

300 PROTEST NEW ASSESSMENT IN KENT

Property assessment appeal for Kent County taxpayers went into the fifth day Monday in the conference room of the Kent County Courthouse.

"Adjustments have been negligible," said Chester Bricko, representative of the J. M. Clemshaw Co., which made the two year appraisal of Kent properties.

Almost 300 persons have appeared to protest or question their assessment. The Board of Assessment last Monday mailed out more than 25,000 value notices.

"Of course we make some mistakes," Bricko noted, "but not many." "Most of the people come because they don't understand exactly what we're doing. The assessment ratio, though remaining constant, cannot be effectively measured against last year's assessment figure."

Bricko said one farmer's property prior to the survey was valued at $12,000. According to Clemshaw's valuation, the property is worth $45,000. "The initial valuation may date back 30 years," Bricko pointed out. "If you asked the owner to sell his farm for $12,000, he'd laugh out loud."

The three-member assessment board, including president, Harold Powell, Franklin English, and James McVaine, will listen to appeals with Bricko through March 15.

One man from nearby Bishop's Corner, was smiling when he left the hearing room. "They valued my property at $4,900, but when I explained the situation, they dropped the assessment to $4,100."

"My house is a four room affair... built it myself and saved plenty by cutting corners. It cost $2900 to put up. My neighbor's house is all brick, three bedrooms and a modern kitchen. They set his assessment at $7500."

"I'm satisfied with my assessment, but I told them (the board) I wanted equality, that's all," he said. "My neighbor's house is worth twice as much as mine. They made an adjustment."

"We've tried to equalize rates on everything," Bricko said. "One man was amazed to find that his garage was rated at $900. He'd paid $2000 to have it constructed. The going current market value for a garage of his type was the price 'we had set.'"

Diamond State Investment Was $1 million Milestone

The Diamond State Telephone Company reported recently its plant investment went past the $100 million milestone last year, increasing almost 12 per cent to a record $105,537,000.

Its annual report, issued recently, notes that an increasing customer use of optional services played a major part in counterbalancing the effects of generally higher operating costs.

For the past year, the Bell System company reported earnings of $5,476,000, equal to $2.87 per share of common stock. In 1964 earnings were $5 million equal to $2.72 per share.

Diamond had operating revenues of $33,867,000 in 1965, compared with $30,650,000 in 1964.

Various company payments totaled $6,311,000. In addition, the report notes that the state's economy was bolstered by a payroll of $10,897,000 and purchases of $5 million from 800 firms by Diamond State Telephone Company and Western Electric Company, supply unit of the Bell System.

The report states marketing of optional services and the use of expense control programs successfully offset increased wage and benefit payments and other generally higher costs. Optional services such as extensions, provided $55 of each $100 increase in local service revenue.

President R. M. Wachob writes in the report that, "teamwork with our partners in the Bell System in applying advances in technology to the business has provided us with the opportunity to meet the constantly growing needs of our customers more efficiently—and more personally—than ever before."

He adds: "We must serve not only well, but profitably, if we are to discharge in good balance our responsibility to customers, shareholders and employees. By so

Kent Man Indicted In Kin Shooting

A Woodside man Monday was indicted by the Kent County Grand Jury on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder resulting from the wounding of his brother.

The panel, meeting in regular session, considered a total of 34 bills, and returned 33 true bills. The only one ignored by the jury involved a charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

Norman Edward Taylor, 52, of Woodside, being held in Kent Correctional Institution in lieu of $2000 bail, was indicted on the assault charge originally placed against him by Magistrate Maurice W. Carrow.

Pesticides Safe When Used Properly

Pesticides, used according to directions, are reliable and safe. Americans are better fed with a greater choice of foods with less cost to the consumer than any other country in the world largely because of our modern pesticides, according to Frank Boys, extension specialist in agricultural chemicals at the University of Delaware.

The hazard to man from chemical residues on processed food is almost non-existent. Pesticides and their use are strictly enforced by federal laws. Before a pesticide is ever put on the market, it has been thoroughly and extensively tested for years by qualified experts. The homeowner can be confident that the foods she buys are safe and nutritious, and best of all, the insects and diseases have not made a mess of them.

Nonetheless, pesticides are poison; they kill insects, weeds, fungi, rats, mice and other vermin. Obviously, they can be dangerous if not handled properly. You can prevent pesticide accidents in and around your home by using common sense precautions, Boys says.

The safe use of pesticides can be summed up with these four precautions: follow the directions on the label; use carefully; store safely; and dispose of containers carefully.

The major cause of pesticide accidents involving children or pets is the careless storage of pesticides. Keep these chemicals

City Awaits Feasibility Report On Proposed Sewer Improvement

The City took another step in its proposed sewer-improvement program Tuesday night when it okayed a proposal to prepare a feasibility report.

Dudley Willis, of Richardson Associates, the City's consulting engineers, recommended the report after a four-hour meeting attended by the City Council, the City Planning Commission, Mayor Luther P. Hatfield, Fred Mott, of the Kent County Soil Conservation District, and Joe Paterno, chief community planner, of the State Planning Office.

The story on the proposed sewer-improvement program is as follows: Many Harrington homes do not have available sanitary sewers; the sewage disposal plant is overloaded, incurring the displeasure of the State Board of Health and the state Water Pollution Commission.

The City can hold a referendum for sewer bonds, the proceeds from which can: 1. Improve the City's sewers and disposal plant, or 2. Improve the sewers in the City and disposal plant and install sewers and water in areas adjacent to the City if these areas will vote for annexation.

Willis believed there would be little difference in the costs of the programs and proposed No. 2 since there was more likelihood of getting a federal grant from the Farm & Home Administration because of the aid to the rural areas. He thought a referendum should be held as soon as possible since more federal monies were available. In some cases, this federal aid would be up to 50 per cent of the cost.

An observer commented construction costs would also be cheaper now than years hence.

The feasibility report to be prepared by Richardson Associates, would be available in three or four weeks, Willis said.

As for the disposal plant, Willis explained two possibilities: 1. The conventional plant, as we have now, or 2. a sewage stabilization pond which could be used for recreation if Harrington, hooks into the Kent County sewer system under proposal.

"If the sewer improvements are not done soon," explained Willis, "and Harrington does not include areas outside the City, then some other outfit; namely, the county, may come in. If these areas are going to grow, now is the opportune time. Harrington is in an extremely fortunate position because it is the only community in Delaware, and the second in Delaware and Maryland, to have applied to FHA for a grant," he commented.

The improved sewer system here would pay for itself, with no tax increase. Cost would come from sewer usage fees, with the exact increase still to be determined.

One of the first steps will be to talk to residents in the areas considered for annexation.

Consumer Rights, Protection Is Topic Of Annual Forums

The best protection a consumer can have is to be well informed. With accurate information about a product, he is less likely to be cheated or talked into something he doesn't want, according to Miss Janet Reed, extension clothing and textiles specialist at the University of Delaware and chairman of the annual Consumer Forums sponsored by the home economics extension service.

The 1966 Consumer Forums, March 15 and 16, will feature the information every consumer should have to avoid legal pitfalls. Delaware Attorney General David P. Buckson, featured speaker at the meetings, will discuss the consumer's legal rights and the protection available to consumers. Ross Anderson, Delaware State Chamber of Commerce; Randolph Hughes, Delaware state bank commissioner; S. W. Pettit, vice president of Farmers Bank of the State of Delaware; and Leonard Sanders, executive director of Delaware Better Business Bureau, Inc., will also be present to answer consumer's questions.

The March 15 meeting will be held at the Little Theatre, Slaybaugh Hall, Wesley College, Dover, and the March 16 session will be in the Rodney Room, Student Center, University of Delaware, Newark.

Although special invitations have been issued to civic and service clubs throughout the state, the public is invited to attend. Advance registration is recommended. Further information is available from Miss Janet Reed, Agricultural Hall, Newark, Delaware 19711.

Dairy Herds Set Production Record

Delaware dairy herds taking part in the Dairy Herd Improvement Association testing program established a new state record during 1965. The 96 herds on official test produced an average of 11,736 pounds of milk and 452 pounds of milkfat per cow. This was almost 20 pounds of milk and six pounds of fat above the 1964 average.

Records released by the College of Agricultural Sciences at the University of Delaware, the supervising agency for the association, reveal that the William Kux herd of Port Penn was the high producing herd in the state. It averaged 15,966 pounds of milk and 597 pounds of fat per cow. The record was established with an average of 33 cows on test.

Other high producing herds were W. L. Phipps and Son, Wilmington (15,208 pounds of milk and 593 pounds of fat); D. E. Swartzentruber, Greenwood (15,086 pounds of milk, 580 pounds of fat); University of Delaware Holstein herd, Newark (15,036 pounds of milk, 580 pounds of fat); and Harry A. Webb, Greenwood (14,877 pounds of milk, 580 pounds of fat).

The 1965 achievement was established with a record of number of cows on test—4,515, or an average of 47 cows per herd. That was two more per herd than in 1964. The increase in cow numbers in the testing program has been continuous over the past several years, according to W. R. Hesselstine, extension dairyman at the University. In 1959 the average herd was only 36 cows. Although the figure has climbed steadily, it is still below the national average of 51 for all DHIA herds.

The Delaware Dairy Herd Improvement Association is a voluntary testing program. Each member pays a fee to have his herd tested by an official supervisor who visits the farm each month. He records such things as total milk and fat production and feed consumption. All data are sent to a computer center where individual and herd tabulations are made.

Hesselstine lists these benefits from the program: —Herd owners are stimulated to do a better job. —Individual cow records provides a means of evaluating herd sires. —All dairymen gain valuable information from the records. —Consumers receive the advantages of more efficient production.

Country Lane Extension Club News

By Jane Everline The Country Lane Home Economics Extension Club met Tuesday, March 1, at the home of Mrs. Charlotte Collison.

The main item of business was discussion on our "country" project which will be presented at the group meeting in May. It was decided to have a special meeting April 19, to put all this information together.

Our club will be hostess at the group meeting, so some plans were made for this event. Mrs. Mary Lou Wright and Mrs. Jane Everline will be the welcoming committee.

Mrs. Jean Donovan, club president, has been selected chairman of the hostess committee for State Day, which is May 4. Mrs. Charlotte Collison will serve on the committee with her.

Upon adjournment of the business meeting, Mrs. Jean Donovan presented an interesting and informative program on physical fitness. She showed us several isometric exercises to be done three times a day, six seconds at a time, to trim inches (but not weight) from our measurements. This is done by a tightening up of the muscles.

The next regular meeting will be April 5 at the home of Mrs. Mary Collison.

Century Club News

The first meeting in March was held in Harrington New Century Clubhouse on Tuesday. At the business part of the meeting, Mrs. George Mahony, chairman of Ways and Means, announced the Bridge Tournament is coming along nicely with nine tables of bridge being played on Monday nights. On April 18th a bridge and 500 card party is scheduled for that evening. Mrs. Mahony named April 15th and 16th as the dates for the spring rummage sale sponsored by the club. Keep this in mind as you clean out the closets during spring housecleaning time!

Tickets may be secured from Mrs. Charles Rapp for the spring luncheon to be held April 12. Deadline is April 4 for obtaining these tickets, this will enable the committee to better prepare for the luncheon, which will be a buffet.

Mrs. Charles L. Peck, Jr., chairman of Nominating Committee, announced that the slate of officers for the coming two years have been completed. These officers will be installed April 26th. Mrs. Fred S. Bailey invited everyone to the fashion show and card party on March 17 at Stockley Hospital. These proceeds are for the All-Faith Chapel to be built at Stockley.

Chairman of Conservation, Mrs. Joseph L. Brinster, gave an interesting discussion assisted by Mrs. William W. Sharp, on water pollution and conservation. We soon learned that this subject was not dull and dry as we thought it to be. We were informed how water can be purified and reused again. It's appalling how wasteful one can be with water, and how very much water is used daily.

Mrs. Brinster's committee consisted of Mrs. Sharp, Mrs. Quay Rice, Mrs. C. Fred Wilson, Mrs. Francis Winkler, Mrs. Frank O'Neil, Sr., and Mrs. Howard Thistlewood.

A lovely duet was sung by Aleta and Joan Mason, "God Is Love", ably accompanied by Gale Melvin at the piano.

Mrs. Ted H. Storus will be chairman of the next meeting on March 22. Mrs. Storus has engaged Harry F. Camper, director of Hospital Planning and Health Insurance Officer of the State of Delaware. Mr. Camper's topic will be "Medicare".

Poems from Paradise Pastures

As I am the wife of the guy who has made these Pastures a Paradise for me, and the daughter of the poet who has put us on the map, I'm going to use whatever license is afforded and give some publicity to another poet who is dear to me—my brother, Clifford L. Miller of New Brunswick, N. J. He's another PRR man with a mustache. He isn't very tall, either, but neither was Zachaeus. However, Bud, as we call him, has been writing all sorts of things—poems, essays, political publicity, wisecracks, newspaper columns—since he was quite young. Appreciated but hardly recognized. The important part of writing is the grand therapy it affords in creative self-expression.

But enough—I just wanted you to know something about this brother of mine who wrote this poem to our Dad a year or so ago; TO DAD on the celebration of his Diamond Jubilee—Dec. 14, 1964.

Conceived during the Great Blizzard
 And six months old
 Before the Conemaugh rolled
 Down your valley and left it a hideous desert,
 You were a child of violence
 Born to a generation that ended the silence
 Of the western plains
 And the slaves' pains.
 The world began to move faster when you began to walk.
 Nellie Bly zipped through Bangkok
 And was back in New York in seventy-two days
 While you were in Flyntown, Pa.
 Now you are watching a space ship rocketing to Mars
 And barely glance at a man-made star's
 Circling of the earth every ninety minutes
 With no one in it.
 Admiral Peary discovered the North Pole in 1909,
 At the same time
 You found Mineral Point and Mollie Sell, both much warmer,
 And before another year had passed you were a Daddy and she was a Mommer.
 The process repeated itself, with variations,
 For several generations
 'Til now I look around and find I am a Grandfather,
 But you are a Great-Grandfather!
 Now that is quite an accomplishment, in itself,
 And a very good example for me and my children's children,
 Of how not to be on the shelf.
 But to keep right on with the empire-building;
 Building dams,
 Planting soybeans and yams,
 Raising trout,
 Cutting trees out,
 Playing a mandolin and a mouth organ,
 Reciting poetry, composing slogans,
 Some ping-pong,
 An Irish song,
 Sunday school teacher,
 Rotary Club speaker,
 Clam digger,
 Plow Rigger
 Man Alive,
 How do you do all that at seventy-five!

Assoc. Ed: Make it retroactive!

E. B. Rash was made mayor, for the remainder of the year, by the City Council when Mayor Charles L. Peck, Jr., moved outside the city.

The City Council voted to raise water rentals 25 per cent. The reason was attributed to a need for a reserve fund to provide repairs and replacements in the water system.

Herman Cabbage Brown, of Harrington, received a Bachelor of Laws degree from George Washington University. He received a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of North Carolina in 1948. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Herman Brown.

The Rev. George Whetstone has assumed his duties as pastor of the Church of the Nazarene. James Edwards, of near Lewes, plans to use multiflora rose fencing as a windbreak around his brooder house. The rose, furnished by the state Fish & Game Commission, will provide Edwards with a tight fence around his property and afford an excellent windbreak. It will also provide cover for birds and small animals.

The Harrington Legionnaires scored their first win of the year over the Lewes AA on the local basketball court. Score was 66 to 64.

The Loyal Order of Moose initiated four persons recently. They were as follows: Allan Klapp, Harry Short, Robert Myer, and Harvey Timmons. Also present at the meeting were Maurice Cole, membership director, of Baltimore; Horace Huber, of Doylestown, Pa., and James Weller, a transfer, from Cicero, Ill. Mrs. William E. Swain, of Harrington; Mrs. Bessie Gibson, of Alton, Pa.; Mrs. William E. Wilson, of Oaklyn, N. J., and Mrs. Amy Poynter, Felton, have returned from a visit to Florida. Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Cleaves called on Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Ramsdell.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Greenley, Jr., are the proud parents of a baby boy, born Sunday at Delaware Hospital, Wilmington.

Editorial written by J. Harvey Burgess: A hideous monster has been washed up by the sea out in Oregon. It is described as about twenty feet long, covered with coarse, black hair or wool, and the possessor of something like twenty arms or legs. In addition to this, it gives off an awful stench. Our guess is that it's one of these professional wrestlers we've been seeing on television.

Sandtown—The Ladies Aid of the Mt. Olive Church extend a vote of thanks to Mr. Carroll (Noble Carroll) for making the fires and keeping the church warm this winter for us. Neighbors, if you don't believe it, come out some Sabbath afternoon and see. We would like to raise a little enthusiasm out there. Anyway in the neighborhood, there are so few that attend and it is a little hard on the preacher if he should come out with something real good, as the empty seats can't say "Amen" back to him. Sandtown has been quite proud of her growth these past few months, but one of our young families moved back to Brooklyn. What's the matter with the goil? Couldn't she understand the Sandtown language? Editorial note: our Sandtown correspondent was Noble Carroll, one of the best.

Subsurface irrigation offers real promise—or should I say hope—for the home gardener. This is a watering system where plastic pipe lined with small holes is buried 8" to 18" below the soil.

Dr. William Mitchell, our extension agronomist at the University of Delaware, has established test plots to learn about this technique on lawn turf and garden crops.

The first work was started in West Texas, where water is in very limited supply. It's a costly practice at present, but further work may bring prices into line with overhead irrigation sprinklers.

The big advantages for watering under the surface are that you use less water, and you don't have to move pipe or worry about damaging the system. We still have to learn about changed fertilizer needs, possible new weeds, disease, or insect problems, and some other situations that are bound to pop up.

The system is not on the market yet, but will keep you informed as we learn more about subsurface watering of plants.

Potato growing recommendations for 1966 have been prepared in detail by the Suffolk County, New York Agricultural Extension Service. Many of our Delaware growers still receive such literature from H. D. "Line" Wells, the county agent and his staff. We urge that you follow it carefully. Or call me if you want details.

We probably ought to duplicate some of the record sheets they show in their booklet. These include seeding, fertilizer, tillage, moisture (rainfall and irrigation), and spray record forms, as well as field mapping sheets. It's almost impossible to keep all of this information straight from memory alone.

A Purdue economist says shifting to narrow row corn and soybeans depends largely on four factors:

Corn yield and practices to increase yields, such as adequate fertilizer, chemical weed control and the like, are being used.

Age of present corn planting and harvesting equipment.

Acreage of the crop. If the somewhat higher cost for narrow row equipment can be spread over a larger acreage, then narrow row culture becomes more profitable.

Acreage of soybeans used with corn acreage. Soybeans are likely to gain a higher percentage increase in yield than corn from narrow row culture.

The world's easiest dairy feeding system is now in operation at the University of Illinois. It automatically feeds up to 80 cows (60 milking and 20 dry) in four lots.

Nerve center of the system is a panel of control that can be preset to automatically mix and deliver any combination of corn silage high-moisture corn and concentrate ration as often as every two hours.

A modern milk room and double-four herringbone milking parlor, a loose-housing shed and two free-stall housing sheds complete the physical layout of the system.

A synchronous thinner working in vegetable, cotton and sugar beet has been developed by University of California engineers.

The thinner works by sensing a seedling through an electrical-charged probe close to the ground. When the probe touches a plant, a blade moving parallel to the row and ahead of the probe slashes into the ground to dig out any extra seedlings. The seedling that triggered the action is not harmed. The machine then proceeds until it touches another plant and the process is repeated. A four-row unit moving 1 1/2 miles per hour could thin as many acres as a 16-man crew.

The biggest restaurant chain in the nation is made up of our school lunch counters. They sell more than one tenth of all food sold through food service outlets.

What will tomorrow's supermarkets be like? Will shopping be easier? What about prices?

The forecast calls for automatic ring up and bagging. This should speed customers through the check-out lines. Electronic brains will keep tabs on supplies and re-order replacements before supplies give out.

Personal service by butchers is on the way back. Trained meat clerks will make suggestions on cooking methods and best buys in meats.

Markets of the future will have new handling methods and improved refrigeration and sanitation systems. Food will keep fresher longer and there will be less waste.

Electronic merchandising will help hold prices down. Tomorrow's consumers should continue to benefit from today's food bargains.

Many new foods are being introduced—mostly to save time. We'll be cooking things we never cooked before just for the fun of it. Products being developed in aerosol cans are salad dressings, meat tenderizers, peanut butter-honey and peanut butter-marshmallow whips, liquid spices: black pepper, lemon oil, and cloves.

A hot-melt transparent peelable coating has been approved for commercial use on meat and fish. It prevents freezer burn, discoloration, and contamination of all kinds.

Watch for aluminum can you can cook in and for a new low fat, high protein cheddar cheese. Other new products to look for are pre-broiled hamburgers, toaster heated pizza, and canned apple salad.

Another round of retail price increases for beef is in the making. Live cattle prices at Midwest markets advanced last week, they rose to the highest level since last June. Supplies of Prime and Choice grades of beef are expected to be in short supply for the next several weeks because stocks of old-crop cattle on feed are dwindling and it will be a while before the new crop reaches the right weight to yield the best quality beef. The easing of Lenten meat rules may create additional beef demand during the Lenten period when beef purchases usually drop. These increased shortages and the increased wholesales will probably mean higher retail prices within the next week or ten days. When shopping for beef be sure to shop the specials for this is the best way to stay within the food budget.

Broiler-fryer prices continue to be higher than we have been accustomed to. This increase which occurred last week is the effect of the cold weather in Southern growing areas where there was some difficulty getting feed and water into the flocks. Turkey is, however, an economy meat in most stores, particularly frozen turkey.

Of course, as would be expected, the demand for fishing products because of Lent has pushed prices up. These are the sea foods that are in best supply and they are most likely to be economical—porgies, butterfish, sea scallops, smelts, oysters, crab meat, cod and whiting.

Don't be surprised at what you see when you shop for lettuce. The quality and the size of lettuce has been definitely retarded by weather and the prices at the shipping point have been about three times as high as a year ago. Thus, by the time we see this salad bowl favorite the quality is a bit worse and the price per head a shock. An improvement in this situation as well as that of green peppers is expected soon.

The list of reasonably priced vegetables is growing longer, but in some cases quality is not the best. Shop this week for beets, cabbage, carrots, radishes, onions, sweet potatoes and tomatoes.

Bananas are the most common feature again this week and avocado shipments are beginning to pick up. Though California lost sizeable amounts from storms in January and February, they still have prospects of about twice as many avocados as last year. All oranges are moving well at slightly lower prices and grapefruit damage in all producing areas have been lighter than expected and prices are unchanged. Other fruits to check are grapes, film-bagged apples and pineapples.

Salts Can Cause Plant Damage

Injury to plants from soluble mineral and fertilizer salts is a problem shared by home gardeners and nurserymen, according to Dr. Charles W. Dunham, associate professor of horticulture at the University of Delaware. He told nurserymen attending the recent Delaware Nurserymen's Short Course at the University that all normal soils contain salts of many kinds.

Normally the salts are continually leached away by rain so that a buildup never occurs. But whenever fertilizer is added to a soil, the salt content goes up in direct proportion to the fertilizer solubility and the amount added. The higher the salt content, the more difficult for plant roots to absorb water.

Therefore, salt injury is similar to injuries resulting from a sudden drought or water deficiency. The plants are stunted, leaves turn yellow and the leaves, stems and fruits are reduced in size. More severe symptoms produce leaf burn on the young leaves and drop of the older leaves, Dr. Dunham points out.

The extent of the plant injury from a fertilizer application is determined by the interaction of a large number of factors. These include the kind of fertilizer, the kind and size of plants, the placement of the fertilizer, the soil, the amount of moisture in the soil at the time of application and the amount of rainfall after the fertilization.

Water in the soil dilutes the salt content and reduces the likelihood of salt injury. Since sandy soils hold less water than fine-textured soils, plants growing in sandy soils are more easily injured.

Although March and April are the best times to apply fertilizer, too much fertilizer applied in April may help plants grow vigorously through June and then cause salt injury when the soil dries out in July, according to Dr. Dunham. Naturally, fertilizer applied in June is even more likely to cause injury than the same amount applied in April when there is more water in the soil.

Some plants species are far more sensitive to salt injury than others. Azaleas are probably the most sensitive; arbovitae are not quite as sensitive; Japanese holly and euonymus are fairly tolerant; and the Japanese yew is quite tolerant. Home gardeners should use organic fertilizers in early April on azaleas, Dr. Dunham recommended.

He also recommended applying the fertilizer as evenly and accurately as possible, as early as possible taking the type of soil into consideration to avoid salt injury on any type of plant.

U. of D. Holstein Sets Production Record

A registered Holstein cow owned by the University of Delaware has set a new butter fat production record for Delaware in the official herd testing programs of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

Breaking the previous all-time record is U of D Ty Vic Quebersa 5747158 (GP) with her new record for junior two-year-olds milked two times daily in the 305-day division of the Dairy Herd Improvement Registry program. Her official 305-day lactation totalled 15,540 pounds of milk and 688 pounds of butterfat.

U of D Ty Vic Quebersa was bred in the University of Delaware herd. She was sired by Osborndale Sir Ty Vic Fobes 115-7986 (VG), a bull that has earned a Gold Medal Sire recognition.

This new record was made under the rules of Dairy Herd Improvement Registry—one of two herd testing programs conducted by the Holstein Association. This and the Herd Improvement Registry testing program have a combined enrollment of over 143,600 registered Holstein cows in more than 3,250 herds.

Must Join Delaware National Guard Before 18 1/2 Years

Men without previous military service must apply for enlistment before age 18 1/2 if they want to join the Delaware National Guard after March 10.

Maj. Gen. Joseph J. Scannell, the Adjutant General of Delaware, said the new policy represents a return to the rules in effect from the Korean War through 1957.

Men over 18 1/2 who are on Guard waiting lists by March 10 will be enlisted as vacancies occur. However, applications will not be accepted from men over 18 1/2 after that date.

General Scannell's statement explaining the new policy follows:

"It has been our experience that the younger enlistees are more likely to improve their military education, gain noncommissioned rank and go to Officer Candidate School than the man who waits until he has been graduated from college before joining the Delaware National Guard. Furthermore, we find that an early interest in the Guard means continued interest. The men who join at 17 are far more likely to re-enlist and stay with the Guard until their eventual retirement.

"Many of our young men are continuing their regular education in high school or college while members of the Guard, but they are people who understand that if their unit is called, they go with it regardless of the effect on their immediate educational plans. One of Delaware's most famous soldiers, Lt. General Iron Mike O'Daniel, went into the Army when his unit was called when he was a corporal in the Guard and a sophomore at the University of Delaware."

Reese Theatre Souvenir Program Reveals History of Movie Industry

"IN THE BEGINNING"
"Film catalogs" of the '90's disclose that action was the all-important thing in any picture. As long as the actor moved, that was all that was necessary. Trained animals, dancers, contortionists, strong men, and celebrities, including Annie Oakley and Buffalo Bill, furnished the action in many of the early 50-foot "productions."

Edison, the first producer, was reluctant to produce any pictures, holding to the opinion that the first ones should be shown everywhere before new ones were made. But pressure from "exhibitors" who demanded more variety of subjects and more frequent changes, together with the competition of foreign made pictures, finally forced him to go into production in a big way.

The use of involved plots, in fact, the use of scripts, never occurred to the producers.

The first films carried no titles. Vaudeville houses showing films employed announcers.

Discover Wonderful Del.

Restoration-in-progress can be a small wonder to discover. Brandywine Village was a wonder of wonderful Delaware at the time of the Revolution, when Wilmington was still a seaport town, clustered close to the banks of the Christina River. Because of its steep drop to tidewater, the Brandywine early became a river of mills, and there was a concentration of them at Brandywine Village, with two mill races on either side of the river. A visitor of the period counted eight mills within a quarter mile at tidewater below the Great Falls, and marveled at their construction, which made it possible to unload grain directly from the ships into the mill.

Biograph's "Caught in The Act," told of the gay broker who interrupts his dictation to bestow a kiss on his pretty typist. His enraged wife enters, takes her husband by the ear, and causes the stenographer to burst into tears. Finis.

"Weary Willie" put the audience into stitches. A dirty tramp approaches a park bench which is fully occupied by ladies and gentlemen. He squeezes in between the occupants and they all leave. Finis.

Behind the mills on the North bank was the picturesque village of Brandywine, where Quaker mill owners built their gray stone houses above the village high-gables, overlooking the mill races and within hearing of the falls. Between were the mill workers' houses and to the north, a school house, the Brandywine Academy. The Brandywine at the village was described in the early 19th Century by Elizabeth Montgomery: "Here are four races, two on each side of the creek, one far above the other. Early in June it displays all its loveliness. . . the forest trees are dressed in their full verdure. . . the water falling over the dams and sprinkling its sprays around, dashing and foaming through the flood-gates. . . whole schools of young people of every age skipping along the banks. . . fancifully decorating their heads with wild flowers."

Moving picture production is not much over 50 years old. Today there is a capital investment in America's 20 western and 2 eastern studios of over $125,000,000. The 172 active producing companies employ 33,700 people in the various arts. Annual production payrolls are in excess of $139,000,000. The total production cost of all American pictures in 1941 was approximately $215,600,000.

The forerunner of the modern news reel appeared in 1896 when the English Derby at the Downs of Epsom was shown in the Alhambra Theatre, London, 24 hours after the race was run.

John Bunny, who in 1910 was "one of the first stars," Wallace Reid, whose first picture was "Leather Stocking Tales," Lillian "Dimples" Walker, Flora Finch; Maurice Costello; Clara Kimball Young; Helen Gardner; Leah Baird; Edith Storey; Anita Stewart; Antonio Moreno; Wally Van; Harry Moore; Huey Mack and Earle Williams, all of Vitagraph.

Today there are only memories of Elizabeth Montgomery's bucolic scene. Brandywine Village is very much a part of the city of Wilmington. Busy shops, crowded houses, heavy traffic replace rural peace. But there is so much of the past in hiding, and the historical significance of the neighborhood has prompted a group of public-spirited citizens to begin the work of restoring some of the early beauty of Old Brandywine Village.

Trade ads in 1902 described some of the current products as follows: "The Suburbanites," 718 feet; a comic film in seven scenes which depict the experiences of Mr. Cityman and his family in looking for rest and happiness in the suburbs.

A tour is best begun at Old Brandywine Academy, 5 Vandever Avenue, just East of the Market Street intersection where Route 202 comes down the hill from the North. Here restoration is complete, and the visitor will discover a typical old schoolroom atmosphere, with high teacher's desk, recitation benches, dunces, seats, quill pens, slates, even old clothing of the period.

Theda Bara, who made 40 pictures in 3 years, her first picture, "A Fool There Was," released in 1915, making her immediately successful; and William Farnum, both of Fox.

Attention is called to the Special Provisions in the proposals, the specifications and the Contract Agreement. Minimum Wage Rates have been prescribed in the proposals. Labor and Industrial Relations of the State of Delaware and are set forth in the advertised specifications.

Norma and Contance Talmadge of Selznick. Norma came to the screen in 1910, after posing for illustrated song slides. Ethyl Clayton, Harry Meyers, Arthur Johnson and Earle Metcalf of Lubin.

Each proposal must be accompanied by a surety bond or certified check to the amount of at least ten (10) percent of the total amount of the proposal.

Marguerite Snow, Florence La Badie, and Muriel Ostriche of Thanhouser.

Monthly payments will be made for 480 percent of the construction completed each month. Bidders must submit proposals upon completion of the work by the Department for bidding purposes. Proposal forms are numbered 1 through 10 and are not transferable. Unless otherwise provided in the proposals, the joint proposal must be submitted for a joint venture of qualified bidders on a proposal form issued to one of them, provided each venturer has taken out a proposal and provided the proposal is signed by each co-venturer followed by the title "Joint Venturer."

Miriam Nesbitt, Ben Wilson, Charles Ogle, Herbert Prior and Mary Fuller of Imperial.

The envelope containing the proposal must be marked "Proposal for The Construction of State Highway Contract No. _____." The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

Winifred Handworth of Eclair.

Proposed bidders who have been prequalified in accordance with the requirements of the Specifications may obtain contract documents from the Highway Department, State Office Building, Dover, Delaware, at the prices indicated for each contract. Contract proposals may be obtained at a cost of $2.00 per copy. Contract documents need not be returned and no refunds will be made.

Hunger A Challenge To Farmers and Lenders, Bankers Told

Bankers will play an important role in this nation's effort to feed a hungry world. That's the consensus of opinion of a university dean and two agricultural bankers who spoke at a meeting of the Delaware Bankers Association. Appearing at the group's 18th annual agricultural forum at the University of Delaware Thursday (March 3) they pointed out to the millions of people throughout the world who are undernourished and appealed for agricultural policies and banking policies that will permit American farmers to meet this growing demand for agricultural goods.

Dr. Sherwood O. Berg, dean of the University of Minnesota Institute of Agriculture, pointed to the paradox of "an embarrassment of plenty," at home while much of the world goes hungry. Berg noted that any solution to U. S. Agricultural problems must recognize fully the continuing U. S. role in the worldwide effort to overcome the widening gap between population and food supply.

This problem will become greater and greater as many underdeveloped nations find it increasingly difficult to feed themselves. In fact, per capita food output in many countries is continuing to fall, he declared.

Thomas R. Smith, president of the First National Bank of Perry, Iowa, told the Delaware bankers that the vast majority of the world population is born hungry, lives hungry, and will die hungry. He said U. S. food is the single greatest potential source for peace in the world today and in the years ahead.

Smith, whose bank serves a large agricultural client, said that if we are to meet the international challenge that confront us "we must export more and more of our food and increasing amounts of our technology. The stomachs of the world are waiting for our ability and our abundance to solve their unrest and discontent."

Robert F. Rider, director of the Baltimore Trust Company in Bridgeville, said this country will have 10 million more people to serve by 1975. Delaware's location within overnight trucking distance of one-third of the nation's population will mean a growing demand for Delaware farm products.

Berg believes that food production efforts are complicated by the staggering population surge that will push numbers up 150 percent by the year 2,000 in the less developed areas where food supply is already restricted. The population in well-fed areas on the other hand, will increase only 40 percent.

This is the backdrop against which U. S. Agricultural policy must be fashioned. The restriction of production at home must be viewed in light of the millions of people who face nutritionally inadequate diets, Berg said. While U. S. agriculture can help overcome plight, extensive efforts must be undertaken with food-short countries to boost their production.

In predicting the financial needs of tomorrow's farmers, Smith said the demands of more food production, fewer farms, less labor and increasing costs means additional capital will be required for agriculture. "My simple Iowa mind can hardly understand the staggering amount of money involved in food production by 1980." He gave Delaware bankers these rules for financing agriculture in the years ahead.

1. Know each farm operation you are financing intimately. This includes earnings history, family needs and desires, management limitations and technological requirements.
2. Have a plan for each operation. Know the differences between term money and seasonal money and lend accordingly.
3. Get your house in order to play big league farm lending.

Explaining the changing credit needs of Delaware farmers, Rider singled out labor as the biggest factor influencing farm management decisions today. He said the only salvation will be for growers to increase their investment in labor saving machinery and for researchers to develop mechanical harvesters for those crops that are now hand-picked. "Grain farmers will need more four-row picker-shellers, six and eight row planters and $10,000 tractors. Broiler growers will build more multi-story houses, holding up to 100,000 birds per house, with automatic equipment that can be handled by one person. Vegetable growers will use mechanical harvesters for such crops as tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers and crops now picked by hand."

Rider said farmers will no longer be able to finance machinery out of current earnings. They will look to lending agencies to meet this need. He also said farmers will need long term credit to buy land needed to take advantage of labor saving equipment. They will need to "tailor" their land to use this larger machinery. This will mean filing ditches, straightening and eliminating short rows and removing fences around small fields.

As farm sizes increase, Rider said there will be a corresponding increase in the need for operating capital. Farmers who have been able to finance a hundred acres of corn or fifty acres of soybeans will not have the working capital to finance a thousand acres or more.

1. An individual farmer harvesting 10,000 bushels of corn in a day.
2. A 300,000 bushel grain drying and storage unit owned by farmers.
3. An irrigation system that is self-propelled and is operated 24 hours a day.
4. A broiler house an eighth of a mile long and three stories high that holds 108,000 birds.

Food Processing Changes Nation's Eating Habits

Food scientists are continually developing new methods of preserving and packaging foods, according to Dr. Horace Sipple, executive secretary of the Nutrition Foundation, Inc.

Speaking at a recent Farm and Home Week program at the University of Delaware, he said the "Flash 18" canning process marks a significant improvement in preservation techniques. This process applies heat directly through steam injection and permits very rapid heat penetration. By greatly reducing the heating period, the "flash" process preserves nutritive value, color and flavor of most foods better than conventional canning methods. Using this process, rice can be canned with firm grains; macaroni and cheese, and delicate meat sauces retain their texture and flavor.

A new rapid freezing process which uses liquid nitrogen is being utilized for freezing tomatoes; it may also improve the quality of other frozen foods and vegetables. Freezing is so rapid that ice crystals are very small, the firm texture of the tomato is maintained and the natural taste and high nutritional value are preserved.

A recent development in food packaging may be as important as the development of transparent polyethylene packaging a few years ago, Dr. Sipple said. Coating food items with a starch-based, water-soluble film which is edible keeps food fresh for a long time because it protects from exposure to the oxygen in the air. For example, this film adds at least 12 months' shelf storage life to shelled nuts.

The new process applies a hot, thick liquid film to food; the film forms a smooth, uniform, skin-tight covering as it cools. The coating covers all surfaces of irregularly shaped products, such as sliced luncheon meats, bacon, cheese, butter, frozen steaks, chicken pieces or even whole turkeys. It could be used to overwrap packages of crackers, candy and chewing gum or frozen products packaged in foil pans.

The new sources of food scientists are developing are equally as important as new packaging and preserving processes, Dr. Sipple points out. Food technologists have known how to extract edible proteins from soybeans, peanuts and milk for about a decade. "These protein products are generally used as nutritional supplements or to furnish desirable physical characteristics to another food item."

Lately the isolated protein from soybeans has been processed into a form of fiber which can be combined with a gelatin to make foods remarkably similar to meat. "The food manufacturer adds color and flavor and comes up with a product that looks like, tastes like, smells like and chews like any meat he chooses to imitate." Preliminary evidence indicates that spun protein products provide a good quality protein.

A dramatic possibility is the development of entirely new foods, not resembling any of the naturally produced food now known, Dr. Sipple revealed. A technique has been developed in England to extract protein from plants, such as grasses, sugar beet tops and other green leaves. "It seems food technology can substitute an efficient mechanical process to change green plants to protein without raising animals to do it for us. The process is of little practical significance now, but future world conditions may make it valuable indeed."

Soils' Use Of Water As Important As Rainfall

It's not the rainfall; it's how much gets into the soil that counts. Dr. William Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware, demonstrated water movement through the soil to the farmers attending the University's recent soil fertility short course.

He used a wooden box with a glass front packed with soil. As he added water, everyone could see for himself how water spreads through soil under different conditions. "Using the box, it is easy to see that when water moves through a dry soil and hits a sand or gravel layer, it does not go into or move quickly through the layer." The water spreads along the layer instead of through it. Because the spaces between the soil particles are smaller than in the sand, the water is pulled more strongly. When the soil becomes saturated, the additional water then moves into and through the coarser sand. It works the same way in the field, Dr. Mitchell said.

If there is sand or gravel beneath the clay, the clay will stay wet longer than any other part of the soil, including the sand beneath it. Since the clay is finer textured, the water moves into the clay layer first. However, the water cannot move through the clay rapidly. The water will move sideways through the clay. Thus, to absorb rainfall rapidly, to reduce erosion and to store more water, clay soils must be kept in good tilth, Dr. Mitchell pointed out.

Some farmers have sandy soils with clay underneath at different levels. These soils have more available water than sandy soils without the clay because the excess rainfall will be trapped above the clay. Plant roots can get water from the moist clay layer.

As Dr. Mitchell demonstrated, when water moves through soil and reaches a layer of coarse plant materials such as straw, cornstalks, mature grass or legumes, the water acts as if the layer were sand. The water will not flow into the coarse materials until the soil is completely saturated. However, if the coarse plant material is mixed through the plow layer, water will flow freely through it, Dr. Mitchell stated. "Air spaces are important in clay soils; coarse plant material can help form such spaces, but they must be thoroughly mixed into the soil.

Managing soil to make the best use of rainfall always pays off. Sometimes it may make the difference between profit and loss, Dr. Mitchell states.

4-H Club Notes

With Marion McDonald
Cows, chicks, pigs, and dogs are in Kent County's plans for this week. Dairy members will hold their second training program on Monday, March 14.

Feeder pig program entries are due in the 4-H Club office by Monday, the 14th.

Junior broiler members will gather at the Harrington High School, vocational agriculture room, for the first training meeting. Ray Lloyd, poultry specialist, will work with members on information relating to the housing, feed and management. Nineteen Kent County 4-H'ers are enrolled in this eight-week project. Chicks will be distributed on March 21 and 22nd.

4-H'ers enrolled in dog care will have their second project meeting at the Magnolia School. Mrs. Chester Benson reports there will be several demonstrations by dog handlers. This will be held March 16 at 7:30 p.m.

Parents were honored at the Kent Light Horse annual dinner.

The club presented plaques to Mr. and Mrs. Bob Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Murabito, Mr. and Mrs. Don McClary, and Bob Carter for their support and assistance during the past year. A ten-year member, Bob Burge, received his membership pin. And, special note should be made of the entertainment of the Carters, Yvonne and Ron, and Eleanor Hertz.

Kent County 4-H leaders deserve a late winter bouquet. These leaders numbering some eighty devote hours of voluntary time to 4-H. The list of things they do could cover pages—such as the planning of meetings, attending training meetings, providing transportation, assisting individuals and groups with projects, telephoning and on it goes. No request is too big for our leaders and we're thankful we have so many that believe in Kent Light Horse annual dinner, youth.

Cain Gets Best Wrestler Trophy, As Lions Win Henlopen Mat Title

Harrington High's Bill Muehlen-coached wrestling Lions crowned five individual champions in the twelve weight classes to win the Henlopen Conference Championship for the first time.

The afternoon-evening competition was held in the Harrington High fieldhouse on Saturday before an enthusiastic, vociferous crowd.

Jim Cain, the 133 pound titlist from H.H.S., won a beautiful trophy for being chosen as the outstanding gripster in the mat extravaganza.

The Lions had beaten each team entered in dual meet competition but were expected to finish behind Delmar because the Wildcats with top seeds in five weight classes were rated as better in tournament competition than the Lions, who had four top seeds. Another factor against the locals was the recent loss of three or four matmen because of injury or illness.

The Lions trailed Delmar by six points after the first round competition. After the consolation round, in which two losers in each class wrestle for third place, H.H.S. had gone into the lead with 79 points to 74 for Delmar, 72 for Dover Air and 26 for Millsboro.

In the championship round the No. 1 seeded wrestlers in all classes were still in action. Delmar had eight grapplers left while H.H.S. had seven. The Wildcats had finalists in the last five events. The Lions strength was in the lighter divisions with only Ed Wheatley, heavyweight top seed, in the heavier weights. Coach Muehlen's strategy involved building a lead and hoping that Dover Air and Millsboro grapplers in the finals would be skilled enough to help the Lions keep the Wildcats in check.

This is precisely what happened. Steve Welch gave H.H.S. a shot in the arm when he upset Delmar's favored Dennis Collins at 127 pounds. After Collins defeated Welch handily at Delmar earlier in the season, Mike Welch, Steve's big brother stated "Steve will beat Collins in the Conference championships". Mike's prophecy came true.

Harrington's lead had grown to 92-74 after seven final bouts. Delmar's point total reached 85 with ten classes settled and two to go. The Sussex Countians had to have a win by fall and another victory by decision to tie Harrington. To retain their championship they needed two triumphs by pins. Mike Wood of Dover Air upset John Seefried of Delmar at 180 pounds to give the Lions the league title.

In an anti-climax, Ed Wheatley pinned Bill Davis of Delmar to make the final totals H.H.S. 96, Delmar 85, Dover Air 79 and Millsboro 32.

Every Harrington wrestler of the twelve competing did as well as expected or better. Steve Welch, Dan Adams and Ed Wheatley scored more points for the Blue and Gold than pre-tournament prognostications would indicate.

As previously mentioned Welch upset the muscular, speedy Collins when he discovered a chink in his rival's armor. Collins was vulnerable to one type of leg takedown. Steve discovered this weakness and used it several times as he nipped Dennis 3-2 in perhaps his best performance ever. Only a sophomore, Welch has a chance to amount to something in wrestling.

Dan Adams had to get by Millsboro's Preston Rogers at 112 pounds to get into the finals and thus qualify for the state meet Friday and Saturday. Rogers is experienced, strong and capable. He has met some fine grapplers over the past three or four years. Adams saw an opening in Round 2 and caught Rogers in a pinning combination. The Blue Devil struggled mightily to get loose but Adams won by a fall in 3:31. The startling upset enabled Adams to get second in the meet instead of third, as seeded.

Wheatley decided Porter of Delmar, the Wildcats No. 2 heavy weight, in a dual meet at Delmar. Therefore, it was expected that Big Ed could hope for only a decision victory, at best, against their No. 1 boy, Bill Davis. But the Lion defanged the Wildcat after 3 minutes and 16 seconds.

Other Lion champions not previously mentioned are Mike Adams, a freshman, who pinned Stayton Hastings of Delmar again to prevail at 95 pounds and Bill Harcum, "The Toy Bulldog", Harcum almost pinned Jim Walmsley of Dover Air in a battle of very strong 138 pounders before winning 10-0.

Jim Cain fell behind 2-0 in each of his matches. In the afternoon against Ken Moore, of Delmar, he waltzed to an easy 12-2 victory. But Dave Hogue of Dover Air in the evening used his two point lead to force Cain to pull out all the stops to get a close 6-4 victory. By coincidence, the lad expected to be Cain's chief challenger for the state title is another Hogue, of St. Andrews and an unbeaten grappler.

Probably the most exciting bout of the evening was the 180 pound clash between Mike Wood of Dover Air and John Seefried of Delmar. Delmar still had a chance to grab all the marbles. They needed a pin from Seefried, who was good enough last year to win the Henlopen heavyweight championship at a body weight of only 170 pounds. Seefried is a rugged competitor. He pinned Wood earlier this year. He often wins in this manner. In matches against some of Delaware's best 180 pounders and heavyweights, we have never heard of him getting pinned. The underdog, Wood, supported by all the Harrington and Dover Air fans and probably most of those from Millsboro fought hard and was still battling, though behind on points, well into the third and final round. Suddenly, lightning struck, Wood had Seefried on his back. If he could hold him there long enough for a near fall, worth three points, Wood would win by decision. The Wildcat fought to get out but the inspired Falcon not content to win on points wouldn't budge. The referee slapped the mat at 5:56 signaling a pin with only four seconds to go. Pandemonium and bedlam reigned. Not only that it was pretty noisy, too. Wood catapulted through the air toward his coach and teammates, who plucked the burly Falcon out of the air like a chicken and rode him around in a hero's ride. Tears streamed down the winner's face as he savored one of life's great triumphs. H.H.S. fans were almost as happy, as Wood's feat sewed up the Lion's first loop title, thus removing the chance for Delmar to win on a fluke, an illegal hold or an accidental injury in the unlimited match.

Valuable points were registered for Harrington in the consolation round by some Lions, who lost in the afternoon.

Allan Jerred (145) pinned Jim Froggatt of Dover Air in 3:53. Dave Hurd (154) had to default to Howard Smith of Dover Air in an overtime session when Hurd injured a leg. Dave limped back on the mat that evening and nearly flattened John Tingle of Millsboro before winning 9-4. Bill Webb (165) pinned Dean Smith of Millsboro in 3:30 after suffering a cut ear in an afternoon bout.

Bob Donovan (180) and Chuck Hurd (103) automatically advanced to third place at those weights since Millsboro was not represented there. Hurd actually weighs 85 pounds and wrestled Jeff Schneider of Dover Air, who was allowed to weigh 106 or 107. Many youngsters would have offered only token opposition faced with such a disparity in weights but the 13-year-old 8th grader got in there with Schneider and tried to lick 'im. Instead of a quick pin by the Falcon the final score was only 6-0. Our score card showed Schneider 6, Hurd 2. Chuck vied at 103 because Bill Garey, the No. 1 grappler at that weight and Terry Donovan the No. 2 were sidelined. His contribution of the third place points aided the Lions cause. With four years of grappling ahead Chuck Hurd may some day rank with Lion greats like 1965 state champion Louis Starkey, 1964 runnerup George Bonniwell and Jim Cain.

A crowd-pleasing exhibition match featured the athletic debuts of fleawights Dave Glazier, 53 pounds and Ricky Mertz 47 pounds. The kindergarten pupils, decked out in wrestling tights, grappled for two, two-minute rounds with plenty of rest in between as decreed by veteran referee, Bill Laurelli. At the cessation of hostilities, Laurelli tucked a tyke under each arm and carried them off the mat signifying a draw.

Glazier is the son of Frank Glazier, Lion football coach. Mertz is the son of Fred Mertz, local insurance man, who was an all-around athlete at Lehighton, Pa. High School. At one point in the evenly-contested exhibition Glazier was on top when the older Mertz was heard to say "Get up Ricky and I'll buy you an ice cream cone". Ricky got up.

Laurelli was an all-time grappling great at the University of Delaware and later performed for several years for the Wilmington YMAA team. Now a coach at Tower Hill School he is probably as responsible as anyone for the tremendous advances made in wrestling in Delaware over the

The report says the number of telephones in Delaware rose by a record 16,068 to a new high of 201,080. The greatest increase was in the number of residence telephones, 12,241, to 203,414.

The number of households with service rose to 87.4 per cent. Of these, 55.1 per cent had more than one telephone—the highest in any Bell System Company.

The year also saw the daily average of calls reach 1,125,000, higher by 11,000 than the 1964 average.

FELTON DOWNS GREENWOOD, 62-56

What had to be one of Felton's best performances, in a season of good showings, took place at Greenwood Friday night.

The Green Devils had one of their key performers, Will Dill, on the bench with a leg injury and lost another starter, Bob French, early in the contest with another leg ailment before he could score a point.

Nevertheless, the hustlers hastened out to a 20-9 lead in the first period and when Greenwood threatened by coming within range at 47-44 after three frames, Felton took charge again to outscore the home team 15-12 and win 62-56.

Glenn Smith, last year's No. 1 Lion in scoring, had just over 290 points.

Sam Knox finished his career around the 260 mark Smith, Greenhaugh and Knox are three of the most prolific scorers in H.H.S. cage history.

out of reach in a cool, dry place that can be locked. To avoid accidental poisoning, never store near foods or medicines, Boys advises.

Avoid freezing pesticides. Frozen pesticides, particularly liquids, may separate into their various ingredients, reducing or destroying effectiveness.

Keep all pesticides in their original, properly-labeled containers. Return any unused pesticide to its original container; do not keep it in the spraying equipment. Without the label there is no way to be absolutely certain of the product being used or to check the directions and precautions, Boys warns.

Check everything printed that comes with a pesticide. It is important to read the entire label. The label is carefully reviewed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture specialists to make sure the information is truthful and not misleading, the directions for use are adequate and the hazards involved are prominently pointed out.

The disposal of empty pesticide containers presents a problem since even the slightest trace of certain chemicals can be hazardous in the wrong place. Paper bags or boxes can be burned, but be careful to stay out of the smoke. Before dumping, break glass bottles and crush metal cans to prevent re-use or collection of water in the container. Do not, under any circumstances, throw used containers in the water.

Practicing these common-sense precautions will pay off in freedom from accidents and in better pest control for your money, Boys explains.
