

ALDERMAN POSTS SIFTED

Milford is considering getting an acting alderman and Smyrna is toy-ing with the idea, but won't make a decision until the March re-organizational meeting.

Dover recently appointed one an acting alderman and Harrington already had one as the new magistrate system created a minor furor when it was thought that the dual role of alderman-magistrate ended with the new system.

A ruling by Chief Justice Daniel F. Wolcott, however, has said that magistrates can handle municipal cases, but they have to charge the corresponding costs.

The problem, one which applied only to Dover, is parking tickets.

Under the new reform system, magistrates would have to charge $7.50 costs.

Dover, with an ordinance amendment due, has appointed City Clerk and Treasurer Francis J. Neylan as acting alderman. Neylan will collect parking ticket fines from Dover violators at City Hall, instead of sending them to the new magistrate's court in the city.

The city ordinance regarding parking tickets may have to be amended to straighten out the situation, perhaps permitting all fines for parking tickets to be collected by police of City Hall officials, eliminating the need for an alderman.

Harrington, also with an alderman, still will be using the magistrates' office there for all but parking tickets.

There's somewhat of a problem surrounding the Harrington alderman, Arthur Marsan, however, since council appointed him last week without knowing if he would be around to accept the appointment.

Marsan, who has served as alderman for a year, is in the mid-west, and won't be returning until the first week in March.

Parking tickets issued by Harrington police, however, are payable to the city clerk under the municipal ordinance.

"The magistrates will be able to handle our work, and this will work out fine," Police Chief Franklin Rogers said Monday. "They will be able to cover what we want."

Milford Police Chief Sidney N. Steinback said Milford parking violators also pay their fines at City Hall, and other cases can go to the magistrate court there.

Milford, like Dover, lost its alderman when the new salaried justice of the peace system went into effect, prohibiting magistrates from also serving towns as aldermen, as many had been doing.

Smyrna Mayor Robert W. Ridgah said the town has not had an alderman for more than a year, since Franklin English left the post, and all cases were handled by former magistrate William M. Doughten.

Ridgah said a decision on an alderman will not be made until the town's reorganization meeting in March.

Parking tickets in Smyrna also are paid at City Hall, not at the alderman's office.

Registration Figures Incomplete At U. of D.

Incomplete registration figures at the University of Delaware show 8,332 persons under instruction in three categories.

Late registrations this year are expected to be heavier than usual because of a combination of factors: first, the heavy snow-fall which canceled extension and graduate registrations in Dover and Georgetown; and second, the university's announcement that late fees for extension and graduate students has been waived.

The late fee will be in effect after Saturday, Feb. 12. Last day for registrations is Saturday, Feb. 19.

The 8,332 registrations of Friday and Saturday include 4,748 undergraduates, 1,461 graduate, and 2,123 extension students.

Registrations will be taken through Thursday at Dover Air Force Base High School from 5:30 to 7 p. m., P. S. du Pont High School in Wilmington from 6:30 to 7 p. m. (not for graduate students), and in Room B-1, Hullahen Hall, Newark from 5:30 to 7 p. m.

Registrations will be taken at the Newark location Friday from 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m., and Saturday from 8:30 to 11:30 a. m. Normal late registration procedures, including the $10 late fee, will be in effect the week of Feb. 14 to 19.

Army Needs Nurses

As part of its current drive to relieve a critical shortage of professional personnel, the Army Nurse Corps is offering nurses the opportunity to serve in specific assignment locations of their choice.

Under this guaranteed option assignment program, qualified nurses may request a direct appointment commission in the ANC with immediate assignment to active duty at a specific Army hospital in the United States or in a specific geographical area overseas. This option applies to all hospitals in the continental United States and to the following overseas areas: Alaska, Hawaii, Korea, France, Italy, Okinawa, Germany, Japan and Vietnam.

Guaranteed option assignments can be made for all initial duty assignments. With subsequent assignments or reassignments, nurses are allowed to submit similar requests for placement at installations in the continental United States or overseas areas. At the same time the Army is offering the option of a companion assignment whereby two nurses may request assignment together, but such requests must take precedence over those for choice of location.

This guaranteed assignment option does not apply to those already enrolled in the Army Student Nurse Program or to registered Nurse Student program. Nurses are eligible to apply for an Army Nurse Corps commission if they are graduates of accredited schools of nursing and are between the ages of 21 and 35. They must meet certain physical and mental qualifications and have no dependents under the age of 15.

Qualified applicants are urged to contact their local Army recruiter or Army nurse counselor. M/Sgt. Walter R. Frazier, located at 218 S. Governor's Ave., Dover, Del., phone 736-6937.

"DO NOT DISTURB", At Reese, Feb. 11-14

Another top lineup of the latest Hollywood treats graces the Reese Theatre screen this Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Monday, Feb. 11-12-13-14.

Most people like to walk for the exercise.

But film star Doris Day finds walking stimulates thought. Particularly at day's end when, she says, it seems to turn her mind upside down and lets the ideas filter through the other way, like sand in an hour-glass.

The nation's number one box office star recently finished a bit of strolling on the 20th Century-Fox sound studios, where she starred in the CinemaScope and DeLuxe Color romantic-comedy, "Do Not Disturb" which opens Feb. 11 at the Reese Theatre.

During filming, she was provided with a dark blue sedan complete with uniformed chauffeur, and if pressed for time she used it to ride from her big bungalow at one end of the vast 20th Century-Fox complex, to the other where the sound stages were located for "Do Not Disturb".

Aliens should have a speaking knowledge of English to participate. The course covers the structure and workings of American Government and American History. Robert Good is the instructor.

Mrs. Harry Stone

Mrs. Amy L. Stone, 85, died Saturday in Jewell's Nursing Home at Milford.

She was the owner of Stone's Hotel, in Harrington until illness caused her retirement a few years ago. She was the widow of Harry Stone.

Mrs. Stone was a member of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church at Harrington, where funeral services were held Monday afternoon. Friends called at the McKnatt Funeral Home Sunday night.

Boggs Introduces Legislation On Medicare Program

Senator J. Caleb Boggs (R-Del.) this week introduced legislation extending the time limit under which persons could enroll for medical insurance benefits under the Social Security "medicare" program.

The present deadline for enrolling for the supplementary medical benefits is March 31. Boggs' proposal would extend it to June 30.

Participation in the medical benefits feature of the "medicare" legislation is voluntary and involves a $3 monthly premium. If a person does not sign up by the deadline he would have to wait two years before he would again be eligible to participate. It is not necessary to enroll or pay a premium for the hospitalization provision of the law.

Boggs said he had been prompted to introduce the bill by the experience in Delaware of groups seeking to impress aged citizens with the advantages of signing up.

"Even with the excellent work of interested agencies, and the efforts of news media such as the News Journal Company, there has not been the enrollment expected," Boggs said.

"It is unrealistic to suppose that our aged citizens will be able to understand this complex program in the time which has been allotted under the law," he added.

This is the view of the Community Services Council of Delaware, he mentioned, as expressed in a letter to him.

Delaware has approximately 40,000 persons 65 or older, Boggs noted, and most of these are eligible for the medical insurance benefits.

At present about 22,000 Delawareans have enrolled.

"It was the intent of this additional Social Security program to provide medical benefits and help free our aged citizens from worry and financial burden if illness should strike them," Boggs said.

"In order to bring about the greatest amount of participation in this worthwhile program I am convinced that it is necessary to extend the time of enrollment. "I hope the Congress will take immediate and favorable action on my proposal," he said.

Music Scholarships Offered at Wesley

Two scholarships in music are being offered at Wesley College, Dr. Robert Parker, president of the college, has announced.

Each of these grants is for $500. They may apply to students specializing in piano, voice, or organ. Auditions are scheduled for Sat., Feb. 26, at the college.

Students accepted for these scholarships will be engaged in a program leading to the Associate in Arts degree. This is a two year program covering basic theory, applied music, music, and participation in the chorus, chapel choir, or band. Private lessons from Associate Professors Robert Bailey and Ona Weimer are provided in voice, piano, and organ.

The music major program is part of the Wesley College accredited liberal arts curriculum. Successful completion of the program ensures acceptance in a senior college or music school where advanced degrees or further specialization may be gained.

Interested persons should write the Director of Admissions or telephone the college directly.

Sixteen Years Ago

From The Files of THE JOURNAL

Feb. 10, 1950

Hungry thieves broke in the back window of Marshall's Restaurant and had quite a party in the kitchen Sunday night. Half a ham was missing Monday morning. It is believed they were routed early Monday morning by the bread man. No money was taken.

The Legionnaires basketball team won its eighth basketball game in a row, defeating league-leading Rehoboth, 66-55.

George Lynch, of Wilmington, was the low bidder on a highway project involving the resurfacing of West Street, in Harrington, and the Harrington-Farmington back road, 4.108 miles. The bid was $122,731.50.

Alfred E. Sharpe, 73, died at his home near Harrington Sunday afternoon after an illness of about two months. He was the son of John and Ellen Johnson Sharpe, and was born in Milton, Canada. He moved here from Milford, Mich., 31 years ago and was a very prosperous farmer.

A public hearing on the question of rent decontrol in Kent County was held in the social hall of the Dover Public School by the Delaware Rent Advisory Board at 8 p.m., today.

The March of Dimes campaign for Felton, according to Mrs. Walter Moore, chairman of the drive, still needs funds to reach its quota. The church's junior choir collected $70 in a door-to-door campaign and $25 was collected from a basketball game.

Henry Salisbury Otwell, 85, died at his home here Tuesday, Feb. 2, after a short illness. He lived on Dorman Street at Wolcott Street. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Ethelyn Rose Otwell, five daughters and two sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellwood Gruwell called on the Rev. and Mrs. F. H. Truitt, at St. Michaels, Md., recently.

Mrs. A. C. Creadick is unable to get out of the house.

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Markert, of Milford, recently spent a day with Mr. and Mrs. William McCabe.

Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Vansant, of Wilmington, visited friends and relatives in town Sunday.

William Ward, Sr., and son, William, Jr., are spending the week in Virginia on business.

Mr. and Mrs. William Parker entertained at dinner Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cain, Mrs. Cora Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Cain and children, Mrs. Mary Hamilton, Herbert Cain, Miss Betty Collins, and Delbert Cain.

Mrs. Lorenzo Jones spent the weekend with Miss Elizabeth Jones, of Wilmington.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrison Stewart, of Philadelphia, will occupy their new home in Warrington Manor on Wednesday.

Mrs. Lee Tindall, proprietor of The Fashion Shoppe, is visiting her daughter, in Savannah, Ga.

Because of an important business meeting at the Nazarene Church, the Alabaster Box Breaking Services will be postponed until Feb. 15.

Boxes Burn In Sussex Warehouse

Fire Sunday night kept Greenwood firemen at the Bramble Canning Corp., at Greenwood, for several hours as it burned through paper boxes in the second story of a warehouse.

There was no immediate estimate of the damage. A plant security officer, Watson Shew, said there may have been other equipment in the warehouse.

Shew said he had been keeping a regular check on the area because there had been a fire there earlier in the day, which was extinguished by plant employees.

He said he discovered the second fire about 6 p. m. and summoned Greenwood firemen. Bridgeville and Seaford firemen were called in with air packs and gas masks to help combat the blaze. Heavy smoke hampered the firemen.

Also standing by was the Greenwood ambulance, but no injuries were reported. Shew said occupants of an apartment in the building were not hurt.

The guard said the fire was burning underneath the boxes and that damage to materials may be extensive.

Control Of Grass Is Problem For Corn Producers

Johnson grass has become a definite problem for many Delaware farmers. Although Delaware is on the northern boundary of the area in which this weed occurs, Johnson grass infestations are widespread, according to Dr. William Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware.

Johnson grass competes strongly with crops for water and nutrients; it can easily cut crop production. During long, dry spells when crops need all the water they can get, Johnson grass is particularly damaging.

In the future, Delaware farmers may find Johnson grass control important for another reason, Dr. Mitchell adds. Ohio scientists believe that the maize dwarf mosaic virus will be a serious problem mainly in areas with Johnson grass because the virus is believed to overwinter in the rhizomes of this weed.

While the maize dwarf mosaic virus is not presently a problem to Delaware corn producers, controlling Johnson grass could be extremely important if the virus spreads. The virus, now found primarily along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, will be the subject of a talk by Dr. E. F. Janson, extension plant pathologist at Ohio State University, who will speak at the Thursday morning session (February 10) of Farm and Home Week at Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware.

Chemical control of Johnson grass is practical only if the weed is present on small, isolated areas, Dr. Mitchell points out. Dalapon has been used for control under these conditions. The cost of the chemical required to control the weed in large areas is too high to be practical for most situations. The land must be taken completely out of production for some time when the chemical is used under these circumstances.

Farmers will have greater success with cultural control methods, Dr. Mitchell believes. He recommends planting barley on the weedy land in the fall. After harvest, keep the land disked all summer so there is no plant growth above the ground surface. "Keep the green from showing," he says.

The following fall, plant barley again, and harvest and disc thoroughly. After two or three years, the Johnson grass rhizomes will be too weak to compete successfully with a crop. Then the summer crop can again be planted.

The cultural control method is also preferable because the farmer has a cash crop during the time he is controlling Johnson grass, since a crop of barley can be harvested each year.

Local Girl Scouts Attend Workshop

Last Saturday, Feb. 5, there was a Girl Scout workshop held in Wesley Methodist Church in Georgetown.

The following girls from Troop 679 attended: JoAnn Thompson, Connie Kates, Beth Graham, Gwynn Melvin, Elizabeth Minner, Debbie McKnatt and Sandra Warren and Joan Mason. Debbie Edwards and Wanda Tucker attended from Troop 686. Mrs. Frances Mason and Mrs. Maxine Wyatt are leaders of the troops and also attended the workshop.

The session lasted from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. The girls and their leaders had a full schedule which included keeping records, making plans, a court of honor meeting, a Scout's Own, a film strip on the patrol system and some new songs and a dance. They all enjoyed the day very much and got a lot of ideas of ways to improve their own meetings. They came back with new enthusiasm and an eagerness to put their new ideas to work.

Kent Man Jailed After Hit-Run

A Smyrna man has been jailed in default of fines on charges of leaving the scene of a personal accident and driving with a revoked license.

Raymond Lowman, 22, of Smyrna, was given 60 days in Kent Correctional Institution in default of $100 fines on each of the two charges.

State police said Lowman backed into 10-year-old Victor Keeler of Smyrna Saturday and pinned him against a snow bank near Smyrna. Police said Keeler was treated for bruises by Dr. Richard W. Comegys of Clayton.

The Keeler boy is a grandson of Mrs. Elsie O'Neal and the son of Mrs. Joyce Keeler.

Number Of DRBA Assigned To Committees

Kent and Sussex County members of the Delaware River and Bay Authority have been assigned to several important committees of the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association, it was learned this week.

International President L. W. Newcomer of the Kansas Turnpike Commission named James G. Smith, Jr., Dover to the operations committee; Howard S. Abbott, Georgetown, to the planning and economic development committee; William R. Murphy, Milford, to the international crossing committee; and Director William J. Miller, Jr., to the administrative, governmental relations committee and research committee.

The Delaware River and Bay Authority is a member of the International organization, of which the late Delaware Memorial Bridge General Manager Frank J. Harty was International president in 1962-63.

The organization's membership is made up of more than 200 highway toll facilities in the United States, Canada, Italy, Europe, and New Zealand, which operate highways and properties worth in excess of $12 billion.

With headquarters in Washington, D. C., the International Association is proudest of its record in the field of highway fatalities. The incidence of deaths on the toll roads is the lowest of any highway facilities in the world, officials declare.

Cub Scout News

The Cub Scouts of Pack No. 76 have 37 active boys. Larry Grinolds is their new Cubmaster.

Clarence Billings held this same position for three years, Dec. 1962 to Dec. 1965.

The Cubs will be having a candy sale starting Feb 10 for two weeks and naturally they would appreciate all buyers.

All proceeds will be used for their annual trip in June.

The Cub Scouts will attend Asbury Methodist Church in a body Sunday in honor of Scout Week.

The annual Blue and Gold banquet will be held Sat., Feb. 19, at 6:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria. Phil Chabot, district scout executive, will be the guest speaker. This is also an event for the whole family and for the Cubs to display some of the items they have made during the past year.

Moore Home Damaged By Fire

Local firemen answered an alarm Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Moore, 210 Weiner Ave. The fire was believed to have started under a bed in the front upstairs bedroom causing an estimated $6,500 damage, according to asst. Chief William H. Outten.

Boy Scouts To Hold Showanda For Del-Mar-Va Council

Plans for the 1966 Showanda for the Southern Service Area of the Del-Mar-Va Council, Boy Scouts of America were formulated Monday night, January 17 at a meeting held in Salisbury, Md.

The group, representing Choptank, Blackwater, Sussex, Wicomico, Pocomoke and Virginia Districts of the Council, under the leadership of Norman Paragory, Service Area Training Coordinator, of Salisbury, decided to begin the Showanda with a campfire at Nanticoke Scout Reservation, Saturday, April 23, and continue through the day, Sunday, April 24, ending at 4 p. m. This arrangement for conducting the course which will be open to all adults involved with Boy Scouting, was chosen because of the large number of men who work Saturdays, but expressed a desire to take the course. Cost for the session will be $2 per man. This will include a cracker barrel, Sunday breakfast and lunch and training materials which will be given to each participant.

Responsibilities for the various sections of the Showanda were assigned as follows:

General Chairman, Norman Paragory, Salisbury; Registration and Promotion, Blackwater District, represented by Carrol Lew- is and Jean Perusse, both of Cambridge, Md.; Quartermaster and Cooking Demonstration, Wicomico District, represented by Edward Hickman, Salisbury; Worth Trying Area, Choptank District, represented by James Engle, and Milton Holden, both from Easton; Showanda Trail, Sussex District, represented by James Roe of Seaford, and aid Pyle of Georgetown, Del.; Showanda Rally, Virginia District, represented by Sidney Bonniwell and James Byrd, both of Onancock, Va.; and the Campfire, Pocomoke District represented by James Foster of Pocomoke City, Md.

Agriculture Today Means Science, Economics, Tech.

The scientist studying disease-causing microbes, the expert in business management, the researcher developing new food products these are some of the things agriculture means in the United States today. And it is because of highly trained people like this that a record small percentage of the population can produce a record high amount of food and fiber for an ever-growing nation, according to Dr. Donald F. Crossan, assistant dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences at the University of Delaware.

The agricultural worker today is as likely to be a research scientist or engineer or chemical salesman as a farmer, Dr. Crossan told Dover Rotarians recently. He said some of the best employment opportunities for young people today lie in the field of science, engineering and business related to agriculture. In fact, he said, it is because agriculture has become a science that farming has reached today's high levels of production and efficiency.

The United States was primarily an agricultural nation until science was added to farming, with its improved disease control and production and management efficiency, Dr. Crossan pointed out. And as the efficiency increased, it not only meant an abundance of improved farm products, but it freed many people to work in the newly developing industries of the nation.

One of the major reasons the United States is so strong today is because of its efficient agriculture, Dr. Crossan pointed out. "A nation is only as strong as its agricultural base," he added. "The countries of the world that are in trouble today are in trouble because of a relatively unproductive agriculture. So many people are needed to produce food for those nations that few workers remain for technological development."

But despite the fact that the United States leads the world in agricultural production, more agricultural scientists are needed than ever before, Dr. Crossan pointed out. He explained, "The problems of agriculture are more complex, more all-encompassing, more important in terms of world food problems and expanding populations, more important in our nation with self-made problems of pollution on the one hand and leisure time on the other. Each year sees more sophistication in the basic production processes and consequently more need for skilled servicing personnel."

The skilled specialists to solve these problems are in short supply, and the need for them is increasing, Dr. Crossan said. "The opportunities are broad. They include chemists to develop and use the hundreds of chemicals needed for food production, men who manage the outlets for seed, plants, fertilizer, processed foods and equipment, and research scientists to develop newer methods of efficient food production for feeding a hungry world." The nation's colleges of agriculture — including the College of Agricultural Sciences at the University of Delaware — provide this specialized training in science, economics and other related agricultural fields.

In addition to more highly trained specialists, more money for research is also needed, Dr. Crossan pointed out. Federal and state governments financed much of the research in the past. But reapportioned legislatures made up of urban representatives who are used to taking their food for granted sometimes fail to see the vital need for continuing agricultural research, Dr. Crossan said. "Without this research, it is possible that our agriculture could lag behind the needs of the nation and the world in the not-too-distant future. With such a small percentage of the population directly involved in producing the nation's food, we cannot afford to be complacent about this need for more research."

Agriculture, with all its related fields, is probably more important today than ever before because of the rapidly expanding population of the nation and the world, Dr. Crossan said. As a result, young people interested in science, business and technology will find tremendous career opportunities in agriculture, he said.

Field Tests Prove Cultivator Worth In Corn Research

Adequate cultivation is an important part of profitable corn production, according to field tests conducted by the University of Delaware. In a publication just released by the Agricultural Extension Service called, "Field Tests With Hybrid Corn," agronomists per acre yield difference between optimum cultivation methods and no cultivation. They also point out that rotary hoeing plus cultivation was superior to cultivation alone, and that flame weed control was little better than no control.

The tests, conducted near Georgetown, during 1965, included 16 hybrids and for methods of cultivation when the corn was inches tall and one mechanical cultivation. The most effective treatment involved one rotary hoeing when the corn was five about 15 inches tall. This combination resulted in an average yield of 129 bushels per acre compared to 115 for mechanical cultivation and 108 for both rotary hoeing plus two cultivations and no cultivation.

The publication also reports test results on corn fertilizer, nitrogen solution-herbicide mixtures, nitrogen placement, a high lime liquid fertilizer program and cultural practices designed to produce maximum corn yields.

The publication (Extension Bulletin 88) was prepared by W. H. Mitchell, extension agronomist, E. H. Ralph, Sussex County associate agricultural agent; and E. L. Wisk, crops research associate at the University's Georgetown Substation. Copies are available from the mailing room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, and from county extension offices in Newark, Dover and Georgetown.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

This little poem (Down Home, Folks) will help explain why I settled in Harrington after serving in an official capacity throughout the entire Pennsy system.

"DOWN HOME FOLKS"

If you want to learn how to live and say,
 Pleasant things in a pleasant way,
 That will bring you friends you always need,
 Friends that are true in word and deed,
 Just talk with the "Down Home Folks."

If you want to know how to always do,
 Things that politeness requires of you,
 For courtesy is the oil you know,
 That makes the wheels of the days work go,
 Just talk with the "Down Home Folks."

For home folks are nearest, dearest and best,
 And home love is surest to stand the test,
 So if you know how to do and say,
 Pleasant things in a pleasant way,
 Just talk with the "Down Home Folks."

During the first forty years of service, I learned to know many officials who had been stationed at Harrington in their early engineering days and came away with good impressions of the people, who made up the community. Without exception they were referred to as the "Down Homers."

I came here from Baltimore in 1946 and did not have to be here long to find out what they were talking about. I was stopping at the Swain Hotel until my predecessor, Fred Meyer, could vacate Eddie Richardson's house on Delaware Ave. This not being immediately available, I was forced to store my furniture for a month. To do this at Baltimore would have cost $75. While I was phoning my wife to make arrangements for storing there, Ed Zacharias, with whom I was teamed up as supervisor, suggested I go along to Rotary before making final arrangements, as Ernie Raughley would be there and might be able to do something for me. Therein was the turning point in my understanding humanity, Ernie was there, and he also brought a guest along with him, "Daddy Knox" was the way he introduced him, and said he thought we would like to hear one of our wealthiest businessmen (a barber) tell how he could be so well established and only charge twenty-five cents for haircuts.

Mr. Knox said he was not so much of a speaker, but was glad to be welcomed to the dinner among so many people he loved and would be glad to answer any questions we might want to ask.

He didn't need to be a speaker, his words spoke for themselves. His answers to anything asked were all covered by "The Good Book," of rules on how to live and love so well, brought out in the late Harry Wright's poem.

The next day Ernie told me to see Mr. Knox about a room in the old schoolhouse on Dorman Street for storing my furniture. He gave me a key to a room that did the job nicely. Asking no charge, he apologetically asked if three dollars would be too much.

When I took the key back to Mr. Knox three weeks later after vacating the room, he wanted to give me back a dollar since the furniture was not there the entire month.

That's why I remain a "Down Homer."

Assoc. Ed's. Note: They say Mr. Knox was also a "Ten Percentor." That is—that he gave ten percent of whatever he made to the Church.

"LOVE AND LIVE"
 By J. Harry Wright

"Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with thy heart and mind
 . . . and thy neighbor as thyself."

Matthew 22:37-39

"To live is to love; to love is to live!"

'Tis a proverb worthy and true;
 Love God with an honest heart and mind,
 As our Saviour told us to do.

How can we live thus, each day of our life?
 The answer comes down from above;
 Take "I" from live, put "O" in its place,
 And you'll change "LIVE into LOVE".

Take "SELF from your acts, and put OTHERS" there,
 In your dealings with God and Man;
 You'll find life abundant, rich and rare,
 Like that of the Master's plan.

Would you learn the lesson of patient love,
 Which the Master of life has given?
 Live to love, as He loved, both God and Man,
 And follow him safely to Heaven!

CITIZENS OF THIS KIND ARE HARD TO FIND

Furthermore, there is no use looking for them. We are referring to Walter Messick, of Taylor & Messick, farm implement dealers, who helped the City during the snowstorm last week.

Using a snowplow, Messick worked Sunday and Monday, Jan. 30-31, opening streets and occasionally, driveways. On Tues., Feb. 1, he did some emergency work for individual citizens.

On Wednesday evening, Feb. 2, he and Robert Collins, with assistance from other firemen, cleared the snow from the community's 63 fireplugs.

Messick received no remuneration for his work but the City Council gave him a vote of thanks.

The City did its best, but its best was not good enough, considering the first blizzard in recent years and the fact that the City did not have a snowplow. It has made plans to purchase one.

Assoc. Ed's. Note: City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann, in front of the printing office on Sunday, using a tractor to get the snow off the streets.

PICKETING IS UNFAIR

The Johnson Administration has decided to "give" unions a substitute in place of the 14b repeal legislation, which is being held back by a reluctant Senate responding to a majority opinion of citizens throughout the nation.

This substitute bill, now for the first time being hotly urged by the Administration, is H.R. 10027 (Sickles, D-Md.); the often proposed—and often rejected—attempt to legalize secondary boycotts in the construction industry.

Rules Committee action on the common situs picketing bill H.R. 10027, is expected very shortly. Now is the time to communicate with your congressman to express your views on this important bill.

The construction unions can now strike and picket at construction sites—as long as they direct their efforts at the primary employer, the employer with whom they have a dispute.

Essentially, the bill would amend Section 8 (b) (4) of the Taft Hartley Act so as to exempt construction trades union officials from present laws forbidding secondary boycotts. It would thus permit them to bring coercive pressures on secondary employers—the neutral contractors and subcontractors who are working at the construction site but not concerned in the dispute.

It would permit any one of a dozen trade unions to close down completely until its demands were met, not only major construction projects but remodeling and repair jobs. Costs for any building will soar.

The truly inequitable nature of this bill is indicated by the fact that the already specially privileged construction trades unions would be given an exemption from the law that no other unions now have. And once a legal loophole for one union is created, all other labor organizations will be quick to claim similar privileges. Such congressional strike encouragement, creating more union bargaining power and totally lacking in picketing restriction, is at odds with the need shown by recent labor dispute history wherein the public has been forced to pay the toll.

Farmers Must Include Investment Credit With Tax Returns

There are only a few more days until farmers must file their income taxes; the deadline is February 15. Investment credit is an important part of tax reporting today; don't overlook it in filing returns, warns W. T. McAllister, extension farm management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Investment credit permits a farmer to deduct directly from his tax bill up to seven per cent of the cost of some purchases. Farmers should use this section of the income tax regulations to reduce their tax bill. Since reporting investment credit is required by law, a farmer who does not take the credit as provided can receive a double loss.

Investment credit is a fairly new provision of the tax laws, first provided in 1962. This may be one reason some farmers are still forgetting to take advantage of the tax savings, McAllister says.

Do not confuse investment credit with depreciation, he warns. They are not the same things, and investment credit is not handled the same way as depreciation on tax forms.

In fact, the set of forms that farmers received in the mail did not include those necessary for claiming investment credit. Form 3468 is required. Copies are available from the tax offices, county agent offices, many banks and various public buildings.

Read the instructions about investment credit carefully, McAllister advises. It is somewhat difficult to distinguish the items that qualify and those that do not. In general, all equipment, new or used, that was purchased in 1965 qualifies if it has an estimated useful life of four years or more. Buildings do not qualify, except for silos, storage facilities and a few others. Livestock does not qualify either. However, orchards, asparagus plantings, fences, watering troughs, laying cages and poultry equipment are included.

Subject to certain limitations, seven per cent of the purchase price, or the cash difference in the case of a trade, may be claimed as investment credit. The items purchased must have a useful life of at least eight years to claim the full credit. A portion of the seven per cent can be claimed if the item has a life less than eight years but more than four.

Investment credit should be claimed even though the farmer has no tax due this year, McAllister points out. If he paid a tax in the last three years, the farmer can claim a refund. If he did not pay taxes in the last three years and therefore no refund is available, he can carry the credit forward as a credit for 1966 taxes. However, the claim must be filed in the year the item was purchased.

Investment credit cannot be credited against social security payments, reminds McAllister.

Mrs. Lida Moore

Mrs. Lida Moore, 93, widow of William F. Moore, died Wednesday night in Fletcher's Nursing Home, Felton, where she had been a guest for two years.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Clara Lindale, of Greenwood; nine grandchildren, and 21 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the McKnatt Funeral Home, Harrington. The Rev. Robert F. Burris, pastor of the Church of God, Felton, will officiate. Interment at Barratt's Chapel Cemetery, Frederica.

Friends may call at the funeral home Saturday evening.

Electrically Heated Hotbeds Give Plants A Good Start

Electricity for heating hotbeds to grow plants has proved practical for both small and large plant growing operations. Electric hotbeds can be built to meet the needs of hobby gardeners as well as commercial producers, according to Dr. Charles W. Dunham, associate professor in the department of horticulture at the University of Delaware.

Midwinter is an ideal time to plan and to build such a hotbed, he says. Locate it in a well-drained area with a southern exposure that provides maximum sunlight. Some form of windbreak on the windward side will help reduce operating costs. The bed should also be close to a source of electricity and water.

The components of an electrical hotbed are the frame, gravel, sand, hardware cloth, soil heating cable, thermostat, sterilized hotbed soil, a cover for the frame and electric wiring materials.

The frame can be made of treated lumber two inches thick, concrete or masonry blocks. Gravel placed in the bottom of the hotbed will help give good drainage. The heating cable is then laid on a thin layer of sand. Additional sand covers the cable, and the hardware cloth protects the cable from damage. Approximately four inches of sand are then added. The hotbed cover can be plastic film or a glass sash.

Almost any size hotbed can be electrically heated. Beds 12 feet wide have been used, but a six-foot width or smaller is more convenient. Any convenient size can be built if plastic film is used as a cover. The plastic film makes an excellent bed cover, and it is less expensive and more convenient than the glass sash.

However, if a glass sash is purchased for the cover, the length of the hotbed must be a multiple of three feet since a standard sash is six by three feet.

Various types of electric heating cables are available, Dr. Dunham says. Lead or plastic covered cable are the most popular types, and they give satisfactory results when properly used. These are available in different lengths and wattages. The heating cable selected should provide 10 watts per square foot of hotbed area.

A thermostat controls the heating cable to insure the desired temperature. It must be specifically designed for this use. An adjustable thermostat is preferred so plants can be given the precise temperature required for best growth.

Soil heating sets are available in which the thermostat is permanently attached to the soil. Thermostats are non-adjustable and designed to maintain a specific temperature. These sets are often relatively inexpensive, but an adjustable thermostat is much more desirable.

Tests have shown that a three by six foot bed uses one to two kilowatt-hours of electricity per day, of 30 to 60 kilowatt-hours per month, Dr. Dunham points out. This would be two to four cents per day, or 60 cents to $1.20 per month. Electric hotbeds are an inexpensive method of starting plants early.

Nutrition, Fashions Features At U. of D. Programs

Fresh oranges and tomatoes in February were an undreamed of luxury 60 years ago. Frozen foods, cake mixes, even canned vegetables and bakery bread were still part of the future.

Modern food technology offers a supermarket full of new foods and old foods in new forms. However, many homemakers are concerned about the nutritional values of modern diets.

A special program specifically designed to answer their questions will be featured at 9:45 a.m. Thursday morning (February 10). This meeting will be part of the Farm and Home Week at Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware.

Dr. Horace L. Sipple, executive director of the Nutrition Foundation, Inc., will discuss nutrition and the impact of the food sciences and technology on nutrition. He will include information on the effects of food additives, irradiation and freeze-drying on nutritional values and on the role of non-caloric sweeteners and fat in the diet.

A fashion lecture at 1:15 p.m. Thursday afternoon (February 10) by Miss Helen Wright, special field representative for the Simplicity Pattern Co., will be another Farm and Home Week highlight. She will discuss choosing becoming clothes from today's fashions, emphasizing sewing the fashionable look.

In a fashion show, Miss Wright will present 15 complete costumes styled for adults in the season's newest fabrics and color combinations. Members of Delaware Home Economics Extension Clubs will model the garments. Fabrics and styles for all figure types will be included to demonstrate that a fashionable, well-fitting wardrobe can be the reward of every woman who sews.

Additional programs are planned for homemakers attending the Farm and Home Week, Feb. 8 to 11. Tuesday morning and afternoon (Feb. 8), sessions include a panel discussion of home financial planning and a talk on new poultry products.

Tours of the University woodland and computer center, special demonstrations and programs on urban pressures, home landscaping, dog care, horseman ship and numerous agricultural topics will be featured at the annual event. All programs are open to the public without charge.

If you are overweight the chances are 99 per cent that you got that way by eating too much.

People don't like that statement and here's how they react to it "But, I eat very little," they protest. They go on to describe their "skinny" meals and claim that they never eat dessert. The only way for people who live in such a dream world to face the matter squarely is actually to count carefully for a few days what their caloric intake has been. Sometimes it's quite a surprise.

Some people do not need as much food as others. Your age and body build, how fast your body uses food, and how active you are physically are some of the factors that determine what you need. If you've been getting fatter you've been busy storing calories beyond what your body needs.

The next excuse is, "Being overweight runs in our family". It could appear that way, but it's very rarely a physically inherited characteristic. Fat families get that way because they live all their lives with people who overeat. It's the food habits they learn that make them overweight, not something they inherited from birth.

People who are very much overweight plead that they get that way through glandular disturbances of one sort or another. Authorities such as Dr. Edward H. Rynearson of the Mayo Clinic, maintain that there is no disorder of the endocrine glands which accounts for ordinary obesity. Still the biggest reason for extra weight is eating too much.

If you are still holding on to your temper and want more information call or write the Extension Office for a free bulletin on "Food and Your Weight". (736-1448 or P.O. Box 340, Dover) It gives a fairly complete calorie list as well as helpful hints.

Irrigation, Narrow Rows Discussed At Farm And Home Week Session

Delaware corn growers, some of them victims of five years of below normal rainfall, are looking for ways to assure themselves of higher, more consistent yields. Some think irrigation is the answer. This may not be so, according to an agronomist who works in a state where more than a million acres of field crops are grown under irrigation each year.

Frank G. Bierberly, who has been a crops and soils specialist in western Kansas for the past twenty years told a Farm and Home Week audience at the University of Delaware Thursday (February 10) that in his state yields must be 2-3 times greater with irrigation than those in non-irrigated land, if the effort is to pay off. In western Kansas where dryland farming is a way of life, these differences do happen. Consequently more than 200 thousand acres of corn are irrigated, each year. And this amount is increasing. But in Delaware, agronomists say yields increases of 50 percent would be more likely in the long run. But they believe it can still be a paying proposition under the right conditions.

The most effective control of maize dwarf mosaic involves corn varieties that are resistant to the insect carriers. But as Janson pointed out, the plants that are the most resistant aren't good commercial varieties. He said it will take several years of work and cooperation between corn breeders, plant pathologists and entomologists to develop suitable varieties.

Southern States Members To Attend Regional Meeting

Approximately 64 members of Southern States Cooperative's local board and committee members, agricultural workers and retail agency managers from this area, will attend a regional board meeting in Dover on February 16. The session will be held at the Holiday Inn and will begin at 10 a. m.

Also attending the meeting will be a number of guest young farmers from the area.

A total of 4 of these regional meetings—featuring some of the new services which the cooperative is making available to its members—will be held by Southern States over a five-state area. The cooperative serves over 213,000 farmer-members who live in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and Kentucky.

Samuel M. Sloan, of Harbeson, a member of the Southern States 15-man board of directors will preside at the meeting. Sloan represents the cooperative's members in Delaware as public director, and has been a member of the board since 1957.

Board members attending the session will hear a report on the cooperative's operations during the first six months of the 1965-66 fiscal year presented by H. B. Manuel, manager of Retail sales, of the organization.

One of the highlights of the morning session will be a movie entitled, "The Road To The Camerons," which stresses the importance of agriculture to the entire economy, the efficiency of this agriculture and the big role that cooperatives have had in developing it and making it efficient. The film was produced by the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives.

Following lunch, Manuel and Jack McHugh, of the cooperative's regional office in Seaford, will present a color slide report entitled, "Face Setting in Cooperative Merchandising."

Those expected to attend the meeting from the Harrington area are: Charles L. Peck, Jr., manager of Peck Brothers Farm Supply Co., Inc., and local board members: Alvin Brown, William F. Parker, William E. Bullock, Robert T. Collins, Jefferson Larimore and Francis Winkler, all of Harrington.

Bierberly said those farmers who want to irrigate corn may suddenly find they are big-time gamblers — "the stakes become higher and failures are more costly". High yields, therefore, are essential for success. He pointed out that all factors that contribute to yield must be emphasized.

He gave this "recipe" for maximum corn yields:

1. A hybrid capable of producing corn yields.
2. Sufficient plant population to provide high producing capacity.
3. Adequate fertility.
4. Optimum moisture conditions.

Bierberly described these as "farmer controlled ingredients" that must be present in combination with good cultural practices such as weed control, seed-bed preparation and planting dates.

Bierberly echoed the feelings of another Farm and Home Week speaker, J. W. Pendleton, University of Illinois agronomist, in his insistence on narrower corn rows.

Pendleton said 40 inch corn and soybean rows, designed for the convenience of the horse, are out of style. "The days of fish fertilizer and horse drawn machinery are gone. Commercial fertilizers replaced the fish, but we continue to plant corn and soybean fields for the horse."

He suggested that farmers across the country are becoming more aware of this waste and are making changes. And for the first time equipment is available that will plant, till, and harvest narrow row crops. He suggested that farmers consider such equipment if they farm large acreages, have been getting high yields and are about ready to replace crop machinery. The yield differences won't be dramatic, he said, and for those growers who produce only average yields, there may be very little difference, but for a grower with extensive acreages and above average yields, the economic returns could be quite good.

Other speakers on the agronomy program at Farm and Home Week include Dr. Charles D. Hutchcraft, secretary - treasurer of the Iowa Crop Improvement Association, who discussed the Iowa corn yield test program and Dr. B. F. Janson, Ohio State University plant pathologist who talked about a new disease, Dwarf Maize Mosaic, that is threatening corn in nearby states.

He described how this disease spread from a few stalks of corn found along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers in 1962 to large areas in 14 states. He said entire corn fields had to be abandoned because the virus cut yields so much that they weren't worth harvesting. "In one year's time, this virus has reduced corn yields from as much as 130 bushels per acre down to 10 or 15."

Malstrom is one of five bases where the program is conducted through AFIT, part of the Air University's professional military education system for Air Force personnel.

A graduate of Seaford High School, Lieutenant Lane attended the University of Delaware and received his B.S.E.E. degree from Oklahoma State University. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega and was commissioned in 1962 upon completion of Officer Training School at Lackland AFB, Tex.

$50,000 Fire Rips Rainbow Inn At Little Heaven

Six fire companies struggled for five hours early Wednesday to control a fire which caused an estimated $50,000 damage to the Rainbow Inn on U.S. 113 near Bowers Beach.

Deputy Fire Marshal Benjamin Roy said the blaze was caused by a lighted cigarette tossed from an ashtray into a trash can containing paper.

The fire was discovered about 2 a.m. by a passerby, who turned in the alarm. The Bowers Beach company responded. Its chief, John Moyer, immediately called for assistance from the Magnolia and Frederica companies.

Water ran low. More equipment was called from Camden-Wyoming, Milford and Felton. A total of 14 pieces of equipment and about 75 men were on the scene by the time the fire was under control at 6:30 a.m.

There were no injuries. The fire was confined to the kitchen and the space between the building's original flat roof and a peaked roof which had been added.

Moyer said there was extensive smoke and water damage to the front of the restaurant. The fire's location between the roofs made it extremely difficult to extinguish, he said. The last firemen left about 9 a.m.

Veterans News

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Q—At the time my husband died, I could not locate his discharge papers and therefore did not receive a burial flag. May I get this burial flag now?

A—Yes. A flag will be issued if circumstances at the time prevented your receiving the flag prior to interment. The applicant must personally sign and set forth the circumstances on the application.

Q—What is the final deadline for World War II GI loan applications?

A—Individual World War II veterans face their GI loan deadline ten years from the date of discharge or release from service plus one year for each three months of active wartime service. However, the final deadline for all World War II veterans is July 25, 1967.

Veterans discharged from service because of a service-incurred disability will be given until July 25, 1967, despite lack of qualifying length of service.

Q—I receive a non-service-connected pension from the VA. Can I also receive Social Security benefits when I reach age 65?

A—A veteran may receive a non-service-connected pension, if otherwise eligible, as long as his income without dependents does not exceed $1,800 or with dependents $3,000 per year. Ninety per cent of Social Security benefits are counted as income.

Q—In figuring income to determine eligibility for a veteran's non-service connected pension, can the veteran deduct 10 per cent of his Social Security income?

A—The veteran does not take the deduction himself. He reports all his income to the Veterans Administration including Social Security payments, annuities, private pensions, etc. The Veterans Administration then calculates the 10 per cent exclusion as provided by law.

Q—I am receiving additional disability benefits for a child who is attending the University. How long may I receive this additional benefit?

A—The additional benefit may be paid up until the child's 23rd birthday as long as he (she) remains in school and is unmarried. Do not confuse this with the VA Orphans Education program where marriage has no effect on the benefit.

Q—I have a National Service Life Insurance term policy, paying dividends each year. If I convert to the Modified Life Insurance plan will I continue to receive dividends?

A—Yes, but you should understand that dividends at first, if any, will be very small.

Q—When I purchased my home through a GI loan, I was told that my monthly payments would be a certain amount. Now my mortgage company has notified me of an increase in my monthly payments. Why?

A—In most cases, monthly payments are made up of principal and interest and a monthly deposit for payment of taxes and hazard insurance premiums. The principal and interest portion of your payment will not change through the life of the loan. However, the monthly deposit to pay taxes and insurance may increase or decrease depending upon whether your real estate tax or hazard insurance premium is increased or decreased.

Q—Could you please tell me about Orphans Education Assistance? I am a veteran with a 30% service-connected disability and I have two sons who are 12 and 13 years old. I would like to know if they are eligible for educational assistance from the Veterans Administration?

A—In order for the children of a living veteran to be eligible for benefits under the War Orphans Education Assistance Program, the veteran must be permanently rated 100% service-connected disabled. Should your disability become worse, you should check with the VA regional office.

Q—I was hospitalized for one month in 1954 at a VA hospital. Upon being discharged from the hospital, I applied for a disability, but after an examination I was rated at zero per cent disability. Would it be too late to apply for a re-examination, as I have since been hospitalized for the same ailment.

A—If you have additional medical evidence to present, you may apply again to the VA for reconsideration of your condition.

Q—I was discharged three months ago after serving three years, all during peacetime. I now require immediate medical treatment for a chronic condition which was incurred during my enlistment. May I receive outpatient treatment or hospitalization from the VA even if I have not yet filed a claim for disability benefits?

A—Yes, but you should apply immediately to establish the fact that your condition was incurred in service. The Veterans Administration can now authorize emergency hospitalization and outpatient medical treatment for such a condition. You must apply to the VA for such treatment within six months from the date of your discharge or release from service.

Q—I am the widow of a World War I veteran. I would like to know if I am eligible for benefits from the Veterans Administration.

A—The widow of a World War I veteran may be entitled to a non-service-connected pension if her income from all sources, including Social Security payments, is less than $1,800 per year without dependents, or under $3,000 with dependents. You can apply for this non-service-connected pension at the nearest VA regional office immediately.

Q—If I apply for release from liability on my GI home loan how long is required to obtain such a release?

A—Three to four weeks, depending upon how quickly credit information and employment verification can be obtained on your purchaser.

All members and friends of St. Stephen's are invited to come to hear him this Sunday at 10:45 a.m.

Lent is only 2 1/2 weeks away! Therefore all members and friends of St. Stephen's should be thinking of the Shrove Tuesday pancake supper which has become a tradition at St. Stephen's.

All members of St. Stephen's should plan to attend Ash Wednesday evening services at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 23, and should set aside the six Thursdays, March 3, 10, 17, 24, 31 and April 7, as special evenings of Lenten devotions. On these date Canon Birney, of the Cathedral in Wilmington, will be here at St. Stephen's to help us know more of the significance of the Holy Communion. He will be with us each Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. and the series will culminate in the Maundy Thursday celebration in the Church.

This coming Sunday evening at 7 p.m., the youth of St. Stephen's will have a new youth advisor, Mrs. Edward P. Bakley. Mrs. Bakley has had much experience in youth work and St. Stephen's youth are fortunate in having her to become their leader. All youth should be present as the evening will be given over to making plans for the future.

All persons over 65 years of age who desire Social Security Health Insurance, must be registered for this before March 31. If they are already receiving Social Security benefits, they will probably receive an insurance application form. This announcement is most important as a period of almost two years will elapse before the next opportunity to register for this health insurance.

Low-priced electric service makes something or other old-fashioned every day.

That's part of the miracle of low-priced electric service—the way it inspires people all over America to find many new and better ways to do things.

You've played a big part in keeping the price of electric service low by putting it to work in more and more ways. So have the people of the investor-owned electric light and power companies. Their business enterprise has helped make electric service one of the best bargains in your household budget.

Today the average family pays about 15% less per kilowatt-hour for its electric service than it did 10 years ago. And the men and women of the investor-owned electric light and power companies will go right on working hard to keep electric service low-priced in the future, too, for all the new uses you will find for it.

Here is another interesting letter from our Greenwood missionary, Miss Rose Handloser, who is working in far-off Africa.
"Box 15, Acornhoek, Eastern Transvaal, Republic of South Africa, December, 1965:
Dear Friends,

By the time you receive this, the Christmas season will be far behind, and the New Year no longer new. But I'm writing this in the midst of the most glorious season of the year and want to express my wish that your holiday season is as blessed as mine is. This year the Christ of Christmas is especially dear to me. Your cards and letters and gifts were all appreciated beyond description.

There have been some exciting things since last I wrote. Seemingly the "Threshing Crew" has been busy—very busy indeed. On Oct. 17, we had a Sunday School rally with 7,000 present in the Eastern Transvaal zone. Remember my prayer request in regards to Sunday School? Well, we're on the march! The Africans have pledged themselves to "crush the head of Satan" on Easter Sunday by having 10,000 in Sunday School.

Also! We of the Eastern Transvaal Zone have challenged the Washington District to a contest during the Easter season. There has been some talk of "biting the tail of the Washington District, the idea being to make it work and at the same time to help us get our work done. When a child is plowing with oxen the only way he can make them proceed sometimes is to bite their tails.

It has been my concern, though, that we would become too interested in contests and numbers and forget our real purpose is the preaching of the gospel until the souls represented by these goals truly repent. The four-months' emphasis I told you about last time is getting underway with the January emphasis on visitation. It is our purpose to use a slightly modified version of the Quinn plan and thus completely to cover the entire area with a survey for new prospects. In February we will emphasize enrollment of these prospects in Sunday School. In March we will have, as much as possible, simultaneous Sunday School revivals throughout the zone, with special prayer and fasting of the revival. In April we plan to "glue them" to the church by getting as many as possible into church membership classes. Do help us pray especially during these months for a mighty increase in the Lord's army.

It's not too soon, either, to begin praying for our Christians and almost-Christians concerning the winter season. In June, July, and August, especially certain heathen customs are carried out that are not done at other times. These seem to be among the last things they give up when choosing Christ—and among the first to pick up again if they lose some of their first enthusiasm. This is reflected every year in our attendance at all services — well, they need prayer!

On November first, I took my helper, Rosinah, to her home where she is now doing full-time youth and Sunday School work on her zone. Another missionary offered to lend Joseph the money for lobola (bride price) so they could be married soon, but they decided to wait until they could be married free of debt. But, oh! how I miss that boisterous Rosinah! Besides the fact that I can't keep up with all the work without her help, she is my friend. She advised me, encouraged me, and scolded me, just as I needed from day to day.

Another very lovely Christian girl, Sara, is coming in January to help me, but she will not be as free to "tell me off" as Rosinah was.

Several days of November were spent baking and decorating a 4-tier wedding cake and choosing clothes for the bridal party; making floral arrangements for the girls to carry; and the wedding itself. Marjorie Feel got back from Macambique at midnight before the wedding. I met her at the train 80 miles from here, so we both had a short rest that night. We left at 8 a.m. with her Jeep overloaded with people and wedding paraphernalia. The wedding was scheduled for 11 a.m. at Newtoning, 30 miles out in the bush. Marjorie supervised decorating the church while I continued to fix the cake. Then we rushed the bridal party into the church for rehearsal — Marjorie directing the bride and groom, the bride's reluctant father, and the thirteen attendants while I provided Lohegrin after a fashion on her portable organ. All windows were crowded with spectators who came early to avoid missing anything. After rehearsal Marjorie supervised dressing the bride and her attendants while I finished the cake. As the church bell pealed out, I made a mad dash for the wash basin (bilharzia water and all!) to take the cage icing off my hands, tore off my apron, and ran to the church to start the music. The whole wedding party was ready — except the bride's father, who came 25 minutes late, and then only because the pastor went after him on the bicycle!

Those of you who know my musical disability will especially enjoy the fact that I had to fill in the interval with such wedding classics (?) as "Your Roses May Have Thorns", "Hallelujah! Amen!", etc. The ceremony, once it got started, was beautiful (except that the ring wouldn't go past the second joint!), and the feast was scrumptious — chicken and rich vegetable gravy on rice! We got home home at 3:20 p.m. and I decided to take a nap before doing anything else. What a nap! I woke up at 6:30 a.m. the next day! For once I was at least as tired as I thought I was.

There are so many things I'd like to tell you about. Many of you have asked, "What do you do in your spare time?" That's what this letter is all about—my spare time activities. If I embroider, which I love to do, I do that during staff meetings. If I read for pleasure, I do that late at night when I should be sleeping. Sometimes there's company for dinner, or I go to friends. Quite often someone or a group will stop by for "tea" and a 15-minute chat. Once a week I visit my neighbor, Mrs. VanHeerden, who is teaching me Afrikaans. The rest of the time is devoted to missionary duties—though they are so thrilling to me that I get them all mixed up with my spare time activities more often than not.

In January I plan to get out of the heat for a week in Johannesburg, the mile-high city. There is some medical work which I need to have taken care of before school starts again—and it will be pleasant to have a few days to rest and visit with friends down there.

Your response to my last letter requesting threshers to work on the mountain-threshing crew has been thrilling, to say the least. For those on my mailing list for the first time, we are working from Isaiah 41:15, 16, and there is always available work for this crew. As one missionary said recently, "The present pay may not be so great, but Christ offers a tremendous retirement plan!"

Your Missionary and His, Rose Handloser"

Sports Odds And Ends

Two years ago, the junior varsity coach at Felton High was Bucky Bolyard. Bolyard played his collegiate basketball at West Virginia with Jerry West or at Illinois, depending on which source you use. Both are big time. All of Felton's present varsity except Doug Berry were on that jayvee team. We like to think Bolyard should get part of the credit for Felton's present eminence in the cage sport, in a year when they were supposed to fall from grace with a resounding crash. We saw that team play twice and saw signs of class as they split two games with a strong HHS five which is the present Lion varsity.

Bolyard is not very tall, perhaps 5-11 or six feet even, but he is making his presence felt in a league of giants. The Eastern Basketball League, Wilmington's Blue Bombers play in this loop. As a Soranton Miner ace, Bolyard is leading the circuit by a good margin in 3-point field goals. These are baskets tossed in from long range. Bucky is eighth in assists. This is the mark of the truly valuable performer. Guy Cousy, Oscar Robertson, Bob Rodgers are the type of competitors, who excel in the assist department.

Fred Astaire, the celebrated hooper, is another disciple of distance running as a body conditioner. Now in his sixties, Astaire takes to the golf course whenever he has an important show coming up. But he leaves his clubs home and instead of chasing the little white ball, he gallops several miles daily until he achieves the condition he desires. When the curtain goes up there is the graceful stylist, matching step for step with some gorgeous tomato like Barri Chase, 40 years his junior.

More than thirty years ago Frederica town teams used to play Harrington with some local boys in their lineup. Eddie Taylor used to hold down the hot corner for them on occasion. A Bowers Beach party boat captain, Gummy Faulkner, also was an infielder. Faulkner still fishes out of Bowers and bowls out of Wilmington. His 197 average in the 1st State Classic League is one of the best in Delaware. The best average is the 215 owned by Bill Larsen the owner of the Rehoboth lanes.

Last March the Harrington High track Lions competed in the Frostbite Invitational held on Tower Hill School's $27,000 composition all-weather track. As part of the program some exhibition races were run by girls representing the Delaware Track and Field Club. After the girls competed some of the local lads chatted with the distaff competitors and were favorably impressed by them, especially the Souden sisters, Beverly and Barbara, of Conrad and Ginger Smith of Tower Hill.

Last weekend on TV from Philadelphia, the Inquirer Games track meet showed one of the Souden sisters qualifying for the final in the 50 yard dash. In the 440 yard run Ginger Smith took an early lead then fought off a challenge by Pat Clark, the New York City champion to win in 60.5 seconds. This is the equivalent of between 58 and 59 seconds on an outdoor track. That's good enough to make the boy's team at H.H.S. and you can bet the Lions would like to have her on the team.

Lions Defeat Mustangs, Grab 2nd Place

Harrington High's Lions nipped the tough, tall Bridgeville Mustangs by a score of 65-63 here Tuesday night to move into second place in the Western Division of the Henlopen Conference.

The locals' sixth win in eight starts came in a nip-and-tuck game that saw the rivals three points or less apart at each quarter post.

Harrington led by three at the end of the first period, trailed by one at the half and won the game by outscoring the visitors 19-16 in the third quarter. The final chapter saw each squad tally eight points.

Three key factors helped the Lions upset the favored invaders. First both Harrington big guns had good nights. Sam Knox hit for 11 field goals and wound up with a game high of 25 points. John Greenhaugh tallied 20 points for the second best effort in the game.

The second factor was the performance of Ellis Myer. Myer is a forward but lacks confidence in his shooting ability and therefore takes fewer shots than probably any other starting forward in the loop. He prefers to pass off most of the time to Knox or Greenhaugh. Ellis' aim isn't that bad. Against the Mustangs he tried a few for a change and wound up in double figures. Harrington needed those 12 points badly. With Hatfield in double figures against Greenwood the Lions are starting to show that needed scoring balance.

The third key happening was Harrington's performance at the foul line. Awarded 23 shots to 9 for the visitors, the Lions cashed in 15 to overcome a 29-25 Mustang field goal advantage.

It's a little premature to start talking pennant, especially the way that Felton team is developing, but nevertheless that untimely defeat of the Lions by a weak 1-8 Lord Baltimore team, looms more important as the season wears on.

Tonight, the Lions journey to Felton to play the game which may make or break this team. Felton is in high gear with an 8-1 record, is just fresh off a 76-46 trouncing of a good Dover Air team and has the home court advantage. The Devils seem to be able to get more than the usual mileage out of this last asset. Probably because of their extra large throng of enthusiastic supporters. At any rate, H.H.S. will have to be at peak form to win this one and get a tie for first place.

Veterans News

Leon Fields, manager of the regional office of the Veterans Administration, Wilmington, said Wednesday that 12,210 veterans in the State of Delaware will receive $588,620 in GI Insurance dividends in 1966.

Dividends this year are being paid veterans having United States Government Life Insurance and National Service Life Insurance on anniversary dates of their individual policies. Mr. Fields pointed out. The first dividend payments were made during the first week in January, as checks were mailed to the first 154,000 veterans with insurance anniversary dates in January. Some 4,606,000 veterans will share in dividends totalling $224,200,000.

The dividends represent primarily a return to Delaware policyholders of part of their premium payments since the death rate of insured veterans continues to be lower than the mortality rate upon which premium payments are based by law.

In Delaware, 330 veterans with United States Government Life Insurance are expected to receive $24,320, and 11,880 veterans possessing National Service Life Insurance are to receive $564,300.

The dividend payments are to be made automatically as anniversary dates roll around, Mr. Fields said. No application is required.

Felton Alone In First After Delmar Win

Felton's Green Devils went into Friday's game as one of three teams in the Western Division of the Henlopen Conference with only one loss. Bridgeville knocked off Dover Air and Felton polished off Delmar 65-52 at Felton. Thus the Green Devils are back in their accustomed perch as undisputed leader.

After eight games it appears that Felton's speed, poise and balance pose a tough problem for their opponents. The Devils are winning games because they never quit or let up. Rival teams manage to lead or stay close for a while but, except for Milton, no team has been able to hold them down long enough to gain the verdict.

Felton is especially tough at home. Delmar was only three points back as the fourth period started but were outsped 25-15 as the home team won going away.

An unusual aspect to the contest was the extremely high number of free throws taken by the home team. Felton tried 44 of which 23 were good. All 22 Henlopen schools were in action on Friday night and the next highest total was the 26 charity stripe efforts taken by Rehoboth against Selbyville. Delmar was next with 25. The Wildcats converted 16 John Sheets of Felton tried 16 free throws. Four entire teams in the loop didn't get that many attempts.

Sheets led all scorers with 19 points. Red Dill with 13 and Doug Berry with 11 aided the victors. Felton's balance was evident as six players tallied at least six points.

Felton Clobbers Dover Air, 76-46

Dover Air, which had been making noises lately to indicate they thought they had a chance to take all the marbles in the Western Division of the Henlopen Conference, must be having second thoughts today. The Falcons visited Felton Tuesday night and received a 76-46 trouncing which dropped them into a third place tie with Bridgeville.

Felton's eighth win in nine starts was so easy that Coach Charley Neal used his entire 11 man squad. One of the reasons for the success of this year's Green Devil squad is the fact that last year's mentor, Joe Kerns, had such a strong team, that he was able to give his reserves more than the normal amount of playing experience.

The Devils again made good use of the free throw line as they canned 28 of 41 attempts. The Falcons had a little better percentage in this department but that didn't help much as they went to the line only 12 times and made 8 good.

The winners had a comparatively close edge in field goals 24-19 but never were pressed as they drew further ahead throughout the fray.

Bob "Red" Dill sank 25 points to top his average per game to close to 19. 22nd in the state going into the contest he probably moved up a few notches. He now has 168 points in 9 games. Average-wise, the Felton sophomore is in or near the top ten in Delaware. Will Dill with 11 points and Bob French with 10 were other Feltonians in double figures.

4-H Club Notes

With Marion McDonald

Should you seek a career in Youth Services? These agencies range from national groups such as 4-H Club work, Y's, scouting and F.F.A. to community and neighborhood centers. They all have a common purpose, to help our youth grow into healthy-minded responsible citizens, devoted to God, country, family and fellow man. The professional's work is varied from teaching specific skills to directing camps. Some will work directly with young people, others with adults. This is seldom routine work. But there is no 40 hour week and often the professional is busiest in late afternoon, at night, and weekends. But, if you have a real love for people, like youth, and they like you and enjoy service to others you'll find variety in youth service challenging. A college education is essential for most positions. One needs a schooling in psychology, sociology, education, English, public speaking, public relations and economics. You should develop creative skills and interest too. There is no calling that offers a richer sense of fulfillment.

A will takes less time to prepare than income tax. Estate planning is best done when you are in good health and when you have time to consider alternatives. The knowledge that your affairs are in good order can reduce your concern for the future, says Miss Morris.

Will Reduces Confusion In Settling Any Estate

A will is as important to people in modest circumstances as it is to those with vast estates, according to Miss Coral K. Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware. Almost everyone has had some experience with the confusion, inequity and strained personal relationships that often result when a will is not available to settle an estate.

Every estate must be settled in some way. If everything you own, including your automobile, has a value of over $500, you have an estate which by Delaware law must be settled by an executor or administrator.

Your property can be distributed according to state laws designed for those who have no will, or it can be distributed as designated in a will. It is also possible to share ownership with someone else as "joint tenant with rights of survivorship" so that, upon death, the property goes to the survivor without probate.

Of these possibilities, the use of a will gives the greatest flexibility and choice. Miss Morris points out. It is the best way to name a guardian for minor children, to name an executor and to distribute property as you want.

"Joint tenancy" is a useful device in certain cases, but its indiscriminate use can cause problems of taxation and other expenses. In most cases, it is not an adequate substitute for a will.

The power of attorney is the authority you give another to handle or manage your property in your behalf. It cannot take the place of a will since it ceases to be effective at death.

Do-it-yourself law is no safer than do-it-yourself medicine, and just as complicated. Words that mean one thing in common language may take on entirely different meaning when part of a legal document. Miss Morris warns. The conditions for a valid will are definite and inflexible. A lawyer has the training to draw up a will that will carry out your wishes and stand up in court.

The cost of a will varies with the complexity of the estate and the plans you have for its distribution; usually it is from $10 to $25.

Remember that there may well be distinct savings in having a will, Miss Morris says. A court appointed administrator must usually post bond and pay a premium on the bond; this expense comes from the estate. An executor named in a will may, by the terms of that will, be relieved of the necessity for obtaining a bond. Moreover, a carefully drawn will frequently reduces estate taxes.

When a lawyer draws up your will, he will need to know general information about the property you own, the names of the beneficiaries to be named in your will and the names of executors and guardians to be appointed.

A will does not become effective until after death. During your lifetime, you are completely free to destroy it, cancel it or change it. Your last will is the legal will.

A will may need to be changed when there has been a major change in your family, your property or your situation, according to Miss Morris. Such changes might be death of a major beneficiary, marriage, divorce or remarriage, birth or adoption of a child or grandchild, change of residence to another state, death of the executor or his move to another state, major increase or decrease in value of estate, sale or other disposal of property bequeathed in the will, death of witnesses, changes in laws or changed needs of family members.

A will takes less time to prepare than income tax. Estate planning is best done when you are in good health and when you have time to consider alternatives. The knowledge that your affairs are in good order can reduce your concern for the future, says Miss Morris.

Lions Tab 5th Win; Nip Greenwood

Jim Hawpe's Harrington High basketball Lions apparently had a game in the bag after three periods the other night, then almost saw it slip away in the fourth quarter as the pattern of the contest was completely reversed.

Carl Baker's Greenwood High Forresters played the Lions on even terms in the first period but could do little right for the next two frames as Harrington stepped out to a 36-22 lead. The Lions weren't playing good basketball but the Forresters were ice cold.

Hawpe tried to use some reserves in the final chapter but the visitors seized the opportunity to narrow the gap a little. The Lion varsity came back but had cooled off and could not hold Greenwood which proceeded to tally 21 points against only 23 through the first three periods.

With seconds left to play Harrington's lead had melted to one point and Greenwood had the ball when Marshall Hatfield intercepted a pass to put the game in the win column for his team. The Lions now sport a 5-2 record and are tied with Delmar for fourth place in the Western Division of the Henlopen Conference. Greenwood has a good 5-3 log.

Sam Knox was game high scorer with 18 points. John Greenhaugh, the other half of the locals' 1-2 punch tallied 10 markers, as did Hatfield. It is nice to see three Lions in double figures once more. More balance in the attack could take this team a long way.

Ron Breeding, of near Farmington, paced the losers with 13 points, followed by Buell Schulze with an even dozen.

While Greenwood was lukewarm in their field goal efforts, their deadly aim at the foul line almost pulled the fat out of the fire. Sinking 17 to 21 free throws put the pressure on the Lions, who made only 6 of 14. Harrington's 20-13 edge in action tosses saved the day.

FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapaa

Snow has played havoc with our winter meeting schedules. Some activities, like our "open barn" visits, were snowed out. Others can be rescheduled. This is easily done with small committee groups for example.

A word to home gardeners: Check your trees and shrubs for broken branches and prune them back to healthy wood. By all means keep snow from weighing down the limbs.
