Randy Knox Is Triple Winner At U. of D. Meet

Randy Knox, a 1964 graduate of Harrington High, was a triple winner in the University of Delaware - Lehigh freshman track and field meet held recently.

Knox leaped 39 feet in the triple or hop, step and jump, and 19 feet, 7 inches in the broad jump to win both events outright. In the high jump, Randy and a teammate shared first place as Lehigh's jumpers could not clear 5 feet, 4 inches. The Blue Hens did not try the next height, but instead decided to be co-winners.

The former Harrington High ace has a best mark in the neighborhood of 5-9 in the high jump. Because of a misunderstanding, he did not report for track until the rest of the freshman team had been working out. (Continued on Page 8)

Easter Lilies Can Be Planted Outdoors

The stately Easter lilies gracing many homes this time of year can be made to bloom again in the fall if given the proper care, according to Dr. Charles Dunham, University of Delaware horticulturist.

When all the blooms have wilted, leave the potted plants in a sunny window, but don't water it. After the plant dies down—in early May—it can be planted outside. The bulb should be planted six to eight inches deep. In normal outdoor growing conditions, the lily should bloom again at the end of the summer, Dr. Dunham says.

He cautions, however, that Easter lilies should not be planted outdoors if the homeowner has other lilies in his garden, since most Easter lilies are infected with a virus that will spread to other lilies on the premises.

Easter lilies planted outdoors may live over the winter, but are generally single-season plants, Dr. Dunham says.

Edward Paskey, former Harrington resident, has been playing bits parts in the movies and on TV.

In several weeks, he will appear in a Perry Mason TV thriller filmed in March, according to his father, Walter Paskey, III, who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. H. W. T. Purnell, the former Loretta Paskey.

Attending a covered-dish supper of the Ninth District Democratic Women's Club here, Tuesday night, he said he was leaving for his home in Santa Monica, Calif., tomorrow.

REORGANIZATION OF COUNTY GOVERNMENT A MATTER OF TIME SAYS LT. GOV. SHERMAN TRIBBITT

Kent County should be thinking of reorganizing its own government, Lt. Gov. Sherman W. Tribbitt said Tuesday night at a covered-dish supper, sponsored by the Ninth District Democratic Women's Club, at the fairgrounds restaurant.

At the present time, Tribbitt continued, the Levy Court can handle the situation, but further growth of Kent County will require a less centralized form of government.

The Kent County angle came up after the lieutenant governor had included, among pending legislation, the reorganization of New Castle County. He explained the passage of the legislation was "almost certain," and it required a separation of the executive and legislative branches.

Tribbitt pointed out that, among pending legislation was a merit system for state employees, and that Gov. Charles L. Terry would appoint a committee, in the near future, to study it.

The Odessa resident was enthusiastic over the accomplishments of the governor and the General Assembly "working in harmony and trust."

He said 100 days would have passed Thursday since the inauguration of Gov. Terry, on Jan. 19, and "by the force of his own personality" had achieved the following:

1. Reorganization of the magisterial system by Jan., 1966, a feature of which would see magistrates and constables paid by salaries instead of fees.
2. Mosquito control improvements.
3. Passage of a constitutional amendment on land use, or zoning.
4. Minimum wage law.
5. Right of workers to collect wages.
6. Consumer protection bill—protects consumers against fraudulent and deceptive practices. Only a few sellers are liable, explained Tribbitt, himself a merchant, but these few give it all a black eye.

Mrs. Blanche Cahall club president, presided. She announced the next meeting would be held in the fall.

Also present were Rep. Maurice Adams, and Sen. J. Allen Cook, Senate majority leader, and Dorsey Torbert, receiver of taxes and treasurer for Kent County.

Stricken Driver Halts Bus, Dies

Magistrate Clarence E. Dyer, 57, died following a heart attack last Friday, a short time after he parked his school bus containing more than 40 students in front of his home.

Mr. Dyer became ill while he was enroute to the Harrington School with the busload of students, stopped the bus near Swain's Hotel on U. S. 13 and went into the hotel where he collapsed.

He was taken by ambulance to Milford Memorial Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

An attendant at a nearby service station drove the bus to the school.

Mr. Dyer was active in Democratic circles and operated Swain's Hotel and People's Restaurant here.

He was a veteran of World War II, a member of the Harrington Fire Co., and Temple Lodge AF & AM.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Helen D. Dyer; a son, William, of Washington, D. C.; two stepchildren, Mrs. Doris Smith and Mrs. Patsy Semans, both of Harrington; two grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Bessie Wheeler, and Mrs. Gertrude McMullen, both of Harrington.

Services were held Tuesday afternoon at the J. Millard Cooper Funeral Home with burial in Greensboro (Md.) Cemetery.

Broiler Industry To Conduct Vaccination Program

An area-wide research program which may lead to the eventual control of chronic respiratory disease (CRD), a costly disease for the state's broiler industry, is being instituted in Delaware, according to Dr. Morris S. Cover, director of the Delaware Agricultural Experimentation Station.

A cooperative effort among the poultry industry, the University of Delaware School of Agriculture and Agricultural Experimentation Station and the State Board of Agriculture, the field research will include vaccination of replacement flocks which supply chickens for broiler production.

Delaware is the first state to institute such a program, Dr. Cover said.

He explained that through the program, broilers can be free of PPLO, or Mycoplasma gallisepticum, the organism which causes CRD and which is also a factor in other respiratory conditions.

Dr. Cover said preliminary research has shown that controlled exposure or vaccination, with the organism not only makes chickens resistant to this disease, but also prevents transmission of the disease through the eggs used to produce broilers. Both factors are significant because the disease-causing organism can be spread either through eggs or by contact of disease-free birds with those carrying the organism.

Vaccination of the replacement flocks also has the distinct advantages of controlling the amount of the organism's exposure to the organism and of exposing the entire flock at one time, Dr. Cover said.

The birds will be vaccinated at eight to twelve weeks of age so they will be resistant before they produce eggs.

The Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station will prepare the vaccine and will supervise the program, while the poultry industry will provide vaccination crews and complete production. (Continued on Page 5)

COUNTY STARTS FISCAL YEAR WITHOUT A BUDGET

THEY HAVE THEIR CAKE AND CAN EAT IT, TOO — Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Ellwanger, Sr., at an open house Sat., April 17, in their home on East Liberty Street. The occasion was the observance of the Ellwangers' 25th wedding anniversary. Friends, relatives, and neighbors were present. Mr. and Mrs. Ellwanger were married near Wilmington by the Rev. Moore.

Kent County will start its fiscal year without a budget because Levy Court doesn't know where the money's coming from. Accountant Jesse Cooper, who prepares the budget for the county each year, Tuesday called the county's budget dilemma the "result of a cockeyed law."

Kent is facing its worst deficit in four years — estimated at $250,000 to $300,000—and needs approval from the General Assembly to extend its tax rate to 65 cents per $100 assessed valuation, 15 cents above the current 50-cent tax rate limit.

The commissioners tabled action on the budget until next Tuesday to avoid adoption of a deficit budget. The law provides the budget must be adopted by April 30, the end of the fiscal year, but they agreed to postpone action, hoping the General Assembly will grant them the increased tax limit.

"The law is cockeyed," Cooper said. "Under the timetable, the budget has to be adopted before the assessment is made and the tax rate set, so you don't know how much money will be coming in. It gives you a budget based on estimates."

Cooper suggested the budget show a lower appropriation to welfare—the largest item—in order to make the budget balance, but he was opposed by Commissioner L. Winfred Hughes.

"It won't do any good anyway," Hughes said, "because the welfare department will take what it wants. We might as well let the deficit show and let people know how bad the financial situation is."

"Courthouse operation is down to a minimum," Hughes added, "and welfare is running wild. There isn't any place we can cut in the county's operation expenses."

President James B. Messick said he will attempt to obtain a revision of the code to permit Kent to raise its tax rate to 65 cents. The amendment would provide a 65-cent tax rate until June 30, 1966, when the reappraisal now under way is expected to be complete and provide some relief.

The county's total expenditures are estimated at more than $993,700 for the coming year. Welfare payments are by far the biggest chunk, and there is little sign the demands will abate, the commissioners agreed.

Last year, the budget appropriated $335,400 for welfare, and ended up showing payments of $775,000. This year, the welfare appropriation is $477,000, the amount asked by welfare officials, but the commissioners do not expect the expenditures to stay within that amount.

Welfare has long been criticized for its "blank check" demands on all three counties. A bill was introduced this week to place welfare demands under state control.

In opposition, the county's tax revenues will total only $750,000 for the coming fiscal year. The tax increase, if approved, would bring in another $225,000, Cooper estimated, an amount sufficient to balance the budget for the coming fiscal year.

However, Hughes pointed out, the county still has a deficit of $180,000 from the current fiscal year which has to be paid, plus an accumulation of deficits since 1962.

Hughes said the deficit due to welfare demands was $14,000 in 1962, $73,000 in 1963 and $180,000 in 1964.

Responsibility Shared For Safe Drugs

The safety of drugs and their price are the two primary considerations of most drug consumers, according to Howard L. Binkley, director of economic research for the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers' Association.

The consumer shares the responsibility for drug safety with the doctor, the drug manufacturer, and the U. S. Food and Drug Administration. Binkley pointed out when he spoke last week at Consumer Forums sponsored by the home economics section of the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service.

Drugs can truly perform modern miracles, but the consumer must have the wisdom to follow the prescription of his doctor. He should also report any adverse drug reactions to his doctor, stressed Binkley, since this is the only way medication can be adapted to his personal needs.

A doctor who is 50 years old rarely prescribes a drug that was available when he was in medical school, Binkley pointed out. Since 1941 over 600 new drugs have been released for use. New drugs have drastically cut deaths from tuberculosis; deaths from whooping cough are almost non-existent; polio has been conquered within the last decade.

This is the golden area of pharmaceuticals, according to Irwin B. Berch, director of the Philadelphia district, U. S. Food and Drug Administration. Far from stifling the pharmaceutical industry, government inspection has led to the safe introduction of lifesaving drugs, he said.

New drugs must be thoroughly tested by the manufacturer before submission to the FDA. The tests themselves, as well as the results, and the possible usefulness of the new drug are carefully considered by FDA before any new drug is released to the market.

Antibiotics and certain other drugs, including insulin, must have each batch tested and certified to further insure their safety, Berch said. All manufacturers, whether they sell under their own brand name or not, must comply with testing regulations. Ninety-five per cent of today's prescriptions are for products that have been cleared by the FDA since new drug testing began in 1938.

There is no absolute safety in drug use, Berch pointed out. Although new drugs are first tested on animals and then on over 10,000 people before they are released, unforeseen reactions still occur. This does not mean that the drug is not useful. One out of every 20 people reacts unfavorably to penicillin but it is still needed to counteract disease, Binkley noted.

When adverse reactions are noticed by patients and reported to doctors, the doctors in turn report the reaction to the FDA. Panels of doctors are empowered by the FDA to consider whether, in the case of a given drug, the benefits outweigh the risks. A few drugs have been completely removed from the market according to Berch, but most are released with appropriate warnings to the doctors.

Again, consumer responsibility is important, both speakers stressed. Drugs are prescribed for one illness for one particular person. They should never be used without a doctor's advice for another illness or another person.

Drugs account for only a small fraction of the total cost of medical care, yet the price of drugs is the most often criticized. The average prescription in Delaware costs $3.25, less than the cost of a man's shirt, said Binkley. Less than one cent of the consumer's dollar goes for drugs. However, the bottle is small, the contents even smaller, and the consumer tends to forget the vast benefit he receives. Seven billion dollars a year are added to the economy of this country through the reduced death rate and the reduced work loss, which are due in part to new drugs.

The entire drug industry is constantly trying to reduce prices through efficiency, assured Binkley. The profit on that $3.25 prescription is only 16 cents, on the average. Some times the drug manufacturer will receive no monetary return whatever from a large investment in research and development, even if the drug has medical value. For instance, said Binkley, it takes 15 tons of dried periwinkle leaves and four months of processing to yield one ounce of a leukemia drug—which the manufacturer supplies doctors at well below cost.

No other industry devotes a larger percentage of its income to research; no other industry has accomplished more to benefit the consumer, believes Binkley.

Consumer Forum is sponsored annually by the home economics extension staff of the University of Delaware through a grant from the Sears, Roebuck Foundation. Miss Janet Reed, extension clothing specialist, was chairman of this year's event.

Program On Oral Cancer Set For May 5

If the dentist is alert and the patient cooperative and responsive, 80 per cent of persons with oral cancer (of the mouth and gums) should be cured.

This is a sharp contrast to statistics in past years when only 30 per cent of patients with oral cancer lived.

A May 5 program at the Academy of Medicine in Wilmington is directed toward the reduction of the number of deaths from oral cancer among Delawareans and the actual prevention of the disease itself.

The program, a cooperative venture involving the Delaware Division of the American Cancer Society, the Delaware State Dental Society and the Delaware State Board of Health, is a part of an expanded program in Delaware to reduce the toll in this state from cancers affecting the area of the mouth.

The program is more than just informational; the state will distribute oral cytology kits to Delaware dentists and will maintain a laboratory operation where cytologic smears may be mailed for diagnosis.

The dentists will be shown how to use the kits at the May 5 program, the kickoff of the statewide effort. The oral cytology kits will be distributed for the first time, and two dental experts from the University of Pennsylvania will be brought to Wilmington to discuss the subject, a relatively new one for practicing dentists.

The program will begin at 1 p. m. with luncheon in the dining room of the Academy building. At 2 p. m. in the auditorium, Dr. Thomas A. McFall, associate professor of oral medicine at the University of Pennsylvania's school of dental medicine will discuss "Oral Examinations and the Benefits, Pitfalls, Techniques of Exfoliative Oral Cytology."

The second speaker is Dr. John J. Stetzer, Jr., chief of oral surgery at Bryn Mawr Hospital, an associate professor of oral surgery at Philadelphia's Graduate Hospital. He will discuss "Differential Diagnosis, Purpose and Technique of Biopsy." Dr. John A. Babett of Wilmington is moderator of the program.

As the speakers will point out, it may be possible to prevent oral cancer as well as to cure it. Authorities believe that such chronic irritants as tobacco in any form, highly seasoned foods, alcohol and sharp, defective teeth and ill fitting dentures may cause or aid the development of oral cancer. Conversely, avoiding these irritants may reduce the number of cases.

When the dentists leave the program, they should be able to take the cytologic smears. They will have kits containing scrapers, slides, fixative and mailing materials. The slides, prepared by the dentists will be mailed to the Oral Division of the State Board of Health.

Complete success of the program, however, depends on the patient as well as on the dentist. Like other forms of cancer, oral cancer may be cured only if detected early.

Members of the public are advised to see their doctors or dentists at once if they have any of the following symptoms: (1) Swelling, lump or growth anywhere in or about the mouth, (2) White, scaly patches inside the mouth, (4) Numbness or pain without cause anywhere in the mouth area, and (5) Repeated bleeding in mouth without apparent cause.

"We would like to urge cooperation by two groups—the dentists and the public," Dr. Allen G. Schiek, president of the Delaware State Dental Society, said. "The relative ease of detection of oral cancer should result in early diagnosis and high cure rates. It is up to us to make sure that these potential cure rates become realities."

Archaeological Team Discovers Ancient Structures

Dr. Robert J. Bull, presently associate professor of Church History in the Theological School, Drew University, Madison, N. J., was one of the team that revealed the two ancient structures on top of the biblical mountain, Mt. Gerizim in Jordan, last summer. The expedition, under the direction of G. Ernest Wright, of Harvard University, revealed a Roman temple of the early second century A. D., and beneath that an earlier structure dating from the Hellenistic period, approximately the fourth century, B. C.

The Roman temple was built by the Emperor Hadrian, and can be seen depicting on a number of coins minted a Neapolis (Nablus) dating from the second and third centuries A. D. It is founded directly on the somewhat larger ruins of an earlier building, which, preliminary examinations suggests, was the remains of the Samaritan temple destroyed in 128 A. D. by the Jewish leader, John Hyrcanus of Jerusalem.

Dr. Robert J. Bull and Dr. Oliver Unwin of Repton School, Derbyshire, England, directed the work which resulted in the discovery of the Hadrianic temple and the earlier structure. The archaeological expedition in Shechem, one of the first cities mentioned in the Bible, and according to tradition, visited by Abraham and Jacob, Moses and Joshua, has been sponsored by Drew University, Madison, N. J., and McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, Ill., since 1956, and joined by Harvard University in 1960. Among its chief supporters are The American Schools of Oriental Research and the Bollingen Foundation of New York City, and in 1964 by the Olin Foundation.

Dr. Bull has participated in archaeological excavations at the site of ancient Shechem near Balasta in Jordan (the Holy Land) during the summers of 1956, 1957, 1960, 1962 and 1964.

Earlier in the summer Professor Bull represented Drew University in conjunction with Southern Methodist University and Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in the excavation of Ai. While in Jordan Dr. Bull has had many opportunities to become acquainted with the Arab and their present problems.

Dr. Bull is married to the former Vivian Johnson, of Ironwood, Michigan, who teaches in the Department of Economics in the College of Liberal Arts, at Drew University. Mrs. Bull has accompanied Dr. Bull three summers as a member of the expedition, and served as camp manager.

After completion of his undergraduate work at Randolph-Macon College, Dr. Bull received the B. D. degree from Duke Divinity School, and the S.T.M. and Ph. D. degrees from Yale University. He was the recipient of a faculty fellowship grant by the American Association of Theological Schools, 1959-60, to study Coptic manuscripts at the University of Utrecht, The Netherlands. He is vice president of the National Methodist Historical Association and National Chaplain of the United States Power Squadrons.

Kaffeeklatsch

With Eleanor Voshell

Americans want to be slim! This time of year thousands of people are going on diets. Advertisers and writers have a field day with anything related to diet, calories, or weight control.

Much of their material sounds good and the average consumer can be easily led astray. Check on the author's background to see if he is qualified.

Several "fat diets" are making the rounds here in Kent County. One is the egg diet or so called "Mayo Diet."

Is the egg diet a good method of losing weight? The egg diet is contrary to good nutrition practice. It consists of 6 to 9 eggs per day (depending on which version you have), grapefruit, spinach, tomato and dry toast. After the first day, meat is substituted for eggs at the evening meal.

A diet of this kind cannot be considered adequate especially from the standpoint of calcium.

A reduction diet should serve as the basis for dietary re-education, so that desirable eating habits will continue after the desired loss of weight has been attained.

How can you tell if a diet comes up to good nutrition standards?

You can get some idea about the adequacy of dietary recommendations by asking yourself the following questions:

Is this diet limited to a few foods? Does it stress certain expensive or unusual foods, such as raw sugar, blackstrap molasses, brewer's yeast, or yogurt?

Does it warn against eating foods rich in protein and those rich carbohydrates at the same meal or warn against eating any other combined foods at one time?

Does it omit any food group of foods of high nutritional value, such as milk and cheese; meat poultry, fish, eggs, beans, and nuts; vegetables and fruits; bread and other grain products; or fats and oils?

Does it depend on vitamin and mineral concentrates to balance the diet? If the answer to any of the questions is "yes" it would be wise to check the source and the recommendations. Special diets should not be self-determined; they should be prescribed by a physician or a dietician for the individual case.

When you apply these questions to the carbohydrate diet and others that are popular now, you can quickly rule them out as poor risks.

"Baby The Rain Must Fall," at REESE, May 2 and 3

Again, the Reese Theatre lists in this newspaper a super program of unusual attractions currently playing in all the large cities of the country. One has the same comfort, the same if not better presentation; the big difference is the much higher admission charged by the city theatre. Harrington and residents of the vicinity long have been enjoying the best at prices that fit the purse.

With two top attractions on a single bill, an example of top entertainment is the presentation this Friday and Saturday, April 30 and May 1, of "Love Has Many Faces," the new Lana Turner production, featuring Edith Head's million dollar wardrobe, and with Cliff Robertson and Hugh O'Brian as co-stars.

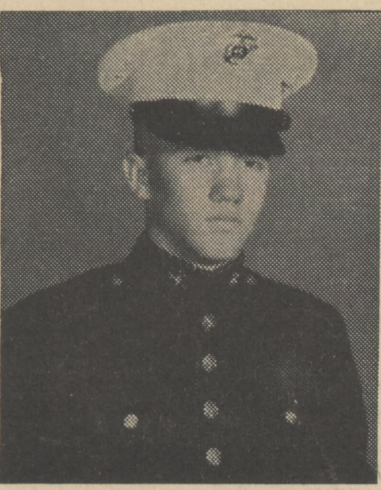

Unusual and provocative are the words that might give one the key to "Baby The Rain Must Fall," the important Columbia production, starring Steve McQueen, Lee Remick, and Don Murray. Undoubtedly, you will remember this picture for many a day. To miss it Sunday and Monday, May 2 and 3, is to miss a slice of life that is most interesting and dramatic.

Elvis Presley made a gem called, "Blue Hawaii." Request upon request has been received to bring this beautiful picture back. It seems everyone wants to see it again and again. "Blue Hawaii," will be presented as the free adduced attraction, with "Baby The Rain Must Fall," May 2 and 3.

The hit picture, "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home," that the University of Notre Dame tried to prevent being shown, is listed as coming to Movie Center May 7-8-9-10.

Upon graduation he will be assigned to Camp Lejeune, N. C., for at least four weeks of advanced infantry combat training, before being assigned to a school or to a Marine combat or support unit.

Armed Forces News

Marine Private Ronald L. Walters, son of Mrs. Margaret L. Walters, of Felton, is scheduled to graduate April 21 from Marine recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C.

Parris Island is the recruit training center for Marines who enlist east of the Mississippi river.

During his 11 weeks of recruit training under veteran non-commissioned officer drill instructors, he learned small arms marksmanship, bayonet fighting, and methods of self-protection, as well as receiving instruction in military drill, history and traditions of the Marine Corps, and other academic subjects.

Upon graduation he will be assigned to Camp Lejeune, N. C., for at least four weeks of advanced infantry combat training, before being assigned to a school or to a Marine combat or support unit.

Fish & Game News

The annual game and fish hearing will be held Friday, April 30, at the Capital Grange Hall, South Governor's Avenue, Dover.

Sportsmen are urged to participate in this forum. Good hunting and fishing in Delaware depends upon sound wildlife management and interested well-informed sportsmen and landowners. Wildlife populations are never static—increasing or decreasing each year. So with each new breeding season sound decisions must be made on the size of harvest for each of our game species.

Don't sit home and complain or compliment hunting and fishing in the "First State," at the eleventh annual public hearing Friday, April 30, at 8:00 p. m., in the Capital Grange Hall, Dover.

The Little Drunk From Dachau Concentration C.

The Two Cats Who looted in Dachau, and the SS Storm Troopers at that.

By Name: W. C. Burgess, and Victor J. Esposito, my Italian corporal, from Ossining, N. Y.

The day was April 29, 1945, and it was a nice day at that. The 42nd Rainbow had the sign of the rainbow painted all over Munich, from the day before, when Munich was taken and the 45 Oklahoma Infantry Division was guarding Dachau. They took Dachau in the afternoon of the 28th, more of that later.

Our officers fixed up our C. P. in an old schoolhouse near the camp, and told us all, don't break any locks. Maxie Byer, (and these are actually the names of the boys in this story. For confirmation of the names, check Johnny Joyce, Shady Lane, Bethel, Delaware. He wasn't in on this show, but he sure can furnish the background. Harvey Passwaters and I went down to see him the other day, and the first thing he did was to run a bar right out of the wall. Incidentally, he is the boy who distributed pictures to those of us who didn't have cameras.) Thanks, Johnny!

Maxie says to Shrewdy, that's me, "Shall we caper, Why certainly, Maxie. So, around in back of the house was a window to the cellar. Maxie breaks the glass, reaches in and twists the lock, and then says, cellar man going. Why sure, Maxie. Maxie couldn't get in anyway, he was too large. You know, I wonder if they had any jewels in all those trunks. However, Oh, my. What is this! What! Thirteen fifths of  Hennessy. So, we left everything else intact. Now Chuck from Brooklyn, a staff sergeant from Brooklyn, and Victor J. didn't ask where the stuff came from, but they knew us from before, so they didn't say anything. We didn't touch it because we had to go to Dachau first.

We walked into the camp, and one of the furnaces was still going. We had orders not to go into the furnaces, so we didn't. On this trip was Victor E. John, a Polish-American, I think from Chicago, and myself. These pictures were in all the papers—A medic with his throat cut, a soldier with his mouth torn apart, and farther on down a soldier thrown in the canal.

We go up into the first barracks and there were the prisoners; the Polish Corporal started crying, and Victor and I started to look around. Outside a little ways, Victor runs across an Italian d. p., and he tells Victor the story in Italian, and Victor (my corporal who wouldn't let me go to Paris when we were close to it) did the interpreting.

This Italian said the Americans came in the gate, and the prisoners (being used to gunfire) paid them no never mind. So they told the prisoners we are Americans. And that is the big story. The prisoners turned on the guards with bare hands and went to work. The one man who did not appear in any pictures, was a cripple with one leg, the prisoners came around the corner of the barracks and beat him to death with his own crutches. I know, because Victor and I saw him.

The Italian was not an ordinary prisoner either, because he didn't wear the stripes. He wore fatigues; if he hadn't been a prisoner, though, the prisoners would have given him "the kangaroo court." Ask Henry Bullock what that is. He used to be a judge, and Fountain Billings used to be a prosecutor.

The Italian said to Victor that one guy shut the door to the gas chamber. That was his job. He asked the Germans after his time was up. They said, sure.

So, when his time was up, they shoved him in too and slammed the door. This guy should know, because that is what he told us!

So, come on Victor, let us take a tour! And there she was! A little old building with a stone floor, and fifty or sixty musette bags all lined up in a row. So we got real busy. We were looking for spoils of war, jewels, or anything. We got exactly nothing. Victor got a Beretta and I picked up a few switchblade bayonets which I gave to Doc Downes when I got home. Those dummies must have sent all the loot home they heard we were getting close. I am sure that is what happened!

Some days you can't earn a nickel, so on we go, into a barracks or a large building. You had to be good or else you hit the furnaces. So, the best hand-painted pottery in Europe. Who would have thought that! I sent some of that home to Squire Quillen, while Madelyn Tharp was his secretary, which was, of course, during the latter part of the war. That pottery was really beautiful; they had statues of deer and almost anything in pottery, right there. What I can't figure out is this, I hear and read a whole lot about Dachau, but I never have read anything about this.

Next! Bittuh! (Next Please) In another barracks, well now what do you know! (Old Wild West!) All kinds of guns, 20 feet across, and 75 yards long? All old guns, any kind you could see anywhere! Collectors items. I have never heard of that barracks before in print.

Oh! I wished I had been an officer for just one reason, I could sign my own packages and send some of the loot home. I know it has been done. Now, back to the main gate. There were thirteen carloads of bodies there and they said the day before there had been thirty two. In these gondolas, there was just three or four women and no children. However, I will have to check with Johnny on that one, because he still has some of the pictures.

In these cars, was something almost if not everybody else, missed. Little small potatoes, about the size of a walnuts. Culls!

They worked the prisoners to death on the farms, and after they got too weak to work any more, they loaded them on the gondolas, and put these little potatoes, and very few, at that, in with them. The reason is quite simple, pestilence. They didn't want them to die until they got to the furnaces.

The soldier with his throat cut had a beautiful diamond, but when the prisoners had finished with him, they had even scratched the diamond. By the time you cut the diamond down, it would have been too small. Oh! Well! So we pick up, small handpainted pottery and take it back to the billets and mail it to the Squire.

And what do you know! Does anybody around here, have a birthday! No! Well, just is my birthday! The wire section all joined in, and away went the 13 bottles of you guess what!  y Hennessy.

It was just like today, a beautiful day. Only it was 20 years ago, April 29, 1945.

The reason for these articles being written, is, it is actual history, and we keep the records right here; files of our paper. After all everybody has been somewhere, and everybody is going somewhere, too. Me, I wonder!

There were thirteen carloads of bodies there and they said the day before there had been thirty two. In these gondolas, there was just three or four women and no children. However, I will have to check with Johnny on that one, because he still has some of the pictures.

In these cars, was something almost if not everybody else, missed. Little small potatoes, about the size of a walnuts. Culls!

They worked the prisoners to death on the farms, and after they got too weak to work any more, they loaded them on the gondolas, and put these little potatoes, and very few, at that, in with them. The reason is quite simple, pestilence. They didn't want them to die until they got to the furnaces.

The soldier with his throat cut had a beautiful diamond, but when the prisoners had finished with him, they had even scratched the diamond. By the time you cut the diamond down, it would have been too small. Oh! Well! So we pick up, small handpainted pottery and take it back to the billets and mail it to the Squire.

And what do you know! Does anybody around here, have a birthday! No! Well, just is my birthday! The wire section all joined in, and away went the 13 bottles of you guess what!  y Hennessy.

It was just like today, a beautiful day. Only it was 20 years ago, April 29, 1945.

The reason for these articles being written, is, it is actual history, and we keep the records right here; files of our paper. After all everybody has been somewhere, and everybody is going somewhere, too. Me, I wonder!

Next! Bittuh! (Next Please) In another barracks, well now what do you know! (Old Wild West!) All kinds of guns, 20 feet across, and 75 yards long? All old guns, any kind you could see anywhere! Collectors items. I have never heard of that barracks before in print.

Oh! I wished I had been an officer for just one reason, I could sign my own packages and send some of the loot home. I know it has been done. Now, back to the main gate. There were thirteen carloads of bodies there and they said the day before there had been thirty two. In these gondolas, there was just three or four women and no children. However, I will have to check with Johnny on that one, because he still has some of the pictures.

New Alfalfa Variety May Solve Weevil Problem

The alfalfa weevil may soon lose its grip on Delaware's alfalfa crop. Current efforts to control this costly insect range from conventional insecticides and biological controls to an elaborate flame thrower that roasts the weevils and their eggs. All of these are cures that can only be found after the weevil has made its presence known. All of these methods have problems. They are expensive, require special treatments and may not be completely effective.

Research is underway with biological control techniques, but most of these are in the very early stages, and are not ready for commercial use.

With these obvious shortcomings in mind, agricultural researchers have continued to look for a better way. U. S. Department of Agriculture scientists working with researchers at the North Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station think they have the answer. It may be a few years however, before they can prove it.

Their solution is an ideal one—an alfalfa variety that is resistant to weevil damage. They believe they have one, an Algerian strain that resists egg laying attempts by the alfalfa weevil. The scientists believe that if they can break up the life-cycle of the weevil by eliminating its nesting place they can minimize the threat.

After careful study, the researchers learned that the alfalfa weevil will go somewhere else to lay its eggs when the Algerian alfalfa plant is the only local choice. With the most susceptible species, the weevils laid an average of 33.8 eggs per inch of stem. But with the Algerian alfalfa they laid only .03 eggs per inch of stem. With almost no eggs laid, obviously, there was no hatch and no alfalfa weevil problem.

In interpreting this research, Dr. Dale Bray, entomologist at the University of Delaware says this isn't a complete solution to the problem, only the first step. The Algerian variety is not an acceptable commercial plant. Researchers are now trying to transfer the weevil resistance to commercial varieties. Bray believes this transfer may be made with the result that the normal life cycle of the weevil would be disturbed and the larval damage, which is even greater than the adult damage, avoided.

Although scientists don't know why the alfalfa weevil avoids the Algerian plant, they feel it has something to do with the stem. It doesn't seem to provide a suitable surface for egg laying. It seems to be much more difficult for the female weevil to locate a suitable place for egg laying in the Algerian variety.

Considerable breeding effort will be required to develop a desirable degree of resistance. But experimental work is underway and researchers are hopeful that a new commercial variety will be forthcoming. This is one too soon according to Bray in view of the tremendous amount of damage caused by the alfalfa weevil. It is estimated that weevil damage runs in the millions of dollars each year and at present there are no varieties with any degree of weevil resistance.

BE WISE - ADVERTISE

Add Personal Touch To Convenience Foods

No one wants to abandon convenient foods for the "good old days" when the cook had to spend hours in the hot kitchen before every meal. Nonetheless, the modern homemaker wants to add a personal touch that will make each meal unmistakably her own. Convenience without conformity is possible, says Miss Janet Coblenz, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware.

Convenience foods not only save time in food preparations, they often save money as well, she says. A recent U. S. Department of Agriculture study showed that of 158 convenience foods examined, 42 were less expensive than the completely home-prepared product.

The busy homemaker who uses convenience foods mainly to save time can still add her own special touches without drastically increasing preparation time, Miss Coblenz believes.

Even frozen dinners can be changed to add an individual flavor sparkle. Turn back the foil before heating and sprinkle chicken with savory, or sprinkle ham with orange juice and a bit of orange rind, or add a dash of oregano to meatloaf or shrimp. Spread horseradish over beef, or cover it with sliced mushrooms. Loin of pork is delicious covered with water chestnuts and sprinkled with soy sauce. Reseal the foil wrapping and heat. Put a slice of tomato over macaroni and cheese during the last ten minutes of heating.

Vary instant potatoes by adding one teaspoon minced onion and 1/4 teaspoon oregano or basil to the liquid. Garnish potatoes with grated cheese, toasted sesame seeds, paprika, parsley flakes or minced green onion.

Another time, serve Duchess potatoes. When mixing instant mashed potatoes, reduce water to one cup and add two beaten eggs and two tablespoons melted butter. Spoon onto a greased cookie sheet, brush with melted butter, and bake in a 450-degree oven until lightly browned.

Add your own distinctive touch to frozen meat pies to make a real personality meal, suggests Miss Coblenz. Dip slices of onion in melted butter and place on top of beef pie for the last 15 minutes of baking.

Top baked chicken and turkey pies with spiced apple rings. Baked beef, chicken and turkey pies can also be topped with sour cream and sprinkled with chives. Or brush the top of unbaked beef, chicken, and turkey pies with combined melted butter and 1/2 teaspoon celery seed or 1/4 teaspoon celery seed. Bake as directed.

A glazed, baked, canned luncheon meat loaf is a quick, tasty meat dish, says Miss Coblenz. Use as many canned loaves as your family requires. Slice each loaf in quarters, but only three-fourths of the way through. Place the loaves in a shallow baking pan and glaze with any one of a variety of glazes such as marmalade, apple jelly, or combined four tablespoons brown sugar, four teaspoons vinegar, two teaspoons dry mustard, and two teaspoons flour. Bake for 20 minutes in a 375-degree oven. To make this a meal-in-a-dish, and canned potatoes and bake them with the meat.

There are countless quick tricks possible with refrigerator biscuits. They are one of the most versatile convenience foods available, says Miss Coblenz. Top home-made meat pies with them, use two to make a meat turnover, or make seed biscuits by brushing the top with melted butter and then sprinkle with poppy, celery, or caraway seeds.

Make a quick French bread using two cans of the biscuits. Stand the biscuits on edge on an ungreased cookie sheet, press together, and shape ends to form a loaf shape. Brush with one beaten egg white and sprinkle with sesame seeds. Bake 30 to 40 minutes in a 350-degree oven. Slice almost to the bottom crust and spread with garlic butter. Serve hot.

Refrigerator biscuits also make delicious sweet rolls. Make a quick coffee cake with two packages by dipping first into melted butter, then into combined cinnamon sugar and 1/3 cup chopped nuts. Arrange the biscuits in a greased nine-inch cake pan or ring mold or on a cookie sheet and bake 20-25 minutes in a 425-degree oven.

Cinnamon twists are quick—and no one will ever guess they came from a package of refrigerated biscuits also make delicious sweet rolls. a greased nine-inch cake pan or ring mold or on a cookie sheet and bake 20-25 minutes in a 425-degree oven.

Cinnamon twists are quick—and no one will ever guess they came from a package of refrigerated biscuits, says Miss Coblenz. Stretch each biscuit to a six-inch length, dip first into melted butter, then into combined cinnamon sugar and 1/2 cup finely chopped nuts. Twist and bake eight minutes in a 450-degree oven.

Future Farmers Of America News

Joseph Perrigo, 19, national vice president of the Future Farmers of America from Weare, New Hampshire, will be a featured speaker at the Delaware State FFA Convention to be held May 6, at Harrington High School.

About 125 Delaware Future Farmers of America are expected to attend the convention, it was reported today by Daniel E. Koble, State Supervisor of Agricultural Education. Two official delegates from each of the State's 16 local chapters will comprise the voting body to conduct the business of the convention.

State FFA officers who will preside over the convention are Richard Baxter, Middletown; Kenneth Horeis, John Dickinson, vice president; Carl Melvin, Caesar Rodney, vice president; Donald Scott, Georgetown, vice president; Derby Walker, Caesar Rodney, secretary; Charles Elliott, Greenwood, reporter; Weldon Harcum, Harrington, sentinel; Howard Webb, Milford treasurer; and Alvin Warner, Milford, executive committee.

The visiting national officer, Joseph Perrigo, was elected to his position at the national FFA Convention in Kansas City, Mo., last October. He has held several local offices, and served one year terms as State vice president and president of the New Hampshire FFA Association. In 1962 he won the title of Star State Farmer.

Joe lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyhl Perrigo, on the home farm in Weare where the main enterprise is a 10,000 bird laying flock. The Future Farmer personally owns 1,000 birds of the flock and takes in active part in planning and expanding the operation.

At the time of his election to National FFA office, Joe was studying Agricultural Education at the University of New Hampshire. He expects to return to college after completion of his FFA work this fall.

150-bushel yields... easy All you have to do is harvest half-pound ears from 21,000 plants per acre. That's the formula for 150-bushel yields. So why don't you do it? Probably for the same reason you can't match all those top yield claims you hear about. Top efficient yield on your farm might be 120 bushels, or less.

Instead of trying to break records that P-A-G can shout about, we'd rather you'd try for top profits. That's why we talk about Selective Planting. This is simply selecting seed for a planned harvest, for resistance to disease and insect damage, for standability, for drying characteristics, and for easy harvest using your harvest methods.

P-A-G offers 37 Four-Way Crosses and 12 Special Crosses. All have special characteristics spelled out so you can select varieties with the right combination of factors to make you the most profit. We recommend some varieties for populations up to 24,000 (and we find that some customers plant them as high as 30,000 with good success) and we recommend that you load on the fertilizer because they'll take it and give you those extra high yields that produce the most profits. There are other varieties that do best at around 12,000 population. The important thing is that you can match variety to the yield-producing capability of your soil fertility. At the same time you select corns to meet your problems head-on and to meet the requirements and needs of your particular farm to the greatest degree.

The 49 varieties P-A-G now offers are the best from over 20,000 crosses developed and tested during the past 21 years. All 49 are modern, up-to-date corns with the proved performance to increase your farm profits. When you follow a Selective Planting program, you plant for profit... not for prizes.

Your P-A-G dealer can tell you which varieties will match your need... your conditions... your end-use requirements. Call him today!

FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapaa

Who is a farmer? The farmer has been described as one who owns a farm, lives on a farm, makes all or part of his living from the land. The Census Bureau defines a farm as a place of 10 or more acres, if the value of the farm products sold is $50 or more; and a place of less than 10 acres, if the value of farm products sold is $250 or more. Here is a portrait of a "statistical" farmer in 1963 as described in the Fact Book of U. S. Agriculture, just released by USDA.

As a buyer, he spent $8,200 for his business needs. As a seller, he received $10,300 for his farm products. As a taxpayer, he contributed over $1000 to Government. As a consumer, he spent $3600 on family living. He earned more than $1500 off the farm. His house and personal goods were valued at about $6500. As a manufacturer, his "factory" was valued at $51,500. As a producer, he farmed 325 acres, earned about 5 per cent on his capital, had about $3000 in liquid assets, and owed $9000. As a worker, he labored almost 50 hours a week. The farm-house "rent" and home-produced food and fuel he used were valued at almost $1000. His net farm income was $3500.

Agriculture is the nation's biggest industry. But unlike other industrial giants, agriculture is decentralized. There are 3 1/2 million farms in America, covering more than 500 types of farming and employing 6 1/2 million workers, representing a $216-billion investment in land, buildings and equipment—equal to nearly half the market value of all corporation stocks on the New York Stock Exchange.

A young man has great difficulty in starting out as a farmer today. Thirty years ago, about all he needed was a team, plow, a few simple implements, perhaps 40 acres of rented land and a new wife.

But the average farm in Kent County is worth $50,000 today. With industrial jobs on a 40 hour week so tempting, few young people can master enough resources to make the plunge.

I talked with the Young Farmers Group of the Delaware Farm Bureau last week about county planning and zoning. Farmers still own ad control better than two thirds of the land in the county. So no group has a greater stake in future county growth.

Bob Cook, our University economist with the Division of Urban Affairs, takes issue against me on agriculture as a growth industry in Kent County. I do not argue that we have fewer farmers, or even that certain segments of the farm business may be declining. But the total picture is one of healthy growth in terms of income.

Farming is following industry out of the art or craft stage into larger, specialized, highly automated, "outdoor factories." No wonder that the farmer needs and uses so much capital and equipment.

The farmer cannot raise his prices and hope to stay in business long with his neighbors. But he can reduce his unit costs below his neighbor, which keeps him competitive.

The next major shift may well be something approaching a corporate farm organization — by partnerships, cooperatives, or a "condominium farm."

I define the latter as a farming unit where individuals maintain their individual homes and title to their properties, but pool their resources into a single larger unit to gain the economies of scale.

Mr. Alfalfa weevil is here already this spring. So we have to get at the rasal. These are our recommendations:

Insecticide, Malathion, 1 1/4 pounds, days to harvest, none; malathion and methoxychlor, 1 pound of each, days to harvest, 7; diazinon and methoxychlor,

1/2 and 1 pound, days to harvest, 7.

Do not try to shorten the interval to harvest. The amounts given are per acre applied in 20 to 35 gallons of water. Treat when most of the plants show some injury, but before severe injury appears. Growers who cut early must be prepared to spray the stubble to protect the second crop.

We are not recommending the flame method of control yet, but we will have several trials this spring after the first cutting on the stubble. This is to single active infections in alfalfa.

Most pesticide accidents occur in the home than on the farmstead—a recent study at the University of Illinois showed that pesticide poisoning was much more acute in the home than on the farm. Of 11 deaths from pesticide over the four-year period, only one was caused by an agricultural accident, while 10 were caused by careless use of pesticides around the home.

Consider cultivation first. Farmers should still consider timely rotary hoeing and row cultivation for controlling weeds in soybeans.

Agronomists say that, if hoeing and cultivation don't do the job, pre-emergence herbicides can then be used to control the weeds.

Pre-emergence herbicides for use on soybeans provide neither the selectivity nor the crop tolerance that is available in herbicides used to control weeds in corn. But soybeans have more ability than corn to outgrow the damage and produce a crop — if the damage is not too severe.

Delaware Food Market Report

May is a merry month—picnics, sunshine and holidays. So, there are plenty of excuses for festive meals.

To start the month off is May Day, May 1, which celebrates the season of returning light. A spring lamb roast, delicately glazed with a meat sauce, is a sure way to bring a light in the eyes of your family. Lamb supplies are and will be small, in fact, well below a year ago but the lamb is young and of high quality. When lamb is on special sale the prices are reasonable.

Mother's Day is May 9, so why not purchase a beef roast and let mother's helpers prepare the meal. A roast is so simple to prepare—a little seasoning and a low temperature for the oven. Better yet, a meat thermometer. May is a good month for buying beef since there continues to be an abundant supply coming to market. This is the latest prediction from the American Meat Institute.

Other special occasions that will be receiving attention during May are: National Baby Week, May 1-8; the Japanese Festival; Children's Day, May 5;

Be Kind to Animals Week, May 2-8; Mother-in-Law's Day, May 2; Senior Citizens Month; Salad Month, and least but not least Memorial Day, May 30. This day seems to be the unofficial opening of the picnic season. You'll be seeing special displays and advertisements of cold cuts, meat-in-cans, and other foods well adapted to open air meals. Pork production for May will be approaching the seasonally low period and may also be as much as 8% below a year ago, but there will be enough to make the first backyard party a success. Veal supplies are and will continue to be a little above a year ago.

May is a scant month though, as far as the Plentiful Foods List is concerned. According to the U.S.D.A. only eggs, honey and prunes will be in abundant supply.

As far as this weekend is concerned there's many a good buy available at all of our local stores. Beef continues to be an outstanding meat choice. Broiler-fryers are another popular special. Fish varieties are increasing with top buys being found among sea bass, blue fish, flounder, shad, porgies, and mackerel. Fresh vegetables to consider are artichokes, celery, carrots, beets, sweet corn, asparagus, onions, and spinach. Old standbys that remain on the expensive side are potatoes, cabbage, and iceberg lettuce.

Grapefruit might well be first choice at the fruit counter with oranges, lemons, honeydew melons, strawberries, and grapes being other good buys.

This coming Sunday will be Good Citizenship Day in Harrington. The members of the Protestant Ministerium decided at a recent meeting that they each would emphasize in some way in his or her religious service this Sunday the need for civic pride where our town is concerned. Accordingly, the whole month of May is Good Citizenship Month and all people of Harrington and the outlying areas are urged to do everything they can to improve the appearances of not only their homes but where possible their unoccupied property in the vicinity.

This coming Sunday is also Mental Health Sunday in Delaware and the month of May is considered Mental Health Month. Help is needed in carrying on the work of the Mental Health Association in Delaware. Anyone interested in this work should contact the Parish Office without delay. As a beginning, those who are concerned in this area should plan to attend the Mental Health Luncheon which will be held at noon on May 4 (this coming Tuesday) in the Gold Ball Room of the Hotel duPont. Reservations can be made through the Mental Health Association. Telephone OL-6-8303.

This coming Monday evening, the Rev. Canon James Birney will be the guest speaker of the Women of St. Stephen's at their regular monthly meeting. Canon Birney, who is assistant to the Bishop will speak on the educational program of the church. Everyone is urged to come and to bring guests to hear Canon Birney.

Advance notice is given to the Men of St. Stephen's that Dr. Walden Pell, for many years headmaster of St. Andrew's Episcopal School for Boys, near Middletown, a priest in the Diocese of Delaware, who after retirement went as missionary to Viet Nam, has accepted an invitation to be the guest speaker at the May 17, 8 p.m. meeting. Dr. Pell will be accompanied by Mrs. Pell who will act as his projectionist. In his lecture he will use movies which he made while abroad. The title of his lecture is "On the Macong". The movies were made while in Viet Nam, Cambodia, Laos, and Singapore, during the years 1959-1963. Dr. Pell is an excellent speaker and is certainly informed on his subject having been in Viet Nam as recently as 1963. He should be able to answer many questions of current interest concerning that country. Not only are the women of the church invited, but the general public are invited as well.

Those who were present on Monday evening, April 19, will remember Ira Franck's interesting and informative lecture on Pennsylvania Dutch country and culture. We believe that you will enjoy Dr. Pell equally as much. Each year the Bishop treats all the altar boys in the Diocese of Delaware to a ticket to one of the games between the Phillies and another baseball club. This year it is the Phillies vs. the Cubs and takes place on Sat., May 29. The only cost to each acolyte is $1 to defray the cost of bus transportation from Wilmington to Philadelphia and back. All boys should plan to bring a box lunch for both lunch and supper, along with extra spending money. Those who plan to go should let Acolyte director Clyde Perry know no later than Sun., May 9, as his deadline for getting in the registrations is that week.

Asbury W.S.C.S. Notes

Mrs. James Moore will conduct the annual Pledge Service of the Asbury Church Woman's Society of Christian Service at the regular meeting May 4. The time will be 7:30 p.m. in the Collins Hall. All members are urged to attend.

Lions Do Well In Seaford Track Extravaganza

Sixteen schools entered track teams at last Thursday's eleventh annual Seaford Invitational track meet. Coach Harold McDonald's Harrington High Lions represented one of the smallest schools in the meet and had a string of misfortunes with which to contend. Taking this into consideration, the local school's eighth-place finish was a good showing.

The worst piece of luck to befall the Lions was the loss of Glenn Smith, probably the best high jumper here, since track was started in 1957. Smith had the best early-season jump (5 ft. 7 in.) of the Seaford entrants but broke a leg playing baseball.

Three other Lions were kept home by parents. One local was not allowed to throw the javelin although the rules say he should have been permitted to throw. Bruce Layton, in the same event, was disqualified when the fractious spear refused to break the earth.

Despite these and other adversities, H.H.S. managed to turn in several bright performances.

Gerry Garey ran the two mile for the third time this year and broke the school record for the third time. Gerry beat his old mark by 12 seconds as he logged a fine 11:07. The Lion finished in fourth place after running second much of the way. His chances of finishing higher were hurt by the fact that in his two earlier starts he had no competition since Lewes, Lord Baltimore and John M. Clayton had no two milers. Marshall Hatfield ran his best two mile of the young season (11:54).

Dennis Rogers was third in the mile run in a field of 20 entrants.

Frank White continued his steady improvement as he became the only Henlopen Conference sprinter to reach the finals of the 100 yard dash. Bothered by a sore leg, White ran 11.4 against Lewes, 11.2 against J.M.C. and Lord Baltimore in early April. At Seaford the little speedster was third in 10.9 in the first trial heat and qualified for the semi-finals. Here he improved to 10.8 and made it to the finals. In the last century of the evening against the cream of 16 schools, Frank appeared to be fifth but was placed sixth. But most important of all was his time. He was so close to the front that the first six runners were all clocked in the same time, a swift 10.5 seconds. White now trails only Jim Schiff (10.) and Bob Wilson (10.3) on the all time H.H.S. list.

In the 880 relay race the Lions won their heat with White passing two men in the home stretch on his anchor leg. Raleigh Davis, Richard Black and Bruce Layton ran the other legs.

The locals ran their fastest mile relay of the year (3:47.2) to grab fourth place in the mile relay behind Seaford, Wm. Henry and Milford. This quartet was Bob Smith, Henry Minner, Richard Black and Dennis Rogers.

Nicky Morris, state junior high cross-country champion, continued to impress as a possible future great. Despite the wind, Nicky, a freshman, cut his mile time from 5:25 to 5:20 and ran a good half mile, also. Earlier that afternoon, in a triangular meet at Georgetown the varsity mile was won in 5:25.

In junior high competition Harrington did even better finishing fourth behind Seaford, Fred Douglas of Seaford, and Wicomico of Salisbury, Md.

Gerry Cagle ripped off his fastest 100 yet as he won his heat in 11.2 to make the finals. He may have beaten this time in the finale as he was very close to the winner, who was timed in 10.8.

The Lions won their heat of the 880 relay in a good 14:7.2. This time was excelled by Washington of Princess Anne, Md., and Wicomico, of Salisbury, in another heat, which pushed H.H.S. back to third place. Cagle, Jim Simpler, Roger Moore and anchorman Jim White made up the quartet.

Gary Simpson, 14, ran one of the fastest junior high 880's in local scholastic history. Simpson (2:24) had second place sewed up behind a Seaford runner but took a nap and was nipped at the wire by a Wicomico runner. Simpson is a fine prospect and trounced 30 rivals in the test.

Eight-grader Oscar Matthews (2:37) and seventh-grader Jack Warrington (2:41) ran well, also. Bill Webb scored the last Harrington points as he flung the 8 pound shot 42 feet 3 inches to take third position.

H.H.S. Lions Lose To Dover Air, Bridgeville

Dover Air Base High won a tight battle with Harrington on the Base diamond, Thursday afternoon. The Falcons scored once in the first inning, but the Lions tied it up on a hit by Rusty Jack in the top half of the fourth inning.

The host team broke the deadlock in the same inning and added an insurance tally in the fifth frame to prevail, 3-1.

Renny French pitched well for the Lions, but was beaten by a three-hitter tossed by the Falcon's Lonnie White. French and Ellis Myer had the other Harrington safeties.

The Lions are having abysmal luck in the injury department. A key player, pitcher-third baseman Glenn Smith, is out for the season with a fractured leg. Also on crutches are catcher Steve Motter and outfielder Dean Mangus. Both have injured legs and be out also for the rest of the season. To lose three regulars on sliding accidents is a blow from which the Lions may not recover.

Bridgeville played here on Thursday afternoon and had the game won by the time the Lions settled down to play some baseball.

The Mustangs were credited with ten hits, but in fairness to Harrington hurler, Richard Black, it must be stated that some of these were of the extremely doubtful variety. In fact, errors of omission and commission played a big part in the Lions' downfall.

Trailing 5-0 after three innings, the Lions began to get to Ron Tull in the fourth inning. A ringing triple by Sam Knox and a double by Bob Rouse drove in two runs. Both teams scored in the seventh inning to make the final score, 6-3.

Others to hit safely for Harrington were Mike Walmsley, Rusty Jack, Ellis Myer and Rennie French.

Good defensive plays by Harrington were turned into outs for Bridgeville. Ellis Myer, catcher, threw out a would-be base stealer. Rennie French, at first base, speared a line drive labeled base hit.

Rusty Jack took a throw from Chuck McNally and relayed it to Myer to cut down a runner at home plate.

Felton Downs Bridgeville And Delmar

AT FELTON
Felton's Green Devil baseball squad has won its first four games of the campaign in an effort to recapture the Henlopen Championship it last won in 1963. The Devils were runnerup to Dover Air High last season.

Felton won close contests against Bridgeville (11-9) and Delmar (4-3) since the last writing and at this point are alone atop the standings, although Millsboro and Dover Air are unbeaten in three and two starts, respectively.

The Devils have been hard-pressed in three of the four victories and the law of averages could catch up with them in the near future.

Bridgeville outthrew the winners 10-9 but a whole flock of errors did the Mustangs in.

Jim Blades was the winning pitcher, although he was tagged for a pair of two-run homers.

The Mustangs jumped out in front 3-0 in the first inning but Felton tied the score in the second inning and went out ahead 8-3 in the third stanza. A three-run fourth frame ended the victor's scoring as Bridgeville added a pair of three-run innings to get close.

Bill Dill with three hits and Phil Clark with two led Felton at the plate.

AT DELMAR
At Delmar, Monday afternoon, the Devils were in trouble for most of the fray but for the second time this season won the decision in the final inning. Greg Maloney, of Delmar, had a 3-0 shutout, going into the fifth inning, but Felton knotted the count. In the seventh Bob Reibel singled, stole second, went to third on a balk and scored on Ron Draper's sacrifice fly.

Bill Dill gave up nine hits to six allowed by Maloney.

Ron Draper had two hits and batted in three of Felton's four runs.

Stickles, Delmar's heavyweight wrestler, had three hits in four at-bats.

Greenwood Bows To Dover Air And Delmar

Weak hitting by Greenwood's baseball team is wasting some good pitching by the Forester's Ron Breeding.

The righthander has pitched well three times, but has been beaten each time. His mates managed only three hits in seventeen innings as Breeding was nosed 2-0 by Delmar, and 5-4 by Dover Air. Ron was not the losing pitcher in the latter encounter, since he was lifted for a pinch hitter with the score tied.

At Delmar, Breeding and Jim Budd hooked up in a pitcher's duel, each allowing only three hits. After five scoreless innings, the wildcats picked up singletons in the last two frames to eke out the victory.

Steve Willey and Maurice Hughes, who have done most of the Forester hitting, had a hit apiece with the catcher Retzlaff getting the other.

Against Dover Air, Breeding pitched a regulation seven inning shutout only to discover that Greenwood didn't have any runs either.

Dover Air appeared to salt the verdict away with four runs in the top of the eighth, but the Foresters pulled a minor miracle and did the same in their half of the chucker.

The Falcons pushed over a lone tally in the tenth off Dave Henry to end the marathon struggle.

The home team had one hit by Hughes, as they were handcuffed by Joe Myers, Lonnie White and Charley Taylor.

Lions Clock 3:43.9 In Penn Relays, Philadelphia

Forty-one thousand track and field fans attended the 71st annual Penn Relay Carnival at Franklin Field, Philadelphia on Saturday afternoon.

Among the 6,000 athletes competing were four Harrington High School seniors, the first from this school to vie in the world's oldest and largest relay carnival. The Lions ran in the mile relay and although many slower teams than H.H.S. were in evidence Saturday morning, unfortunately, not too many were entered in the same heat with the locals.

While the home boys did not make a big splash they did not fare too badly when one considers that they were up against schools with as many as 750 boys enrolled in high school. Harrington has a little over 100 boys.

This writer has attended four previous Penn Relay Carnivals. In each case some 15 or 20 heats would be run off before some swift foursome would clock 3:30 for the mile relay.

At 9:40 A.M. Saturday morning in the very first race of the day, Havre De Grace Consolidated High School, whipped to a blazing 3:28.5. Second place went to Dunbar High of Lynchburg, Va., while Luther Jackson High, of Virginia, was third.

Wm. Henry High of Dover, came in fourth. Scotland, Pa. High appeared to have fifth place sewed up but Harrington's Dennis Rogers uncoiled a swift 53.9 anchor leg to bring the Lions up to a neck-and-neck status with the Pennsylvanians at the finish. Scotland is near Chambersburg, Pa.

Other schools entered in the race were Harriet Tubman High of Clarksville, Md., West Reading High, Pa., and Haldane, N. Y. High.

Bob Smith led off for Harrington and was knocked around some in the early going which cost the Lions a couple of seconds. However, if the jostling had not occurred it is doubtful if H.H.S. could have finished better than fifth in that competition.

Smith was timed in 55.2 for his opening leg. Henry Minner, Richard Black and Rogers carried the baton to a clocking of 3:43.9, the best so far this year for this group. Previous outings were 3:58.5, 3:51, 3:47.2. It appears the school record of 3:39.1 should be excelled this year after a stand of 11½ months.

P. S. duPont, A. I. duPont and Caesar Rodney were larger Delaware schools who could not equal the Lions' 3:43.9 clocking on Saturday.

It seemed as if every shade of color in the spectrum was represented in the many bright track suits and sweat shirts. Some of the finest athletes in the world competed during the day including John Velses of LaSalle, the world's first 16 foot pole vaulter and Ed Roberts, of Trinidad, third in the Olympic 100-yard dash in Tokyo.

It is not likely that Harrington will be able to compete in the Penn Relays next year since the mile relay team is composed entirely of seniors and a qualifying standard of 3:42 appears to be out of the reach of the returning trackmen in 1966.

One possibility exists. There is a faint hope that H.H.S. could match the qualifying standards in the two mile or medley relays.

At any rate the ice has been broken, four boys have had the honor to be the first H.H.S. athletes to appear in big time competition and they did a pretty fair job in the bargain.

If The Team Is Called Harrington, Support It!

Success in sports is relative. If a small high school such as Harrington beats an even smaller one like Greenwood in basketball, baseball or football, it is an achievement of less than monumental importance. After the contest local rooters will say to the players "How did you make out with Greenwood?" The answer will be "We won", or "We lost," or "It was a tie".

When a wrestling team, cross-country team or track team competes in a tournament with from twelve to twenty other schools, it is therefore a much different situation than a two-school contest. Yet, some fans (their lack of knowledge showing) will ask a team returning from such a tourney "Did you win?". Since the odds against winning are between 11 to 1 and 19 to 1, the answer is usually "No". Often this answer is met with a sneer and a remark such as "You guys aren't so hot, are you?". But if the interrogator should be told that the school did win than it suddenly becomes "his" team. "Well we showed them didn't we?"

Two years ago the Harrington wrestling squad was second of eight or nine schools in the

Milford Invitational Wrestling Tournament

Although this was a very fine performance against larger, more experienced schools, to some it was still "you lost". If a person is a true-blue H.H.S. sports fan, all six teams deserve that person's support. It is grossly unfair to sneer when the baseball team can't win, or vice versa. After all the kids are trying their level best on every Lion athletic unit.

Let's get back to the three sports that involve tournaments. If a Harrington team enters a tournament with 15 others and if most of those are larger schools than Harrington and if the Lions beat half of those opponents while trailing the other 50c, this is a good performance and don't knock it!

Do you live in the Harrington school district? If so, please try to avoid making cutting remarks about our athletic teams. Let's leave that facet of sports to fans from other towns. Shall we?

RANDY KNOX

This late start makes his performance against Lehigh all the more outstanding. At Harrington High Knox holds the javelin record and was one of the best here in the high jump and broad jump since the Lions started track in 1957.

Many other Lion thinclads have had the ability to make good in college track. Some of these boys never went to college. Others did not go out for track when they furthered their education. Barry Fry and Clarence Hackett, currently at the University of Delaware and Campbellsville College, Kentucky, respectively fall into this last category.

Trackmen who did not compete in college are Dwight Hackett, West Chester; Jim Schiff, University of Maryland; Alvin Jarrell, Wesley College, and the aforesaid Randy Knox.

Several of the 1965 performers may be competing in college livery next spring. Among these are Richard Black, Bob Smith and Dennis Rogers.
