

TWO LOCAL DEMOCRATS SEEK RECORDER'S POST

With nearly a month left in the filing period, Kent County Democrats face a second apparent primary fight for a county office. The office is recorder of deeds, for which both Harry S. Hanson of Vernon and Mrs. Blanche B. Cahall of Harrington have filed.

Hanson, a former county comptroller, and Mrs. Cahall, vice chairman of the Kent County Democratic committee, said they are in the race to stay. Each claimed support of the party organization. Mrs. Cahall is assistant secretary of the Kent County Department of Elections.

The incumbent recorder, Roy J. Honey, is retiring. The other apparent primary fight is for the Levy Court nomination in the 25th Representative District, where Ernest F. Council Jr. and Arthur C. Dickerson have filed.

The incumbent, L. Winfred Hughes of Hartly, is keeping mum about his plans after saying earlier that he would run.

Other Democratic filings produced a new face as a Levy Court candidate. John A. Hartnett III Monday announced his candidacy for the seat from the 26th Representative District.

This is a new seat, created by the expansion of Kent County Levy Court from three to five seats, one for each county representative district.

Hartnett, 30, is employed with his family's firm, M. A. Hartnett, Inc. He is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame and is an Air Force veteran.

Although Hartnett has not been active in politics, his family has long been prominent in Democratic circles. He is a first cousin of Maurice A. Hartnett III, director of the Legislative Reference Bureau.

The only Levy Court spot with no announced candidate is the 27th District, where incumbent James B. Messick steadfastly refuses to disclose his plans.

Two incumbent state representatives also have filed for reelection as expected. Neither is expected to have primary opposition.

They are Reps. Jacob W. Zimmerman of Dover in the 26th District and H. Dawson Shulties, of Willow Grove, House majority whip, in the 28th District.

Of the county's legislators, only Sen. James D. McGinnis, of Dover and Rep. Glenn W. Busker of Smyrna, have not announced their intentions. Both are Democrats.

John W. Pearson, a Hartly Democrat, has filed for the house seat held by Busker.

Latex Buys N. Y. Company

The International Latex Corporation at Dover Tuesday announced acquisition of the Tek-Hughes Division of the Johnson & Johnson Co.

The Watervliet, N. Y., factory employs about 550 persons and is a leading manufacturer of tooth brushes, hair brushes, combs and specialty molded products. The firm calls Tek the leading toothbrush brand in the United States.

Robert T. Grohman, Latex vice president of operations, said Walter L. Robertson, vice president of manufacturing, will be responsible for the Tek-Hughes plant operations in addition to his present responsibilities.

In announcing the acquisition, Dover officials said Tek-Hughes will become a part of the Consumer Products Division of International Latex. The division is the leader in manufacturing and sales of ladies' foundation garments, household gloves and infants wear products throughout the world. It also produces swim caps, drugs and associated products.

Moose Home Reports Theft

Elsewhere on the liquor scene, State Police at Bridgeville continued their investigation of a burglary at the Moose home in Harrington, where someone made off with a large amount of whiskey early Saturday morning.

Dumped House Slows Traffic

A house slid off a trailer and impeded traffic on Delaware 14 between Harrington and Housaton a couple days this week.

The accident took place late Monday afternoon, limiting traffic to a single lane. The road was not fully cleared until Wednesday.

Commendation Medal

Technical Sergeant Samuel D. Wheeler, son of Mrs. Edward Marvel, of Star Route, Camden, has been awarded the U. S. Air Force Commendation Medal at Pease Air Force Base, New Hampshire.

Sergeant Wheeler received the medal for meritorious service as a maintenance supply supervisor at Pease. He was cited for his outstanding professional skill, knowledge and leadership.

He is a member of the Strategic Air Command and has served in England, Turkey and Libya during his Air Force career.

The Sergeant is married to the former Audrey C. Nash, of Banstead, Surrey, England and has one child. Their present residence is 20 Morningside Drive, Dover, New Hampshire. The Sergeant is a graduate of Caesar Rodney High School, class of 1951.

Sergeant Wheeler is the brother of LeRoy Wheeler, of here.

117 Drivers Get Licenses Revoked

About one-third of the revocation of motor vehicle operator's licenses issued during June went to motorists in Kent and Sussex Counties, according to a report of the Revocation Sec. of the Motor Vehicle Dept.

A total of 117 revocations were issued during June, with 15 going to Kent County motorists and 25 to motorists from Sussex County. The period of revocation was extended for 12 motorists, two in Kent and four in Sussex, for driving during the period of revocation.

Conviction for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor caused 110 suspensions for 100 males and ten females. Failure to stop at the command of a police officer caused five revocations, while leaving the scene of a personal injury accident accounted for two.

Motorists from Kent and Sussex Counties whose licenses were revoked with the date of action, include: Ruth B. Beale, Seaford, June 8; John W. Bennett, RD 1, Lincoln, 2nd Conv., May 25; Charles J. Benson, RD 2, Bridgeville, 3rd Conv., April 9.

Francis C. Bradley, RD 3, Millford, May 29; Thomas E. Brown, RD 2, Harrington, April 8; Frances W. Brumley, Laurel, June 7; Harry J. Burton, Millsboro, June 18; Lynnwood N. Corbin, 56 Greenhill Ave., Dover, 2nd Conv., May 22; Mike Grisco, RD 2, Bridgeville, June 10.

John Gaydos, RD 2, Frankford, 2nd Conv., June 18, Ann C. Godwin, RD 3, Georgetown, May 29; Latney Green, Smyrna, 2nd Conv., June 13; Robert B. Hills, Laurel, 3rd Conv., May 1; Frank G. Holson, Rehoboth, June 3; Richard D. Howard, RD 2, Selbyville, April 22; William A. Jordan, 443 S. New St., Dover, 2nd Conv., April 17.

Dewarner Lee, RD 1, Smyrna, May 22; Kenneth C. Lehman, Lewes, June 8; John E. Manlove, Camden, 2nd Conv., May 15; Brooks H. Mason, Bethel, May 8; Frederick L. Minner, Felton, May 29; James M. McBroom RD 1, Ellendale, 2nd Conv., May 29; Fletcher McDonald, MR 10, Dover, June 4; Miguel A. Pagan, Milton, May 28.

Senate Passes Boggs' Bill Authorizing Water Study

Sen. J. Caleb Boggs' bill authorizing a five-year water study of the Delmarva Peninsula passed the United States Senate this week.

The bill is cosponsored by Sen. John J. Williams (R-Del.) and Senators Daniel B. Brewster and Joseph D. Tydings (D-Md.)

"The Delmarva Peninsula depends largely on underground water resources," Sen. Boggs said "and the expected future growth and progress of this area makes it urgent to know where water is and how it can best be used."

Boggs' bill authorizes $500,000 for the five-year project. The bill

State Fair To Feature 2 Shows

The Delaware State Fair, for the first time since its inception, will offer two grandstand shows each of its final two nights.

General manager George C. Simpson Tuesday said the July 29 bill will feature Gary Lewis and the Playboys, and on the final night, July 30, singer Brenda Lee will appear. Simpson said the shows will begin at 7:30 and 9 p.m. both nights.

"Last year we experimented with a double program on the final Saturday night," Simpson said, noting that both shows were almost sellouts.

"This year we feel that our star attractions on both Friday and Saturday nights are popular enough to support two performances."

Simpson said that greatly increased attendance at the fair in recent years has made the 4,000-seat grandstand inadequate for on stage show.

"We had to either increase the size of the grandstand," he said, "or present double shows, and the latter seemed to be the better solution."

"But if our attendance continues to increase," Simpson added "we may still have to build a larger grandstand."

Simpson also said that this year's entertainment program will include a Sunday night show, July 24, for the first time in many years.

He said it will feature the Fralinger Mimmers String Band in a concert and exhibition beginning at 8 p.m. Simpson said there would be no charge for the grandstand for the show.

The fair opens Saturday, July 23 and continues through July 30.

Sussex Takes Constable's Badge

Sussex County Levy Court Tuesday lifted the badge of a special constable following two recent incidents with state police.

Commissioners heard charges from Capt. Robert Leonard, commander of Troop 5, Bridgeville, against Melvin Days of Staytonville, listened to Days' reply, and then decided the constable does not have sufficient knowledge of the law to be a constable. Levy Court asked the constable to turn in his badge and identification card, which he promptly did.

The first incident occurred July 3, when Days allegedly stopped a car operated by a New Hampshire couple headed south on U.S. 13. The county officer allegedly used profane language in asking about the New Hampshire driver's driving habits.

Days said Tuesday he was being tailgated and pulled the car over to ask why the man was driving that way. Troopers later arrested the constable for not allowing the New Hampshire man to pass. Days was convicted in Magistrate's Court, and paid a $10 fine.

Last Saturday, troopers charged Days with possession of liquor stolen from the Moose Home in Harrington. Days told the commissioners two men approached him, asking (Continued on Page 8)

Farrow Files For Sheriff

Harry G. Farrow Sr., filed for sheriff of Kent County Monday on the Republican ticket.

A retired railroad conductor, he has been active in politics a number of years.

The only apparent opposition Farrow will have will come from Leon Donovan, former state senator and former representative, who has filed for the Democratic nomination.

Senate Passes Boggs' Bill Authorizing Water Study

now goes to the House of Representatives.

In separate action, and at Boggs' urging, the Senate earlier earmarked $50,000 in the 1957 Interior Department appropriations bill for a Delmarva water study. This money is to be matched by the three states concerned—Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

STUBBLE FIRE PUT OUT

Firemen extinguished a stubble fire on the old VonGoerres farm, tilled by Wilbur Bradley, on the Harrington-Farmington back road Wednesday afternoon.

JACK APTT, who scored 5 1/2 points out of a possible 8 to win Class "C" Division of Chess Tournament in Washington, D. C., July 1st thru 4th. He received a trophy and a $100 check as a prize.

MANN INVITED TO HUMPHREY'S CONFERENCE OF CITY MANAGERS

City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann has received a letter from Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey inviting him to attend a conference for city managers in Washington, D. C., in the afternoon of July 28.

"In continuation of my mission to maintain liaison between national and local levels of government, I plan to confer with city managers from communities of less than 50,000 population," writes the vice president.

Continuing, he writes, "I propose to have top level Federal officials confer with us about administering the gamut of assistance programs. I urge you to

Hohner Is Old Name In Harmonicas

Call them harmonicas or mouth organs, it is all the same. The most prominent brand name has always been "Hohner."

We can see the late George (Butter) Hurd playing "Long, Long Ago," on one as a boy.

This article was inspired by an old Hohner owned by Mrs. Carrington H. Burgess, bearing the following trademark: "M. Hohner, Trademark," with two circles, each with hands extended supporting a smaller circle inscribed "estotlz-aeshk," whatever that means.

It is a cherished possession, and is cared for as an antique, a source of interest, joy, and utility.

Dover Developer To Be Quizzed On Playground Lack

A Newark developer will be asked to appear before the Dover City Council at its next meeting to explain how he intends to develop a playground advertised in his brochure.

The playground proposed in the Mayfair and Crossgates developments was advertised by Frank A. Robino Inc., of the Newark area. A resident of Crossgates, Charles R. Harris, Monday night protested the playground has not been developed even though Crossgates is 85 per cent completed and Mayfair is 65 per cent completed.

Appearing before the council Monday night, Harris asked who is responsible for development of the playground and how residents can get action on its development.

According to a city ordinance, the city cannot get possession of the land until it is presented to the council by the developer. Council members said such a presentation has never taken place.

"It's not exactly fair," Harris said, "We know the land is available in theory for the playground, but no effort has been made to develop it. It's just sitting there idle, run over with weeds and mounds of top soil."

Harris said the park is needed because neighborhood children play in the streets, "and there is no getting around it, there will be an accident one of these days."

City Engineer Alfred Joseph said the land has not been deeded to the city and Public Works Supt. Jack Woods noted that the two acres of land is being used as a work and storage area by the developer until the housing development is completed.

City Manager G. Preston Ward told the council the situation is (Continued on Page 8)

Busker Plans Fight In Primary

Rep. Glenn W. Busker, of Smyrna, Wednesday said he will "in all probability" wage a primary fight to retain his seat in the House.

Busker discussed his plans after a meeting Tuesday night of the Democratic Committee in his district, the 25th, at which he was not present.

District Chairman Allen J. Cook of Kenton said the man endorsed by the committee for Busker's job, John W. Pearson of Hartly, was at the meeting and added that he had expected Busker to be there too.

"I wasn't invited," Busker said. "I'm getting more burnt up all the time at their secret meetings and their little plans. They don't want me."

"I'm going to keep 'em guessing, but most likely I will go. In all probability I will file."

Both Busker and Levy Court Commissioner L. Winfred Hughes of Hartly have fallen victim to the rotation system of allocating political jobs by locality within each district.

Hughes' position was allotted by the committee to the Smyrna area and the representative nomination was given to the Hartly area.

Pearson was given the backing of the committee for representative several weeks ago, while both Arthur Dickerson and Ernest Council Jr. have filed to succeed Hughes.

Cook said Wednesday that he still hopes a primary can be avoided, but he refused to elaborate on how that could be accomplished.

Treasurer Nod Sought By Lewis

J. Edwin Lewis, a retired Internal Revenue Service aide, Wednesday announced his candidacy for state treasurer.

And unless there is a rebellion at the Democratic State Convention next month, Lewis is expected to get the nomination.

The Democratic State Policy Committee has allocated the treasurer's nomination to Kent County and Lewis already has obtained the support of Kent County Democratic chairman Vernon B. Derrickson and other Democratic leaders in the county.

Mrs. Belle Everett, the incumbent treasurer and a Democrat, has announced she will not be a candidate for re-election.

Lewis is likely to have to run against New Castle County Levy Court Commissioner Joseph E. Dayton of Wilmington in the November 8 election.

Lewis, 62, retired from the Internal Revenue Service last August after 26 years with the agency, first as chief cashier in the Wilmington office and later as head of the collection division in Dover.

Before that, he was a flour and feed dealer, ran an automobile agency and was in the insurance business.

In 1938 he was named chief examiner for the Motor Vehicle Department by Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr., who then was secretary of state and state motor vehicle commissioner.

Lewis comes from a long line of Democratic politicians. His grandfather was a state senator and his father a two-term prothonotary of Kent County.

In announcing his candidacy, Lewis said: "I feel that my past business background and fiscal experience will enable me to bring something worthwhile to (Continued on Page 8)

CITY OPENS BIDS FOR STREET IMPROVEMENTS

Three bids for street improvements, opened by the City Tuesday, indicated the City Council will not be able to make all the improvements on the agenda.

The reason: the municipal aid funds will not be as great as the costs of the projects.

Apparent low bidder was Paul Scotton Construction Company, Dover, with bids as follows: soil-cement base, $55,901.88; select-borrow base, $46,913.98. Other bidders and bids were as follows:

Edgell Construction Company, Dover: soil-cement base, $61,610.50; select borrow, $54,090.50. Seaford Construction Company, soil-cement, $79,984.65; select borrow, $76,099.15.

Bids, which have been turned over to the City's consulting engineers, Edward Richardson Associates, for evaluation, are on the following streets: Wolcott, Third, part of Benjamin, completion of Dixon, and Center Extended.

Bids were broken down also into streets.

The City last year received $36,604 in municipal aid funds from the state. The amount is not expected to differ greatly this year, according to City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann.

Sidewalks are included in the Wolcott and Third Street projects, to be paid by the City which will be reimbursed by the property owner within a year.

The street program may be determined at Tuesday night's meeting of the City Council, providing the engineers have made their report.

Car Kills Man, 73, In Sussex

Will May, 73, of 2d Street, Greenwood, was fatally injured last Friday, when he was struck by a car while walking across U. S. 13 near Greenwood.

State police said May was hit at 2:15 a. m. by a car driven by Leon Hunt, 33, of Hackensack, N. J. Hunt, who was driving south a mile north of Greenwood, told police he did not see the man until it was too late to avoid striking him.

May was pronounced dead on arrival at Naticoke Hospital, Seaford, where he was taken in the Bridgeville ambulance. An autopsy report is being awaited to determine the cause of death.

Dover Buys 205 Trees For $2,000

Dover has purchased $2,000 worth of trees from a Princeton, N. J. nursery after rejecting an offer from a Chesapeake City, Md., man.

Jack R. Woods, superintendent of public works, Monday said the offer made by Robert B. Gibbons in Chesapeake City was not what the city wanted and said an order had been placed with the Princeton nursery for 205 trees of various varieties.

According to Woods, Gibbons offered to sell to the city about 400 Norway Maples, 300 of which were four inches in diameter, for $1 each. The other 100 trees were of lesser size and were 50 cents each.

Woods said the trees in Maryland were planted too close together and were "thin and scraggly."

The city delayed the Princeton purchase until examining Gibbons' trees. Woods said delivery on the trees will be made in the fall for planting then.

Tatman Retires From D.P. & L.

Charles R. Tatman, who will retire Aug. 1 after 15 years with the Delmarva Power & Light Company, was honored by company employees at a dinner party at The Wonder R Wednesday evening.

Tatman, a stock handler, was a former Harrington policeman. He and his wife live on Commerce Street and have a cottage at Big Stone Beach.

He was given an engraved watch, among other gifts, at the dinner.

SCHOOL CUSTODIANS UNDERGO CIVIL DEFENSE TRAINING HERE

Three hundred school custodians will be trained as Civil Defense Fallout Shelter Managers by the University of Delaware during the annual summer custodial school.

Seven instructors arranged for by the University's Extension Division were to train 100 custodians in Harrington on July 11-12 and 200 custodians in Newark on July 13-14. In both locations chief custodians, fireman custodians and general custodians will receive six hours classroom work plus a 24-hour in-shelter practice exercise.

In addition to C.D. training under the direction of Arthur McDaniel of the University's Extension Division the custodians were also receiving instruction this week in regular custodial duties as arranged by Robert Newell, supervisor, trades, industry and teacher training, Department of Public Instruction. Purpose of the Civil Defense Training, said McDaniel, is not only to train shelter managers but also to acquaint school custodians with the various civil defense supplies in their schools and how to use them in case of an emergency. One hundred fifty-seven persons have received shelter management training this year in ten classes held by the University of Delaware. The custodian classes will more than double the number of managers trained. Assisting McDaniel will be Joseph Beda, Albert Jewell Leonard Hampson, Frank Osborn, Emory Dougherty, Ezekiel Cooper and Walter Kabis.

Del. Memorial Bridge Carries More Vehicles

Delaware Memorial Bridge carried 9446 more vehicles in June 1966 than the same month in 1965, General Manager Theodore C. Bright reported this week to the Delaware River and Bay Authority.

While there was only a seven-tenth of one percent rise, total traffic amounted to 1,365,664 vehicles compared to 1,356,218 in June 1965, for one of the span's busiest months.

Traffic for the 12 month period ending June 30, 1966 was 14,662,787 vehicles as compared to 13,775,19 at the end of June, 1965. This is in keeping with the almost five percent increase that has occurred for the past ten years, according to Authority officials.

Revenue in June amounted to $883,465.20 compared to $811,275.00 a year earlier. This was $22,370.20 higher than last year. Total revenue for the 12 month period ending June 30 was set at $8,827,179.85. A full year earlier the amount was $8,328,133.10.

This represents a revenue increase of $499,046.75 or six percent for the period.

Bright reported that since the span opened on August 16, 1951, there have been 148,925,464 crossings.

Dover Learns Of Sewer Fee Goof

An apparent flaw in book-keeping procedures and a legal oversight may be robbing Dover of money due it for extension of water and sewer lines east of town.

Councilman William B. Hayes Monday night said the amount of money involved may be $100,000 to $150,000.

The matter was brought up at Monday night's City Council meeting when it was revealed that residents in Eastover Hills and the Edge Hill area have not been billed for water and sewer mains extended to them in August 1963.

Hayes said the area was annexed in 1962 and the mains (Continued on Page 8)

Few Utility Failures Hit Here

With Delawareans sweltering in the midst of a summer-long hot spell, local utility companies report only minor problems in supplying consumer demands intensified by the heat.

Tuesdays' high was 93 degrees, with more of the same Wednesday. According to U.S. Weather Bureau statistics, temperatures have been running well above the average high of 86 degrees for this period.

The peak temperatures put increased demand on utility companies to meet the need for electricity and water for air conditioning systems, swimming pools and lawn waterings.

A spokesman for Delmarva Power & Light Co. said his firm is not running into any unexpected problems, although overloaded equipment caused five blackouts Tuesday in New Castle County.

If several homeowners on one transformer buy air conditioners, he said the sudden surge of power needed to run the cooling equipment can cause a temporary power failure. This happened Tuesday in Fairfax, Alapocas, Bellefonte, Webster Farms and Christine Manor.

The Fairfax incident involved only five or six houses, the spokesman said, but some of the other incidents involved up to 50 homes. The longest power failure was less than three hours, he said.

He said that, before a transformer goes out, a red light appears on it. If the red light is reported to the company the failure can be averted.

The spokesman said that the peak-load date for electrical usage can occur any time after May 30. Last year's high came on Sept. 22 in the middle of a late-season hot spell while the peak for this summer was registered on June 28.

The estimated peak electric usage for a day this year is 713.6 megawatts (a megawatt is equal to 1 million watts) while the power company has an 874-megawatt capacity. "We don't anticipate any problems," the company official said.

While there is no apparent electrical problem here, the Federal Power Commission Tuesday ordered the nation's major electrical utilities to take extra precautions during the current heat wave to prevent power failures.

Acting in the wake of power failures in the Midwest Monday, FPC Chairman Lee C. White, sent telegrams to about 500 major utilities saying he is confident they are aware of the seriousness of the situation and are taking steps to meet all power requirements.

He urged that the utilities intensify their load situations, their protective equipment, the responsiveness of reserves and emergency procedures.

He also urged that during the heat wave close coordination be maintained between interconnected systems in order to make fullest use of available power resources.

The chairman said the utilities should utilize news media to notify the public of any emergency measure required.

DP&L has agreements with nearby power companies to provide for emergency situations caused by major equipment difficulties, the spokesman said.

Two local water suppliers have imposed lawn sprinkling bans except between 7 and 9 p.m. The Wilmington Water Department has levied the restriction on its users in Brandywine Hundred but not in the city while Artesian Water Co., which serves the area south and southwest of Wilmington, has imposed the same restriction on all its customers.

Steven Leech, general superintendent of Artesian, said the public has not complied well with the regulation. He noted that lawn watering was completely banned from June 30 to July 5 because of the lack of compliance.

Leech said the 7-9 p.m. restriction would probably continue until the dry spell is broken.

He said his company does not expect to levy any other restrictions and noted that water usage has dropped from the summer peak during the week of June 26.

No restrictions have been imposed by the affiliate companies of General Water Works Corp., according to Victor W. Faivre, division manager. The affiliation includes Arden Water Co., Delaware Water Corp., New Castle Water Co., and Wilmington Suburban Water Corp.

"Supplies are holding up very well and there is no immediate concern about them, Faivre said. "I don't think there will be a need for restrictions in our system," he added.

Faivre noted that a peak usage for the year of 14.5 million gallons was reached on June 25. He said there has been a slight decrease in demand since then with total consumption for the week of July 4 at 81 million gallons.

Is there any secret to sewing on stretch fabric? This question was overheard in a local shop yesterday and yours truly couldn't resist offering suggestions.

If you have a sewing machine that makes a zig-zag stitch (the small stitch) or a chain stitch these are ideal for stretch fabrics. A textured nylon thread is recommended as it has more elasticity than cotton.

However, don't despair if all you can find is mercerized thread and you have a straight-sew machine. In this case you need to hold the fabric taut in the direction of the stretch as it is stitched. (Think of the way you hold a piece of elastic when you stitch it onto a piece of fabric.) This makes it so the stitches will not break when the wearer bends and causes the seam to stretch.

Small stitches work best for sewing on stretch—about 15 stitches per inch. You may find it works best if you use the smaller stitch in the direction of stretch and a longer one in the non-stretch direction.

Another way to keep seams from breaking during wear is to sew with loose tensions on the sewing machine threads and a light pressure on the presser foot.

Experiment on fabric swatches before sewing the actual garment. Stitch a seam and then pull it. If the thread breaks easily you'll need smaller stitches and looser tension.

Zippers are put in as usual. If the fabric is a light weight, stretch a strip of lightweight press-on, non-woven interfacing can be placed along the seamline—on the front side of the garment on the wrong side of the fabric. This will help you do a smooth job of the zipper.

You will find that buttonholes keep their shape better if they are cut in the opposite direction to the stretch. This may mean they'll be in an up and down direction rather than cross-wise. Here again, try a sample before you put them on the garment.

In seams where you do not want stretch sew seam tape into the seam. Light weight press-on interfacing is helpful in stabilizing small areas such as waistbands, necklines, and buttonholes.

Kent 4-H dairy members participated in a recent tour contest for county winner selection. Top judge came from Millwood 4-H with John Davis accumulating the high score. Close behind John was Craig Eliason, Paradise; Tom Davis, Millwood. Others making up the county team are Cliff Hudson, John Comegys, Edna Dixon, John Webb and Sam Dixon. Alternates are: Rodney Comegys and Christ Webb.

The recent home economics and vegetable judging contests results found Janice Harrison, Westville; Joy Gooden, Fox Hall; Marjorie Hudson, Paradise; scoring for top honors in clothing. Foods judging members were Delores Tingley, Whiteoaks; Susan Comegys, Karen Webb, and Nancy Webb, Westville. Food preservation winners are Susan Comegys, Westville; Donna Shea, Whiteoaks; Debbie Duke, Whiteoaks, and Cindi Hawke, Smyrna Blue Jays.

Vegetable judges scoring highest were John Comegys, Westville; Lee Mesibov, Farmington Peach Blossoms; Ronnie Bramble, Farmington Peach Blossoms, and Phillip Mesibov, Farmington Peach Blossoms. Since our Kent 4-Hers may judge in only one state event all participants will be notified as to their area if they scored in the top group.

A total of ten judges will represent Kent County in each division except Dairy where eight members will judge.

Am receiving inquiries about camp enrollment. The enrollment blanks will be mailed during the last two weeks in July. Parents are reminded to plan on this as fees must accompany enrollments. Kent County will provide bus transportation and urges all campers to travel by bus unless special arrangements are made through the 4-H office.

Farmington Peach Blossoms' recreation leader, Rita Messick, reports an unusual club activity. A frog race was conducted over a 15-foot course. Twelve members found and brought their frogs to the meeting and amidst screams and squeals Mark Williams brought his frog home first. It's this type of different recreation that adds to the joy of being a 4-Her.

Republican Club Postpones Meeting

The meeting of the Lower Kent County Republican Club will not be held on the 16th as planned, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Morgan. Mrs. Morgan is going to undergo surgery on Friday. The meeting will be rescheduled for later.

U. of D. Publication Describes Suburban Growth

Between 1940 and 1960, the population in metropolitan northern Delaware grew twice as fast as the population of the United States as a whole. The growth was concentrated in the suburbs, according to a new bulletin, "Suburban Development in Metropolitan Delaware."

Written by Dr. William Crosswhite, associate professor of agricultural economics at the University of Delaware, and Gerald F. Vaughn, former agricultural economist for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, it explains that Northern New Castle County is a rapidly growing commercial and industrial area. This area also provides a desirable distribution center serving a huge market area.

Industry provides the stable employment base needed for residential development. However, several additional factors influenced the pattern of development around Wilmington access to Wilmington has been easy; transportation and sewer lines aided development, particularly in Brandywine and Mill Creek Hundreds.

However, expanding suburban areas have had many problems, according to Drs. Crosswhite and Vaughn. These areas need to provide adequate public services, such as water, schools, sewage disposal, transportation facilities, and recreational areas. The public is increasingly concerned about poor drainage, inadequate water supplies, congested traffic and increased costs for public services, the authors point out.

All too frequently, the pattern of land use in suburban areas is haphazard, the authors say. Some steps toward area-wide planning have been taken, however. Regional and state planning agencies are organized and increasingly active, according to the publication.

This study documents the tremendous growth of residential development in northern Delaware and illustrates the need for cooperative planning by all agencies. It shows the important relationships existing between soil availability of community service facilities and the location and concentration of urban and suburban growth.

Suburban Development in Northern Delaware was published by the Agricultural Experiment Station and the Cooperative Extension Service at the University of Delaware. Copies are available from the mailing room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark.

Veterans Rush For Training Under GI Bill

The initial rush of veterans applying for Educational Training under the new G. I. Bill brought over 400 applicants to the Wilmington VA Regional Office so far. Since the Educational features of the new law became effective June 1, 1966, applications from Delaware veterans for training in colleges, universities and vocational schools have been accepted at an increasing rate, Leon Fields, manager of the Wilmington VA Regional Office said recently.

Naturally, we are giving priority to applications of those for summer school, but it is not too early for veterans who plan to enter school this fall to file their applications now, Mr. Fields pointed out.

Many veterans and beneficiaries appear in person at the regional office for assistance in completing their applications for training.

The new law does not permit a veteran to take an educational or vocational course for which he is already qualified. Nor does it permit a veteran eligible for training to take a course in bartending, dancing or a personality development course, Mr. Fields said.

These facts were brought out by Mr. Fields, who said quite a few inquiries from veterans have been received at the Wilmington VA Regional Office concerning this type of training.

The VA will not approve an application for any veteran who has already completed a course or an apprenticeship or professional objective, Mr. Fields said.

Flight training alone is not permitted, he pointed out. Flight training will be authorized only when it is part of a complete college or university program leading to a definite degree.

Mr. Fields pointed out that unlike World War II or the Korean G. I. Bill, on-the-job training is not included in this program.

Additional information may be obtained from any VA office.

State Faces Rise In Price of Milk

The price of milk in Delaware is facing general increases of a cent a quart primarily because of a recent increase granted dairy farmers by the federal government.

Effective July 1, the government granted increases of 40 cents per 100 pounds of milk to Delaware dairy farmers. As a result, some dairies in the state already have hiked milk prices by 1 cent a quart and others say they are contemplating similar hikes.

Roland E. Garrison, president of the Delaware Farm Bureau, said there are 46½ quarts of milk per 100 pounds, noting that the increase to farmers is less than a cent a quart.

Gardner H. Glenn, sales manager for Diamond State Dairies, Inc., Kenton, said he expects to raise prices by 1 cent a quart Aug. 1, while noting that the competing dairies in Maryland and Pennsylvania are raising their prices.

Benjamin Hughes, manager of Hi-Grade Sanitary Dairy in Harrington, Tuesday said he will have to keep in line and predicted he will have to raise prices, probably in September.

Hughes, as Glenn, said the hike probably would be a cent a quart.

Sealtest Dairy Products in Wilmington raised the price a cent a quart on July 1, the effective date of the increase to farmers. A spokesman at Sealtest's Philadelphia office said a cost study is now under way, following the government increase.

A spokesman for City Dairy, Inc., a division of Koontz Dairies in Baltimore operating in Wilmington and downstate Delaware, said the Baltimore office is now making a determination on a price hike, but he said he does not know how much it will be nor when it will become effective.

The spokesman said it was his guess that the hike, whatever it might be, would become effective the latter part of this week.

James McLaughlin, manager of Delamare Dairy, Inc., in Wilmington, said he raised the price a cent a quart on July 1.

Glenn, of Diamond State Dairies in Kenton, said one of the reasons for the depleting number of dairy farmers is the restrictions placed upon them by the federal government and the State Board of Health.

Said Vapaa, "There are fewer cows and fewer, but larger, farms, but the number of cows has not increased as the dairy farmers go out of business."

Kent County agricultural agent George K. Vapaa said the increase to farmers was granted to keep them from going out of business.

Vapaa said the supply of milk, not only in Delaware but in the nation as a whole, has been threatened. He said the government moved for the increase to assure a continuing supply of milk.

In the last five or six years, Vapaa said, Delaware has lost about half its dairy farmers. He put the figure at about 500 farmers who have dropped from the ranks to seek employment in industry or other places that would put them in a financially competitive market.

Safety Council Warns Parents About Hazards

The Delaware Safety Council warns parents that summer is the time of the year when children between the ages of 5 and 14 are most prone to accidents.

J. James Ashton, manager of the council, says the most common reason for these play accidents is that those responsible for overseeing the child's play are not on the job.

Ashton makes the following suggestions to help parents protect their children from serious play accidents this summer:

BIKES—As your child learns to ride, help him and watch him until he gains skill and confidence. Most important, teach him the rules of safe bike riding—to ride on the right side of the road and single file; to obey traffic signs; to give proper arm signals when turning and stopping; never ride two on a bike; and not to indulge in horseplay.

PLAY AREAS—Warn your child to stay away from excavations, construction sites, industrial property, waterfront wharves and piers, empty houses, abandoned mines or pits and railroad property.

Small children do not realize the potential hazards of tin cans, broken glass, pieces of pipe or lumber with nails, so rake your yard periodically and keep containers of refuse tightly closed.

When buying a backyard gym set, choose one that has swing seats made of leather or canvas belting. Check the set to be sure it is free of splinters, nails and sharp edges. Set up safety rules—and enforce them.

SUNBURN—A bad sunburn can be dangerous. Children who play too long or too hard in the summer heat may be letting themselves in for a case of sunstroke or heat exhaustion. Caution them and watch them carefully.

Odd Fellows To Picnic Saturday

The annual picnic of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of the State of Delaware together with their families and friends, will be held at Brandywine Springs Park, near Marshalls, Sat., July 16, beginning at noon. All attending will bring their own picnic lunches, and refreshments will be provided. Games and prizes, together with all types of races, for both young and old.

MOTORCYCLE DRIVERS NEED CONTROL

Many of the drivers of motorcycles have been riding "hell bent for election" here, and in other communities, making it bad for those cyclists who have been obeying the law.

One took off down the business district Tuesday afternoon, on Commerce Street, doing at least 50 miles per hour, making more noise than an automobile. "A child or an elderly person wouldn't have stood a chance crossing the street," warned a bystander.

The cyclists have been having a field day on Delaware Avenue, too.

A car owner could be fined for a loud muffler: the cyclists get away with it. We understand the motorcycle's muffler normally does not make too much noise, but that it can be altered to make a racket.

Harrington is not the only community being bothered by these infernal machines. As a 9-year-old victim of a motorcycle accident was buried at Seaford Wednesday, the City of Seaford was planning to implement a new ordinance adopted in connection with the tragedy.

Seaford Councilman Thomas A. Temple, Sr., an outspoken advocate for some time of stricter cycling controls, recalled he had been sounding off about the safety problem of both bicycles and motorcycles as far back as December. Temple admitted it was really the motorized two-wheelers that had him most worried. He lost a close relative as a result of a motorcycle accident some months ago.

"I can't see 10-year-olds getting killed on those damn motorcycles," Temple declared. "I don't profess to be endowed with extrasensory perception, but I knew this was going to happen . . . and you did too."

It's going to happen in Harrington, too, as sure as the night follows the days. As the other communities tighten up, we'll get the cowboys.

Ocean City, Md., is working on the problem. Rehoboth Beach launched an attack on cycles Friday.

The Seaford ordinance will provide for posting of a motorcycle speed limit of 20 miles per hour within Seaford. The Seaford ordinance, furthermore, provides: All operators of motor-propelled bikes within the municipal limits of Seaford must wear appropriate safety equipment such as helmets, goggles, etc. In addition, the vehicle must be equipped with a rear-view mirror and have a headlight turned on both day and night.

Penalty on the first violations of the new ordinance is not less than $25 nor more than $50, and $50 to $100 for the second violations.

TOO MUCH SUN CAN CAUSE SKIN CANCER

Delawareans were warned this week that excessive exposure to rays of the sun can cause skin cancer.

Dr. Oscar N. Stern, president of the Delaware Division, American Cancer Society, issued a statement urging sun bathers to practice moderation in their summer outings. "An estimated 85,000 Americans will develop skin cancer this year, and much of it will be attributable to over-exposure to sunshine," Dr. Stern said.

He added that the American Cancer Society is currently focusing attention upon skin cancer, which is mostly preventable and highly curable, as a part of a nationwide program to raise the cure rates for various common sites of the disease.

A new movie, "Sense in the Sun", is available for showings to clubs and other organizations, Dr. Stern said. The film has been produced by the American Cancer Society as "a weapon in this campaign to help raise the public index of consciousness," the Wilmington physician said. The goal is to push the 95 per cent cure rate for all skin cancer closer to the 100 per cent mark.

The new film tells of a fisherman who wonders about a skin lesion on his cheek and does something about it by visiting his doctor. Scenes of farm workers and others working under the sun are used to further the point that "the principal cause of skin cancer is excessive exposure to the sun over the years."

Dr. Stern urged interested club members to arrange for film showings at their organizations by writing to the American Cancer Society, 1925 Lovering Avenue, or by telephoning the office at Olympia 4-6267.

Savings Fund Buys Frank Schoonover Art

"The Lincoln Set," a group of original oil paintings and illustrations by Frank E. Schoonover, has been purchased by the Wilmington Savings Fund Society, for an undisclosed price. Schoonover, recognized as the "dean of Delaware artists," made the formal presentation at Wednesday morning at the main office of the bank, 9th and Market Sts.

The artist-illustrator, who will be 89 on Aug. 19, continues to teach and paint at his studio at 1616 N. Rodney St., Wilmington. Included in the set of nine oil paintings and a charcoal drawing are illustrations for Lucy Foster Madison's "Lincoln," done in 1928. They won acclaim at the Book Illustrators Exhibit of the American Institute of Graphic Arts.

The collection also includes paintings for the frontpiece and cover of "The Toy Shop" by Margarita Spalding Gerry in 1908.

Purchase of the Schoonover works was authorized by the Wilmington Savings Fund Society art committee, headed by Robert G. Hackett. The paintings, depicting the character and life of Abraham Lincoln, were selected from the artist's studio with his help.

Serving with Hackett on the bank's art committee are Mrs.

Philip G. Rhoads, W. Murray Metten and David L. Burton. The collection will be on exhibit at the downtown bank until July 25, after which it will tour the five branch offices in Wilmington, Dover and Newark. In October it returns for permanent exhibit at the 838 Market St. bank.

The dates for branch exhibits are: July 27-Aug. 8, Fairfax; Aug. 10-22, non Street; Aug. 24-Sept. 6, Prices Corner; Sept. 7-19, Newark; and Sept. 21 to Oct. 3, Dover.

Schoonover, regarded as one of the major illustrator-artists of the early 20th Century, is a product of the Howard Pyle school of realism as were the late N. C. Wyeth, Gayle Hoskins, Harvey Dunn and Stanely Arthurs.

All were friends and contemporaries of Schoonover, Delaware's lone survivor of "the golden age of illustrators."

Schoonover's "Lincoln Set" joins N. C. Wyeth's "The Apotheosis of the Family," one of the largest murals in the United States which graces the entire south wall of the Wilmington Savings Fund's downtown bank. N. C. Wyeth was the father of Chadd Ford's celebrated artist Andrew Wyeth.

Dover Planes Aid GIs Delayed By Airline Strike

The Dover Air Force Base had made about 30 Operation Combat Leave flights to aid military personnel stranded by the nationwide strike of five major airlines, it was disclosed this week.

Lt. Col. Henry P. Lawrence, base project officer, said any serviceman who needs transportation to the West Coast to return to duty there or overseas, need only call the air base. Air transportation will be provided from Dover, Colonel Lawrence said.

The service will be provided for the duration of the strike by the airline machinists, and will be conducted by the 436th Air Group of the Military Air Transportation Service.

Maguire Air Force Base in New Jersey began military shuttle flights to help round up servicemen in the East who are headed for the West Coast. Once the men are rounded up from various eastern bases, they will board three daily flights from Maguire to Travis Air Force Base in California.

Two servicemen were given a lift to Delaware over the weekend by Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr., who was returning from the annual National Governor's Conference in Los Angeles.

Terry had his Delaware Air National Guard plane stop over at Fort Bliss, near El Paso, Tex., to see whether any Delaware National Guardsmen on leave needed a ride home.

Neither of the two soldiers who accepted rides was from Delaware, however. One was on leave to his East Coast home and the other was being transferred to Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Meanwhile, non-struck airlines, railroads and bus lines report an upsurge in passenger and freight traffic as the result of the strike.

With Eastern Airlines machinists on strike, Allegheny Airlines is the only company operating commercial flights in and out of Greater Wilmington Airport. A spokesman said its three flights a day have been booked heavily since last Friday.

An agent at Allegheny's central office in Pittsburgh, Pa., said the airline is adding six round-trip, non-stop flights between Pittsburgh and Washington and two between Pittsburgh and New York.

Carl Hettinger, superintendent of mails at the Wilmington Post Office, said that so far, postal employes have been able to get the mail through.

Delaware Farm Labor News

State Summary

Potato harvest to start on a limited basis this week, but will not become wide spread before July 18 primarily because of low market prices being offered. These crews are being employed on a day-haul basis in the harvest of snap beans and cucumbers. The temporary office at the Laurel Auction Block is now open for the registration of interested youth as well as taking orders from employers. The watermelon and cantaloupe harvest is expected to start around July 20.

Wilmington Area

Scattered thundershowers the past week were helpful but not enough to stop irrigation of potatoes and other vegetables. Some growers are planning to start digging potatoes around July 18. Approximately 40 workers are skinning through cucumber patches—picking is light at present. Some sugar corn is being picked for fresh market. The wheat harvest is in process with no known labor shortages.

Dover Area

The potato and tomato crops are looking good because of constant irrigation. Showers last week were not enough to alleviate the dry conditions. Approximately 70 to 80 migrant workers are picking snap beans and another 60 workers are picking cucumbers. Several migrant crews have arrived and are available for work this week. Field corn and soy beans in lower Kent County look very good as this area has had more rain than the northern part of the state. Wheat is being harvested—no known labor shortages in this crop.

Georgetown Area

Growers continue to irrigate because of hot dry weather. Do not expect to start processing tomatoes till end of next week. Picking sweet corn for local road side markets continues. Expect increase end of next week. Puerto Rican contract workers picking cucumbers, apples and peaches. Local and out-of-state workers harvesting snap beans, cucumbers, blueberries and sweet corn. Ample labor in area at present due to weather conditions. Will use additional women when processing of tomatoes starts.

Ordinarily, Hettinger said, Allegheny and Eastern Airlines split the two daily Monday through Friday airmail deliveries out of Wilmington.

"But with Eastern struck, Allegheny is carrying the works." The night airmail delivery, collected at 8:30, is trucked to Philadelphia's International Airport where it is distributed to available planes, he said.

Meanwhile, Wilmington's Pennsylvania Railroad station had a rare flurry of long-distance traveling during the weekend.

"Travel has been abnormally heavy here since Friday and our phones have been ringing all day," a spokesman reported. Additional cars have been added to scheduled trains, but no additional trains have been added, he said.

The Bus Center, 2d and French Sts., reports that both Greyhound and Trailways have added extra buses on their regular routes to take care of the increased demand for service.

All the travel personnel contacted say vacationers apparently are the hardest hit by the midsummer crippling of their plans.

Some delegates to the Southern Regional Attorneys General Conference which opened this week at the Tally-Ho Motor Lodge at Talleyville were delayed en route to Delaware because of the airline tieup.

None, however, canceled his trip, reported Delaware Atty. Gen. David P. Buckson. Some arrived by trains, others took trains part way, then hired cars, took a train to Delaware.

Marshyhope Work Delayed

Construction on the Marshyhope Watershed drainage project, once scheduled to begin July 1, now appears to be at least six months away.

Officials attributed the delay to problems encountered in the acquisition of land for a flood channel through Federalsburg, Md. Condemnation proceedings have been required to obtain some of the necessary land, setting back by several months the first step in the project.

The delay in Maryland will not, however, slow down the Delaware portion of the 100,000-acre drainage project, according to the drainage engineer.

Talbert said Delaware officials are proceeding to organize a tax ditch to provide the local share of the financing, get rights-of-way for drainage ditches and maintenance roads and complete engineering studies.

Construction of the drainage ditches in northwestern Sussex County and southwestern Kent probably will not begin until next spring, Talbert said, because of high water in the swamps in the winter.

The project plans call for completion within 10 years from the beginning of construction.

The Marshyhope project involves the dredging of Marshyhope Creek from northwest of Harrington into Sussex County. Drainage totaling 458 miles in length then will be dug to drain subwatersheds leading into the Marshyhope.

The water thus generated will be carried down the Nanticoke River through Federalsburg. About 9,000 feet of the Nanticoke will be straightened and deepened to handle the extra runoff.

It is this part of the project which has been delayed. When the land acquisition problems cleared up, the next step will be the strengthening of three bridges which cross the proposed flood channel at Federalsburg.

This is expected to require four months, after which the contracts for the actual channel work will be let, according to M. R. Swafford, Maryland state administrative officer for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

The channel work itself, Swafford said, will take about a year.

The benefits from all this, which will begin to be felt within a year or two, of the start of construction will be quicker drainage of farms and woodland in Kent and Sussex Counties in Delaware and Caroline and Queen Anne's Counties in Maryland. Flood danger in Federalsburg also will be lessened.

The multi-million dollar project is financed two-thirds by federal funds and one-third by state and local money.

'Sick Plant Clinic' Set For Field Day

Anyone with a "problem" plant, sick or ailing for an unknown reason, can get an expert opinion on the cause and cure at the University of Delaware's Farm and Home Field Day August 10 at the Georgetown Agricultural Substation.

Field Day visitors can bring plant specimens to a special Sick Plant Clinic, where problems will be diagnosed by specialists in entomology, horticulture, agronomy and plant pathology. A regular feature of Farm and Home Field Day, the clinic attracted many of the more than 1,000 visitors at last year's event.

If possible, clinic visitors should bring whole plants for diagnosis, or a branch of a shrub or tree. If an insect problem is suspected, bring a specimen of the damaged plant, along with the insects found on it. Often it is necessary to examine roots or other parts of the plant to determine the problem and probable cure.

Because this year marks the 25th anniversary of the purchase of the substation farm, Field Day will feature the progress made through agricultural research during these years. The University of Delaware bought the substation farm at public auction in August, 1941, and the first research projects were started the following spring. Since then, many thousands of experiments have been conducted.

In addition to an exhibit depicting the substation's history and agricultural progress through research, there will be exhibits on soil testing, pesticides, air pollution and civil defense.

Bus tours of the more than 80 different research projects on the experimental farm will run throughout the day, beginning at 10 a.m. A program for women, also scheduled to begin at 10 a.m., will feature demonstrations and discussions about new methods of food preservation. An exhibit of antique home canning equipment will also be featured. A strawberry taste test will be conducted in the afternoon, and an outdoor chicken dinner will be served at noon.

Chairman for field day activities is J. Frank Gordy, director of the University substation.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

The rolling country side and fresh water streams adjoining Paradise Pastures are very much like my boyhood surroundings back in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania. And, regardless of Leah Wheeler's enchanting lines; "The Good Old Days gone forever"; they are NOT for:

Mollie and me
And Betty makes three
We're happy in our blue heaven.

Country life has contributed a lot to our good health and good neighbors who, like ourselves, have a lot of fond recollections of those Good-Old-Days.

While discussing some of these with Randall Hill and Winslow Knapp, who grew up in these surroundings, we were forcefully reminded of them by the presence and activities of my little sunburnt barefoot grandson, Tommy Clarke.

BAREFOOT DAYS

I have lots of recollections,
Of a boy I sing in rhymes,
Who waded creeks and meadows,
Back in childhood's summer times.

To feel the creek's sand-bottom,
And watch the minnows shy
As the ripples of the water,
Mirrored clouds up in the sky.

To feel the grass between our toes,
From pastures bathed with dew,
And have your bare legs tickled
By the weeds you waded through.

To see your footprints in the dust,
Along some country lane,
Where crickets vied with katy-dids,
In chirping their refrain.

To scrape your shins on cherry limbs,
As up the tree you climb,
And smear your sun-browned face
With cherry juice like wine.

To scamper home at twilight,
To the tub out in the shed,
And bathe those naked feet again,
Before the supper's spread.

I've hosts of recollections,
That will always be a joy,
But the picture most alluring,
Is a sunburnt bare-foot boy.

THE BLESSINGS OF TIME

By Samuel A. Short, Jr.

I watched a nest of ants one Summer's day,
Digging in the ground for their future home.
Piling grains of sand beside the space in their silent way,
How many hours it took to do the job is still unknown.

I saw the birds on wing in their daily flight,
Going from branch to branch in the tall trees.
Knowing their mission which I knew was right,
I watched them too in the mid-summer's breeze.

There were the bees going from flower to flower,
Gathering their honey for the winter's chill days.
Giving in return their nectar from hour to hour,
Which gave each stem strength in their wearisome ways.

There too were the Grasshoppers chirping their songs,
Not thinking their summer days were nearly at end.
There was nothing to fear, the days were still so long,
No cold, no frost, no future to offend.

My plaintive, moaning voice was hushed and stilled,
As I heard the croaking of the frogs in the nearby pond,
With his eternal peace, my heart was filled,
Pushing time ahead in fulfillment of blessings beyond.

Surely my creator, who installed in me a spark divine,
With the dawn of brotherhood upon the earth,
With confidence I'll find the things that are mine,
Leaving all material uncertainties that prove no worth.

As I watch on others, gone will be their struggle and strife,
To all who will accept his daily plan.
For God has promised in his infinite mercy a better life,
New methods and aspirations, God's gift to the earthly man.

Del. Youth Eligible To Attend Rep. Summer Camps

Paul Curtis Stokes, Jr., chairman of the Delaware Federation of Young Republicans, announced this week that young Delawareans are eligible to participate in the third annual National Teenage Republican Camp which will be held from August 21st to the 27th at Camp Caesar, Webster Springs, W. Va. Teenage Republican Camps are sponsored by the Young Republican National Federation, and three are being held this year, one for the east, one for the midwest, and one for the far west.

According to Mr. Stokes, the camp period is devoted to recreation and political education for today's teenagers, who are, as he pointed out, tomorrow's leaders. The basic purpose is to develop leadership while the young people are learning the issues and enjoying the fellowship of other young people from around the country. Classes are held daily on government and politics, economics and communism, precinct organization and teenage Republican club organization. All types of recreation, including swimming, tennis, and riding are available. The tuition cost of $35, includes lodging, meals, supplies and equipment, camp insurance, etc.

Any teenage young Republican from the State of Delaware interested in attending may contact Mr. Stokes at his office at 48 Rehoboth Avenue, Rehoboth Beach. Reservations may also be made through the National G.O.P. Box 1007, Charleston, W. Va. Mr. Stokes pointed out that this is only one of the many programs that the Young Republican National Federation sponsor to encourage young Americans to take an interest in their government.

THE BLESSINGS OF TIME By Samuel A. Short, Jr.

I watched a nest of ants one Summer's day, Digging in the ground for their future home. Piling grains of sand beside the space in their silent way, How many hours it took to do the job is still unknown.

I saw the birds on wing in their daily flight, Going from branch to branch in the tall trees. Knowing their mission which I knew was right, I watched them too in the mid-summer's breeze.

There were the bees going from flower to flower, Gathering their honey for the winter's chill days. Giving in return their nectar from hour to hour, Which gave each stem strength in their wearisome ways.

There too were the Grasshoppers chirping their songs, Not thinking their summer days were nearly at end. There was nothing to fear, the days were still so long, No cold, no frost, no future to offend.

My plaintive, moaning voice was hushed and stilled, As I heard the croaking of the frogs in the nearby pond, With his eternal peace, my heart was filled, Pushing time ahead in fulfillment of blessings beyond.

Surely my creator, who installed in me a spark divine, With the dawn of brotherhood upon the earth, With confidence I'll find the things that are mine, Leaving all material uncertainties that prove no worth.

As I watch on others, gone will be their struggle and strife, To all who will accept his daily plan. For God has promised in his infinite mercy a better life, New methods and aspirations, God's gift to the earthly man.

Publications Lists Pesticide Precautions

Treat pesticides with respect; they have been developed to kill insects, rodents and fungi. In general, pesticides make our food more wholesome, plants more attractive and our lives more pleasant, according to Frank Boys, extension agricultural chemicals specialist at the University of Delaware.

Boys is the author of a new bulletin, titled "Pesticide Precautions," published by the Cooperative Extension Service at the University and the Delaware Safety Council. It contains detailed recommendations for safe pesticide usage for farmers and home gardeners.

The bulletin suggests using pesticides only when actually needed and only the pesticide specifically recommended for a particular pest. Always select the pesticide and the method of application that provides the greatest margin of safety to yourself, other people, useful animals and crops, Boys advises. You are morally and legally responsible for the pesticides you use, he points out.

Handle concentrated pesticides with extreme care, measuring exactly, with the proper measuring equipment. Never eat, drink or smoke when handling or applying pesticides, the bulletin cautions.

The equipment used to apply pesticides should be in good working order. To avoid accidental injury to susceptible plants, use separate equipment for applying hormone-type herbicides such as 2, 4-D.

Never feed contaminated feed to livestock or poultry, Boys stresses. Always allow the proper waiting period for the breakdown of the chemicals before harvesting crops or slaughtering meat animals.

Always use caution in the storage and disposal of pesticides, Boys urges. Specific safety recommendations are contained in "Pesticide Precautions." Copies of this publication are available from county agents in Dover, Georgetown and Newark, or from the Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, Delaware 19711.

Kent Receives Fiscal Fright

Kent County Levy Court commissioners became blue Tuesday when they learned some information that may turn red their forecasts for a black fiscal year.

Robert J. Green, executive director of the State Home at Smyrna, informed the commissioners that their prediction of the county's share of welfare patient costs for the year started July 1 will be too low.

Although the Levy Court estimates were correct when the budget was prepared, the General Assembly since has enacted and the governor signed July 1 of this year, an omnibus bill which included additional funds to the home for this fiscal year. It also threw another cook into Kent's kitchen and spoiled the broth.

Green advised the approved budget now totals $2,589,000 for the welfare home. One half the budget, said Green in a letter to Levy Court President James B. Messick, is to be paid by the counties—a total of more than $1,249,000.

"Based on the average percentage of patient days over the past year," Green said, "your (Kent County's) percentage is 22.5 per cent and your share is $291,373 for fiscal year beginning July 1, 1966 and ending June 30, 1967."

Kent County budgeted $266,801 to the welfare home for the fiscal year, and according to Commissioner L. Winfred Hughes, the difference might leave the county in the red.

"There is nothing we can do about it," Hughes said. "I guess it's alright for them to tell it about us after we have approved the budget. It doesn't hurt them, but it hurts us."

"And you know," Hughes added in talks with a reporter, "How close we trimmed the budget to bring the tax rate down to 35 cents (per $100 assessed valuation.)"

"But there's nothing we can do about it," he said.

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church Notes

Calendar for July 15 - 21

SATURDAY—

8 a.m. on—Second clean-up day for State Fair food booth.

SUNDAY—

8 a.m. Holy Communion.

10 a.m. Church School for small children two years old through third grade.

10 a.m. Holy Communion, children's sermonette, adult sermon.

11:15 a.m. Coffee hour.

1 p.m. Delaware church news.

4 p.m. Softball practice at St. Stephen's.

TUESDAY—

8 to 11:30 p.m. Youth dance.

WEDNESDAY—

7:30 p.m. Healing service.

Wednesday through Saturday—Work at Fair Booth.

It is hard to believe that the State Fair is almost on us. Our fair booth opens on Wed., July 20. As in the past it will be managed by members and friends of St. Stephen's, 14 years old and older. Mrs. Hewitt Smith and Mrs. Ernest Killen are in charge of scheduling workers. Those who can offer their time are asked to contact Mrs. Smith at 398-3848 or Mrs. Killen at 398-6060, or to sign up at the 10 a.m. service this coming Sunday, with Mrs. Thomas Clendingen.

Correction to last week's St. Stephen's column: The painting which was done on the weekend of June 24 was done on the forenoon of Saturday, not Sunday. Yes, St. Stephen's does worship on Sunday morning!

The vicar and his family will be away for two weeks beginning July 18. During this time anyone in the church family who has any emergency is invited to call the Rev. Joseph S. Hinks at 422-5110. During the vicar's absence in July, Father Hinks will have charge of the Wednesday evening 7:30 p.m. healing service and the Rev. Messrs. Victor Kusik and John Ryan of St. Mary's of Bridgeville will celebrate Holy Communion and preach at the 10 o'clock service. There will be no 8 o'clock service for the rest of July, beginning with July 24 and all of August, but Holy Communion will be celebrated at each of the ten o'clock services on those Sundays.

The people of the congregation are reminded that during the vicar's absence in the summer, the parish office hours are very flexible. The vicar feels that except when needed, the secretary should be free to simply discharge her duties and close the office. Anyone needing to get into the church upon finding it locked can feel free to contact Mrs. Mason at her home or to call her at 398-3410.

Nelson S. Cox

Foltz Roars Into Campaign

Andy Foltz Tuesday night announced the appointment of a retired Negro minister as treasurer of his campaign for the Republican nomination for the Senate.

The Rev. Oliver H. Sepncer, of Dover, retired after 43 years as a Methodist minister in the Delaware Annual Conference, will handle the funds for "Andy's Volunteers," Foltz's organization for the primary campaign in the 14th Senatorial District.

Foltz, a Dover insurance man and former Kent County GOP chairman, formally opened his headquarters in the Treadway Inn Tuesday night with an organizational meeting of his supporters.

The candidate also announced that Mrs. Joann Andrews, of Dover, wife of an International Latex Corp. vice president, will serve as temporary chairman of "Andy's Volunteers."

A third candidate meanwhile entered what had been a contest between Foltz and Edward J. Graham, retired Air Force officer.

Stanley C. Mikell, a former state representative, got the jump on both announced candidates by becoming the first to file for the nomination.

Mikell, who had once been mentioned by party leaders as a possible compromise choice to oppose Sen. James D. McGinnis, D-Dover, said his entry is not part of any deal and that he expects to stay in the race to the finish. He is a body shop operator and racehorse breeder.

Kent GOP Chairman John B. Larson said Mikell's filing makes it a three-way contest since neither of the other two will pull out, they say.

The only other Republican office-seeker to file so far is Harry G. Farrow Sr. of Harrington, retired after 43 years as a sheriff. Farrow will probably oppose former State Sen. Leon Donovan, the only announced Democratic candidate.

The Republican filing period, which opened Monday, extends to noon on July 30. The primary election is scheduled for Aug. 20.

U. S. Approves Delmarva Unit

The Economic Development Administration Monday approved the establishment of a Delmarva Economic Development District, Delaware congressional offices were informed.

The designation opens the way for Kent and Sussex Counties and adjacent counties in Maryland and Virginia to apply for a variety of assistance grants.

It also reinstates the eligibility of Kent County communities for certain federal grants. The county was removed from the Area Re-development Program June 30.

The new district also includes the Maryland counties of Caroline, Dorchester, Queen Anne's, Somerset, Talbot, Wicomico and Worcester and two Virginia counties, Accomack and Northampton.

Home at Smyrna after a long illness.

Mrs. McFadden was the widow of Clifford H. McFadden, who died in 1964.

She was born in Chester, Pa., but lived most of her life in the Milford area.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Gillespie, and Mrs. Cecilia Warren, both of Milford; five sons, Richard of Tampa, Fla., Clifford of Magnolia, Watson of Prospect Park, Pa., and Doran and Harvey, both of Milford; 19 grandchildren, six great-grandchildren, and two two sisters, Mrs. Chalmers Hendricks, of Harrington, and Mrs. Paula Daller of Holmes, Pa.

Services were held at the Lofland Funeral Home, Sunday afternoon. Interment was in Odd Fellows Cemetery, Milford.

FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapaa

Delaware State Fair fever is upon us again. Our extension service exhibits are reaching final form and will be placed in the 4-H building back of the grandstand. Our 4-H club members have been through numerous training sessions for judging and for exhibits.

Don Burton, our University of Delaware livestock specialist, predicts the strongest Holstein cattle show in many years. This breed accounts for better than 80% of all milk cows in Delaware.

The Delaware State Grange has a fine new building since last summer. The sides roll up out of the way to catch any passing breeze. Grangers and their customers will be much more comfortable in their new quarters. It's always amazing to me how the Grange prepares so many fine meals. It must be a hangover from the old wheat threshing dinners that have passed into history.

Where will we put all of the fine vegetable exhibits in prospect as a result of our fine growing season to date? That may develop into quite a problem.

There is something at the State Fair for everyone. See you at Harrington sometime between July 23 and July 30.

Fifty years ago this month a new tool became available for use on farms in Delaware and throughout the country:

Money. In the form of long-term, low interest real estate loans.

It came with the signing of the Farm Loan Act by President Wilson on July 17, 1916. The Farm Loan Act created the farmer-owned Federal Land Bank System, a group of 12 district banks through which farmers can borrow money on terms as good as those available to the businessman in the city.

Edward Evans, manager of the Federal Land Bank Association of Delaware, says that 401 farmers currently hold Land Bank loans in the three Delaware counties. Most of the loans have been used to expand, improve, and modernize farm land and equipment. The largest category of borrowers (who are also Association members) produce crops. Second are producers of poultry.

"Not only have farmers proved to be understanding good loan risks—Land Bank foreclosures are almost unheard of today. Given money to work with, they have proved to be production geniuses of a quality rarely found anywhere in American business," Mr. Evans says.

The European corn borer is a perennial pest. But weather conditions are such that damage may be worse than usual this year.

The first brood is completing its life cycle. Adults are now laying eggs in the whorls of our half-grown corn. We have measured some damage up to 50% in spots. Perhaps 20% is a good average for Kent County. The second brood may increase geometrically, because the moths lay many eggs. These hatch out into the borers or worms.

Farmers can limit the damage by the use of DDT or Sevin granules dropped into the whorls of the leaves. The easiest method now is by use of an airplane. We're told the cost is about $2.00 per acre plus the cost of material (at the rate of two or three lbs. per acre). DDT is cheaper, but you can't feed the treated fodder. You can feed the fodder if you use Sevin.

Timing of the application is extremely important. You want to catch the young grubs before they bore inside the stalk. Once inside the stalk, control becomes impossible. Does the practice pay? It's hard to say. One can live with some damage. You must weigh the cost against the hoped for benefits. Leave an untreated spot and you may be able to measure the benefits precisely.

Kent County farmers tagged along on the Sussex County Dairy Tour to Queen Anne County, Maryland, last week. It was a pleasant and profitable day.

Free stall housing ranked high on the list of events. William Vanderwende, of Bridgeville, showed us his new barn and well planned layout. Raymond Ballinger, of Kenton, was looking for some new design ideas. The tour permits a free exchange of ideas and experiences.

The Lloyd Andrew's farm near Centreville, Md., is an electronic marvel of efficiency in the milking parlor. He feeds grain according to production as the cow is actually milked. For each quarter pound of milk given, the cow is rewarded with a given amount of grain. Result: no extra feed to loofer cows. Mr. Andrews has an ingenious door opening device opened by a lever in the milking pit. Also a home made electric heater made from a car radiator hooked into the hot water heater and backed by an electric fan.

Here are some direct quotes from Allen Messer, who just bought an 800 acre dairy farm near Church Hill: "You either gotta grow, or go." "It's the 100 or more small things that made for a profitable operation."

"There are many more advantages when you tie a livestock operation to a cropping program." (In this case 600 acres of corn with 100 milking cows.)

Chemicals Can Control Poison Ivy Plants

Summertime means many hours spent outdoors. To keep those hours happier, stay away from poison ivy, advises Frank Boys, extension agricultural chemicals specialist at the University of Delaware. Fortunately, with modern weed killers, farmers as well as vacationers can control this nuisance.

First of all, be positive you can recognize poison ivy, Boys says. It can vary greatly in habit and in leaf appearance, sometimes spreading along the ground, or growing as a vine on fences, walls and trees or even growing as a shrub.

The leaves are the best way to identify poison ivy. Each leaf always has three leaflets, usually shiny, although they may also be a dull green. The leaflet edges may be smooth, toothed or lobed, and all of these variations may appear on the same plant.

The poison part of the ivy is a skin irritant in the sap of the roots, stems, leaves and berries. Some people are more immune to the irritant than others; however, even they may become susceptible after sufficient exposure, Boys points out.

The skin irritant can cause severe inflammation, frequently requiring a doctor's care. Unfortunately, it is easily transferred from one object to another. It can get on clothes, garden tools and even pets and then cause irritation when someone touches them. Often smoke from burning poison ivy plants will cause severe reaction.

Chemical control can be very effective, with no danger of poisoning from contact in pulling up the weeds or burning them. Amittrole (Amino Triazole, Weedazol and Poison Ivy Killer) is a good control. Aerosol cans with amittrole are a convenient way to treat small patches. In all cases, read and follow instructions on the container label, Boys urges.

Amittrole can be applied from the time the poison ivy plants make their first spring growth and the leaves reach full size until they begin to change color in the fall. Thoroughly wet the entire plant with the spray, but don't let it contact desirable plants. If there is a chance of damaging desirable plants with the spray, use a long-handled brush to apply to the ivy alone.

Brush killer, containing 2, 4-D and 2, 4, 5-T, will kill poison ivy and other woody plants growing in the same area. Be careful of drifting vapor if there are desirable woody plants nearby. Most grasses, however, tolerate this brush killer better than they tolerate amittrole.

Apply brush killer when the plants reach the full-leaf stage in late spring or early summer. If regrowth occurs, repeat the treatment. Again, in all cases, read and follow the directions on the label, Boys stresses.

Band Concerts Popular At Rehoboth Beach

Public band concerts and teen age jamborees are again proving popular at Rehoboth Beach, this year.

The famed Dallastown Boys and Girls Band of Pennsylvania drew a record throng last Saturday night as they gave a program of great variety at the Boardwalk Bandstand. All of the outdoor concerts are free to the public.

On Saturday evening, July 16, the Caesar Rodney High School Band, one of Kent County's top musical organizations will present its annual concert, while on July 23, the First U. S. Army Band, Fort Meade, Maryland, will be back. This aggregation has been coming to Rehoboth Beach for several years and always proves popular according to William J. Hayes, music coordinator for the Rehoboth Beach Chamber of Commerce.

On July 30, a new musical group will make its debut at this seashore resort. This will be the Salesianum High School Band of Wilmington. An all-boys' band, the "Sallies" have built up a reputation as a splendid musical organization.

The Chamber of Commerce also sponsors Teen Age Jamborees every Tuesday evening at the Convention and Civic Center. On Tuesday, July 19, "The Edsels," St. Andrew's School, Middletown, will present their version of Rock and Roll, while on July 26, "The Contemplations" of West Chester, Pa., will be heard. Hayes says he has secured Millsboro's "Nobles" for an appearance on Tuesday, August 6.

Food Price Increase Less Than Other Items

Prices have risen for almost everything people buy, but higher food prices receive the most attention, according to W. T. McAllister, extension farm management specialist at the University of Delaware.

While it is true that food prices have advanced, McAllister says they have not changed as much as most other items. Clothing and shoes, for instance, have gone up even more. However, the price change on non-food items is not as noticeable even though the amount of change may be proportionally greater. Because food is a daily or weekly purchase, any change in price is easily remembered. Clothing is bought less often, so prices changes are less noticeable.

Prices are going up because they reflect the demand for goods in relation to the available supply, McAllister explains. That demand is largely determined by the purchasing power of the buying public. The United States, for the most part, has full employment and rising wages.

Even though industry is running at full production, the supply of goods is not quite up to the demand, so prices are bid up slightly. Also, as wage rates go up, prices must advance in turn, unless the productivity of the worker increases as the pay increases. Since the higher prices increase living costs, wages again go up, causing a continuous upward spiral of wage and price increases.

This wage-price spiral is the principal element in today's inflation, according to McAllister. Of course, there are ways to restrict the rate of inflationary growth, he points out. For instance, the national government has given guidelines on wage increases to labor organizations and industry for contract negotiations.

Interest rates were increased to encourage saving part of workers' take-home pay and to discourage borrowing since credit is an important part of total buying power, McAllister explains. The government could also increase taxes to draw off some buying power. Reduced government spending is another way to combat inflation.

McAllister concludes that inflation can be controlled if the people really want it controlled. However, it isn't possible to have more jobs, higher wages, liberal credit, growing government services and benefit programs and lower taxes without having higher prices and inflation.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

Beef promises to be the best red meat buy again this week and during the remaining days of July. Prices will continue much as they have been with many specials bringing reasonable prices down even further. Cuts to check are roasts, especially chuck cuts, stewing meat and hamburger. Remember when you consider these roasts that they can easily fit into plans for leisure filled days if you cook the meat in the cool of the morning. Cool and refrigerate the meat for using cold sliced for several days.

Pork prices continue high but the predictions are that in August hog slaughter will be noticeably higher and prices should slip. Until then look for "specials" on smoked ham and loin roast.

July broiler marketings are about 8% above a year ago. Prices will remain as they have been for the past six weeks, with weekend specials making this meat an outstanding protein buy. Turkeys are in good supply also and prices are fair.

Prices of eggs are firming up and are expected to average a bit above those in June. Be sure to check price spread between egg sizes, remember when the price difference between two sizes is 8 to 10 cents, then the cheaper size is the best buy. Right now this is true for the medium size egg. With weather like we have been having, buy only refrigerated eggs and please take them straight home and refrigerate if you are interested in maintaining the quality you paid for.

Potatoes are abundant and prices should be falling. An above average spring crop is lagging at the market and it will now overlap substantially with the early summer marketing season and so the story goes. As a result, potatoes are coming out of the "grower's ears" in many growing areas. A heavy inventory of frozen French fried potatoes will also work to check market tone.

On the other side of the fence is lettuce, celery and tomatoes—all are higher in price. Lettuce is again feeling the effects of California's serious labor shortage. Pickers are so scarce that growers cannot get the lettuce out of the fields.

Fruit is abundant and of excellent quality. Green cooking apples are now on local markets and so are red raspberries. Prices are falling all along the line, with white seedless grapes leading the way. Watermelons, cantaloupes, avocados and limes are all wearing lower price tags this week.

KEITH S. BURGESS — Sports Editor

Sports Odds And Ends

Steve Motter led Harrington's 1966 Lion baseball squad at the plate with a gaudy 400 plus batting average. He is up to his old tricks this summer as a member of Milford's American Legion team where he has won at least two games with his timely hitting. One of his most recent feats was driving in the game's only runs as Milford blanked Smyrna 2-0.

Will and Bob Dill have been doing some heavy stickwork for Dover's American Legion entry. Dover is in first place and Felton High's Dills from Viola are doing more than their share.

Dwight Hackett was a one-man cross country team for Harrington High in 1957, a year before H.H.S. became the first Delaware school below the canal to take up the steadily-growing sport. Later he became a star harrier at H.H.S. and at West Chester State Teachers College. Now a resident of the New Castle area, he won a three mile race in Wilmington the other night in 18:32. He doesn't have enough training time to get in top shape but can still do a good job, on occasion.

Sheldon "Fink" Hayman made headlines recently in the Seaford Softball League when he won two games with a barrage of home runs. At on stage his last three safeties had all been circuit clouts. One of the Journal employee's four-ply swats was a grand slammer.

Former H.H.S. football coach, Frank Glazier, told this writer the other day that at his new post in Bergenfield, N. J., he already has 125 boys signed up for football and expects more later. In addition to the varsity turnout above, teams are fielded there for both sophomores and freshmen. This sounds like an ideal setup for a coach who loves the game as does Frank. No recruiting needed there.

We bumped into Jason Hurd at Whitesburg recently. Jason is a nephew of J. Millard Cooper and of Viola Clendaniel. He was born in 1940 on Mechanic St. next door to this writer. He moved to Dover soon after and became a wrestler and trackman at Dover High. His older brother, Joe, was a starting fullback for the Senators and once scored two touchdowns enabling his team to beat Archmere Academy.

We like most sports including the six offered boys at Harrington High. We don't try to hide the fact that we have a special liking for individual sports as compared to team sports. In wrestling, track and cross country a boy must learn self-reliance. When he has to go it alone he must pull out all the stops. Win or lose he gets all the credit or all the blame whichever the case may be. This same self-reliance also comes to the surface in academic work. Barring the cribbers at exam time, the best marks often go to the kids who don't trust to buck but work hard and make their own breaks.

Thus we think it is not an accident that cross-country runners swept academic honors at Milford, Caesar Rodney and Harrington High for the 1965-66 school year.

At Caesar Rodney, a young lady was valedictorian with wrestler-harrier Bill Engelhardt taking second place.

At Milford cross-country runners, John Briggs and Hans Feindt were valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively.

Here at H.H.S. cross-country lettermen, Don Wells and Ken Eilers, finished 1-2 scholastically. We don't give cross-country credit for these fine scholastic achievements. We merely would like to mention that the same qualities that come in handy on a cross-country course also are valuable in the classroom. You can't depend on others in either place. You must go it alone.

Before we get off our favorite subject, David Hitchens and Ken Garey were recently promoted to 2nd Lieutenants in the Delaware National Guard after satisfactorily completing the requirements of Officer Candidate School.

David was a charter member of lower Delaware's first cross-country team, the 1958 unbeaten squad at H.H.S. Garey was the third best harrier on the Delmarva Peninsula about four years after that; as he made a tremendous start in his first attempt as a junior. Gerry Garey, 1966 Lion standout, is a brother.

SPORTS ODDS — ADD ONE
Robin Callahan is a large lad, who plays for Chester Short's Rotary entry in the Harrington Little League. In previous years, Robin was the All-American "Out". He was a so-called tourist batter. He came to the plate only to "Look".

Short has changed all of that however. He has Callahan "swinging that lumber" with astounding results. Against the Lions, Callahan banged out three home runs, which is probably a record. Two games later, Robin belted two lustrous triples against the strong Moose Club. This proves the value of perseverance called stick-to-it-tiveness by some people, who can't spell perseverance. Had he become discouraged and quit a year or two back he might never have become a prospect. He is now.

Blue-Gold Game Slated for Aug. 20

Facts about Delaware's 11th annual All-Star Football Game—These games are organized and managed by the Delaware Foundation for Retarded Children, a non-profit organization. Net proceeds from the games are allocated, after consultation with Delaware Association for Retarded Children, to local and national projects for the benefit of retarded children, and for the prevention of mental retardation.

D.F.R.C. runs the game through the activities of various sub-committees: financial, ticket sales, publicity, stadium arrangements, concessions, coaches and players, program, and so on. This year, D.F.R.C. hopes to better even the record-breaking receipts of last year's tenth anniversary game.

A considerable part of the total net receipts for each game comes from the printed program, and much the greater part of the income from the program comes, not from sales of the program at the game, but from money paid in by advertisers and patrons. The earnest solicitation of these, by members of the Gold "team" headed by Mrs. J. Allen Frear, Jr., and the Blue "team" headed by Mrs. Franklin Taylor, III, under the general supervision of Glenn Dill, is very important to the overall financial success of the game.

The event—Delaware's Eleventh annual All-Star Football game. Date—August 20, at 2 p.m. Place—University of Delaware Stadium, Newark, Del.

Teams—Gold Team (schools south of Wilmington) vs. Blue Team (schools north of Wilmington borderline).

Players and Cheerleaders—60 of the outstanding high school and prep school players in the area have been selected by the Delaware Coaches Association.

Outstanding girl cheerleaders will be selected by their cheerleader coaches.

Half-time activities—Half-time and pre-game entertainment will be provided by at least one outstanding band.

Awards—A cup for the winning team has been donated by the Touchdown Club of Wilmington.

In addition, an Outstanding Player Award has been donated by the Notre Dame Club of Delaware, and the Newark TD Club has donated an award for the outstanding lineman. Selection of the individual winners will be made by sportswriters at the game.

Publicity—This game will receive thorough advance publicity in local newspapers and over TV and radio stations. The inherent color of this event, the selection of players, the training camp, etc., will all make excellent material for publicity. In addition, there will be appropriate publicity to support the solicitation of advertising, patrons, and sale of tickets.

Coaches—Coaches have been selected from and by the members of the Delaware Scholastic Coaches Association. In addition, each squad will be staffed with trainers, doctors, managers—everything to ensure maximum protection for the players and the highest quality of play.

Training of Teams—The squads will train for ten days before the game, as separate training camps at the University of Delaware, under the guidance of their coaches and trainers.

Sponsorship—The game is sponsored by the Delaware Foundation for Retarded Children, a non-profit group organized for this purpose in 1956. All proceeds, after expenses, will be devoted to projects for the benefit of retarded children and for the prevention of retardation. These are projects for which public funds are not available.

The ten All-Star Games (1956-65) have yielded total net proceeds of about $324,906.

Sports Editor's notes: Phyllis Robinson, of 35 Clark Street, Harrington, will be one of the Gold cheerleaders.

Tickets may be obtained at Peck Brothers Store on Harrington Avenue.

Destruction Derby To Be Held At Del. State Fairgrounds

The state's first National Championship Destruction Derby will be held at the Delaware State Fairgrounds in Harrington on Friday night, July 22, at 8 p. m. Fair officials said the event was scheduled as a preview of this year's fair which opens July 23 and continues through July 30.

Many drivers from this area will compete against top destruction derby veterans from throughout the east for the $800 jackpot awaiting the winners.

There will be four preliminary heats and a grand finale. The eight finalists will consist of two drivers from each of the four qualifying heats.

After all cars in each heat have been demolished, except one, that driver will be declared a heat winner and given a different car for the finals. In addition, the fans will choose one driver from each heat as the one putting on the best show and he will be given a fresh car for the grand finals.

As the name indicates, each heat is a no-holds-barred event with each driver attempting in any way he can to demolish all other cars still moving. The winner must contact with another car and be able to move his vehicle a foot.

Derby officials keep a sharp watch to see that no driver avoids contact to stay active. Anyone who fails to hit another car within a certain time limit is disqualified.

Entry blanks for those brave enough to get behind the wheel can be obtained by contacting the fair office in Harrington.

Norgan Wins Golf Event

Cy Norgan of Seaford Country Club fired a 138 to win the 36-hole Hammond Cadillac Invitational Golf Tournament which concluded Sunday at Shawnee C. C.

Norgan, the medalist, shot 1-under par 69s both days in the event sanctioned by the Delmarva Peninsula Golf Association.

Bill Smith, of Shawnee, a Harrington schoolteacher, took first flight with a 159, followed by second flight — Bill Scheaffer, Maple Dale C. C., 161; third flight — Ed Hickman, Elks C. C., Salisbury, Md., 163; fourth flight — Curt Callahan, Shawnee.

Delaware Soccer Team To Play 18-Game Schedule

Delaware's soccer team, which had its best season ever last year, will play a 13-game schedule this fall.

Coach Loren Kline's Blue Hen booters, who set Delaware records for goals and victories in compiling a 7-4-2 record last year, will play seven home games and six on the road. Drexel replaces Western Maryland on the schedule, but the other 12 opponents return from last year.

The schedule: October 4, Washington College; 8, Lafayette; 14, at Lehigh; 18, Johns Hopkins; 22, at Gettysburg; 25, St. Joseph's; 29, at Ursinus.

November 1, at Franklin and Marshall; 5, at Drexel; 9, Penn Military; 12, at Temple; 15, La Salle; 18, Bucknell.

Delaware's New Game and Fish Laws

H. B. 459, prohibiting spotlighting within 100 feet of a public road became law in our state in May of this year. Formerly persons carrying both firearms and lights in the same vehicle could be apprehended for night hunting. NOW a person may be convicted if he is seen spotlighting.

This is the law: "No person shall throw or cast the rays of a spotlight, headlight or other artificial light or other illuminating device upon any field, woodland or other area for the purpose of spotlighting within 100 feet of a public road."

Attention—sportsmen over 65: Residents who are 65 years old or over are not required to obtain a hunting or fishing license. Persons should be able to furnish proof of age if an enforcement officer should request it.

Whether one is over 65 and is able to hunt and fish free or under 65 and is required to purchase a $3.20 hunting license or a $2.20 fishing license, he is able to enjoy some of the finest hunting and fishing in the "Diamond State."

Seasons set by Commission for 1966-67: Squirrel—Sept. 15-Oct. 3. Deer—Archery—Oct. 1-Nov. 5. Deer—shotgun—New Castle Co., Nov. 11 and 12.

Kent and Sussex Co's., Nov. 11, 12, and 14, 15 and 16.

Rabbit-pheasant—Nov. 18-Jan. 7.

Quail—Nov. 18-Feb. 4.

Hen Harriers Schedule Nine Dual Meets

Delaware's cross country team will run in nine dual meets and the Middle Atlantic Conference championship this year.

The 1966 schedule shows home meets against Swarthmore, Bucknell, American University and Gettysburg with road tests slated against Lafayette, Lehigh, Temple, St. Joseph's and LaSalle. The M.A.C. championship meet will be held at Muhlenberg College in Allentown, Pa., on Nov. 18.

Coach Ken Steers' harriers had a 5-3 dual meet record last year and finished fifth in the M.A.C. meet. The 1966 team will be captained by John O'Donnell of Wilmington.

The schedule: Oct. 5, at Lafayette; 11, at Lehigh; 18, at Temple; 21, Swarthmore; 25, Bucknell; 28, at St. Joseph's.

Nov. 1, American University; 8, at LaSalle; 12, Gettysburg; 18, at M.A.C. championships, Allentown, Pa.

Golfers Smith and Johnson, Shine At Milford

Bill Johnson shot a fine 143 for 36 holes in last weekend's Hammond Cadillac Invitational Tournament at Shawnee Country Club to capture second place behind Cy Norgan of Seaford. Former Milfordian (or is it Milfordite?) Norgan may have shot the round of his life.

H.H.S. teacher Bill Smith grabbed First Flight honors with 159. Charlie "Buck" Johnson, formerly of Houston, was third in that same category.

him to help them sell the liquor. Later, they asked him if they could leave the leftover liquor at Days' home until morning, and he said he agreed.

The next morning, according to stories told to Levy Court, a trooper stopped Days and questioned him about his recent activities. Days told him about the liquor, and was subsequently arrested. He is free on $500 bond for appearance in Superior Court.

the product of poor subdivision regulations. Because of the lack of clarity of the regulations, he said it is usually the poorest land in any development which ends up as the designated park area.

Councilman Douglas L. Harris said the city's immediate problem is to acquire the land for development, but Councilman Randolph Hughes countered:

"I don't see why Dover should have to put up one red cent to develop what the developer says he's going to develop."

"The city is not obligated to develop that land or anything else," Hughes said, adding: "As soon as the city revises its subdivision regulations, we will be able to give better service to the people of Dover."

Before recommending that Robino be asked to appear before council to reveal his plans, Hughes said, "We are the ones at fault in allowing the developer to pick out the worst part of the land for development."

The land, according to Harris, is "under any circumstances, not desirable." He said the land floods and is not located in a central location for use by the two developments.

DOVER LEARNS

were extended in August 1963. The charge on each the water and sewer mains was $3 a frontage foot, which also included provisions for a tap, he said.

Hayes said when the residents agreed to become a part of the city they were told they had three options in paying the installation fee.

The options, according to Hayes, were to pay within 90 days and receive a 5 per cent discount; pay within five years with no interest charge; or pay within 20 years at a 4 per cent interest rate.

Hayes said, however, that it was not until a year and a half ago that the city sent a letter to residents advising them their obligation to the city. He said as far as he knew, the city does not submit monthly notices to the residents and many of them are not aware of the fact that they owe money for the water and sewer lines.

One of the problems involved now, the council concluded, is that some of the property may have changed hands since the time of annexation and installation.

If that is so, the council wondered, does the city have the right to put a lien on the property involved to assure payment for the lines?

"I don't think there is a provision in the ordinance whereby the city can put a lien on the property," Hayes said in his capacity of acting mayor Monday night.

Commented City Manager G. Preston Ward: "We made our mistake by letting the contracts before the proper paper work was done. Property changes hands pretty fast."

"I have a feeling the city of Dover is in a very vulnerable position," Ward said.

Councilman Randolph Hughes, expressing a certain surprise at the situation, said: "For every penny they (residents in the areas involved) don't pay, the other taxpayers in Dover are paying. Something ought to be done to get those people on the road and be made to pay their obligation to the city."

Operating without the services of City Solicitor David P. Buckson, who is attending the attorneys general conference in Wilmington, the council tabled further discussion on the matter until its next meeting.

Permanent Press Fabrics Need Special Sewing

Most customers are well satisfied with permanent press ready-to-wear garments. If they are washed and dried according to directions, permanent press clothes need less care than any easy-care fabric to date, points out Miss Janet Reed, extension clothing and textile specialist at the University of Delaware.

Permanent press is now available in yard goods, and the seamstress needs to know how to handle this fabric and the kind of wear she can expect.

In permanent press ready-made garments the finish is applied to the fabric; however, the curing process—the final step that results in a wrinkle-free, easy-care garment—is applied only after the garment is made. Since home pressing equipment cannot meet temperature and pressure requirements needed for permanent press finishes, permanent press yard goods must be completely finished at the factory, Miss Reed points out.

Therefore, these fabrics are highly resistant to creasing, so hems, seams and other details will not take a sharp edge. Take this into consideration and choose a style with a minimum number of seams and details. Eliminate pressed-in pleats entirely, Miss Reed recommends. She says seamstresses should realize that garments made from permanent press yard goods will not always have as pressed an appearance as they may desire.

Seam puckering may also be a problem, though no more so than in other easy-care fabrics. Actually, seams pucker because the fabric finish is applied to the flat fabric. To minimize puckering, use a long machine stitch (ten stitches per inch) and loose tension. The problem varies with the fabric; sometimes the puckering does not appear until after washing and drying. In this case, the thread has probably shrunk. Zipper tapes also may shrink and cause puckering in permanent press garments, Miss Reed explains. She advises preshrinking zippers at least twice by soaking in hot water at ten minute intervals. Some instructions advise boiling zipper tape; be sure to use a metal zipper, not nylon, if you plan to boil it.

While sewing, press with an iron as the fabric will take. Some permanent press fabrics contain polyester fibers which will not stand a very hot iron.

Read the fabric label for sewing instructions. Some manufacturers supply printed instructions for the entire bolt of fabric.

Permanent press fabrics are not the miraculous answer to all clothing needs and fabric care problems, Miss Reed points out. Permanent press is a new process that will take its place along with all the other technological developments in the textile field, she states.
