

KENT LEVY COURT GIVES PAY HIKE TO 42

The Kent County Levy Court Tuesday gave 42 of its employees a post-Christmas gift of an across-the-board pay raise of $20 a month.

The pay raise, requested in a petition two weeks ago by the employees, was approved without much comment by the three commissioners.

"We have the money to do it," said Commissioner L. Winfred Hughes.

The raise granted will be $10 for each two-week pay period, to become effective with the next county paycheck Tuesday.

The raise, the first in more than three years for county employees, will go to 42 clerks and deputies. Elected officials, whose salaries are set by state law, will not receive any increase.

Salaries for the county's clerks in the tax, assessment, recorder of deeds and other offices will be raised from $270 a month to $290 a month, for total annual earnings of $3,180.

Deputies, appointed as assistants to elected officials, will receive $320 a month instead of their present $300, giving them annual earnings of $3,840.

7 Occupants Unhurt When Truck Hits House

Seven occupants escaped injury when a house was knocked off its foundation early Thursday morning, Dec. 23, by a careening tractor trailer.

Police said Mrs. Reynolds Harris and her six children were sleeping on the second floor of the house when the 10-wheeled truck smashed into the side of the house at 12:25 a.m.

The front section of the truck wound up in the basement of the house. Damage to the house was estimated at about $11,000.

Police said the truck, driven by Randolph Lee Drewery, 36, of Saxis, Va., was headed north on U.S. 13 when a pickup truck operated by Harvey N. Hutchins, 59, of near Felton, pulled out of a crossover near County Rt. 371. The front of the tractor-trailer hit Hutchins vehicle in the right side and the larger truck ran off the road and into the house, police said.

Both drivers were treated for minor injuries at Kent General Hospital and released.

Chamber Of Com. Committees Appointed

After hearing favorable reports of the group's Yuletide activities, Thomas H. Peck, acting president of the Chamber of Commerce, named next year's Christmas Committee.

Joseph Madenspacher, district manager of Penn Dairies, was made chairman, with other members as follows: Madalyn Tharp, Robert Taylor, Leonard Horleman and Peck.

The appointments were made at the December meeting of the group at The Wonder R Tuesday.

In other business, after commenting on the shortcomings of community-identification signs on the highways, a committee was formed to get in touch with other civic groups about improvement. Fulton J. Downing was named chairman, with Thomas E. Clendening and Robert Taylor as the other members.

The signs had been erected on the outskirts of the city by the combined efforts of the chamber, the Lions Club, and the Rotary Club. The new committee has the power to act immediately without waiting for the chamber to meet.

After hearing some merchants could not attend the usual dinner meetings, it was agreed to hold the January one at 8 p.m., Tues., the 25th, in the hall on the second floor of The First National Bank Building. The chamber is toying with the idea of holding several evening meetings annually.

Freeman Highway Officially Opened

The Theodore C. Freeman Highway, access road from Route 14 skirting Lewes to the Ferry terminal, opened officially Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Freeman, of near Lewes, parents of Captain Freeman for whom the highway was named, witnessed the brief ceremonies conducted by Commissioner Howard S. Abbott of the Delaware River and Bay Authority.

Captain Freeman, who spent his life in Lewes, was Delaware's only astronaut trainee. He was assigned to the National Aeronautical and Space Agency at Houston. A little over a year ago, Capt. Freeman died as the result of injuries suffered in an airplane accident which had no connection with his astronaut training.

Commissioner Abbott read a resolution recently adopted by the Authority, in which it was pointed out that the General Assembly had requested the highway to be named in the late Captain Freeman's name.

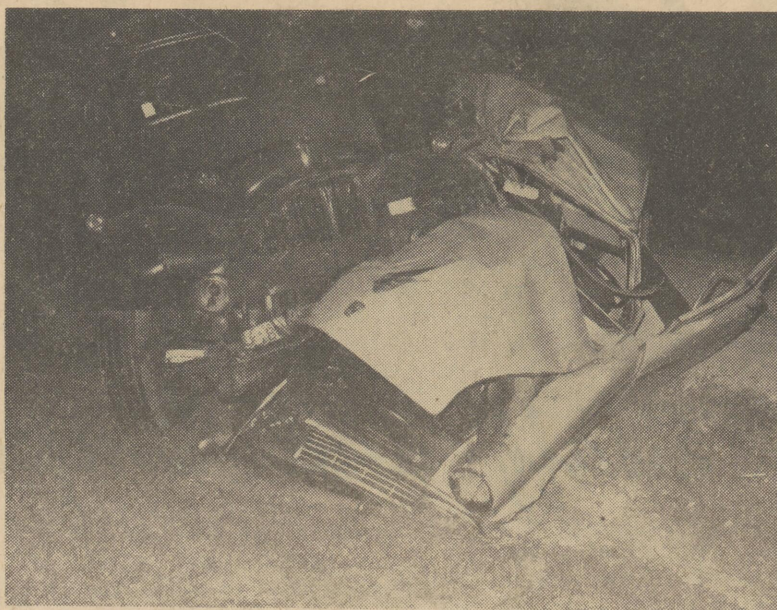

Mrs. Freeman was named Delaware Mother of the Year in 1964 as a result of her son's entry into the NASA program. The Freemans have three other children.

The new highway eliminates use of the Savannah Road drawbridge over which all ferry traffic had to proceed since the opening on July 1, 1964. A new high-level bridge, which gives a commanding view of the Lewes-Rehoboth Canal, is part of the new improvement.

The Delaware State Highway Department was in charge of construction for the Delaware River and Bay Authority.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman, Commissioner Abbott, and Paul F. Carpenter, Sussex County office of the State Highway Department, made the first official trip across the new road and span and later lunched in Lewes.

Abbott said he was well pleased with the appearance of the highway and bridge and expressed the hope that it would be a boon to motorists who more and more find their way to the ferry terminals in Lewes and Cape May.

Local Marine Flew With TV Star in Korean Conflict

When Fred Bailey Jr., sees the Johnnie Carson Show on TV, he is reminded of the time he flew with Ed McMahon, the spectacle's modest announcer, and factotum, in the Korean conflict in 1951.

Bailey, nicknamed "Beagle," as a first lieutenant, flew with the Devil Cats, in the Marines, with his squadron being VMA 212, an attack group.

1st Lt. McMahon, a native of Philadelphia, was with VM06, a Marine observation squadron.

Gov. Terry's New Year's Message

Mrs. Terry and my family join me in sending everyone in Delaware hearty greetings for a happy, healthful and prosperous New Year.

During 1965 every state in our Great Nation enjoyed a continuing prosperity, so ably initiated by the late President John F. Kennedy . . . continued under the able stewardship of President Lyndon B. Johnson, until our country today stands beyond the highest hopes and dreams of any earlier nation.

Yet, the horizons of human ideals remain as distant as ever before, and our progress must continue to rely upon individual goodwill and understanding.

Greater progress can be realized in the year ahead if we take but one sure step, a day at a time. Understanding is needed to appreciate those things we have; courage and patience will get us those things we do not have.

May the people of Delaware continue their support of good government in the State and Nation.

Above all, may the people of the world find peace in 1966.

Harrington May Avoid Sewer System Woes

The action of Harrington's town council in looking toward building a new sewage treatment plant may save it a big headache next summer.

The Water Pollution Commission is conducting a survey of the Murderkill River Basin, and Harrington's dumping into Brown's Branch is a part of the study.

"It's to the credit of the town that it's looking ahead," commented commission engineer N. C. Vasuki recently.

He said that the primary treatment plant in Harrington now was overloaded, and that a discussion of it would probably come up at the next Water Pollution Commission meeting at the end of January.

"Our survey of the Murderkill basin will probably be done next spring," Vasuki indicated.

Harrington has not been contacted by the commission, but it is looking for ways to build a bigger sewage treatment system.

The council has already scheduled a meeting next month with a federal representative who will explain the various grants open to the town.

Harrington is also keeping an eye on a possible water metering system, and all new construction in the town limits will have taps so that a meter can be attached at some future time.

Derrickson Again In Hospital

Vernon B. Derrickson of Dover, chairman of the Public Service Commission and Kent County Democratic chairman, was reported in "fair" condition at Kent General Hospital Tuesday.

Derrickson was admitted to the hospital Christmas Eve suffering from a vascular condition of the leg.

His PSC office said Wednesday Derrickson's leg began bothering him Friday morning and that he entered the hospital later that night.

According to a spokesman in his office he "appears to be responding to treatment."

For Derrickson it is the second bout with the hospital in two months. Last month he entered a Philadelphia hospital for removal of a cataract and had just returned to work two weeks ago.

OMISSION

In the obituary of Norman Outten, printed in The Harrington Journal last week, the name of the daughter, Mrs. Dale Dean, of Harrington, was omitted. The Journal regrets the error.

KENT PIPELINE JOB SOUGHT BY 2ND FIRM

Another engineering firm has asked Kent County Levy Court commissioners to consider it as a possible consultant on the proposed Kent County sewerage pipeline.

Officials of Albright and Friel Inc. of Philadelphia, Pa., consulting engineers for the city of Dover, presented their ideas on the $10 million pipeline project Tuesday and asked the commissioners to consider the firm.

The Baltimore company of Rummel, Klepper and Kahl asked similar consideration last week after its officials appeared before the commissioners.

The Levy Court will make no decision, however, until after Jan. 1, when a meeting yet to be scheduled will be held with State Planning Director John A. Bivens Jr. and Water Pollution Director John C. Bryson to discuss the pipeline.

Levy Court also accepted bids on the Nixon Lane suburban improvement and indexes for the recorder of deeds office. No awards were made pending further examination of the bids.

Apparent low bidder on the Nixon Lane bond issue was Laird, Bissell and Meeds of Dover, offering a $29,411.10 premium and fund with 3.75 per cent interest rate. Also bidding was the Farmers Bank with $29,400 and a 3 7/8 per cent interest.

The Paul Co. of Baltimore, Md., was apparent low bidder on the indexes at $1,314.50, while William F. Murphy and Sons of Philadelphia, Pa., submitted a bid of $2,358.50. Bids were based on 52 volumes.

It was just two nights after Christmas and not a bulb was burning. Not a red one, nor a green one, not even one small twinkle on the city's tree. Not even one string of holiday lights welcomed the judges, who had been invited by the Chamber of Commerce to visit Harrington. Altho' the judges found darkened street decorations after driving several miles from their homes, they were pleased to find many interested citizens in the mood with brightly lighted homes and clever decorations. After three hours of touring the streets and the outskirts of the town in every direction, they were entertained by the chairman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Millard Cooper and submitted the following decisions to the committee:

Best Decorated Door for a gift certificate of $10 was selected at the home of Calvin Wells on Delaware Ave., whose doorway was noticeably outstanding amid other beautiful decorations. Other doorways praised by the judges were those of Dewitt Tatman, Dale Dean, Norris Jarrell and Albert Price.

Best Decorated Window for a gift certificate of $10 was selected at the home of William H. Outten on Shaw Ave., who has a unique display. The judges also noted the beautiful windows of Lloyd Wilcutts and Mrs. Mary Brown.

Three prize certificates in the amounts of $20, $15, and $10 will be awarded for the best decorated homes. First prize was awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Pitlick on Harrington Ave. Ext. for the simplicity and neatness of their display. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde H. Tucker on Dorman Street received the second prize certificate, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Cain on the Whitneysburg Road were awarded third. Many beautiful homes, on every street were studied. Among them were those of Mark Willey, Wayne Rawding, Samuel Williams, Howard Perdue, James Cain, Luther Hatfield, and Kesler Farrow.

One other favorite attraction was the natural holly tree spotlighted at the home of Alan Rutledge. This was a second trip to Harrington for the judges, who were here early in December to select the best decorated commercial window. This award of $10 was made to the Rob Wan Shop in the H. E. Quillen Shopping Center. The judges were W. Lloyd Carter, of Lincoln; Fred Warrington, of Prime Hook Beach, Milford, and John R. Rogers Jr., of Milford.

4 p.m. Children's confirmation class.
8 p.m. Choir rehearsal.

FRIDAY—

9 p.m. Church bowling league. On the rear table in the nave of the church are blanks to be filled out if you desire to place memorial flowers in the sanctuary during the year. Please notice that we expect to keep the poinsettias on the altar through January 9, but will desire memorial flowers after that time. This is certainly a fitting way in which to honor our loved ones who have gone on to their new lives.

Everyone should plan to come to the Epiphany Candlelight Service which will be held on Sun., Jan. 9, at 7:30 p.m. This is another of the beautiful services of the year at which time all of the events of the Christmas season will be relived through scriptures, caroling and through the lighting of appropriate candles until the whole sanctuary is aglow in candlelight and until each member of the church receives from the Christ candle his own light that he should carry out into the world. Visitors are invited to this impressive service.

Advance notice is made of the bishop's annual visitation to the parish on January 16, at which time he will confirm those who have received instruction for confirmation.

The 181st annual Diocese convention of the Episcopal Church in Delaware will be held this year at Christ Church, Milford, Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 25 and 26. This is the first time in several years that the convention has been so close to Harrington; therefore, it is assumed that many will want tickets for the Tuesday night 7 p.m. banquet and for the Church Women's luncheon on Wednesday. Banquet tickets cost $2.50, luncheon tickets $2.00. Absolutely no banquet tickets will be available at the convention and only 18 are apportioned to St. Stephen's; therefore, please get your request to the Vicar in writing at your first opportunity.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

(Cliff Miller)

A YEAR

By J. Harvey Burgess (1951)

As we say goodbye to sixty-five and put in some licks for sixty-six, we quote the rest from Edgar Guest, who says:

We shape the days that come and go,
 By what we do and be;
 With burdens we are asked to bear,
 Time tests both you and me.

The years are mirrors of our deeds,
 Reflecting all we've done;
 In memories the critic reads,
 The lives of everyone

Time is ours to make or mar,
 This fact is plain to see;
 If faithful to our trust we are,
 The year will happy be.

Importance

There is no unimportant task,
 Whatever duty life may ask;
 On it depends a greater plan,
 There is no unimportant man.

In this connection we are privileged to quote the following interesting lines from the late J. Harvey Burgess in 1951.

There is a tourist place, we are told, along a Delaware highway where high carnival is held every night and the wassail bowl is overflowing until the hours both small and wee. As you hear the turmoil there almost the night through and see the sign in front of the place, "Tourists' REST"—You wonder when.

IF YOU ARE IMPORTANT YOU DON'T FEEL THAT WAY!

This is in answer to an editorial we read a week or two ago. The writer of that editorial said: "To feel important is a valuable asset to anyone . . . there is a way to feel important by having a good opinion of yourself. If people could and would only get the idea that they are somebody, maybe a lot of this world's trouble could be avoided."

That's tearing history to tatters. It's a fine thing to have confidence in yourself, to believe that you are decent and on the level, and it may be all right to have a little ego, just a little—but for the love of Michael, don't let anyone suspect that you possess that ego. It's not how you feel that makes you important—it's how the other people feel about you.

A few people knew they were important and the world accepted them as important—but very few. We might mention Rudyard Kipling, Richard Harding Davis and most consummate egotist of all—Richard Wagner. A coroner, a fence viewer or a bridge tender considers himself important, whereas a United States Senator, a cabinet member or a president makes no claim to importance.

Could a lot of the world's trouble be avoided if people would get the idea that they are important? Let's begin with Alexander, the so-called Alexander The Great. Conqueror of the then known world, bemoaning the fact that there were no more worlds to conquer, he soured himself in the ancient equivalent of Sneaky Pete and reeled off the world in a drunken orgy. The greatest strutter in the world with the exception of a few minor office holders, was Mussolini. He was torn to pieces on an Italian hillside just short of the Swiss border. Hitler believed himself to be the most important person on earth. By the way, what ever became of that fellow?

On the other side of the ledger, the saner side:
 We do not have to travel far. In nearby Wilmington is Lamot duPont. He IS important—not only to Delaware and the United States—but to the world, and yet in all the world there is not a more unassuming man than Lamot DuPont.

Recall, please, the Philadelphia lawyer who was lost in a maze of muddy roads on his way to the straggling village of Washington when a carelessly dressed farmer drove out of a country lane and not only directed him to Washington, but took him to the White House. Imagine the amazement of the lawyer when he discovered that the carelessly dressed farmer was President Thomas Jefferson!

Remember the American newspaper woman who went to England on a special assignment, just to learn about the great essayist, John Ruskin. She discovered an old man weeding turnips in a drizzling rain and told him of her mission. He led the way to the Ruskin home and standing before the fireplace turned and smiled: "Now, young lady, what do you think of Ruskin?"

A huge liner was breasting the waves of the Atlantic.
 A little girl clambered upon the piano stool and began to play. She could play just a little. Her fingers were too short to reach some of the keys and she was inexperienced.
 The discordant notes drove the passengers to the other side of the ship, and the little girl, with tears of humiliation in her eyes at the rudeness of the passengers started to leave the piano—when a pair of powerful arms lifted her back upon the piano stool. A tall man with a shaggy main of hair bent over her, placed his arms around her and whispered: "Play on, dearest—I'll cover up your mistakes." To the ears of the startled passengers there came a swell of divine music and they came rushing back from the other side of the ship to stand there enthralled as they listened to the heavenly duet played by the little girl and—Ignace Jan Paderewski!

In the Sistine Chapel a man, pottering about a wooden box, was accosted by an arrogant count—let's call him Count Bologna. He didn't amount to much—had merely inherited a moth-eaten title—but he considered himself very important. "What are you doing here, fellow?" he blustered to the man working at the box. "I am arranging a box for the flowers, sire," came the meek answer. "Why do you strive for such perfection—when no one will notice that perfection?" sneered the count. "Do you think, sire, the Carpenter of Nazareth would be satisfied with anything less than perfection, with anything less than the best, he could do?" "I'll have you flogged for this! What is your name, fellow?" "Michelangelo, sire!"

In every village you can meet the swaggerer, the self-important This-Is-Me-And-I-Am-It. You can spot this type a block away—and yet—only this week we observed the anniversary of the birth of One who, two thousand years ago, preached, taught—and lived—humility.

" . . . of all trees that in the woods, the holly wears the crown." When Delawareans sing
 "The Holly and the Ivy" at Christmas, they are singing of another small wonder of Delaware.

The American Holly, often called Christmas Holly or Evergreen
 Holly, is Delaware's state tree.
 And for good reason. The Holly grows green all through the sheltered areas of Delaware, and especially in the kinder climate of Sussex County.

It was in 1939 that Delaware's General Assembly named the Holly as the official state tree in recognition of its beauty, and of the fact that in those days the cutting of the holly branches and preparing them for market as finished wreaths and other decorations was a major winter business in southern Delaware.

In some years the volume of business was estimated at as much as $300,000—and that must have been a lot of holly.

The holly is still there, in abundance, for the cutting, but new ways of life have made it less profitable as a business.
 Holly gathering and wreath making was part-time winter work for people who otherwise had very little to do, and who are most of them too busy with other year-round work. And plastics have invaded the market for natural holly everywhere. One of the last to continue in the business, and his was possibly the largest holly business in Delaware, was William T. Jones, "The Holly Man," of Milton. He closed up about four years ago.

Although we notice its rich green lighting the woods particularly in winter, a well-grown holly tree in an uncrowded situation is a beautiful sight at all seasons. In May and June the trees bear a profusion of sweet smelling flowers, and in the fall the bright clusters of berries we know so well appear among the thorny green leaves.

In favorable situations the holly tree may grow as high as 100 feet, and have a trunk diameter of four feet. But in Delaware, which is near the northern limit for holly, trees rarely exceed 60 feet in height, and a trunk diameter of 20 inches.

Holly differs from most other trees in that each tree is either male or female. It is the female tree that produces the brilliant red berries we enjoy so much and that say "Christmas" to so many of us. Holly pollen is more likely to be carried by the breeze than by insects, and unless there is a male tree nearby, the female tree will produce few if any berries.

For its Christmas message, for its beautiful shape, for its glowing evergreen leaves and cheery berries, Delaware's tree is a wonder—another to be discovered in wonderful Delaware.

 Christmas party was held Dec. 14.
 The brief business meeting was led by Kevin Kielbasa. Devotions were given by Susan Snyder.

 ter chance of winning a trip to Chicago.

New project books were handed out to our 23 members.

Following the meeting, games were led by recreation leader, Rita Messick and refreshments were served by Cindy, Cliff and Jeff Foskey. Christmas gifts were exchanged.

 ton; William, Seaford; and

Veteran's News

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—Will my son, now serving in Korea, be able to obtain the new GI insurance?

A—A new law provides insurance coverage for servicemen. This insurance is automatic, unless the serviceman signifies in writing that he does not desire the insurance. A small monthly sum will be deducted from his pay.

Q—Will the Veterans Administration give families of veterans the right to make purchases at military commissaries?

A—The Veterans Administration has no connection with military commissaries and cannot grant purchase privileges.

Q—My husband is receiving a nonservice-connected pension from the VA. I would like to know if I start working would it have any effect on the amount of the pension that my husband now receives.

A—In determining the veteran's income for a nonservice-connected pension, none of the earned income (wages, salaries, etc.) of a veteran's spouse will be counted as the veteran's income. Q—How can a veteran selling his home be relieved of liability on a VA guaranteed loan?

A—One method is to require the purchaser to pay off the GI loan with his own resources or to obtain a new loan. Another method is to have the purchaser assume all the veteran's liabilities on the home and have the VA approve the assumption agreement and specifically release the veteran from further liability to the VA.

Q—In 1964 my ten per cent disability was reduced to zero per cent. The reduction to zero per cent made reinstatement possible if my disability recurred. Does my zero per cent entitle me to reinstatement my National Service Life Insurance, which I dropped in 1946?

A—Since it appears that you have a service-connected disability, you may apply for the new insurance which is being sold by the Veterans Administration. Application must be made before May 2, 1966.

Q—My application for insurance under the law which permits service-connected disabled veterans to apply for insurance until May 2, 1966, was rejected because I had a nonservice-connected disability in addition to my service-connected disability. This nonservice-connected condition has improved and is no longer disabling. Will the insurance now be granted?

A—You should make another application for the insurance as soon as possible based on your present condition of health.

Q—I am a veteran of World War II with a disability rating of 800 per cent. I have a daughter starting her second year in college. Is she eligible for educational assistance from the Veterans Administration?

A—No. You would have to be permanently rated 100 per cent disabled due to a service-connected disability. However, in a separate program, children under 23 years of age of veterans with more than 50 per cent disability who are attending school are eligible for monthly payments. The rate is $40 monthly if the veteran's disability is rated 100 per cent. In your case with 80 per cent, the monthly payment would be 80 per cent of $40 or $32 a month. See the nearest VA regional office for details.

Q—Are veterans of World War I eligible for GI home loans?

A—No, but they may be eligible for housing benefits under the new Housing Act of 1965 administered by the Federal Housing Administration.

Q—May a veteran who has no service-connected illness enter a Veterans Administration hospital and pay for his care?

A—No. VA hospital benefits are free to veterans with service-connected disabilities and to veterans with nonservice-connected disabilities who cannot afford hospital care. All other veterans are expected to use non-VA hospitals.

Farming Will Remain Important State Economist Predicts

Delaware won't become a complex of trailer parks, housing developments, shopping centers and concrete, according to a University of Delaware agricultural economist. Speaking at the annual conference of the Delaware Agriculture Extension Service last week (Dec. 21) W. T. McAllister, extension farm management specialist in the College of Agricultural Sciences said that in spite of current pressures on land use, a considerable portion of the state will still be available for commercial agriculture.

Pinpointing Delaware's growth in the relatively small area north of the Chesapeake and Delaware canal, he questioned the likelihood of rapid population increases south of the canal. People live in or near the area of employment," he said. "To get a substantial population growth in a given area there must be attractive employment opportunities. Otherwise, he people will leave. I think we should take a realistic look at much of Delaware as an industrial area. Why would a major industry locate in a small Delaware community? There are very few major employers south of the C & D Canal. Employment is largely limited to agricultural processing and small, light manufacturing firms—many of which are highly seasonal, and pay minimum wage.

He said that unless major industries discover real advantages to locating in this area, Kent and Sussex Counties will not grow nearly as rapidly as the rest of the state. In fact, young people may actually leave these areas at accelerating rates further modifying the rate of population growth. He cited better education and increased mobility, as reasons why young people leave lower Delaware for better opportunities. "If the good jobs don't come to them, they will go where the jobs are."

McAllister predicted that urban and industrial expansion will affect Delaware farmers differently in different parts of the state. For farmers in Northern New Castle County it will probably mean staying on the farm and continuing to produce until they get their price or get fed up with restrictions, complaints, and labor shortages and "throw in the towel." But those farmers in the rest of the state will probably feel very little of this pressure.

Although there will be upward pressure on farmland values, most of it will come from commercial farmers wanting to expand their farms to gain better efficiency of production and bigger incomes.

The economist believes that the kinds of farming will be pretty much the same in the years ahead as they are now. Any changes will be based on shifts in the competitive positions of the broiler and vegetable industries. If farmers continue to increase corn production at present rates, Delaware could find itself very much in the hog business. McAllister believes recreation is the one new farm enterprise with the greatest potential in Kent and Sussex Counties. But he hastened to point out that it is limited to people with special locations, interests, and talents. He said the 16 million people living in close proximity to the state are clamoring for recreational facilities and services including marinas, cottages, motels, lodges, camping grounds, and fishing and hunting areas. "The real potential for recreation facilities and services has not yet really been exploited. It is coming."

McAllister said that the many pressures on farming will cause definite changes in the day-to-day operation of farms and the long-range character of farming. These changes will be evident in three areas — size, organization, and management. He listed these differences:

—Farm businesses will be much larger—both in land area and dollar volume.

—Capital and credit requirements will be greater.

—Management will become more professional.

—Wage rates for labor will rise sharply.

—Farmers will accept business methods, ideas, and attitudes.

—Corporate units and multiple ownership will increase.

—More of the resources used for production will be leased.

—The trend toward vertical integration or coordination of production and marketing will continue.

McAllister's remarks were made in a panel presentation dealing with changes taking place in Delaware. More than 40 county agents and state specialists participated in the lay-long conference on the changing role of the cooperative extension service. Other speakers included Dr. Alvin Johnson, extension director in New York, John Bivens, director, Delaware State Planning Office, Edward Schabinger, New Castle County Agent, Mrs. Alice King, state leader, home economics extension, and Dr. E. A. Mesics, professor of industrial relations at Cornell University.

Holiday guests still pouring in? Here are some hospitality hints for the "hostess with the mostest".

... Save the experiments with "new" recipes for the family. If the dish gets rave notices from your own family members, then put the recipe in the special file for future use when entertaining. What the family likes, guests will enjoy, too. Guests, you know, are only people.

... A real boon to home entertaining is the home freezer. Prepare and freeze now, serve later. Almost all cooked food may be frozen. There are only a few exceptions. Get a good frozen food book and keep it handy for ready reference.

... Even if you have the whole day to get ready for dinner, it's wise to avoid too many fancy dishes requiring lengthy preparation. You'll be exhausted by the time guests arrive. Select those fancy time consuming dishes with great deliberation... perhaps one at a meal. Instead, concentrate on interesting and unique serving bowls and trays or imaginative food decorations. Make the guests feel they are worthy of special attention but let it be evident it was easily accomplished.

... Eliminate frantically searching your memory for what you served Aunt Harriett the last time by keeping a record. It may read like this: Harriett and Sam—menu number 21, Oct. 13. Note: Harriett hates carrots! This reference is a real blessing and avoids frantic moments of trying to remember what was served last time... or the time before.

... Rely on casseroles... they are the best answer to a hostess' problem because of the unlimited variety of foods that can be prepared in this manner. Having a few casseroles of food in the home freezer may save the day.

... Have plenty of coasters and ash trays conveniently placed to protect table tops. They also protect your sanity.

... Avoid apologies for something served that may be below par. Never say "I'm sorry the gravy is a little thick." Make no comment. Nor does a hostess comment about a guest's appetite.

... There are no absolute rules for entertaining... no foods which cannot be served... no foods much must be considered party fare. Be yourself. Use whatever amount of money the food budget dictates, serve foods carefully seasoned and thoughtfully ed on your part.

Saturday morning the Telephone Excise Tax will be reduced

You get all the savings

Beginning January 1, 1966 telephone bills for excise tax paying customers will reflect a cut in Federal excise tax from 10% to 3%.

Your telephone is a necessity. Congressional action to remove telephone service from the "luxury" list confirms this fact and the belief of thousands of Americans who sought its removal. The reduced tax will mean a savings of nearly $2,000,000 in 1966 to our customers in Delaware. These savings will provide a stimulant to the economy which President Johnson referred to when he signed the Excise Tax Reduction Act, as making "... its maximum contribution to our economic health only if businesses pass along to consumers the full amount of the reduction in the tax."

The saving goes into your pocket and, over the period of one year, almost equals one month's telephone bill.

Moreover, on each succeeding January 1, there will be an additional 1% cut. Thus, by 1969 the Federal excise tax on telephone service will go out of existence.

The same excellent service . . . but at a lower cost to you. News your telephone company is very happy to report.

Sports Odds And Ends

Carl "Call me Daddy" Browne, local post office employee, was once a tackle on a Wilmington High School football team. Browne has a 15-year-old son, Billy, who is a solid, mobile 210 pounder. Billy is six feet tall and would be a football coach's dream, except for one fly in the ointment. Although his address is Route 2, Harrington, his home is in the Felton School District, and Felton, it appears, will be the only school in the 12-team Henlopen Conference without a football team next autumn. Young Browne lives within sight of one H.H.S. football player, Jim Harris and could be employed here as a heavyweight wrestler in winter and a shot putter, in track and field, in the spring, if he lived in our district.

Several familiar names cropped up when the Diamond State Beagle Club held its year end trial at Petersburg State Forest recently.

Elwood Brown, a former Harrington High athlete was field marshal.

In the 15-inch class, Shorty, owned by Horace Willey, of Milford, was fourth. Wheeler's Ace, owned by Bill Wheeler, of Felton, was fifth. This writer played baseball against both these men. Willey pitched briefly for Salisbury of the Eastern Shore League, while still in high school. Later, he regained his amateur status and resumed his high school sports career. The crack 1938 Harrington High team was the only nine able to beat Willey and they did it twice.

In the 13-inch beagle trials, Edward C. Brown, of Harrington captured second place with Rangewood Pat.

Back in 1946, when this writer was a member of the U.S. Army, stationed in Japan, we kept up with the fortunes of the Mar-Del Basketball League, of which Harrington was a member. Cecilton, Md. had a team in the league but enjoyed little success. They did have one of the loop's top scorers, however, in Bob Cooling, a set shot artist. Cooling was shot and killed on Christmas Eve after a family argument. The Chesapeake City, Md. auto dealer's wife has been arrested and charged with the crime.

Richard A. Wilson, local electrician and sports enthusiast, had a bad night on the bowling lanes recently and recorded a score well below his average. The results of the league match were posted in Hobbs' Newsstand with each player listed by last name and first two initials. Some local wag ribbed Wilson by drawing an arrow from "R. A. Wilson" to a hastily scribbled "Richard A. Wilson". We predict Richard will use his full name the next time he hits 200.

A recent cartoon on T.V. showed Tom Thumb's parents congratulating the tiny fellow for running a four minute "yard."

Cicero Murphy and Joe Balsis recently gave the lie to that old chestnut "A good pool shot is the sign of a mis-spent life. Competing in the finals of the National Invitational Pocket Billiards Classic in Las Vegas, Nevada, the pair put on a suspenseful match, that ended with Balsis collecting $4,000 and Murphy $2,000. We heard that some members of the feminine gender in our community couldn't get away from the set so absorbed were they in the unfolding drama. Pocket Billiards is one of the few sports that appeal to both the lord-and-master and the ball-and-chain.

Look-alikes, George Pfeiffer, of the 1958 pioneer H.H.S. cross-country team and Louis Kemp, a team member the last two years, met at the recent Wicomico High-Harrington High wrestling match, won by H.H.S. Pfeiffer, the first Lion to make the All-Henlopen Conference football team and the first athlete to win five varsity letters at Harrington High in one year, is probably the most versatile sports participant ever to wear the Blue and Gold. Yet Pfeiffer, now a Marine in college at the University of Missouri, found out the facts of life in a hurry, when he tried to play football at Missouri. George discovered you have to have a good size to play collegiate football. Larry Garey, a good all-around athlete last year, learned the same lesson at Ellendale Teachers College in Dakota this past autumn.

Ron Hughes, a 205 pounder, may go out for football at the University of Delaware as a sophomore in 1966. He's big enough. So was Bill Porter, who was on the verge of making a college eleven in Arkansas a few years back, when he decided to come home.

If Hughes becomes a team member he will be the first Lion griddler to play in college. Apparently, a good athlete with only average size, should play football if he likes the game well enough and does not plan to go out for a fall sport in college. But if he is lukewarm towards the gridiron, wants to play a fall sport in college, wants to have a chance to get some athletic scholarship help, he could do far worse than to place himself in the capable hands of cross-country coach, Harold McDonald. The latter has developed a dozen or more harriers good enough to run on college teams and at present has a host of good prospects for the upcoming next few years.

Currently, the upstate papers are running two sports features, which are chronicling outstanding sports achievements in Delaware this year. One column is called State Sports Diary. The other is titled 1965 Sports Year.

Gerry Garey was mentioned several times in each piece. Garey, a fine cross-country runner, set a course record at Milford, another at Lewes of 12:03 for 2.4 miles and lowered the Henlopen Conference standard to 11:43 for 2.4 miles.

Harrington High was lauded for winning the Henlopen Conference team title in both track and cross-country. Also noted was the harriers' feat in defeating Caesar Rodney 24-41 in the finale to finish with 12 straight wins.

Harry Knotts, the Vernonlad, who won the state cross-country championship over one hundred and twenty rivals in 1960, to this day remains the only state cross-country champion of some twenty crowned, who was not from the Wilmington area. Knotts, a five year Navy veteran, was home for the holidays so this writer took several youthful distance running enthusiasts out to see Knotts' impressive trophy collection. When "Hairsbreath Harry" was at his peak, his prowess on the cinderpaths and over the hills and dales forced him to junk his first trophy case and build a larger one.

Making the trip were Danny Hitchens, Tony Kibler, Jim Redden, Jack Warrington, Chris Wetherhold, Gary Simpson and Dennis Rogers, a freshman harrier, who made the varsity No. 4 position at Southern State College in Arkansas this season.

Lehigh University 1966 Undergraduate Announcement Guide

Lehigh University's 1966 Undergraduate Announcement & Career Guide now being mailed to all parts of the world offers suggestions to secondary students on how to select the college or university that is right for them, in addition to serving as a handbook for those planning to attend Lehigh.

The special section on choosing a college was written by Dr. Charles A. Seidle, University vice president for administration, who suggests that young people first determine whether they want to or need to go to college.

Dr. Seidle points out that it is impossible to visit all the 2,000 American colleges, universities, technical institutes, professional schools and junior colleges, and presents a list of factors designed to help the student limit his choice to colleges best suited to him and his purpose.

The section on deciding on a college also describes how and where to find information about college and the steps involved in being considered for admission.

The Lehigh publication also includes a special guidance section inaugurated by Dr. Seidle when he was director of admission along with the chapter on choosing a college.

The University Office of Admission of which Samuel H. Missimer is director annually mails out copies of the Undergraduate Announcement to some 3,000 high schools which have sent the University candidates. Another 12,000 of the comprehensive guides to Lehigh are sent out in answer to inquiries from candidates, parents and friends of the University.

Lehigh currently limits its freshmen to 800 men who may choose major programs from the University's three undergraduate colleges: the College of Arts and Science, the College of Business Administration and the College of Engineering. The current undergraduate enrollment at the University is purposely maintained at slightly under 3,000. Present undergraduate enrollment is 2,981 men. There are some 1,560 men and women in the Graduate School at Lehigh.

Realistic Resolutions Are Easier To Keep

Take a moment or two before the end of the year for a searching look at yourself, your home and your family. Almost undoubtedly, there is something you would like to change. That is the reason so many people make new year's resolutions.

However, don't make unrealistically ambitious resolutions. Don't try to overhaul your life completely. Start slowly and gain a sense of accomplishment that will spur you on to further success.

Three extension home economics specialists at the University of Delaware have some suggestions many homemakers may want to include among their own new year's resolutions.

Miss Coral K. Morris, home management specialist, believes a family business center is necessary for a homemaker's peace of mind as well as for efficient home management. Every home needs a center that makes it convenient to write letters, keep records, file information and conduct the family business.

Good business methods will help save time and money. Readily available information helps make decisions easier. It may prevent costly mistakes and may actually help avoid legal difficulties.

A business center does not have to be elaborate or expensive, Miss Morris says, but it should be readily available and well organized. Any table or desk with adequate lighting can be used. Record books can be simple or complicated depending on the family's needs. Files can be kept in cardboard boxes just as well as in filing cabinets. Wherever kept, the files must be organized in a practical system.

Usually two sets of files are useful, one for current business and a second for permanent records. The current file should be readily accessible and large enough to hold all the necessary papers for the year. Clean out the current files each year and store the papers that need to be kept longer in a permanent file. Papers that are difficult or impossible to replace should be kept in a safe deposit box.

When setting up a business center, consider who will use it, recommends Miss Morris. For instance, if a farm homemaker does the major bookkeeping, it will be convenient to combine the farm and home aspects of the business into one filing system.

Constant adjustments need to be made in any filing system. The system must be flexible enough to allow for changes. One of the secrets of good organization is knowing what to keep and what to throw away. Outdated and non-essential items belong in the waste-basket.

Miss Morris and Miss Janet Coblentz, extension foods and nutrition specialist, agree that taking the time to make an inventory, whether of family business records or recipes, is the first and most important step in the new year's resolution to re-organize. Miss Coblentz says many homemakers have been accumulating recipes for years without ever using them.

Recipes cannot add to family mealtime enjoyment unless they are actually used. Go through your collection, organize a file of those that still look appetizing and throw away the remainder. Miss Coblentz advises. Resolve to try one or two of the newly filed recipes every week. If the new foods are well received by the family, use the recipes again. If not, throw these recipes away.

Take inventory of your menu also, says Miss Coblentz. It is so easy for a homemaker to get in a rut, serving the same foods the same way in the same combination with other foods. Try a new food, or try a new way to serve the old familiar ones. Try some of the new and different convenience foods. Some are available in delicious combinations that may well delight any family.

Most homemakers have several small electric appliances in the kitchen such as blenders, mixers, deep-fat fryers, saucapans and frying pans. Get the most out of them, says Miss Coblentz. Read the instruction books thoroughly; often they will suggest recipes and various ways to use the appliance that will add greatly to its usefulness.

Don't forget nutritional planning. Well-balanced, nutritious meals are as important as ever to each member of the family, including dieters. Lose those few extra pounds gained during the holiday season before they become 15 or 20 unwanted pounds, Miss Coblentz recommends. It is common sense to eat well-balanced meals while dieting, she adds. Cut down on the calories, not on the necessary food values.

Miss Janet Reed, extension clothing and textiles specialist, agrees that there is no substitute for a proper diet to control your figure. However, to make the best of your figure, slim or not-slim, choose clothes carefully, she advises.

First of all, know yourself. Get a full length mirror and be really objective, she says. If something about your figure or your clothes does not look good, face up to it. It is quite possible that most women will have to leave "high fashion" to the very slender or the very young.

Actually, size is not as important as proportion. A large woman with a small hat may appear larger by contrast, for instance. Clothing emphasis at the neckline makes the hips appear wider, while width at the shoulder line brings the attention up and makes the hips appear smaller by comparison.

Resolve to develop a knowledge of how color, line and texture can work, recommends Miss Reed. They are all inter-related.

Lines can emphasize by repetition. Therefore, repeat a line that shows a good figure point; do not repeat a poor line. Vertical lines are not always slimming. It may depend on the size and spacing of stripes, color contrasts, the accessories worn and even a woman's personal coloring.

For a slim appearance, Miss Reed advises avoiding bulky fabrics such as corduroy, velvet and bulky knits. Also avoid shiny satins, some brocades and stiff fabrics. Large prints with round designs repeat and emphasize figure curves. However, very large, bold prints can sometimes be worn by large women. It is an individual characteristic that depends on proportion and an ability to carry them off.

Color contrasts which break the figure abruptly should be avoided by larger women, Miss Reed says. A white blouse worn with a dark skirt attracts attention to a large figure. Subtle, grayed colors do not stand out like the brighter shades.

With all these suggestions for new year's resolutions, the home economists add a final one. Resolve to carry out the resolutions you make.

Green Giant Officials Change

Several new assignments at the Woodside vegetable canning facilities are part of a realignment of the production department of the Green Giant Co., headquartered at Le Sueur, Minn.

Edwin L. Michaelson of the company's Glencoe, Minn., plant will be agricultural superintendent at Woodside.

A graduate of Buena Vista College, Michaelson has been with Green Giant since 1964. Donald O. Othson, formerly agricultural superintendent at Woodside, has been promoted to assistant regional agricultural manager.

Othson, who also received his master's degree from the University of Delaware, has been with Green Giant since 1959. Roy Nelson, of the plant production department at Green Giant's Blue Earth, Minn., plant has been promoted and transferred to Woodside as plant superintendent.

W. S. Hitch continues as office and personnel superintendent at Woodside. According to the company, the reorganization in Delaware is part of a nationwide program of Green Giant's production department, to provide for "better coordination of all vegetable production and to allow for a greater degree of decision making on a regional basis".

Green Giant, in addition to its packing plant at Woodside operates a 2300-acre farm in the Midletown area, and another near Galena, Md.

33 Complete U. of D. Entomology Short Course

Thirty-three men from Delaware and Maryland were awarded certificates Dec. 15, showing they had successfully completed an economic entomology short course. The course, taught by Dr. Dale Bray, chairman of the department of entomology and applied ecology at the University of Delaware, was held for 12 successive weeks, beginning in September, at the University's Georgetown Substation.

Representing pesticide manufacturers, fertilizer companies, seed sales outlets, extension service county agents and school vocational agriculture departments, the graduates received an introduction to entomology. The course was planned to be of particular value to those who are constantly working with insects, according to Dr. Bray.

The sessions included the recognition and principles of control of insects on specific crops such as alfalfa, beans, corn, potatoes, cucurbits and other crops. It also included the recognition and control of household insects, shade trees and ornamental insects and domestic animal insects.

4-H Club Notes

With Marion McDonald

Greetings for the New Year—may your's be filled with happiness and success. For 4-H the year is already three months old—since we reorganized in October. Now that the holidays are over, we'll have to get busy and make every minute count. Events will soon be starting. Demonstrations should find their way as a part of nearly all 4-H club meetings. To assist those leaders, both adult and junior, who want additional guidance in this field, a training meeting is planned, Jan. 12 (Milford area) and January 19 (Dover area) are the dates. Notices will be sent as to time and place. At these meetings Bill Pinnell, Sussex County 4-H agent and Marion MacDonald will present the demonstration story. Be sure your club is represented by adult leaders, project leaders and/or Junior Leaders.

Junior Council president, Cliff Hudson and advisor, Janet Clendaniel had a fun Christmas party at the Hudson's home. About 20 council members attended. Replies are coming back to 4-Hers from the cookies sent to Viet Nam. Diane Scott of Harrington was the first one we heard about receiving a letter. Watch for next week's column where we'll reproduce one such note. Happy New Year to all from 4-H.

U. of D. Researchers To Participate In Weed Control Conference

Fifteen staff members from the University of Delaware's College of Agricultural Sciences will present papers at the Northeastern Weed Control conference in New York Jan. 5, 6 and 7. They will report on the results of their research on soybean, corn, vegetable and fruit weed control methods, on the addition of herbicides to mulches and on the persistence of herbicides in the soil.

Reports on experiments to control weeds on agricultural land, commercial turf areas, home lawns and highways will be included in the three-day meeting. The use of chemicals which retard grass growth will be underlaid, as well as means to apply them. Pollution control experts are expected to attend the conference along with researchers from educational and industrial concerns.

First Federal Savings Raise Dividends To Four and 1/4 Percent

The board of directors of First Federal Savings and Loan Association has authorized raising the annual dividend rate on all savings accounts to 4 1/4 percent.

The announcement was made by William A. Welsh, president of First Federal, who said that the new rate will apply for all savings beginning with the first half of 1966.

First Federal Savings and Loan Association's headquarters office is located at 909 Shipley Street, Wilmington. It's downstate Delaware office is on Main Street in Millsboro.

First Federal is the oldest and largest federally-chartered savings and loan association in Delaware.

Welsh said the rate increase is consistent with the association's policy to pay returns in earnings to savers in accordance with its progress and prosperity commensurate with security.

All savings at First Federal, Welsh said, will continue to be compounded semi-annually, and all accounts individually insured up to $10,000. Withdrawals of any funds when a need arises are made possible at First Federal for all savers without delay, he said.

D. P. & L. Declares Dividend

The Board of Directors of Delaware Power & Light Company Thursday declared a quarterly dividend of 45 cents per share of common stock payable January 31, 1966 to holders of record January 4, 1966, representing an increase of 3 cents per share over the last quarterly dividend paid October 30, 1965.

At the same time, the Board of Directors proposed that the common stock of the company be split two-for-one, subject to the approval of the Public Service Commission of Delaware and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The Board of Directors also approved a change in the corporate name from Delaware Power & Light Company to Delmarva Power & Light Company in order to more accurately identify the company with its service area, the Delmarva Peninsula. It is proposed to change the names of the wholly-owned subsidiaries, The Eastern Shore Public Service Company of Maryland and Eastern Shore Public Service Company of Virginia, to Delmarva Power & Light Company—of Maryland and of Virginia, respectively.
