

TERRY SIGNS SEWER BILL BUT WARNS ON BONDS

Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr., signed the $1.5 million sewer aid bill Monday, but warned that all future capital improvement projects must go through normal channels to win his approval.

The bill would authorize issuance of $1.5 million in bonds to provide funds to local communities for construction of sewer projects.

Terry said he signed the bill after being advised by the State Planning Office that there is a "critical need for sewerage facilities" and that the state would lose $450,000 in federal aid if the bill (SB 74) were not signed. He said State Planner John A. Bivens Jr. and the Water Pollution Commission urged that the bill be signed.

Emily Ann Brown Receives Master's Degree

Miss Emily Ann Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion L. Brown, of Harrington, received her Master of Education Degree Sunday at the 116th commencement of the University of Delaware.

Her cumulative index for her Master's is a 4.00, which is "A" in all subjects. She received her B.S. Degree from the University of Delaware in June, 1963, where she ranked in the top 10 percent of her class with a Dean's List average. Miss Brown is a graduate of Harrington High School Class of 1959 of which she was valedictorian.

Miss Brown is a member of Kappa Delta-Pi and served as graduate assistant to Dr. John Brown and Dr. Robert Uffelman in the math education department at the University of Delaware. Miss Brown has taught two years at the West Seaford Elementary School in Seaford.

Local Students to Attend Music Camp

The annual session of the Delaware Music Camp will take place this summer on the campus of the University of Delaware instead of in Dover as heretofore. The dates are from Sunday, June 20, to Sat., June 26.

The groups this year will consist of an orchestra for grades 7 through 12, a Senior High School Band from grades 10 through 12, a Junior High School Band for grades 7 through 9, a Senior High School Chorus and a small choir for grades 10 through 12, and a Junior High School Chorus for grades 7 through 9.

Workshops for music teachers will also be held in conjunction with the Delaware Music Camp with a one degree of credit for those who wish it.

Floyd T. Hart, director of music, State Department of Public Instruction, has announced the following faculty: Robert Spaffans, orchestra, of Springfield, Mass.; Symphony Orchestra; Dewitt Zuse, Junior High Band, director of bands and orchestras of the Cumberland Valley Joint School System; Ruthann Harrison, Junior High Chorus, of Trenton State College, New Jersey; Elizabeth Crook for the workshop, from the University of Delaware; Mary Hoffman, also for the workshop, Elementary and Junior High School Supervisor, Milwaukee, Wis.; Wilbur Hollman, Senior High Chorus, from Cedar Crest College, Allentown, Pa., and James M. Thurmond, Senior High Band, (Continued on Page 8)

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Clendenings attended the 79th Annual Convention of The Delaware Pharmaceutical Society at Ocean City, Maryland.

Palmatory Case to Go to Court

The City Council Thursday night agreed on $150 for damages to William E. Palmatory Sr., who is contesting the widening of Center Street in front of his house.

Setting the amount was a formality in order to put the case in the Superior Court for condemnation proceedings on a section of his property needed for street widening.

In the meanwhile, the State Highway Department is improving Delaware Avenue and the remainder of Center Street where all property owners have signed easements. Both thoroughfares are state-maintained roads.

It was thought the case was settled last month when Palmatory agreed to a chain-link fence to replace a hedge, but when he asked for "boot", the City decided to go to court.

Council, Tuesday night, also declared an abandoned car, on the property of Edward Robb, Center Street, a public nuisance. A house on the lot is owned by Ken Meredith. City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann was told to send him a notice to move the car within five days. Penalty for failure to do so is not less than $1 nor more than $100, with each day contributing a separate offense.

Kent Hall Addition Stalled

Kent County's "emergency" court house addition has come to a standstill.

In fact, six months have passed since a word about the addition has passed the lips of the Levy Court in its regular sessions.

"We're waiting," Levy Court Attorney N. Maxson Terry said Wednesday. "The proposals have gone to State Planning Director John C. Bivens Jr., and his office is so busy that I guess he hasn't had time to do anything about it."

At the last meeting on the addition, Bivens told the Levy Court he would rather see the county build a separate office building than add on the present one. The county had applied for a small section of state land behind the court house which would make construction costs cheaper.

Dover City officials also attended the January meeting. They would have to grant variances in regulations on parking, height and sideline areas if the addition is to be built according to plans.

Terry confirmed an authorization from the General Assembly for a $950,000 bond issue to build the addition has lain idle. The authorization was passed last June with a Senate amendment making it "an acute emergency" measure after struggles to get it under consideration and past the rule banning action on local legislation during the session.

City Building Inspector Jack T. Roe said the county has not even applied for variances needed for construction. "We attended that meeting in January," he said, "and that's the last we've heard of it."

Bivens was out of town Wednesday and could not be reached for comment on the progress his office is making towards a final decision on the addition.

The addition has been something of an emergency since 1963, when a bill was introduced authorizing it. (Continued on Page 4)

Warrington Jr.; 1st lieutenant, Charles Reynolds; 2nd lieutenant, Donald Woikoski, and secretary-treasurer, Roland Neeman. Fire and ambulance telephone number is the same, 284-4559.

MARSAN MADE ALDERMAN

Arthur Marsan was appointed City Alderman Tuesday night at a meeting of City Council. Since alderman are appointed every January, his appointment is effective until January 1966.

The City has been without an alderman since the recent death of Alderman Clarence Dyer. The alderman's business, mostly hearing traffic cases, has been going to Magistrate Elijah Harrington, Felton.

This practice, said Chief of Police Franklin Rogers, sometimes meant the community would be without police protection when the cases were being heard in Felton.

Marsan, a part-time policeman since last month, resigned his police post after his aldermanic appointment.

He had also been a part-time patrolman last year but had resigned in January to run, unsuccessfully, for the City Council.

An employe of Dover Rambler, Dover, he will operate as an alderman in the evenings and full time on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays. In emergency cases, hearings will be held before Magistrate Harrington.

The City is advertising this week for Marsan's replacement on the police force.

Marsan will have an office in his home. The Council, Tuesday evening, also authorized the purchase of a docket for him. The City has dockets in the office of Magistrate L. Gooden Callaway, who now works out of the City, and in the office of the late Clarence Dyer. City Attorney Grover Brown is negotiating with Callaway for the return of the docket, and with the Dyer estate for the return of its docket.

In other business, the Council acted as follows:

Funeral services were held Thursday at the Muehlenkemp Funeral Home, 835 York Street, Newport, Ky.

Delaware Day At World's Fair

July 2 is to be the day of entertainment and surprises when hundreds of Delawareans board the Pennsylvania railroad's special train for Delaware Day at the World's Fair in New York, according to Harold T. Bockman, chairman of the committee appointed by Governor Charles L. Terry, Jr.

Besides the program of entertainment to be staged by Delawareans at the U. S. Pavilion in the afternoon, Bockman said folk singer David Kennedy of Newark will make the trip and entertain passengers en route to New York.

Bockman also reports that arrangements have been worked out with the Dover "Jaycees" for the appearance of Miss Kathleen Grandell, Miss Deawere of 1965. Accompanied by her chaperone, Miss Mildred Burkhardt, Miss Delaware will board the train at Dover and visit the Fair as the guest of Governor Terry and his official party.

Since he sang for President Lyndon B. Johnson last year, folk singer Kennedy has been called to perform at more than 100 occasions. In addition to his knowledge of early tunes, Kennedy dresses in the manner of Benjamin Franklin — from the customary sleeve lace to stockings and buckled shoes.

Bockman said tickets for the one-day excursion are now on sale at railroad ticket agent offices from Delmar to Wilmington. The adult fares this year are 25 cents higher, Bockman pointed out, but the children's fare are more than proportionally lower.

Employee Lacks Hurt Milford

A Milford industry booster Monday said full employment in Delaware is making the task of attracting industry a difficult one.

"We're finding it tough to get industry here because of the full employment situation downstate," a spokesman for the Greater Milford Area Development Corporation said.

The spokesman who did not wish to be identified, said Milford recently lost "a relatively large industry," because its officials were uncertain whether they could find the necessary labor force in the downstate area.

His remarks were confirmed by Robert Dunning of the State Employment Security Commission in Dover.

"Employment right now is about as high as in any recent year," Dunning said. "Delaware has about a two per cent unemployment rate, in comparison with a five per cent national average."

American Legion State Convention June 19 and 20

The 1965 annual convention of the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary of Delaware will be held Saturday and Sunday, June 19 and 20, at Laurel. The Legion sessions will be held at the American Legion Home of Laurel Post No. 19, and the Auxiliary sessions will be held in the North Laurel Elementary School, in Laurel.

Mrs. George F. Foster, of Wilmington, the state president, will preside at the auxiliary sessions, and William Melville, of Hartly, department commander, will preside at the Legion sessions.

Delegates from the 26 auxiliary units throughout the state will attend to hear reports of the officers and to receive reports of the department chairmen which will be distributed to them in book form. Officers for the coming year will be elected at the Sunday session.

Terry Signs $1.8 Million Worth of Bills

Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr. Wednesday signed 36 bills, including measures to hike the motor vehicle registration fees and transfer Delcastle Farm to the New Castle County Levy Court.

The bills authorize $1,872,549 altogether in state appropriations. Of that amount $1,310,450 is for routine appropriations of a grant-in-aid nature and $499,761 is for additions to the fiscal 1966 Budget Act.

The increased registration fees, however, which go into effect in the quarter beginning July 1, should bring in additional revenues, in excess of what the 36 bills appropriate.

And another bill among the group (H.B. 310)—to raise the per-night bingo fee from $10 to $15—should result in a small amount of increased revenue.

The motor vehicle measure, the last of the governor's tax increase package to be signed, sets a flat $20 fee for the annual registration of all automobiles and station wagons.

It also establishes a $20 minimum for commercial and farm vehicles.

Automobile registration now costs $10 for vehicles weighing 4,000 pounds or less and $16 for those above that limit.

The omnibus amendment to the Budget Act (H.B. 322) makes changes in the original bill in addition to providing almost $500,000 in additional funds.

That bill contains a $250,000 contingency item for the Department of Mental Health, $25,000 for a study of the state's public school system, $15,000 for a study of Delaware's criminal laws and several salary adjustments.

Delcastle Farm is now owned by the State Department of Correction, but under H.B. 248 must be turned over to the New Castle County Levy Court by Jan. 2, 1968. The county may use the farm for a recreational area that might even include a golf course.

S.B. 78, also signed Wednesday appropriates $50,000 to the State Highway Department for the establishment, operation and administration of state-owned beachlands in Sussex County. The money can be spent this year or next.

Despite the many bills signed by Terry, others are pending from the busy windup of the recent legislative session. Bills not yet acted upon include the capital improvements program package, the abandoned car bill and the measure to change the appointing authority of the Wilmington Board of Education members.

Among the bills that were signed Wednesday were H.B. 133, empowering the State Fire Prevention Commission to deter-

Felton Collision Injures Three

A collision on Kent County Road 382 Sunday, put a Felton woman in Kent General Hospital.

Mrs. Anne M. Pritchett, 65, suffered fractured pelvis and ribs, police said, when the car driven by her husband, Alvin, 72, backed from a driveway into the path of a car operated by William A. Sipple, 22, of Felton.

The accident occurred 2 1/2 miles south of Canterbury, they added.

Pritchett and Sipple were treated for cuts and bruises and released at Kent General Hospital.

Pritchett was charged for failing to grant right of way when leaving a private driveway and is scheduled to appear before Magistrate Elijah Harrington at Felton, June 19.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. J. Alfred Hopkins announces the engagement of Miss Margaret Ann Edgar, to Myles W. Creles, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Myles W. Creles, of Lewisburg, Pa.

Miss Edgar is a 1965 graduate of Harrington High School. She is an employe of the Acme Markets Inc., in Harrington.

Delmarva Festival Day To Be Held At World's Fair

The Delmarva Advisory Council, an agency created by the Governors of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia to promote tourism and economic development on the Eastern Shore Peninsula, is sponsoring Delmarva Festival Day at the New York World's Fair on July 31.

Final approval of plans for the celebration were given by Council members at the meeting here in the Administration Building of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel Commission.

The Council endorsed a proposal to make a national park of the Maryland-Virginia portions of Assateague Island. It supported bills by Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton (R-Md.) and Rep. Thomas N. Downing (D-Va.) for the federal government to build and maintain a model of the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries for scientific studies of tidal movements, erosion, current flows and other phenomena.

Council members approved preliminary work plans for a base study of the Eastern Shore economy by professional consultants which may lead to federal grants for economic development under legislation requested by the President now pending in Congress.

In a separate action, the Council voted to actively support passage of legislation proposed by Rep. Harris B. McDowell, Jr. (D-Del.) for establishment of a Poultry Research Laboratory in Georgetown. The greatest economic gains for the Delmarva poultry industry may derive from research, in the Council's view. The Delaware laboratory would be devoted to such needed research.

Lloyd R. Leslie, Delaware utility executive and president of the Council, requested that as many Shore organizations as possible attend Delmarva Festival Day at the New York World's Fair. A special train of the Pennsylvania Railroad will leave Delmar on the Maryland-Delaware border, north of Salisbury, at 5:50 a.m., for a round trip to the Fair on (Continued on Page 8)

Also surviving is a son, John; a daughter, Joyce, both at home; her mother, Mrs. Emily Morris, Seaford, and a brother, Walter Carpenter, Wilmington.

City To Hold Hearing On Franchise For Natural Gas

The City could have natural-gas mains, it was revealed Tuesday night when the City Council agreed to hold a hearing.

Chesapeake Utilities Corp., wants to install the mains but two steps are necessary. First, a hearing must be held to get the citizens' viewpoint, suggestions for route of mains and other details.

The hearing will be held at City Hall at 7:30 p. m., Tuesday, July 6, preceding the regular meeting scheduled to start at 8 p. m.

Secondly, a referendum must be held not less than 30 days and not more than 60 days after the hearing.

It has been advanced that a natural-gas system would make the community more attractive to industry.

It was stated at a Council meeting it would be possible for the City to buy the system.

Annul Wool Pool Set For Fairground

The Delaware Sheep and Wool Association will hold its annual wool pool at the Delaware State Fairgrounds in Harrington, Saturday, June 19, and 20, between 7 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The Delaware wool pool enables local growers to market their wool more effectively according to John Shropshire, extension livestock specialist at the University of Delaware. By pooling their individual clips, small growers are able to increase their bargaining position and their incomes. Last year Shropshire says sheepmen who participated in the pool realized approximately 20 cents more per pound than those who sold directly to wool buyers.

The 1965 price is based on competitive bids received from several large buyers. All producers in Delaware and the surrounding area are eligible to take part in the pool.

To get top market prices for their wool Shropshire says producers should tie each fleece separately with paper twine, sort out tags and dirt from fleeces, and deliver them clean and dry on sale day.

Original receipts, which are necessary for ASCS wool payments will be provided at time of sale.

Wool pools which are well over one hundred years old are starting to take on more importance for small growers according to the specialist. This has been caused by buying practices in the wool marketing system.

Since World War II, wool top-makers and manufacturers have tended to increase their direct buying in the wool producing areas. Because mill buyers are interested in relatively large purchases of wool at a time, growers turned to pooling their wool.

Approximately half the wool pools operating in the United States today were organized after 1950.

Field Day Set For August 11

The first public viewing of University of Delaware's experimental sub-irrigation plots will be held at Farm and Home Field Day August 11 at the University of Delaware Georgetown Substation.

This is the 21st year the University has held a field day at its Georgetown farm. The first such event was held in 1945 to show off the University's newly acquired research farm. Since then many thousands have taken advantage of the opportunity to see the research in progress, at the annual event.

Field day visitors this year will see more than 80 different research projects and literally thousands of experiments and replications. These include tests in plant production, new varieties, weed control techniques, poultry production and many others.

The sub-irrigation tests are expected to draw many interested crop producers who have suffered under successive years of sub-normal moisture and who are looking for an effective economical irrigation system.

Other highlights of field day includes bus tours of the experimental plots, a sick plant clinic where visitors can take specimens of ailing plants for diagnosis, and a chicken dinner.

A program for the ladies attending field day is being planned by Miss Fran Shoffner, Sussex County Home Economics Extension Agent. It will include a home laundry demonstration using the new soft detergents. There will also be a taste-test exhibit where they can cast their votes for favorite cantaloupe varieties based on individual taste.

A special field day committee headed by J. Frank Gordy, Substation Director, is working out details for the annual program. Last year more than 1,000 people participated in the days activities.

Sour Cream Adds Gourmet Touch To Meals

June is Dairy Month — celebrate with a gourmet touch; use sour cream. Cultured sour cream adds a tangy goodness and valuable nutrients to even the most ordinary foods, says Miss Janet Coblenz, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware.

Grandmother used cream that had soured naturally to make mouth watering gravies, sauces and pies. Unfortunately, naturally-soured cream has a flavor that varies from batch to batch; sometimes it is too strong or bitter. Homemakers today are fortunate to have dairy-cultured sour cream that is always fresh, smooth in texture, and delicately tart in flavor. Pasteurized, homogenized, dairy-made sour cream is made from scientifically cultured Grade A light cream, says Miss Coblenz.

Nourishing as well as delicious, sour cream contains practically the same calories and nutrients as sweet light cream. A tablespoon contains 29 calories, much less than a tablespoon of mayonnaise with 110 calories or salad oil with 60 calories per tablespoon it often replaces.

All dairy foods are outstanding sources of calcium, phosphorus, complete proteins, vitamin A and riboflavin. These are nutrients needed at all ages for good health.

Sour cream is a perishable food and should always be stored in the refrigerator, says Miss Coblenz. If kept tightly closed in the original container, sour cream will keep well up to two weeks. To prevent air from getting in and reducing freshness, store the container upside down. Do not freeze because sour cream seeps water as it thaws.

Cook with sour cream to add an extra-flavorful richness to a wide variety of foods, says Miss Coblenz. Try sour cream waffles soon; they are a Scandinavian favorite often served cold with afternoon coffee. Hot breads baked with sour cream or buttermilk are wonderfully tender and rich in flavor.

When sour cream is used in baking, baking soda is usually the leavening agent. One-half teaspoon baking soda for each cup of sour cream produces the same leavening effect as one teaspoon baking powder with one cup sweet milk. Combine the soda with the dry ingredients in the recipe, not with the sour cream.

Add a continental touch of glamour to meat dishes and casseroles with sour cream, suggests Miss Coblenz. Beef Stroganoff, an unforgettable Hungarian taste-tempter, features beef with a sour cream-tomato sauce, served over hot rice. Sauerbraten is a German delicacy that is well worth the long time it takes to prepare. To make it, marinate a beef pot roast in a spicy mixture for four days, cook slowly and serve with a sour cream gravy. Check your favorite cookbook for recipes for these favorites or for recipes for sour cream with pork chops, veal and chicken.

Be careful when adding sour cream to a hot mixture, says Miss Coblenz. To keep it smooth, add just before removing the food from the heat. Add only a tablespoon at a time. Never allow the mixture to boil. Serve immediately for the best flavor.

Scrambled eggs made with sour cream and minced onions are deliciously different. For six eggs, use one-half cup sour cream, two one-fourth cups minced onion, one teaspoon prepared mustard and salt and pepper to taste. Cook as you would any other scrambled eggs.

Top baked potatoes or baked tomatoes with a dollop of sour cream. Add a sour cream sauce to mushrooms or to green beans or broccoli for "company" vegetable dishes. Flavor the sour cream sauce for the green beans with one-fourth cup minced onion, one-fourth teaspoon dry mustard and three-fourths teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Sour cream has an affinity for salads. Many homemakers have never used sour cream any other way. With far fewer calories than salad oil or mayonnaise, sour cream dressings are delicious additions to low calorie menus, says Miss Coblenz.

Use sour cream plain or seasoned with lemon juice, sherry or fresh mint as a dressing for fruit salads. Make a creamy coleslaw dressing by seasoning one-half cup sour cream with one tablespoon lemon juice, two teaspoons celery seed, one teaspoon sugar and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Potato salad is tangier with a sour cream dressing. Try adding deviled ham to your next sour cream potato salad for a hearty treat. Tossed salads and cucumber salads with sour cream dressing are old favorites worth repeating, says Miss Coblenz.

Cheese cakes that may combine cottage cheese, sour cream and even whipping cream really celebrate Dairy Month. They are a cool, tart dessert for hot June days.

Fluffy whipped sour cream used as a topping makes a gourmet dessert out of plain gingerbread or pudding, says Miss Coblenz. Use a chilled bowl and beater for best results. Do not overwhip or you may churn butter. Garnish attractively with chopped nuts, chopped drained maraschino cherries, chocolate curls or crushed peppermint stick candy.

All through the meal, sour cream adds a wonderful flavor and valuable nutrients. Use it often during Dairy Month and all through the year, Miss Coblenz suggests.

Merrymaker's HDC Notes

The Merrymakers Home Demonstration Club held a smorgasbord last Wednesday evening at the home of Catherine Petroski at Felton.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. Imogene Kramedas and Mrs. Virginia Winkler.

Each member brought her favorite dish. Seventeen members were present and each was presented a corsage by the hostess.

Mrs. Margaret Torres is a new member. Mrs. Becky Hollenger was a guest.

The business meeting followed the dinner.

"Joy of Eating," was presented by Mrs. Mary Ann Martin and Mrs. Ida Dickerson.

This was the last meeting until September.

First Del. Chapter Of SCORE Is Organized

The first Delaware Chapter of SCORE has been organized by a group of Wilmingtonians, with the close co-operation and support of the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce. SCORE is a program which utilizes the vast resources of general business management experience that exists among the many retired and semi-retired business executives throughout Delaware. Originally sponsored by the Small Business Administration, the program provides small businesses with counseling assistance, designed to create a more balanced and organized approach to business management functions, such as finance, production, and marketing. The fundamental concept of the SCORE program is that of a "business man to businessman advisory relationship." The effort is intended to be concentrated upon the owner, in contrast to the operating details of his business. SCORE's paramount objective is to help make the small owner-operator a better manager. "Effective utilization of the retired executive management experience with small business owners can make substantial contributions in the strengthening of our basic and broad business community. This is particularly true where small businesses are not presently in a position to be served economically by the professional management consultant," reported Howell D. Chickering, chairman of SCORE's local chapter. Mr. Chickering is a retired DuPont Co. executive.

The SCORE concept, while capitalized upon by the Small Business Administration, will be recognized by Delawareans as the service conceived and carried out by Maurice duPont Lee for many years. Mr. Lee has graciously consented to be vice-chairman of SCORE in Wilmington.

Employers of less than 25 people will be assisted by practical advice from successful retired executives and businessmen, at no cost for their time. SCORE involves not only a great public service, but also a public trust.

DOES THE WELFARE DEPARTMENT KNOW THESE THINGS?

Does it know the physical and mental abilities of welfare recipients?
Does it know the education, the skills, and lack of skills of the recipients?
Does it know of the many job openings which could be filled by welfare recipients?

LOOK FOR A SEWER REFERENDUM

The signing of a $1.5 million sewer aid bill Monday by Gov. Terry is a harbinger Harrington will have a referendum to provide much-needed improvements of its sewer system.
The City Council has already authorized its consulting engineers, Richardson Associates, to prepare a comprehensive sewer plan, meaning sanitary sewers, for the community and adjoining areas.

FANNING THE FLAMES

Freedom of the press is one of the most cherished of our so-called "four freedoms." Perhaps more than any other of these freedoms, that of the press has suffered least in the recent onslaughts made by the federal courts on the United States Constitution.
Yet, distasteful as it is to make the admission, it must be reported that there are some segments of the news media—press, magazines, television and radio—which confuse liberty with license.

A BAD TAX

There is talk about the possibility of levying a travel tax, of $50 or $100, on American tourists who go abroad. The theory seems to be that if foreign travel was thus discouraged it would reduce the volume of U.S. dollars spent in other lands and help to alleviate the balance of payments problems.
No one minimizes the importance of that problem. But a travel tax would be about as bad a way to attack it as one can imagine.

PRICE TAG ON THE PRICELESS

A New York bank has announced after exhaustive studies that the American housewife is worth $159.34 a week in terms of current wage scales for the various household duties she performs.
It is only fair to assume that even a banker, who naturally has a high regard for the dollar value, must have had tongue in cheek when he dreamed up this gimmick.
To put a market value on any part of the contributions a wife and mother makes to the home and to family life is like putting a price tag on religion, character and integrity.

ONCE BITTEN, TWICE SHY

The staff of the Special Assistant to the President for Consumer Affairs asked the American Retail Federation to present its views on matters of consumer interest.
The general substance of that position is found in these words: "We have stated repeatedly that the retailer sees his function as the purchasing agent for the consumer. As purchasing agents, the merchants of America have accepted the responsibility of fair value and fair treatment; their programs of inspection and testing and their record of service are known to all. We welcome programs which will help consumers increase their satisfaction from their purchases, and we are particularly interested in education activities, directed to special consumer groups.
We are of the firm belief that there are currently on the books, laws which, adequately enforced, are equal to and even go beyond some of the problems for which relief additional legislation has been urged; that many other laws and regulations need to be pruned and reconsidered so that they will accomplish their objectives rather than impede commerce; and that there is wide room for voluntary co-operation among persons of good faith, leading towards solution of consumers problems and business differences."

EDUCATION FIRST

Not too long ago we read an article written by a student at a university. That student questioned the right of school authorities to make and enforce certain regulations. One statement in particular was that school authorities did not have the right to make rules against the drinking of alcoholic beverage by students—not to enforce said rules by suspension or otherwise.
Only a few months ago, several hundred students at a California university demonstrated, staged riots, acted a fool in general to such an extent that the process of education was brought almost to a standstill for a period of time. Their acts threatened to close down a major university and halt the efforts of thousands of other students who honestly sought an education.
Throughout the nation in recent years have been stories of school pupils remaining out of school for several days to demonstrate or riot about this or that—often about some trivial matter that did not have too much direct bearing on the real purpose of a school: to educate people in the art of making a contribution to society and to themselves.
Students in each instance, were wrong. School authorities have every right in the world to formulate such rules that may be for the best interest of the student body as a whole and to the patrons who are paying the bill in order that their children may have an opportunity to gain an education. No student or other person has the right to disrupt that educational process. School authorities have a perfect right to enforce such regulations. Furthermore, any student who feels that he does not have to abide by such rules—does not want to avail himself of the opportunity to secure an education—should quit or be suspended. He has no right to disrupt the education of others.
School authorities should not be blamed for such conditions, although some fault may be theirs. Parents, political leaders, the courts, major political parties and society must each accept a portion of the blame. Each have been too lax with discipline; too many fuzzy theories have been thrown into the air about "rights"; too many involved in wrong-doing have been turned free without any sort of punishment; too many young people have been spoiled with too much at the wrong time.
We can quickly visualize our fate back in the thirties had we come up with such action on our part. Had we shown by rioting that we did not want an education—we would have gotten our wish: put back behind the handles of a plow.

Veteran's News

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Q—I have received an insurance application and a pamphlet from the VA, generally describing the provisions of the new insurance law. I already have $10,000 worth of government insurance. Am I eligible for more insurance?
A—No. VA sent applications and general information to veterans on the compensation rolls on the basis they are the group having the greatest potential eligibility. The mailing was conducted from records maintained by our automatic data processing office. These records do not show the insurance status of the veteran.
Q—I have government life insurance on the term plan. When will I be told of my eligibility for the new modified life plan which became available, May 1?
A—Generally, veterans with term insurance will be notified of the new modified life plan when their policy is scheduled for renewal on the term plan. Prior to expiration of the term contract, the veteran will be given complete information regarding the new insurance.
Q—My military service started subsequent to January 1, 1957. Am I eligible for the insurance I have heard so much about?
A—No. The insurance you refer to is available only to certain veterans having service between October 8, 1940 and January 1, 1957, and who meet other requirements established by the VA.
Q—Are members of veterans' families admitted as patients to VA hospitals?
A—Not unless the members are also veterans in their own right. VA hospital care is for veterans only except, naturally, in cases of emergency that happen in the vicinity of the hospital.
Q—Can World War II or Korean Conflict veterans get college or similar educational training under the law?
A—The educational programs for both World War II or Korean Conflict veterans have come to an end. The only educational program now being carried on by VA applied to the children of deceased or totally disabled veterans. NOTE:—Vocational rehabilitation of veterans with service-connected disabilities is a permanent program still going on and is not to be confused with the educational programs.
Q—I was retired from the Air Force because of disability in December 1964 after 3 years service. Will I be eligible for the National Service Life Insurance which went on sale May 1?
A—No. This insurance is available only to disabled veterans who had service between October 9, 1940 and December 31, 1956. You might be eligible for a special type of insurance available to veterans with disabilities incurred in service after April 25, 1951. You would have one year after the VA notifies you that your disability is service connected in which to apply.
Q—Is the additional $35 monthly "household benefit" available to all veterans receiving a non-service-connected pension assuming that they meet other requirements of the law?
A—This payment is available only to the veteran receiving pension under the "new law."
Q—I am receiving pension under the old law. I received a card from the VA with my December 1964 check to be completed and returned to the VA if I desired to change to the new law. This card showed it had to be completed and returned prior to May 1, 1965, to receive the increased pension from January 1, 1965. I did not get the card to the VA before May 1, 1965; can I still change to the new law after that date?
A—You may send in your election card anytime, however, if the card was not received by the VA before May 1, 1965, no retroactive payment can be made and the new rate payable would be effective only from the date the VA received the election card.

Q—I have lost my discharge papers. Can VA furnish me with a copy?
A—No. It can be obtained from your individual branch of service. These addresses may be obtained from any VA regional office.
Q—Are World War I veterans eligible to buy the new GI insurance now on sale?
A—No. The insurance is available only to those who had military service between October 8, 1940 and December 31, 1956.
Q—How much can I borrow on my 20 - payment life insurance policy which is now over twelve years old? What will be the rate of interest?
A—You may borrow 94 percent of the cash reserve value after the policy has been in force for one year. This simply means that the longer the policy is in force, the greater the cash surrender value and loan values. Read your policy for complete information or write to the office where you pay your premiums. The interest rate is 4 percent yearly.

believes that engineers trained in cost accounting with a keen interest in agri-business can be quite useful to those industries that are closely associated with agriculture. "These businesses, if they are to expand, remain competitive and still show a profit, must analyze their current costs, and compare them with costs for new processes, new machines, and new locations."

Methodist Church School Leaders To Meet

Dr. David J. Randolph, Assistant Professor of Preaching and the Pastoral Ministry at Drew University, Madison, New Jersey, will serve as resource leader for the Methodist Church school leaders weekend to be held at Pe-Co-Meth, June 19-20, 1965.
Dr. Randolph, reared in Elkton, Maryland, is a member of the Peninsula Conference of the Methodist Church. He is a graduate of the University of Delaware and holds a Doctor of Philosophy degree from Boston University.
The church school leaders conference is composed of church school superintendents, superintendents of the children's, youth and adult department of local church schools and chairmen of Commissions of Education of local churches.
Registration will take place in the late morning and the program will begin at 2:00 o'clock. The weekend will conclude Sunday after the noonday meal.

Three Degrees In Seven Years For U. of D. Graduate

At a time when college students tend to specialize in a particular area of knowledge, one degree recipient at the University of Delaware's 116th commencement exercises (June 13) devirified. During seven years of study at the University, Henry G. Law, Wilmington, has earned degrees in engineering, liberal arts, and agriculture. And he believes this unique combination of knowledge will make him a more valuable employee in his chosen field—engineering.
In 1963, Law was the only University of Delaware graduate to receive both a Bachelor of Mechanical Engineering degree and a Bachelor of Arts degree in a special five year Liberal Arts-Engineering program.
Convinced that the modern business man needs more than just the basics of his field, he enrolled the following fall in the School of Agriculture's graduate program in agricultural economics. He was able to take advantage of some of his previous training when he chose to study the economics of soybean processing in Delaware.

thorizing a $500,000 bond issue by the county to finance the construction. The bill passed the House, but the General Assembly adjourned before it received Senate action.
Last June, the Levy Court waged war against time to have the $950,000 bond authorization introduced and passed before the legislature adjourned, and won its battle.
The bill was passed and signed and then went to the bonding firm of Reed, Hoyt, Washburn and McCarthy for approval. The firm discovered an error in the title of the bill, and it had to be re-passed by the legislature.
Meanwhile, scarcely a Levy Court session passed without mention of the addition and the acute need for it, and Architect Walter L. Carlson became a familiar sight at meetings.
Others concerned also visited frequently—Bivens, city officials and county officers involved in planning the addition.
The bond authorization for $950,000—nearly double the amount first asked has no time limit.

The Delmarva Chicken Festival is on at Salisbury. But festival time came early for 12 county agricultural agents who visited the Eastern Shore last week. They came from 12 eastern states and are making a three week study tour of farming activity.

We were hosts in Delaware for a day and a half. Our main objective was to show the importance of the Broiler Industry to our agriculture. Better than half of the dollar return comes from broilers. The corn and soybean enterprises use about 80% of our tillable land. Much of this goes into poultry feed.

Our visitors were much impressed with the Hagley Museum west of Wilmington. The flour mill and the tanning industry early history as depicted there, besides the quality gunpowder story, are truly miniature spectacle shows.

The high degree of automation at the new General Foods plant was in marked contrast to the museum exhibits. We also visited the Chestnut Run Film Division plant of the DuPont Company where utilization research is refined.

The 100 foot climb up the control tower of the Dover Air Force Base was well worth the effort. Planes were being guided in and out by the team of controllers in a low key, but a highly coordinated manner.

Our tax ditch and watershed programs were eye openers to the agents. Fred Mott, our work unit conservator, conducted the tour of our newly completed Whitmarsh Tax Ditch Company. Land values tend to double and become more usable as outlets are provided for excess surface water.

The Northeastern Poultry Producers Council is looking for pretty girls to represent Delaware in the 7th annual NEPPCO poultry princess pageant. It will be held in conjunction with the NEPPCO exposition and convention in Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 13. NEPPCO is particularly interested in winners from local poultry festivals and poultry association contests. Contestants must be between the ages of 17 and 23, single and not previously married and sponsored by a recognized organization, company, or industry firm located in the state. For more information write to NEPPCO, 10 Rutgers Place, Trenton, New Jersey 08618, or call our County Extension Office 736-1448.

One of nature's biological phenomena is repeating itself in nearby Pennsylvania. The 17-year locust or periodical cicada is having a coming out party in isolated parts of the state. This brood last appeared in 1948.

Female locusts damage trees by cutting slits in the branches and laying eggs in the opening. The immature stage of the periodical cicada also eats roots during the seventeen years they are developing. This long period of hibernation usually takes place 18 to 24 inches in the ground. Then they dig out and are around six weeks before the 17-year cycle starts again.

Many Delaware farmers are concerned about hay crop prospects for the coming year. After suffering from a severely reduced hay crop again last year, caused by dry weather, the unusually open winter has thinned many stands.

Winter killing and some heaving has taken place in many fields and may cause a reduction in this year's yield. These conditions are causing many farmers to look for annual crops which can be grown this summer to supplement their regular hay crop.

Two plans are possible. One is to plant additional crops for ensilage and the second is a temporary hay crop. The first is better if silo space allows it. Corn silage is high yielding and high in quality. It can be harvested relatively easy compared with most temporary hay crops. Sorghum can also be grown for silage but produces a lower quality silage than corn.

If a farmer decides to plant a temporary hay crop, Piper sudangrass, one of the sorghum-sudan hybrids such as Sudox or Sweet Sioux or a mixture of soybeans and German Millet can be grown. These crops produce good yields but are generally difficult to cure and bale as hay. A stem crusher is a must if good quality hay is to be made.

Sudangrass and hybrids need much fertilizer. Broadcast and disk in 800 pounds of 10-10-10 or equivalent before drilling 30 or more pounds of seed per acre. The soybean-sudan mixture should be sown at the rate of 90 pounds of soybeans and 25 pounds sudangrass. Fertilize the same as for sudangrass alone.

Sudangrass should be cut at an early heading stage or before. Sudangrasses have an advantage over soybeans in that they recover following cutting and can usually be cut 2 or 3 times. Soybeans are cut only once. However, tall growing sudangrass may be more difficult to cure for hay unless it is cut early.

German Millet and soybeans can be used as a supplementary hay crop. Many dairymen have followed this practice during years when the regular hay crop is on the short side. Use 1 bushel of soybeans and 15 pounds of German Millet. Ogen, Bethel, and Delaware varieties are all acceptable varieties to use with German Millet.

There are many homemakers who believe that there is nothing like sunshine for drying white clothes. They continue to hang their sheets on the line, in shade outdoors. Sheets hung dryer sitting idle indoors. Don't automatic dryers cause yellowing? It is true that automatic dryers tend to yellow white muslin. Too much sun does this also. Tests show that six hours in the sun produce nearly as much yellowing as a run in the automatic dryer.

The homemaker who really wants her white clothes to stay white will hang them indoors or sheet. Even unbleached muslin in bright sunshine for an hour and a half show little yellowing. Beyond that length of time, there is a visible difference in whiteness. Besides, many hours in the sun will weaken the fabric in a sheet. Even unbleached muslin suffers when left in the sun too long.

Knitwear is the rage this season. How do you store it? More and more of the fashionable knitted clothes are made from synthetic fibers. Be sure to provide drawer space so these sweaters and other knitted garments are on a flat surface. Avoid hanging them on hangers in a clothes closet because some knits stretch in hanging and lose their shape.

Shelf paper or linen makes a better lining for the drawer than newspaper. Treated shelf paper absorbs grease and repels moisture, and you eliminate the risk of printer's ink from the newspaper transferring to your garments. Arrange your garments loosely in the drawer to avoid pressure. Place white or light colored knits on one side of the drawer and dark colored garments on the other. Protect the light colored knits with tissue paper or polyethylene dry-cleaning bags as a precaution against crocking or rubbing off and sublimation of dyes during storage—a dye changing to a gas and then re-depositing as a solid.

Does a machine washable knit need special handling? To prepare knits for laundering, empty pockets, fasten buttons, baste along the edge of scoop necklines or snug turtlenecks and ribbed cuffs and bands, untie knit bows, and turn down cuffs. Turn garments inside out to prevent buttons and bead trim from catching on other pieces, and to curb fuzzing and piling on the surface.

Most knits made of synthetic fibers—such as nylon, orlon, dacron, and acrilan—can be machine-washed and dryer-dried, whether bulky or lightweight. However, a dark or bright garment should be individually hand-washed in plenty of soap or detergent suds and rinses the first few times to flush away excess dye. After that, it can be put with other colored pieces. Set an automatic washer to the synthetic or 5 to 8 minute cycle.

What is the best way to dry knitwear? Before machine-drying, let knits go through the washer's spin cycle and then set the dryer at low. Otherwise, remove knits dripping wet after the last rinse and hang them over a line or shower rod. Or

There are many homemakers who believe that there is nothing like sunshine for drying white clothes. They continue to hang their sheets on the line, in shade outdoors. Sheets hung dryer sitting idle indoors. Don't automatic dryers cause yellowing? It is true that automatic dryers tend to yellow white muslin. Too much sun does this also. Tests show that six hours in the sun produce nearly as much yellowing as a run in the automatic dryer.

The homemaker who really wants her white clothes to stay white will hang them indoors or sheet. Even unbleached muslin in bright sunshine for an hour and a half show little yellowing. Beyond that length of time, there is a visible difference in whiteness. Besides, many hours in the sun will weaken the fabric in a sheet. Even unbleached muslin suffers when left in the sun too long.

Knitwear is the rage this season. How do you store it? More and more of the fashionable knitted clothes are made from synthetic fibers. Be sure to provide drawer space so these sweaters and other knitted garments are on a flat surface. Avoid hanging them on hangers in a clothes closet because some knits stretch in hanging and lose their shape.

Shelf paper or linen makes a better lining for the drawer than newspaper. Treated shelf paper absorbs grease and repels moisture, and you eliminate the risk of printer's ink from the newspaper transferring to your garments. Arrange your garments loosely in the drawer to avoid pressure. Place white or light colored knits on one side of the drawer and dark colored garments on the other. Protect the light colored knits with tissue paper or polyethylene dry-cleaning bags as a precaution against crocking or rubbing off and sublimation of dyes during storage—a dye changing to a gas and then re-depositing as a solid.

Does a machine washable knit need special handling? To prepare knits for laundering, empty pockets, fasten buttons, baste along the edge of scoop necklines or snug turtlenecks and ribbed cuffs and bands, untie knit bows, and turn down cuffs. Turn garments inside out to prevent buttons and bead trim from catching on other pieces, and to curb fuzzing and piling on the surface.

Most knits made of synthetic fibers—such as nylon, orlon, dacron, and acrilan—can be machine-washed and dryer-dried, whether bulky or lightweight. However, a dark or bright garment should be individually hand-washed in plenty of soap or detergent suds and rinses the first few times to flush away excess dye. After that, it can be put with other colored pieces. Set an automatic washer to the synthetic or 5 to 8 minute cycle.

What is the best way to dry knitwear? Before machine-drying, let knits go through the washer's spin cycle and then set the dryer at low. Otherwise, remove knits dripping wet after the last rinse and hang them over a line or shower rod. Or PREVUE OF THE 19 FINALISTS in the 1965 Delmarva Pageant. From their number the pageant judges will select a Queen of Delmarva Poultry at the 18th annual Delmarva Chicken Festival in Salisbury, June 17, 18 and 19. Pageant will be held Thursday and Friday nights at the Maryland State Teachers College auditorium. Left to right, they are: Miss Salisbury, Sharon Cannon; Miss Greenwood, Joyce Ann Dean; Miss Rehoboth, Lione McDowell; Miss Georgetown, Jo Ann Walls; Miss Milford, Sharon Kirby; Miss Delmar, Rose Marie Tull; Miss Berlin, Peggy Cardella Holler; Miss Pocomoke, Carol Sue Hawkins; Miss Chincoteague, Cathy Jo Shelly; Miss Federalsburg, Paulette Trice; Miss Easton, Belle Preston Jauchen; Miss Bridgeville, Linda Diane Short; Miss St. Michaels, Edith Ann Wrightson; Miss Seaford, Carol Loraine Wilson; Miss Selbyville, Dione Byrum; Miss Laurel, Donna Lee Hastings; Miss Harrington, Linda Sue Richardson; Miss Greensboro, Bonnie Lee Bilbrough and Miss Lewes, Juanita Diane Short.

34 Girls to Compete In Festival Beauty Pageant

A total of 34 pretty girls, 19 of them adult-size and 15 tot-size, will vie for honors Thursday and Friday in the Delmarva Pageant finals at the 18th annual Delmarva Chicken Festival in Salisbury, Md.

All 34 finalists have previously earned their right to compete at Salisbury by winning preliminary pageants in their home communities earlier this spring. Only exception in Chincoteague's entry, Miss Cathy Jo Shelly, who was named Queen last August at Pony Penny Day in her Virginia community.

The tots of three-to-school-age take the stage first. They'll appear first in playsuits and then in frilly party dresses at the Salisbury State Teacher's College auditorium at 2 p.m., Thursday. W. Joseph Williams of Seaford, who, with wife Kitty, is co-chairman of the annual Delmarva pageant, will be master of ceremonies.

Little Miss Delmarva of 1964, otherwise known as Kimberly Kay Parsons of Pocomoke, will be presented. Music will be furnished by Howard Tingle.

Their bigger sisters swing into action at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in the same auditorium, with Ed Marzosa of Georgetown, as master of ceremonies. There will be a presentation of special guests, including the 1964 Miss Delmarva, Miss Hettie Davis, of Bridgeville, and her court, and then the 19 beauties will parade down the runways in evening gowns. Later in the evening, they will repeat the performance in their official Catalina swim suit.

Grand finale won't be until Friday night, however, in the same auditorium at the same time. There, the girls will once more appear in both swim suits and evening gowns and master of ceremonies, Ed Marzosa, will interview each contestant. The girls themselves will choose Miss Personality of 1965 from among their number, Miss Delmarva of 1964 will deliver her final message, and then the judges will announce their selections for the 1965 Queen of Delmarva Poultry, and her runner-up. Following the crowning, prizes to the three winners will be awarded.

Mrs. Robert Booth of Seaford, will provide the music. In order of their appearance on stage, the 15 Little Queen contestants will be: Mary Beth Peck, Lewes; Alice Louise Christopher, Greensboro; Anita Jo Redden, Harrington; Rita Marie Stevens, Laurel; Mary Jean Bunting, Selbyville; Lisa Joan Kintz, Seaford; Cristine Pritchett, Bridgeville; Penny Lynn Covey, Federalsburg; Joyce Johnson, Chincoteague; Elizabeth Ann Bolte, Pocomoke; Lisa Ann Lins, Delmar; Terri Teresa Harrison, Milford; Sharon Elaine Wagner, Georgetown; Kimberly Faith Baker, Greenwood; Patti Sue Gravenor, Salisbury.

Their bigger sisters will appear in the following order: Juanita Diane Short, Lewes; Bonnie Lee Bilbrough, Greensboro; Linda Sue Richardson, Harrington; Donna Lee Hastings, Laurel;

Dione Byrum, Selbyville; Carol Laraine Wilson, Seaford; Edith Ann Wrightson, St. Michaels, Md.; Linda Diane Short, Bridgeville; Belle Preston Jauchen, Easton; Paulette Trice, Federalsburg; Cathy Jo Shelly, Chincoteague; Carol Sue Hawkins, Pocomoke; Peggy Cardella Holler, Berlin; Rose Marie Tull, Delmar;

Sharon Kirby, Milford; Jo Ann Walls, Georgetown; Lione McDowell, Rehoboth; Joyce Ann Dean, Greenwood; Sharon Cannon, Salisbury.

ONE OF THE CONTESTANTS who will cook in the National Chicken Cooking Contest finals at Salisbury, Friday in the Senior Range Division is Arkansas' State Chicken Cooking Queen, Mrs. Joseph H. Spooner, of Faraway Farm, Junction City. She's shown here at the award ceremonies where she was crowned Arkansas' champion cook. The mother of six, she is 43 years old and was a mission teacher for 15 years after she went to the Belgian Congo in 1942 as a bride. Her recipe is called "Cock-A-Doodle Casserole".

Fertility Extremes Highlighted In Demonstration

Agronomists at the University of Delaware are preparing demonstration plots that they guarantee will "show some differences regardless of the weather". They have started tests on the Tom Fooks farm adjoining the University's Georgetown Substation designed to show corn production techniques at their extremes.

Plots will show fertilizer from none to 200-200-200, poultry manure from none to 20 tons, and plant spacing at 12,000 - 15,000 and 18,000 plants per acre. They will also evaluate 14 different hybrids, special nitrogen and weed control treatments, and irrigation.

Ed Ralph, associate county agent in Sussex County says that regardless of the weather there will be something to see.

In another field test the University is testing grain and silage yields from corn plots fertilized according to soil test recommendations, and plots where fertilizer was applied at 1 1/2 times the recommendation, and twice the recommendation. Another series of plots received no fertilizer.

The point of these tests is to illustrate the economics of fertilization, and to establish the highest practical yield from an economic standpoint.

Delaware Food Market Report

Changing conditions in meat and produce supplies bring many ups and downs in prices again this week. A continuing upward trend on beef, lamb, and pork has put an end to the happy days when we could find the luxury cuts of meat in everyday menus. Many cuts of meat are overlooked during the warm weather period and these neglected cuts offer relative economy. Also be sure to shop for specials to save money on the meat bill.

The demand for fryers has increased as the price of meat goes up. This delicious meat continues to be the top special in many local stores. True, prices are a bit higher and they may continue to edge up a bit but these tender chickens are still much cheaper than red meat.

June is usually the peak month for receipts of fish in our area. Shellfish receipts are heavy from June through October. Weather conditions have been exceptionally favorable this spring for fishermen. The U. S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries lists the following items that will be in good supply during the current period: clams, crabmeat, fish sticks, halibut, mackerel, salmon, scallops, shrimp, swordfish, whiting, and filets of cod, flounder, haddock, and ocean perch.

There's good news among fresh vegetables. Rains in growing areas have improved prospects and out local markets are beginning to get in things from the Carolinas and Georgia. The biggest change is in green cabbage, prices have dropped as much as 5 cents and this is due to large quantities reaching the markets since harvesting has begun in both North Carolina and Virginia.

Other vegetables that you should check this week are snap beans, beets, celery, cucumbers, and escarole. Boston and Romaine lettuce, spinach, and several other greens are also fair buys.

Fruits are also making good news this week, price wise and other wise. The New Jersey strawberry season is near its peak and quality is very good with prices reasonable. Watermelons and limes continue plentiful, also. Receipts of peaches, Bing cherries, and blueberries are increasing.

KEITH S. BURGESS — Sports Editor

Fall Athletes, Stay In Shape This Summer

As of Friday the 19th of June, August 25th, the start of fall sports training at Harrington High seems a long way off. But as we all realize, time flies. Both fall sports teams went undefeated in 1964. It seems that the sports fans in our community would like to see a continuation of the winning trend.

One basic step that can and should be taken is the maintaining of good physical condition by each athlete or prospective athlete. This could involve as little as fifteen minutes a day. Concentrated exercise with lots of running will insure that a boy won't slip too far physically by August 25th. Football practice can actually be painful for the first two or three weeks if the gridders have allowed themselves to go to pot all summer.

Frank Glazier's football Lions were harder hit by graduation than were their cross-country counterparts. At this writing it appears that the backfield will be in good shape. Any chance of another conference championship therefore, must hinge upon the rapid development of an adequate forward wall. The Lions last grid loss occurred in 1963.

Harold McDonald's cross-country squad lost it's No. 1 harrier, the five year veteran Dennis Rogers. Rogers' shoes will be impossible to fill but the team as a whole could be even stronger. Marshall Hatfield and Ellis Myer ran on the Lions 1963 state championship team. Gerry Garey and Dan Hicks, Myer and Hatfield each held the No. 2 spot on the team at one time or another last fall.

Steven Owens, of Seaford, is picked by most observers to take over Rogers' spot as the Peninsula's supreme cross-country runner. However, Hatfield finished fifth in last season's 10-time Harrington Invitational, while Milton's Curt Hudson and Buckley, were fourth and sixth, respectively. Owens was 11th in the field of 70 starters.

Nick Morris ran on a state championship junior high team in 1963 as an eighth-grader. Last Autumn the Lions retained the state junior high championship and Nick captured the state individual title. Morris figures to be No. 5 on the varsity at the start of the season but may move up if he continues to improve. Hicks is a junior and Myer, Hatfield and Garey are seniors. As a sophomore Morris doesn't have to beat any of that redoubtable quartet to be labeled the outstanding prospect he is.

Letter winners Dan Adams and Donald Wells lose as No. 6 and No. 7 harriers at this writing. This pair will have to fend off the remainder of the junior high state title squad, who will be seeking to move up to the varsity. Larry Bonniwell, Dennis Spicer and Oscar Matthews are top challengers with times of 13:41 or better for the 2.4 miles Killen's Pond course.

Harrington's harrier, squad last lost in 1962. Their current winning streak is eighteen in a row. Others lost by graduation were George Bonniwell, Bob Smith, Roger Betts and Henry Minner.

a petition asking for the installation of mercury vapor lights on U. S. 14, from U. S. 13, to Commerce and West Streets, he motioned the lights be installed, but the motion was lost for want of a second. At a May meeting, he motioned for identical lights on Clark Street from U. S. 13 to railroad crossing but lost.

At the same meeting Council agreed to install mercury lights on Delaware Avenue and on Center Street. He City has these lights on Dorman Street and plans to install them on other streets, including Clark and Commerce Streets, in time. In fact, Tuesday night, Mayor Luther P. Hatfield said it would be some time before the Delaware Power & Light Company would act on the Delaware Avenue and Center Street projects. He felt that further consideration might be given then to other streets.

The mayor read a letter from the Federal Aviation Agency, Salisbury, requesting its telephone number, 1-901-742-7324, be posted in fire and police departments, to be called when aircraft are in distress. The agency is one of the United States government.

Authorized the purchase of a sump, diaphragm pump, not to cost more than $325. The device, a movable one, is used to pump water from broken sewer and water mains.

Eight From H.H.S. In Blue-Gold Game

The tenth annual Blue-Gold All-Star Game will find a record number of Harringtonians participating.

Although, the Gold roster has not been published, we have it on good authority that two Lions from Frank Glazier's undefeated conference champion team will be in Gold uniforms. Glazier and Bill Muehleisen will be head coach and assistant coach, respectively.

Melvin Brobst's Harrington High School band has been asked to furnish four members of the All-Star Band for the August 21 game.

Bill Knox, John Greenhaugh, Donald Wells and Marshall Hatfield will represent the local scholastic band. This quartet will spend the period of August 19-21 rehearsing and playing in the band at the game.

Local ticket chairman, Tom Peck, reports that he has sold 30% of the Harrington allotment of ninety tickets. Tickets may be purchased at Peck Brothers' Store on Harrington Avenue.

All-Star Gridders Usually Go To College

Most of the players in the tenth annual Blue-Gold All-Star football game will wind up in college if previous games can be taken as an example.

There is a lot of mistaken public opinion to the effect that it is very hard for even a good student to gain admission to college. Fifty-three of last summer's all-star game participants were accepted at 32 different institutions of higher learning. This lends credence to the theory that some schools will bend over backwards to admit a skilled player. This is true. Actually most applicants would be accepted if they would continue their search after being turned down by their first choices which are often prestige schools such as Yale, Harvard, etc. Many good, small colleges have vacancies throughout the whole school year. If a boy or girl is willing to travel he or she can usually find a good school willing to take them in.

Of the fifty-three, 13 were accepted at the University of Delaware, 5 at Wesley College and 1 at Delaware State. The rest had to or wanted to settle for colleges further away. Michigan, Arkansas A and M and Missouri Valley represent the greatest distances from Delaware after Mesa College, which has an Arizona ring to it. Others are: Kentucky, East Carolina, Williams, Richmond, Maryland, Millersville, Franklin and Marshall, East Stroudsburg, Vanderbilt, Bridgewater, William and Mary, Maryland State, Ohio Wesleyan, North Carolina, Villanova, Guilford, Army, Navy, Randolph-Macon, Morgan State, Wake Forest, Georgia, Elon, Juniata.

This, of course, represents only a tiny portion of 1964's high school graduates in Delaware. Delaware students are studying in colleges all over the world. A college education can be obtained in many places. Remember "Where there's a will, there's a way".

EMPLOYE LACKS

the situation, however, is not limited to the period of seasonal summer jobs, and continues all during the year.

"This industry," he said, "was sold on Milford, but declined to locate here specifically because of the lack of employees." He declined to name the company.

"Besides the lack of untrained labor," he continued, "there's also a lack of skilled labor. Anyone with skills in this state will be working, because they're always in demand."

Larger industries, such as General Foods, can afford to transfer employees into a new location," he said. "They can afford to make transfer attractive."

Smaller companies, which would consider locating in a town the size of Milford, can't afford the cost of such transfers," he added. "Besides, few companies will bear the cost of relocating factory personnel, and depend instead on finding persons to fill these jobs in a new location."

"Milford now is in a situation where one large industry, about the size of Dennis Mitchell, Inc., with 600 potential jobs could employ all the available labor force," he said.

The development corporation uses an industrial research firm which keeps track of industries and growing industrial areas.

HEAVY FOOT—Chuck Arlet has a heavy foot, meaning he will step on the gas when he takes part in a sports-car race at Delaware State Fairgrounds June 26. The event, sponsored by the Harrington Volunteer Fire Company, is backed by the Sports Car Owners and Drivers Association. Arlet will drive a 2400-pound Jaguar 140M.

Delaware Park Raceway News

If all the members of the United Nations got along as harmoniously as Delaware Park's international jockey colony, this would be a much pleasanter world to live in.

It's true that, in the heat of battle on the race track, it's strictly "every man for himself" as the little fellows match brain and brawn to get home first astride thoroughbreds about 10 times their own weight. During non-competitive hours, however, they are a friendly group. Very seldom do they go beyond ribbing one another in a spirit of fun.

Competing against American-born riders at Delaware Park's current meeting are saddle artists representing at least 11 other countries, not counting several that come to the track only occasionally from other points for special engagements—such as Panama's Heliodoro Gustines, Hungary's Paul Kallai and Ireland's Johnny Ruane, etc.

Best-known among the Stanton track "regulars" is Tommy Lee, born in Canton, China, but a long time popular veteran of U.S. competition. In recent years Tommy has had a strong Delaware following and in 1961 he topped all riders there with 54 victories. At this writing, quiet-spoken, hard-riding Lee was very much in the running for the 1965 championship.

Ray (long shot specialist) Mikonen is a native of Finland—newcomer Jean Cruguet hails from France, a 26-year-old boasting more than 150 wins on the continent the last two years—representing Ireland are Dublin's Joseph Brocklebank and County Tyrone's Kevin Daly—Terrence Dunlavy is from Kent, England—Oswaldo Torres came from Chancery, Peru—John J. Rivera and Anthony Cordero represent Puerto Rico—Keith Stuart was born in Bermuda—Leonard Pong is a Canadian—Raul Neira comes from Chile—Victor Espinosa is Mexican.

It took a lot of mileage to bring them all together at Delaware Park, but they all have one big thing in common: their favorite spot is the winner's circle at any race track.

ing the eight-horse field the last time around, he cut loose with an explosive stretch drive which brought Majesty's Knight a length-and-a-quarter victory.

In December 1963, he was stricken with an illness that confined him to his home and his son took over most of the riding duties. Stafford returned to work only a few weeks before his fatal accident.

The younger Stafford has been keeping the 15-horse stable active during his father's hospitalization. A few hours before the elder Stafford's death his son drove Dale's Ace to a third-place finish in the first race at Liberty Bell.

His widow, the former Margaret Graisbury, said Friday night her son will continue to race the Stafford horses.

Stafford also is survived by two brothers, John, of Betterton, Md., and Randall, also a horse trainer, of Glendale, N. J., and three sisters, Mrs. Elwood Rulon and Mrs. Charles Peacock, both of Marlton, N. J., and Mrs. Anna Dobbs, of Haddonfield, N. J.

He was a member of the U.S. Trotting Association, the Cloverleaf Standardbred Horsemen's Association, the Delaware Foxhunters Association and the New Jersey State Foxhunters Association.

Services were held Monday morning at the Berry Funeral Home, Felton, with interment in Hopkins Cemetery, Felton.

Progress Report On Prime Hook Refuge

The Department of the Interior's Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife opened an office in Milford as temporary headquarters for the new Prime Hook National Wildlife Refuge.

Located at 15 North Walnut Street, the bureau's office will be open from 8:00 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., Monday through Friday.

Bureau personnel staffing the new office include engineering specialists, realty negotiators, and a biologist assigned to mosquito management.

Negotiations have been completed for more than a third of the authorized acreage. Among recent properties deeded to the Federal Government as part of the new refuge, is a 1,070-acre tract formerly owned by J. Howard Isaacs. The most recent purchase agreement negotiated covers some 317 acres owned by Draper Foods, Inc.

Pending the selection of a refuge manager, Prime Hook will be under the supervision of Refuge Manager Nightingale of Bombay Hook National Wildlife Refuge.

Harrington Dance Club News

Saturday evening at 6 o'clock the Harrington Dance Club will have its annual dinner at the Seaford Country Club, Seaford. All club members are asked to mark their calendars so as not to forget this pleasant affair.

Following the dinner the club members have been invited to stay for Greenwood Dance Club's orchestra dance to be held at the Country Club.

So polish your dance shoes and make a date for the 19th!

One partial scholarship this year was made available by Mr. and Mrs. Hayward Quillen and the recipient was Leon Kukulka. The Delaware Music Camp is sponsored by the University of Delaware in cooperation with the State Board of Education and the Delaware Music Education Association.

Delmarva Festival

July 31. Bus companies will also be requested to cooperate with special schedules.

Featured on the menu of the Fair's Maryland Pavilion that day will be Delmarva Bake, a new dish which combines in a casserole such Eastern Shore products as chicken, crabmeat and clams.

The dish was prepared for Council members before their meeting. After sampling it, the Council decided to distribute a leaflet to Shore restaurateurs giving them an approved recipe and urging them to include Delmarva Bake on their menus during the present vacation season.

The Council was informed that a descriptive folder of the Shore's abundant recreation opportunities will be ready for distribution at key travel points in about ten days.

Another brochure containing special information about the Shore is also being prepared in color, according to Worthington J. Thompson, executive director of the Council, which has its headquarters at 827 South Salisbury Boulevard, Salisbury.

Army Now Offers Something New

The United States Army is now offering something new in enlistment choice, according to Sgt. Walter R. Frazier, your local recruiting counselor. The new plan is called the "Choose-It-Yourself" vocational training system, that offers a young man the opportunity to choose the exact Army career group that satisfies his own desires and aptitudes. Basically, the sergeant said, the new "career group" option program guarantees the applicant on-the-job training or formal classroom schooling in one of over 60 "career groups," from which he may choose.

Sergeant Frazier said, the new "career group" option program has distinct advantages, both for the Army and for the individual. The Army will benefit by a more effective method of assignment that will integrate readily into the current system of classification and assignment. The young man or woman will benefit by being able to choose training suitable to his or her desires and aptitudes. Further, under the new program, the applicant for enlistment will have a greater number of job areas from which to choose, and will be able to receive the training desired in the area of his or her greatest vocational interest.

Sergeant Frazier also pointed out, the new "career group" enlistment program is almost tailor-made for the young man or woman who was not fortunate enough to be able to receive his or her high school diploma.

For complete information on the new "career group" enlistment program or any of the combat programs stop in and see Sergeant Frazier at 218 S. Governor's Avenue, Dover, or phone 736-6937 or 674-1360.

Caesar Rodney Names Boys', Girls' State Delegates

David Wolstenholme and Daniel Blagg will represent Caesar Rodney High School at the 1965 Delaware Boys' State.

David, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wolstenholme, of Kent Acres, was born in Philadelphia and reared near Dover. He has been in several organizations since the ninth grade. He is a member of the C. R. Band, the orchestra, the Glee Club, the yearbook staff, and held a role in the junior class production "Cheaper by the Dozen". He has also participated in the Drama Club, Honor Society and the Kent County Band and Chorus, and the State Chorus.

Daniel, son of Major and Mrs. William E. Blagg, Jr. of Moore's Lake, is a newcomer to Delaware and to Caesar Rodney. He was born in New Mexico but has lived in Japan, California, and Illinois. He came here from Bermuda. He has also visited the Azores, Hawaii, Canada, France, Spain, and England. Daniel has served in the Student Council and as a class officer. He is presently the treasurer of the Caesar Rodney Dramatics Club.

Representing Caesar Rodney High School to Girls' State this year will be Sharon Dalrymple and Deborah Parker.

Debbie has an avid interest in languages and plans to major in languages in college with hopes of a vocation in foreign service. In high school Debbie has been active in Glee Club and Color Guard and will be senior class president next year as well as Student Council secretary.

Sharon too, has many interests in high school activities, the Drama Club and as assistant editor of the yearbook takes up all spare time. Sharon has shown quite an interest in politics.

Girls' State is sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary and will be held from June 28 to July 2 in Legislative Hall, Dover.

Summer Vacation Travel Conditions Most Hazardous

"This year summer vacation travel conditions will be the most hazardous in the history of our country," warns J. James Ashton, manager of the Delaware Safety Council.

To help you beat the odds of becoming a vacation statistic, the Delaware Safety Council makes the following hints on summer driving.

Have your car inspected. Even though Delaware requires an annual inspection, everyone should make a visit inspection prior to each vacation trip. All of us unconsciously adjust to the gradual deterioration of our cars, compensating for excessive steering wheel play, pumping the brakes, and so on. At highway speeds, however, we may find we waited too long to have the faults corrected. So don't assume your car is all right; have it checked before you start on your weekend or vacation trip.

Don't overload your car. Packing your car tends to put most of the weight on the rear wheels, with the result that the front wheels float and steering effectiveness is seriously reduced. Also, braking becomes more difficult, there is a greater tendency to overturn, and night driving is impeded because the rearmost attitude caused the headlights to project skyward.

Start fresh. Putting in as many miles as possible on Friday evening to stretch your weekend or vacation is tempting but dangerous. Your day's work has robbed you of much of your alertness and coordination. Very early morning starts also can be dangerous if it means getting behind the wheel woozy from lack of sleep.

Limit your daily mileage. Plan on no more than you can comfortably cover in a day. This will let you cruise instead of race, take brief stops for relaxing, and, most important of all, it will get you off the road before the day's most perilous two hours—from one hour before sundown to one hour after.

Leave plenty of space ahead. Always leave at least one car length between you and the car ahead for each ten miles of speed. Driving too close to the car ahead is a major cause of highway accidents. It not only leaves you unable to stop in time, but it frequently turns what might be a two-car crash into a multiple car pile-up.

Pass with care. Stay well behind. When the passing lane is clear ahead and behind, pull out, accelerating smoothly until you are four lengths ahead of the car passed, and then swing back into the running lane.

Slow up for curves. Slow down gradually as you approach the curve then accelerate slightly as you go around. If you find yourself going too fast to maintain control of the car, gently release pressure on the accelerator and touch the brakes smoothly and lightly.

Be wary of new situations. On a long trip, you'll no doubt run into situations that are new to you and, therefore, potentially dangerous.

If you aren't used to mountain driving, keep these points in mind: Do not pass on upgrades; never pass near the crest of a hill; use second gear ("low," on automatic transmissions) on steep downgrades.

If you run into fog, reduce your speed. Better yet, pull far off the road and wait. Above all, use the low beams of your lights, not the bright, which reflect fog and cause glare.

Summary of Farm Labor For Delaware

STATE SUMMARY: Irrigation continues throughout most of the area as scattered showers during the past week have not supplied any substantial coverage of the state. Although the asparagus harvest is on the decline it continues to be the largest user of seasonal labor with a present total of about 1100 workers, but will decline more rapidly during the next two weeks.

Strawberries are nearly completed, many of those remaining are being picked on a "pick your own" basis. All crews have responded to our contracts and with the exception of a few "financial advancements" to be worked out between the employer and leader the major uncertainty remaining is how well manned the crews are when they arrive on the job.

WILMINGTON AREA (Southern New Castle County): Asparagus crop coming to a close but is still chief user of labor with approximately 550 Puerto Ricans in the field. Potatoes in full bloom look very good — much irrigation due to lack of rain. Barley harvest, pea harvest, and having are other farm activities at present time.

DOVER AREA (Kent County): Approximately 200 Puerto Ricans still cutting waning asparagus crop. Cabbage being cut for fresh market. Potatoes look very good. Cabbage, potatoes, and tomatoes being irrigated. Strawberry crop on decline. Snap beans should be ready next week.

Barley, peas, and having other activities—no labor problem on these.

Have received several reports that cut worms have caused much replanting of field corn.
