McDowell Proposes Federal Poultry Lab for Delaware

Congressman Harris B. McDowell, Jr., (D-Del.) said Monday that he was highly pleased as to the favorable action taken by the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives concerning his proposal to establish a federal poultry research laboratory in Delaware.

Congressman McDowell said the Committee reported H. R. 8370, the bill making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture for fiscal year 1966, which contains construction funds in the amount of $450,000 for a poultry research laboratory in Delaware. The Committee on Appropriations reported the bill on May 20 whereupon it was placed on the Union Calendar for further action by the House of Representatives.

Congressman McDowell proposed several years ago that a federal research laboratory be located in Georgetown. He and Delaware poultrymen testified in support of his proposal last year before the Subcommittee on Agriculture of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives. Secretary of Agriculture, Orville L. Freeman wrote Congressman McDowell that such a laboratory was needed and that the Department felt it would make a major contribution to the poultry industry in the eastern United States.

Congressman McDowell explained that the funds provided in the Committee bill to establish the laboratory included facilities for office and laboratory personnel, housing for birds, and supporting buildings. Following the establishment of the facilities, the Department estimated that an annual budget of about $300,000 would be needed to staff and operate an effective program.

Congressman McDowell said: "Broiler raising in Delaware and on the Eastern shore is a major source of agricultural income supported by feed manu-

Cape May-Lewes Ferry To Increase Bay Crossings

The Delaware River and Bay Authority expressed confidence Friday that the Cape May-Lewes ferry across Delaware Bay will be heavily patronized this summer.

That confidence was backed by the announcement that beginning June 15 through September 15, there will be 20 round-trip crossings daily. The Authority met at Cape May Ferry Terminal for the first time Friday, May 21.

Governor Charles L. Terry, Jr., of Delaware, making his first crossing from Lewes on Friday on the MV, Atlantic, expressed his pleasure at the operation and said, "Tourists have a real treat in store for them when they take this memorable 17-mile ride."

A luncheon meeting at the terminal aboard the Flagship S. S. Delaware heard Authority Chairman Theodore C. Bright declare that public confidence has been fully restored in the service which was interrupted for 17 days last August by a walkout and strike.

Despite the unexpected handicap, ferry traffic from opening day, July 1, 1964, to December 31, 1964, achieved 75 percent of engineers' estimates on vehicular traffic predictions.

Bright said an average of 295 vehicles used the facility daily in April and there were nearly 20,000 passengers.

At a short Authority meeting, Commissioner James T. Ferri, Wilmington, proposed a change in overtime pay for Authority policemen. Heretofore compensatory time was granted, meaning more time off, but no pay. Under the new system, overtime hours will be paid on a straight time basis to keep more men actively on the force because of increasing summer traffic at Delaware Memorial Bridge. A twin span is currently under construction there.

The low bid of $928,650.00 submitted by Savola Construction Company, Red Bank, N. J., was approved for the work on the South jetty at Cape May and for dredging the Cape May terminal area.

It was also reported that all Authority employees are now covered by a comprehensive pension plan.

The next Authority meeting will be held on June 22 at the Delaware Memorial Bridge office, New Castle, Director William J. Miller announced.

Crackdown Bid On 'Phone Cheating'

The sale or possession of devices used to hook onto telephone lines without paying the telephone company would be outlawed under a bill introduced Wednesday in the House.

The use of the devices already is illegal under Delaware law, but Rep. Vincent A. Bifferato, D-Sheridan Square, said his bill would permit authorities to crack down on anyone manufacturing or selling the devices.

Bifferato said the bill would deal with extension phones tied into the telephone lines as well as devices used to cheat the telephone companies on long distance calls.

Bifferato said the latter devices are used by bookmakers and prevent the telephone company from tracing the calls.

"This is stealing," said Bifferato.

Bill Guarantees Teachers Lunch Period

OEC ORGANIZES LOCAL COMMUNITY ACTION GROUP

By Al Price

E. Alan Rutledge was named chairman of Harrington Community Action Group Wednesday night at a community-wide organizational meeting at Harrington High School.

The group is the local unit of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The only other officer elected was the Rev. William H. Miller, pastor of Pilgrim Holiness Church, who was made vice chairman. Other officers will be elected and committees appointed.

Meetings will be called by the chairman, who is student coordinator and guidance counselor at Harrington Schools, when additional, from the federal OEC. Community Action programs do the following:

KENT LAUDS PROPOSED ZONE BILL

A proposed model state-wide planning and zoning bill, expected to be introduced in the General Assembly soon, has won approval of Kent County officials.

The proposed statute, drafted by the state planning office, was endorsed by the Kent County Planning Commission Monday and by the Kent Levy Court Tuesday.

The measure would provide specific guidelines for establishing planning, zoning and subdivision regulations in any of the state's counties or municipalities.

No county or municipality would be required to come under the law.

The Levy Court Tuesday disclosed the endorsement of the planning commission and, in turn, endorsed the commission's action.

Senate Majority Leader Allen J. Cook, D-Kent, who is chairman of the planning commission, said commission endorsement was unanimous.

Cook added that he expected to confer with either Kent County legislators to map plans for introducing the measure.

Levy Court president James B. Messick said it would be an extremely flexible law, allowing counties and municipalities a variety of approaches to planning and zoning.

It would permit joint planning ventures by the two units of government in a variety of combinations.

The model bill would authorize planning commissions or planning departments or both.

Its firmest requirement would be that before any county or municipality enacts a zoning ordinance, it must first adopt a comprehensive plan.

New Castle County and municipalities in all three counties have functioning planning and zoning systems.

Until approval of a constitutional amendment in the General Assembly this spring, Kent and Sussex Counties were forbidden to adopt planning and zoning regulations.

Jailbreak Expert Back Behind Bars

Harry Herman Griffith, 24, of Harrington, known to police for his record of prison escapes, is behind bars again.

Superior Court Judge John J. McNeely last Friday sentenced Griffith to three years on each of six charges of third-degree burglary and two years on a grand larceny charge, the sentences to run concurrently.

Griffith was accused of entering the house of Allen and Ethel Draper near Harrington last June with intent to commit larceny and of taking clothing worth more than $100 from a parked car in Harrington. He also had been charged in the looting of Swain's Hotel in Harrington.

In the meantime, Griffith has been in and out of jail on a variety of charges. For his third jailbreak within two months last year—once from Harrington jail and twice from Kent Correctional Institution—he received a two-year term from Judge William G. Bush III in Kent County Court of Common Pleas.

His most spectacular escape was Aug. 5, 1964, when he and another prisoner, after getting out of their cells, walked past Warden Robert Pippin while he was admiring flowers in the Kent prison's front yard. They jumped the fence, took a car and disappeared.

They were captured near Denton, Md., 90 minutes after their escape, following a high speed police chase.

Jr. Broiler Winners Named In Delaware Finals

A 13-year-old New Castle County 4-H Club boy is the 1965 champion in the Delaware Junior Broiler contest. The finals were held Thursday, May 20, at the state fairgrounds in Harrington.

William Stafford of Bear, was awarded $25 first prize and a trophy by Harris Swann, president of the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association. The entry averaged 5.25 pounds live weight at eight weeks and one day of age, according to Ray Lloyd, associate poultry specialist at the University of Delaware.

Per bird average weight for more than 960 birds entered in the competition was 4.39 pounds, heaviest average weight for the contest to date, and almost 1/4 pound heavier than the 1964 entrants, Lloyd said.

The special care and almost individual attention the chickens get resulted in birds that were even heavier than those grown commercially in the same length of time. The average weight in this year's competition was about 3/4 of a pound heavier than commercial broilers attain.

Second place and $20 went to Danny Williams, 15, a Greenwood FFA member. Ricky Roach, 16, Townsend 4-H'er earned a $15 third prize and

Rights Law Time Limit Set

Delaware chief school officers were told Wednesday their districts have until September to have plans for compliance with the civil rights law approved by the U.S. Office of Education.

If any district does not meet the September deadline, it faces loss of all federal funds administered by the Office of Education, the officers were told.

Laurence Knowles, a consultant on the Equal Educational Opportunities Program for the U. S. Office of Education, explained the compliance guidelines to the school officers and some members of their school boards at a two-hour meeting held at the William W. M. Henry Comprehensive High School near Dover.

Accompanying Knowles to help answer individual questions after the meeting was George D. Becker, a member of the legal staff for the Equal Educational Opportunities Program.

Knowles described three basic methods of compliance with the Civil Rights Law: —Submission of a compliance form stating the district's schools are completely integrated as to pupils and staff.

Submission of a court order under which the district is proceeding to desegregate its schools.

Submission of a plan to desegregate school facilities and staff.

The third method, the submission of a plan for desegregation is the one applicable to most of the state's school districts, according to Knowles.

For those districts in which Negro pupils are attending separate Negro schools, he said, the one-room schoolhouses or one of the comprehensive Negro high schools, Knowles described two paths of integration.

The first is for the white district to absorb all of the Negro pupils into its school system. In the event the district does not have sufficient physical facilities to handle all of the students, however, it can continue to operate the Negro school, but it must give all the students, white and Negro, "freedom of choice" or an opportunity to transfer to any school in the district.

Local Builder Gets Contract For Dennis Mitchell Industries Plant

Harrington Lumber & Supply Company, builder of large commercial establishments in many states, has been awarded the contract to build one of the largest factories in Sussex County, Manager Fulton J. Downing told the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday.

Downing said his firm, prominent builder of shopping centers in three states, would build a plant for Dennis Mitchell Industries, manufacturers of household wares, at Millsboro.

The plant, he added, would cover seven and a half acres, would be as large as the infield in the race track here, and one-third as large as the General Foods plant in Dover.

In conclusion, he said the building would be completed in October and the firm would employ 500 to 600 persons.

A compromise bill to enlarge the Kent Levy Court from three to five members was offered Tuesday in the House by Kent's five Democratic representatives.

The bill would provide for the nomination of the Levy Court members from districts coinciding with the five representative districts but their election would be at large.

Introduction of the measure (H. B. 289) ends months of squabbling between the three Democratic Levy Court members and the five representatives.

The Levy Court had been insisting on at-large election, but Rep. Jacob W. Zimmerman, D-Dover, had introduced legislation to have the five elected from districts.

The bill offered Tuesday retains Zimmerman's proposal that the Levy Court districts be based on the representative districts and that if reapportionment leaves the county with an even number of representative districts, an additional Levy Court district comprising the entire county would be created.

The county's three Levy Court commissioners now are nominated and elected from districts. They serve two years.

Under the proposed legislation they would continue to serve two-year terms and receive salaries of $4,800 a year, the amount they receive now.

Zimmerman said he would have referred election of the commissioners from districts but said the new bill is satisfactory because it would expand the Levy Court to meet the additional responsibilities it will have when it moves into the areas of zoning and planning and water and sewer operations.

State Fire Marshal William R. Favinger Wednesday invoked a statewide burning ban because of the dryness of woods and fields.

The ban, effective at noon Wednesday, will remain in force "until further notice," he ordered.

Favinger pointed out that this year's continuing drought heightens the danger that fires may spread rapidly from the dry fields and woods to properties.

According to the U. S. Weather Bureau Station at the Greater Wilmington Airport, rainfall so far this year is already 6.61 inches below normal. Last year's deficit was 11.74 inches.

WE AGREE WITH JUDGE STOUT

No wonder Judge Juanita Kidd Stout of the Philadelphia County Court has a national reputation—she believes in getting things done.

In a well-written article by Tom Malone, in a Wilmington paper, we forget which one, she said, at the 2nd annual research and discussion day of the Delaware Psychological Association: "When the children are gone . . . why, let mama go to work."

The judge, who has won a national reputation for her opinions favoring imprisonment rather than probation, battled about 75 psychologists, lawyers, and a small segment of the general public on such subjects as:

—Morals: She has met too many defendants, she said, who have no idea of the meaning of the word.

—Child discipline: She's against brutality, but sees nothing wrong with a judiciously applied hair brush.

—The proposal in Delaware that teachers be allowed to strike students: "If I were in Delaware, I'd vote for it."

—Reading: There is a definite connection, she believes, in the lack of reading ability and delinquency.

—Welfare: "I've seen too many able-bodied men who have been on welfare five to 10 years. I think that type should be cut off."

—Judge Stout, said the Malone article, centered her . . . talk on her continuing attack on the present system of welfare payments made by states to families on the number of children—legitimate or illegitimate—in the family.

Her point: In her experience the present system is not working; she is advancing the idea of an institution in which the children would be taken away from their parents if it has been demonstrated to a court that parental environment is bad.

"I don't think the physical act of child-bearing makes a parent," she said.

Saying she realized that her point of view may be unpopular among professionals, Judge Stout said, "The people I'm talking about do not deserve the title of mother . . . I simply think a good institution is better than a bad mother."

In answer to a question, she said one institution she has found which meets her standards has 200 children, maintained at a cost of about $4,000 a year each.

"That's still cheaper than prisons," she said. "With the crime rate increasing, combined with the population explosion, what about the cost of prisons? Doesn't it come down to a case of where you start with institutions—before or after?"

Asked by a psychologist what she would do for the parents when work was not available, Judge Stout pointed out the window of the Academy of Medicine to reply:

"Look at that grass out there. I think that's available work."

She said she is not saying that the existing system breeds delinquency, (she said she has no available statistics on what proportion of delinquents come from welfare-supported homes) but she feels it is a contributor.

"You've heard the question to a boy, 'What do you want to be when you grow up?'" she said. "I've heard a boy answer, 'I want to collect checks the way daddy does.' I find so many today who see no reason to earn an honest dollar."

Another questioner asked if the problem of men and women not working could not be considered a psychological problem which needs treatment.

"I don't see any psychological problem in laziness," she answered.

With the population explosion and the abused welfare system, which way do you think the nation is heading?

Delaware ETV Progress Report

Implementation of the Delaware State Educational Television Network is well along the road to completion. This system will be the first to provide service to all public schools in a state. Further, the signal will be available to every teaching station. First material will be transmitted in mid-September.

Because the production center, which will be located in Dover, will not be complete until early 1966, initial programming will be a cross section of the best educational material available for television in the United States today.

About 30% percent of this material will be on film, the remainder on television tape. Robert Fox, curriculum director for the network, is now briefing teachers throughout the state regarding materials available in the fall. Acceptance of the network by teachers is obvious by the great amount of effort being put forth on an individual school basis.

The Diamond State Telephone Company will provide major transmission facilities from the studios to each school. Seven micro-wave sites and over two million feet of cable will be used to transmit three channels of information.

The wiring of all schools in the state is no small undertaking, even in a state as small as Delaware.

Many schools are partially wired, some are not wired at all. After an extensive survey of existing facilities, contracts are now being let for this portion of the network. Roger Williams, distribution manager for the network, reports optimism on the part of contractors in light of a September completion date.

The Dover production center for the network will be a new 20,000 square foot facility, with one 40 x 1/2 foot and one 40 x 40 foot studio. Designed by Robert VanAel, production and operations manager, and William C. Lewis, technical services director, the plant provides for an expanding film operation, technical facilities for eventual 6 channels of network operation and later building additions for small "classroom" type studios and a television training facility.

The future may see many firsts in educational and instructional television from the "First State."

OEC ORGANIZES

(Continued from Page 1) 50-50 matching basis. James Vaughn, field representative of the Delaware Office of Economic Opportunity, said the program was not welfare but human development, giving unfortunate people the opportunity to help themselves." He added that Delaware City, Middletown, and Smyrna have started the community action program.

The Head-Start program, for pre-school children of low income families, which starts here in July, is a part of the OEC program.

The local community action program would be financed by the federal government, 90 percent, with 10 percent by the community, in cash or in kind. "In kind," can be interpreted as donation of materials, rentals, or services by the community.

Vaughn explained that under the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, 800 million dollars was appropriated for this year, and because of the widespread acceptance, the appropriations for next year was increased to one billion, 500 million dollars.

Veterans News

The widow of an Oklahoma combat veteran is the first person to be aided by the new reopened GI Insurance Program now offered by the Veterans Administration.

Leon Fields, manager of the Wilmington VA Regional Office, said the veteran, who chalked up 840 flying hours as an aerial engineer with a troop wing carrier in the European Theatre during World War II, had allowed his National Service Life Insurance Policy to lapse since the war.

While he was a patient last month in a VA hospital, for treatment of a service-connected disability, he learned of the new VA program by which certain veterans of World War II or the Korean Conflict may obtain as much as $10,000 in GI insurance coverage.

On April 27 from his hospital bed, he filled out an application form and mailed it, together with a month's premium payment to the Veterans Administration.

The insurance was to go into effect May 1, 1965, providing the veteran was found eligible.

The veteran died on May 3, less than one week after he had filed his application.

Processing the policy established that the veteran had died of his service-connected ailment and was eligible for issuance of the policy. Thus, just one week after the veteran's death the VA delivered to his widow the full $10,000 insurance value, minus a few dollars to cover an adjustment in the veteran's estimate of the premium due at the time he made the first month's payment.

All World War II or Korean Conflict veterans with service-connected disabilities who have allowed all or part of their original GI policies to lapse or who failed to buy it during service are eligible to purchase this new GI insurance.

In addition, veterans whose disabilities have no service connection but are so serious that they are unable to obtain commercial insurance at the highest rates may also be eligible for this insurance.

Mr. Fields pointed out that the insurance which went on sale May 1, 1965 may be purchased until May 2, 1966. Approximately six million veterans may be eligible, he said.

More than 18,000 applications for the new GI insurance policies were received on the opening day for a face value of more than $100 million. This type of insurance is to cost the taxpayer nothing, Mr. Fields said, since claim payments will be made out of premium funds and the overhead expense will be borne by the $0.42 a month each veteran adds to his premium payments.

Veterans making application for this new insurance should consult the proper premium table and send the correct initial premium payment with their application. Insurance cannot be issued unless payment is made, Mr. Fields said.

fourth went to Clifford Hudson, 17, a 4-H member from Frederica, who won a $10 prize.

The contest started on March 22nd when 138 4-H and FFA members were each given 50 baby chicks to grow to maturity. The birds were fed and cared for by the youngsters and on May 19th the seven best broilers from each flock were selected and sent to Harrington for the competition. They were leg banded for identification and taken to a commercial processor to be dressed. Then they were graded and judged, based on weight, conformation, condition, appearance and uniformity.

Fifth through tenth place winners, each winning $7.50, include: Janet Eastburn, Newark; Marjorie Hudson, Frederica; Kathleen Wiebel, Hartly; Debbie Hearn, Georgetown; Jimmy Dempsey, Newark and Billy Johnson, Milton.

Eleventh through 20th place winners, $5.00 each, include: Raymond Poore, Harrington; Bret Wix, Harrington; Lawrence Clendaniel, Georgetown; Gloria Stevenson, Ellendale; Bruce Wix, Harrington; Denise Coleman, Harrington; Melanie Phillips, Middletown; Dennis McColey, Milford; John Moore, Wyoming and Ralph Shuler, Elkton, Md.

The Delaware Junior Broiler program is an educational project sponsored annually by the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association and the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Delaware to teach boys and girls how to raise a good flock of broiler chickens, keep records, develop responsibility, and learn more about the poultry business.

Hatcherymen, feed dealers, vocational agricultural instructors and the state board of agriculture also cooperate in the event.

Veterans Leader To Speak at Convention Banq.

Cooper T. Holt, executive director of the Washington Office Veterans of Foreign Wars, and one of the nation's most outstanding spokesmen on veterans matters, will be the principal speaker at the banquet which will highlight the 35th Annual Convention of the Department of Delaware, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at Rehoboth Beach, June 4-6.

According to State V.F.W. Commander Clement J. Nevin, Holt will be at Rehoboth Beach for the entire three-day convalesce and will be an active participant in the Friday evening public memorial ceremonies, which traditionally open the convention; will address the convention on Saturday afternoon, and will have a prominent role in the installation of new officers on Sunday afternoon, in addition to serving as principal speaker at the banquet Saturday evening.

The Memorial exercises will be held outdoors at the Memorial Grandstand, Rehoboth Beach, on the Boardwalk. The convention business sessions, banquet, and installation of officers will all be in Rehoboth Beach's new Convention Hall. The June 4-6 V.F.W. convention will be the first ever held in the resort's new convention facility.

Holt is no stranger to Delaware or Delawareans. In 1957, as national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, he paid an official two-day visit to Delaware during which he addressed a joint session of the Delaware General Assembly. As executive director of the V.F.W.'s Washington Office, a role he assumed in 1963, he has spoken, on several occasions, at veterans affairs and before various civic groups in Wilmington and elsewhere in the state.

For Convention Chairman David S. Hugg, Holt's appearance at Rehoboth Beach, will be in the nature of a reunion with an old "boss" inasmuch as Hugg was commander of the Department of Delaware while Holt was the V.F.W. National Commander.

In 1956, at the age of 32, Holt became the youngest man ever to be elected Commander-in-Chief of the 1,300,000 strong organization of overseas veterans. Born in Chattanooga, Tennessee, Holt was educated in the schools of that city and later graduated from the Edmondson School of Business. He joined the Army when he was 19 years old and saw World War II combat service in the Asiatic-Pacific Theatre.

Upon return from military service in 1945, Holt affiliated with V.F.W. Post No. 1289, in Chattanooga, and advanced through post chairs to commander.

He subsequently served two years as commander of the Department of Tennessee's Third District and then became, successively, Department Junior Vice Commander, Department Senior Vice Commander and Department Commander.

In 1954, Holt was elected National Junior Vice Commander-in-Chief and a year later was advanced to National Senior Vice Commander - in - Chief. In 1956, at the 57th National Convention in Dallas, Texas, he was unanimously elected National Commander-in-Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Army Schooling

Local high school graduates are discovering former Army men and women are securing well-paid technical jobs on the basis of their military training, according to reports from local U. S. Army Recruiting Service.

The local Army counselor has received queries from high school graduates who want to take advantage of the new guaranteed school program, with more applicants arriving every day. Of this group, there are already a number of men from this area who have received confirmation from Washington that they will be enlisted in the Army to attend the technical school of their choice after successfully completing basic training. There are other applications still in Washington, expected to be received in the near future.

The guaranteed program for school, offered only by the U. S. Army, is literally what it says. A man's choice of school is forwarded to Dept. of the Army, Washington, D. C., and his letter of acceptance returned direct to him indicating which date he must enlist in order to complete basic training and meet the opening date at school.

For complete information on the U. S. Army's Technical School Program, see your local U. S. Army recruiter, Msgr. Walter R. Frazier, located at 218 S. Governor's Avenue, Dover, or call 736-6937 or 674-1360.

Mental Health Dept. to Seek Federal Funds

The Board of Trustees of the State Department of Mental Health recently approved the request of the Commissioner of the Department to seek $500,000 in federal funds for the development of psychiatric services in Sussex County. Dr. Lieberman explained to the Board that the funds could be obtained as a Hospital for the Mental Retarded and that under this grant it is possible to obtain as much as $100,000 per year for five years. The Department recently obtained a $500,000 Hospital Improvement Project grant for the Delaware State Hospital for the operation of a Day Treatment Center which is scheduled to open next month.

Dr. Lieberman outlined a project at the Hospital for the Mentally Retarded which would allow for the establishment of an intensive treatment psychiatric unit which could be used for any psychiatric emergencies that arose in Sussex County. This would prevent the condition which now exists in sick people being confined to jail or having to be ambulated up to the Delaware State Hospital. The psychiatric unit would also serve to give intensive psychiatric treatment to selected mentally retarded patients who require special treatment of this nature. Dr. Lieberman stated that the time schedule would be for the project request to be submitted prior to October 1, 1965, and if approved by the National Institute of Mental Health, the funds would be available June 1, 1966.

be conducted according to guideline established by the Office of Education, which include sending a letter and registration form home to the parents of each student.

Delaware districts have already afforded an opportunity for such transfers in accordance with the U.S. District Court ruling of 1961, but will have to offer a second time if they choose the "freedom of choice" plan of compliance.

The "freedom of choice" plan must include detailed information concerning plans to provide new facilities to house all of the district's pupils, including a target date. While Knowles did not specify a deadline for providing such facilities, he made it clear that it behooves the districts submitting "freedom of choice" plans to move toward full integration with all possible haste or risk rejection of their plans.

A different plan of attack must be used, Knowles said, when the Negro facility is in good condition and the integrated district wants to continue its operation.

In such a situation, Knowles said, attendance areas must be drawn geographically to form neighborhood schools. There can be no gerrymandering to effect segregation, he said.

The two other methods of compliance generally are not applicable to the situation of Delaware school districts, Knowles said. There are only 15 or 17 districts eligible to submit compliance forms stating there is now no deliberate segregation in their districts, he said.

U. of D. Receives Three Grants

Three grants totaling $30,200 have been awarded to the University of Delaware by the National Science Foundation to purchase scientific equipment for use in agriculture, electrical engineering and mechanical engineering instruction.

The grants are made with the understanding that the Federal funds will be matched by the university from non-Federal sources.

Delaware received its funds on the basis of proposals submitted by Dr. William E. McDaniel, chairman of the department of agricultural economics, $12,000; Professor Milton G. Young, chairman of the department of electrical engineering, $9,700; and Dr. Irwin G. Greenfield, assistant professor of mechanical engineering, $8,500.

Leslie B. Williams, coordinator of research at the university, said that the support given Delaware's requests this year reflects favorably on the quality of work being performed by Delaware faculty members. The NSF supported three of four requests submitted by Delaware professors.

Funds allocated to the School of Agriculture will be used to purchase equipment and teaching aids to improve the quality of laboratory exercises and lecture demonstrations in the plant science area. Students majoring in horticulture, agronomy, plant pathology and entomology will benefit from the new equipment which will include controlled environment chambers, microscopes, and a freeze-dry apparatus for preserving plant specimens. Among the new teaching aids will be prepared microscopic slides, Kodachromes, mounted specimens and models.

The electrical engineering department will improve its offerings in the area of material science. Department personnel offer instruction with special emphasis on electrical engineering materials, plasmas and solid state electronics. Needed to improve this work are two instructional gas lasers, a solid state laser, a power meter, a swept frequency source, a reflectometer, several micro-positioners, a wafering machine, three furnace temperature controllers and several pieces of supporting equipment.

Equipment is likewise required to support a new course in mechanical engineering which deals with the relationship between the fundamental structure of materials and their macro-properties. Senior students engage in experiments and advanced projects in mechanical metallurgy which also require additional working tools. Basic items needed are a sensitive tensile machine, a high gauge laboratory electromagnet and an optical pyrometer.

NSF and university funds combined will provide more than $60,000 for equipment purchases by the three departments during the coming year.

Later his office announced that he had signed the first part of his revenue package, a bill to increase the take by the state and the track on wagering at Delaware Park.

It was signed in time to become effective when the track opens Saturday.

It would increase the state's take from the pari-mutuel pool from 4 1/2 to 5 1/2 per cent and the track's from 7 1/2 to 8 1/2 per cent.

The bills that passed the House Tuesday would increase the cigarette tax from 5 to 7 cents a pack, the state's tax on harness race betting from 3 1/2 per cent to 4 1/2 per cent and the interest rates for past-due payment of inheritance and estate taxes, would require out-of-state corporations to post bonds to insure payment of taxes withheld from Delaware employees' wages.

"The greatest potential gains in economy and efficiency of production rests in the area of physiology or reproduction, environmental physiology, and management in poultry production."

"This new research laboratory will be devoted to basic and applied research and the scientific findings would be applicable and useful to all sections of the country and in all phases of the poultry industry."

Miss Mary Streets, the niece of Dr. Thomas Hale Streets, presented a number of objects formerly belonging to him. He was a Kent County resident and the author of a book "Some Allied Families of Kent County Delaware" of the Rees, Hale, Griffin and Streets Families. In the gift were six tablespoons accompanied by a penned note in the handwriting of Thomas Hale Streets. "These spoons were the property of Thomas and Sarah Hale, my great grandparents, and were willed to me because I was named after him. Thomas and Sarah Hale were married October 18th, 1764. The touch-mark on the handle of the spoons is that of Joseph Lownes, Silver-smith of Philadelphia, established in 1757".

A medical Naval officers uniform was also in the gift. The black beaver chapeau with gilt braid and button is in excellent condition and was worn by Dr. Streets at about the Spanish-American War period. An officers' blue broadcloth Naval coat, officers' cap, and vest as well as a white duck vest completed this uniform gift. A diploma from the University of Pennsylvania was awarded Dr. Streets upon completion of his course of study. The diploma is signed by a number of prominent Philadelphia physicians who were on the University Medical School Staff. Other interesting and important documents in this gift from Miss Streets were Naval Commissions signed by Presidents U. S. Grant in 1872, Grover Cleveland in 1887, William McKinley in 1899, and Theodore Roosevelt in 1903. These covered the grades of Assistant surgeon, surgeon with the rank of Lieutenant, Medical Inspector, Commander, and Medical Director with the rank of Captain.

Additional military accoutrements of the Spanish-American War period were the diploma and the dress sword of Henry Rowan Penington presented to the Museum by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Mildred Penington. The diploma bears the signature of Admiral George Dewey, hero of the Battle of Manila Bay. Admiral Dewey was an instructor on the faculty when Mr. Penington graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy and signed the diploma in this capacity.

We are indebted to Mr. Burton G. Cannon, Jr. for a timetable for a Special Excursion to Atlantic City in 1925. The total round trip fare, $3.50!

A Gamewell system fire alarm box was presented to the Museum through the courtesy of Hon. Paul Shockley, Clerk of the Wilmington City Council. For 82 years this system was in use in Wilmington. Red unlocked emergency telephones have replaced these alarms because many times the emergency is not a fire.

A large white china sugar bowl, formerly used by the Cummins Family was a recent gift of Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Cummins. This sugar bowl is of white Staffordshire, pear shaped with molded handles and sprays of shamrocks at the handles. The mark on the bottom in a brown shield with lion and unicorn, Ironstone China/Cookson and Seddon' completely identifies this piece of Staffordshire. We are also indebted to Dr. and Mrs. Cummins for another gift this quarter. To our growing post card collection we were pleased to add four Smyrna (Delaware) views of the year 1906. These cards are etched in black and white and show a view of Lake Como, a favorite walk around the willow shaded lake, Smyrna Public School on South Street, and the residential section on South Street looking east from Union. We were fortunate to add a bit of folk art to our collections this quarter. The piece is a hand carved log house with exact details. The roof boards are carved to resemble wooden shingles one-half inch wide and one inch long. The side boards are carved to resemble one-half inch wide logs. The carved front door is a separate applied piece—it even shows the peg holes. Windows are shuttered and steps applied separately. A separate fireplace chimney carved to resemble bricks is on one end while on the other is a small window in the peak. The roof is hinged to enable the inside to be used as a make-up box with a mirror in the lid and a lock at the roof line. The entire piece is painted a dark brown.

Early hand wrought hardware pieces were also purchased during this quarter, among them a number of strap hinges varying in size from twenty inches long to the small "HL" and butterfly. A collection of hooks of various lengths and twist decorations was included.

 The year 1964 marks the 250th Anniversary of the Dover Presbyterian Church. One of the buildings of The Delaware State Museum was the second edifice to house this Dover congregation. The building was erected in 1790 to replace an earlier building of 1715. When the Museum opened in 1950, one corner of this building was retained as a church exhibit, part of it showing the communion service building. We were pleased that the present congregation wished to administer their October Communion with this silver communion service.

Anniversary Quarter
 On December 15, 1950 the Delaware State Museum formally opened its doors. Many phases of Delaware life have been covered during this period. Most of the exhibits have been designed and installed by the Staff. We are proud of our increased attendance and many compliments paid to staff members by visitors.

Recent Acquisitions Exhibit
 The discovery of Adena Indian type artifacts at Frederica aroused much public interest. An exhibit of the artifacts presented by Mr. and Mrs. Herman Woikoski proved very interesting to our visitors. A complete description of these artifacts appears in the October, 1964 issue of the Museum News.

Christmas Exhibit
 Santa Claus set up shop at the Museum at Christmas time this year. The shelves at the back of the shop were lined with toys, books, games and dolls of another era, the period before and at the turn of the century. Santa was standing toward the front of the shop showing the toys to a little girl dressed as in former years. In the nearby shop window a doll choir was ready to sing carols at the nod of the

Harrington Moose Lodge To Hold

Anniv. Dinner

Last Sunday afternoon, May 23rd, the Harrington Lodge Order of Moose Lodge celebrated its 17th anniversary with a dinner for the members and their wives.

The occasion began with a memorial service for deceased members of the Lodge and Chapter 1229. The memorial service was performed by Governor Irwin Everett, Merrill Vanderwende, John Semans, James Jopp, Senior Regent Eleanor Semans, Ruth Holsten, Ann McWilliams, Iva Banning, and a prayer by Chaplain Carpenter, U. S. Air Force (retired), who is also a member of Columbia, Washington, D. C., Moose Lodge.

Following the memorial service, dinner was served with Jean Reed giving the blessing.

Master of Ceremonies William J. Boyd introduced the past governors and the officers of the Lodge and Chapter 1229, and the committee chairmen, President Wilton Ireland and Past President Lee Poo, both of the 7th District. Preston Ruth was also introduced, who is the Inner Guard of the Md.-Del., and Washington, D. C. Moose Association.

Following the introduction, the anniversary cake was cut by Governor Irwin Everett and Senior Regent of Chapter 1229, Eleanor Semans, and was served.

gift. One picture in color Easter rabbits sitting at a trestle table, another with purple violets on a green cross reflects the true Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Eley of the Duck Creek Antiques Country Store kindly presented us with two flour bags. The stencil of Alex Laws, Dover Flour Mills, Dover, Del. appears in red printing. Two blue bands top and bottom of the cream color duck adds color to these locally used flour bags.

Two more States of the Union Series medals were added to the collection this quarter by Capitol Medals, Inc. The bronze medals honor the States of Wisconsin and Nevada.

An unusual and important addition to our Maritime Collection was a windlass, anchor, length of chain, and hawse-hole with attached boards of a sunken ship recovered during dredging operations in the Delaware River near Edge Moor. The wooden capstan is notched for hand operation and may be one hundred or more years old. These items are the gift of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers through Mr. Wesley E. Jordan.

At the ceremonies marking the return of Fort Miles to the State of Delaware by the United States, the post flag, which flew over the fort, was presented to Governor Elbert N. Carvel by Daniel Luevano, Assistant Secretary of the Army for Installations and Logistics. We are grateful to Governor Carvel for his thoughtfulness in making this historic flag available to us.

When the Hanover Street Church in Wilmington was being demolished to make way for the Adams-Jackson Streets Freeway a corner stone box was opened. Some of the objects it contained were transferred by Herbert Keene of the State Highway Department to the State Museum. A farthing dated 1844 and a note dated 1863 had been placed in the box by Archibald Crozier, a member of the church. The coin had Victoria D. G. Britannia, Regina F. D. on one side and Half Fathing 1844 on the other. The note stated "this half farthing being half of all that he (Archibald Crozier) brought into this country, a few years since from Scotland, as a memorial of Lord's goodness and care over him, October 8, 1863". A note accompanying a bullet states it "was taken from the battlefield of Gettysburg fought on the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd days of July, 1863, where by God's grace the armies of a wicked rebellion were driven away in shame and defeat".

One of our donors who has given many articles in the past, has again made a generous contribution. Mrs. Louise Farrow Barr's latest gift of over fifty objects includes many personal items such as elaborate dress buckles and slides set with large colored stones, hair combs, long yellow silk stockings, a pair of ladies fancy round garters, a hand-made ribbon case to hold a spool of ribbon, a cardboard cube for carrying assorted black headed pins, several pairs of garter buckles, hand painted china shirtwaist studs, and a pair of ladies white flannel spats. Embroidered hand made pillow shams, center pieces, beaded and crocheted purses, dress collars, and a bead chain are just a few of the handwork pieces from Mrs. Barr. A very lovely and complete black leather travelling case bespeaks of the elegant style of travel at the turn of the century. The fittings are cut glass bottles and jars with silver tops. The case is so complete it even has its own stove, matches or lights and curling iron. Mrs. Barr has been a most generous donor and we appreciate her many gifts.

Mrs. Henry Pancost enriched our card collection with a Victorian Christmas card. The spray of colorful peach blossoms and the words "May every Christmas be Sweeter than the Last" make it a simple but sincere card.

Museum Purchases
 We were pleased to purchase a large framed oil painting of the "Emma A. Ford". This ship painting was rendered by Stuart, an itinerant painter, who roamed the Wilmington area in search of a meal, a day's work or night's lodging for which he would do a picture in payment. We are delighted to add such a good signed example of this artists' work to our Maritime Collection. The painting is of a side wheeler built by Harlan and Hollingsworth Ship Yard, Wilmington, about 1884 for the Chester River Transportation Company.

A tin lunch pail of the type carried by workmen who took their lunches to work each day was also purchased. There are three compartments for food, the deepest one suitable for hot soup. An original box containing five slate pencils for writing on a school slate were also purchased. Another acquisition was a laminated wooden plaque having a yellow-buff background with the dates 1776-1876 in the upper corners and Delaware on a ribbon above a view of sailing vessels in Wilmington harbor within a shield shape. The bust of George Read is on the left and that of Thomas McKean on the right beneath the harbor scene. City of Wilmington with the State Seal is at the bottom. The plaque was designed by W. Brotherhead and made by H. J. Tonley & Co., Steam Lith. and was designed for use at the time of the Centennial.

We were fortunate to add a bit of folk art to our collections this quarter. The piece is a hand carved log house with exact details. The roof boards are carved to resemble wooden shingles one-half inch wide and one inch long. The side boards are carved to resemble one-half inch wide logs. The carved front door is a separate applied piece—it even shows the peg holes. Windows are shuttered and steps applied separately. FENCE TALK with George K. Vapaa

I'm indebted to Jim Miller, whose "Grist from the Miller" adds spice to our daily reading locally.

A recent example is his scotch broom advice. His research as a horticulturist gives me some courage as a columnist. For here truly is a shrub that deserves greater use by the home gardener. Jim notes that it thrives best under relatively poor fertility and dry weather conditions. We can add that this is precisely the situation in most new housing developments.

Scotch broom grows profusely along the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal, where it tends to stabilize the steep banks. It can be most easily seen on either side of the south end of Summit Bridge. Its shaggy quality makes for an interesting texture.

Back to Jim. You've got to admire a guy who can write with a light, left touch about the problems of a homeowner whose house has just burned out. Most people might sulk or seek pity. But Jim's misfortunes only seem to liven his and our outlook.

Our office can always recognize a slow news day. Jim is quite a student of the weather and its foibles. And he figures quite logically that weather rates high in reader interest if there isn't much else to talk about newswise. So we chat on the phone about crop growing conditions, shrub problems, horse hay and what have you. Right now we're having fun with a horseradish kick.

The Junior Broiler Growing program wound up its current program this past week. Each youngster raised 50 chicks over an eight week period. The best seven birds are brought to the Harrington Fairgrounds for judging.

There were some ohs and ahs when one youngster's parents delivered his birds in the back seat of a yellow convertible car. "You don't know the half of it," remarked the owner. "This car is air-conditioned!"

Yes, lawn lovers, there are grasses tougher than crabgrass.

And they're called fine fescues. Anyone looking for a rough, tough, enduring companion to Kentucky bluegrass for the really tough spots of shade and poor soil should consider these fescues. Not even crabgrass can hold up as well.

Crabgrass likes good soil and has to have sun. Fertilizer meant for the lawn is just the addition to make crabgrass grow faster.

But with the fine fescues—varieties such as Chewings, Creeping Red, Illahee and Pennlawn—poor soil, drought and shade are taken in stride.

Fine fescue is probably the one component of a lawn seed blend that really takes hold under the trees where there is not much moisture and the tree gets first crack at fertilizer.

Better lawn seed mixtures combine fine fescues and bluegrasses for a combination that eliminates all the niches in a lawn. The fine fescues are especially important for the so-called 'shade mixtures.'

Recent research has shown that fine fescues sprout fast, have seedling vigor, make a stand quickly and thrive in low fertilized areas.

Nine out of 10 farm and non-farm rural youth graduating from high school must find jobs outside of farming.

More than half of today's 4-Hers live off the farm—in cities, suburbs and small towns and on country acreages with no farm operation. On the other hand, 4-H number more farm boys and girls among its members today than it did 20 years ago. More than 40 youngsters out of 100 of 4-H age living on farms today belong to 4-H clubs compared with only 12 out of 100 in 1940.

Some people have an idea that outboard motors scare fish. Actually, there is much evidence to indicate that the reverse is true. Instead of scaring fish, the bubbles, or turbulence, created by an out-board motor tend to draw inquisitive fish in closer for a better look according to findings at the University of Michigan.

Outboard motor operation does not adversely influence fishing success. Evidently, it worries some fishermen more than it does the fish.

One conservation group did some research on this subject. Fishermen were stationed on lakes undisturbed except for the croaking of frogs. Other fishermen were stationed on other lakes where a steady procession of outboard boats kept passing by.

The result was a tie. The anglers who were buzzed from morning to night caught just as many fish as the men on the quiet lake.

Only three insecticides now available to dairymen are recommended for use on lactating dairy cows: Pyrethrins, DDVP, Clodrin or DDVP-Clodrin combinations. All other insecticides have been eliminated because animals absorb them into their bodies and some residues are deposited in the animal fat. When the cow starts to produce milk she draws upon her fat reserves and the residue is secreted into the milk. Milk sold to any market outlet may not contain any insecticide residue.

Only seven insecticides are recommended for use in and around dairy buildings. They include diazinon, Dibrom, Malathion, Clodrin and Carbaryl and aldrin. Vapona and Demetilan (snip) strips are also recommended.

University of Delaware entomologists will not recommend any of the chlorinated hydrocarbons insecticides for use on equipment or buildings even though a few of them still carry label USDA approval for such purposes.

Hydrocarbon insecticides are taboo for the dairymen. Do not use them on dairy animals, on equipment or on growing crops that are to be fed to dairy cows. Hydrocarbons include such well-known insecticides as lindane, dieldrin, heptachlor, and toxaphend. Methoxychlor, also a hydrocarbon, is an exception under some circumstances. It can be applied to forages for insect control if intervals between spraying and harvest are honored.

ACP Cost-sharing assistance primarily for wildlife practices is being used increasingly by farmers to provide benefits to non-farm people, says Russell C. Bowdle, chairman, Kent Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee. Such practices include establishing food and cover plots, developing or restoring shallow water areas for wildlife, and building ponds for fishing.

The chairman pointed out that under this phase of the Agricultural Conservation Program, 1964 fiscal year expenditures for cost-sharing with farmers amounted to more than $1.4 million—or double those for the previous year.

In some areas, the program has generated considerable interest among sportsmen's groups, and they have become very conscious of the extent to which conservation-minded farmers contribute toward improved wildlife food and habitat. For instance, when local sportsmen's clubs were ready to release pheasants in one New York County, they requested the names of wildlife practice participants and released birds on the lands of these farmers.

The sportsmen have also been active in encouraging landowners to take part in the program, and they plan to help gain additional program participation. One club promised to ask farmers to plant at least 100 acres of bird food plots in its area.

Five goose ponds and nine fish ponds were installed in Kent County last year under the ACP Program.

Chairman Bowdle reminded farmers that ACP wildlife practices thus benefit them in more than one way. Besides improving the farmland, protecting it from wind and water erosion, the conservation work helps bolster the income the farmer gets from his land by providing additional recreational opportunities for non-farm people.

Contact the Kent County ASCS Office if you are interested in wildlife practices for your farm. Phone 697-3601.

Weed Control Key To Soybean Success

The best time to control weeds in soybeans is before the crop is planted. And unless this is done effectively, there is little hope for a successful crop.

Proper seed bed preparation, according to Dr. William Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware, is the best means of control. By working the soil to start weeds growing, then working the surface to kill the weeds that have started, you kill the weeds before planting time. This may need to be done several times, he points out, but there is little point in expecting a high yielding crop if weed infestations are heavy at planting time.

The main factor influencing this "death grip" that the weeds have on soybeans is the fact that soybeans grow very slowly during the early stages of life. This allows the weeds to out-grow them and offer severe competition for water, nutrients and light.

Mitchell lists these common weeds which affect Delaware soybean production: pigweed, lambsquarter, velvet weed, yellow foxtail, giant ragweed, giant foxtail, morning-glory, jimson weed, green foxtail, and crabgrass.

He believes early control is by far the most practical method available, but he says a rotary hoe and spike-toothed harrow are also very effective devices for controlling weeds in very young soybeans. Shallow cultivation just deep enough to control weeds, but not deep enough to bring buried seed to the surface to cause trouble later on is also recommended.

Fields in which weeds have been a severe problem in the past should not be expected to produce high yielding crops according to the agronomist. "If weeds have been a problem and you still want to plant soybeans, use a pre-emergence application of one of the effective herbicides. Those tested under Delaware conditions and found to be effective are: Lorox, Amiben, Premerge and Sodium PCP.

Two new materials are being suggested for trial use, Vernam and Treflan. They are currently being tested on a limited acreage to determine their potential for Delaware use.

Two Lawn Diseases Prominent This Spring

Two prominent diseases have been found on Kentucky bluegrass lawns in Delaware this spring, according to Dr. J. W. Heuberger, extension pathologist, and W. J. Manning, research fellow at the University of Delaware.

Leafspot and foot rot disease, also known as "melting out," and stripe smut affect several varieties of Kentucky bluegrass. Symptoms of leafspot and foot rot disease are easily recognized by the appearances of numerous reddish-brown, purple or black spots on the leaves, the researchers explain. Eventually, the leaves and stems shrivel and turn brown, and patches of the lawn appear to "melt out."

Merion is a resistant variety of Kentucky bluegrass. While some leafspots may develop on it, it is seldom killed by the fungus.

Several turf management practices should be followed to reduce disease damage, the researchers point out. The lawn should be mowed at a height of one and three-quarters to two inches, and care should be taken to avoid over-fertilizing. Remove the clippings after cutting the grass, since the fungus may be present in or on them.

Chemical control of the disease consists of spraying the lawn at 10-day intervals in the spring and fall with either three ounces of captan or three ounces of zineb in five gallons of water. This will treat 1000 square feet of lawn area.

The plant pathologists caution that organic mercury fungicides should never be used on Merion bluegrass because they will severely damage it.

Stripe smut disease of Kentucky Blue grass is caused by a fungus that grows internally throughout the leaves and stems of the grass plants. Heuberger and Manning point out that the disease is usually first noticed when black, sooty deposits that rub off easily are found on the leaves. These are the spores, or reproductive bodies of the fungus. Later the leaves wither and die.

Merion, Troy and common Kentucky bluegrass are all susceptible to the fungus, but the varieties Park, Newport, K-34 and K-1 are quite resistant.

Chemical control attempts are usually not very satisfactory because of the systemic nature of the disease and the large number of spores present, the researchers explain. Spores of the fungus survive on grass seed, but it can be treated before planting with an organic mercury fungicide such as Ceresan. This can be done by shaking both the seed and the fungicide in a paper bag, taking care not to inhale the fungicide. Heuberger and Manning also point out that spraying for leaf spot and foot rot disease may reduce stripe smut damage.

Home Landscaping Evaluated In University Study

Homeowners feel prices paid for ornamental shrubs are too high, according to a report just released by the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Delaware. In a study completed with 258 homeowners in the Wilmington-Newark area, their most common criticism of nurseries was high prices. Except for roses, they estimated the cost of plants to be considerably less than the actual market price.

Findings of the survey are published in a bulletin titled "Consumer Purchases of Ornamentals," authored by S. M. Raleigh, Jr., a former graduate student in agricultural economics and Dr. R. C. Smith, professor of agricultural economics at the University.

In the study, interviewers evaluated each home as to completeness of landscaping and type of plant used. They found that professional workers, managers and engineers tended to have more completely landscaped homes and they used better quality plants. They also found that if both husband and wife were interested in landscaping, their home tended to be more completely landscaped and they tended to use plants of better quality.

Except for the more expensive homes, the interviewers found that very few owners had their backyard landscaped and that almost half of those indicating they had all the trees and shrubs needed in the interviewers' opinion had inadequate landscaping.

The report describes reasons for landscaping, services offered, nursery patronization, homeowners likes and dislikes, landscaping expenditures and an evaluation of landscaping practices. The publication, Experiment Station bulletin 354, is available from the mailing room at Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware or from the county extension offices in Newark, Dover, and Georgetown.

U. of D. Names Poultry Research Associate

George Chaloupka, a 1954 graduate of the University of Delaware, has been named a poultry research associate in the University's School of Agriculture, according to Dr. Morris S. Cover, director of the Agricultural Experiment Station.

Chaloupka began his duties May 1 at the Georgetown Agricultural Substation, where he will provide leadership for research in broiler management practices and poultry housing and equipment. In addition, he will assist other researchers in poultry nutrition and health projects.

Chaloupka was reared on a farm near Milton. Formerly a high school teacher, he has done research work for a commercial poultry firm for nine years. He majored in animal and poultry science at the University.

In his new work with the University, Chaloupka will work closely with poultry advisory leaders of such groups as the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association, Delaware State Poultry Commission and Delaware Poultry Industry, Inc. He will be responsible directly to J. Frank Gordy, director of the School of Agriculture's Substation Division.

Strawberry Season Here; Enjoy Them In Many Recipes

Strawberries and shortcake seem as thoroughly American as fried chicken and apple pie. Actually, however, people have enjoyed strawberries since Roman times. Small, sweet varieties grow wild throughout the world; they were growing thickly when colonists first came to the eastern shores of the United States. However, these wild berries were a far cry from the large, luscious fruit we enjoy today, says Miss Janet Coblentz, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware.

Each year strawberries seem to be bigger, more beautiful and better tasting. They not only taste good. Strawberries are also an excellent source of Vitamin C. One can will give you more than the daily requirement. They also supply small amounts of other vitamins and some minerals.

Look for fresh strawberries that are dry and glossy, solid in color, free from white, green or hard tips, and free from moisture, dirt or decay spots. Strawberries without caps may be over-ripe. Size is no indication of flavor, Miss Coblentz says.

Buy or pick berries as you are ready to use them, she advises. Fresh strawberries are very perishable and should be used within a day or two. Store them uncovered in the refrigerator, not in the crisper. Too much moisture in the air around the berries encourages mold. Wash the berries gently in cold water and remove the green caps when you are ready to use them.

Strawberries can be a boon to calorie counters: one cup contains only 54 calories. Unfortunately, by the time you add the sugar and whipped cream, many recipes call for, the calorie count is astronomically high. Miss Coblentz suggests substituting a non-caloric sweetener and low-calorie whipped topping in such recipes.

For delicious, low-calorie strawberries-on-the-stem, dip washed berries by their stems into melted dietetic apricot preserves and then into confectioners' sugar.

Add your own distinctive touch to the traditional strawberry pie, says Miss Coblentz. For instance, add 1/4 teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg to the filling, or use a brazil nut crust. Use one cup sliced bananas in your next strawberry chiffon pie. Combine one cup each strawberries, crushed, drained pineapple and cut-up rhubarb with one cup sugar and three tablespoons cornstarch to make the filling for a delightful three-fruit pie. Glaze a custard pie with three cups crushed strawberries, one cup sugar and two tablespoons cornstarch. Bring the mixture to a boil over low heat, stirring constantly. Strain and cool; spread over custard pie.

Strawberries make an elegant filling and topping for cakes, says Miss Coblentz. Split a sponge cake in half, fill, put the layers together and then frost with a mixture of one cup sliced strawberries, one cup cubed, drained pineapple, 48 miniature marshmallows, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla and two cups heavy cream, whipped. Banana cake is delicious topped with strawberries and cream, flavored with one teaspoon rum extract.

Use strawberries in a salad also, Miss Coblentz says. Arrange a fruit platter with strawberries, quartered bananas, sliced apples, orange sections, grapes and melon balls. A dressing made from currant jelly beaten with mayonnaise, or from a mixture of 1/2 cup mayonnaise, two tablespoons honey and one cup heavy cream, whipped, is excellent with the fruit.

Strawberries can also be used as a fruit dressing for molded salads or fruit salads. Combine 1/4 cup crushed berries, 1/4 cup pecans or almonds, chopped, two tablespoons each orange juice and white wine, and one cup mayonnaise.

For a quick, but different, dessert, combine one quart hulled strawberries with 1/2 cup claret wine. Or, combine the quart of strawberries with three tablespoons sugar, two sliced bananas and one cup sweet or sour cream. Strawberries and whipped cream tastes delightfully flavored with a few drops of brandy or sherry, or with 1/3 cup each orange juice and curacao. For a flaming dessert, combine one quart strawberries with two chopped orange peels, one chopped lemon peel and eight teaspoons sugar. Heat with 1/2 cup of brandy and set aflame.

The peak strawberry season is all too short. Fortunately, strawberries are easily preserved, says Miss Coblentz. For home freezing choose firm, bright red strawberries, not over-ripe or bruised berries. Two quarts of fresh strawberries will make about three pints

Review Insurance Protection Periodically

The first principle of sound insurance planning is to insure against financial disaster, says Miss Coral K. Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware. Normally, you should not spend the limited amount of money you have available for insurance to protect against a loss that would be only a minor hardship.

The wage earner of the family buys life insurance to protect against the loss of income his family would suffer if he dies before retirement. Disability insurance insures against the possibility of being unable to work because of a sudden physical handicap. Liability insurance protects against the possibility of large financial losses through an adverse court judgment. Fire, windstorm and theft insurance, often grouped together in a home-owner's policy, replace property or repair property damage.

Make a list of all the insurance your family has, including the different types of life insurance, liability, medical and disability, automobile, fire and extended coverage, advises Miss Morris. You may be surprised at the total amount you are spending for insurance. Many families buy insurance piecemeal without adequate consideration of an insurance program suited to their individual needs.

First concentrate on insuring the lives of the family wage earners, says Miss Morris, since their deaths would undoubtedly cause the worst financial disaster to any family. The necessities of living for the survivors must be considered first. In your planning do not forget to include the assistance survivors may receive from Social Security. Veterans Administration, workmen's compensation, union employers' insurance, and your own savings.

There are four basic kinds of insurance policies — term, straight life or ordinary life, limited payment life and endowment. The best type for each particular family depends on the age of the wage earner, the amount of money available for premiums, the amount of protection required, the importance of the cash value and other factors, says Miss Morris.

Term insurance, the lowest in premium cost, covers only a certain number of years. During those years you pay the premium and you are protected. At the end of the set time, the protection ceases and the insurance must be renewed. Term insurance has no cash or loan value. Straight or ordinary life costs more than term insurance, but the protection continues for the life of the insured. Premiums are paid during the entire life of the insured. This type of policy builds up a cash value that increases the longer the policy is kept.

Limited payment life insurance differs from straight life in several ways, says Miss Morris. Premiums are paid a limited number of years or until the insured reaches a certain age. The premiums are higher because payments are made only for a limited number of years while protection continues during the life of the insured. The cash value increases faster than it does with the straight life policy.

The face value of endowment policies is paid in a lump sum or in installments to the insured if he is living when the policy matures. If he dies before maturity of the policy, the face value is paid to the beneficiary. As in limited payment life, premiums are paid only for a set number of years. An endowment policy provides protection and retirement income, but it is the most expensive form of insurance, says Miss Morris.

Variations and combinations of the basic life insurance types and special clauses are available in a bewildering assortment. To help decide which is best for your family, contact an insurance expert in whom you have confidence, recommends Miss Morris. He can plan a program that takes into consideration your age, income and family needs.

Review your total insurance program periodically, she advises. A program that exactly fitted your needs at 20 will often no longer be adequate for you and your family when you are 40.

You owe it to your family and yourself to plan a sound insurance program that will protect you and them against major financial disasters as far as is possible, says Miss Morris.

Delaware Food Market Report

Tossing a good green salad has become a necessity in all homes because of the emphasis on gourmet food and as more of us realize how good these greens are for us. For the past two weeks we have had to use our imagination and our knowledge of other greens to serve this type of salad. Lettuce continues to be high in price for what's available and poor to only fair in quality. Once again the shortage of agricultural labor in Florida and California has been pointed out as a big factor in the fresh vegetable shortage. Actually, there seems to be plenty of lettuce, but the quality is very poor. This may be due to the fact that inexperienced pickers are now the major source of labor for harvesting the crop.

Cabbage prices have followed lettuce upward. Those of you who are cabbage lovers may find you will be paying as much as 20c a pound for this vegetable in some stores. Potato prices are steady at the wholesale level and show little chance of a change. Prices remain high over the month from mid-April to mid-May, and potato prices have increased more than 15 cents on 10 pounds.

The only decreases in vegetable prices are on green peas, green beans, cucumbers, and green onions. Most other vegetables are a penny or so higher.

Watermelon and cantaloupe are more plentiful and quality for the most part is very good. The flavor of both fruits is excellent. Prices on other fruits such as Red Delicious apples, grapefruit, oranges, honeydew melons and bananas are edging up. When these fruits are on special, they will be excellent buys.

Prices of beef, pork, and lamb join fresh produce in the upward trend started last week. Here again special weekend sale prices place many cuts of meat on the better buy list. When shopping, be sure to check smoked ham, which is a good choice for a holiday weekend. Bacon, chuck roast, and other beef roasts, are also good choices. Heavy turkeys are good buys, as are broiler-fryers.

The general picture looks a little high as far as fresh produce and most meats are concerned, but don't let it discourage you because our markets are overflowing with simply wonderful foods. Remember the top quality foods that are canned and frozen. The present situation is only one more challenge.

Kaffeeklatsch With Eleanor Voshehl

The whirling blade of a rotary lawn mower can be a vicious weapon and there are plenty of unfortunate victims who have lost toes or fingers to testify to this. Grass cutting is easy with a rotary mower but it can be deadly if safety precautions are not used.

Heed these suggestions. 1. Children should not be allowed to use power mowers unless they have been taught safety precautions and are responsible enough to use them.

2. Before starting to mow your lawn, walk over it and pick up toys, dog bones, nails and other objects that will hit blades and fly into you.

3. Obviously it is a good idea to keep dogs and children out of the yard while mowing.

4. Always wear fairly heavy shoes when operating a power mower. Slippers or canvas shoes offer little protection if toes get in the way of whirling blade or if blade throws a hidden object. Bare feet are even more exposed.

5. Follow the starting instructions which came with the mower for safest procedure.

6. Never pull the lawn mower toward you unless absolutely necessary. It may pull back faster than you can get out of the way.

7. Never leave the lawn mower running. Most children do not understand its operation and their curiosity may end in tragedy.

8. Don't fill gas tank when mower is hot. Take a 10 minute break when you run out of gas—you'll probably need it anyhow.

The main thing is to keep in mind the dangerous potential of a rotary mower just as with any other machine. Common sense is the most important element of safety.

Dennis Rogers Breaks Knotts' 880 Mark

Harold McDonald's Harrington High track team wrapped up its second straight unbeaten season by easily winning a triangular meet with Dover Air High and Milton High under the lights at the Harrington High Stadium on Wednesday night. The Lions rolled up 90 points to 40½ for Dover Air and 17½ for Milton.

Dennis Rogers set a new school record in the half mile as his 2:06.3 was one-tenth of a second better than Harry Knotts' 1961 effort. Rogers also took the mile run in 4:55.

Frank White was an easy double winner in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. His 23.3 in the latter event was his best this season.

Glenn Smith has been out of action for a month with a broken bone in his foot. The courageous senior made a comeback in the high jump and won with a leap of 5 ft. 6 in. Glenn was clearing 5 ft. 7 in. before the season started and probably would have been state champion were it not for his accident. The Group 2 high jump was won in the state meet with a jump of 5 ft. 8 in.

Bob Smith remained unbeaten in Henlopen Conference 440 competition by winning in 54.6. Henry Minner took second for the Lions.

Richard Black was the discuss winner with Harry Bitler of H. H.S. getting third.

Gerry Garey returned to action after being on the sidelines with an injury and cruised to an easy victory in the two mile run. Dan Adams lowered his mark to 11:53 and Donald Wells dropped from 12:25 to 12:08 to finish third and fourth, respectively.

Frank Cain and Larry Garey captured first and second places in the pole vault.

Artie Taylor, Henry Minner and Harry Bitler racked up second places in the broad jump, high jump and shot put, respectively. Last Wednesday Ellis Myer took off his baseball suit, put on a track suit and without benefit of practice, ran a fast two miles defeating all the two milers the other three teams could throw at him except one.

Against Milton and Dover Air Ellis agreed to try the mile run despite the presence of Buckley, of Milton, one of the better Henlopen milers.

Myer stayed behind Buckley as Dennis Rogers took the lead. Coming up the homestretch after Rogers broke the tape, Myer was in second place. To the delight of the partisan Harrington crowd, Myer and Lion Dan Hicks both stood off Buckley's closing rush to give the locals an unexpected 1-2-3 finish in the event. Ellis was clocked in a good 5:08 while Hicks lowered his time from 5:14 to 5:08.2. The Lions ace miler, Dennis Rogers, will not be back next year but H.H.S. could be even stronger in this event if they could field a 1966 lineup of Myer, Hicks and current freshman Nick Morris, who was close behind Buckley Wednesday night.

Bruce Layton, a recently discovered 100-yard dashman, was a close third in that event in only his second try at the century.

The Lions' 880 relay team tied a school record of 1:37.5 set last season by Barry Fry, Dennis Rogers, Bob Smith and Richard Black. Black also ran on this quartet so he got his name on the record book twice for the same event. Marshall Jackson led off for the locals and handed off to Ron Hughes in second place. Hughes narrowed the gap and Richard Black bolted into the lead. Anchorman Frank White widened the lead and eased up a little coming into the tape since the race was in the bag. Had he realized that his team was close to the record, he could have gone all out and a new standard would have resulted.

Frank Cain, Henry Minner, Larry Garey and Richard Black led most of the way in easily winning the mile relay. 100-1. White, H; 2. Whitney, DA; 3. Layton, H; 4. (tie) Futch, DA and Hudson, M. 10.3. Harrington Routs Rebels, 13-2

Frank Glazier's Harrington High baseball team routed Selbyville's Rebels by a score of 13-2 in a game played here Thursday afternoon. The victory was the fourth in the last five games for the improving Lions. Renny French picked up his fourth win of the year as he scattered six hits and allowed the visitors to score only in the third inning when they tied the score at 2-2.

H.H.S. took the lead for keeps in the same inning and wound up scoring in every inning but the first. Ellis Myer had three of Harrington's twelve hits and drove in three runs, which is a good showing for a leadoff batter. Marshall Hatfield and Bob Rouse had two hits and two RBI's each. Bob Matthews drove two runs across after the two batters ahead of him took called third strikes.

Rogers, Cain Get Seconds In State Track Meet

Dennis Rogers, miler and Frank Cain, pole vaulter nabbed second places in the 50th annual Delaware Interscholastic Track and Field Championships, held at Frazier Field, the University of Delaware, Saturday afternoon.

Harrington made it's finest showing ever at the meet. The Lions scored in six events in tallying 13 points.

Rogers and Mac Thornton, the mile winner, waged a battle for the lead that drew them clear from the rest of the field. Rogers' 4:41 clocking is more than five seconds faster than his best previous effort. Dwight Hackett, a 1961 Lion miler, also had a 4:41 behind Harry Knotts the H.H.S. record holder at 4:38.

Cain again tied his own school record of 11 feet in the pole vault. Frank has reached this height at least four times in his career.

Artie Taylor recorded the best leap of his career in the broad jump. His 19 feet 5 1/4 inches apparently had the third place medal won, but Bruce Marvel, of Caesar Rodney, hit 19 feet 6 in his last effort to push the Lion back to fourth.

Richard Black was fifth in the discuss. The Lion 880 and mile relay quartets also finished in fifth positions.

While the Harrington team performance was a good one it could have been much better with a little luck.

Frank White, the H.H.S. sprinter, was not up to par physically and did not place in the 100 or 220 although he did manage to qualify for the finals in both dashes. White has 1965 marks of 10.1 in the 100 and 23.3 in the 220. At Newark Saturday the 100 went in 10.4 and the 220 in 23.3. At his peak White could have scored several points for the Blue and Gold.

Gerry Garey and Marshall Hatfield, the H.H.S. two milers, missed the meet. A pickup of three or more points could have occurred here.

Dennis Rogers did not have a good 880 time until after the deadline had passed for state meet entries. His 2:06.3 recently on the H.H.S. track is equivalent to an under 2:05 clocking on the good University of Delaware oval. A third or fourth place finish was a definite possibility had he been entered in the half. Glenn Smith's loss because of a baseball accident may have cast the Lions their first state championship in an individual event. The high jump went to a 5 ft. 8 in. jumper, Glenn was doing 5-7 in late March or early April.

The locals will lose a lot of horses at graduation time. A good junior high team will take up some slack but it appears that 1967 will be the earliest possible year that the Lions could equal the strength of the season's fine team.

Foresters Shade Warriors, 6-5

Ron Breeding pitched Greenwood's Foresters to victory over Milton's hard-hitting Warriors in the finale for the winners. The contest, played at Greenwood on Thursday afternoon, saw Milton outhit Greenwood 12-7. However, the visitors couldn't bunch their safeties enough to pull out the win.

The Foresters finished the campaign with a respectable 5-6 record.

Greenwood went ahead 2-0 after two innings but the Warriors moved into a 3-2 lead in the top of the fifth inning. The highly-touted Milton flinger, Bill Cordrey, was rocked for four game-winning runs as soon as Greenwood had it's chance in the bottom of the fifth. The Warriors added two meaningless tallies in their last turn at bat.

Drew Clendaniel and Dave Henry split four hits to lead the Foresters at the plate.

Felton Beats H.H.S., 5-2; Wins Loop Title

Harrington's late-maturing ball club had a good shot at a winning season if it could get by the Green Devils at Felton Monday. The host club, on the other hand, needed a victory in this its final game to win the Henlopen Conference championship outright.

The result was a well-pitched, well-played game. The Devils took advantage of the Lions' one bad inning, defensively, to score four runs on two hits in the third frame.

Harrington's third chief threat came in the fifth when Richard Black walked to open the inning. Will Dill, Felton's undefeated junior ace, fanned the next two hitters but Bob Rouse doubled in Black and Dean Manges singled Rouse across. Dill, who fanned eight and held the Lions hitless in every other inning, got the next hitter on an infield grounder.

Renny French, Harrington's senior righthander, did a fine job against the champions as he gave up five hits. Felton's freshman star, Robert "Red" Dill was the winners' best stickman with two doubles in three trips to the plate.

Phil Clark, Dave Wood, Ron Draper and Jim Blades played their last game in Felton uniforms. The Green Devils lost only one game in baseball and none in basketball in winning Henlopen Conference championships in each sport.

Green Devils Clip Eagles' Wings

Lord Baltimore's Eagles never had a chance at Ocean View on Thursday afternoon as the invading Felton Green Devils crushed the home team 16-3 and boosted their seasonal log to 9-1.

The Viola Vandals, Wills and "Red" Dill, led the invasion with a home run and 4 RBI's each. Will had four hits, altogether, while his freshman brother had two safeties and also took a turn on the mound. It is the writer's opinion that Henlopen Conference baseball rivals of Felton are going to get mighty sick of that redhead before 1968 rolls around.

Starting pitcher Jim Blades, catcher "Porky" Coulson and second-sacker Jim Reible had two hits each. Reible drove three tallies in.

An eight run first inning put the game on ice early as the Eagles could get only four hits off the two Devil hurlers. Felton amassed 16 hits and used 15 players.

Hatfield, Jack Homers Give Lions Overtime Win

In a Frank Merriwell finish, Frank Glazier's Harrington High baseball team got home runs from Rusty Jack and Marshall Hatfield to edge a strong Delmar team 9-8 in eight innings. The Wildcats had lost only twice in nine starts.

Harrington's Lions started out the season with four straight losses and were cellar occupants after the first four games. The locals started to click, won five of their last seven games and are presently tied for sixth place in the twelve team Henlopen Conference. H.H.S. may even wind up in a tie for fifth if Milton loses its last contest.

The Lions' one-man pitching staff, Rennie French, had pitched against Felton on Monday, so Ellis Myer took the hill against the slugging Railroaders. Delmar racked up 15 hits and 8 runs in six innings.

Harrington batting against two of the league's better hurlers, Maloney and Budd, were not doing too badly, however, and hit safely six times during the same period to trail 8-5 going into the seventh and final inning.

A three-run rally, highlighted by Jack's two-run circuit clout, sent the tilt into the extra inning.

Hatfield's drive into left-center got by the defense and the Lion frantically scurried around the bases while the Wildcats frantically scurried after the ball. Hatfield and the relay arrived at the plate in practically dead heat. The throw was a little high so the Lion took the legs out from under the leaping Wildcat to tally the winning run.

Bob Matthews pitched the last two innings for Harrington to get credit for the victory. Matthews' experience this season has consisted of one hitless inning against Milton plus pitching in batting practice. His awkward, herky-jerky type of sidearm pitching kept the enemy batters off balance. He gave the Wildcats one hit and no runs. The pitching staff of the losers sure tried to win the game at the plate. Of Delmar's 16 futile hits, Maloney had 3 doubles and 2 singles. Budd had three, including a home run.

Sam Knox, the leading H.H.S. hitter, had a perfect day at the plate. Knox had two triples and a single in three trips and drove in three runs.

Bob Rouse, Rennie French, Richard Black and Rusty Jack played their last game for the Blue and Gold.

Lion Juniors Clobber Dover Air

One of the reasons Harrington High consistently comes up with winning track team is the emphasis put on developing the boys at the junior high level. Graduation each year leaves gaping holes to fill in the varsity lineup. Frequently there are replacements in the eighth and ninth grades, who as freshmen and sophomores the following year, do an adequate job in replacing the current stars.

The 1965 crop of juniors had only a two point loss to mar an otherwise perfect campaign as they clobbered Dover Air Junior High 63-10 on Wednesday night in the season's finale.

Harrington won eight events outright on the nine-event program and shared first place in the other as Brent Wix, of H.H.S. and Gregg, of Dover Air finished all even in the 50 yard dash, with half miler Ken Tribbitt only an eyelash behind.

Oscar Matthews just nosed out teammate Gary Simpson in the 880 yard run. Eighth grader Matthews teamed with Wix, Jim Simpler and Jerry Cagle to annex the 880 relay.

Cagle won the 100 yard dash and ran with Wix, Buddy Wyatt and Harold Coleman to take the 440 relay in 49 seconds flat.

Simpler was first and Simpson third in the 220 yard dash. Coleman, Steve Welch and Bill Webb swept the high jump in that order. The same trio cleared the broads in the shot put with Webb the winner, Coleman the runnerup and Welch showing.

Wyatt outjumper Hall and Whitney of Dover Air to win the broad jump.
