Zing into spring! Corvair by Chevrolet

The steering's crisper, the ride's flatter, the style's racier—even the grass looks a shade greener from behind the wheel of this new Corvair

For all its finely calibrated instrumentation—tachometer, manifold pressure gauge, even an electric clock with a sweep second hand for rally buffs—the most important thing that happens when you get a Corvair Corvair out on the road doesn't register on the dash. It registers on you.

You feel it in the steering—crisp and precise—as you double back on a curve. In the flat riveted-to-the-road stability of the new fully independent suspension. In the response of the rear engine (up to 180 hp available now in Corvair's Turbo-Charged version).

Drop down to your dealer's now—while the trading's extra good—and see for yourself.

HELP US SPREAD THE "SAFETY WORD," 4Hers urge

"Won't you please help us spread the 'safety word,'" cry the eight national winners of $500 General Motors Scholarships for outstanding 4-H safety activities. "We would like everyone to hear more about this life-saving subject."

Promoting safety is almost a full-time job for these young people. Typical of the eight winners is Gwendolyn Zeigler, 17, of Rincon, Georgia. Extremely active in her community, she has presented 157 safety demonstrations to nearly 6,000 people, made many radio and TV appearances, written more than 30 newspaper articles and prepared innumerable safety posters. Gwendolyn has also found time to organize safety clubs for young people and conduct a community-wide fire extinguisher sale.

49 Receive Trip To 4-H Club Congress

In addition to the eight national winners, 41 state 4-H safety winners received all expense paid trips by GM to the 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. General Motors is now in its 21st year of sponsoring awards in the 4-H program.

The national winners include: Thelma Cambridge, 18, Apple Valley, Calif.; Susan Noble, 18, Nampa, Idaho; Michael Hunter, 17, Rochester, Minn.; Marleen Retzlaff, 17, Walton, Neb.; Leonard Parren, 17, Oneonta, N. Y.; Linda Joyce Richardson, 16, Verdun, Okla.; and Susan Burns, 17, Pikeville, Tenn.

PROGRESS — This map, drawn by City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann explains the removal of a sewer pumping station from Delaware Avenue to Harrington Manor and what it can accomplish.

veins forms large, blue corded channels that show on the surface. Standing increases both the pooling of the blood and the pain.

Varicose veins occur most frequently in individuals who are on their feet a great deal, especially those with a positive family history for varicosities. They may first develop in pregnant women because of the back pressure caused by the weight of the baby. The wearing of round garters can also cause these veins to develop since this causes back pressure on the lower limbs. Anything which tends to force a pooling of the blood in the feet and legs can cause the formation of varicose veins.

In order to prevent this condition, pregnant women are urged to lie down often during the day or sit with their feet up. At the first symptom of pain in the legs, consult your doctor.

Elastic stockings may be worn, or, if necessary, surgery can be performed. With surgery the cosmetic results are usually good, but the most important result is the relief of the pain.

Varicose Veins Cause Suffering

When one thinks of varicose veins, it brings up a picture of ugly, swollen legs, knotted and corded and usually seen in overweight, middle-aged women who have had many children. These legs are not just unattractive; they are characterized by a history of pain and suffering caused by impaired circulation from the legs over a long period of time.

Varicose veins start long before they first become visible. They are due to defective valves in the veins of the legs which cause blood to pile up in the legs. Pain results when the tissues of the legs become swollen from fluid pushed into the tissues by the increased venous pressure. The venous blood, which remains in the superficial

Flower Seeds Or Plants, Choice Not Easy

Should a home gardener buy flower seeds now, or wait a few weeks and buy plants? The answer may be more complicated than a simple yes or no answer, depending on what you are trying to accomplish.

One of the first real signs of spring, in spite of recent snows, is the appearance of seed racks in every supermarket, hardware store, drugstore, and almost any other place where people are apt to pick them up. The impulse to buy a few packs so you can get an early start in the garden may be particularly strong, especially when the temperature starts to climb and man's basic impulse to get back to nature is at its peak.

But is this really the smart thing to do? Before you reach for that pack of Marigolds stop and consider what you really plan to do with them. You may be wise to wait and buy plants from these same stores a little later in the season.

Dr. Charles Dunham, horticulturist at the University of Delaware, lists these advantages to buying seed now:

Seeds are cheaper. If you are going to need a lot of plants this could be an important consideration.

Seeds are the best way to get the exact varieties you want. While most outlets stock a wide variety of seeds, the selection of plants later on will be limited to a few varieties that are in great demand.

If you want an unusual variety, seeds may be the only form that is available to you.

What about the disadvantages of buying seeds? Dunham says they require time, care and space in generous doses. Unless you are prepared to make the sacrifice, don't bother. You'll probably need a small greenhouse, cold frame, or the bare minimum—lights in the cellar, so the seeds can get a good start indoors for transplanting later.

Seeds can be planted outside according to the horticulturist, but it means delaying planting until all dangers of frost are gone, probably sometime in May.

Another problem with direct planting of seed is the difficulty in designing an attractive flower bed. Dunham believes it is much more satisfying to set out plants in the design you want than to plant seeds and hope they come up where you want them. Also the seeds you plant and the weeds that are already in the soil come up at the same time. It is often difficult to tell the flowers from the weeds. As one practical gardener expressed it, "the only real way to tell is to pull them out—if they come up again, they're weeds."

City Improvements Show Progress

Pipe began arriving this week for the $150,000 expansion of the local water system. City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann said he expected the contractors, A. P. Isakson and Son, of Salisbury, to begin work next week.

The city manager also said he expected work on a sewer pumping station on Smith Avenue to be completed next week.

Delaware Food Market Report

"One man's meat is another man's poison," is one of those sayings which have been familiar for centuries. Americans wouldn't dream of eating Chinese ancient eggs, the Chinese would prefer starvation to well-cured cheese. Some people would refuse to eat snakes and insects, yet, some gourmet shops sell french fried grasshoppers, chocolate covered ants and rattlesnake meat that cost $1.75 per 5 ounces. On the other hand, everybody everywhere is better off eating oranges, grapefruits, and lemons.

Right now the best buys at the fruit counter are oranges and grapefruit from Florida. These citrus fruits are famous for their vitamin C content and this can help keep us healthy; able to perhaps throw off spring colds and coughs. Other fruits in fair supply are bananas, apples from controlled storage, winter pears, pineapple from Puerto Rico, and honeydew melons from Chile. Strawberries will be more plentiful as the month progresses.

Most fresh vegetables are available the year around but fresh asparagus is one that is here today and gone tomorrow. This sure sign of spring is on its way to peak supplies in mid to late April. At local markets this week asparagus from California is selling at fairly reasonable prices. Several green spinach, kale, endive, escarole, parsley, Iceberg lettuce, and other miscellaneous greens are low cost choices. Other good selections include broccoli, carrots, cabbage, celery, medium yellow onions, radishes, and rutabagas.

Egg prices continue to edge up on active demand during the Lenten season. Prices are still the lowest at this time of year than any time in the past 5 years.

Most any of the beef cuts you'd want are reasonably priced again this weekend. Rib roast, which is one of the best beef cuts there is, is available but when buying yours remember there are several cuts of a rib roast—some better than others. Here is the "key" to a rib roast: The cuts are counted from the back of the animal up the chuck, and the nearer the loin the better the cut. The first 3 ribs, for example, are the most tender. They are also the most expensive. Next comes the 5 inch and 7 inch roasts. Finally, the less expensive 10 inch cut.

Increased receipts of calf and veal have sent retail prices on a number of cuts to a new low. Leg and rump of veal is a relatively inexpensive cut now.

Elvis' Birthday Celebration At Reese, April 4-5

What's all the laughing, shouting and cheering about? For your information, Dad just told Mom he is taking the entire family to see "Dear Bridgette" with James Stewart at the Reese Theatre, this Friday and Saturday, April 2 and 3. More than ever the super all family weekend shows are "clicking". With a great cast including Fabian, Glynis Johns, Cindy Carol, and Ed Wynn, "Dear Bridgette" can well be the funniest and most entertaining hit of this season. The scientific thriller, "Unealthy Stranger," completes what is called in show biz, a bundle of great entertainment. Everybody will want to join in Elvis' birthday celebration scheduled at the Reese, this Sunday and Monday, April 4 and 5. Two requested terrific hits on a single bill marks this as one of the "must see" programs yet offered. Elvis Presley in his latest hit, "Roustabout" heads this presentation with Jerry Lewis in "It's Only Money" rounding out what may be called a rollicking action and buckle-busting experience.

According to the Reese program to be found in this paper, "Psycho," is back. This unusual thriller-diller is listed to play Movie Center, Friday and Saturday, April 8 and 10.
