Property owners on Center Street will be advised, by mail, if they desire changes in water hookup that now is the time to do it.

At a City Council meeting Tuesday evening, City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann said the State Highway Department will begin improving Delaware Avenue and Center Streets within two weeks. The project on the latter street will require the replacement of eight sewer traps, two fireplugs, and three water cutoffs, he explained.

The highway department does not approve breaking a state road within five years after the improvement, except in an emergency.

The issue came up when Harold Welch, Center Street, desired to increase the size of the water line running into his house.

Any changes in hookup will be borne by the property owner.

In other business, the Council motioned to pay the Pennsylvania Railroad $50 per year for land used by the City for a new water main. The main runs, adjacent to the railroad, from Clark Street south to below Thorpe Street and thence beneath the railroad to the water plant at Franklin and Mispillion Streets.

Sol Martin, whose residence is on Simpson Street, with an alley at the side, sought recourse from the City for damage to his house. He said the alley had deep holes, that vehicles splashed water onto the side of his house, and that the building was difficult to clean. The Council decided to get the opinion of its solicitor.

Seaford Asks 'Head-Start' Federal Aid for Kindergarten

Seaford School officials have applied to the federal government for permission to participate in Operation Head-Start this summer. Dr. Kenneth C. Madden, superintendent of the Seaford Special School District said.

Head Start is a crash program to give children from underprivileged families the opportunity to be school-oriented through a federally financed kindergarten.

In states where no kindergarten is provided within the educational system, youngsters from low income families have been financially unable to attend privately conducted kindergarten schools.

National education experts claim this has been detrimental to such children, that there is a distinct advantage in preparing youngsters for the first grade through pre-school training, and that children without this background have a difficult time adjusting to the first grade.

Dr. Madden explained that the Seaford plan calls for four daily classes with 15 pupils per class. The sessions would run from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. for eight weeks.

Without canvassing the area to ascertain how many youngsters would attend with the consent of their parents, the school superintendent said, judging by local records, there should be about 60 children.

"We'll wait until the request is approved . . . or not," he said,

Harrington Officer Resigns Post

The Harrington police force was whittled down to a chief and a patrolman Tuesday night after council received word of the resignation of the second patrolman.

City Manager Alfred Mann told council that Marshall Geddes, who was on disciplinary probation, had resigned without explanation.

Mann said Geddes called by phone to report that he was quitting and promised a letter of resignation, which was not received.

Council quickly voted to relieve Geddes of his duties and will advertise for applicants for the job.

Geddes was put on suspension in February for leaving town for a weekend without reporting his absence. He later was placed on probation.

Mann said he already had two applications for the job, including one from Robert Darling, a former patrolman, who had resigned after disagreement with David Peterson, former police chief. Peterson subsequently was replaced by Franklin Rogers as chief.

Councilman Burton Satterfield urged that Darling be hired on a trial basis, but council decided to seek additional applications and permit Rogers to make recommendations.

Police Charge Youth Toting Blank Pistol

A 17-year-old Harrington youth is awaiting a Kent County Family Court hearing following an incident near his home Sunday.

Harrington Police said they arrested the boy after he allegedly pointed a gun at a 14-year-old youngster on Center St. in Harrington.

According to the police report the older youth was driving a car, "occupied by another boy and two girls, across the railroad tracks that run through the town."

Police said he then reportedly pulled up to the younger boy who was on a bicycle and asked him, "Do you want those mirrors on your bike?" and pointed a gun at him.

Harrington police said that while it was a "blank" gun and could not shoot real bullets, it did have the appearance of being real.

The youth was picked up for questioning later by Milford Police after a bulletin was put out for apprehension by Harrington law enforcement officers. Milford police said the gun was found under the car seat and reported also finding a knife in the car.

The incident was reported to police by the younger boy. The charge, police said, is threatening bodily harm.

Solution of Flooding of Clark Street Yards Well Under Way

Within a few days the flooding of certain yards on the south side of Clark Street should be solved.

City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann told the City Council Tuesday night of the following action: The City has dug a ditch from Reed Street south to a ditch running from East Street to U.S. 13 south. (Reed Street runs along the western side of the Harrington Shirt Corporation plant.)

At East Street, the City will install 170 feet of tile running north. The State Highway Department will continue the tiling to one of two connected-catch basins in front of Quillen Shopping Center. The highway department will do its part of the work because East Street is a state-maintained road.

The City's cost will be about $1500. The City had originally planned to put a catch basin on Reed Street and to run tile north on this street to beneath Clark Street to a storm sewer on the northern side. However, the State Highway Department, which maintains Clark Street, vetoed this plan, saying the sewer was already loaded to capacity.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sollars, among the complainants about flooding, thanked the Council for its action and complimented the city manager for many hours he had spent on the project.

Sussex Dumps Hit In Millsboro Protest

The growing number of garage and trash dumps in Sussex County got the full attention of the Sussex County Levy Court Tuesday.

The matter came up in a letter from Millsboro town officials who cautioned that if a solution to the "dump woes" is not soon forthcoming "then Sussex County shall have a very definite health menace and an extremely dirty face."

A meeting with the mayors of incorporated towns to discuss the problem was suggested by Levy Court members.

President R. Glen Mears agreed that the "ugly sight" of dumps along the county's side roads is increasing and that disposal will be the outcome if the (Continued on Page 8)

The Butlers were indicted in a special January grand jury session for first degree murder resulting from the shooting death Dec. 23 of Irving Stanley Wells, 50, with whom they lived in Harrington.

State police said at the time of their arrest that the victim was killed with a 20-gauge shotgun after an argument.

The maximum penalty for the crime was a $10,000 fine, 30 years or both.

"And I hope, even expect," Terry told a press conference, "that from such a beginning we will construct a foundation that will lead to the solid edifice of a merit system before the 123rd General Assembly has passed into history."

The governor praised the legislators and said that "surely we have reached the day when all things are possible."

No one has filed for the Dover board but four are running at Felton.

There are two positions to be filled on each board, one an expiring term and the other due to the increase in board membership from four to five. The filing deadline is April 28 at 4 p.m.

Two other filings have made Mrs. Raymond E. Ballinger a candidate for the Kenton board and James M. Rodimack for the Hartly board.

There Are Many Kinds of 'Dutch', Franck Tells St. Stephen's Men

The Pennsylvania Dutch country has many kinds of "Dutch," (a corruption of "Deutsch," the German word for German) Ira Franck, author of "The Ephrata Story," told St. Stephen's Men's Club Monday evening.

He itemized the Mennonites, the Amish (house and church), Brethren, Dunkards, and hinted at another kind of "Dutch" mentioned in an old ballad.

"The Ephrata Story" pertains to the cloisters, founded in 1732, at Ephrata, Pa., by German Baptists. The order was active until about 1850. The buildings now are preserved by the state.

CITY TO ASSUME RESPONSIBILITY FROM WATER MAINS TO CURB BOX

A pronounced improvement in responsibility for water lines was assumed Tuesday night by the City Council when it approved rules and regulations of the City water system.

Heretofore, it has been the property owner's responsibility to maintain water lines from the water main in the street to the curb box. Tuesday night, the Council agreed the City should take over this function.

In other motions, the Council agreed new curb boxes should be two feet inside the sidewalk; tapping into water mains should be done entirely by the City, with charge to property owner for time and materials. The latter motion was made because the City thought it should have entire control of such measures. It pointed out there were occasions when private contractors did not do a satisfactory job.

The Council further motioned that a copy of the new rules be printed and mailed with the water bills.

In other business Tuesday night: The Council agreed to build a sanitary sewer from Weiner Avenue to the house of Leon Wix at the Center Street railroad crossing and to provide an outlet at a lot beside his house.

Tabled a motion to provide sewer and water for a house being built by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Failing on Thomas Street after it was estimated the cost would be $6000. The city manager said it was written on the building permit that sewer and water were not available. Furthermore, it was estimated that only six houses could be built on the street.

Accepted bid of $3689.50 for sewer-cleaning device from Shore Distributors, Salisbury.

Agreed to survey, grade, and improve Reed and Harrington Streets and the alley between, and to survey the alley from Porter Street to Reed Street, city manager to allow no more than $900 for the work.

Members of a special legislative committee Wednesday proposed new wage, soft drink and mobile home taxes to help raise $14 million in new state revenues.

The proposals came from members of the Special Joint Legislative Revenue Committee at a 2½ hour meeting with Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr. The meeting was called to discuss the report of the governor's Revenue Study Committee, a citizens' group, which had recommended 14 revenue-raising measures.

The legislators reported afterwards that they reached no decisions at the closed meeting. The governor's press secretary, Ned Davis, said Terry told them he needs $14 million in new revenues to keep the state's budget in balance.

The Governor's Revenue Study Committee two weeks ago recommended increases in nine existing state taxes, new real estate transfer, gift and highway use taxes which it said would (Continued on Page 8)

Zing into spring! Chevrolet Impala

Chevrolet Impala Super Sport Coupe—one of two bucket-seated beauties for '65.

People who buy other big expensive-looking cars get one thing you won't (big expensive-looking payments)

It looks like a big car. And is—by almost any standard you want to apply.

Width? Nobody builds a car as much as one inch wider. Length? It grew three inches this year. Roominess? Every closed model's got three inches more shoulder room, front and rear, and more leg and foot room up front too. Luxury? Nice little touches like the look of mellow walnut across the Impala's instrument panel. And big touches. Like the fineness of the same Body by Fisher workmanship that makes some of America's most expensive cars look so expensive. How about the ride? Chevrolet engineers took the Jet-smooth one and smoothed it out even more this year. Also made it more stable by widening the wheel stance. Price? That's where Chevrolets fall way short of the other big expensive-looking cars. But we wouldn't have it any other way. Would you?

One last question: How soon can you make a good spring buy on a Chevrolet? One last answer: Just as soon as you can get down to your Chevrolet dealer's.

THE DELAWARE STATE FAIR WILL REMAIN HERE

When we first read an unidentified Sussex County legislator had mentioned there was a move to move the Delaware State Fair from Harrington to Georgetown, we did not think it worthy of rebuttal.

We still do not believe the statement worthy of denial but since the issue has popped up in another newspaper, we will say "poppycock". We have kept track of the state fair since its inception as the Kent & Sussex Fair in 1920.

Now, the stockholders of the Delaware State Fair receive no dividends. No profits are returned to the Kent & Sussex Racing Association, who officials are also Fair officials.

George C. Simpson, manager of the Delaware State Fair, has said he would welcome another fair at Georgetown. The local fair will stay here and, if Georgetown wants a fair, it is welcome to it.

We think this whole sorry mess is a fishing expedition. A Georgetown fair would cost a lot of money and about all it could expect from the state would be money for premiums.

Would it get money from the racetrack being built at Georgetown? We doubt it. The track seeks to sell stock to the public and the public wants a return on its investment.

Thus, we see an attempted tie-in with the track and a Sussex County fair.

What bugs us is the continual reference to the Delaware State Fair as a "county" fair. This is asinine, stupid, and ridiculous. Regardless of semantics, the fair at Harrington has been a state fair since the state fair at Elsmere folded in 1924.

Letter of Thanks

Last year the Ministerium of Harrington were easily able to thank all of the businesses that closed or that made special arrangements for their employees to attend the Three Hour Good Friday service. This was due to the fact that those businesses were listed in the Harrington Journal.

This year, however, there is no way for the Ministerium to know exactly who observed this important day of the church year and so this letter is being put in the Harrington Journal.

The Ministerium of the Protestant Churches of Harrington appreciate the cooperation of the businesses and citizens of Harrington in having made the observance of Good Friday to be a thing of beauty and worship. Surely it is only through working together in this way that we can have harmony here at home and thus do a better job in bringing about harmony in State, Nation and abroad.

Faithfully yours, Quay D. Rice, Pres., Hgton. Ministerium

Well-Organized Storage, Space In Kitchen Save Time

Where to put what is the problem in many kitchens, new and old. Well-organized kitchen storage will save time and energy and make your kitchen a happier place in which to work.

Here is another storage spot that can use a lazy susan, perhaps one with fitted bins. Drawers are a must in every work area, she explained. Drawer dividers help keep down the clutter. Shallow drawers are more easily organized, but deeper ones can be used for storing vegetables and larger utensils.

Work should proceed from one step to another in a logical manner. Plan your kitchen storage around the various work centers where you prepare food, mix foods, cook, serve, and warm dishes.

Store articles as close as possible to the place you use them first, Miss Morris recommended. Near the range put pots, pans and serving dishes and packaging foods, such as coffee, cereal and spaghetti, that cook without preparation.

File-type storage—in a vertical rack—for pan lids and flat pans is a space and time saver, particularly if a pull-out rack is used. Pull-out racks are available and can be readily installed by a do-it-yourself husband.

Corner cabinets are a nuisance, but you can bring the corn to you with lazy susans, she suggested. If they were not built into your kitchen, heavy-duty lazy susans with ball bearings are also available.

Wall cabinets will hold much more and, furthermore, hold it where articles can be easily found and reached if the shelves can be adjusted. Empty air space between shelves does no one any good.

There will be more usable space under the sink, Miss Morris said, if the drain is at the back or in the corner of the sink.

Cost of members' care for the year was $15,406,051, also a new record. Since the organization was started in 1935 it has spent over $132 million on care of members.

Maybe said the number of hospital days used by each of thousands members might be reduced to the level of 10 years ago, and expressed the opinion it is possible to do that.

Efficient storage alone will not make a kitchen easy to work in, Miss Morris reminded those attending the kitchen planning meeting.

During 1964 Group Hospital Service used 93.4 cents of every income dollar for care of members and reserves for their protection, H. V. Maybee, managing director declared Wednesday.

Group Hospital Service 'Join Week' Set for May 3-7

In the annual report of the Delaware Blue Cross-Blue Shield organization, Maybee said only 6.6 per cent of income was used for operating expenses.

The report, printed in vest-pocket size, also makes these points:

—Membership reached new highs, with 331,829 in the Blue Cross Plan, 300,000 in the Blue Shield Plan, and 220,000 having the Extended Benefits Coverage.

—Cost of members' care for the year was $15,406,051, also a new record. Since the organization was started in 1935 it has spent over $132 million on care of members.

—In 1964 there was no significant increase in hospital use by members and this resulted in postponement for a full year of the rate increase expected in mid-1964.

Maybee also pointed out that a "join week" will be held May 3-7. Delawareans who are not already members will have an opportunity in that period to join the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Plans for hospital-medical-surgical protection.

Industrial Advis'y Council Formed

The formation of an Industrial Advisory Council to the Delaware State Development Department was completed this week according to Samuel L. Shipley, director of the Department.

The organizational meeting, which was held at the Treadway Inn, Dover, is the initial effort of the Development Department to implement a policy of utilizing the best thinking available to promote industrial development and sustain the economic climate of Delaware.

Attending the meeting were some of Delaware's most prominent leaders in virtually every area of business and industry. The areas include realty, employment security, local government, regional development, commercial banks, utilities, transportation, Chamber of Commerce, urban affairs of the University of Delaware, agriculture, State Highway Department, State Planning Office, Industrial Building Commission, home mortgages.

Shipley said, "The Development Department clearly recognizes the competitive position of Delaware in the national industrial market place. The Development Department also recognizes that it is primarily a service department, serving the needs of the state. To do this fruitfully we will have to ask and hope to receive the benefits of those leaders and executives of demonstrated ability."

"We are in need of industrial doers' who will work for Delaware as a whole and not for one defined interest such as a county, municipality, region or area. We are looking for unified efforts to work toward a common goal—the continued and expanded economic growth of Delaware."

In line with this policy, three sub-committees were established to coordinate the Council's efforts. The committees are the Cooperative Advertising Committee, co-chairman Dudley Connors and Gerald Wright. Serving also on this committee are: Harry Tingle, William Payton, John Burris, Arthur Hafner, Clyde Baylis, Jr., and Price Webb. Edward Spears will undertake the study and evaluation of finance, transportation and taxes. Industrial Sites Committee will be directed by Joseph T. Pochonis and John A. Bivens, Jr. Serving on this committee also are: Chester Benson, Clifton Morris and James Nuttall. The Monograph Committee will be headed by John J. Jardine. Other members of this committee are: Robert Cook, Frank Vavala, and James Keck.

Again the Reese Theatre hits the bullseye with the announcement of the presentation of Samuel Brontson's "Circus World", this Friday, Saturday, Sunday & Monday, April 23-24-25-26.

"CIRCUS WORLD" At Reese, April 23-26

Direct from Cinerama, with the ever popular John Wayne, Rita Hayworth, Claudia Cardinale, heading a cast of thousands, "Circus World" roars across the Silver Screen depicting the heyday of the Buffalo Bill Wild West traveling circus.

Never in the history of Movie Center presentations, has Mom and Dad had that rare opportunity to give the entire family that rare long-awaited treat.

Yes, the Circus is in town, with John Wayne, wild across the world—spangles, pop corn, action as you never have seen—color and thrills—if you never see another motion picture—see "Circus World".

It's Movietime—it's Circustime—and it's a big time for everybody from eight to eighty.

Girl's State Rep. Speak to C.K.R.T. Auxiliary Unit

Miss Gail Umphlett and Miss Doris Wechtenhiser, 1964 representatives from Harrington High School at Girl's State, were guest speakers at the monthly meeting of C.K.R.T. Auxiliary Unit. The meeting was held in the Post Home on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Layton Gourley, president, introduced the girls and presented them to the audience.

Both girls were most enthusiastic about their week in the state capitol last June. Their reports indicated that they had learned a great deal about city, county and state governments and enjoyed the other activities of the days as well.

Mrs. William Outten announced that she is still collecting good used clothing to send to "Save the Children Foundation" in Knoxville, Tennessee. Anyone having clothes to send should call Mrs. Outten.

The Lily Parade recently conducted by the Junior Auxiliary was quite successful. Over $60 was collected by the sale and from the coin containers.

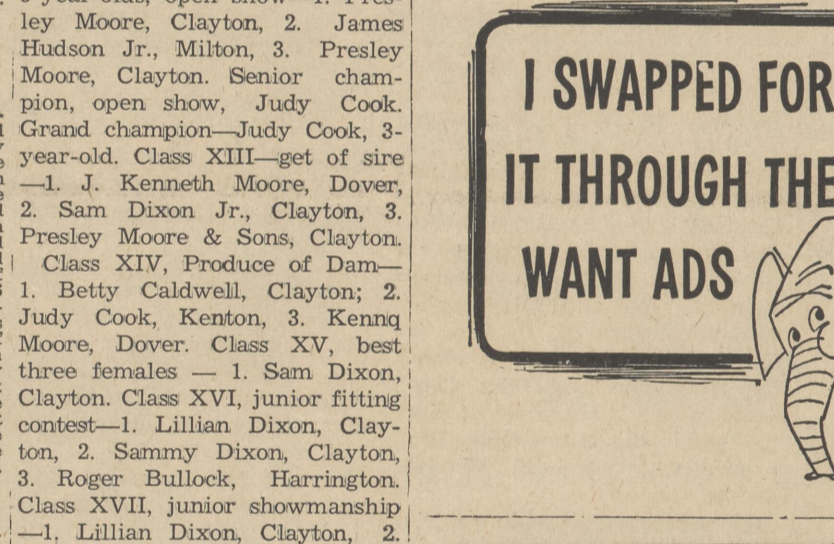

Mrs. William Humes, Legislative chairman again urged all unit members to write directly to President Lyndon B. Johnson urging that the Veterans Administration Regional Office be kept in Wilmington. A letter to the President from each member would be instrumental in keeping the office close to Delaware veterans.

Two members were appointed to serve on the selection committee for the Citizen of the Year award. They are Mrs. Outten and Mrs. William A. Minner. Anyone in the community having nominations should call either Mrs. Outten or Mrs. Minner.

The National president's annual visitation will be on May 21st at the Cavalier Country Club in Wilmington. Tickets are $5 per person and may be obtained from Mrs. Gourley.

138 Youngsters Participate In Broiler Program Pair an eager youngster with 60 fluffy day-old chicks, let him raise them for eight weeks and the result is some prize-winning broilers and a youngster who has learned some valuable lessons. This is the idea behind the Delaware Junior Broiler program, sponsored jointly by the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service and the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association. This year, 138 Delaware 4-H club and Future Farmers of America members are participating in the program, according to Ray Lloyd, associate extension poultryman at the University of Delaware. The program began March 22 and 23 when each participant received 50 day-old chicks. They will feed and care for them until May 19, when each youngster will select his seven best cockerels to be judged in state-wide competition. The birds will be dressed by a local processor and taken to the state fairgrounds in Harrington where judges will select the best entry. First place winner will receive $25 and a trophy. Twenty other cash awards will also be presented. Judging will be based on various quality factors as well as weight, Lloyd said. Usually, however, the special care and almost individual attention the chickens get result in birds that are even heavier than those grown commercially in the same length of time, he noted. The average weight in last year's competition was about a half-pound higher than commercial broilers. The Junior Broiler program is not only designed to teach youngsters how to raise a good flock of broiler chickens and how to keep records but it also helps them to develop a sense of responsibility, Lloyd pointed out.

New Fabric Treatments Put To Homemakers

New fabrics and new ways of treating familiar fabrics are being introduced to the American Homemaker at a rapid rate, according to Miss Janet Reed, extension clothing and textile specialist at the University of Delaware. To decide which to buy and which not to buy, the homemaker should know the advantages and disadvantages of each introduction.

How permanent is "permanent press"? Consumers who have been misled by such terms as "wash and wear," "drip-dry" and other catch-all terms are looking cautiously at manufacturers' claims, says Miss Reed. This recently developed "permanent press" process, it is claimed, results in a garment with a lifetime crease that will withstand washing of dry cleaning and still keep a sharp edge. Permanent press finish is probably superior to present crease-resistant finishes, she says, but this does not mean that garments will necessarily hold a crease for the life of the garment. The fabric is also, supposedly, virtually free of wrinkles without any ironing and free of the puckered seams long associated with "minimum care" fabrics.

The permanent finish process requires two manufacturing steps. The fabric is first treated with thermosetting resin and then sent to the manufacturer to be made into garments. The finished garments are pressed at a much higher temperature than those possible with an ordinary iron, and are "cured" in a high temperature oven to set the entire shape of the garment. This high-heat method has an unfortunate effect on certain colors, so the range of colors is limited. The cloth also loses strength and abrasion-resistance due to the high heat, and this may shorten the life of a garment.

Alterations are a major disadvantage of permanent press finishes since creases and pleats cannot be taken out with a regular iron. The fabric "remembers" the press set in by the high temperature, and therefore slacks cannot be let out at the waistline or lengthened at the cuffs, says Miss Reed.

The fabric found most satisfactory for this finish at present is a blend of 50 per cent cotton and 50 per cent polyester. This may not be a warm enough fabric for cold weather.

It is a good idea to buy a known brand of permanent press fabric, suggests Miss Reed, because much variation in quality exists. A reliable manufacturer will stand behind his product; a "fly-by-night" company may not. Permanent press fabrics are now used mainly for boys' and men's slacks, but other garments are planned and will soon be on the market.

"Bonded" fabrics which have a lining fabric bonded to an outer fabric by means of heat and adhesive are another recent introduction, mentions Miss Reed. Many women have discovered the satisfaction that comes from a lined garment. Linings add body and weight, help a fabric keep its shape, make a garment wear better and make it more comfortable. Fabrics with the lining already bonded in place provide a convenient way to reduce the time and effort needed to cut and sew a garment.

Women who sew often have been confused about which lining to use with which fabric, and they have been delighted to find the new bonded fabrics. Many of these fabrics are satisfactory, but the consumer should realize that there is a great range in quality, Miss Reed cautions. The lining and the bonding material can add so much body and stiffness to the fabric that it is possible for a manufacturer to use a very poor quality top fabric which may give limited wear. Since these fabrics are relatively expensive, the same amount of money in this case could buy a better quality fabric plus a suitable lining.

The stiffness of the bonded fabric may require the choice of a different type of pattern than would normally be chosen for the top fabric alone. The bonded lining has made it a new fabric with new limitations. Bulkiness can be a problem in the waistline and in the area where facings are needed. Some lining fabrics can be peeled and trimmed away to reduce this bulkiness. These fabrics may also give a heavy look to set-in sleeves, which are not usually lined.

A quality lined jacket has the seams and under-structure covered. It may be necessary to add another lining on the jacket since the bonded lining will only replace the underlining fabric. However, interfacings are often not needed. Test the amount of heat the fabric will take, Miss Reed advises. In some cases, the bonding material may discolor with heat.

Also experiment with details, such as bound buttonholes, on scraps of material before making them on the garment.

When the scientists are through with wool, you may not recognize it. Durable properties are being carefully built into wool in such a way that its desirable natural qualities are not sacrificed, says Miss Reed.

The "wurlan" process developed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture wool laboratory has resulted in wool that can be washed and dried by machine. These wools are available locally. New chemical additives have increased the soil resistance of wool to both water and oil stains.

When a new fabric development appears on the market, the consumer should remember that she is helping the manufacturers discover its possibilities through actual use, Miss Reed says. Satisfaction, as well as dissatisfaction, should be reported where it will do the most good—to the retailer and to the manufacturer directly.

As new products appear, they are constantly improved. Dissatisfaction with a first trial should sharpen a consumer's judgment and buying skill, but should not discourage her from trying out an improved product, according to Miss Reed.

Cancer Crusade In Full Swing

The 1965 Cancer Crusade is in full swing in Delaware, with an estimated 9,000 volunteer workers contributing their time and thousands of other contributing money.

While no formal goal has been established by the Delaware Division of the American Cancer Society, officials hope that about $160,000 will be raised this month. That much is needed to maintain the Society's program of research, patient and community service, and public and professional education that has been conducted with encouraging results in recent years.

This year's Delaware Crusade is headed by chairman Paul R. Reed, a Georgetown businessman who lives in Rehoboth. He is assisted by volunteer organizations in all three counties.

In New Castle County, the fund-raising effort is being directed by Robert P. Barnett, Atlas Powder Co. vice president who lives at 10 Pelham Drive, Welshire. In addition to serving as county chairman, Barnett is also conducting the special gifts appeal in the county. Robert D. Angstadt is vice chairman of the New Castle County Crusade.

Francis J. Tigani is serving again this year as display chairman, while Mrs. M. I. Bro is chairman of the county residential solicitation and Miss Constance Moore is chairman of city residential solicitation. Mrs. Bro is assisted by Mrs. F. Leslie Lindsay, Jr.

While Cancer Crusade contributions come from a variety of sources, the basic source of income is the household—the door-to-door solicitation that is conducted in virtually every neighborhood in the state. It is for this purpose that 9,000 volunteers—the largest voluntary health agency force in the state is amassed.

"We are very encouraged by this year's Crusade prospects," Mr. Reed said. "Volunteers have responded with enthusiasm, eager to establish a new record. I am confident they will. All know the success of their assignment will help save lives from cancer through research, education and service. It is a serious job and they know it."

Mr. Reed listed the primary objectives of the crusade as making sure that all the people of Delaware know and understand the life-saving facts about cancer, how essential early detection and prompt treatment are in dealing with cancer, the value of an annual physical checkup as an instrument in solving the cancer problem.

The 1,300,000 Americans now alive, saved from cancer, emphasize the effectiveness of educational, research and service programs, he continued. Education leading to early detection and prompt treatment alone could save half of those who develop cancer. Only one out of three is now saved. More research—for which greater funds are needed—is the only hope for complete control of cancer.

"Knowing the needs," Mr. Reed said, "I am confident the people will respond. It is not only a duty but a privilege. There is no greater privilege than helping to save lives."

'A Place in The Country' Is Dream Of City Dwellers

With more industrial development and the resulting residential development in Delaware, many people longingly look for an opportunity to get away from city congestion. A place in the country where they could produce some of their own food and enjoy country life seems to be a popular dream.

There are already more than 2,000 families in Delaware who could be considered part-time farmers—who work in the city but live on a few acres out of town, according to W. T. McAllister, farm management specialist at the University of Delaware. In addition to this number, he says, there are a lot more people eager to move to a small farm who just haven't made the move yet.

A part-time farm can be an ideal place to bring up a family, but there are some factors that should get serious consideration before a couple decides to give up city life and move to the country, McAllister says.

"Unless you have lived on a farm before, you will be starting a new way of life. If you make the wrong decision, you will be unhappy, and your work in the country will only be drudgery," he says. "Besides, if you are planning to raise food to use yourself or to sell, your returns aren't likely to be up to your expectations because plants and animals thrive best under happy owners who give them watchful care."

It may be costly to change your mind after you have made your move, McAllister points out, so before deciding, weigh the pros and cons carefully.

Transportation costs and the amount of work it takes to maintain your "place in the country" are two of the major considerations, he says. The cost of transportation to work as well as to meetings, schools, shopping areas and recreation activities in town is likely to be higher, and perhaps an extra car will be necessary if public transportation is not convenient.

McAllister also cautions that farming—even on a small scale—is hard work. "Be sure your family is enthusiastic about the move—and that their enthusiasm isn't going to fade when they find how much time and effort it takes to do all the farming jobs. Remember, too, that the difference between what it costs to grow a hog and what it costs to buy pork at the store is not as great as you may think."

On the other hand, it is usually true that taxes or rent will be lower out of town, McAllister notes. "It is also possible to grow a lot of produce for home use and sale—and what you grow is better, tastier, and fresher than what you can buy."

The size and location of a part-time farm are very important, McAllister points out. "Select your location carefully, considering such things as good soil, drainage, schools and the general appearance of farms around the community. If the other farms look prosperous, it is a good farming area; if they are being abandoned, be careful."

The amount of time the family can spend at farm work, as well as the amount of capital you can invest, should be considered when deciding how large a place to buy, McAllister says.

"If you don't have much time, it is best to settle for a small place of one to five acres and then specialize in growing vegetable crops and things that take only a small amount of land and machinery," he says. "And be careful in buying machinery; in most cases it is cheaper for part-time farmers to hire the use of a tractor and plow, combine and other machinery than to own them."

A family that is well aware of the problems as well as the pleasures of living on a farm can certainly find it to be a satisfying way of life, McAllister believes.

Planning Conf. Set For June 4 At Newark

The future of suburbia, center city and the transportation systems linking them will be among the subject discussed at the 1965 Delaware Planning Conference June 4 at Newark.

This year's conference will be in two parts—morning and afternoon panel-workshop sessions on five subjects, and a dinner session followed by a planning presentation by the University of Pennsylvania. "Planning Horizons for Delaware" is the title of the conference.

Participants in the morning and afternoon sessions will be able to select two of the five workshops—all five will be held in the morning and repeated in the afternoon.

One of the workshop sessions will be on "Transportation Horizons in the First State". A second will be on "Whiter Suburbia?" and a third will deal with downtown revitalization. The other two will be on development patterns, and on recreation and natural resource planning.

The conference will start with a general session at 10 a.m. at the Student Center of the University of Delaware. The five panel presentations will follow with planners, businessmen and specialists in various fields taking part.

John A. Bivens Jr., director of the State Planning Office, will speak on planning enabling legislation at the luncheon meeting, to be followed by the second round of panel presentations.

Late in the afternoon the activities will shift to the Newark Country Club for a social hour to be followed by dinner. There will be a presentation by the University of Pennsylvania, and a summing up by Peter A. Larson, executive director, Wilmington Commission on Zoning and Planning.

The conference is sponsored by the Committee of 13, Committee of 39, State Planning Office, Division of Urban Affairs of the University of Delaware, and the Civic League for New Castle County.

Veterans News

Monthly old-age, survivors, and disability insurance benefits in Kent and Sussex Counties now top $975,000. W. J. Bulkley, district manager of social security in Dover, said on releasing his annual benefit data report.

The new monthly figure represents an increase of six percent over the corresponding period last year.

"This increase can be attributed to the changes in the law in recent years, as well as to the growth of our aged population," Mr. Bulkley said. "This money stimulates county business; most of it is spent for food, clothing, and shelter."

Monthly benefits first became payable in January 1940, and they have continued without interruption for years, accompanied by a steady growth in the number of beneficiaries. Bulkley noted that as of December 31, 1964, some 15,645 Kent and Sussex Counties were collecting about $11.7 million annually from social security, an increase of 5% over the same date in 1963.

Many people in this area, he said, could draw social security benefits if they knew more about the law, and for that reason they are urged to visit or call the local social security office whenever they have a question concerning their benefits or responsibilities. As of January 1965, in the nation at large, more than 19 million beneficiaries were receiving payments at the rate of $1.4 billion per month.

The average monthly old-age retirement benefit in January was $77.57 for all States, while in the State of Delaware the average was $79.08.

The year 1965 marks several milestones in the history of social security. The January 1965 benefit payment marked the 300th month of payment since monthly benefits first became payable in January 1940. The number of monthly benefits currently being paid will reach the 20 million mark in 1965. In addition, August is the 30th anniversary of the signing of the Social Security Act by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapaa

Some farmers just don't like drainage ditches and will go to some lengths to avoid them. George Fischer, who has just bought a farm northwest of Kenton near Underwoods Corner, has a pot hole in one field with a hardpan. He also has a small sand hill.

He is wondering if he can cut a ditch with a back-hoe from the center of the pot hole to an outlet drain. But he proposes to fill it up immediately with sand, and hopes that the water will filter out thru the sand drain.

I've asked Fred Mott, our SCS work unit conservationist, about it. Neither Fred nor I have seen the problem yet, so we're shooting in the dark. Fred thinks a French drain might be more practical. This is where you simply dig a big hole and pack it with gravel or some other material. There is a possibility that the sand drain which George proposes may soon silt up and re-plug itself. In fact, the acid test will give the final answer. And yes, George, it may work.

A series of seminars on water resources has been held at the University of Delaware over the winter months. I was able to catch the sixth one last Tuesday at Newark when Dr. Leopold, chief hydrologist of the geologic survey, talked about "Some River Problems".

Dr. Leopold has done extensive work with small wooded watersheds—those of only a few acres in the Washington, D. C. area. These leafy areas absorb practically all of the runoff of the 45 inches annual rainfall. You would normally expect at least 15 inches to drain off. This is why woodlots should be conserved in our communities. The Mississippi river floods are caused at least in part by too rapid runoff of melting snows.

We learned something of basic stream characteristics which Dr. Leopold has studied intensively. Few streams in nature have more than 3 or 4 prongs. Most streams meander or curve naturally in a rather definite pattern. Straight stretches will rarely exceed 15 to 18 stream widths. The biggest stones will always be found at or near the surface of the stream bed, because of water pressure forces. Rocks tend to cluster in beds at regular intervals of 5 to 7 widths of the stream bed, rather than be distributed uniformly.

Flame weed control and flame insect control will get careful attention this year as a possible practice for Delaware farmers. We had scheduled a demonstration of insect control at the farm of Charles Blendt near Smyrna, but a state ban on burning by the Fire Marshal washed it out.

We have postponed this one until sometime in May after the first cutting of hay. The idea is to cut the insect population by burning the stubble.

The LP gas association has made two machines available for research and demonstrations within the state. Locally, Charles Paradee, of Dover, and S. Creddick Ennis, of Smyrna, are providing welcome help.

The principal of weed burning is to singe the weeds enough to kill them off and yet not so much heat as to affect the crop. The burner is directed at the center between the rows or at the base of the plants. These plants are usually older, and therefore tougher than the weeds. But timeliness of burning is a factor.

The corn demonstration plot on the farm of James L. Mitchell is being continued this year. It is located along U.S. 13 just south of Smyrna. Dr. William Mitchell, our extension agronomist applied the fertilizer last week prior to plowing. We are using four basic rates in order to see differences in performance of the hybrids.

Corn has been in this plot continuously for several years. Our fertilizer treatments have not varied. So we are seeing some wide differences—especially where little or no fertilizer is used.

We have 650 farms of 100 acres or more in size in Kent County, according to Lister Hall, our ASC office manager. His office lists a total of 2,200 farms, while the 1959 census showed 1,536 farms. The difference lies in definition of a farm. Some ASC listings are quite small, of only a few acres.

There are 490 farms of 140 acres or more in Kent County. The nationwide pattern is for farms to get fewer in number, but larger in size.

This does not mean that the small farm will disappear. We will always have part time, retirement or subsistence farmers simply because some people want to live outside of the towns and cities.

to remain competitive with other parts of our economy.

Olin Gooden, of Viola, asked me what I think about so many new diesel tractors being bought by farmers. There is a question in his mind if many of those people can work the machines enough to profitably pay for them.

This is the nub. Many people do buy big tractors just as others buy big cars. In some cases, this may not be a good buy.

On the other hand, many farmers feel that anything within limits to cut the cost of labor is justified. Labor has become the most expensive farm expense, where it once was scarcely a factor.

The diesel tractors must be big because of present engine designs. Fuel costs for a given acre of work are considerably cheaper with diesels than with gas engines.

Jake Roosa, of Milford, happened to be with Olin and me. He noted that big tractors are not well adapted for some jobs, such as cultivation or pulling light loads. So the big tractor may call for other large farm equipment to bring unit costs for each job into line.

In every case, large tractors call for more crop acres. This is why many farmers today will rent twice as much land as they own. So we have less manual labor per acre, but more total acres.

Delaware Food Market Report

What do you suppose astronauts will find up on the planet Mars? The astronomers say they see large areas which turn from greyish brown to pale green to dark green to golden brown just as our Earth vegetation does. Scientists believe these may be moss-like plants called lichen. Maybe these will prove to be new and perfectly delicious food for us!

It's as though—5 or 6 centuries ago—Marian with telescopes had been looking down on green tangles with lots of red flecks in some places as the Andes or Mexico. Tomatoes! Early explorers saw that the Indians gathered and ate hundreds of different kinds of tomatoes, yet, it took almost 3 centuries to put tomatoes in the class of the world's great vegetables. Today, tomatoes are grown and eaten in all parts of the world. Here in the United States we eat 2,400,000,000 pounds of fresh tomatoes annually and this delicious vegetable is available every month of the year.

This week ample shipments of tomatoes from Florida and West Mexico lowered the average cost per pound a number of pennies. The quality of tomatoes in general is only fair and sizes are small. However, when you select your own from the loose, vine ripened tomatoes, you will find some beautiful ones and the flavor is excellent.

Asparagus shipment is advancing and prices are quite reasonable. Celery is in good volume and quality is good. Increased supplies of eggplant are coming to local markets and prices are low. Other vegetables which are plentiful this week due to generally favorable weather in Florida are snap beans, cucumbers, corn on the cob, green peas, and Red Bliss potatoes.

For this time of year, artichokes are low in prices and quality is excellent. So why not treat the whole family to a meal filled with fun plus good eating.

Grapefruit and oranges are still good selections; although some re-greening is seen on these, it does not affect the quality. Other fruits to check are bananas, grapes, pineapples, honeydew melons, pears, and some apples.

As far as meats are concerned, beef is the feature item in most stores. Supplies of this favorite continue large with most of it choice grade. Veal remains more plentiful than it has been with many good buys available on such cuts as shoulder roast, rump roast, and shoulder chops.

Dues were collected. A bake was discussed. It is to be held April 30 and May 1. The Kent County and State Dress Revues and Demonstration Day were announced. The meeting was then adjourned. The next meeting will be at Gail Melvin's home.

Lynn Stayton and Cheryl Le-Kites entertained several friends at dinner Monday evening. This was in connection with their foods project work.

Magical properties have been claimed for foods by people from the earliest days of recorded history. Through the years some have been discarded and others introduced. Even today we have our own brand of misinformation. Often these "old wives tales" encourage poor eating habits and deprive the believers of adequate nutrition.

Sales promotion is the biggest problem related to food fallacies. Through the clever use of words and phrases commonly associated with nutrition, facts are distorted for sales purposes. The medicine men of years ago are replaced by those who pose as nutritionists with products to sell which range from miracle reducing pills to over-rated items of foods.

Here are just a few of the food fallacies that are being circulated in relation to weight reduction.

Fallacy: Obesity is due entirely to heredity.

Fact: Obesity is caused primarily by overeating. More calories are taken into the body than are used and, as a result, fat is stored. Too many calories in the daily family meals may be responsible for all of the members of the family being overweight. While heredity may play a part in obesity, weight can be controlled by a limitation of calories.

Fallacy: You can eat all you want and still lose weight if you take "reducing pills."

Fact: Certain drugs are available which depress the appetite. Only a competent physician should prescribe and direct the use of these drugs. The drugs themselves do not cause weight loss but simply aid in controlling the appetite.

Fallacy: Special low calorie bread should be used in reducing diets.

Fact: The basic ingredients of bread cannot be varied to any great extent if a palatable product is made.

The average slice of white bread is about 1/2 inch thick and contains approximately 63 calories. The average slice of most low-calorie breads is less than 1/2 inch thick. Naturally, the slice will contain fewer calories.

Fallacy: Toast has fewer calories than bread.

Fact: Toast is bread that has been dried and browned. The water content is decreased, but this does not change the calorie content because water has no caloric value.

Fallacy: One must not drink water when trying to lose weight.

Fact: Water is essential to health at all times, and restriction of water intake should not be practiced except under careful medical supervision. When trying to lose weight, it is desirable to drink water between meals because it often will relieve hunger pangs.

Fallacy: Washing rice after cooking reduces calories.

Fact: It is far more important to retain the B vitamins by not washing the rice than it is to remove a small amount of starch through washing.

Fallacy: Sugar is not as fattening as starch.

Fact: Weight for weight, sugar and starch have essentially the same caloric value.

Fallacy: Eat all you want until 4 p.m.—You'll lose weight.

Fact: Overeating is the result of a greater intake of calories in food than is needed by the body. The important point is what you eat, not when you eat it.

Dividing the day's caloric intake into three or more meals is the best means of insuring the inclusion of all of the essential nutrients in a reduction diet.

Fallacy: Heart disease makes weight reduction dangerous.

Fact: No general statement can be made. A person with heart disease should be under the care of a competent physician and should follow his advice in regard to his diet. Usually it is recommended that such people lose weight very gradually.

Fallacy: Gelatin dessert is nonfattening.

Fact: There is no such thing as a fattening or nonfattening food. All foods contribute calories in varying amounts. Simple gelatin desserts provide fewer calories than do cakes and pastries.

Bankers Honor 4-H Leaders

The Rev. H. Kirby Krams, supervisor of religious and moral education, Youth Services Commission, spoke to Delaware 4-H leaders and members of the Delaware Bankers Association on Thursday evening, April 8. The seventh annual banquet honoring volunteer 4-H leaders throughout the state was held at Caesar Rodney High School near Dover.

Speaking in the criteria for youth leadership, Rev. Krams stressed the need for cheerful, unselfish leaders that are living examples to youth.

Marshall Tyndall, president of Delaware Bankers Association, presented certificates to all the 4-H leaders. Ten 4-H leaders with 20 years' service or more received special recognition. They include: Mrs. Mary Draine, Cheswold, 25 years; Mrs. Edward Gibbs, Sr., Woodside, 29 years; Mrs. Gertrude Johnson, Seaford, 26 years; Mrs. Mabel Lambden, Georgetown, 33 years; Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Melson, Bridgeville, 24 and 22 years, respectively; Mrs. David Pordham, Middletown, 28 years; Mrs. Ola Tildon, Harrington, 20 years; Mrs. Dora Walther, Bear, 20 years and Mrs. W. Howard Workman, Delmar, 20 years.

The 4-H leaders recognition banquet is sponsored annually by the agricultural committee of the Delaware Bankers Association to show appreciation for the services to youth these 4-H leaders offer the community. More than 200 Delaware 4-H leaders and bankers were present.

As we move into our busy 4-H season how fitting that the Junior Council is holding a Vesper Service on the 25th of April. All 4-H families are urged to join together Sunday evening at 7:30 p.m. at the Trinity Methodist Church in Frederica.

Can I judge? This question arose at our April Junior Council meeting held at Caesar Rodney with the Westville 4-H Club as host. Any 4-H'er can judge. If you are not enrolled in a project in which there is a judging contest (Dairy, Livestock, Foods, Food Preservation, or Gardening)—you may select any one of these areas. Do come out April 27 for training in vegetable judging. All judging events train us in selecting the best products for their specific use. Training in any area will help you do a better job and develop a keener eye for your project area. If you are interested in securing a place on a county team, attend all the training sessions you can. Remember, you judge every day when you make a selection between two books to read, clothes you'll wear, food you'll eat. Bob Stevens, horticulturist, extension service will present the vegetable judging training at the civil defense room. Let us each set aside time to be of service to others or to work for worthwhile causes.

Lion Thinclads Romp In Triangular Win

Harrington High's defending Henlopen Conference track and field champions won their second track meet of the year and 8th in succession in a triangular romp at John M. Clayton last week. The final score was Harrington, 105, Lord Baltimore, 22, and John M. Clayton, 20.

The locals won 12 of 14 events and probably could have won the other two if the meet had depended on it.

Dennis Rogers, Artie Taylor, Gerry Garey and Glenn Smith authored the most outstanding H.H.S. performances although Harry Bitler was a double winner, as he captured first places in the shot put and javelin.

Rogers turned in his best clocking ever in the mile run (4:46) as an unknown Eagle from Lord Baltimore named Shadel, was only two seconds back. Shadel is an untired, inexperienced sophomore. At this writing, Shadel looms as possibly the best distance prospect ever to come out of lower Delaware.

Artie Taylor was worried by the practice leaps of one of his rivals, so the senior cut loose with the best jump of his career, 19 feet 2 inch. The competition did not materialize as Dan Hicks was second with 17-11 and Glenn Smith was third with a 17 plus effort. Coach Harold McDonald decided to try the graceful Smith in the event and the move proved a wise one as Glenn defeated all enemy jumpers in his first attempt.

Gerry Garey ran, as usual, a lonely race, that saw the Masten's Corner meteor steadily draw away on his way to another school record effort of 1:19 in the two mile run. Garey held the old standard of 1:13.2 set against Lewes. Marshall Hatfield and Donald Wells were second and third.

Glenn Smith again won the high jump with a leap of 5 ft. 7 in. The next best jump downstate is an inch shorter by Eric Barnes of Seaford. Frank Cain was second.

Frank White is still having leg trouble but won the 100 yard dash, placed second in the 200 and anchored the winning 880 relay quartet.

The 880 relay victory was something of a surprise. White and Raleigh Davis had sore legs and relay regular Richard Black was held out for the mile relay. Marshall Jackson filled in for Black and to the elation of the Lions opened up a gap of five yards on the opening leg. Raleigh Davis, Bruce Layton and Frank White padded the lead. The 1:40.5 clocking was almost two seconds better than in the Lewes meet.

Bob Smith had no trouble in the 440 yard run but teammate Larry Garey was boxed in early as Henry Minner made another stirring stretch drive to nose Leroy Murray, of Clayton, for second place. Minner's 56.1, behind Smith's 55.7 was a new personal best for Henry.

Frank Cain and Richard Black won the pole vault (9-9) and the discus (104 ft.), respectively.

Garey, Black, Smith and Rogers ran off and hid from the opposition in the mile relay, but are still a long way from what they can do. They should do much better in the Seaford Invitational because that's where the competition is.

Larry Bonniwell and Dan Hicks were second and third to Shadel of Lord Baltimore in the half mile.

Ron Hughes was second to Bitler in the shot put. The Lions scored a rare 1-2-3-4 sweep in the javelin with Bitler, Rogers, Hughes and Layton.

Two-mile: 1. G. Garey, Harrington; 2. Hatfield, Harrington; 3. Wells, Harrington. 11:19.

Shot put: 1. Bitler, Harrington; 2. Hughes, Harrington; 3. Atkins, Clayton; 4. Layton, Harrington. 37-4 1/2.

880 relay: 1. Harrington (Marshall Jackson, Raleigh Davis, Bruce Layton, Frank White); 2. Clayton; 3. Lord Baltimore. 1:40.5.

High Jump: 1. G. Smith, Harrington; 2. Cain, Harrington; 3. L. Mitchell, Lord Baltimore; 4. Minner, Harrington. 5-7.

Mile relay: 1. Harrington (Larry Garey, Richard Black, Dennis Rogers, Bob Smith); 2. Clayton; 3. Lord Baltimore. 3:51.6.

Javelin: 1. Bitler, Harrington; 2. Rogers, Harrington; 3. Hughes, Harrington; 4. Layton, Harrington. 126-8.

Broad Jump: 1. A. Taylor, Harrington; 2. Hicks, Harrington; 3. G. Smith, Harrington; 4. Cooper, Lord Baltimore. 19-2.

Pole vault: 1. Cain, Harrington; 2. L. Garey, Harrington; 3. Bonniwell, Harrington; 4. Baker, Clayton. 9-9.

Discus: 1. Black, Harrington; 2. Toomey, Lord Baltimore; 3. Bitler, Harrington; 4. Atkins, Clayton. 104-feet.

Greenwood Loses Opener in Overtime

Greenwood's Foresters were beaten 5-4 by Bridgeville in the season's opener for both clubs. The contest required two extra innings. Greenwood on two occasions won an inning away from victory but the Mustangs came from behind each time.

At the end of the sixth inning, Greenwood sported a 3-2 lead but Bridgeville tied the score in the bottom of the seventh. The Foresters went ahead 4-3 in the ninth frame only to see the Mustangs tally twice for the win.

Dick Hopkins allowed hits by Clendaniel, Retzlaff and Hughes as he recorded his first victory of the season.

Ron Breeding of Greenwood pitched well enough to win most games as he gave up only six hits.

Felton Drubs Greenwood, Leads Henlopen

Felton's baseball Green Devils have taken up where the undefeated basketball team left off. The Devils beat Greenwood's Foresters 12-0 at Felton Tuesday afternoon and left the impression that they could have made the score more lopsided had they chosen to do so.

Robert "Red" Dill, Felton's leadoff hitter, lined a lefty Drew Clendaniel pitch into left field to start the rout. Third baseman Draper, a speedy left handed hitter, dumped a bunt down third base way and beat it out. Will Dill walked and Dave Wood grounded to second. Maurice Hughes, the second sacker, alertly threw home to cut off a run.

Phil Clark singled over second driving in two runs. Shorty after, Jim Blades singled in two more tallies for a 4-0 lead.

The Green Devils scored thrice in round two and ended the scoring with a five-run third frame, which was highlighted by a Jim Blades triple and a home run by David Dill.

Felton pounded out 15 hits. "Porky" Coulson, the ninth batter in the lineup upset the dope this time at least as he garnered three hits in as many tries.

Devils with two hits were Red Dill, Will Dill, Phil Clark, Jim Blades and Phil Hoffner.

Will Dill held Greenwood to three hits.

Steve Willey had two and Maurice Hughes had the other.

POLICE HANDLE

Charges have not been made, pending an investigation, on James L. Hopkins, Route 3, Harrington, driver of an automobile which ran into guywires at the Clark Street railroad crossing at 2 a.m., Sunday. Damage to car and wires was slight.

At 5:45 p.m. Sunday cars driven by Christian W. Shaub, Felton, and Edward Burke Jr., Camden, collided at Delaware Avenue and Clark Street doing considerable damage. There were no injuries, nor were charges pressed. Harrington police said Shaub had stopped at the Delaware Avenue stop sign and then proceeded. Burke, going east on Clark Street, was preparing to turn into Delaware Avenue.

William Howard Leonard, 5, suffered bruises Saturday afternoon when he ran from between parked cars into a car driven by Joseph Wildinger, of Red Bank, N. J. No charges were made.

RUTLEDGE ATTENDS

Renewal, Emergence" was the convention theme about which 14 main sessions were centered. Also related to the theme were more than 200 papers concerning the culturally disadvantaged, the anti-poverty program, delinquency, and exceptional children. Other topics dealt with college admissions policies, testing, automation, rehabilitation counseling, junior colleges, the older worker, and many more.

First-day sessions examined the individual in relation to his values. Jacob Bronowski, Deputy director for the Salk Institute for Biological Studies and a leader in the movement of Scientific Humanism gave the keynote address, "The Discovery of Self."

Michael Harrington, author of "The Other America," spoke Tuesday on "The Individual in Society: Changing Concepts of Education and Vocation." Dr. Walter Heller, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, and currently professor of economics at the University of Minnesota, discussed the "Economic Man."

"The Individual and Concepts of His Personality" was the theme for Wednesday's meetings. Speaking at the morning general session was Calvin S. Hall, director of the Institute of Dream Research at Miami, Fla.

The closing theme session on Thursday discussed "The Counselor as a Behavioral Scientist".

Robert J. Havighurst, professor of education, Columbia University, was the main speaker. The APGA is the national professional organization of personnel and guidance workers in elementary and secondary schools, in higher education, in community service organizations and in government, business, and industry. It attempts to promote and stimulate the exchange of professional experience through national, regional, state, and local meetings. It also strives to coordinate research and other professional activities.

NEW WAGE TAX

bringing in an additional $13.7 million a year, plus two revenue stabilizing measures.

Legislators said after Wednesday's meeting that they did not rule out or decide to support any of the 14 proposals of the citizens' committee.

But at his press conference earlier Wednesday Terry indicated he supports increases in the gasoline tax and the state's take on parimutuel race track betting. "It appears that these are the areas we're going to have to definitely go to."

The legislative committee will meet again next Thursday without Terry, get together later with Terry and, according to Davis, have a final report "no later than May 20."

At Wednesday's meeting, members of the committee offered their own ideas on new taxes as possible alternatives to some of the measures recommended by the citizens' group.

Among them was the proposal by Senate Majority Leader Allen J. Cook, D-Kenton, for a 1 per cent tax on gross wages and salaries which could provide as much as half of the $14 million Terry says is needed.

This apparently would be in addition to the state's graduated tax on income.

Cook said the legislative committee is seeking an estimate of how much the tax would produce in the way of revenues. He said, however, that it would yield more than $500,000 from state employes alone. The state has about 15,000 employes. Delaware's work force totals about 200,000.

The idea of a soft-drink sales tax of 1 per cent reportedly received strong support from members of the legislative committee.

There also was some fairly strong support for taxing mobile homes on the same basis as real estate is now taxed. A bill to accomplish this was introduced in the House early this month by Rep. John P. Kelly, D-Dover.

SUSSEX DUMPS

practice is not curbed. The Millsboro letter, signed by Town Secretary Walter L. Monroe, mentioned the "urgent need for a county system of public dumps" while referring to plans considered a year ago by both Kent and Sussex Levy Courts on a possible landfill operation.

The dump headache in Millsboro has "become a very formidable one, more and more expensive and very difficult to control," the letter said.

"It was brought to our attention," it continued "that a wooded area outside our town boundaries is being used as an un-

The State Board of Health cannot properly inspect wooded areas throughout the county, it said, since most of the dumping is done under cover of darkness.

In calling for a county-wide disposal system, the letter said "Sussex County is composed of small towns and unincorporated congested areas. It is prohibitive for these small towns to offer dumping privileges to areas outside their limits."

On the idea of three centralized county dumps, Commissioner Martin W. Johnson Jr. said "There'll be trouble in convincing some people in rural sections that they'll have to haul trash to three dumps when they can dump it in the woods."

The commissioners said many items would have to be considered, such as possible licensing of trash collectors, regulations on what type of equipment could be used, possible dump locations, hours of operation and maintenance and what type of system—landfill or incinerator—to use.

All three commissioners agreed that the matter had been put off too long and that they "should get moving one way or the other."

Mears said a reply would be sent to Millsboro indicating the town's support, as well as that of other municipalities, would be appreciated by the Levy Court in promoting a solution.

"The state contest was held on Sunday at Mount Pleasant High School. There were fifteen contestants competing. The first thing we were asked to do was to take a written test. Next, we had to drive through a skill test course. In this test we had to parallel park and drive through an off-set curve and back out. Finally we had to take a road check. In this we had to drive in traffic near Wilmington. A state trooper rode in the car and graded us.

"At the end of the day we attended a banquet. For winning I received a plaque and a one hundred dollar scholarship.

"During the last week in July I attended the thirteenth annual Safe-Driving Rodeo in Washington, D. C.

"The week I spent in Washington was interesting and enjoyable. I stayed at the Statler-Hilton Hotel. The rooms and meals were both excellent. Everyone tried to make your stay as pleasant as possible.

There were five tests; the skill test, road check, written test, attitude test and the psycho-physical test. But there were two days spent for sightseeing. We visited the Washington Monument, F.B.I. Building, White House, Arlington Cemetery, Smithsonian Institution, and attended a baseball game at the stadium. There was also time for shopping, swimming, bowling or just looking around on your own.

"There were forty-eight contestants in the Rodeo. They represented 310,000 teenagers in more than 2,140 Junior Chamber of Commerce communities.

"At the end of the week there was an awards banquet. The top three contestants were presented educational scholarships ($2,000, $1,500, $1,000) at the awards banquet. The winner also received a 1965 Comet Caliente convertible.

"The week was very profitable to everyone even if he wasn't a winner. Everyone broadened their knowledge in driving as well as working for what I consider a worth-while cause."

Use Pesticides Correctly To Avoid Accidents

Misuse of pesticides caused 2,700 avoidable accidents to children under five in the United States last year. The time for applying pesticides is here again; take time to be safe, says Frank E. Boys, extension specialist in agricultural chemicals at the University of Delaware. Prevent pesticide accidents in and around your home by using common sense precautions.

What are pesticides? Anything used to kill or control plant or animal pests, such as insects, rats, mice, weeds, nematodes, or disease-causing fungi. Even hormones are pesticides when they are used to kill or regulate plant growth, Boys notes.

The safe use of pesticides can be summed up with these four precautions: follow the directions on the label; use carefully; store safely, and dispose of safely.

Pesticides are developed for use against specific pests, Boys explains. Use them only against those pests—the label will tell you which ones. The label also states the correct amount to use. Measure this amount carefully.

and do not use an overdose. Overdoses are not only dangerous, they also waste money. Of course, use suitable measuring or weighing equipment—never your hands; and clean the equipment thoroughly after use.

Use protective clothing or mask when the label advises it. In the home, never use a pesticide for which a gas mask is recommended. Do not use an aerosol pesticide too long in a closed room; the label will give a time limit. Do not use weed killers too close to susceptible plants you don't want destroyed; again the label will give recommendations.

Carefully following the directions on the label cannot be over-emphasized, Boys says. Obviously, to follow them, you must be able to read them. Therefore, keep all pesticides in their original, properly-labeled containers. Return unused pesticide to the original container; do not keep it in the spraying equipment. If the label becomes unreadable, or if the container has a leak, discard the pesticide.

Before spraying in the house, protect all foods by covering or storing in cupboards or refrigerator. If food is contaminated, always discard it. Cover or remove aquariums before spraying. Check all pesticide equipment to make sure it is in good operating condition; particularly check for leaks. When pesticide mixing is required, be sure to mix in a well-ventilated area.

Pesticides will only do the job you want done if they reach the pest—and only the pest. Do not spray outside on a windy day, and always be careful that the pesticide does not drift from the area being sprayed.

Use the pesticide where it is needed—on the pest, not on you.

Be careful not to inhale the pesticide, and avoid spilling it on your skin or clothing. If you do spill, wash immediately and change the contaminated clothing. Naturally, always wash hands thoroughly before eating or smoking. Changing clothes after pesticide use is also recommended.

The major cause of accidents involving children or pets is the careless storage of pesticides. Keep the chemical out of reach in a cool, dry place that can be locked. To avoid accidental poisoning never store near foods or medicines. Avoid freezing. Frozen pesticides, particularly liquids, may separate into their various ingredients, reducing or destroying effectiveness.

The disposal of empty pesticide containers presents a problem since even the slightest trace of certain chemicals can be a definite hazard. Paper bags or boxes can be burned, but be careful to stay out of the smoke. Before dumping, break glass bottles and crush metal cans and spray bombs to prevent re-use or collection of water in the container. Never, under any circumstances, throw used containers in the water. This endangers all the water life plus the animals that utilize the water.

Practicing these common-sense precautions will pay off in freedom from accidents and in better pest control for your money, Boys explains.
