

CITY ATTORNEY TO STUDY SWEARING IN OF OFFICIALS

The City Council voted Tuesday night to request an opinion from the city solicitor concerning the swearing in of new councilmen as a split in the new council became apparent.

A personnel committee also was appointed by the council after one of the new councilmen Russell McCready, questioned the duties of the city clerk, Mrs. Katherine T. Derrickson.

A tie-breaking vote was needed from Mayor Luther P. Hatfield twice during Tuesday night's session, once on the swearing in protest and again on approval of a 30 per cent increase in the city's street lighting bill, long passed over because of the expense.

The protest against the swearing in ceremony held the previous Tuesday night was initiated by Councilman Albert C. Price who asked that City Solicitor Grover C. Brown be requested to give his opinion on it.

"I feel the charter was not complied with since a quorum was not present," Price said. "And I would like the city solicitor's written opinion on the matter."

Price was joined by Burton Satterfield and Howell Hitchens in voting to ask the opinion. Wilson G. Bradley and the two newly elected councilmen, McCready and Raymond G. Dale, cast the three negative votes against the motion.

Hatfield voted in favor of asking Brown's opinion, "to clear up any doubts about the matter."

McCready initiated the forming of a personnel committee with some questions directed specifically at Mrs. Derrickson's duties and her job performance.

Mrs. Derrickson has been removed as secretary to council and replaced by McCready. Bradley has tried for several years to have her removed as city clerk.

The position of secretary of the City Council has been held by different officials over the years. Some 15 years ago, the post was held by the late Councilman Leonard Harrington followed by the then city manager, Grace Wanda Quillen. Councilman Alan Rutledge then held the post, followed by Mrs. Derrickson, who was appointed to the post five years ago by Council though she had been fulfilling the duties before that.

The personnel committee, comprised of McCready, Hitchens and City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann, will make a general study of the city's personnel practices.

The improved street lighting, postponed for two years because of expense, was approved Tuesday night also by Hatfield's tie-breaking vote. Larger lights on various streets in Harrington were authorized for installation by council.

Bradley, McCready and Dale voted in favor of the move and the three holdover councilmen opposed it.

The installation will raise Harrington's bill from Delaware Power and Light Company from $6,800 a year to slightly more than $9,000 annually.

Shortly after the approval, council authorized borrowing $5000 to pay its bills until tax money begins coming in again after April 1. The DP&L payment will not have to come out of this year's budget, Hatfield said.

Charles L. Peck Jr. Attends Southern States Conference

Charles L. Peck Jr. manager, Peck Bros. Farm Supply Company, of Harrington, attended a Southern States Cooperative Regional Agency Conference held at the Howard Johnson Motel in Baltimore, Jan. 12-13-14.

The conference—with a "Make It Happen" theme—was held for training agency personnel to prepare them for maximum service to the cooperative's farmer-owners in the coming spring season.

Emphasizing ways and means for helping patrons to increase farm production and income, Southern States operations and distribution personnel brought the agency representatives up-to-date on programs for feed, seed, fertilizer, and farm supplies. In addition, commodity schools were held on tires, motor oil, agricultural chemicals, paint and feed. The conference was one of five such meetings held at key points in the cooperative's five-state operating territory.

Mrs. Joseph F. Hinks

Mrs. Elizabeth Johnston Hinks, 74, wife of the Rev. Joseph F. Hinks, died Sunday at their home in Milford after a long illness.

Mrs. Hinks was a graduate of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College in Stroudsburg, Pa., and served as a principal in Bridgeport, N. J., for several years before coming to Delaware.

She lived in Lewes while her husband held an Episcopal Church position there, then moved with him to Milford in 1928 when he became rector of Christ Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Hinks was organist and choir director at Christ Episcopal Church for the past 23 years.

Surviving, besides her husband, are a daughter, Miss Isabelle Hinks, at home; a brother, William G. Johnston, of Bainbridge, N. Y.; and a sister, Miss Katherine Johnston of Binghamton, N. Y.

Services were held Wednesday morning at Christ Episcopal Church. There was no viewing and the family requested that, in lieu of flowers, contributions be made to the improvement fund of Christ Church.

KENT BOARD GETS LAND REAPPRAISAL

Kent County's completed land-value reappraisal was received Tuesday by the Levy Court.

Chester J. Bricko, representing the J. M. Clemmishaw Company, presented the assessment which he said proved his earlier predictions that the reappraisal would add $100 million to the property values in Kent County.

Land values in the county, according to Bricko, have jumped 35.2 per cent. The taxable value (60 per cent of the appraised value) was $139 million before reappraisal and is now $200 million, an increase of about $60 to $60 million he said.

Those figures, which represent 60 per cent of total evaluation of the taxable amount, would indicate the actual value of county property is $335 million, or up $100 million over the prior value of $235 million.

The reappraisal was complete except for appraisals of public utility facilities and new construction in the county, which is to be submitted before the April 1 deadline.

Boggs Backs Move To Upgrade Postal Service

The Senate Post Office Committee is actively considering making an overall study of how the Post Office Department operates, Senator J. Caleb Boggs (R-Del.) said this week.

The committee, of which Boggs is a member, also agreed informally Monday to support allocation of funds for a cost study of mail handling operations.

"We want to check every possible way to bring about improvement in mail deliveries," Boggs said.

At the committee meeting, the first since the Senate reconvened, Boggs explained the problem he had last week with the delayed delivery of a special delivery letter from Washington to Wilmington.

"Since the news story first appeared about this delay," Boggs told committee members, "I have received a dozen letters from Delawareans telling me of similar instances of mail delays."

The Postmaster General has been advised of the complaints, Boggs said.

"Post office patrons pay for good service and they should get it," Boggs added.

The study which the committee has in mind would look into all aspects of the Post Office Department's operations.

"I have no doubt the Postmaster General wants to provide the best possible service," said Boggs. "This study would help him carry out that objective."

"Steps which the Postmaster General announced Monday to improve the postal system sound promising," Boggs added. "An independent survey is also needed, however," he said.

Search Begins for Mother of the Year

Delaware begins its search for the "Mother of the Year" to represent "The First State" in the annual "American Mother of the Year" contest to be held in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York City.

Mrs. Cann said that suggestion and entries will be welcomed from those who believe they have a worthy candidate for the title.

The six qualifications for the entry are: (1) That she be a successful mother as evidenced by her individual children. (2) That she be an active member of a religious body. (3) That she embody those traits highly regarded in mothers—courage, cheerfulness, patience, affection, kindness, understanding and (Continued on Page 5)

He was appointed to the post by Judge Caleb M. Wright Jan. 12 after Rodriguez resigned. Rodriguez, who served as commissioner since July 12, 1961, said he resigned to devote more time to his private law practice.

Kelsey, who is associated with Rodriguez's law firm, is a graduate of the University of Delaware and received his law degree from Washington and Lee Law School. A native of Smyrna, he graduated from John Bassett Moore High School there.

Killen's Pond Final Tract Agreed Upon

The State Park Commission obtained an option to buy that holdout tract at Killen's Pond for $18,500—somewhat less than the $100,000 the owner originally demanded.

This was revealed last week when the State Budget Commission approved the park board's request for transfer of $500 from the divestiture fund to pay for additional appraisals.

The signing of the option apparently ended a struggle that was made public when the park commission won approval last summer to buy the southwestern Kent County pond bed and the bulk of the land surrounding it from former State Auditor Ernest E. Killen of Harrington.

At that time, park officials said they still needed two acres of waterfront land owned by Howard C. Carter to assure their control of the pond. But, they told the Budget Commission, Carter was holding out for $100,000.

The park agency originally proposed to buy Carter's tract with divestiture funds, but the law providing $3.25 million from the windfall for open spaces acquisition specifically outlawed the use of condemnation to acquire the land.

The park commission then proposed that the land be purchased from other state funds to circumvent the prohibition against condemnation.

Now the option has been signed, and if the Budget Commission approves, the land will be purchased with $18,500 in divestiture funds.

Legion Post Sponsors March of Dimes

The Callaway-Kemp-Raughley Tee Post No. 7 and the Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion will again sponsor the March of Dimes campaign in Harrington.

While contributions, regardless of size, have helped conquer and eliminate the crippling effects of polio, there is still a long road ahead.

To conquer birth defects and arthritis will be the objective ahead. Contributions to the Mothers' March of Dimes, to be held Monday night, Jan. 31, will give the program a start.

The March will start by meeting in the office at City Hall 6:30 p.m. Monday where routes will be assigned.

Last year about double the amount of drivers needed appeared. "This year let's avoid this by as many members of the American Legion coming down to drive as possible. This only means one night in 365 for such a worthy cause," says Leonard Horleman, chairman.

"So let all of us give, regardless of the amount, to help prevent the crippling effects of birth," pleads Horleman.

Canisters have been placed at most shops and stores. Those who have been missed can get them by calling at the First National Bank.

Contributions for those who wish to make them will be accepted at the Peoples Bank of Harrington by Lester Smith. At the First National Bank of Harrington by Leonard Horleman.

The public is asked to turn on porch lights, Mon., Jan. 31, at 6:30 p.m. until it has been called on.

"The Callaway-Kemp-Raughley Tee Post No. 7 and the Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion, and all connected with the drive, wish to thank you for your splendid co-operation shown in the past. We do know that it has been a great help to those who have been in need," concludes Horleman.

Barn Blazes Near Felton; $1500 Damage

An estimated $1000 to $1500 worth of damage resulted from a barn fire at 6 p.m. Friday on a vacant farm about seven miles northwest of Felton, owned by Mrs. Ann Harvath, of Culver City, Calif.

The barn, located on the Felton-Sandtown Road, was observed to be burning by a passerby who reported the blaze by phone.

According to Deputy State Fire Marshal J. Benjamin Roy Jr., the cause of the fire is unknown at this time, but he stated Monday he believes the fire was started by "two children playing with matches."

Roy said his investigation of the cause is continuing.

Graham and Cohee Appointed Magistrates; Senate O.K. Needed

George S. Graham, Harrington, and Tyson Cohee, Felton, were two persons named by Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr., Tuesday to be magistrates in Kent County. The appointments are subject to Senate confirmation today (Thurs., Jan. 20).

Graham, Democratic committeeman for the upper Ninth, is a former city manager and former sheriff of Kent County. He is now secretary of the Kent County Department of Elections.

Cohee has been working with the State Motor Vehicle Department. The governor appointed 19 magistrates for Kent and Sussex Counties, his first appointments under last year's magistrate reform legislation.

Terry called the Senate back to consider the appointments, 12 in Sussex and seven in Kent. All must be confirmed by a majority vote of the Senate.

The list includes 15 Democrats and four Republicans and the first Negro ever appointed to the

Patrolman Doesn't Show For Duty; Fired by Council

Patrolman James L. Era was relieved of his duties by the City Council Tuesday night on the recommendation of Chief of Police Franklin Rogers.

The chief said Patrolman Era had not shown up for duty for a week and that he still had his equipment.

He added, "it makes it hard on the department." City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann said Patrolman Era, who has been working a night shift, had approached him within the past few days and requested an earlier shift to permit a part-time job. It would, however, be up to the chief of police to process the request.

The nature of Patrolman Era's part-time job was not brought out; neither did the Council announce a replacement for the three-man department.

Mrs. Robert Baynard

Services were held last Friday at the Berry Funeral Home, Felton, for Mrs. Patsy Ann Baynard, 31, who died Wed., Jan. 12, in St. Louis, Mo., en route to a hospital.

She leaves her husband, Robert Baynard, a former Harrington resident, who is associated with Monsanto Company in St. Louis, and her mother, Mrs. Ruth Billings, of near Felton.

Interment was at Hollywood Cemetery.

GSA SUGGESTS REPLACING WAR MEMORIAL AT POSTOFFICE

The buildings manager of the federal government's General Services Administration suggests moving a memorial at the Post Office and replacing it.

A letter, read by Mayor Luther P. Hatfield, Tuesday night at a Council meeting, suggested, as part of the Post Office's current beautification project, that a war memorial in the lot at Commerce and Clark Streets be moved to the grounds of the Callaway-Kemp-Raughley Tee Post No. 7, American Legion, on U. S. 13.

The memorial, erected by local civic groups, gives the names of persons from this area who served in World War II.

The letter from James E. Harvey, GSA buildings manager, also suggested the site of the present memorial be occupied by a fieldstone memorial, with bronze plaque, listing the dead from World War I to the present. It was believed names of the deceased would be made available by the Legion.

The government plan would also call for a 24-foot blue spruce back of the fieldstone. Expenses of the project would be borne by the federal government.

Postmaster Howard Dill attending the Council meeting, suggested the spruce could be used as a permanent Christmas tree. This would eliminate erecting and taking down a Christmas tree annually in the

New Castle County until the downstate system is functioning. Terry said he plans to make the upstate appointments in May.

The plan to name only downstate magistrates drew some opposition from upstate Democrats at a series of discussions Tuesday in Terry's office. At the meetings were most of the 18 senators, New Castle County Democratic Chairman Francis A. Dolan and Wilmington Chairman Leo T. Marshall.

Persons attending the meeting said the upstaters wanted Terry to name magistrates for the entire state at the same time.

Later, Terry told reporters: "I made no agreement in any way, shape or form with the New Castle County or Wilmington chairmen regarding magistrate appointments. I made no deals concerning the confirmations."

Terry originally intended to announce his downstate appointments after unveiling the list to the senators Tuesday morning. He later told reporters he was delaying the announcement 24 hours in an attempt to fill a Sussex vacancy.

In addition to the 20 expected to be confirmed without any difficulty, five holdover magistrates will remain in office in the two lower counties until their terms expire.

The five downstate holdovers, and the dates their terms expire, are: Leslie B. Roberts, Selbyville Democrat, March 28; W. Max Hollenbeck, Milford Democrat, May 10; Maurice W. Carrow, Camden Democrat, July 23; (Continued on Page 5)

Events Calendar Now Available

Samuel L. Shipley, director of the Development Department announces that the "Calendar of Events in Delaware," covering the months of January, February, March, April, and May are now available.

The department has adopted a standard scene for the cover to represent the various seasons covered by the calendar. The scene is a typical countryside view with a tree in the foreground. This particular issue depicts the scene with a bare tree, snow on the ground, and in black, gray, and white.

The next issue covering the summer months will have the same scene with leaves on the tree and will be in color on green stock. Following the same pattern in the fall, it will have the leaves falling with a brown color on buff stock.

The idea is to establish a continuity of patterns for easy recognition and yet have the calendar cover represent the season it covers.

The calendar of Events is published three times a year by the Development Department to publicize the events worth traveling to Delaware to see.

Enquiries regarding the calendar should be directed to the Tourist Division of the Development Department, 45 The Green.

The convention is the big thing of the week. It isn't often that conventions are so close geographically. This year it is in Milford. Delegates from St. Stephen's are Messrs. Robert Creadick and George Thompson with attending alternates Carrington Burgess and William F. Smith. Twenty-nine people have bought tickets to the banquet which will be held on Tuesday evening at 7:00 P. M. at the Milford Junior High School on North Walnut Street. Tickets have been obtained for all of these even though St. Stephen's quota was only eighteen. These tickets should be picked up from the vestibule after the service Sunday if they have not already been obtained. Those who do not attend the banquet should plan to be at the Milford Junior High School to hear the presiding bishop at about 8:15 to 8:30. This will be the first time that Presiding Bishop Hines has addressed the Delaware convention, and this is a privilege that will probably not come again soon. Six women from St. Stephen's will attend the women's convention and luncheon on Wednesday. There are tickets still available for the luncheon if these should be desired.

A highlight this coming Sunday will be the service of prayer for Christian unity which is sponsored by Protestants and Catholics and which will be held at 3:00 p. m. at William Henry High School, 900 Forest Street, West Dover. In a time when several major denominations are seeking church unity and when the Roman Catholic Vatican Council II has made strides in that direction, all Christian people should make a special attempt to attend such a service.

This Sunday at the 10:45 a. m. service it will be the vicar's pleasure to install the vestry for 1966. Returning to the vestry after a period of "rest" will be Mrs. Robert McNally and Frank Elton. Elected for the first time is William F. Smith. These three members replace Mrs. Hewitt Smith, Walter Winkler and Granville Hill, who in keeping with the rotation system have retired from the vestry for this year. Those remaining on the vestry are: Messrs. Robert Creadick, Clyde Perry, Robert Nelson, Carrington Burgess and Mrs. Edna Baynard. At its most recent meeting, this group elected Frank Elton to be Senior Warden for the coming year, assisted by George Thompson, Junior Warden.

Bridge, Ferry Personnel Must Live in N. J. or Del.

Employees of the Delaware River and Bay Authority, working at either Delaware Memorial Bridge or on the Cape May-Lewes ferry, will have to become residents of either New Jersey or Delaware before September 1.

That ruling was made at the January meeting of the Authority, at which time Clarence B. McCormick, Bridgeton, N. J., became the new chairman, succeeding Theodore C. Bright of Pennsylvania, N. J., now general manager of Delaware Memorial Bridge.

Director William J. Miller, Jr., announced that management felt it would be to the best interest of the Authority to have all its personnel close at hand. Those regularly employed have until September 1 to find homes in either state. Permanent employees hired after this month will be given six months to meet the requirement, Miller said.

U. of D. Horticulturists Test Herbicide-Mulch Mixtures

The application of mulch and weed killer in one easy step may be possible in the near future. An herbicide and mulch combination tested recently gave excellent weed control, according to Dr. Charles W. Dunham, associate professor in the department of horticulture at the University of Delaware.

Research by Dr. Dunham, E. M. Rahn, associate professor, and Thomas Fretz, research assistant, all in the University's horticulture department, established that the herbicide used in a mulch had the same effect as in usual applications. The herbicide dissolved in rain or with irrigation and then reached the soil where it could begin acting on germinating weeds.

The amount of herbicide added to the mulch was calculated so that the use of one-half inch of mulch would result in the desired rate of herbicide applied. Dr. Dunham says. He believes the greatest advantage of the weed control combination was that, once mixed, it could be put down without further attention to the rate of herbicide application.

Home gardeners with irregularly shaped or small flower beds have always had difficulty applying herbicides in the recommended amounts. For good results, it is vitally important that the herbicide be used in the correct proportion. Calculating the exact area of a flower border or finding the amount of herbicide required for a very small area can be quite difficult, Dr. Dunham says. The herbicide-mulch combination required no complicated arithmetic; it had only to be applied evenly one-half inch deep.

The neat appearance of a mulch has long made it a favorable weed-control method of home gardeners and nurserymen. Adding a herbicide increased the effectiveness of the mulch without affecting the appearance.

The herbicide-mulch combination also proved an economical and labor-saving method of control. Only one application was needed of a mulch one-half inch deep, instead of the two inch layer often required.

Dr. Dunham believes the research project proved that the combination is a practical answer for home and nursery application of herbicides. However, the combination is not now commercially available, and the horticulturists do not recommend mixing by gardeners themselves.

Herbicides are very selective in their weed control action, Dr. Dunham states. Some work primarily on grass-type weeds; others control woody or herbaceous weeds best. Naturally, if the herbicides are used without consideration of the kinds of flowers in the bed, they may kill or injure desired plants as well as weeds. Therefore, the correct herbicide should be chosen by an expert in the field.

Another problem encountered in the research was the tendency of some mulches to blow away, carrying the herbicide along. An untidy appearance resulted, besides spreading the herbicide to undesirable locations.

In presenting the results of this study to the Northeastern Weed Control Conference in New York recently, Fritz said: "Our research shows this herbicide-mulch combination has important advantages compared to conventional weed control methods."

4-H Club Notes With Marion McDonald

Planning is the key to good visual presentations. Kent and Sussex leaders and Junior Leaders have been learning at the recent training meetings. Selecting a subject, collecting correct, accurate information and finally condensing to a single idea are the basic first steps. Then a member develops the presentation and adds the showmanship techniques. Alvin Brown, Housatonic Cardinals leader, after the group helped him plan, presented a demonstration on cutting a seed potato. The show and tell period in many first grade classes is a forerunner to our 4-H visual presentations. Although weather at this writing is of the ice skating variety, 4-H'ers will be a bit warmer at the roller skating party on Jan. 31.

County 4-H leaders will swing back into action with a regular meeting on January 25th. It will be time to fill out our calendars for 1966 events and activities.

Local club programs are coming into the 4-H office. Such an interesting variety from safety programs, Your Manners Are Showing to Parliamentary Procedure practice.

Chairman Named For D. B. & R. Authority

Clarence B. McCormick, Bridgeton, N. J., banker and businessman, was named chairman of the Delaware River and Bay Authority at its monthly meeting on January 12.

McCormick, 60, replaces Theodore C. Bright, Pennsylvania, N. J., who resigned the chairmanship to become general manager of Delaware Memorial Bridge. Bright will fill the position left vacant by the death of Frank J. Horty, Wilmington, bridge manager for nearly ten years. Bright's salary was set at $21,000 a year.

McCormick will serve in the top post until February, 1967, when the chairmanship reverts to Delaware, according to the original Authority pact adopted three years ago. The chairmanship changes every two years.

The Authority last month elected Francis A. Dolan, Wilmington, as safety director for the bridge and was expected to name a New Jersey man as safety director of the Cape May-Lewes ferry. However, that action was deferred.

The Authority commissioners called upon its traffic engineers to submit proposals by February for reduced rates on the Cape May-Lewes ferry for bus passengers and establish some type of commuter tickets at reduced rates for commercial vehicles. While ferry traffic is increasing, the Authority believes commercial business can be stepped up if lower vehicle rates are adopted.

In other action, it was decided that certified public accountants be hired biannually to do the Authority's bookkeeping work on a joint venture basis. Vice Chairman Alexis I. duPont Bayard submitted the name of Arthur H. Krieger, of Krieger Dwares & Co., Wilmington, as the Delaware representative. New Jersey will name its candidate later. Salaries of each were set at $3,300.00 annually.

When Bright was named bridge general manager, he automatically came under the supervision Director William J. Miller, Jr. Bright was Miller's boss until the switch. This is not a new experience for the two men. Both served in the same U. S. Army Corps of Engineers in Alaska during World War II. Miller was a captain and Bright was his sergeant.

It was also noted that two Delaware men are now in training as additions to the Delaware Memorial Bridge police force and two New Jersey men will be added in the spring, according to Miller.

Medical Economics Writing Award Announced

The National Association of Blue Shield Plans announced Monday that it would sponsor the 1966 Norman A. Welch, M.D., Memorial Award program.

The award will be made to the author of the most scholarly and meritorious contribution to the literature of medical economics between July 1, 1965 and June 30, 1966. The contribution can be an article or series of articles, a book, or a published or delivered speech.

The annual award was established by the National Association of Blue Shield Plans in 1965 to honor the memory of Dr. Welch, long active in Blue Shield and president of the American Medical Association when he died in September, 1964.

The award consists of a medalion of solid gold emblazoned with a bust of Dr. Welch and $1,000 contributed in the author's name to the Norman A. Welch, M.D., Memorial Fund of the American Medical Association Education and Research Foundation.

Winner of the 1965 award was Herbert E. Klamran, Ph.D., professor of Public Health Administration at Johns Hopkins University, for his book "Economics of Health."

The award winner will be selected by a three-man committee comprised of representatives of the American Medical Association, the American Medical Writers' Association, and the board of directors of the National Association of Blue Shield Plans.

Literature to be judged will be compiled by the library of the National Association of Blue Shield Plans. Authors may submit entries by sending them to: Library, National Association of Blue Shield Plans, 425 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60611. Deadline for entries is September 1.

Announcement of the winner and presentation of the award will be made at the 1966 annual program conference of the National Association of Blue Shield Plans in Chicago, October 10.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

Wholesale prices on almost all meat and meat products are up this week. However, many stores are again featuring broiler-fryers and a number have specials on some beef cuts. Though advertised specials on pork are few, those which are available are excellent values.

During the past two weeks there has been some increase in the fed cattle available, but with the greater demand for beef because of continued reduced supply of pork, wholesale prices have been unchanged to slightly higher this week. Due to the continued high cost of meat, it is extremely important to consider more than ever the cost per serving of the meat you buy. Remember many cuts wear lower per pound price tags and contain more bone, suet, and gristle than other cuts which have been trimmed and are boneless. However, when you stop and compare the edible portions, the cut costing the most per pound often is the better buy.

Poultry continues to be one of the most economical protein buys. Though broiler-fryer wholesale prices are up a bit—partly due to exports and government purchases—there are more whole and cut-up chickens available this week than any other single meat. When buying the cut-up sections, be sure to check what you are buying. Read the label and look at the sections to see whether it says "breast" alone or "breasts with ribs" or "breasts with backs" or "legs with ribs" etc. The breasts or legs alone may cost more per pound but you will be getting more meat yield for your money.

This week might be just the week to serve lots of nutritious dark, leafy green vegetables.

Many are now abundant in our local markets, so check spinach, mustard greens, turnip tops, and kale as well as salad choices like endive, escarole, and parsley. Cabbage, potatoes, onions, and sweet potatoes remain economical and green onions, string beans, peppers, radishes, and tomatoes are more attractively priced. Only lettuce has been noticeably affected by recent poor weather. Bananas, oranges, and grapes still lead the list of best buys at the fruit counter. Film-bag lots of McIntosh and Delicious apples are also available in good supply as well as some Cortland and Stayman apples. For a change—you may be able to find in your favorite store that the first hot-house rhubarb from Michigan has arrived.

Wheat-Program Participants To Get Wheat Parity

Wheat farmers who participate in the 1966 voluntary wheat program can expect a better return per bushel of wheat than in 1965, Chairman Olin Gooden of the Kent Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) County Committee, said yesterday at Dover.

The increased return can be expected because wheat produced for domestic food consumption is supported at 100 per cent of parity, the Chairman said.

Under provisions of the new program, 45 per cent of the projected yield production of the allotment of a participating farm will be eligible for domestic marketing certificates. The marketing certificates will be valued at the difference between the national average loan rate of $1.25 per bushel and parity on July 1, 1966, Mr. Gooden said.

In addition, all wheat produced on allotment acres of participating farms is eligible for price-support loans.

Full details of the 1966 wheat program may be obtained from the Kent ASCS County Office at Dover. Mr. Gooden said farmers who wish to participate in the program should sign up with the county office before April 1.

Signup Period Announced For '66 Diversion Programs

The signup for the 1966 programs for wheat and feed grains, will start on Jan. 31, chairman Olin Gooden, of the Kent Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, announced this week. The signup deadline will be April 1.

For the long-term Cropland Adjustment Program (CAP), the signup will begin on Jan. 24, on a first-come, first-served basis. The signup deadline for CAP will be announced later. Producers who file intentions under CAP but do not enter into final agreements will have 15 days to file applications to take part in one or more of the annual commodity programs after applicants withdraw or after the County Committee notifies them that no agreement will be available.

The Chairman explained that for 1966, a flexible schedule of signups has been adopted throughout the county, with each ASC State Committee determining the most appropriate period for the activity. In most states, the signup period is uniform in all counties.

In general, both the commodity programs and CAP call for diversion of crop acreage into an approved conserving use. By meeting provisions of the programs, farmers become eligible for various benefits in the form of payments—and also for loans under the commodity programs.

However, Mr. Gooden reminded farmers that participation in the various diversion programs is not automatic—filing an application which shows the operator's program intentions is the first necessary step in qualifying for program benefits.

All of the signups are conducted at the Kent ASCS County Office at Dover. Phone: 697-3601 for more information.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

As mentioned here on many occasions, Harrington has always been considered a railroad center from the days of high-speed express trains right down to the wire where horse racing took over and established it as the "Home of Harness Racing."

Much of the credit for this transition goes to "Direct Express", the fastest horse of its time, its shrewd owner and trainer and the poet who penned the following lines. Reprinted, lest we forget).

DIRECT EXPRESS

Direct Express was America's pacing champion. He won the American Pacing Derby by defeating the great Jimmy Creed in a thrilling finish at Roosevelt Raceway, New York. Direct Express, who was owned by the late Fred Greenly, of Harrington, died in California, in March, 1948.

He died, died in the harness, as all great kings should go; The sun may set in splendor—the gentle afterglow In tones of deathless magic is written on the skies— A warning—yet a promise—that never, never dies. Aristocrat, yet humble; a tempest, yet as mild, As loving, and as tender and as trusting as a child. No swishing flail to urge him—a whisper and caress And gallant heart responded—that was Direct Express!

The Roosevelt Raceway crowded unto its breathing space; The teeming thousands gathered to see the dauntless race! A myriad of colors, the grandeur of the sight— The Sport of Kings, they call it—and Kings WERE Kings that night.

The nation's greatest pacers, and each one at his best— The prize was wealth and homage—and glory at its crest! A space of breathless silence, then tumult rocks the sky— Around that polished oval the straining horses fly. With speed of a tornado obscuring tropics' sun, In sweeps of sheer perfection all horses seem as one. The solid front is breaking and one who's borne the brunt Comes tearing past all others, and Creed's in front— In front—and seems the winner, a Mercury of speed— For valiant the fibre and heart of Jimmy Creed! But wait! The frantic thousands are startled from their seats

As out of nowhere flashes a horse whose thund'rous beats Of hoof and heart are grandeur—by inches are his gains; "Fred Greenly's horse is coming—Paul Vinyard at the reins!"

Adown the stretch they're fighting as nothing's fought before; Heart beats respond to heart beats, the wild acclaim, the roar;

Spine-tingled thousands shouting, for once again they see An ancient epic's grandeur—the Natchez and the Lee! In ecstasies of madness no mortal can suppress, The hoarsely shrieking thousands proclaim: "Direct Express!"

In good fights, says the Bible, or leastwise I've been told, The fighter's name is written on leaves of shining gold. There is for him a haven beyond this vale care Where loved ones all may greet him and dwell forever there. Since from the world's first dawning in mystifying fog, Man's constant two companions, the noble horse and dog; Then no one dare give credence, save bigot, dunce or blind, That man, in God's own image, would leave his pals behind.

Theology, religion—a derelict at sea, A-trusting and a-praying for things I hope will be: I see no vales of ophir, with mansions rich and fair, But horseman's dream of heaven, with bluegrass waving there;

Where all may meet together in Armageddon's band; Where each may talk his language, but all may understand; Where no one bears the burden of penance or duress— And in brook-gladdened meadows, I see Direct Express! —J. HARVEY BURGESS

Contributions by the unit were made to the March of Dimes, the Heart Fund, The Chapel of the Four Chaplains, and the All-Faith Chapel Building Fund at the Hospital for the Mentally Retarded at Stockley.

A new project entitled "Operation Home Town Newspaper" was explained by the president. This is a program for sending newspapers to service-men in Viet Nam. Because no request had been received through the American Legion Auxiliary by a local boy, the Harrington Unit will send the Wilmington Morning News to Charles Hayes, of Newport, Del., who is serving in the Army.

At the February meeting, Miss Toby Kristvinsdottir, Harrington's exchange student, will be the guest speaker. All unit members and Junior members are urged to attend.

Guard Revises Waiting List Procedure

A new procedure will make it easier for prospective recruits to find vacancies in Delaware National Guard units.

Delaware's 30 Army National Guard units have been at full strength since mid-December. As vacancies have occurred, new recruits have been admitted from waiting lists.

Normally Guard units are responsible for their own recruiting and until now, each unit has maintained its own waiting list. A prospective recruit had to contact each unit individually to get in line for that unit. Duplication resulted when men signed up on more than one waiting list.

Under the new procedure, there will be only four waiting lists, each for a specific area of the state. A man who signs up on the waiting list for his area will be considered in his proper turn for any vacancy in the area, no matter which unit has the opening.

The Guard is able to enlist an average of ten to fifteen men each week as a result of retirements, expiring enlistments, and transfers out of the state.

First preference in filling the resulting openings goes to men with previous service in the Guard or the active services. Prior-service officers and enlisted men can usually be assigned immediately, if they are willing to convert to a specialty in which a vacancy occurs.

Recruits without previous military experience are placed on the appropriate waiting list, and as vacancies occur, men on the list are considered in order. The man highest on the list who has test scores that qualify him for a particular job that is open will be offered the opportunity to enlist.

The waiting lists are maintained by the following headquarters: Wilmington, New Castle and Newark areas—261st Artillery Brigade, State Armory, 10th and DuPont Sts., Wilmington.

Middletown, Smyrna, Dover and Harrington areas—160th Artillery Group, John Haslet Army, Dover.

Milford and Georgetown areas—2nd Battalion, 198th Artillery, State Armory, Milford. Laurel, Seaford, and Dagsboro area—3rd Battalion, 198th Artillery, State Armory, Laurel.

National Guard units throughout the state will assist applicants with their initial enlistment processing, arrange for physical and mental examinations, and, if the applicant is qualified for enlistment, refer him to the appropriate headquarters where his name will be placed on the waiting list. The present waiting time for enlistment is about eight to ten weeks.

Kaffeeklatch

with Eleanor K. Voshell

Put your big foot forward when you shop for shoes. It's the best foot for measuring since this helps get a better fit.

Did you realize that the difference between one shoe size and the next is only 1/16 of an inch? With this in mind you can see why a shoe should fit comfortably when bought.

The same foot will measure differently according to the time of day. We are told that during the afternoon the foot is about midpoint in size. This is the best time to shop for shoes.

As shoe styles change, so do sizes. Changing from a sit-down job to an active one can cause a change in shoe size. When fitting shoes, try on both shoes and ask if you can walk on a hard-surfaced floor. Your walking will be mostly on hard surfaces, so this is a better judge of comfort.

As you shop for shoes you will find more and more of the leather substitute corfam. It is now widely available in higher priced shoes. It is soft-resistant, durable, and easier to clean than leather.

Corfam does not take on the shape of the foot the way leather does. This makes it even more important to have a good fit at the beginning.

About twenty other leather substitutes are available for low-priced shoes. Those who predict price changes say that increased shoe prices are likely to appear in the spring lines. These may be 50 cents to $1 on a pair of low and medium-priced shoes, and as much as $2 on some high priced shoes.

"Die Monster Die" At Reese, Jan. 21 & 22

Boris Karloff returns as a monster for the first time in thirty years and in his first non-Frankenstein creature role, while Barry Sullivan stars as the leader of spacemen exploring a mysterious planet in a far-away galaxy in two terrifying science fiction thrillers from American International at the Reese Theatre Friday and Saturday, Jan. 21 and 22.

Karloff stars in "Die, Monster, Die!", chilling color and scope tale of a mysterious monster-breeding object from outer-space which terrifies a quiet country family. Nick Adams and Susan Farmer also star in the fantastic adventure film which blends science fiction with old fashioned terror suspense.

Sullivan stars with Norma Bengell in the companion color and scope feature, "Planet of the Vampires," which takes place on a mysterious Earth-like planet of a distant sun. What happens when Sullivan and his fellow space explorers try to do battle with an intelligent but unseen foe with human-like qualities makes for spine-chilling science fiction action.

"Die, Monster, Die!" and "Planet of the Vampires" make for one of the most unusual and most imaginative film combinations ever paired on theatre screens. It's a double dose of nightmare-producing, terror thrill-packed motion pictures.

The picture everybody is talking about is the sensational "ECCO" listed for Sunday and Monday, Jan. 23 and 24. The N. Y. Times "Dare one to see it!"

Upstaters Win Democrat Helm

The Democratic State Convention has reapportioned itself on the basis of the one-man, one vote principle and in the process has shifted the balance of party power to populous upstate districts.

The historic action was approved by acclamation Saturday at a reconvened session of the 1964 Democratic convention. After a fight, delegates from Kent and Sussex Counties finally voted to surrender the convention majority they always had shared together.

The new plan, which goes into effect with the 1966 nominating convention next August, allots delegates to each representative district on the basis of the Democratic vote in the last general election.

It will mean that New Castle County, including Wilmington, will have more than twice the delegate strength of Kent and Sussex Counties in this year's convention and firm control of the nominating conventions for years to come.

As the convention ended, Dukes shouted to the departing delegates, "This means the Democratic Party is clear of court action and that the Republican Party is in trouble."

Dukes has maintained that the Republican reapportionment plan, adopted more than a year ago, probably would be overturned by the courts. The Republican plan allots 55 per cent of convention seats on the basis of geography and 45 per cent on the basis of Republican votes.

The majority of the seats in next summer's Democratic convention—all but 50 out of about 250—will be allocated on the basis of Democratic votes.

Rough estimates indicate that in this year's convention Wilmington will have about 65 seats, New Castle County outside of Wilmington about 110, Kent County 33 and Sussex County 45. It was the first significant change in party rules in a generation and the first departure from the allocation of seats on a geographical basis in the history of Democratic conventions.

At Saturday's convention, and at all Democratic conventions since a 1932 rules change, the two lower counties and New Castle County outside of Wilmington had 60 seats each and Wilmington had 30.

With slight modifications, the new formula was the same that was hammered out by a select committee of party leaders a week ago.

It allots seats to each of the 35 representative districts on the basis of one delegate for 500 Democratic votes cast in the previous general election. Each of the counties and Wilmington get two bonus votes for each office on the statewide ticket carried by the subdivision. The chairmen and vice chairmen of the four subdivisions also will be delegates.

The convention accepted downstate demands on three points, including a resolution calling on the General Assembly to authorize direct primary elections.

It also amended the reapportionment package to require a three-fourths vote to change the party rules, rather than the two-thirds provided in the original draft and the simple majority required until now.

This was intended to prevent Wilmington and New Castle County from using their new strength to further amend the rules in their favor.

The final concession to Kent and Sussex was an amendment eliminating a provision which would have allowed a district to pick up an extra seat if the average vote came out with a major fraction left over. For instance, in a district where the Democrats polled 1,215 votes, it would have been entitled to three seats. With the amendment, it will get just two.

The downstaters figured this will work to their advantage, over the years because 24 of the districts are in New Castle County and only 11 in Kent and Sussex.

Delegates from the two lower counties did not give up without a fight, and Kent County was prepared to offer an amendment that would have based the apportionment on the 1962 election returns.

That would have meant a smaller edge for New Castle County, and northern Delaware Democratic leaders promised to walk out on the convention rather than accept it.

The convention's action added substantially to the power of the New Castle County Democratic organization and, particularly, to the strength of its leader, Francis A. Dolan.

But as the convention ended, Dolan told a reporter that he doesn't intend to use the new power against downstate candidates for statewide offices.

"Kent and Sussex will still receive recognition," said Dolan. And Christiana Hundred Democratic Chairman F. Earl McGinnis praised the downstate Democrats for placing "the fundamental principle of representative government ahead of sectionalism or personal ambition."

McGinnis, who is state budget director, said in a statement, "By taking a little longer, the Democratic Party has accomplished what the Republican Party could not do.

"Unlike Republican conventions, future Democratic conventions . . . will be primarily composed of delegates representing equal numbers of party voters rather than political subdivisions."

Superintendent Named for Stockley

Dr. Joseph C. Denniston, an official in the Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare, will become superintendent of the Hospital for the Mentally Retarded at Stockley on Feb. 1.

Appointment of Dr. Denniston, who is director of the Bureau of Services for Mentally Retarded, Office of Mental Health, in the Pennsylvania Agency, was announced by Dr. Daniel Lieberman, State Commissioner of Mental Health.

Dr. Denniston will succeed Dr. Peter Peffer, who has been functioning as superintendent of both the Hospital for the Mentally Retarded and the Governor Bacon Health Center, at Delaware City, dividing his time between these institutions.

Dr. Denniston, father of five, was born in Rochester, New York, November 1, 1914. He is a graduate of Staunton Military Academy, Holy Cross College at Worcester, Mass., and Tufts Medical College, Boston, Mass. The new superintendent interned at Nassau Hospital, Mineola, N. Y. From 1942 to 1946 he was a flight surgeon in the U.S. Army Air Force.

From 1946 to 1952 Dr. Denniston engaged in general practice at Russellville and Cloverport, Ky., moving in the latter year into specialized training in Pediatrics at St. Joseph's Hospital, Louisville, Ky. In 1954 he entered the private practice of pediatrics, in Louisville, Ky.

In 1958, Dr. Denniston returned to institutional practice, becoming chief pediatrician at the Miners Memorial Hospital, McDowell, Ky., following which he became actively engaged in the field of mental retardation. His positions included clinical director of the Pineland Hospital and Training School, Pownal, Maine, superintendent of the Cloverbottom Hospital and School, Donelson, Tenn., director of the Division of Mental Retardation for Tennessee, superintendent of the Hissom Memorial Center at Sand Springs, Okla., and director of Mental Retardation in the Pennsylvania Office of Mental Health.

The appointment to the Pennsylvania post which he now leaves was made in November, 1964.

Dr. Denniston is a diplomate of the American Board of Pediatrics, a fellow of the American Academy of Pediatrics, a member of the American Academy on Mental Deficiency and advisory consultant to the Children's Bureau of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. He has produced several papers which have been published, including "A New Approach to the Study of Mental Retardation."

The Denniston family includes Mrs. Denniston, a native of Quincy, Mass., who has a nursing degree from the Captain John Adams Hospital at Chelsea and five children who range in age from Mary, who is 15, to Mrs. Anne Denniston Harmer, 24.

In making the announcement, Dr. Lieberman again praised Dr. Peffer, who will now devote all of his time to the Governor Bacon Health Center. He pointed out that Peffer had been scheduled to retire last year but had stayed on at Lieberman's personal request.

U. of D. To Supply Help to Business And Industry

The University of Delaware will shortly initiate a program to supply the latest scientific findings and other help to Delaware's business and industry.

Administering the state-wide program will be a newly-formed Division of Technical and Business Services (TABS), established at the university with the help of a federal grant.

Delaware will be among the first states to implement the bill signed into law last September by President Johnson "to promote economic growth by supporting State and regional programs to place the findings of science usefully in the hands of American enterprise."

Delaware Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr. designated the University of Delaware as the institution to develop and direct the programs in the state.

University President John A. Perkins in turn named Robert W. Cook, an economist, as director of the new division. During more than two years with the university's Division of Urban Affairs, Cook has been intensively involved with the state's economic picture. He wrote the economic portion of a recently-published four-volume study of the Delaware economy.

President Perkins said, "This new division can do for the Delaware businessman what the Cooperative Agricultural Extension Service has done for the Delaware farmer."

The Agricultural Extension Service, created in 1911 by the Smith-Lever Act, began a fruitful partnership between the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Colleges of Agriculture in each of the states. The cooperative venture has served as a pattern for other Federal-State programs, of which the latest is the Technical Services Act.

The new university division, TABS, will provide services in three broad areas: consultation, information, and education.

Cook said he sees TABS as a kind of clearing house. "We will find those enterprises which need and can benefit from new technology or which need help in the solution of management problems, and do whatever is possible to make the enterprise a more productive part of the state's economy."

Cook said one of the purposes of the State Technical Services Act is to shorten the technological lag, a term describing the lapse between the time a process or system is available and when it is in general use. Shortening the lag can improve the productivity of the individual firms and the general economy of Delaware, he said.

The consultation service which TABS will provide will be primarily for the small business enterprise, Cook said, but larger firms and corporations may also benefit. "This program is not intended to supplant consulting firms," Cook stressed.

Information, whether it be technological or business management data, will be furnished to Delaware enterprises, Cook said, "For instance, if we acquire some information that could be of value to a plastics manufacturer, we will transmit it to all those Delaware enterprises which conceivably could make use of the information."

The educational aspect of the new division will take the form of workshops, seminars, non-credit courses or other training programs in cooperation with the university's Division of Extension at various locations throughout Delaware.

"As educational needs arise, we will develop methods to provide for them," Cook said.

Sixteen states, including Delaware, have already received grants from the federal government, through the Commerce Department.

More than half the states had selected their state university to administer the State Technical Services Act, Cook noted.

The act authorizes that each state receive $25,000 a year for three years to aid in planning the program. Delaware's first grant will go both toward planning and initiating the actual program, Cook said. Other federal funds will be available on a matching basis, with the U.S. putting up $1 for each $1 raised by the agency in the state.

Cook, who joined the University of Delaware in 1963, taught economics at the University of Tennessee at Knoxville, where he is completing requirements for a Ph.D. He attended Allegheny College in Meadville, Pa., from 1947 to 1950 and received his bachelor's and master's degrees in economics from Tennessee. He also taught military science at Tennessee before his retirement from the Army in 1960 as a major.

He helped Sam Shipley, director of the Delaware State Development Department, form the Delaware Industrial Advisory Council, which performs services for Shipley's department.

Cook represents Delaware on the board of directors of the Northeastern Industrial Development Association, which is dedicated to fostering economic growth in an 11-state area of the Northeast, bounded on the south by Delaware and Maryland.

Urban Pressures On Agriculture Is Farm And Home Week Topic

Many people in Delaware, including the Delaware State Planning Office, the University of Delaware's Division of Urban Affairs and other agencies, predict that urban growth will occur throughout the state, according to Dr. William Crosswhite, assistant professor of agricultural economics at the University of Delaware and program chairman of the 1966 Farm and Home Week.

Growth is already evident around Dover, Seaford and Rehoboth, in addition to the tremendous growth in the northern part of the state. This growth means that farmers will have to become involved in the planning process if they are going to have a say in the total development of the state, Dr. Crosswhite points out.

In an effort to bring the problems of rural planning to the farm and town dwellers, the University's Farm and Home Week has two meetings to deal with the impact of urban pressures on Delaware's agriculture.

Tuesday morning, February 8, John Bovens, director of the Delaware State Planning Office, will describe the changes occurring in the population, the economy and in land use. Several studies have been completed which provide considerable insight into the changes being experienced by Delaware, according to Bovens.

During this session, William Carroll, extension public affairs specialist at Pennsylvania State University, will discuss farmer participation in rural planning and developments in Pennsylvania. The reaction of Connecticut dairy farmers to urban growth will be described by Dr. Marvin Kottke, associate professor of agricultural economics at the University of Connecticut.

Through a recent survey, he tried to discover the reasons some Connecticut dairy farms in urbanizing areas grew larger while other farmers went out of business. He believes the same factors can influence farmers in most other growth areas.

For five years there has been an active group of citizens interested in rural planning in Kent county agricultural agent and chairman of the Tuesday afternoon Farm and Home meeting on urban pressures, has worked closely with this group.

Lewes Longo, president of the Connecticut Milk Producers Association, is an example of a farmer who has adjusted to urban pressures, according to Vapaa. Speaking at the urban affairs meeting Tuesday afternoon and at the Wednesday, February 9 session, Longo will describe his farm operations. He runs a dairy farm with 100 cows, has a milk route, operates a gravel pit and owns a lawn and turf company.

Also featured at this session is Wallace A. Micheltree, extension community life specialist at Rutgers University.

The growth and spread of industry and population centers are some of the factors responsible for the increasing air pollution problem. Speakers at special Farm and Home Week meeting, also held Tuesday afternoon, February 8, will consider the plant damage caused by this pollution.

The University's Farm and Home Week, February 8-11, also includes sessions on home economics, home landscaping and numerous agricultural topics, as well as tours of the University woodlot and computer center. All programs are open to the public without charge.

Del. Blood Bank To Serve As Model For Calif. City Plan

The Blood Bank of Delaware's influence has reached the West Coast, where it will serve as a model for a similar community blood program in Palo Alto, Calif.

Delaware pioneered the concept of basing a blood program on insurance principles, and its success had let Palo Alto to select the Delaware system after a careful study of all types of community blood programs.

Mrs. Marjorie Bolton, who will be executive secretary of the Palo Alto blood assurance plan, has just completed a 10-day visit to Wilmington, during which she studied details of the local Blood Bank's operation and its relations with hospitals and its members.

She even spent a stint on the telephone calling Blood Bank members to make appointments for their periodic blood donations, to get the "feel" of problems the appointment clerks run into.

The interest in the West Coast blood bank started several years ago when Dr. Leroy Bates, formerly of Baltimore and now medical director of the Palo Alto-Standord Hospital Center, learned of the Delaware Blood Bank through its president, James F. McCloskey, Sr.

Dr. Bates was in Wilmington last month to confer with Brig. Gen. D. Preston Lee, current president of the Blood Bank of Delaware. He went home convinced that the Delaware plan was best suited for Palo Alto. A citizen committee was quickly organized, and Mrs. Bolton selected to head the new organization's staff. Dr. Bates and General Lee immediately made arrangements for Mrs. Bolton to come to Delaware to study the Blood Bank of Delaware's operation. The committee, while Mrs. Bolton was here studying the local plan, was busy with organizational details of incorporating and obtaining office space.

As in Delaware, Mrs. Bolton said, the plan will depend on a close working relationship with hospitals in the area.

She explained the most community blood banks, where they exist, work on banking principles, rather than on an insurance basis as in Delaware. Their members may make "deposits", and if they or their friends need blood, they may write "checks" on the bank, up to the total amount they have given. However, these banks provide no benefits beyond the blood member has deposited. The Delaware plan provides members with as much blood as they require in Delaware Hospitals, and members are called on in turn to give one pint of blood each to supply the total needed.

Another major distinction between the Delaware system and most community blood banks is that the Delaware Blood Bank does not actually draw and store blood, she said. Here, members are sent to individual hospitals to give blood, and it is drawn and stored in individual hospital blood banks.

There are two community blood banks in the Palo Alto vicinity, but each is about 25 miles away. Most people who receive blood at the Palo Alto-Standord Center pay for it, rather than replace it with donations, because under the present system they must make repeated trips to one of the two distant blood banks to give blood. The hospital, in turn, buys most of its blood from the blood banks with the money it receives. But even though it has the money, it has no assurance that enough blood will be on hand when needed. And as one doctor said, "You can't transfuse patients with dollars."

The hospital, which is affiliated with the Standord University Medical School, will set up its own facilities for drawing and storing blood under the new plan, as Delaware hospitals do. Two other smaller hospitals in the area are also expected to participate.

Except for three plans on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, which were patterned after Delaware's Blood Bank, there has been nothing else like it in the country, Mrs. Bolton said. There are plans which operate on an insurance basis, but they are designed primarily to pay for blood used rather than to replace it, and most have rather stringent entrance requirements, as well as a sliding scale of fees based on family size, and long waiting periods before benefits are paid.

Delaware's plan has no health requirements, and only a nominal 30-day waiting period for new members. A single dollar annual fee covers an entire family, and people can join even if they are suffering from ailments that will require regular transfusions.

Palo Alto will adopt these features of the Delaware plan intact, since Delaware has demonstrated that there is no problem in providing the necessary blood through the plan, Mrs. Bolton said.

In spite of the broad benefits provided by the Blood Bank of Delaware, members are currently being called on to provide only one pint of blood every four to five years. Mrs. Bolton said hospital authorities are not sure how frequently members will be called on for blood in Palo Alto, but that it will not be more often than once a year. They anticipate a higher level of blood use than in Delaware, since patients go to Palo Alto from all over California for open heart surgery, and often their families move to the community. They would be eligible to join, and would increase the demand on the Palo Alto plan for blood.

U. of D. Agronomists Aid Army Engineers In C. & D. Canal Project

When you dig up the ground to a depth of 50 or 100 feet or more, the soil that is unearthed, is almost totally incapable of supporting plant life. That is what the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers found when they tried to grow grass on the newly excavated banks of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal which cuts across northern Delaware. The canal, which is being widened and improved, connects Chesapeake and Delaware bays and shortens the shipping route along the eastern seaboard.

Because the land along the canal was much higher than the waterway in many areas, deep cuts had to be made as the canal was widened. To prevent widespread erosion and to add to the attractiveness of the area, the banks were planted with grass and other ground covers last summer. But nothing grew. Twice more the newly graded banks were seeded and mulched. But not a blade of grass resulted.

Representatives from the Corps of Engineers and the Commercial Contractors consulted agronomists and soil scientists at the University of Delaware's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Leo J. Cotnoir, director of the University's soil testing laboratory, ran chemical tests on the soil and found it to be very acid and extremely low in fertility. Because it came from such a distance below the surface of the ground, it was mostly mineral in content, containing almost no organic matter.

Dr. William Mitchell, extension agronomist, took larger samples of the soil to the University greenhouse. Here he planted grass in the soil, using the same seeding mixture as that used on the canal banks, but even under controlled greenhouse conditions, the seeds did not germinate. Then following Cotnoir's detailed laboratory tests, he added lime and various nutrients to several of the samples. Both the results of the chemical tests and the greenhouse planting test showed that five tons of limestone and one-half ton of 20 per cent super phosphate per acre would need to be added to the soil along the canal banks in order to improve the soil enough for the grass to grow.

"After the successful greenhouse experiments, there is little doubt but what the same results will be found when the canal banks are planted in the spring," Dr. Mitchell said. Although greenhouse conditions are not really comparable to those found in an exposed area such as the banks of the canal, Dr. Mitchell pointed out that if the required materials are applied to the soil and the general fertility level raised, "it would only be a matter of time before a desirable ground cover can be established."

The tests showed at least three distinct soil types along the newly graded areas of the canal, Dr. Mitchell explained. "Each soil has different fertility requirements, and these can best be determined in the laboratory." He said lime requirements for these different soil types ranged from three to five tons per acre, but the high phosphorus treatment was necessary under all the soil conditions.

"Because of the uncertainty of the fertility of any soil, laboratory tests can provide the most accurate answers as to what will make plants grow most efficiently—whether they are on a farm, a suburban back yard or the C and D canal," Cotnoir said.

FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapaa

The dairy farm tomorrow will be a marked contrast to what we see today. Last week our Extension Service specialists looked at three farms to see how they might be made more profitable. Here in Kent County we looked at Bill Eliason's farm at Law's Church. Dr. Hesselstine, our dairyman, offered these suggestions for better dairy profits:

1. Increase milk production per cow.
2. Increase herd size to two man unit.
3. Mechanize feeding.
4. Shift to corn silage.
5. Automate milking.

Our livestock specialist, Don Burton, feels that tomorrow's dairyman will be more of a specialist. He will give grain production and buy straw if needed. He should grow alfalfa hay only if he has enough acreage to make it worthwhile to fool with it. Careful attention to feed costs and feeding by production levels will be a key to profits.

Our engineer, Ernest Walpole, sketched out a proposed layout of buildings to reduce manual labor and save time. The plan was designed for 60 cows with expansion to 100 cows in time. In essence, it calls for free stalls, silage feeding, a milking parlor, bulk tank, and paved feed lot. The old buildings can be kept for calf raising.

Bill McAllister, our management specialist, prepared a set of figures which show that one must invest money before you can hope to earn a reasonable return. Ed Harcum of Houston wondered aloud if a person might not invest the same funds in stocks or even savings to get a "guaranteed return."

It's a good question and I'll offer only this comment. Most people seem to farm because they like the risk potential. It's most than being own boss, or liking to work outdoors, with machines or with animals. Good farm managers prove every day that the farm can be an excellent place to earn a living.

Actual records show that being average as a farmer is no longer good enough. Nor is staying small if you want to earn a respectable living. Nor is doing most of the manual labor yourself. The good farm manager must take time to think—and manage—and worry.

Deadline dates are very important to farmers. I'm talking about some dates now that affect crop decisions as they relate to governmental programs. The Cropland Adjustment Program (CAP), the Feed Grain Program, the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) are all opening up for this year.

Check with the Kent County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office (ASCS) for details. Farmers should have received a mail notice in the last week. If you haven't, then make sure your mailing address is properly recorded there. The quickest way to check is to telephone 697-3601, or visit the office south of Dover along the dual highway. It can save you money.

CAP and ACP. Now there is a confusing situation in governmental initials for programs. CAP appear to be a modified Soil Bank program to get land out of crop in surplus. ACP continues the effort to establish conserving practices on land taken out of intensive crop production.

U. of D. Entomologists To Attend Symposium

Four University of Delaware entomologists will attend a public symposium on the scientific aspects of pest control January 31 to February 3 in Washington, D. C.

Dr. Dale Bray, chairman of the department of entomology and applied ecology, Frank Boys, extension specialist in agricultural chemicals, and Dr. Frank J. Murphy and Robert W. Lake, both entomology research assistants, will hear reports on pest control progress.

The symposium is intended to provide for an exchange of informed views on problems encountered in balancing the need to protect the nation's supply of food and fiber from the ravages of pests and the maintenance of the necessary safeguards to human health. Special sessions will deal with the broad implications of pest control in human health and well-being and in the development of public policy.

Authorities in the fields of agriculture, biology, chemistry, conservation and public health will participate in the program. Reports will be given on the use of biological, chemical, genetic, and special physical methods for pest control. Research on the ecological and environmental effects of these control measures will be discussed.

The symposium has been organized by the National Academy of Sciences Research Council and cooperation with the Departments of Agriculture, Interior and Health, Education and Welfare.

Laymen To Be Members Of Catholic Board

A major reorganization of the diocesan school board, policy making body for the 19,000 pupil elementary and secondary system of the Catholic Diocese of Wilmington, was announced Monday by Bishop Michael W. Hyle.

For the first time, laymen and women will serve with clerical members on the sixteen-member Board. The initial organizational meeting of the re-constituted body was held Monday, January 10.

"While this step may appear to be in answer to recent events at the Vatican Council," Bishop Hyle said, "actually our planning long preceded the encouragement given there for lay participation in school affairs."

"Educated Catholic laymen . . . representing every field of human endeavor . . . constitute an educational resource of great value, one that can greatly benefit our school system if we put it to work. All the new members of the school board have the educational backgrounds necessary for service. Several have served as professional educators, and others as members of public school boards. Their knowledge and experience will be invaluable in meeting such problems as school location, teacher recruitment and retention, new curriculum, and adopting modern business methods to educational administration."

Bishop Hyle pointed out that placing laymen on the school board follows increased lay participation at the professional level.

The new board consists of eight lay, six clerical members and two teaching Sisters. Appointed to the board were:

For three year terms: Serving three year terms are Richard F. Corroon, Westover Hills, Wilmington, senior partner in the law firm of Berl, Potter and Anderson; Reverend William R. Couming, pastor of Good Shepherd Parish, Perryville, Maryland; Eugene Dendinger, 14 Konshak Avenue, Dover, is assistant secretary and tax manager for International Lax; Right Reverend Monsignor John M. Donohoe, pastor of Holy Cross Parish, Dover; Sister Immaculata, O.S.B., a member of the Benedictine Community and Religious Superior at St. Elizabeth's High School; Edward J. Summerton, 2 Cripin Drive, Penn Acres, Principal of Castle Hills Elementary School.

Serving two year terms are Harry Bank, Rehoboth Beach, president of Draper-King Cole Company; Right Reverend Monsignor Francis J. Desmond, pastor of Our Lady of Fatima Parish, Wilmington Manor; Sister Charles Edward, S.S.J., faculty member at St. Helena's School, Bellefonte; Mrs. Lillian Rice, 1338 West Third Street, Wilmington, a former teacher in the Wilmington Public School System; Right Reverend Monsignor Joseph D. Sweeney; Ph. D., Rector of Saint Peter's Cathedral.

Appointed to a one year term are Mrs. Stephen M. Bremner, Easton, Maryland, a member of the board of the Benedictine School for Exceptional Children, Ridgely, Maryland; John I. Callahan, 1224 Grinnell Road, Green Acres, is the assistant engineer for New Castle County; Right Reverend Monsignor Rodrick B. Dwyer, Pastor of Christ Our King Parish and Vicar General of the Wilmington Diocese; and Right Reverend Monsignor William J. McElwaine, pastor of St. Ann's Church, Wilmington. One more member is still to be appointed to the board.

Reverend Howard T. Clark is superintendent for schools for the Diocese of Wilmington.

Sports Odds And Ends

On weekend T.V., a Finnish ski jumper, fell at the end of a 200 foot plus jump. He lost more than his dignity but didn't realize it immediately. As the unfortunate Viking turned away from the camera millions of viewers saw gleaming white undershorts shining through the badly torn ski pants. Informed of his situation the Finn covered up and beat a hasty retreat. Another "Flying Finn."

Hoss Cartwright, of Bonanza, or Dan Blocker as it says on his paycheck owned the car that came in second to Hap Sharp's Ford Chaparral in the Nassau Speed Week race in the Bahamas. The huge, 300 pound Blocker was beaming under a beret or tam as we used to call them in these parts. But it takes more than a beret to give that kisser a Continental or Latin look.

In the middle thirties, Eddie Graham, of Rising Sun, was one of the best all-around athletes in Delaware. A little, muscular guy he excelled in baseball, basketball, football or what have you. He played on the Caesar Rodney team that handed H.H.S.'s 1936 basketballers its only loss, by one point. In a Mar-Del League contest at Harrington, a little later, Graham came to bat in a crucial game. The pitcher tried to walk him but after three balls, Graham reached out over the plate and smacked an outside pitch into the center field corner to win the game. Graham is now a retired military officer in business in Dover. Recently we read where he was a candidate for a political office.

We have a rural route out of Harrington and have a patron named Gary Baughman. We were startled to hear that name called in the N.F.L. Pro East-West game recently. But it's not the same man, though, Harrington's Gary Baughman, who lives near Whitesburg is a 200 pounder. The other G. B. plays for Philadelphia's Eagles.

Last week we wrote an article about boys who procrastinate too long before coming out for sports. We have another good example. We know a young lad named Jopp, who had a cousin, who excelled in track and field at North Carolina High, Denton, Md. We talked to this boy several times over a period of two or three years, but couldn't get him to try any of the six varsity sports at H.H.S. Now a senior, he is out for wrestling. We've watched him work out. He is very fast and like an eel. They tell us that he is almost impossible to pin and lacks only experience. But it's too late now. Jopp might have been a state champ if he had reported as a freshman.

Warning. Nothing but track and cross-country from this point on.

Gary Harrington, of Mt. Pleasant High School captured third place in the two mile run at the Greater Philadelphia Track and Field Coaches Association track meet held Saturday afternoon at Haverford College's Alumni Fieldhouse. Winning time was 9:55. Gary's family came from Harrington and he still has relatives here. Gary's first start as a distance runner was in a 1 1/2 mile race held at the Delaware State Fair here when he was 13-years-old. Older brothers, Charles and Brian, ran in a three mile race that same day.

Larry Terrell, of Philadelphia, is an excellent squash racket player. This is a game similar to tennis. Like many other athletes in varied sports he was urged to take up cross-country to improve his speed and endurance for squash. At St. Paul's School in Concord, N. H., he did develop speed and endurance as he was usually among the first three finishers.

Back in Philadelphia, the superbly conditioned Terrell won the 3rd annual Philadelphia and District junior squash racquets tournament. Terrell won all five of his matches in straight games and lost only 110 points while piling up 225.

Tom Nevins, Dover Air High basketball coach, says that the reason Bob Edgerton's Milton High Warriors can beat one taller team after another is the fact that Milton is so fast. Edgerton is also the cross-country coach at Milton and always urges his cagers to run cross-country if they don't play football. Two of his best runners, Curt Hudson and George Brown, are also two of his best basketball players. In fact, they are his top defensive specialists, while scoring heavily also. Against H.H.S. Brown and Hudson were the Warriors' high scorers.

Bonnie Prince Charley, 17 years old, may someday be king of England. At his new school in Australia he will be required to run three miles cross-country each week. This shouldn't bother him. We've seen ten year olds here run almost that far and 12 and 13 year olds gallop 7 miles or better.

Trenton State College, the alma mater of H.H.S. track and cross-country coach J. Harold McDonald, won three of the six championships in the New Jersey State College Conference during 1965.

Trenton State captured the tennis title for the sixth time in 7 years, the soccer title for the sixth time in 7 years, extending their winning streak to 21 and won the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) crown for the second straight season.

Trenton also won the cross-country title.

McDonald played tennis and soccer at Trenton State, although working his way through college.

Lion Matmen Lose First Match

After opening victories over Wicomico and Dover, Coach Bill Muehleisen's Harrington High wrestling team was defeated 25-15 by a powerful Caesar Rodney team, that is unbeaten and also won the Milford Invitational tournament in December.

The Lions gave the highly-rated visitors a stiff fight and led 15-9 after eight bouts. The Riders swept the last four contests to cement the victory.

A new referee to this area worked the match and to local fans left something to be desired. At least one qualified observer felt that H.H.S. could have escaped with an 18-18 deadlock if another official had been on duty.

His reasoning was as follows: In 20 individual bouts against Wi-Hi and Dover no Lion had been pinned. Pins were called against Bill Webb (165) and Ed Wheatley, heavyweight, with seven and two seconds, respectively, remaining in each bout.

Folks at the scene state that neither Lion was down flat for two full seconds.

Allan Greenly (127) was beaten 6-3 by Roy Rigby. Winning points were taken away from Greenly as two apparent reversals scored by the Lion were not allowed.

But be that as it may the locals still did themselves proud in winning five of twelve bouts against the experienced visitors.

Bill Garey, a sophomore, is a first year wrestler. His opponent, Englehardt, is a natural 103 pounder, who has been wrestling, at least, for four years. But the Masten's Corner lad showed too much speed and upset the Rider 4-2.

Clay Jester, a former Harrington, was third in Delaware at 95 pounds last winter. Clay now competes at 112 pounds and won 4-0 over Dan Adams.

David Greenly (120) remained unbeaten in four starts this campaign as he triumphed 8-3 over Handy.

The Riders began to worry as the Lions won the next three sets to step out to that 15-9 lead.

Jim Cain (133) decimated Herschberger 4-0. Bill Harcum (140) downed Barkins by the same score. Allan Jeread made his first start a winning one by surprising Mitten 4-2.

The most awesome grappler on the Rider's roster is 154 pounder, Ray Troyer. Strong and clever, he is definitely one of the best on Delmarva. David Hurd, a Lion jayvee, was upped to the varsity for this match. C.R. may have expected a quick pin but two things Hurd has are strength and courage. Hurd was outclassed but not pinned and Troyer was gasping like a list on the mat at bout's end.

The 2-1 Lions meet Dover Air at Harrington this week and hope to take a 3-1 log to Smyrna on Wednesday, Jan. 26.

Foresters Drop Close Game To Milton, 66-59

Greenwood's Foresters stripped the superman label from the Milton Warriors before losing a close game at Milton on Tuesday night.

Greenwood led 15-13 after one period but were outscored 39-25 over the two middle periods before rallying in the fourth quarter to give Milton some uneasy moments before yielding 66-59.

The Foresters now own a 4-1 record, while Milton is unbeaten in five starts.

Ron Breeding's 26 points took scoring honors for the game. All-star Bill Cordrey led Milton with 22. Excellent foul shooting enabled the Foresters to make their fine effort. Maurice Hughes and Frank Spence aided the Greenwood cause with 10 and 9 points, respectively.

Greenhaugh 3rd; B. Dill, 4th; Breeding, 5th; In Loop Scoring

Tuesday night's Henlopen Conference play saw good efforts by John Greenhaugh, of Harrington; Bob "Red" Dill, of Felton, and Ron Breeding, of Greenwood. The three players are locked in a tight battle for third place in league play with Greenhaugh showing 91 points, Dill 90 and Breeding 89 in five games. Bill Cordrey, of Milton, leads, at present, with 99 points. Ron Tull, of Bridgeville has 98. Sam Knox, of Harrington, holds eighth place with 72 tallies.

Paul Blair A Hit At Little League Fete

Paul Blair, 24-year-old center fielder for the Baltimore Orioles, had a hard time finding Harrington, Delaware, but once he located the elusive speck on the map, he lost no time in winning over his youthful audience at the annual Harrington Little League baseball banquet.

Blair eschewed the usual speech and threw the meeting open to a question and answer session, which proved to be very informative. The Oriole seemed to have all the facts at hand concerning his team, his league and baseball in general. Blair played Little League baseball in Fresno, Calif., and was very patient with the youngsters. Three times he answered the query "Who is the toughest pitcher for you to hit?" Sam McDowell, the blazing Cleveland Indian fireballer was the answer.

Paul's dry humor often brought chuckles from the listeners as he seemed to be right at home. We would like to congratulate those in attendance. We were proud of the way in which the whole affair was conducted.

The usual superb feast had this writer, Ron Stevens of the Delaware State News and Lion football coach Frank Glazier, a rather corpulent threesome, sighing over the calories but packing it away, nevertheless.

A four piece combo of Nick Morris and Jim Simpler, guitars; Chuck McNally, saxophone and Quay Rice, Jr., drums, furnished a musical interlude. The boys seemed to have mastered the sound of the sixties. The Galaxies even have a vocalist now as Chuck McNally did a good job on one of the boisterous, rock and roll tunes of the day. We didn't catch the lyrics but we do know it was not "When I Grow Too Old to Dream".

A group of girls from 7A put on a delightful skit about a rock and roll group known as Granny and the Gophers. Ginny Jo Richardson as Granny and Aleta Mason, as a star-stritten teenager, had the featured parts and stole the show. These girls may someday become famous actresses and those present could then boast about knowing them when they got their start.

League president James O'Neal introduced Mr. and Mrs. C. Tharp Harrington, scorekeepers and statisticians and Earl Yoder, Moose athletic chairman, who does about everything else in the Little League setup here. Add O'Neal's name to the above trio and you have the people most responsible for this excellent program.

Little League managers and assistants introduced were: Legion, Bill Minner, Bob Jester, Frank O'Neal; Lions, Martin Jarrell; Rotary, Chester Short, Anthony Gallo; the champion Moose nine, Gary Harrington, Earl Everline, Jesse Trotta, Jr., Lloyd Armour led the minor league.

Senior League: People's Bank, Buck Thompson; Merchants, Jack Dill; Shaws, Jim Carroll; the First National Bank champions, Ted Layton, Henry "Smoky" White.

Mike Davis, a classy fielding 11-year-old first baseman, told of a Little League camp he attended in Williamsport, Pa., home of the Little League World Series.

Pat Knight, of Dover, a veteran sportswriter and District One Little League administrator, told of his only homerun, stroked off the offerings of Maurice Hall, a local great of the twenties and thirties. Knight related a story of a game in Harrington in that era, that featured a contest between an all-left-handed nine against a team of righties. Knight caught and had Maurice Hall and Townsend Masten, of Harrington; Heck Townsend, of Milford, and Ward Hurley, of Camden-Wyoming as teammates.

The Little League administrator stated that Harrington's powerful high school nines dominated play in Delaware in the twenties winning three state championships in succession. Lion Cagers Best Rehoboth, 51-45

John Greenhaugh and Sam Knox paced Jim Hawpe's Harrington High basketball team to its third victory in five starts at Rehoboth on Tuesday night.

The 51-45 triumph did not come easy as the winless Seahawks battled down to the final whistle.

Greenhaugh's 19 points moved him into the thick of the Henlopen Conference scoring race. Knox was only a point behind as the prolific pair accounted for 16 of Harrington's 18 field goals.

Rehoboth tallied one more action basket but a poor 7 for 20 from the foul line helped cost them the ball game. The Lions' foul shooting was not good, but it was equal to the task. H.H.S. bucketed 15 out of 31 free throws.

The see-saw contest saw Rehoboth take a 13-10 opening period lead, trail at halftime 24-20, draw up to 35-all at the three quarter mark and then yield to the Lions 16-10 fourth period bulge.

Tonight the Lions host another winless outfit, the 0-5 Selbyville this one to give the locals a 4-2 this one to give the locals a 4-2 log going into the 10 game home-and-home schedule with the more powerful Western Division of the Henlopen Conference clubs.

Felton Trips Eagles, Streak at 38

Suspense is building at Felton High School as the Green Devils close in on the state mark of 43 straight basketball victories held by Milford.

Felton survived a rough, whistle-tooting contest with Lord Baltimore at Felton on Friday night, to win 58-44 and extend their skein to 38. A mammoth total of 73 free throws were taken as Felton lost four starters and Lord Baltimore lost four players by the personal foul route.

The Green Devils put this one in the win column by converting 24 of 42 free throws while L. B. could make only 12 of 31. Felton had a narrow 17-16 margin in field goals.

The Devils trailed by one at the first quarter mark but drew steadily away thereafter led by Will Dill (18), Bob "Red" Dill (12) and John Sheets (10).

Barring upsets on Tuesday night the game of the season should be the one tonight (Friday) at Milton between the host Warriors and the invading Green Devils. Felton must beat Milton tonight and Bridgeville in their next start to keep their proud win streak intact. And, Milton and Bridgeville are probably the best teams in the Henlopen Conference. Good luck, Felton.

Foresters Edge Millsboro, 46-42

Winless Millsboro surprised unbeaten Greenwood at Greenwood Friday night but the Foresters got out of the woods in the fourth quarter to eke out a 46-42 victory.

The Blue Devils were fresh off a thirty point loss to a Harrington team, that had two starters out of action. But as often happens in high school contests, the players just won't follow the script.

The visiting Sussex Countians led by three points at halftime and by one at three quarters before bowing to a 14-9 Forester edge in the last period.

Ron Breeding (15) and Buell Schulze (14) led the winners, while the formerly puncheonless Devils had three double-figure scorers.

GSA SUGGESTS

The city manager thought the street had not been properly designed, in the first place and repair of the entire street would be necessary to eliminate potholes. The mayor explained many streets in Harrington had potholes. Told Raymond G. Dale, newly elected councilman from the Sixth Ward, Franklin Street had been surveyed. It will be put on list of streets to be improved with municipal aid funds when the money is available. It was suggested the street be opened to Reese Avenue. There is only an alley at present.

Refused request of Mrs. Irma Harrington, who wanted to donate the land if the City would put in a sidewalk on the eastern side of West Street between Grant and Liberty Streets. The City had requested property owners put in sidewalks so pupils of nearby schools would not have to walk in the streets.

Financial Experts To Discuss Money At U of D Program

Money can be a source of aggravation and satisfaction, and a family that plans and then uses money to reach specific goals will receive the greatest satisfaction from money.

To assist in such financial planning, a panel discussion of "Spending Your Money for Your Future" will be featured at the University of Delaware's Farm and Home Week on Tuesday morning, February 8.

Featured on the panel are Fred T. O'Donnell, president of Wilmington Savings Fund Society; John Sweeney, investment broker with Laird, Bissell & Meeds, Inc.; Leonard Sanders, executive director of the Delaware Better Business Bureau; and Harlan Williams, Newark realtor. They will discuss the many ways to save money and to put money to work for a family's future.

A family's goals may be education for the children, security in retirement, travel, a new house or whatever fits their particular interests, according to Miss Coral K. Morris, extension home management specialist at the University. Miss Morris will act as panel moderator and will discuss the attitudes toward money that influence spending.

This program is one of several planned for homemakers at Farm and Home Week, February 8 to 11, in Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark. Other sessions include talks on nutrition, fashions and new poultry products.
