

Council Interested in Some Street Improvements

The City Council, Tuesday night, voted to secure bills on improving three streets.

Thoroughfares affected were as follows: Dixon Street from Liberty Street to Center Street Extended, Gordon Street, and Weiner Avenue from Liberty Street to the City limits.

In other business the Council acted as follows:

Told City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann to send notice of violation of the nuisance ordinance to those persons having abandoned cars on their property.

Employed Arthur Marsan as a part-time patrolman. Marsan was employed in this capacity until early January when he resigned to run for councilman, unsuccessfully. Council will meet with city manager and Chief of Police Franklin Rogers to interview applicants for a full-time police job.

Put Mrs. Georgia Jackson, Weiner Avenue, on the poll-tax list after she had requested being declared exempt from paying the tax.

Excused Ted Layton, High Street, from paying a portion of the cost of the curb in front of his house, since it had been improperly installed.

Turning to tax exemptions, Councilman Wilson G. Bradley, First Ward, mentioned to eliminate capitation, or poll, tax for all persons more than 70 years old. He said other towns had done it. Mayor Luther P. Hatfield said the change would call for an amendment to the Charter. There was no second to the motion.

Delmarva Pageant Set for June 17 - 18

Some 34 of Delmarva's prettiest girls, full-grown and pint-sized both, plus their mothers, sisters and other kinfolk, will be making sewing machines hum later this month in a burst of high-fashion activity in 19 communities throughout the Peninsula.

Object is the remodeling or final fitting of made-at-home or purchased gowns for finalists in the Delmarva Pageant to be held June 17 and 18 as a feature of the 18th Annual Delmarva Chicken Festival in Salisbury. The pageant has two divisions, one for misses 16 to 23 years old who have won preliminary Delmarva Pageants in their come communities, the other for junior misses of three to school age who likewise are winners in preliminary home community Little Delmarva Pageants.

Including preliminary pageants scheduled this week and next in several 'Shore communities, a total of 19 towns and cities are sending finalists to the Pageant at Salisbury in the senior misses division. There will be 15 in the junior misses division.

Communities which have held pageants in the past month or will hold them shortly, include Laurel, Seaford, Milford, Pocomoke, Selbyville, Harrington, Delmar, Greenwood, Easton, Georgetown, Rehoboth, Federalsburg, Greensboro and Dover. Chincoteague selected its winner last August at Pony Penning Day.

The Pageant winner at Salisbury will receive a $1,000 scholarship to an accredited college of her choice or may elect to receive $500 in cash instead. Runner-up receives a $500 scholarship or $250 in cash. Miss Personality, selected by the finalists themselves from among their number, receives a $100 U. S. Savings Bond. In addition, each finalist receives a Catalina Swim Suit plus an appreciation gift.

Last year's winner and current reigning beauty of the Peninsula's poultry industry, Miss Delmarva the 17th., is 18-year-old Harriet Lou Davis, a 5-foot-5 honey-blonde from Bridgeville. She is a freshman at the University of Delaware. Winner in the Little Miss Delmarva Pageant last year at Easton, was 5-year-old Kimberly Kay Parsons, of Pocomoke, Md.

Due to a Name-the-Queen contest sponsored by Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., last fall and carried through with the assistance of the Delmarva press, radio and television, this year's queen will be known as "1965 Queen of Delmarva Poultry" rather than "Miss Delmarva the 18th". Likewise, "Little Miss Delmarva the 18th".

Eleventh Grade Parents To Meet

A meeting of the eleventh grade parents will be held in the Guidance suite in the High School Building, Tuesday evening, May 11th, at 7:30 p. m.

The purpose of this meeting is to discuss current college admission policies, as well as financial aid programs and scholarships available. We anticipate a question and answer period and it is our hope that this meeting will answer many of the questions that the parent may have concerning college admissions.

We certainly do not feel that college is the only road to success. However, we do feel that it is one of the possibilities open for youngsters and we feel that the opportunity to attend college should be made available to all who qualify.

AFB Armed Forces Day Set For Tomorrow

Several new exhibits will be on display at Dover AFB Armed Forces Day Open House May 8. These attractions were obtained from USAF Orientation Group, Wright Patterson AFB, Ohio.

The new exhibits will include the Hound Dog Missile, Minuteman Space Show Case and a Satellite Inspection System.

The Hound Dog is a supersonic air-to-surface missile carried under the wings of the B-52 bomber. It carries a nuclear warhead that can be released more than 500 miles from the target and can fly high or low to the strike zone, regardless of release altitude.

The Minuteman Space Show Case depicts the Minuteman Missile in scale. This missile was the first intercontinental ballistic missile to use solid fuel. Transparent slides are used with this show case explaining the advantages of this type fuel.

The Satellite Inspection System Space exhibit, through the use of color transparencies, artwork, and a model satellite, illustrates the use of satellites for identification of orbiting objects. These displays will be open for public inspection to better acquaint civilians with the Armed Forces.

4-H's Participate In Feeder Pig Program

More than 70 Delaware 4-H club members are creating their own version of the story about the little pigs that went to market.

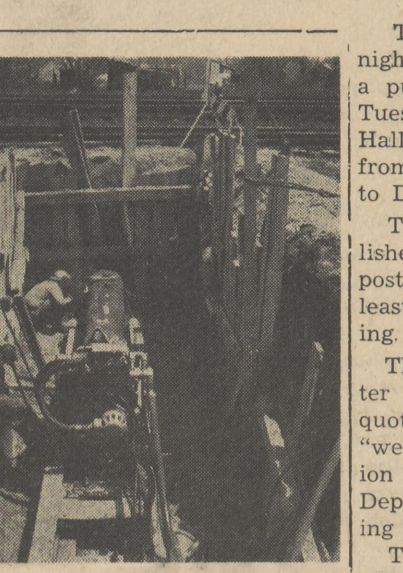

Participating in the Delaware 4-H Swine Feeding Program, each youngster is feeding and caring for two pigs until the end of July, when they will be sold at auction at the Delaware State Fair.

Members started the project the first week in April, when they purchased 30-to-45 pound pigs. For participants whose allowances couldn't stretch far enough to purchase the pigs, the Delaware Swine Producers' Association furnished the animals, and the youngsters will repay them when the pigs are sold.

Pigs will be shown and judged at the feeder pig round-up at the Delaware State Fair, and then will be sold to the highest bidder.

The 4-H Swine Feeding program is conducted annually to help 4-H members learn principles.

GIVE UP THE CIGARETTE HABIT

A new film aimed primarily at adults and emphasizing the importance of giving up the cigarette habit has just been released by the Delaware Division of the American Cancer Society.

The new picture, "Who, Me?", is directed toward grownups, whose smoking habits affect the youngsters who will follow suit. Some 47,000 Americans will die of lung cancer this year, most of them caused by cigarette smoking, the Society points out.

"Who, Me?", will be used for showings particularly to parent-teacher groups, fraternal organizations, trade unions, and religious affiliates.

The film takes a light yet decidedly poignant approach to the plight of the heavy smoker. Its hero is "George," a typical American, a devoted family man and father of two. Besides his wife and children, two other figures play a key role in George's developing understanding of the many risks which smoking entails: an unrelenting physician and an ever-present "Guide who functions both as narrator of the film ad as a symbol of George's common sense, conscience and better self."

Thanks to the imagery of film, the viewer is able to see just what continued cigarette smoking involves. A mountain of cigarettes are dumped at Georges' feet—all those he has smoked over the years—and a huge and uncomfortably solid flask of some twenty-odd pounds of tobacco tar absorbed over the years becomes a tangible and sticky reality.

Like many another smoker, George does his best to rationalize his habit and is quite successful at it. When he sees what can happen to his children, however, he carries out truly agonizing reappraisal. Catching his boy and girl at a cigarette on the sly, he realizes with a pang that what youngsters see their parents do is something which they are encouraged to do in turn.

In short, "Who, Me?", provides a double reason for adults to give up smoking: as a health measure for their own sakes, and as a means of helping forestall the habit in their children.

Departing from the professional-actor format at the end, the film's last minutes are given over to interviews with four Americans who have successfully given up cigarettes. These are Dr. Thomas Carlisle, famed X-ray specialist and former President of the American Cancer Society; Mrs. Mary T. Campbell, New Brunswick, N. J., housewife; Joan Kahn, a writer and editor, and Tom Sloan, an attorney, both of New York.

Although the four readily admit varying degrees of difficulty in breaking the cigarette habit, all of them testify in sincere and believable terms to the satisfaction achieved, physically, psychologically and mentally. Typical were the reactions of Miss Kahn ("if you've got to do it, you want to do it, and you're going to have to do it, I think you can") and Dr. Carlisle ("... I just wish more fathers would have the chance of seeing it the way I did on that one particular occasion when it suddenly came home to me that smoking was no good for me or for my kids or the rest of the people with whom I come in contact").

This 16-mm film, in unusually attractive color and with a running-time of 19½ minutes, features such veteran performers as Edward Stebbings as the "Guide"; Freeman Parks as "George"; Addison Powell (known for his appearances as "Gunsmoke") as The Doctor; Margaret Givenver as The Mother, and Barry Fortus and Wendy Wynters as The Children.

Showings can be arranged through your Unit of the American Cancer Society.

Delaware Food Market Report

A plant that grows 6 to 10 inches in one day? Sounds like a Pack-in-the-beanstalk tale, but it's not. It's a tale about asparagus, a plant that grows so fast you can almost see it grow. This fast growth is the secret of tender asparagus.

Rapid handling, low temperature and moisture, from harvest to storage and continued right up to the point of cooking, are very important for maintaining the fresh flavor and the tenderness of asparagus. After cutting, asparagus is often pre-cooled in an ice cold bath before packing, or it may be cooled by placing immediately in refrigerated cars or trucks. Studies show conclusively that the delicate flavored sugar of asparagus must be kept below 41 degrees, thus rapid handling and tender care are important.

Another important handling procedure is keeping the butts of the stalk moist to prevent the development of woody stalks. Asparagus crates are lined on the bottom with a special pad or moss to hold this necessary moisture. This is the reason why stores often keep this vegetable straddling upright tin shallow trays of water.

When purchasing asparagus at retail, it is important, quality wise to note whether the stalks have been kept cold and the bottom of the stalk damp. When the base of the shoot is dry, it has a definite tendency to toughen the fiber, meaning more waste is involved at the preparation stage. If the asparagus is held at room temperature, much of the flavor is gone. Be aware of these things for it is important in getting top quality food for the money spent and in helping improve marketing methods.

Here are a few other buying tips to help you select top-quality.

Look for stalks that are firm, brittle and bright green. The tips should be tightly closed and well formed. Avoid stalks that are wilted or have spreading tips, they are past their prime. Also pass up stalks that are angular — they are apt to be tough and stringy.

Bring asparagus home from the store promptly and store in refrigerator. Plan to use within a day or two. One pound will yield 3 generous cooked servings.

The meat market seems stronger in almost all categories. The exception to this is poultry. Fryers continue to be outstanding buys. As far as beef is concerned, the forequarter cuts are your better buys this week.

artichokes, broccoli, carrots, fresh vegetables to check are beets, celery, cucumbers, spinach, green onions, and eggplant. Potatoes continue high and best quality tomatoes are relatively high.

Strawberries, bananas, and citrus fruits are good choices at the fruit counter. Be sure to look at pineapple, honeydew melons, rhubarb, and apples for these are good to fair buys, also.

Young men of today can also wear these badges of distinction by exercising their enlistment option through the Army's "Choice Not Chance," program. They can request Airborne training, and if qualified, be guaranteed such training—before enlisting.

Airborne training offers a variety of appeals to the spirit of adventure. It is this spirit in every man that makes the paratroopers what they are today—a group of high-flying "action-guys," whose combat history can't be matched. The training is as rugged as it is complete. And paratroopers receive extra pay all the time they are on jump station.

Upon completion of jump-training, a soldier may volun-

Choice, Not Chance Offered By Army

World War II saw the birth of a new breed of American soldier. Today, even though he has matured and taken on additional responsibilities, we still recognize him by his highly polished boots and his paratrooper wings, or by the newest mark of a man, his green beret.

Special Forces personnel are not recruited direct from non-prior service enlistees. Through the "Choice Not Chance" option, a man may enlist for Airborne and upon completion of that training, volunteer for Special Forces. The Army will guarantee Airborne training, if the candidate is qualified, but will make no guarantee about eventual service with Special Forces. Such assignments are made from volunteers who are jump-qualified and suited to the rugged life of Special Forces troopers.

For further information about Airborne training and other options available through the Army's "Choice Not Chance" enlistment program, see your local

with George K. Vapaa

God's time, nature's time, standard time. These have all been equated and are stacked against the devil's time, man's time, or daylight saving time.

Farmers are perhaps the dominant group to hold to an unchanging schedule of time. Livestock do not readily adjust to changing situations. It is a matter of profit to a farmer to feed his animals at the same intervals.

A farmer can make a lot of other mistakes, but if he does a job "on time", he has a reasonable chance of success. Some of his jobs are not critical within the space of an hour. But there is one food processor who advertises harvest peas and sweet corn "at the peak of their flavor"—implying harvest within that crucial hour. And in truth, growers are paid on quality as measured by the tenderometer and other devices.

High crop yields especially depend on timeliness in doing jobs. Early plowing of a corn crop in the spring prevents plants from pumping out the soil moisture. Crops must be planted early enough to reach optimum growth before the hot, dry season. Weeds must be stopped early before they steal too much water and food from the crop.

Of course one can rush things too much. Farmers have such good tools today that they plant some crops too early. Corn should not be planted in Kent County before May 1, and soybeans not before May 20 on the average. The penalty can be poor germination, weed competition, cutworm activity, etc.

Another sign of spring is the arrival of our University summer extension course catalogues. Classes are scheduled for the evenings in Dover from June 21 through August 10. Other classes are scheduled for Newark, Wilmington and Rehoboth.

Course offerings include now credit preparatory classes, regular and graduate credit offerings. Fifteen classes will be held at Dover. Call our Extension Office 736-1448 for a catalogue.

Feed cows to their full potential. Many lactating dairy cows are grossly underfed in early lactation and overfed in late lactation. A cow will never reach her potential for high milk production unless she's fed enough.

Feeding high levels of grain to lactating dairy cows does not necessarily guarantee high milk production. They must also have the genetic potential to respond to high energy feeding.

Use the following feeding plan to get high milk production and profit:

—Feed free choice the best quality hay or silage available to all cows.

—Feed sufficient grain to keep cows in good state of flesh during the dry period.

—Approximately two weeks before calving, begin increasing the grain at rates sufficient to have the cows consuming 19-20 lbs. of grain per day at the time of calving.

—After calving, gradually increase grain until the cow reaches maximum milk production or appetite. Then reduce grain to lowest possible level without influencing milk production.

—As lactation progresses, decrease grain following the decline in milk production.

"This method of feeding challenges each cow to her maximum production and thus provides the dairyman with the necessary information for a strict culling program."

Opportunities for young men to start farming are hard to come by. Even when a young man accumulates sufficient resources to make the initial start, there is still the problem of developing an efficient operation of adequate size.

A survey that compared farmers who started after World War II with those who started prior found that the younger men were operating larger units. In proportion to their numbers, more young farmers operated medium-sized and larger operations than did the older farmers. Net cash incomes were as large as those of the middle-aged farmers and larger than those of older farmers.

The younger farmers leased more land and borrowed more capital. About half of them leased all the land and buildings they operated. Full ownership was more common among the older farmers. Younger men owed more of their mortgage debt to the persons from whom they bought their land.

Credit terms from the original owners were somewhat more liberal than would be expected from financial institutions. Obviously, wise financial management played an important part in their successful development of efficient operations.

Capital requirements and the competitive pressures of farming will undoubtedly increase in the future we believe. Opportunities to start farming will become even more limited. Experiences of this post war generation of farmers, however, offer some important guidelines to those who hope to establish themselves in the industry of productive agriculture.

Soybean fields ought to be sufficiently limed before planting this spring. Farmers have made a lot of progress with liming, but in some cases they are far short.

Soybeans are not able to use atmospheric nitrogen unless fields on which they're planted are properly limed.

In fields where lime is needed no other single practice will produce as favorable a response in growth and yield.

The best way to find whether fields need lime is to take a soil sample for testing. As a general rule, soybeans should be planted on soils which have a pH between 6.0 and 6.5. The test is free in Delaware. Soil samples should be brought to our extension office in the old Post Office Building in Dover.

Home Gardener Can Curb Plant Diseases

Plant disease organisms are commonly found on home grounds, but home gardeners can take measures to control them, according to Dr. J. W. Heuberger, plant pathologist at the University of Delaware.

He points out that plant disease organisms are very infectious, and, because of their extremely small size, they are easily spread from one place to another without being seen.

To help curb plant diseases, Heuberger advises cleaning up old plant debris before planting or before perennials resume growth. When selecting new plants of seed, choose disease-resistant varieties adapted to this area. Seed can also be treated for disease resistance.

Plant in well-drained, well-prepared seed beds and follow good watering and fertilization practices, avoiding excess nitrogen and water.

If there have been previous disease problems in the garden, apply protective sprays early and at regular intervals, Heuberger advises. "Choose the right chemical for the kind of control you need—and use the right amount at the right time in the right way. Follow the use instructions on the label," he cautions.

If disease occurs for the first time, apply a protective spray as soon as you notice the problem.

Because insects transmit some of the pathogenic organisms that cause plant diseases, control of insects will help in controlling some diseases, Heuberger points out. Weed control will also aid in disease control, since fewer weeds provide for better air drainage of the plants and thus reduce the chances of infection, he says.

Nutritionist Explains Storage of Perishable Foods

Fresh perishable foods should be used while at their best—as fresh as possible. If storage is necessary, use the proper temperature and humidity for each different type of food, says Miss Janet Coblentz, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware. Otherwise, they begin to lose their quality and eventually they spoil.

Most fresh perishables keep best in the refrigerator, but there are exceptions, she says. Keep unripe or hard apples at room temperature until ready to eat; keep mellow and ripe apples uncovered in the refrigerator.

Store bananas, citrus fruits, melons and pineapples at a cool room temperature. To keep from wasting ripe bananas, store thoroughly covered in the refrigerator for one or two days. The skin will be dark, but the fruit can still be eaten. Storing citrus fruits and melons for a short time in the refrigerator is not harmful, but if they are held too long at too low a temperature, the skin becomes pitted and the flesh discolors. Use them within a week, advises Miss Coblentz.

Some vegetables keep best at a cool room temperature, including potatoes, sweet potatoes, dry beans, hard-rind squash, eggplant and drutabagas. Other vegetables need refrigeration. Green leafy vegetables keep their crispness and nutrients best in the cold, moist air of a crisper drawer. If the crisper is less than two-thirds full, put the vegetables in a plastic bag.

However, too much moisture in the air around cherries and berries encourages the growth of mold and rot. Keep them whole and uncovered in the refrigerator, without washing or stemming until ready to serve, recommends Miss Coblentz. Use within a day or two.

Fruits are fragile, she says. They need careful handling to keep from being crushed or bruised. Sort fruits before storing; discard bruised or decayed fruit to keep it from spoiling sound fruit.

Store bread in the original wrapper at room temperature except in hot, humid weather. In such weather, protect it against mold by keeping it in the refrigerator. Bread may also be kept frozen for a week or two without losing the original freshness. Store cereals, flour, spices, and sugar at room temperature.

In tightly closed containers to keep out dust, moisture and insects. During hot weather buy flour and cereals in small quantities and often for week-lives.

Eggs lose their mild flavor quickly at room temperature so always store them covered in the refrigerator, says Miss Coblentz. Use eggs within a week. If eggs are kept too long, the white may thin, and the yolk membrane may weaken and break when the shell is opened. To store left-over yolks, put them in a dish and cover with cold water; to store the egg whites put them in a tightly covered container. Store both in the refrigerator and use within a day or two.

Most fats and oils need protection from air, heat and light. Even liquid cooking and salad oil should be stored in the refrigerator for long storage. Keep all homemade salad dressings in the refrigerator, stressed Miss Coblentz. Purchased mayonnaise should also be kept refrigerated. Store cured and smoked meats in their original packages in the refrigerator, she says. Uncooked cured pork will keep longer than fresh pork, but the fat will eventually become rancid. Eat bacon within a week, a half-ham within five days, a whole ham within a week. Ground meats are more apt to spoil than roasts because more meat surface has been exposed. Store, loosely wrapped, in the coldest part of the refrigerator, and use within one or two days.

Milk and cream should be stored, covered, in the refrigerator no longer than three to five days, says Miss Coblentz. Do not allow exposure to sunlight, since this impairs both the flavor and the riboflavin content of the milk. If absolutely necessary, milk can be frozen, she says. The container must be thoroughly sealed with adequate empty space to allow for expansion. Never freeze in glass bottles. Fat may solidify in frozen homogenized milk and cause a curdled look. Shake vigorously before using. Store evaporated and condensed milk at room temperature until opened, then cover tightly and refrigerate.

Keep hard and soft cheeses in the refrigerator, tightly wrapped. Use soft cheeses soon; hard cheeses keep almost indefinitely. To prevent mold formation on hard cheese, wrap in a cheese cloth which has been dipped in vinegar.

Good food storage requires good temperature control in your refrigerator and freezer, says Miss Coblentz. Your refrigerator should maintain a temperature between 38 degrees and 42 degrees F., and your freezer should have a temperature of 0 degrees F. or below. Check the temperature inside your refrigerator and freezer; regulate the controls to keep within the desired temperature range.

Studies have shown that the temperature in the ice cube compartment of the refrigerator will range between 10 and 25 degrees F.; frozen foods stored here must be used within a week. Freezer compartments in refrigerators often have temperatures from 0 to 15 degrees; frozen foods stored near 15 degrees should be us-de within three months. Even at the recommended 0 degrees, keeping an item in the freezer for more than a year is uneconomical, says Miss Coblentz.

Frozen foods used within the time limit are top quality in flavor, texture, color and food value. With longer storage the foods are still safe and useful, but they are no longer of top quality.

Further information about storage of perishable foods is available from county home economics extension agents.

ers have been moving toward producing a meatier beef animal for the past several years. The new grade standards will only encourage this trend as well as recognize what has already been done.

If marbling makes meat more tender, what will happen when there is none? Recent research indicates that when all things are equal, as beef cattle matures, their eating quality or palatability tends to lessen. Therefore, increased amount of marbling is needed to offset increasing age of carcass.

Now marbling requirements have been cut about a full degree from carcasses produced from animals about 28 to 30 months old with progressively smaller reductions for younger animals.

What will these changes mean to the consumer? All in all it looks as if these new standards for grade will assist the consumers a great deal, in as much as they will be more accurate and a more reliable buying guide than they ever have been.

This is another chapter in the story consumers (you and I) play in revamping the food industry to their way of thinking. Not too many years ago consumers rebelled over the amount of fat on pork. Today, we are raising leaner pigs and marketing well trimmed pork. Address your questions to: KAFFEEKLATCH, P. O. Box 340, Dover, Del.

37 No matter where you farm or what your specific conditions and problems may be... there are P-A-G Four-Way Crosses with the bred-in ability to meet your needs and your goals. P-A-G offers 37 Four-Way Crosses to back up this statement. This year four new varieties were added to the P-A-G line... three old ones were dropped. By replacing old varieties with new and better ones, the P-A-G line is constantly being revised and improved to keep up with your needs for higher producing, higher profit seed corn. Some time ago we started classifying and producing corn to fit in with today's specialized farming practices. Our researchers have a stock of over 17,000 Four-Way Crosses which have been developed over the past 21 years. All have potential. But for now, we offer the 37 with proved high-profit performance. Each has "spelled-out" characteristics. From a wide range of varieties adapted for your area, you can select maturities for a progressive harvest. You can choose Four-Ways resistant to your disease and insect problems. Varieties with the standability, picking and shelling ease, drying characteristics, and end-use requirements of your operation. Special corns for high population and high fertility. Special corns for silage and grain. Each P-A-G Four-Way Cross is a combination of these high-yield, high-profit factors. So, you can Selectively Plant to match seed... to need... to conditions. This "no-compromise" approach is reason enough to call your P-A-G dealer and select your seed from P-A-G's 37 Four-Way Crosses.

Termite Courtship Is Warning To Homeowners

One kind of courtship that's anything but romantic to homeowners is the springtime swarming of termites.

The only good thing about this courtship rite is that it warns homeowners termites are living nearby and may be moving nearby, according to Dr. Dale F. Bray, chairman of the department of entomology at the University of Delaware. He explains that in the spring, some of the winged, reproductive members of each termite colony decide to start their own families, so they swarm to locate a place to settle down.

They can choose a new house as well as an old one as a likely place to set up housekeeping. The insects actually live in the soil, but wood is their only food, so they build a network of tiny tunnels to reach the wood in the house. The beams in the cellar, or the sill under the front door—in fact, any part of the house made of wood—is exactly what they're looking for. They'll even go through a concrete block wall with ease, if there is a tiny crack in it. But because termites remain hidden except when they form new colonies in the spring, the swarms may be your only warning that these pests have turned your home into their personal cafeteria, Dr. Bray says.

He explains that since termites seldom break through the surface of the wood on which they feed, you can't tell if they are present simply by looking at the beams or other wood parts of the house.

He says there are three ways to tell whether the house has termites. Mud-like tubes about one-quarter inch wide on foundation walls are their way of getting from their home into yours, Dr. Bray says. If you find these tubes, break them and look for worker termites—small white insects without wings. Check all points of the house where wood touches the ground or where the concrete slab meets the walls of the house. Use an ice pick and probe for cavities.

Swarms of insects in the house in the spring or fall may also indicate termite infestation. However, these swarming insects might also be winged ants. Dr. Bray explains that winged ants have very narrow, pinched "waists", while termites are blocky insects with almost straight bodies.

Sawdust-like powder around the tunnels is left by insects other than termites, and these insects usually aren't as destructive as termites, Dr. Bray points out.

If you're sure your home does have termites, you should have it treated to get rid of them, Dr. Bray says. The homeowner can do this himself, but this isn't recommended because it is difficult to do a completely thorough job.

And for this reason, Dr. Bray cautions homeowners to deal only with reliable exterminators. The job should be done within a few weeks after you discover the insects—but don't be rushed into action.

"Termites work slowly, and there is no great hurry in having the house exterminated, providing you do something within a few weeks. Don't be frightened into hiring the first pest control operator that comes along," Dr. Bray says.

Choose a pest control operator who belongs to the Delaware Pest Control Association, Dr. Bray recommends. These firms will guarantee their work, and they usually will recheck the house after six months or a year to be sure all the termites are gone. "Beware of door-to-door salesmen; many of them disappear after taking your money, and you won't be able to locate them when you discover the termites are back because they didn't do the job right in the first place," Dr. Bray says.

Homeowners with questions about termites and exterminators can get additional information from the county agricultural agents in Newark, Dover and Georgetown, or from the department of entomology at the University of Delaware, Dr. Bray points out. A pamphlet, "Questions and Answers about Termites," written by Dr. Bray, is available from the county agents and the entomology department.

Veterans News QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—I have a service-connected disability, but receive no compensation. Will I be eligible for National Service Life Insurance when it goes on Sale May 1, 1965?

A—If your service was between Oct. 8, 1940 and Jan. 1, 1957, you may be eligible, even though your disability is less than 10 per cent in degree. Contact your nearest VA regional office for additional information and a general fact sheet on NSLI.

Q—My military service dates are May 14, 1959, to May 13, 1963. I have a service-connected disability but never applied for insurance during the one-year period after VA recognized my disability. Will I be eligible for the insurance which goes on sale May 1, 1965?

A—No. Veterans with service subsequent to January 1, 1957 are not eligible under the provisions of the law which reopens the insurance program to certain veterans on May 1, 1965. Consult your nearest VA office for additional details.

Q—Following my discharge from the Armed Forces, I received dental treatment from the VA. Later, I needed further treatment and was denied. Are there any exceptions to this law?

A—Yes. Veteran's whose service-connected non-compensable dental conditions or disabilities resulted from combat wounds or service injuries; former prisoners of war; dental conditions or disabilities which are found by VA to be directly related to and/or aggravating a service-connected condition; disabled veterans who are receiving training under the Vocational Rehabilitation Act and who need dental treatment in order to prevent interruption of their training; or Spanish-American War veterans, may apply at any time and receive as many treatments as are needed for these dental conditions or disabilities.

Q—I'm a World War I veteran receiving pension under the old law. Is my wife's income counted with mine? Also, if my wife should inherit an amount above my legal income would it be counted against me? Should this be reported to the VA?

A—Under provisions of the "old" law (that in effect prior to July 1, 1960), the income of the wife is not considered as the veteran's income. Under the "new" law, affecting all those coming on the pension rolls after July 1, 1960, and those who have selected the "new" law in preference to the "old" law, the wife's inheritance would be included in the computation of the veteran's income for pension purposes and should be reported promptly.

Q—What is the Modified Life Plan that I understand will be available to holders of National Service Life Insurance policies after May 1?

A—This is a new plan of insurance providing a life-time level premium lower than other permanent plans. It avoids the periodic premium increases of term insurance. The face amount is reduced to one-half at age 65 when insurance needs usually decline.

Q—My husband is totally disabled as a result of injuries received during World War II. Is my son entitled to assistance in securing a college education?

A—Your son may qualify for this assistance which is given to children of certain totally disabled veterans whose disabilities are the result of military service. After receiving counseling at the expense of the VA, your child would be entitled to educational allowance of $110 monthly for a total of 36 months. Contact your VA Regional Office for specific information.

Free Surplus Food For Elderly

Older people who are living on reduced incomes should be alerted to the fact they may be able to receive free surplus foods. In order to be eligible, the total monthly income for one person should not exceed $100, for two people $140, for three people $180, for four people $215, for five people $250, for six people, $285, for seven persons, $310, with $20 for each additional person.

Money in savings accounts and other sources should not exceed $420 for one person and in varying amounts up to $980 for a family of seven. Home ownership is permitted.

The free food includes among other things such items as butter, rice, flour, cornmeal, oats, beans, dried milk, peanut butter and meat products.

Applicants for persons not receiving public assistance should be made to a representative of the State Welfare Department at the time and place the food is to be distributed. This will be done May 17th, Monday, Harrington National Guard Armory, Harrington, 9 a. m. to 10:45 a. m.

If older persons desire more information, they should write to the Director, Division of the Aging, P. O. Box 57, Smyrna, or telephone 653-8644.

Lions Are Surprise 2nd In Peninsula Relays

Tower Hill and William Henry were picked to finish 1-2 in the 18th Peninsula Relay Carnival at Baynard Stadium, Wilmington last Saturday night.

Harrington was not given a mention in the pre-race prognostications but came up with a good effort and nosed the potent Hillers by one point to finish a strong second to the fleet William Henry Rams.

The usual handsome engraved plaques were awarded to each member of a first, second or third place quartet in each race. Since the Lions finished second or third in all six events, the locals carted home 24 plaques, the maximum number that they could have obtained.

One minor disappointment was the loss of one of the carnival's records. In 1961 Dwight Hackett (2.07) Dennis Bradley, Clarence Hackett and Harry Knotts (2.05) set a meet record of 8.45 in the two mile relay, Saturday night Tower Hill broke that mark with a 8.40.1 clocking. The locals still hold the Group III medley record in the Peninsula Relays, however, as Clarence Hackett (.880), Kent Garey (.440), Tim Strohl (.220) and Harry Knotts (mile) raced to a record clocking of 8.27.3 in 1961, the year the Lions, under Jim Hawpe, won the Group III cup.

The Lions were left short handed Saturday night when their leadoff runner in the 440 and 880 relays did not make an appearance. Left with only two sprinters Coach Harold McDonald had to improvise using two inexperienced runners in each race. The result was a pleasant surprise as Harrington made a good showing in each test and each leg was capably handled.

In the 440, broad jumper Artie Taylor, who hasn't raced all year, ran a fast second leg. Ron Hughes took the baton, sped a good third stint, but lost a little ground when he stumbled on the concrete inner rim. Frank White, the anchorman, was running in fourth place and had to catch somebody if the Lion quartet was to get in the money. He swiftly gained ground on the Tatnall runner but just missed catching him although White made up several yards. Fortunately, this duel carried both men by the second place Tower Hill runner giving Tatnall second and Harrington third. But for Hughes' accident H.H.S. would have been a sure second.

Frank White led off in the 880 relay. Dan Hicks, a mile and half miler drafted for sprint duty, surprised by making up seven or eight yards on his third leg.

The 200 pound Hughes flashed to a second place finish as the makeshift group clocked 1.39.5, a full second faster than the best local effort this year.

Bob Smith led off the 2 mile relay by running a 2.07 half mile. This is the fifth or sixth time that the senior has come that close to Harry Knotts' 2.06.4 school record.

Dan Hicks took the baton in first place but had to yield the lead to the great Chuck Hobbs, Tower Hill's Yale-bound state champion in the 100, 220 and 440. Dan equalled his career best of 2.18.

Two-miler Gerry Garey, trying the half for the first time, turned in a creditable 2.20.5. Anchorman Dennis Rogers was clocked in 2.09.5 as he repelled a late challenge by Hudson, of Wm. Henry.

In the medley, Smith, Rogers, Henry Minner and Richard Black logged a good 8.34 to take second place behind Tower Hill's 8.28. Seaford, the larger Group II champion, won the medley in 8.31.7 in their division.

Artie Taylor and Harry Bitler led the Lion hurdlers in 19 seconds flat for their 120 yards high hurdles efforts. Frank Cain and Larry Garey were the other members of the third place hurdles four.

Larry Garey, Richard Black, Henry Minner and Larry Bonniwell finished behind Henry and Tower Hill in the mile relay. Bonniwell did a good job in his first attempt at a quarter mile.

While discussing relay carnivals the writer would like to remind Harrington track fans about the local team's fine showing in the 1961 Dover Relays.

After their previously mentioned record efforts in the 1961 Peninsula Relays, the Lions came to Dover and did even better.

Dwight Hackett (2.07), Buddy Bonniwell, Clarence Hackett and Harry Knotts (2.06) did an 8.40 in the two mile relay.

Hackett (.880), George Pfeiffer (440), freshman Barry Fry (220) and miler Harry Knotts, blazed an 8.15 medley effort that is still a Dover Relays record.

Greenwood Jolts Undefeated Millsboro, 8-4

Ron Breeding and the Greenwood Foresters pulled a Robin Hood on the Millsboro Blue Devils by robbing them of their unbeaten status at Millsboro Monday afternoon.

The victory, the second in a row for Greenwood, boosted them into eighth place in the twelve-team Henlopen Conference.

Breeding and his mound opponent Bob Cordrey gave up eight hits each.

Drew Clendaniel, Maurice Hughes, Dave Henry and catcher Retzlaff, had two hits each to account for all the Foresters' safeties.

Greenwood led all the way and seemed ready and able to score twice each time Millsboro pushed a run across.

Millsboro would have taken over first place in the conference with a victory but couldn't turn the trick against Breeding and Company, Inc.

Lion Juniors Are Track Victors

The junior high track team at H.H.S. won six of eight events to score 63 points and turn back Millsboro (28) and Greenwood (2).

Lion speedsters Gerry Cagle and Gordy Jarrell own 6.1 second marks in the 50 yard dash but were beaten in 6.2, as Ellingsworth, of Millsboro got off to a better start.

Cagle beat Ellingsworth in the 100 as Jim Simpler came in third.

Simpler won the 220 with teammate Jim White getting a tie for second with Holston of Millsboro.

Gary Simpson and Oscar Matthews traded the lead back and forth in the 880 with Simpson finally getting the nod with a good 2.29.3. Matthews in second also broke 2.30. Roger Moore was fourth with Greenwood's Tom Bragg getting out of a box to finish in fifth position.

Jim Simpler brought Harrington from second place into the lead with a fine effort on the third leg of the 880 relay. Jim White breezed the last 220 to break the tape.

Gordy Jarrell was the broad-jump winner with teammates White and Bill Halliburton a half inch apart in second and third.

Bill Webb had the winning leap in the high jump and then performed an amazing feat to win the shot put. Webb had thrown the 8 pound ball 45 feet earlier this season. His right or throwing arm was sore but the freshman merely turned around and threw 40 ft. 10 in. left handed. This is believed to be a better toss than any other junior high weightman in the conference could achieve for both 1964 and 1965.

H.H.S. Girls Excel In Kent - Sussex Track Meet

The success of Harrington High School's track and cross-country teams seems to have rubbed off on the girls.

Competing in a distaff track meet for Kent and Sussex County, the Lionesses entered six girls and five finished high in the meet.

Brenda Hurd won the ribbon in the senior 50-yard dash.

Freshman Diane Smith, finished first in the junior high 50-yard dash.

Becky Dixon won her heat of the varsity 100-yard dash.

Vivian Tribbett was third in the broad jump and Ingrid "Inky" Nielsen placed fourth in the softball throw.

Lions Lose To Greenwood and Rehoboth

Frank Glazier's injury-ridden Harrington High baseball Lions appear to be in for a rough season after their latest two losses dropped them into the basement as the Henlopen Conference's only winless team.

With three regulars out with leg injuries, the weak-hitting locals have to play almost perfect defensive ball to win and they have not been able to comply with this requirement.

At Greenwood Thursday afternoon Renny French again pitched well enough to win as he gave up only three hits and no earned runs.

The Foresters tallied unearned runs in three separate innings to prevail 3-0.

Harrington hit the ball hard several times only to see the horsehide head straight for a sure-handed Forester each time.

Winning pitcher Dave Henry and his reliever, the crafty junkman, Ron Breeding, came close to a no-hitter as they gave up a legitimate baserun to Sam Knox and a bad-hop single to Bob Matthews.

Marshall Hatfield, the Lions rightfielder gave one of the Foresters a red face. The hapless Sussex Countian (unless he was from Farmington) apparently singled to right field but took his time getting to first base and Hatfield threw him out. You don't see this often in varsity ball.

Drew Clendaniel had two of the hits off French while left fielder Drummond had the other.

The Lions had Henry in trouble late in the game but Breeding, who had pitched eight innings on Monday came in with only two days rest to put out the fire.

At Rehoboth Monday afternoon the locals again came up with only three hits but managed to push across a run this time to lose 5-1 as Rehoboth picked up five runs off Richard Black in the first and third innings. Black gave up a measly five hits (or scorebook) or almost as measly six hits (their scorebook) and most of the Seahawk bingles were bloopers. This is where the element of luck enters into our national pastime. We hit the ball hard at Greenwood and it goes right at 'em. Rehoboth gets a piece of the ball and it bloopers in for a safety.

Sam Knox again hit safely for Harrington as did Black and Bob Matthews.

Bob Rouse turned in a fielding gem for the locals as he dove to spear a sinking liner in left field and then threw to second base for a double play.

Felton Splits, Retains League Lead

Felton High School's Green Devil baseball team won its fifth game of the season against Dover Air Falcons but bowed to Milton at Felton Tuesday afternoon. The Devils are alone atop the Henlopen Conference but at this writing four other clubs also have only one loss.

At Dover last week the Falcons tallied twice off winning pitcher Will Dill in the second inning, but committed four errors in the fourth frame which Felton, with the aid of two hits, turned into six runs.

Dover Air scored two times in their half of the fourth but Jim Blades took over the mound duties in the fifth to clip the Falcons' wings the rest of the way.

Will Dill and Phil Clark split four hits for the winners as the Falcons outthit the Devils 8-7.

Heavy hitting Milton lambasted Felton pitching for 11 hits including two home runs and triple to triumph 9-2. The Warriors have several other circuit clouts to their credit this season.

The visitors got down to brass tacks early and scored seven times in the first two innings, while all-around athlete Bill Cordrey doled out seven hits and single runs in the second and fifth innings to pick up the win.

Phil Clark, starter, and reliever Jim Blades were on the mound for the losers.

"Red" Dill had two hits in four trips to the plate for Felton.

1964), the Executive Council, the Cathedral Chapter and the Committee on Mutual Responsibility and served two terms as Deputy to the Synod of the Province of Washington and as a Deputy to the last two General Conventions of the national Episcopal Church.

Mr. Kusik was a co-author of the Diocesan Confirmation Manual, "A Study of the Christian Faith", which is well-known and used in many Episcopal Churches both in Delaware and in the nation.

Appointed by former Governor Albert N. Carvel to serve on the State Human Relations Commission, his appointment has been confirmed by Governor Charles L. Terry, Jr. Mr. Kusik's interest in the Conservation Program is extremely keen and a special service was held last year at St. Mary's Church to emphasize the need for responsible use of our natural resources. The Governor of Delaware and top federal and state conservation officers took part in the observance.

St. Mary's Church was a small struggling mission when Mr. Kusik was appointed Vicar there in 1952. It became self-supporting in 1953 and admitted to parish status the same year by the 168th Convention of the Diocese. The attendance has tripled and the present budget is eight times what it was in 1952. St. Mary's Church now has one of the strongest parish programs in the Diocese, including special services during the summer months conducted for Spanish speaking migrant workers.

Born in Siberia of Estonian parentage and educated in Manchuria, North China and Germany, Mr. Kusik received his theological training at Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria, Va., graduating in 1952 with a Bachelor of Divinity degree. While at Virginia Seminary he participated in the clinical training program at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington, D. C. He was ordained Deacon in Trinity Church, Wilmington, in June 1952 and Priest in December 1952 by the Rt. Rev. Arthur R. McKinstry.

Mr. Kusik married the former Ellen Stewart Babcock of Arlington, Va., in 1951 and has four children: Barbara, Victor, Jr., Richard and Christopher.

Delmarva's will be "1965 Little Queen of Delmarva Poultry". Name of the pageant, accordingly, has been shortened from "Miss Delmarva Pageant," to "Delmarva Pageant."

Winners this year, as always, will be selected by a qualified panel of judges from off the Peninsula. They will choose the winners by a scorecard based on personality, poise, charm, posture, and beauty of face and figure.

Pageant finals this year will be held in the auditorium of the Maryland State Teachers College in Salisbury. The three-to-school-age finalists will compete in play suits and party dresses at an afternoon session, Thursday, June 17, while their older sisters will appear on both Thursday evening and Friday evening in swim-suit and gown showings before the new queen is chosen.

Joe and Kitty Williams of Seaford, are again co-chairmen of the pageant this year. They have been assisted by area and community chairmen throughout the Peninsula in arranging for the preliminary community pageants and in Salisbury they will have the help of the Salisbury Quota Club for the finals in June.

H.H.S. Trackmen Win Triangular Meet

Harrington High's track team has not been defeated in a regular season dual, triangular or quadrangular meet since 1963. Harold McDonald's thinclads scored 91 points to win handily over Millsboro (57 points) and Greenwood in a triangular meet here Wednesday.

Millsboro and Bridgeville are regarded as the chief obstacles in the Lions' path toward a second straight Henlopen Conference championship.

Harrington won 11 of 14 events as Dennis Rogers, Bob Smith, Frank Cain, Gerry Garey and Richard Black turned in performances that neared or equalled school records.

Frank Cain had to discard the fiber glass pole, which broke recently in a practice session, and return to his old aluminum pole in the pole vault event. Despite this fact and the additional handicap of a soft runway, the senior soared over the eleven foot mark to tie his school record set on two earlier occasions.

Dennis Rogers was a double winner. He took the mile in 5.01 and after a comparatively short rest won the half mile in 2.09.3 which is within three seconds of Harry Knotts' 1961 H.H.S. best of 2.06.4.

Bob Smith clocked 54.5 in the quarter mile run missing Jim Schiff's Lion record effort of 53.6. Smith had a 53.7 last year and may yet claim 53.5 or better since the season is only half over.

Improving Gerry Garey was first in the two mile run in 11:09.4 just missing his school record effort of April 21. Gerry may break 11 minutes in the Milford Invitational since he will get some competition there. Marshall Hatfield was second (11.50), Dan Adams third in 12.08 in his first race and Donald Wells lowered his personal best from 12:45 to 12:20 to hold off a late challenge from Millsboro's only entrant.

Richard Black spun the discus 117 ft. 4 1/2 in. to move into third place on the H.H.S. all-time list behind John Taylor (124), and Phil Holston (123). Black was 1964 Henlopen discus champion. He may repeat and might approach 130 feet by diploma time.

Two of the best sprinters in the league hooped up in the sprints and wound up in a draw. Frank White edged Dick Messick, the defending 100 and 220 champion, in the 100 in 10.9.

Millsboro's Messick evened the score by nosing White in the 220 in 24.3.

Ron Hughes, a late reporter for track, scored two points for Harrington, by taking fourth in both sprints.

Harry Bitler, Ron Hughes and Bruce Layton were 1-2-3 in the shot put. Bitler was second to Black in the discus.

The soft runway in the broad jump held down the distances leaped as Artie Taylor with a best of 19 feet 2 inches in an earlier meet won this one with a 17-10. Layman Jackson, of Millsboro, authored a 19-9 at Seaford, but couldn't match Artie this time.

Henry Minner cleared 5 feet 5 inches to win the high jump.

Sophomore Dan Hicks and freshman Nick Morris scored three points for H.H.S. by taking third and fourth in the mile run in good time.

On Wednesday, May 12th at 7:30 p.m. the first track meet under the lights in Harrington High history will be held. There are seats for 1100 people and admission is free. Come out and watch the Lions attempt to extend their two-year win streak against a three-pronged challenge from Lord Baltimore, Bridgeville and Rehoboth.

New Chemical Tested at U. of D.

Dutch Elm disease, which until now has been a serious problem in Delaware, may be on the way out. The solution to the problem could be a new chemical called Bidrin.

In tests so far, the new chemical is proving to be too much for the elm bark beetle, carrier of the disease. Once the carrier is gone the problem should disappear.

Until now Dutch elm disease was controlled with only fair success through applications of insecticides. Since the disease is spread by a flying insect any tree left unprotected is a potential victim. DDT was the most effective chemical but was replaced by Methoxychlor five years ago when Dr. Dale Bray, entomologist at the University of Delaware found it was killing birds.

Although still in the early testing stages, Bidrin offers a new hope. Now trees can be given promise of protection by an annual application of the chemical.

As Bray explains it, "the trees are treated on an individual basis. Once a tree is given the injection it is protected even though other trees in the area are infected. This will permit an individual homeowner to have his trees treated without worrying about what his neighbors do."

This new development won't wipe out the disease but it will give greater protection to treated trees. It will still take an area-wide approach to eliminate all possible sources of infection.

Dutch elm disease is spread by the elm bark beetle which emerges from diseased trees then carries infected spores to healthy trees. The beetle bores into the crotches of small twigs where it feeds on the tender plant parts. This creates a wound in the tree and allows the disease spores to enter.

After feeding, the beetle flies to a tree that was infected the previous year where it bore into the larger limbs. Here breeding grounds are established, and the cycle is repeated.

The real damage to the tree is done by the disease spores. After they enter the wounds left by the beetle they start to grow much the same as a seed germinates. During this growth process they secrete a toxin that interferes with the flow of sap. This causes the leaves to turn yellow and wilt. When the infection gets serious enough, limbs and even whole trees must be destroyed to keep the disease from spreading.

Bidrin is a preventive. It is applied through small tubes that are taped into the trunk of the tree. The chemical is fed into these man-made arteries where it is carried by the sap stream to all parts of the tree.

Bidrin has undergone extensive testing by researchers at the Universities of Kansas and Wisconsin. In these tests it was found to be very effective in stopping the European bark beetle and thus reducing the spread of Dutch elm disease fungus.

There is one serious drawback to the new chemical as far as homeowners are concerned. It must be handled by a specialist who knows what he is doing.
