State Highway Department which found the proposal satisfactory providing users of the drive-in window would turn right with their cars on reaching the highway in front of the bank on Commerce Street.

The plan calls for patron's cars to enter from Fleming Street, in the rear of the bank, and turn left to a window, after which the cars would exit on Commerce Street. The exit route would be 30 feet wide and would be provided by land now occupied by a former restaurant building to be razed.

The Council thought a tripping device should be at the exit, to warn sidewalk pedestrians of approaching cars, and that a stop sign should be at the street.

The Council also suggested the exit be chained when the bank was not open to prevent traffic.

The Council approved the bank's plan under its stipulations, with City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann to explain them to bank officials.

Harrington Faces Deficit This Month

Four financial problems were partially solved at Wednesday night's council meeting.

An $800 deficit in the general fund, greater savings on city gasoline, details of $150,000 bond issue and a sewer usage fee occupied most of the discussion.

City Manager Alfred Mann reported that Harrington as usual is in the red this month. He said the city will need more than $3,000 to pay December's bill.

The deficit, he said, will be partially offset by $1,600 outstanding in property taxes.

The council authorized Mann to transfer funds from the $4,000 water fund as needed to pay general fund expenses.

Mann also introduced a proposal for the town to buy its own gas from the wholesalers after bidding. He said the cost would be reduced from 33 cents to as low as 18 cents a gallon, because this method of buying would eliminate state and federal taxes now paid by the city.

Mann pointed out the police department alone uses 200 gallons a month and the city also supplies gas for fire equipment.

He was authorized to obtain more information on the proposal and also to obtain bids for the city's 1965 fuel oil supply.

Council also decided to ask bonding attorneys, through City Solicitor Grover C. Brown to sell Harrington's bonds in $5000 bonds. The bond issue is to be paid off in 15 years at a rate of two bonds a year.

Mayor Fulton J. Downing estimated interest will be about 3.5 per cent for a cost of about $14,500 the first year and lesser amounts in subsequent years.

Council also voted to apply its new sewer usage fee to quarterly bills now being mailed. The fee, adopted in October would be retroactive to the date of its adoption.

Other States Like Highway Unified Dept.

Key administrators in the Delaware State Highway Department maintain that other states are envious of the fact that all highway-related functions in Delaware are under one agency.

Operations Director Ernest A. Davidson, Col. Eugene B. Ellis, superintendent of state police, and Russell W. Whitby, motor vehicle commissioner, returned with this view from a meeting in Baltimore last week with their counterparts from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

They said Delaware was the only state in the region with its engineering, police and motor vehicle departments under one commission and that representatives of other states reported difficulty in maintaining close liaison between the various divisions.

The meeting was attended by regional representatives of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, the American Association of State Highway Officials and the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads.

Davidson said the fact that the related Delaware divisions function under the State Highway Commission enables the administrators to work out mutual problems in advance. The Delaware administrators meet formally each month with the commission and informally for lunch each Monday with the commission chairman N. Maxson Terry.

"Our Departments are much closer together than the same departments are in other states and the relationship has been fruitful on numerous occasions," Davidson said.

A case in point, he asserted, was a recent problem in which a man decided that a road in use for more than 18 years was on his private property. He threatened to barricade it from the public.

Ellis said he was contacted immediately and agreed that state police would move to keep the road open while the engineering division sought a legal opinion from the commission attorney, S. Samuel Arsh. Arsh ruled that the road is public and so the interagency cooperation prevented inconvenience for motorists. The man can still go to court to prove his point, but in the meantime the artery will remain open to the traffic, Ellis said.

A similar instance of cooperation, according to Whitby, is the construction of a new inspection lane in New Castle County. The engineering division is supervising the construction, assuring it will meet maximum standards, while at the same time saving thousands of dollars that would otherwise have to be paid for inspection services, he said.

Several years ago the engineering division and the state police joined in sending a police officer (Ralph D. Knotts, now a captain) to Northwestern University for a course in traffic control, with each division paying half the costs.

As a consequence, police have maintained such a liaison ever since. When the engineers go to the commission with recommendations for speed limits, traffic light locations, one-way streets and similar matters, the solution has already been approved in advance by police and the commission can act knowing that all divisions are unanimous in approving the recommendation.

Some time ago, Davidson said, there was a triple fatality involving a car going in the wrong direction on a one-way street. To ascertain why the car was traveling in the wrong direction, engineers needed to know where it entered the roadway. Police investigated and found the driver had gone into the road at the exit end.

As a consequence, he said, signs were changed so that it would now be virtually impossible for anyone to enter the road without knowing he was traveling in the wrong direction.

"It didn't prevent the original accident," said Davidson, "but we hope it will prevent any recurrence."

Other interdivision problems authorities say were worked out in such a manner include the signs posted on St. Georges Bridge while it was closed for repairs, the detour routes and the minimum speed to be observed on them.

Whitby and Davidson said they are working together on a project to offer more education to drivers on the use of toll road approaches and exits. Davidson said:

"We spend thousands of dollars to build the toll roads so that a car can be moving at full speed by the time it is on the turnpike, and, conversely, can be cut down to 25 miles an hour when it moves off and onto one of the exit roads, but many are not aware of their proper use. With the cooperation of the motor vehicle commissioner we hope to get the message across to a wide segment of the traveling public." Davidson added as an afterthought, "That doesn't mean we always agree, but we hash out the problems and generally we come to an understanding which permits us to do whatever is to be done."

Recreation Center For Handicapped To Be Dedicated

The first recreation center for the handicapped in Delaware, created by the Mancus Foundation from funds raised over the past 15 years, will be dedicated at a public open house Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m.

The new center, at Danby and Jessup Streets in Wilmington, was first conceived as an objective to "help the handicapped help themselves" by Miss Mary Ann Wright, president, and Miss Agnes Perrone, recording secretary, the two founders of the foundation. In the 15 years that elapsed from the start of the handicapped group until acquisition of the building this fall, funds for the project were accumulated from proceeds of annual variety shows and from donations from private citizens. None of the funds derived from charity drives or public funds.

Miss Wright, a victim of cerebral palsy as a child, has spent most of her life in a wheelchair. Despite her handicap, however, she finished her education, specialized in insurance and notary public techniques, and formed her own insurance brokerage and notary business in her home at 2308 Washington Street. She has been self-employed for 23 years.

Miss Perrone, paralyzed by polio at age four, has spent her life in a wheelchair, but managed to finish high school and a year of college study before starting her own business. For several years she conducted a telephone solicitation service, but in recent years has been a custom knitter of fashion clothing designs.

Other officers of the foundation include: A research chemist at the DuPont Experimental Station who was born a deaf-mute. He is a graduate of Yale University and holds a master's degree in chemistry from New York University. A native of Siam, blinded by disease in a Japanese prison camp during World War II, who came to the United States at 14, received a college degree at the University of Pennsylvania, and was the first blind person to receive a master's degree from the University of Delaware. A New Castle girl, now married and raising a family, who was born without legs and only one arm. She completed public and business schooling and became a private secretary.

It was this group that started the Mancus Foundation on its way to "help the handicapped help themselves." Their first organized efforts were to inspire legislation to provide public schooling for handicapped children. After this was achieved, the group felt that recreation was the first step in helping the handicapped make the transition from the sick room to a useful life.

"We have to realize that for the handicapped it's a big challenge to compete in a non-handicapped society," according to Miss Wright. "We first have to learn to overcome our reluctance to appear in public, then we must find a way to evaluate our own talents and how they may be put to use as both self-expression and avocation. An exhibit of this 'self-expression' will highlight our open house Sunday.

"Our new recreation center, achieved through the help of hundreds of private citizens over the past 15 years, is now a reality—it's a real dream come true," she said.

The new center, which will be open seven days a week, is available not only as a meeting house for the state's handicapped, but will have formal afternoon and evening programs. Both social and educational subjects will be covered, according to Miss Perrone. "In addition to such things as card parties, dances, entertainment, and outside trips, an educational program will be carried on for those interested in developing artistic skills or expanding their knowledge or academic and business subjects."

The Mancus Foundation had its start in Wilmington, but in the past two years has added chapters in Kent and Sussex Counties and is helping to organize a third chapter in nearby Maryland.

Representatives of the three chapters will be joined by local and state dignitaries for a "cake cutting" celebration Sunday afternoon. The public is invited to see what it has helped the handicapped create.

THURSDAY— 8 p.m. Choir rehearsal.

The annual congregational covered dish supper will take place this coming Monday evening at 6:30. It will be followed by family movies and the annual meeting. During the annual business meeting, there will be movies suitable for children and youth under the ages of 14 years. Those who are 14 years and older are expected to remain at the annual business meeting.

The Vicar will be most happy to welcome all at the covered dish dinner, but must continue to remind you that only those who are members in good standing (Baptized members 18 years of age or older) will be permitted to vote at the annual meeting. This is a canon of the church, passed at the 1961 General Convention which is also interpreted that a member in good standing is one who "is regular in church attendance and regular in contributing to the financial program of the church." To be regular in attendance means that one is in church every Sunday except when there are emergencies. This is not to give the impression of rigidity or a legalistic approach, as in all things great discretion is practiced in evaluating these matters. Certainly it is our wish that all who come may be able to vote.

A last reminder that those attending the covered dish supper should bring a place setting (plate, cup and saucer, glass, and silver) and a non-meat covered dish.) The women of St. Stephen's will provide meat, bread, butter, coffee, cream and milk.

Christmas is now only little more than two weeks away. It is the custom for members of St. Stephen's to remember their loved ones who have departed this life, by donating the cost of the Poinsettias which beautify the Sanctuary at Christmastide. Everyone is therefore urged to get into the Parish Office, an order for Poinsettias at the very earliest possible time, if you plan to do so this year. Donations this year come to $2.50 for each Poinsettia. As in the past, the plants will remain in the Sanctuary until the first Sunday after Epiphany which is on January 10, at which time those desiring to do so may remove one to take home.

Veterans News QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Q—My father, who was totally disabled in Korea, died in a car accident in 1960. Am I eligible for training assistance from the VA?

A—The new law providing training for children of veterans permanently and totally disabled due to military service includes those families where the veteran so qualified has since died. You should make official application to the VA to determine your rights.

Q—Am I entitled to care in a VA hospital if all my service was in peacetime?

A—A peacetime veteran may be admitted to a VA hospital if he receives service-connected disability compensation, was discharged or retired for disability incurred in line of duty, or has been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Q—I have heard that the so-called paraplegic housing is also available to blinded veterans. Is this correct?

A—Assistance, up to $10,000, in acquiring specially adapted housing is provided for veterans with service-connected total disabilities including the loss or permanent loss of use of both legs requiring use of wheel chair, crutches, cane or braces. For veterans with service-connected blindness, the loss of use of one leg is sufficient to qualify.

State Ok's Plan For Care For Medically Indigent Aged

The medical care for Delaware's medically indigent aged went into effect Tuesday, following action Monday night by the State Board of Welfare.

At its regular meeting in Dover, the board approved a set of requirements for aged Delawareans who will take part in the program, part of the federal Kerr-Mills Act.

A primary factor in eligibility will be that a person's net income, less medical expenses, rather than his gross income will be considered.

Under the requirements passed unanimously by the board Monday night, elderly persons receiving aid under the program would have their cases re-evaluated every six months in cases of prolonged illness.

Basically, the program will pay medical costs of persons over 65 who cannot afford to pay large medical bills but are otherwise self-sufficient. The program is designed to help them pay their medical costs and yet stay off the relief rolls.

The program does not apply to persons over 65 who are receiving old age assistance from the state. These are covered by another provision of the Kerr-Mills Act which pays their medical costs and has been in effect in Delaware for the past two years.

The Welfare Board also Monday night included a measure of flexibility in the program, as was urged by Dr. W. O. LaMotte, chairman of its medical advisory committee, at the last meeting.

As approved Monday night, the program will allow elderly persons to subtract the costs of medical payments from the income ceilings set up for participation. Also, the cost of contributory health insurance will tributary health insurance will

A. Roke Lieberman, supervisor of medical care programs for the State Department of Public Welfare, which will administer the program, made it clear that only those persons with a clear medical need at the time of application will be accepted for the program.

He said a person applying must be currently under the care of a physician and satisfy the department that he is scope of the program's remedially indigent within the requirements. If he claims prior medical bills to be placed against his current income, he must substantiate the fact that these bills have been incurred and paid.

In order to qualify for the program, a person must be 65 or over, a resident of Delaware at the time of application, not be receiving old age assistance or aid to the disabled and must have sufficient income to pay medical expenses but enough to live on otherwise.

A single person may not earn more than $1,500 a year after any medical health insurance such as Blue Cross or accident insurance premium costs and any medical bills incurred over the previous six months have been deducted.

A married couple has a ceiling of $2,100-a-year income, subject to the same conditions as the single person.

Also, a single person who has resources such as savings, stocks and bond, or other liquid assets up to the amount of $600, or a married couple with the same type assets up to $900, may keep them and still participate in the program.

Also, resources such as non-negotiable bonds, mortgages and real estate excluding the home in which he lives, may be retained if the total value does not exceed $2,500 in the case of a single person or $3,000 for a married couple. Automobiles are excluded.

In addition, life insurance may be retained by those applying for the program if it does not have a cash surrender value of more than $1000 for a single person or $1000 for each of a married couple. If it exceeds this, the cash surrender value must be considered as applying against the income ceilings.

The department also considered the medical expense payments as a supplement to and not a substitute for workmen's compensation, veterans benefits or private employe programs for meeting medical expenses.

Under the provisions of the program as adopted Monday night, no enrollment or other fee may be charged and no lien may be placed against the property of a participant during his lifetime for any payments made under the program.

All medical care provided under the program will be rendered by the hospital and medical personnel of the participants' choosing. The individual hospital or physician involved will then bill the welfare department for the costs.

The first costs to be paid by the department under the new program will be for in-hospital care, outpatient hospital and clinic services, prescribed drugs and services of the Visiting Nurse Association. The program may be expanded later.

Persons may apply for medical care under the program, by contacting the office of the State Department of Public Welfare in their county.

High Cost Of Crime

Taxpayers are having to dig a little deeper each year to meet the rising cost of crime in our Nation. Since this heavy financial burden is directly related to the amount of lawlessness occurring, the report of some 2,259,100 serious crimes committed in 1963 offers no encouragement for immediate relief from criminal violence or the cost of fighting it.

This total represents a 10-per cent increase over the 1962 figure. In the past 5 years, crime has increased five times faster than our population growth.

It is not surprising, therefore, that crime costs are becoming a big issue in every community. Not only are more citizens being victimized with greater frequency, they are also being charged more for their misfortune. Presently, a conservative estimate of the annual crime bill is 27 billion dollars.

Experience has shown that in all fields of competitive encounters the best strategy for winning is a good, bold offense. A good offensive for effective law enforcement encompasses many vital components. Law enforcement agencies cannot wage a successful campaign against the criminal forces when inadequately equipped. It takes sufficient funds, outstanding personnel, and proper training programs and facilities to uphold law and order. These basic requirements are so closely interwoven in the makeup of professional law enforcement that the lack of one jeopardizes the overall achievement of any agency. Further, to single out one as more important than the others is subject to question. However, career police executives over the years have sought to attract top caliber personnel. Without exception, the one main obstacle has been the meager salary which they could offer. Consequently, many outstanding prospects do not bother to apply, and a good percentage of those who enter the profession are forced to leave for jobs with better pay in order to support their families.

Let us take a look at some of the pay scales for the average officer who daily risks his life protecting and defending his fellow man. The entrance salary for patrolmen in some of our cities having more than 500,000 population is barely $90 per week. In a number of smaller communities with less than 25,000 people, the entrance pay drops to approximately $50 per week. The average monthly earnings of full-time police employees in local governments are about $438. This compares with $508 for firemen, $512 for public utilities workers, $555 for school teachers, and $560 for public transit employees. These figures lend credence to the contention that our society demands more for less from the law enforcement officer than from any other public servant.

To be sure, there are some encouraging trends for fair and just compensation for officers. The annual salary for first-year policemen in one major city is approximately $8,000, with an appreciable increase in pay for all members of the department scheduled for the first of next year. There are other cities whose pay scales compare favorably with this. Even some smaller towns operating on much lower budgets start their officers at approximately $7,000 annually.

Certainly, there are many factors to weigh in arriving at equitable pay scales for law enforcement. It is not expected that a blanket wage level for all areas could be agreed on, or justified.

It would appear, however, that the marked difference in the lowest and highest figures cited for cities of similar size is a gap which should be greatly reduced—upward from the bottom.

Virtually every hamlet and metropolis is directly and deeply involved in the crime struggle. As the intensity of the battle heightens, the crime toll rises and the cost multiplies. None can dispute that the time for reversal is at hand.

I say to all Americans, let us grab the offensive. Let us take the positive approach by investing more of this cost in the improvement of law enforcement, thereby seeking dividends in crime reduction. Let us begin by raising the pay of officers to a fair and just level to attract outstanding personnel. And finally, let us supply the forces of law and order with the strength, the facilities, and—most important—the support needed to discharge their obligations. —The Times, Missoula, Mont.

U. of D. Faces Record Enrollment For 1965

At their semi-annual meeting in Newark, Saturday, Dec. 5, the Trustees of the University of Delaware recognized that in September, 1965, the university will have to accommodate the largest single year increase in enrollments in its history.

"Yesterday's post-war babies are the freshmen of September, 1965," President John A. Perkins reminded the trustees.

More than 700 additional undergraduates are expected, and an increase of over 1000 students in all categories.

To meet this enrollment growth, the trustees approved a request to the State of Delaware for an operating appropriation during 1965-66 in the amount of $6,328,430, an increase of $725,441. Also approved was a request for $407,280 for the university's proposed Community College in Wilmington.

The trustees further authorized a request of $9,044,200 to the state for needed capital expenditures. Of this total, $6,044,200 is for additional classrooms, offices, and laboratories; $2 million is for a Community College building in Wilmington; and $1 million to help finance a $5 million dormitory-dining hall complex to be completed in September, 1966.

The 1966 dormitory, designed for 796 Delaware students, will consist of six residence halls—three for men and three for women—and a separate dining hall for 1,300, which also would serve students from other dormitories.

The new dormitory complex will increase the university's student housing capacity to more than 3,300. Anticipated housing requirements for the 1966-67 school year is 3,378, or about 60 per cent of the 5,500 undergraduate students expected by that time. Present enrollment for the 1964-65 school year is 4,383. Another dormitory complex—Gilbert Hall—is nearing completion near the university's Student Center. Gilbert Hall will accommodate some 540 students and will be ready next September.

The new dormitory - dining hall complex, not yet named, will be situated on university property west of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad tracks, bounded by Elkton and Hillside roads, and directly opposite Amstel Ave.

Some $4 million of the total cost will be provided by sale of self-liquidating bonds, with the remainder included in the university's total capital outlay request to the 123rd General Assembly.

Included in the complex will be two classrooms, and office space for four faculty members. Tentative plans call for 480 single rooms and 158 double rooms.

Architect for the project is the Philadelphia firm of Geddes, Brecher, Qualls and Cunningham. The dormitory building design won an honor award at this year's 19th Annual Forum of the Pennsylvania Society of Architects. Final working plans are being drawn up and bidding on the project is expected early next year.

Approval of three new degrees was voted by the trustees. The new degrees are master of applied science, bachelor of science in business education, and bachelor of engineering administration.

Master of applied science degrees will be offered in such areas as metallurgy, nuclear energy, and computer science, and will also provide an intermediary step leading to the already approved doctoral programs in these fields.

The bachelor of science in business education curriculum will equip graduates to teach general business subjects, such as bookkeeping, typing, and shorthand, in secondary schools.

The bachelor of engineering administration program will prepare students for positions in market research, technical sales, contract administration, traffic engineering, and others which require engineering knowledge augmented by business experience.

The trustees established a $10 library fee which will permit non-university adults to use the facilities of the Hugh M. Morris library. Teachers and clergymen are exempt from the fee. The library will continue to serve adult members of the community by providing free reference service and by lending books to their libraries of the state. Educational semantics provide another change approved by the board — the university's "schools" will be known as "colleges." The change is in name only and is designed to more accurately describe the character and structure of the University of Delaware.

Don't Get Lost In Cattle Business

"When enough cattlemen have lost enough money, things will get better!" philosophically remarked a feeder the other day. It's brutal, but it's true—cattle producers and feeders are paying the price of over-optimism and things will get better only after the exuberance of the majority has been dampened enough to bring a reversal in the basic cattle cycle. And much as we dislike to contemplate it, there is a possibility that we have not seen the worst yet.

These ruminations result from our recent perusal of some excellent discussions of the cattle situation by several well-posted men. It is typical of the kind of contemplative thought that comes out of crises like the one in which cattle feeders are currently caught. And while we do not like to be spreading "gloom and doom," we feel bound to pass on some of these thoughts to our readers as food for their own contemplative processes. As someone said recently, we in the cattle business need to thrust out our own problems within the industry and solve them together. No one else is going to do it for us.

As we have been reminded so often, the cattle business (like most other businesses) moves in long cycles—up, down, up, down over a period of years. Years ago these cycles required 12 to 18 years for completion, but more recently they have been running about 10 years in length. They are caused by a variety of things—cattle producer and feeder opinion, profits, feed supplies and the psychology of the crowd, to name several. They are basic. But we never know just how far they are going to swing the price level.

We witnessed a big shake-out in the mid-1950s, now we are caught in another as we head into the mid-1960s. The big downturn in the 1950s lasted about four years before the adjustment was finally complete and good prices returned to the industry. The upswing continued until 1962, when the bubble burst and started its downhill as a result of the tremendous increase in beef production that occurred from 1958 to the present time.

Contributing to the huge upswing in beef production are several important factors. One is the great increase in efficiency of beef making, compared with pre-World War II. Another is the fabulous acceptance of beef by consumers and the great increase in per capita beef eating. This be-

But he is not altogether bearish. Effective beef demand is still rising at the rate of 500 million pounds a year, he notes, and "that's a lot of beef." gan during the 1950s, when we in the industry noted with pride that the great excesses of the previous cyclical downswing in beef were "going into stomachs instead of into storage", the slogan Ezra Taft Benson used so tellingly in a difficult situation. It is a lot more difficult to increase beef eating now, with per capita consumption approaching 100 pounds a year, than it was in the '50s when per capita was averaging around 55 pounds. And another factor in the upswing is the conversion of so many milk producing farms to beef production.

Dr. P. H. Stephens, agricultural finance consultant whose opinions on the beef cattle situation have been aired here frequently over the years, emphasizes the speed and efficiency of modern beef production as a major factor in the present situation. "It is like turning from a rough dirt road onto a new expressway," he remarked in a recent commentary. "A 1,000-pound slaughter animal is now commonly produced in 20 months — compared with 30 months pre-war."

Most of this technological explosion in beef production has occurred in the past dozen years, observed Dr. Stephens. Inventory of all cattle and calves (between 1951 and 1963) rose 27 per cent and the pounds of beef slaughtered annually per inventory animal 47 per cent, while annual beef production increased 87 per cent.

In his opinion, "further improvements in breeding, health, care, nutrition and management will result in even higher annual yields of beef."

Dr. Stephens minces no words in warning that further progress along these lines "could drive the average level of beef cattle prices still lower," observing that similar results have been experienced with rapid technological advances in dairy, poultry and feed grain production.

"If you've found comfort in the fact that total cattle numbers were increasing only a little faster than population you were looking at only half the picture?" he warned.

"Don't get lost!" he cautioned. "Knowing the current position in the cattle cycle is important. The average of all cattle and calf prices could now be midway between their 1959 peak and the next bottom. This is an informed estimate, not a preordained fact."

These ruminations result from our recent perusal of some excellent discussions of the cattle situation by several well-posted men. It is typical of the kind of contemplative thought that comes out of crises like the one in which cattle feeders are currently caught. And while we do not like to be spreading "gloom and doom," we feel bound to pass on some of these thoughts to our readers as food for their own contemplative processes. As someone said recently, we in the cattle business need to thrust out our own problems within the industry and solve them together. No one else is going to do it for us.

As we have been reminded so often, the cattle business (like most other businesses) moves in long cycles—up, down, up, down over a period of years. Years ago these cycles required 12 to 18 years for completion, but more recently they have been running about 10 years in length. They are caused by a variety of things—cattle producer and feeder opinion, profits, feed supplies and the psychology of the crowd, to name several. They are basic. But we never know just how far they are going to swing the price level.

We witnessed a big shake-out in the mid-1950s, now we are caught in another as we head into the mid-1960s. The big downturn in the 1950s lasted about four years before the adjustment was finally complete and good prices returned to the industry. The upswing continued until 1962, when the bubble burst and started its downhill as a result of the tremendous increase in beef production that occurred from 1958 to the present time.

Contributing to the huge upswing in beef production are several important factors. One is the great increase in efficiency of beef making, compared with pre-World War II. Another is the fabulous acceptance of beef by consumers and the great increase in per capita beef eating. This be-

Mental Health Commtee Holds Meeting

At an important State Planning Committee meeting of the Mental Health Planning Project, which took place at Wilcastle Center Nov. 23, Sheldon Schweidel, staff coordinator of the project, highlighted his talk by emphasizing the high degree of citizen participation throughout the State.

"Literally hundreds and hundreds of both professional and non-professional people," he said, "are actively involved in gathering data from their district or county, in meeting in groups to discuss mental health problems of their specific area, such as mental health of the aged, of law enforcement, of mental health and the schools, and in preparing special task force reports on problem areas."

"All of the various committees and sub-committees are actively engaged," he said, "in gathering information, which will in turn be funneled to the thirty members of the State Planning Committee. The final report," he stated, "with its recommendations to a comprehensive mental health plan for Delaware, should be completed and submitted to the Surgeon General's office by the end of June, 1965."

Members of the State Planning Committee include representatives from both public and private groups, such as the State Legislature, the Medical Society of Delaware, the National Association of Social Workers, and other civic and professional organizations. The committee meets on a quarterly basis to exchange information on the progress of the planning project and to formulate plans for the future.

Speakers at the Nov. 23 meeting included Mrs. A. Felix du Pont, Jr., who made the opening remarks and introduced Dr. Daniel Lieberman, in addressing the group, stressed the need and desirability of full community participation in planning a comprehensive mental health program for the State of Delaware.

"Delaware," he said, "has the potential to become a model state in the field of mental health. It is highly gratifying," he said, "to see so many people actively engaged in this project. As I have said before, the people who use the services and the people who pay for the services must be the people who participate in the planning of the services."

"There's no question," he said, "that we will find that the requirements for mental health services of all kinds are so great that the responsibility for providing them must be shared by government, by voluntary agencies and by the private sector of medicine."

Dr. Irwin Weintraub, a psychologist as well as secretary of the State Planning Committee gave a summary of the minutes of the last meeting and also reported on the task force concerning juvenile delinquency. Special task forces have been organized to cover the range of mental health problems, with mostly professional people serving on the various committees.

Also under way in Delaware is the Mental Retardation Study, under the direction of Dr. James Baldini. Dr. Baldini spoke to the group concerning their plans. Mrs. duPont closed the meeting with a discussion of the future activities of the State Planning Committee, specifically for the next seven months.

Blood Bank To Expand Facilities

In an effort to expand the services of the Blood Bank of Delaware, Inc., President Raymond B. Phillips has set up four major committees to work with the organization.

Phillips said the committee members were chosen from among directors of the Blood Bank, many of whom have been active with the organization since its inception.

Phillips, who was named head of the non-profit agency following the death of founder James F. McCloskey said that as of October 31, 1964 membership stood at 46,493. He pointed out that each member represents the head of a family or group, so that approximately a third of the state's population is covered by the blood replacement project.

Since its inception nine years ago more than 41,000 pints of blood have been given to Wilmington hospitals; 3,325 pints to Kent and Sussex Hospitals and 319 pints to Salisbury and Elkton, Md. hospitals.

Phillips named Dr. Zenas R. Clark, Wilmington as chairman of office procedure and personnel. Serving with him are Clifford Foster, Mrs. Wilma Hillman and Mrs. Mary Woodstock. The latter is a Blood Bank staff member.

The Membership, Relationship and Solicitation committee is headed by Miles L. Frederick. Other members are Arthur Doherty, Dover; Mayor Otis F. Smith, Lewes; Mrs. W. Harman Money, Odessa; Joe Joseph J. Scannell, Clement J. Lemon, of Wilmington and Charles R. Schaeffer, staff member.

Brig. Gen. D. Preston Lee heads the Policy Committee along with Dr. William H. Lockwood, William J. Miller, Jr., Rev. Phillip H. Dunning and Mrs. Woodstock, while Mr. Phillips has assumed chairmanship of the Hospital Relationship committee. He will be assisted by Monsignor Paul J. Taggart, Charles E. Vadakin, Joseph Ahschier and Mrs. Woodstock.

Support Christmas Seal Campaign

Nineteen Sixty-Four was the year of the renewed offensive against an old enemy—tuberculosis.

And high time. The advent once again of that colorful holiday habit, the Christmas Seal, reminds us that TB is a deceptive, "sneaky" disease—still far from vanquished. United States Public Health Service reports that more than 53,000 new active cases still break out each year in the United States. In addition, there are 10,000 relapses annually.

Nor is that all. In addition to new and previously existing active cases, totaling 110,000 in all, there are another half million persons classed as "high risk" individuals. This means that they have recently been TB patients, or are known to have had contact with newly reported cases.

The report of the U. S. Surgeon General's Task Force, made earlier this year, emphasized that these half million too are part of the present TB problem in the United States.

The Task Force projected a long-range program which, if fully implemented, will make possible a vast reduction in the TB case rate in ten years. However these suggestions may fare, your local Tuberculosis Association is in the field fighting the battle here and now. Given the necessary funds it can continue to wind up each year counting victories.

But the wherewithal must be provided. Christmas Seal funds are practically the sole source of income available to this indispensable organization. To guarantee tangible results—here and now—in the counterattack against TB and other Respiratory Diseases, put the words, "Share the Health—Answer Christmas Seal Appeal Generously" high on your Christmas list. If your Christmas Seal letter failed to reach you, we suggest that you write or call the Delaware Tuberculosis and Health Society, 1308 Delaware Avenue, Wilmington, Delaware, OLympia 2-4924.

Ferry Transports More Than 285,000 Passengers in 4 Mo.

More than 258,000 passengers and 67,936 vehicles were transported across Delaware Bay by the Cape May-Lewes Ferry from July 1 through October 31, 1964.

Nolan C. Chandler, general manager of the ferry told officers of the Delaware Motor Transport Association that this record was established despite the 17-day shut-down caused by the walk-off of members of the Master, Mates and Pilots Association. There was no service from August 28 through Sept. 14.

The truck fleet owners were Chandler's guests at dinner and a cruise across the bay at which time he outlined services available to them. Among the visitors were vice president Hance J. Pepper, H. & H. Trucking Company, Selbyville, treasurer, E. W. Buchanan, Buchanan's Service, Dover and secretary and general manager, W. E. Barnard of the motor Transport Association, Dover.

During the 109 days of operation to October 31 there have been 2004 truck crossings, Chandler pointed out. The trip across the bay is approximately 17 miles. Therefore, this represents a total of 34,068 driving miles which were eliminated. It also means Chandler said, that truck drivers had 70 minutes of relaxation and had that much more driving time at the other end because of the bay crossing.

In advocating the use of the ferry service for heavy trucking, Chandler called attention to possible accidents avoided by so doing. Had these 2004 vehicles gone

The jet age in produce marketing is here. A bus tour group of the Peninsula Horticultural Society will visit the Jet Cargo Service at the Kennedy airport in New York. Perishable foods are now moved by a unitized system everyday from California to New York and back. We can expect to see strawberries and cauliflower come in from California, while blueberries and fresh mushrooms go back.

The tour leaves Dover on December 9 at the end of the Society meetings for New York City. Some will want to take the optional midnight tour of the Washington Street Produce Markets through which much of the food moves to the retailers and to restaurants.

The group will move over the new Verrazano-Narrows bridge to Kearney, N. J., to see one of the largest and most modern centralized prepackaging plants in the East after the airport visit.

Finally, the latest prepackaging materials and machinery used in prepackaging fruits and vegetables will be seen at Wayne, New Jersey. The same plant also makes and will demonstrate a polyethylene mulching machine for use with transplanted vegetable crops.

Those wishing to make the tour are asked to get in touch with their county agricultural agent as soon as possible. Estimated costs of the two day tour are $30, including bus fare, hotel room, and four meals. The group will arrive back at Dover about 8:30 p.m. Dec. 10.

High school students considering college are invited to the University of Delaware, Sat., Dec. 12. The "day" will provide answers to questions on admission requirements and procedures, tuition and living costs, courses of study, student life, and what the University expects of its students.

A special meeting for those interested in the School of Agriculture will be held in Room 246, Ag. Hall, from 1:15 to 3:00 p.m. Reservation deadline is Dec. 3.

In its annual study of supermarket and grocery store spending by American consumers, Food Field Reporter found that almost $1.5 billion more in purchases moved past the nation's checkout counters during 1963 than in 1962. About half of the increase went for foods—tobacco products, housewares, and other non-food items on the list added the rest. Putting it another way, about half of the money that made the register tapes at the grocery store look longer last year was spent for things we couldn't eat.

The lowest soybean yield per acre since 1948 is being harvested in Delaware, according to Reporting Service. A dry summer followed by early frosts reduced Delaware's soybean yield to 13.0 bushels per acre—5.0 bushels under the low 1963 yield and 9.6 bushels below average. Estimated production—2,574,000 bushels—is 30 per cent below the small 1963 crop, 39 per cent below average and the smallest crop since 1957.

Now that winter is almost here many dairymen must decide how many cows they will stable for the winter.

The number of cows is not the big factor. The important consideration is the total annual pounds of milk produced per worker on the farm. The present minimum goal is 250,000 lbs. per worker, per year. This can be easily achieved with the mechanization available today. The more efficient operators are producing between 600,000 and 800,000 pounds of milk per week. This demands high production per cow as well as well planned mechanization. The number of cows each worker must milk to achieve this 250,000 pound goal depends upon the level of production per cow in the herd, thus: Annual level of production per cow—12,000 lbs., 20 cows; 10,000 lbs., 25 cows; 8,000 lbs., 30 cows; 6,000 lbs., 42 cows.

Research shows that dairymen who milked 64 cows had to sell almost twice as much milk as the dairyman who milked 37 cows in order to make the same total annual return to management.

These data indicate that it's easier to get "big" as compared to getting "better" in the dairy industry.

Here's a tax tip that Kent County farmers frequently overlook. Pay your children wages. The wages can be used as an income tax deduction in some instances.

The wages have to be "reasonable"—that is wages that you would expect to pay someone else for similar work. And the wages have to be for work done in a business such as farming. House cleaning or washing dishes doesn't count.

A tax saving may be made even though more than $600 is paid the child. But if the child gets $600 or more in one year, he must file a return.

Even if the child buys clothes or other necessities you would normally provide, you can still claim him as a dependent, so long as you contribute more than half of his support.

Agriculture is a scientific changing industry. And if one is to be successful in it, he must be prepared with the necessary technical and scientific knowledge, skills, and abilities.

Agriculture, which is the inclusive term for farming—as well as agribusiness—offers positions in research, education, public relations, management, production, communications, administration, sales, processing, engineering and law, the county agent points out.

To prepare for these opportunities, a person needs a foundation in the sciences in high school, it is important to continue education if possible.

Agriculture will continue to become more scientific. A college education in agriculture must, therefore, be based upon lasting principles in contrast to changing arts.

The University of Delaware School of Agriculture offers majors in these subject-matter fields: agricultural economics, agricultural education, agricultural engineering, entomology, agronomy, animal and poultry science, plant pathology, horticulture and general agriculture.

Dairymen who buy minerals for their cows usually spend more than necessary. Feeding excess minerals is not only expensive but may be harmful.

Salt should be readily available at all times. In addition, the concentrate mixture should have one per cent salt which is the same as 20 pounds of salt per ton. A like amount of calcium phosphate or steamed bone meal should also be included.

The commercially prepared protein supplements such as 32%, 36%, or 50% have had adequate minerals and vitamins already added.

Trace mineral salt should be provided in addition to the protein supplemented ration.

A good economical mineral mix can be made by using one half trace mineral salt and one half steamed bone meal. This should be fed free choice.

Dairymen should be suspicious of high-price mineral-vitamin mixes. In addition to being expensive, they can be harmful if they are too high in calcium. Too much calcium limits the availability of phosphorus—the mineral most likely to be short.

Sanitation Program Designed to Aid Delmarva Broiler Ind.

Recommendations for a sanitation program designed to reduce poultry diseases in the Delmarva broiler industry were published this week by the University of Delaware and Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc.

The publication, "Broiler Sanitation for Delmarva," was prepared by Dr. Morris S. Cover, director of the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station, Dr. William J. Benton, poultry pathologist at the University of Delaware, and Ray Lloyd, associate extension poultryman.

The authors point out that reducing diseases through a strict sanitation program is the most effective way of increasing efficiency and profits in the broiler industry while cures or preventions for the diseases are being sought.

They explain that federal inspection of all chickens processed on Delmarva assures the consumer of a wholesome product. But this means that the poultry rejected by the inspectors represents a loss to the broiler growers. This condemnation loss amounted to 2.19 per cent of the broilers grown on the peninsula in 1963—some four and a quarter million chickens. In addition to condemnation losses, broilers killed by disease amounted to 4.5 per cent, more than 11 million birds—in 1963. Total loss to the nation's poultry industry because of disease is estimated at $300 million a year.

Extensive research is underway at the University of Delaware as well as other universities and private research organizations to find control measures for these poultry diseases. But in the meantime an industry-wide preventative program through sanitation is the most effective method of reducing these losses to poultry growers, the authors point out.

They say that by cutting the 1963 mortality and condemnation rates by half, Delmarva broiler growers could increase their income by at least two million dollars a year. However, the authors point out that in order for the program to be effective, all segments of the broiler industry must follow the recommended practices.

The publication outlines steps that must be taken by broiler growers, poultry servicemen, hatcheries, vaccinating crews, feed mills, diagnostic personnel and processing plants in order to make the disease control program effective.

Copies of "Broiler Sanitation for Delmarva" are available from the Department of Rural Communications, University of Delaware, Newark.

Space Science Helps Farmers, Progress Is Slow

The conquest of space will provide many wonders and treasures for the farmer according to a National Aeronautics and Space Administration scientist. Speaking to a capacity crowd at the annual Delaware Crop Improvement Association Awards Banquet in Dover Tuesday, Nov. 24, Dr. Richard L. Haley, a NASA program manager for projects dealing with the weather, said farmers working with agricultural researchers and meteorologists and taking advantage of technological advances in all areas of science will provide benefits for all mankind.

In relating the work done by NASA to farm weather forecasting, Haley said, "We are trying to find out what is true about space. There have been many changes to our knowledge of the earth and its environment since the space age started in 1957." But, as he pointed out, additional information is needed before farmers can have accurate five-day forecasts. Detailed global information is required since a weather disturbance can move completely around the globe in as little as three or four days. "Japan's weather today affects us three or four days later. Our weather affects Europe in three or four days. Thus the understanding of what happens to the atmosphere in three or four days or longer requires an accurate knowledge of the entire atmosphere."

Haley reported on details of a specialized weather service tailored to the needs of agriculture. This service is being tested in nine areas of the country including New Jersey and parts of Maryland and Pennsylvania. Haley pointed out that annual losses in agriculture in the United States averaged more than 13 billion dollars during the years 1942 to 1951. Of this amount eleven per cent was caused directly by weather damage including hail, rain, flood and erosion. But weather makes an overall contribution to three-fourths of the annual loss through its effects of the harvesting, storage, diseases and the like.

Soil Science Short Course Planned by Univ. of Del.

Many Delaware crop producers have reached the point where they want to know more about their soil than just a specific recommendation for a particular crop. Dr. William H. Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware, says they want to know more about the basic principles of soil fertility.

With this in mind the Agricultural Extension Service at the University of Delaware has announced tentative plans for a series of meetings to cover elementary soil science. The sessions will be held in three locations in the state at weekly intervals. First sessions are planned for February 17 at Dover and Middletown, and February 18 in Georgetown. Followup meetings are planned for February 24 and March 4 in Dover and Middletown, and February 24 and March 4 in Georgetown.

Topics to be covered include fertilizer placement, nitrogen balance in the soil, water movement and use of water by plants, and the economics of fertilizers.

4-H's Win In Crop Show Competition

Four Delaware 4-H Club members have earned scholarships to state 4-H camp or state 4-H conference as the result of their soils and crops judging abilities at the 56th Delaware Crop Show held in Dover Tuesday, Nov. 24.

Clifford Hudson, Frederica, won top honors. Second went to Janice Harrison, of Goldsboro, Md. Craig Eliason, Harrington, and Cecil Holland, Townsend, tied for third place.

Thirty-nine club members participated in the event. Each contestant was required to answer questions about soils and crops, general production knowledge and to demonstrate an ability to recognize varieties and disease problems. A typical question asked was—"If all the soybeans sold in Delaware contained one per cent foreign matter, such as sticks and stones, how many 30 ton freight cars would this useless material fill?" Those scoring correctly chose 40 freight cars.

Troop No. 679 Hold Scout's Own

Last week Troop #679 of the Harrington Girl Scouts held a Scout's Own ceremony at their regular weekly meeting at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church. The program was as follows: "America The Beautiful", Reading—"The First Thanksgiving", Gwyn Melvin; Poem "Thanksgiving Day", Aleta Mason. Skits, "Thanksgiving", Joann Thompson's patrol and "Hiawatha's Childhood", Joanne Short's patrol. A Girl Scout song, Scout Promise and Scout Laws were repeated by all. Presentation of Badges, Pledge of Allegiance and "Taps" and echo by both patrols.

Parents of the girls were guests for the ceremony.

Mrs. Albert Mason, leader, and Mrs. Alvin Thompson, assistant, presented the following badges during the ceremony: Hospitality badges and Membership Stars to each Girl Scout in the Troop, special badges to Joann Thompson for water safety and to Charlene Daroff for cooking.

The troop participated in the Chamber of Commerce parade on Saturday.

Diabetes

Since most diabetes is easily controlled today, early detection is most important for proper protection. Diabetes can start at any age which is an important reason for having regular physical check-ups by your physician. Although diabetes is still not completely curable, it is possible for the diabetic to lead a completely normal life by following the program that his physician has recommended for him.

When a person has diabetes his body is unable to store and use sugar and carbohydrates normally, and so extra amounts of glucose are found in the blood and may be present in the urine. If this condition is neglected, it can lead to serious complications such as eye trouble, arteriosclerosis and kidney disease. The most common symptoms of diabetes are thirst, frequent urination, itching and weight loss.

To control diabetes it is necessary to keep the blood sugar at a normal or near normal level and the urine sugar-free. In order to accomplish this it is necessary to follow one or more of the following programs: control your weight by following a diet prescribed especially for you by your doctor, take insulin or an insulin-like substance, test your urine for sugar, relate your exercise to the amount of food you eat and vice versa, and observe faithfully the rules for personal hygiene. Your doctor will be able to determine the best regimen for you.

When diabetes is well controlled, you may fully expect to live a long, useful and normal life. Diabetics work in every occupation and some even participate in many kinds of sports. If you have diabetes you can control it and live an active, useful and normal life by cooperating fully with your doctor and by faithfully following the regimen that he prescribes for you.

General Foods' Employees Get TB X-rays

Last week about 1600 employees of General Foods' new Jell-O Division plant at Dover shut their machines down, formed in small groups, and paraded through a white bus parked at the side of the plant.

The bus was a mobile chest X-Ray unit, operated jointly by the Delaware Tuberculosis and Health Society and the State Board of Health. The employees, at the company's suggestion, were obtaining free chest X-rays as a precaution against tuberculosis and other serious respiratory diseases. Those X-rayed included persons working in the offices and in production of Jello, Baker's Chocolate and Coconut, Whip Dessert and Topping, Log Cabin Syrup and Minute Tapioca.

With this addition to its employee health program, General Foods became the ninety-sixth Delaware industry to participate in the mass X-ray program. Last year a total of 17,483 X-rays were taken of company employees by the mobile X-ray units. In addition, the new Dover plant ranks with the largest employers in the state to participate. International Latex, Dover, and Hercules Powder Company, Wilmington, each account for about 1600 employees being X-rayed annually. DuPont employees are X-rayed in their own medical facilities.

The white X-ray bus was stationed at General Foods from Monday through Wednesday of last week, processing employees at a rate of about 75 persons an hour. Each employee will be notified of the results of his X-ray about 10 days after it has been taken.

A spokesman for General Foods said the X-ray service was requested by the company. He added that General Foods is concerned both that its employees receive optimum health protection and that the public recognize that every safeguard is taken to produce pure foodstuffs.

Delaware's two mobile X-ray units are the key to the tuberculosis case-finding program in the state. With crews of technicians, the units are driven to all areas of the state, taking more than 60,000 X-rays each year.

After the X-rays are taken, the films are developed and read by physicians. Persons whose screening X-rays appear abnormal are asked to go to the X-ray clinic of the Delaware Tuberculosis and Health Society in Wilmington, the Kent County Health Unit in Dover, or the Sussex County Health Unit in Georgetown to have larger, more definitive X-ray films taken. Individuals with abnormal findings on the large films are referred to private physicians of their choice for further medical follow-up.

The use of the X-ray for mass survey purposes during World War II represented a major break-through in the battle against tuberculosis. The mobile X-ray program got started in the late 1940's in Delaware, then as now a cooperative venture between the state board of health and the TB Society.

The mobile program was brought to everyone's attention in 1953 when the federal government sent 11 X-ray units to Delaware for a statewide chest X-ray survey. One of the units was left in the state as a loan. A second unit was purchased by the Delaware Tuberculosis and Health Society in 1955, with Christmas Seal funds, and was presented to the State Board of Health.

The State Board of Health has charge of the actual operation of the two units today. The TB society furnishes X-ray films, cards, facilities for re-takes, clerical assistance, and repairs and upkeep of the units.

The areas to be serviced by the mobile X-ray units are scheduled by the Health Education Department of the State Board of Health, after schedules of the previous year have been evaluated. Efforts are made to reach areas where statistics indicate the highest prevalence of TB may occur.

The locations are chosen to reach industrial, public, school and migrant labor groups. In the case of the latter, the mobile units are taken to farm fields and labor camps to test the workers who spent a few months each year harvesting crops in Delaware.

Make Christmas Goodies Now To Avoid Last-Minute Rush

With Christmas less than a month away and the busy round of holiday parties, shopping and baking about to begin, most homemakers welcome time-saving ideas to help them get everything done without sacrificing the favorite family traditions.

Ironically, it's often the modern conveniences that let today's homemaker continue the old-fashioned traditions, notes Miss Janet Coblenz, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware. The food freezer, coupled with the wide assortment of convenience foods available today, help to avoid the last minute rush that makes many a homemaker rejoice when the holidays are over.

Fruit cakes and certain kinds of cookies are best made a few weeks in advance so they can "age" properly. But all except the most unusual cookie recipes can also be mixed now and placed in the freezer for baking a few days before Christmas. Or, cookies can be baked before freezing. Yeast breads, too, can be frozen after baking.

"With all these goodies finished and ready to serve, Christmas entertaining can be a delight for the hostess as well as the guests—even when the guests drop in unannounced," Miss Coblenz says.

Many homemakers bake breads, cookies or cakes that remain family favorites year after year and bring praises from friends. Miss Coblenz suggests using these as special gifts to take to a hostess or to give to special friends who visit at Christmas time.

A plate of cookies presented to callers is an especially nice gesture. Use colorful paper plates and an assortment of lavishly decorated cookies. One family with pre-teen girls who enjoy baking make cookies decorated to resemble small fruits and vegetables. They arrange them on plates, cover with plastic wrap and decorate with big bows. Mother is delighted with the girls' interest in cooking, and guests are pleased at the friendly gesture. Equally suitable for this purpose would be plates of tiny fruitcake cupcakes, gingerbread men, fluffy divinity candy or Christmas pastries.

For a more elaborate food gift, make favorite Christmas goodies in a gift pan or casserole and enclose the recipe written on a file card. A Christmas yeast bread could accompany a wooden chopping board or an enamel or ceramic baking dish. Rolls or pastries are natural in a wicker basket. Your favorite homemade barbecue sauce or catsup accompanying a set of barbecue utensils or chefs' hat and apron makes an excellent gift for a backyard chef. Spiced nuts or candy or tiny cookies in an apothecary jar or canister set also make an attractive gift. A steamed pudding baked in an elaborate mold is another gift suggestion Miss Coblenz makes.

An assortment of recipes for Christmas breads, beverages, cakes, cookies, candies and desserts is included in a University of Delaware extension publication, "Christmas Goodies." It is available free from the Department of Rural Communications, University of Delaware, Newark.

New Englanders Expected to Visit Delaware in Spring

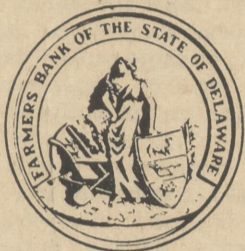

Judging by the increase in mail volume at the Delaware State Development Department, an unusually large number of New Englanders plan to visit Delaware next spring and summer.

With their interest apparently stimulated by Delaware participation in the annual Boston Herald-Traveler Travel Show, held

Nov. 18 through 22, at Boston's spacious Commonwealth Armory, Bostonians and other New England area residents, in large numbers, have been writing the Development Department requesting additional information concerning Delaware's beaches, museums and historic sites.

Possibly due to the fact that this was the first time that Delaware has been represented in a show in this area the Delaware display drew large crowds each day. David S. Hugg, chief of the Development Department's Tourism Promotion Division, and members of his family manned the Delaware booth through the show period.

According to Mr. Hugg, the most popular items distributed at the Delaware booth were the Department's own publications, the "Welcome to Delightful Delaware" vacation brochure, the "Delaware Calendar of Events," "A Historical Guide to Delaware," "Adventure Out-of-Doors in Delaware," and the "Delaware Fact File". The Delaware Highway map was also in great demand. Materials describing Delaware's museums and historic sites and resorts were also distributed. Participation in the Boston show was part of Delaware's current tourism promotion campaign built around the slogan "See the First State-First in '65."

Delaware Food Market Report

December is a month of short days, long evenings, and dozens of projects competing for time. What with family get-togethers and partying, menu planning will require special attention this month. The foods listed on the Plentiful Foods List are made to fill the bill.

Beef roasts are a mainstay of festive meals, and those leftovers make such a tasty addition to the next day's cold meat tray. For economy company fare, dress up a pot roast with fruit and spices.

Beef supplies continue to be plentiful and production is expected to be well above year earlier levels.

Heavy markets of turkey will continue throughout the month, reflecting the large 98.7 million bird crop raised this year. The 1963 crop came to 93 million birds. Prices will continue low and the large size bird will be the one in largest supply.

Plenty of peanuts and peanut products are in store for both holiday and everyday needs. This year's crop is about 23% above average so look for bargains on this food. Have you ever served a peanut sauce over baked apples?—It's delightful and very different. This sauce is easy to make, simply combine in a sauce pan 1/2 cup butter or margarine with 2 tablespoons flour and 1 cup water. Cook until slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Add 3/4 cup of chunk style peanut butter and blend together. Stir in 2 1/2 cups of sifted powdered sugar and blend until smooth—serve when warm over fresh-from-the-oven baked apples.

You can serve apples often because they too will be abundant. With the crop now forecast at nearly 146 million bushels, somewhat smaller than earlier indications, it is still the largest apple harvest since 1937.

There will also be bountiful supplies of red tart cherries, cranberries, and canned ripe olives. Broiler-fryers end the list of foods in excellent supply. These tender birds, which are easy to prepare and delightful to eat, offer high-quality protein at budget prices. Since broiler-fryers are marketed at a very early age and weigh only 1 1/4 to about 3 1/2 pounds a piece, you may need several birds for the meal you are planning. A brace of roasted birds borne to the table makes quite an impressive sight.

Veterans News

Income questionnaires have been mailed with pension checks to approximately 3500 disabled veterans and dependents in Delaware, Leon Fields, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office at Wilmington, said this week.

Mr. Fields pointed out that the questionnaire had been included in the same envelope with the November pension check, normally received about Dec. 1.

He cautioned pensioners to look for the questionnaire in the envelope when they get their checks, to fill it out and to return it promptly to the Regional Office—as soon as their total 1964 income has been determined.

The pensioner also must indicate on the questionnaire the amount of income he expects to receive during calendar year 1965.

All pensioners are required by law to provide this information to the Veterans Administration. They will be removed from the rolls if their questionnaires have not been filled in and returned to the VA before the deadline—January 31, 1965. They would also be required to pay back all payments they received during the past year.

Mr. Fields urged all veterans and dependents receiving questionnaires, to execute them properly and return them without delay.

He further urged pensioners to give full information requested by the questionnaire, to avoid additional correspondence and perhaps future delay of checks.

Lion Grapplers Start Practice

Coach Bill Muehlheisen's Harrington High wrestling Lions are working out daily in preparation for their opening meet Dec. 17 at Wicomico High, Salisbury, Md. The Indians have a three week's head start on the Lions but the locals hope to make a good showing.

George Bonniwell is ineligible to wrestle this season because he was 19 in September. However, he is assisting Muehlheisen at the practice sessions.

Louis Starkey just missed winning the state championship last season and is hoping to go all the way this time. Starkey lost a one point decision to state champion Paul Camp of A. I. duPont in the state meet held at the University of Delaware. Starkey had beaten Camp by one point in an earlier meeting in the Independent Tournament held at St. Andrew's School, Middletown. Louis won the Outstanding Wrestler Award in that tournament. Incidentally, Starkey weighed 172 to 184 for Camp. The local had received several scholarship offers last season and we predict he'll get a lot more come next March.

Jim Cain had a terrific record in 1963-64 as he took top honors in several tournaments in his weight class. He was hampered by an injury in the state meet. Jim is slated to go at 127 pounds this time out and figures to rack up a lot of points for H.H.S.

David Greenley, another tournament champion at 95 pounds, is listed as a 112 pounder for 1964-65. Dave won most of his matches last season and should be one of the Lion key men.

Dan Adams came out for wrestling for the first time last December and soon won the 103 pound berth on the squad. After a few matches he caught on to some of the secrets of the mat game and had a fine record for the latter part of the schedule, including high finishes in both the Henlopen and Independent tournaments.

Steve Welch showed promise in his first wrestling season and may win the 120 pound position. Mike Bakota and Ralpheg Davis are other aspirants for this spot. Both are strong boys with previous experience. In addition, Davis is very quick. There appears to be more competition here than in any other division.

Bakota and Mike Stayton are also listed at 127 but if Cain can make the weight, their chances are slim. Stayton is only a freshman but has been wrestling two years already. He can afford to wait if he must.

Stayton could make the grade at 133 with Bakota the man to beat unless the tough, well-built Bill Harcum upsets them both. Harcum has no previous experience but has shown well in physical education wrestling. His brother, David, was a top-notch football lineman, a couple of years ago.

Harcum is also in the running at 138 with Mike Kohel, back from last season, as the man to beat here.

145 pounds is wide open with newcomers Ken Correll, grade 11 and Harold Coleman, grade 8 as the only contenders.

Bob Smith, a winning grappler for two seasons, is vying with another veteran, Charlie Tribbett, at 154 pounds. Tribbett dropped several narrow verdicts last winter and gave most of his opponents all the opposition they wanted. The loser of the Smith-Tribbett sets will probably take over the 165 pound spot.

Starkey is at 180 pounds! Nuff said! Herbie Barlow at present is all set in the Unlimited Division as yet signed up.

The 95 pound class features four tyros with Jack Redden the probable representative as he has a couple of years on the other three lads and has shown in football that he is a pretty tough customer.

There are other boys in school who could strengthen this 1964-65 Lions' mat team. Some are essaying the round peg in the square hole bit by playing another sport in which they are not nearly so proficient and are not likely to be any time soon. Come on fellows "Let's be realistic and recognize our own limitations". A couple of other salty hombres are maintaining that after three months of football they just can't stand the thought of coming to practice any more. We know lots of guys who love to compete to such an extent that they switch sports everytime the seasons change. For these competitors it's cross-country or football in autumn, it's wrestling or football in winter and it's baseball or track, or both, in spring.

We would like to urge boys not out for wrestling or basketball to strongly consider one or the other sport. Wrestling in Har-

County Roll-Off Winners Named In Heart Tourney

Three men and three women bowlers moved one step closer to the state Heart Fund bowling crown by winning county roll-offs held last weekend.

The county winners are: New Castle County—Mrs. Gertrude Clarke, 115 Prospect Drive, Blue Rock Manor, and Jerry Bender, 128 Kynlyn Drive, Kynlyn Apartments; Kent County: Jack Wynne and Barbara Gruwell, both of Middletown, and Sussex County: Myrlon Shockley and George Lafferty, both of Rehoboth.

The six bowlers will meet in the state title competition at 4 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 6, at Bowlerama.

New Castle County roll-offs were held at the newly-constructed First State Bowling Center at the Wilmington Merchandise Mart on Saturday night, while the Kent and Sussex County competition was held Sunday night at Seaford Bowling Lanes.

The two winners from New Castle County have identical league average of 95, a factor which actually benefitted them in the county competition. Tournament positions are based on the number of pins above league average a bowler rolls.

Jerry, earlier crowned the Heart Fund champion at Parkway Bowling Academy, rolled a 120 in his opening game, modest by many standards but enough to give him 25 pins toward the county title. His second game was an impressive 156, and his final game 142 for a total of 133 pins above his league average.

Jerry's feat was doubly significant because he's only been bowling for two months. He was attracted to the sport by his brother-in-law, Eddie Davis, a veteran Wilmington bowler who has helped him with his game. Jerry bowls regularly in the Parkway League.

Mrs. Clarke opened with a 114 game, 19 pins above her league average, and followed with scores of 156 and 111. This gave her a total of 96 pins above her league average for the county women's title.

The slender brunette earlier in the tournament won the house title at Center City Lanes, Wilmington. She has been bowling about four years, although not regularly. She is currently a substitute bowler in the Hospital League.

While county competition in Kent and New Castle went off without a hitch, the Sussex affair ended in a dead heat with Lafferty, the eventual winner, and Jack Donovan, of Seaford, completing the roll-off with identical marks of 48 pins above their league averages. A roll-off was held to decide the deadlocked roll-off, and Lafferty emerged the victor.

H.H.S. Cagers Battle Inexperience

Jim Hawpe has the unenviable task of rebuilding the basketball varsity at H.H.S. after the loss by graduation of three high-scoring starters, Barry Fry, Bill Adams and Wayne Collison. Hawpe did an outstanding job with last season's junior varsity and turned out several good teams at Greenwood, a few seasons back. At the Sussex County school, Hawpe developed two or three All-State performers.

Glenn Smith and Richard Black are starters returning from last season and will have to shoulder much of the load this winter. As they go, so goes the team.

Harry Bitler saw some action last winter as a floor man. Up from the jayvees are John Greenhaugh, Marshall Hatfield, Ellis Myer, Sam Knox and Dean Manges. This quintet looked sharp last year but must now step up to the big time. Greenhaugh and Hatfield will give the team help in the rebounding and scoring departments as both are fairly tall. Myer, Knox and Manges have good moves, scoring potential and speed.

Unfortunately, it appears at this writing that most of the Henlopen Conference schools were not hard hit by graduation as were the Lions. The first goal of Hawpe and his hard working charges will be to excel the record of three wins registered by their immediate predecessors.

Other candidates are Lee Dean, Lee Graef, Henry Minner, Harold Brode, Gary Dalton, Mike Wamsley and Larry Garey.

Next week we'll print a list of candidates for berths on the junior varsity squad. With the addition of Dover Air High to the Western Division of the Henlopen Conference last winter, the Lions will again play a total of 17 games. This is one of the most challenging schedules in recent years. Most of the power in the loop seems to be concentrated on the west side which doesn't help Harrington because the Lions play each of those teams twice but only get one crack at the Eastern Division teams, Lord Baltimore, John M. Clayton, Rehoboth, Millsboro, Selbyville and Milton. On this side of the circuit are: Dover Air, Felton, Harrington, Greenwood, Bridgeville and Delmar. Defending champion Felton looks like the team to beat this time around.

ion were resolved, he said, the application of the state board's intent (just to match over the 2 per cent figure) "would present almost insurmountable computational problems."

Also, he said, if the view that the state would match all costs stood up, the richest districts would receive the most additional aid.

The section, through a technical error, disqualifies five districts — Oak Grove, Richardson Park, Krebs, Conrad and Dickinson.

"My disapproval and deletion of Section 14 of the legislation does not in any way affect the equalization principle which becomes law upon the affixation of my signature on this day subject to the qualification heretofore mentioned," Carvel said.

The Governor also said there are also weaknesses in the section of the bill he did sign and he mentioned the fact that since rich districts would receive aid as well as the poorer ones, that this would make it hard for the poorer districts ever to become equal.

In regard to pressure which Carvel said was put on him the day before the election, he said he refused to buckle under it.

The governor said it is difficult to tell whether this had any influence on his defeat by U. S. Senator John J. Williams. He did say he is aware there were "really organized efforts" in populous areas of the state to influence votes against him because he had not acted on the bill.

He said many persons were vied to think the bill would die if it were not signed before the election.

The bill as signed contains no appropriation. This would depend upon the amount recommended by the State Board of Education and adopted in the budget.

F. Earl McGinnis, state budget director who has opposed the bill, said Wednesday that he did feel Carvel vetoed the "worst part" of the bill but that other problems remain. He cited the lack of equalized assessments among the counties.

Carvel said he was suggesting a committee be formed but was that another $1 million "more or less" would be needed before the truck stop could be built and opened for service.

Last July, the estimated overall cost was put at $1.5 million. Wednesday's closed session was attended by commission members and lawyers for financial houses.

The commission later was to have acted on a proposal that bids for the construction of the truck stop be advertised. This was not taken up at the open meeting of the commission. It was just ignored.

Meanwhile, Nolan C. Chandler, general manager of the ferry, is undertaking a program to step up use by trucks.

Chandler pointed out that truck drivers can have 70 minutes of relaxation as they cross the bay and cited the possibilities of less accidents on highways.
