Md. Dentist Found Dead From Burns

Dr. Paul N. Biggers, 45, a Greensboro dentist for the past 20 years, was found burned to death in his apartment on Sunset Avenue Sunday night.

Maryland State Police at Easton classified the death as accidental. They said their investigation indicated the victim apparently had been smoking and that his clothing had caught fire.

The body was found after Dr. Biggers' landlord, Oliver Tibbitt, Harrington native, told police about 6 Sunday night that he hadn't seen Dr. Biggers since Friday night. Police said they had not determined time of death.

Dr. Biggers suffered 2d degree burns over his entire body, police said. They said there were signs that he had rolled on a bed to extinguish the flames and had collapsed on the living room floor after that.

Harold Plummer, deputy medical examiner for Caroline County, pronounced the victim dead at the scene.

Dr. Biggers is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Ellen Field Biggers; a daughter, Linda Louise, a student at Takoma Park, Md.; a son, David Lynn, a student at Hamburg, Va.; and his parents, John and Mary Willis Biggers, Rock Hall.

Services were held Wednesday afternoon at the Willis Wells Funeral Home, Chestertown. Burial was in Chester Cemetery.

Wheat Growers Warned About Fly Dates

Delaware wheat producers can avoid the problems of Hessian fly damage by observing the important "fly-free" dates, according to a University of Delaware entomologist. Dr. Dale Bray, chairman of the department of entomology and applied ecology, says the date varies slightly between the counties, but in general, no wheat should be seeded before October 1. Approximate fly-free dates for each county are: New Castle, Oct. 3; Kent, Oct. 8; Sussex, Oct. 10.

Bray says wheat planted before these dates may be severely damaged by Hessian fly maggots. The mature flies lay their eggs on young growing plants (especially wheat) in August and September and maggots hatch from these eggs in a few days (Continued on Page 8)

U. of D. Offers To Aid Milford In Sewer Fuss

The University of Delaware's Department of Urban Affairs was reported Tuesday to have offered its help in bringing Milford and its industries to terms on sewage treatment problems.

John C. Bryson, acting director of the state Water and Air Resources Commission, told the commission at a meeting in Dover that the offer was made to Milford Council and apparently accepted this week.

He said Robert W. Cook, an economist with the Department of Urban Affairs, proposed that the university study the engineering and economic questions that will lead to a decision on whether the industries join with the city in joint treatment of sewage or build their own plants.

The Water and Air Resources Commission had given Milford, long plagued by sewage and pollution problems, until Oct. 1 to come up with the decision. The City has been under heavy pressure to expand its sewage treatment facilities.

Tuesday, the commission extended that Oct. 1 deadline by two weeks for Cook to develop a plan for the economic and engineering study.

In another case, the commission ruled that Swift & Company must either start work on waste treatment facilities at its Georgetown hatchery or submit satisfactory new plans for treatment facilities by Oct. 19. If it does neither, the commission decided, the company will face a hearing that could lead to a fine or a shutdown order.

Bryson noted that the commission already has approved one set of plans for the Swift facility. He said, however, that the company has sought to alter the plans but that the proposed changes were unsatisfactory.

The latest set of plans, he said, arrived in his office Tuesday morning. Bryson said that from a cursory check, the new plans also appear to be unsatisfactory.

Richard Foodim To Join Greenwich String Quartet

Richard Foodim, violinist, will join the University of Delaware's Greenwich String Quartet this season.

He succeeds Miss Liane Marston, the only distaff member of the quartet, which last year completed its first year of residence at the university.

Other quartet members are Laurence Shapiro, first violinist, Haim Shtrum, second violinist, and John Thurman, cellist.

Foodim comes to Delaware after a year as principal violinist with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra. A philosophy major during his undergraduate days at Bard College, he holds his master of music degree from Indiana University where he worked with a number of distinguished artists, including David Dawson, Josef Gingold and Janos Starker.

For two years, Foodim was violinist with the Hudson Valley String Quartet. He also spent a season as principal violinist with the Knickerbocker Chamber Players and for two years he toured as soloist with the famed Seventh Army Symphony. Although widely experienced as a solo performer, he looks forward to the demands implicit in the formation of a first rank string quartet which requires not only individual virtuosity, but sensitive ensemble performance.

Foodim and Shapiro have played together in the past and both look forward to renewing their musical associations. The quartet, which recently settled upon the name Greenwich String Quartet because all of its members have musical ties with New York City, will have an expanded schedule in 1966-67.

In addition to six formal campus concerts by the ensemble, each instrumentalist will present a solo recital. The first program is scheduled for Thurs., Oct. 20, at 8:15 p.m. in Mitchell Hall.

4-H'ers Compete In Regional Tractor Event

A 17-year-old Milton boy will represent Delaware in the 16th annual Eastern Regional 4-H Tractor Operator's Contest. James Wells, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Carlton Wells, will compete with winners from 22 states at the Virginia State Fair in Richmond on Sept. 27.

Norman Collins, agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware, will accompany Wells and serve as his coach. Contestants will arrive in Richmond on the 25th to participate in a get-acquainted banquet and a tour of Williamsburg, Jamestown and Yorktown.

The actual contest will start on the morning of the 28th, with a written examination on tractor operation, care and safety. Following this, contestants will familiarize themselves with the tractors they will drive in competition.

The driving part of the contest includes handling a tractor and wagon through a course set up to represent a farm-lot situation. The operator is supposed to move the equipment out of a stall, through a series of turns and then back into another stall.

Scoring is based on time, safe handling, and the degree of skill demonstrated in moving through the course without touching any guide stakes. Penalty points are scored against the contestants for unnecessary changes in direction, crossing or touching markers or lines, stalling engine, grating gears, riding the clutch, parking inches off center and taking too much total time involved in driving through the course.

Wells won the right to compete in the regional event by winning the state contest held in conjunction with the Delaware State Fair.

He is a member of the Broadkill Kool-Kats 4-H club led by Mrs. Roland Millman, Milton. In his fourth year of tractor project work, he also carries projects in dairy, garden, field crops, safety, feeder pigs and automotive. He is a senior in Milton High School.

Same Bushelage of Wheat Will Earn 1967 Certificates

Kent County wheat growers who participate in the 1967 Wheat Program will be eligible for domestic marketing certificates for about the same amount of wheat as in 1966 but the percentage of allotted acres is less because of the increased allotment according to Olin Gooden, chairman of the Kent County Committee, said today. The percentage is 35 compared with 45 in 1966.

The expected domestic food use for 1967 is 520 million bushels. Chairman Gooden explained that the law requires domestic certificates to be issued for no more than the expected domestic food use. The 520 million bushels is 35 per cent of the projected production of the 68.2 million acre national allotment.

In the 1966 program, the 45 per cent of the farm projected yield for which program cooperators earned certificates was estimated to equal 500 million bushels. Thus, cooperators in the 1967 program will be eligible for certificates on 20 million more bushels, Gooden said.

Domestic certificates, which are issued to help maintain farm income, will be valued in the 1967 program at the difference between the national average loan rate of $1.25 and parity next July 1. The certificates are valued at $1.32 in the 1966 program. Complete details on the 1967 wheat program will be announced later.

Kent Sets Tax Policy For Elderly

Kent County Levy Court Tuesday established a policy providing continued exemption from county tax lists for those persons over 65 and with incomes less than $3,000 annually.

Under the procedure, the county will mail applications for exemptions to those persons who qualify for deductions this year. Those who continue to qualify for exemption will be required to return the application to the receiver of taxes office before Nov. 1 in order to remain exempted for the 1967 tax year.

The necessity for the policy apparently grew out of interpretation of the law (Senate Bill 41 with House Amendment 2) creating the exemption.

According to Receiver of Taxes G. Dorsey Torbert, the county originally planned to continue the exemptions unless those who qualify this year, of their own volition, notified the county of a change in their status.

Torbert brought the matter before the Levy Court after reading a story in the News-Journal papers referring to the policy established in New Castle County. Assessor L. Kendall Davis was quoted as saying that property owners must reapply each year for continued exemptions.

Torbert said the story apparently has caused confusion in Kent County and caused him sleepless nights and disrupted meals because of a barrage of telephone calls from elderly persons expressing fear they would be removed from the tax exemption lists.

The provision for the continuation of the exemption in the law states that the claim shall continue in force from year to year without the necessity of further claim so long as the claimant be entitled to the exemption. But it says he is required to establish his income and the assessor may at any time require the filing of a new application or other such proof to establish justification for continued exemption.

The section further states that it is the duty of every claimant to inform the assessor of any change in his status or property which may effect his right to continue to qualify for exemptions.

Levy Court President L. Winfield Hughes told Torbert it was his opinion that the county would be obliged to collect full taxes unless notified of the claimant's income.

FFA To Hold Meat Judging Contest

The Delaware State Future Farmers of America Meats Judging Contest is scheduled for Sept. 22, at the Frank Robinson IGA Market in Lewes.

In announcing the contest date, Dr. Ralph R. Barwick, executive secretary of the Delaware FFA Association, said the annual event is used as a teaching tool to help FFA members become judges of livestock. "They will have a broader understanding of the relation of the live beef animal to the finished product."

One team for each FFA chapter in the vocational agriculture classes throughout the state will compete in the event. They will judge classes of beef, pork and lamb and attempt to identify various meat cuts.

REV. ROBERT BROWN — missionary to Barbados, West Indies, will be the speaker at a zone rally held here in the local church of the Nazarene, Friday, September 23rd.

A workshop will be held at 7 p. m. with the speaking service at 7:30 p. m.

U. S. APPROVES FUNDS FOR PARK BUYS IN STATE

Delaware Monday was allocated $1,481,065 by the Department of Interior for its statewide recreational planning program. The funds come on a 50-50 matching basis.

John A. Bivens, Jr., state planning director, indicated the grant is part of a federal reimbursement for parklands which have already been purchased. These would include Brandywine Creek State Park in New Castle County, and Killens Pond in Kent County.

The 433 acres Brandywine Creek land was purchased in 1964 for $1.5 million, while Killens Pond, an area of 550 acres on the Murderkill Watershed, was purchased last year for $500,000.

Both purchases were made with the $2 million allowed the State Park and Recreation Commission from $3.25 million appropriated from the state's capital investment fund.

Under a new federal project to stimulate outdoor recreation, the $1.48 million will be set aside to await applications to be submitted by the State of Delaware.

Individual project applications already have been submitted to Washington, said Bivens, and action is expected to be forthcoming.

Emphasis of the federal program is to make parkland available to cities and other urban areas. Some of the allocated funds will be used for capital improvements, as well as land acquisition.

The third alternative, to improve U.S. 13 along its present route through Dover, would be only 19 miles long but would cost more than $42 million.

Davidson said that, if the highway commissioners and the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads approve the department's choice quickly, construction would start during fiscal year 1968 and be completed in 1970 to 1972.

State Planner John A. Bivens Jr. and Dover City Engineer Alfred W. Joseph told the group that their agencies concur in the recommendation that the western route be chosen.

One farmer, Edward Evans of near Cheswold, appeared to express opposition to the route.

Kent Hospital To Aid Nurse School Start

Kent General Hospital will underwrite about 50 per cent of the cost of inaugurating a nurses' training program in conjunction with Wesley College.

Walton Simpson, president of the hospital board, said the program will eventually graduate and train about 25 registered nurses a year.

After the necessary approval is given, it is expected the program will begin next September and the first class graduated in 1969.

He said cost of the program the first year may run to $20,000. Dr. Robert Parker, president of the college, confirmed Tuesday that the nursing program is being planned, but declined to discuss any details until the college board of trustees acts on the plans at its Oct. 25 meeting.

The program also must be approved by the State Board of Nursing. Dr. Parker said he has no reason to believe that either the board or the trustees will refuse to approve it.

The program will eventually cost about $50,000 a year with the hospital putting up about $12,000 per year.

Country Lane Extension Club News

by Jane Everline
The Country Lane Home Economics Extension Club held its first fall meeting of 1966 on Tues., September 6th, at 12:30, in the home of Mrs. Earl Everline. Mrs. Everline served lunch to the club with assistance from Mrs. Leon Donovan, who prepared two veal casseroles in connection with the program for the month, which was "Adding Spice To One Dish Meals".

The casseroles were identical except for one having spices added and the other having no spice. Before we ate, Mrs. Donovan passed around several containers of spices for the members to identify. We found it isn't too easy when you can't see the name, although a few members did well identifying them.

After lunch our president, Mrs. Donovan, conducted the business meeting. New books were passed out and committee chairman were selected.

There was one committee report, that of Mrs. Melville Taylor, who has information concerning the night classes being held at Dover this fall. She has found that most of them are for men, such as auto mechanics, etc.

We were very pleased to add Mrs. Ray Collison's name to our list of club members. Welcome Virginia.

We discussed our tour to be taken this fall in place of our summer picnic. The date has been set for Tues., Oct. 11, to tour the Governor's Mansion, the John Dickinson Mansion and the museum in Dover. More plans will be made at the next meeting which will be Tuesday, October 4th at the home of Mrs. Woodrow Holloway. Club members please remember the new time will be 1 o'clock.

State Supt. Of Public Instruction

Highlights of the August 18, State Board of Education meeting:

School Construction

The State Board of Education took the following actions:

1. Approved preliminary plans for an addition to the Leach School in the DeLaWarr District No. 47 to provide facilities for handicapped children. Funds in the amount of $324,000 are provided for the one-story addition under Chapter 429, Vol. 55, Laws of Delaware.

2. Approved preliminary plans for additions and conversions at the main school plant in Millsboro District No. 23. The plans prepared by Dollar, Bonner, Blake & Manning provide food services, art and music facilities, physical education and library expansion. Funds in the amount of $750,550 are available under Chapter 429, Vol. 55, Laws of Delaware, for the construction work.

3. Approved certificates of necessity 202 A, B and C for the Newark Special School District for a total amount of $2,087,000 in funds to be provided under Chapter 429, Vol. 55, Laws of Delaware. Certificate 202 A provides for a new elementary school of 24 classrooms and additional facilities, 202 B for the purchase of additional land for school sites.

4. Authorized Kenton School District No. 9 to proceed with planning for new school facilities in coordination with Smyrna Special School District.

5. Approved purchase of a portable classroom unit for use at Magnolia School District No. 50.

Referendums

The State Board of Education: 1. Acknowledged receipt of a letter from Georgetown Special School District, requesting permission to hold referendum on October 8. The referendum would provide local funds for purchase of site and construction of a 12-classroom elementary school. The Board instructed the Department to continue with planning and preparation of a certificate of necessity for consideration at a later date.

2. Approved holding of three referenda on Nov. 12, by the DeLaWarr School District No. 47 for additions to local school facilities.

3. Approved October 8, as a date for a referendum in the Alfred I. duPont School District No. 7. The referendum will be to seek approval for local funds for a second high school, a seventh elementary school and purchase of two sites.

Tentative Change in School Construction Manual

A new procedure, presented by Coordinator of School Construction Francis H. Bennett, was tentatively adopted by the State Board of Education for inclusion in the school construction manual, so as not to delay several construction programs.

The new procedure will undergo further study by the offices of the Budget Director and State Planning Director, State Department of Public Instruction personnel, chief school officers and lay personnel. The tentative policy is as follows:

"1. School District's decision that a new building is necessary.

"2. Authorization and justification by school plant planning section.

"3. Certificate of Necessity written in broad form to cover expected needs.

"This certificate of necessity would authorize a referendum by the local school district, either before or after legislative approval. This Certificate of Necessity will include a paragraph to read as follows:

"This Certificate of Necessity will be validated by a Certification of Certificate of Necessity which will be issued after receipt and approval of preliminary plans and specified guidelines for constructing, furnishing and equipping of this project, as approved by the State Board of Education."

"4. Presentation of preliminary plans and specific guideline for constructing, furnishing, and equipping building covered by Certificate of Necessity.

"5. Certification of Certificate of Necessity issued after approval of the State Board of Education of preliminary plans and specific guidelines.

"This certification will only be issued after legislative appropriation.

"6. Approval of final plans and specifications by the State Board of Education."

Change in School Construction Formula

Approval of the State Board of Education was given to a change in the school construction formula to provide for schools with special units for handicapped children. The following paragraph was added to the formula:

"At its discretion, the State Board of Education may modify the basic rules on size, construction and equipment in school projects being constructed or renovated for use of the handicapped children."

Awarding of Bus Contracts

Bus contracts for the 1966-67 school year were awarded by the State Board of Education to the low bidders contingent on the approval of a request to the office of the budget director for the transfer of $30,000 from the Educational Contingency Fund to the Transportation Account.

Maternity Leave

A ruling concerning eligibility of teachers and administrators for maternity leave was adopted by the State Board of Education, subject to approval by the Attorney General, as follows:

"A certified professional teacher or administrator shall be eligible for maternity leave after having served in a school district for a period of 36 months, including active service in the equivalent of at least three full school years."

Assignment of 10 and 11 Month Personnel

The State Board of Education adopted a modification of State Department of Public Instruction Personnel Policies regarding 10 and 11 month personnel by striking out references to 196 and 215 days and inserting instead the following regulation:

"Those persons working 10 or 11 months in the State Department of Public Instruction shall report for work on each of the working days during 10 or 11 calendar months with beginning and ending dates for the calendar period to be set by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction."

Transfer of Property

Approval of the State Board of Education was given to the transfer of the Townsend School No. 125-C to the Middletown District No. 60, after the board noted that the action had the approval of the State Planning Office. A request from the Office of Economic Opportunity for use of the Townsend facility was referred to Middletown No. 60 district.

Request for Legal Counsel

The State Board of Education authorized transfer of a request for legal counsel from the Attorney General's Office from the Board of Trustees of the New Castle County Vocational-Technical School for legal assistance in drafting a contract for employment of a school construction consultant for the school.

Scholarship Awards

The State Board of Education approved the awarding of scholarships to 18 Delaware students as recommended by the Scholarship Advisory Council.

Transfer of Equipment

Dr. Gousha brought to the attention of the State Board of Education the action which has been initiated by the Board of Trustees of William C. Jason Comprehensive High School regarding transfer of equipment from the facility.

Construction Industry Takes Big Step

Delaware's construction industry has taken a big step toward assuring a constant supply of one of its most important resources—trained people.

The industry, in conjunction with the University of Delaware, will provide educational opportunities for persons in the field and also for others who want to enter the field.

The instruction will be for all levels of people in the construction business—from company presidents to laborers.

But the overall goal of the entire program will be the same regardless of level—to raise the stature of the industry and at the same time help the individual increase his capabilities to contribute to the industry and his own future.

The General Building Contractors of Delaware, through the Industry Advancement Program (I.A.P.), will provide $10,200 to finance the program. That amount will be matched by the U.S. Office of State Technical Services through the University of Delaware's Division of Technical and Business Services (TABS).

The $20,400 will finance a year-long program of education and planning.

Five courses will be offered between October and May, 1967; there will be a top management seminar; and a three-year certificate program will be developed which will include the five courses being offered this year.

The first courses, which will begin in mid-October, will be Decision-Making and Mechanical Installation. Both are intended for foremen and superintendents, or anyone aspiring to these positions.

Thomas L. Little, coordinator of the Industry Advancement Program of the General Building Contractors of Delaware in addition to operating his regular business said, "The construction industry needs trained people just as it needs building material like lumber, steel, and cement."

"If the industry realized that in a few years, its supply of lumber would be gone, you can be sure that it would be out planting trees, well, that's what we're doing with I.A.P. (Industry Advancement Program)—we're planting the trees that will be the managers, superintendents, foremen, and skilled workers of the future."

Little said, "The industry has wanted to develop such an educational program for some time. The advent of the Industry Advancement program and TABS at the University of Delaware provided the impetus and made it possible to put the program into effect."

Robert W. Cook, director of the university's Division of Technical and Business Services, said, "The Industry Advancement Program is a natural for our division. It is designed to upgrade the industry by educating and training its people to become better managers, better superintendents, better foremen, and better mechanics. At the same time, it will help equip the tradesmen to move into middle management positions, and those in middle management to occupy top management jobs."

Little said the Delaware program is patterned after Philadelphia's, one of the construction industry's most successful and respected I.A.P. programs. "If we can come close to the job Philadelphia contractors are doing to educate their people and assure an adequate manpower pool, our program will be successful," he said.

The directors of the General Building Contractors of Delaware's I.A.P. include some of the state's leading general contractors. Eugene Di Sabatino is chairman; John Healy II and Ernest J. DiSabatino, vice-chairmen; Charles Cantera, secretary, and John B. Reynolds, treasurer. Anthony J. Vignola is manager.

The courses will be conducted by the University of Delaware's Extension Division. The students will be selected by the construction industry representatives on a first-come, first-served basis, Little said.

Classes will generally be held during the evening, and will be limited to about 30 students each. TABS Director Cook said the I.A.P. has three short range objectives and one long range goal. The short range objectives are: —Initiate and teach five courses, two of which will start in October, during the 1966-67 school year.

—Arrange and offer an 18-hour, three-day seminar on operations research for the top management of the construction industry.

—Plan and develop a permanent education institute offering a broad gauge curriculum that will meet the continuing and developing needs of the industry at all levels.

"The long range plan is to implement the comprehensive program," Cook said, "and continue to develop industry education to meet industry needs through research, education, expansion of curriculum, and attraction of new professionals and skilled tradesmen to the industry market."

If you have a calorie-counter or a no-sugar person in your home try freezing peaches without sugar. Artificial sweetener may be added just before serving.

Peaches can be packed into containers without added liquid or sweetening if they can be covered with water containing ascorbic acid. They can be packed crushed in their own juice or covered with a bit of peach puree rather than water.

Instead of the usual sugar and water sirup water containing ascorbic acid is most often used. Ascorbic acid is really vitamin C and is used to keep peaches from turning dark. Sometimes anti-darkening mixtures contain sugar, but the plain sugar-free ascorbic acid is available at drug stores in crystalline form or as tablets. Add 1/2 teaspoon of crystalline ascorbic acid to each quart of cold water.

Slice peaches right into the liquid mixture and then package in meal size portions labeled as a dietetic pack.

Storage periods are a great deal shorter for fruits that would ordinarily be sweetened before freezing. Packages of fruits should be used frequently in the first few months of storage. Eight months is the recommended limit for peaches stored this way.

For best results allow fruits to thaw in the refrigerator in unopened containers. A hurried thaw will affect quality.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

JUST FRIENDS

Come, meet my friends, the ones who never fail me,
 The ones who give, and ask not in return;
 The friends who beckon me in early springtime,
 And greet me with a smile at every turn.

I meet them in the lanes and country hillside,
 I see them in the field and through the dell;
 They talk to me and, mute-like tell their story,
 In ways that nature lovers all can tell.

The dew-drop on the leaf of full blown clover,
 The honeybee that's resting on the flower,
 The furrowed path the plowboy leaves behind him,
 All speak, as does the gentle summer shower.

The placid eye and lazy looking cattle,
 The oat-field as it's waving in the wind,
 The dusty lanes where weeds grow along the edges,
 Each one to me a story has entwined.

The woodland where the robin meets the bluebird,
 The little stream that dazzles in the sun,
 The falling leaf that's whisp'd from midst the others,
 All tell to me their story one by one.

The wall that's covered over with poisoned ivy,
 The shining snake that glides across the leaves,
 The fallen tree across the wooded pathway,
 Each talks as though the printed page one reads.

Just friends, I say that meet me in my rambles,
 The ones that make the world seem ever new,
 The ones that help us all forget our troubles,
 Come meet my friends I say, just me and you.

The Rev. John R. Gunn reminds us in the Gold Star Family Album that "It takes friends to make friends" and backs up this assertion by quoting (Proverbs 18-24) "A man that hath friends must show himself friendly."

It has been my good fortune to find good friends wherever I lived throughout the many states and surroundings covered by the Pennsylvania Railroad system, and I am happy to add that Delaware has been no exception.

Now retired and living by the side of the road (Paradise Alley Rd.) which abounds in friends and fields for nature lovers, I want to endorse the policy of a wise old philosopher who said: "If you would increase your happiness and prolong your life, forget your neighbor's faults. Forget all the unkind remarks you hear each day and give thought to the cause that provoked it. Forget the peculiarities of your friends and only remember the good which makes you remember them. Forget all the personal quarrels and histories you may have heard by accident which, if repeated would seem a thousand times worse."

"Blot out as far as possible all the disagreeables of life. They will come, but will only grow larger when you remember them. Obliterate that yesterday was disagreeable; start today with a clean sheet, writing up it for memory's sake only those things that are lovable."

"Remember that some day we must give an account of our words, deeds and thoughts. Therefore, let us try to make life beautiful for ourselves and for others."

LOOKING AHEAD

Another month is slipping by,
 Wonder what lies ahead for you and I.
 But it's not for mere mortals
 Like us, to see ahead into time's portals.

Ah, yes, another month is around the bend,
 Wonder what then will be the trend.
 As the leaves start turning from green to red,
 We think of the long winter months ahead.

Soon another month will be past
 And we will, at long last,
 Be able to make our selection,
 In the November General Election.

Then it's Christmas time again,
 As another month rolls around the bend.
 And the world is full of peace and joy,
 As Santa brings gifts for each girl and boy.

Then it's time for our New Year's resolution;
 And maybe to find a solution
 To the problems that trouble us now and then,
 As a new year starts again.

And as we do our daily chore,
 Like in the days that were before,
 The months go swiftly by
 As time just seems to fly.

And then the flowers begin to bloom,
 As spring erases winter's gloom.
 Then the children squeal with elation,
 As school closes for summer vacation.

But, all too soon comes the summer's end,
 As it's back to school once again;
 To sharpen the minds that have become dull,
 With the long summer lull.

As each month passes it seems to appear,
 That the months are the same, year after year.
 There are very few changes, we must confess,
 As year by year we progress.

Automobile travel is safer than the horse was.

People who yearn for the good old days may be surprised to know that in 1909 there were 30 fatalities for each 100 million horse-travel miles compared to the nation's current motor vehicle fatality rate of 5.6 deaths for each 100 million vehicle miles of travel.

NATIONAL HIGHWAY WEEK SEPT 18-24

There's one thing for certain and we are aware,
 As time before us has laid bare;
 The fact that we cannot see or escape,
 What is to be our fate.

So, while on this earth, don't make haste,
 For precious time you should not waste,
 For to some of us, at least,
 All too soon, time will cease.

Now into reality, as the months quickly pass by,
 It's back to the present for you and I,
 And as the days end for you and me,
 We harken to the tune, "Nearer My God To Thee".

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

September is "Back to School Month" for many, "Better Breakfast Month", for all of us and definitely "Back in the Old Routine" for most of us. During this period of changeover from summer to autumn, you will notice changes at the grocery store, also. Prices are fluctuating even more than normal and supplies of many fresh fruits and vegetables are varying. This unsettled state of the market is expected to continue for several weeks until regular supplies of autumn produce are established.

There is a definite trend upward in prices for such summer time favorites as tomatoes, peaches, watermelon, and cantaloupes. Avocados, seedless grapes, sweet corn, and summer squash will also take a bigger bit out of the food budget. But on the other side of the ledger are honeydews, pineapples, Italian plums, Bartlett pears, and cooking apples—all are a bit cheaper this weekend.

The vegetables that are making news are cauliflower and broccoli as heavy supplies are making these two autumn vegetables a very reasonable buy. The quality of head lettuce is generally improved due to more favorable weather, however, prices still vary from high to only fair. Check weekend specials for good buys.

The lower cost vegetable selections include beets, green onions, celery, carrots, eggplant, cucumbers, and onions. Cabbage and potatoes remain among the lowest choices in cost per serving.

The recent increase in cattle receipts resulted in lower prices—in some cases receipts were reported to be about 20% more than the previous week. More beef is also in prospect as the number of cattle on feed is up by about 11% from a year ago. This all adds up to continued specials on favorite cuts of beef.

Marketing of hogs in the Midwest has increased in the past few weeks and live hog prices are down. With a 10% larger pig crop coming to market supplies of pork should increase for the next few months. As it looks now there will be more pork available and prices should slide downward a bit.

Broiler marketings continue to be about 8% greater than a year ago, and the turkey crop is 11% greater than last year. To sum it all up—the outlook for the rest of this year is for somewhat lower retail meat prices.

To offset a bit lower meat prices, are the higher prices being paid for fish. Receipts remain on the light side. Porgies are scarce and much higher than usual at this season and your best bet for lower cost choices include bluefish, King mackerel, and whiting.

Nat. Highway Week Sept. 18-24

National Highway Week, Sept. 18-24 is an appropriate time to reaffirm the Delaware Oil Men's Association support for safe and adequate highways, according to B. W. LaDage, chairman.

"Delaware's progress, propriety and security depend upon the construction and maintenance of the streets, roads and expressways we need," LaDage said. The petroleum spokesman paid tribute to the individual highway user, "who pays the special taxes—primarily the six-cent per gallon state gasoline levy—that make our road system possible."

The petroleum spokesman re-emphasized his organization's support for sound highway planning and financing, "so that our customers—the highway users—will receive a dollar's worth of roads for each dollar in special taxes."

Poultry Housing Meet Set At U. of D. Substation

Will include a visit to Lyndon THAHO, o. htrah raharoh dodlu, arador arodar dorad rodarodar odolidoladidol didid lid lodof Marodar rodarod rodarod radol

The newest techniques in broiler housing, construction and environmental control will be highlighted during the fifth annual Broiler Housing Seminar, September 23, at the University of Delaware's Georgetown Substation. Program topics to be presented by researchers and industry representatives from eight states include an evaluation of mechanical ventilation systems, emergency power sources, heating systems and the economics of improved broiler housing. Much of the all-day meeting will be devoted to experimental housing and housing needs of the future. Poultrymen will hear about a total electrical control environment house and a prefab poultry house. University of Delaware agricultural engineer E. W. Walpole will explore the question "Should We Build Still Better Houses?"

Other University of Delaware staff members appearing on the program include: W. T. McAllister, extension economist; George Chaloupka, poultry research associate; and Tom Williams, rural civil defense specialist.

Poultrymen who plan to attend the seminar must register by September 21, according to Ray Lloyd, extension poultryman at the University substation. Last year poultry industry leaders from more than a dozen states attended the event. According to Lloyd it is the only seminar devoted exclusively to broiler housing held anywhere in the country.

The annual event is sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Services of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association and Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc.

Ornamental Disease Notes

By Wm. J. Manning, J. W. Heuberger

Boxwood Canker
 A common problem on boxwood is boxwood canker, caused by the fungus Pseudonectria rousseliana.

Leaves and branches that are infected by this fungus are tan and bleached. Small, pink to orange, waxy pustules are frequently found on branches and stems; these are the fruiting bodies of the fungus. The bark on the branches is frequently loose and peels easily and cankers are often found on older branches.

Dead branches should be pruned out and burned. Three applications, at ten day intervals in the spring, of a maneb or zineb fungicide should be made at the rate of one tablespoon per gallon of water. A good fertilization program also helps.

Virus Disease of Dahlias
 Mosaic, ring-spot, and stunt are three common virus diseases that affect dahlias.

Dahlia plants with mosaic have dwarfed or twisted leaves with a mosaic pattern of pale yellow and green. The virus is transmitted to other dahlias by aphids. Ring-spot, also known as spotted wilt, appears as pale yellow rings on the leaves of infected dahlias. Several insects serve as carriers of this virus.

Dahlias infected by the stunt virus are short with many twisted and mottled small leaves in a loose rosette pattern. Insects are thought to be carriers of the virus. Pull up and destroy virus-infected dahlias and do not store for the winter. Their removal helps prevent the spread of the virus to other plants.

Control insects such as aphids and leafhoppers during the growing season to prevent the spread of viruses among dahlias.

Hearings Tuesday on Referenda For Sewer Plant and City Hall

Public hearings will be held Tuesday night in the City Hall on referenda for a City Hall and a sewer improvement program.

The hearing on the sewer referendum will be held at 8 p.m.; the other, a half an hour later. The usual City Council meeting will be held before the hearings.

Put Magic In Lunch Box

School time is lunch box time. While mothers are always interested in packing a highly nutritious lunch, they also want varied and appealing menus. "Lunch Box Magic," a University of Delaware Extension bulletin, includes suggestions for menus that will provide variety, appeal, and nutrition.

The lunch box meal should include one-third the essential nutrients for the day, according to the bulletin. For the school child, follow the pattern set by the school lunch program. Include a two-ounce serving of a protein rich food such as meat, fish, poultry, cheese or peanut butter. Use a serving of bread, spread with butter or margarine, and include vegetables or fruit in the lunch box. Don't forget a pint thermos of milk if it cannot be bought at school.

Vary the menu, but keep the combinations simple to please young appetites. For children's lunches, avoid bulky sandwiches and heavy foods and be sure to keep in mind their likes and dislikes. However, don't forget color, flavor and texture—put chewy and something gay with color in every lunch.

Use crunchy finger foods, the bulletin suggests. Try celery, radishes, carrot slices, unpeeled cucumber slices, turnip sticks or a piece of cauliflower. Or, stuff a piece of celery with cheese or spread cheese or peanut butter between apple slices.

Lunch box sandwiches should be fresh and moist, but not soggy. Use day-old bread and spread with softened, but not melted, butter or margarine to prevent filling from soaking in to bread. Wrap crisp greens, tomatoes, and pickles separately to add to the sandwich when eaten. Wrap sandwiches tightly or put in sandwich bag and refrigerate or freeze if sandwiches are not packed into lunch box immediately.

Keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold—a vacuum bottle will do either. Use frozen fruits, frozen cakes, pies or cookies, or frozen individual-portion cans of juice to keep other foods chilled and to provide a refreshing drink or dessert. To use gelatin salads in the lunch box, especially in warm weather, reduce liquids in the recipe by one-third cup.

For desserts use cupcakes, fruit turnovers, or, for a surprise, custards varied with coconut, fruit, chocolate or butter-scotch sauce in the bottom of the custard cup. Put pie filling in a plastic dish and top with a slice of baked pastry or a slice of pound cake.

Menu hints, sandwich filling ideas and tips on lunch box packing are included in the bulletin, "Lunch Box Magic." Copies are available from the Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, Delaware 19711.

Letter to the Editor

Little League Baseball—

There will be a little league in Harrington next year and it's not going to be quite as little as it was this year.

That's the impression I gathered from a group of master-minded men assembled at a meeting at the Legion Home last week under the able leadership of Harold Fry and his good wife Doris, president and secretary of one of the most essential movements our community has undergone to make Harrington a better place to live in.

The meeting was attended by almost all of the managers, coaches and umpires who officiated during the past season, practically all of whom, had other commitments for the evening but came right from their jobs or dinner tables, the same as they have done all season and expressed their willingness to continue next year. We are going to hear more about these fellows later. Harold is going to call another meeting soon for election of officers and other details for next season and would appreciate a little more interest shown by some of the businesses which the little players so proudly advertise on the backs of their uniforms.

These little lads are our future mayors, doctors, lawyers and city managers. Let's not let them down.

The three top prizes in the color print, color transparencies, and black and white print categories are $100 savings bonds. Other prizes listed are gift certificates from various camera stores, cameras, and accessories.

There are 27 awards in all with each award winner receiving a citation from Governor Charles L. Terry, Jr.

Honolulu Merritt Laws Is Back In Town

By W. C. Burgess

"Honolulu" Merritt Laws is back in town. He and his wife, also.

It seems like some of these folks never get enough of our little biddie ole' town. That is Merritt, and also W. C. But of course.

Here is a little old story. It seems like a fast freight was coming through town, and pore ole' Merritt was riding her. Just like a stubborn mule—that ole' freight forgot to stop. So, pore ole' Merritt reached down and hit the air brakes. Mr. Freight stopped and the railroad bulls rushed into the house. Merritt lived right by the railroad tracks. He was real busy at the table eating his dinner with that innocent look on his face—which the Laws can only have.

They knew he was the guy who hit the air brakes — but they couldn't prove it.

Farrow—come in—now it is your turn to tell a whopper! You know—a Republican can lie just as well as a Democrat.

D.S.T. Purchases Total $7,212,000

The Diamond State Telephone Company and its major supplier, the Western Electric Company, together with the Bell Telephone Company, of Pennsylvania, purchased over $7,212,000 in materials, goods and services during 1965 from approximately 900 Delaware firms and individuals, it was reported by Myrddyn H. Evans, Diamond State's general manager.

Included are 523 suppliers in New Castle County and 343 in Kent and Sussex Counties.

The payments included such items as auto repairs, tree surgeons' fees, gasoline, plumbing, etc.

Evans pointed out that in 1965 the Company had a payroll of $10,897,000, operating expenses of $21,355,000 and paid out a $6,311,000 tax bill.

"This is a substantial contribution to the economy of Delaware and our nation," he said.

AWOL In Nuremberg, Germany

"The Captain Pulled His Hair"—He Wasn't Going Anywhere

By W. C. Burgess

"Ho! Hum! Now that the activities are over—Guess I will mosey down to the hospital and get my hand fixed up. — And away we go—from one hospital out to one at a Lake. It was a general hospital, I am quite sure—because some of the boys never made it out of there. So, I get the old paw worked on. The doctor said don't move now! This operation is a local, but it was between the leaders. He didn't know he wasn't operating on a local—it was an express. The penicillin was wonderful—you got it every eight hours whether you wanted it or not free, too. I busted a stitch out of that hand going out to the latrine and it took six months to heal up. They cut the stitches on each side and pull 'em out—but they left this one—a doctor in Camp Pittsburgh on the way home, told me. "I know what's wrong with that—out comes the old scalpel—and with a little digging, out comes the stitch.

The doctor came around one day and said—"well chief, it's your turn to go home tomorrow. If you can get a loogie to come and get you—he can sign you out—otherwise you will have to go to the Repple-Depple—Replacement Depot."

"Ok. Can I get a pass to go in and report to the BRASS?" "No, I can't give you a pass; but I can give you permission to ride the mail truck in."—And away we go—into Salzburg, Austria."

The captain to me, "Burgess, what are you doing here?" I said, "the captain of the medics gave me permission to ride the mail truck in—so I could pick me up an officer to come and get me in the morning—otherwise, it means you will have to come all the way up to the Repple Depple to get me." The captain says, "Ok."

So, W. C. hits the mail truck back to the hospital, and walks into the orderly tent to be sure he is on the manifest—and sure enough—he was on it alright—but 'bass ackwards"—his name was where his serial number was supposed to be!"

Now it seems the pore' old lieutenant must have had a date or got mixed up himself — because when he did come for me—I was nowhere to be found—so, stupid—pardon me—goes and says, "that man is AWOL."

Now I do not know whether the MP's were looking for me or knot—because they never would have found me if they did. "Gone a whole week, too!"

"Burgess, Winston Churchill, ASN., 34242450, get on this truck; you are going to the Repple-Depple"

"But corporal, I have a spankin' brand new first lieutenant, or something anyway—coming to get me!"

The corporal says, "get what you got, even if it isn't much, and get it on this truck, lock stock and barrel, and everything else, or you will be violating a direct order."

So, Winston, gets on the truck and takes a little trip—

It was almost a two-day trip—but not quite—in a six-by-six. New clothes, extra rations and everything. After all, we were billeted too, in a nice German barracks—and boy, it was high class.

"Burgess, report to the orderly room—"Boy, I got 'em this time"—right where the wool was short."

There was a sergeant from Baker Battery who had come all the way up from Salzburg to pick up two of his boys—and after checking the manifest—he found out that Winston was up there.—So he says—"Come on let us go,"—so we took two more days to get back to Salzburg.

Burgess walks into the Battery C. P. and here is le captain—by name, one Joseph T. Delaney, of West Memphis, Ark. He thought he was seeing a ghost—he was aghast—he pulled his helmet down over his eyes and ran back into the Battery C. P. and sent out his nibs—his nibs has to be the first sergeant by the name of Lebaron.

The first sergeant came out and said, "Burgess, where have you been, touring Europe?"

"No, sergeant, it is only me, and I wished I was over the sea—cried AWOL Weenie, the soldier." There I go, braggin' again!

Go over to the Battalion C. P. and pick up my temporary medical records."

And so ended the little story of AWOL in Nuremberg. I had been there before. We went through during the war.

Boy, did I—me, of course—keep them guys busy they didn't have much time to worry about past deeds during the war—not at all.

Now this guy, Captain Joe, took the dp's offa kitchen police—and they were glad just to work for food—(during the depression, I worked six hours a day for free meals, in Frisco)—and put us soldiers back on kp—a week at a time. Quote: "It'll keep your boys minds off your troubles."—How stupid, "with plenty of women to chase"—"who was worryin'!"

So, W. C.'s turn comes—regular duty—one week. He is out there puttin' the steel wool to thos pots and pans—and up comes el captain—He didn't have enough points to get home on. W. C. turns his back on him—the captain grabs ole' W. C. and turns him completely around and shakes his hand. I forget what courtmartial ruling that comes under—"an officer shall never touch an enlisted man." Anyway, the compliment was appreciated.

"You know, I kinda like it right here." "I figured that if I ever got back to Harrington, I would roll a peanut down main street with my snoot."

Sentimentality—"What is that!" "One of the boys had gone west, and I went over to see if he was one of the Harrington boys, so I could tell his parents, if he was—the corporal barked, "Burgess, get away from there—and that was that!"

"However so humble—there is no place like home! They always come back for a visit—even if it is only for a little while!"

Nexta Week, Maybe—"The story of the Registered Nurse!"

Follow Road Rules When Riding A Bike

"Wheeling a bike around can be fun, but it can be dangerous too," Francis J. Jamison, assistant manager of the Delaware Safety Council, said this week. "Smart bike riders steer clear of accidents by always obeying the 'rules of the road' and by keeping their bikes in top shape."

Take a look at your bike and make sure it has the proper equipment, such as: a horn or bell; a headlight visible 500 feet ahead; a tail light or reflector and reflective tape visible 500 feet behind; a rear view mirror; a kick stand; a carrier, and a chain guard.

Once you have become a good rider with lots of off-the-street practice, you're ready to take to the road. Just remember that bike riders must obey the same laws as motorists. To help them, Jamison has listed twelve rules or the safe bike rider to follow:

1. Avoid busy streets whenever you can. Expressway riding is definitely out.
2. Keep your bicycle under control — no tricky steering, weaving or racing.
3. Stay on the right side of the street, close to the curb.
4. Travel in single file when riding with others. Follow a full bike's length behind.
5. Steer with both hands on the handle grips except to signal when turning, stopping or leaving the curb.
6. Ride alone and no big bundles. Another person or a large package on your bike can block your vision and throw you off balance.
7. Come to a dead stop at all stop signs, yield signs and red or amber traffic lights.
8. Stop, look and listen before entering a street from a sidewalk, driveway or alley.
9. Use your own power. Hitting onto moving vehicles is against the law and in case of a sudden stop or swerve, off the bike you'd go.

10. Do your riding in the daytime. If you must ride at night, wear something white and turn on your lights.

11. Be ready to put on the brakes at intersections. Get off and walk your bike across busy streets, inside the white lines.

12. Let people on foot and other vehicles go first when their vehicles go to cross in front of you.

"Remember, rules are made to help you and protect you," Jamison stressed. "The habits you learn now as a bike rider will carry over when you start driving a car."

FENCE TALK

with George K. Yappa

The drought situation has become so critical this year that the Kent County Disaster Board feels obliged to ask for help. The relief requested is in the form of emergency credit, emergency hay and grazing, and emergency feed stocks from the United States Department of Agriculture.

At the present time corn yields are only 40% of normal, soybean prospects no better than 50%, and hay yields about 50%. This is the fifth consecutive dry year, and it is the worst of the five.

The dry weather calls for management changes different from normal. So our "Fence Talk" this week touches on some of these points.

Drought damaged corn may find its best use as silage. Farmers who plan to store silage in a trench or bunker silo this fall should consider the use of a plastic silo cover.

A properly used plastic cover can save enough silage nutrients to equal five to ten times the cost of the cover. A good job of packing during the filling operation is also essential.

The cover should be applied as soon after filling as possible. Four- or six-mil polyethylene is the most popular material for sealing out rain and air from silage. The plastic should be weighted with sand or other material to hold it in place and minimize spoilage if the plastic is accidentally punctured.

Plan your alfalfa cutting schedule to allow time for re-growth before winter, if you want to keep the stand another season.

Agronomists say September is the critical month. Do not cut between September 15 and the first killing frost.

Alfalfa needs time to store sugars and starches in the crowns and roots before cold weather stops growth. Without a reserve of stored sugars, the crop is more prone to winter injury. Since the plant doesn't begin to store food reserves in the roots until top growth reaches six to eight inches, it's necessary to allow several weeks for regrowth.

Farmers and homeowners are generally aware that soil testing is a useful tool which can lead to greater profits and more attractive lawns and gardens. This is true during normal years, but soil testing should pay even greater dividends when used following a drought.

In a normal year, you would not expect the soil fertility level to change much between the time of sampling and the time the crop was harvested if the lime and fertilizer recommendations made earlier had been followed. Under normal growing conditions, the crop will use most of the fertilizer and lime supplied. At the end of the season, the soil fertility level should be at least as high as it was at the beginning of the season.

Under extremely dry weather conditions, planned yield goals are seldom attained. The crop may not use half of the fertilizer which was applied. Thus there will often be a substantial carry-over of fertilizer in the soil from one year to the next. But how much of this fertilizer will be available for crops the following year? The best means of evaluating this carry-over is through the use of a regular soil testing program.

Soil testing this fall can save Kent County farmers many thousands of dollars. The residual fertility in our drought-stricken soils should help to reinforce the bank accounts of many farmers next year. But the key to this fertility is through soil testing. For this reason alone, we encourage soil testing this fall more than we have ever encouraged it before.

Call our County Extension Service at 736-1448 for soil testing information.

Ron Morris Again Sets New X-Country Mark

Ronald Morris, the 1965 state jayvee cross-country champion, regained the course record on Harrington High's brand-new layout at Killen's Pond, when he blazed the nearly 2.4 miles distance in thirteen minutes and forty-eight seconds.

Ron set the first new mark for the grid when he was clocked in 14.59, a couple of weeks ago.

Nick Morris, 1964 state jayvee king, lowered that time to 14.15, only to see that amazing eighth grader, Chris Wetherhold, come breezing by in the last half mile a night or two later in 14.09.

Dwight Hackett, the first cross-country runner at H.H.S. in 1957, now resides in the New Castle area. Hackett competes for the Delaware Track and Field Club in distance races. He also works out with both Wm. Penn High and New Castle and Harrington High teams. Monday night Hackett set a hot pace and thus helped several of the Lions to new personal records.

Nick Morris dropped from 14.09 to 13.57, Chris Wetherhold from 14.09 to 14.04, Danny Hicks from 15.14 to 14.50.

Danny Hitchens, one of the smallest high school athletes you will ever see moved downward from 15.16 to 15 minutes flat. Hitchens is nearing 14 and approaching 70 pounds but is likely to be in the top 10 H.H.S. runners all year as an eighth grader. Many a much taller and older harrier ate this mighty mite's dust last year and from all indications the percentage of comparative giants in his wake will increase this fall.

Bob Rash doesn't have the mileage under his belt that many of his teammates do but is starting to close the gap after only three time trials. Rash cut 16 seconds off his best time in his last two runs.

Joey Gray needs Charley Brown at his side to do his best. This colorful duo's three time trials are identical 17, 16.42 and 16.25 clockings. Both are fine prospects with four years to run (Brown) and five (Gray). At their present rate of progress each may someday rate with the top distance runners here.

Gerald Sherwood's first venture into sports at Harrington High School has been a pleasant surprise, thus far. After a fair 19.12, his first trip around the hills and sand pits, he exploded to a 16.45 in his second effort and 16.18 in the third try. This latter mark gave the lanky junior the No. 7 spot on the team at that time.

Richard Benson in 1965 ran the old, easier course in 17.54 after several workouts and races. Tackling this season's much tougher layout he was timed in 16.33 the first practice session. This shows great improvement, indeed.

Other Lions to create new personal records since last week are Tony Kibler, another little guy, who dropped from 19.15 to 16.45, Don Cagle from 18.05 to 17.56, Randy Cagle from 18.15 to 17.46, Roger Hicks from 17.42 to 17.25, Brad Morris from 19.30 to 18.03, Billy Walls from 17.11 to 16.58.

Dale Motter, one of last year's crop of fine, new prospects came out for the first time this week and immediately placed himself in the top 10 with a good 15.57 time trial. Only an eighth grader he rates as a real hope for the future.

He said all checks should be made out to the Delaware Chapter, American Red Cross, 910 Gilpin Avenue, Wilmington, Del. 19806. All contributions should be designated "Santa Bags for GIs in Vietnam". Persons living in Kent and Sussex Counties should send their contributions to the Dover Red Cross office, 42 South State Street, Dover, Del. 19901.

"With deadline mailing dates already set by the Post Office Department, the Red Cross is prepared to begin the project immediately," De Luca added. "The Santa Bags must be in the mail by Oct. 15."

The DuPont Company is contributing the material for the Santa Bags.

The Delaware Chapter is seeking individuals and volunteers from civic and church groups and agencies to sew and wrap these holiday bags. All individuals and groups desiring to volunteer should phone the Red Cross at 655-3341 in Wilmington. Red Cross officials pointed out that the American Red Cross has an unparalleled avenue for channeling gifts direct to servicemen through Red Cross personnel serving with U.S. forces in Vietnam.

Del. Wildlife Federation Officers Elected

The Delaware Game and Fish Commission now has many opportunities to buy land for public use but lacks the funds to make the purchases, according to Dr. Jay Harnic, assistant director.

A year ago people were reluctant to sell their land but now many want to sell, Harnic informed members of the Delaware Wildlife Federation at their annual convention here last weekend at Ocean House. He attributed the change to declining stock prices and poor farm crops because of the drought.

The convention re-elected Theodore Horsey of near Smyrna as president of the Delaware Wildlife Federation. Other officers re-elected are: vice presidents, Franklin Pierce of Lewes, Harry M. Armstrong of Wilmington, James C. Warren of Smyrna, and Mrs. John H. Prest of Bear; secretary, John S. Tustall, of New Castle; treasurer, Anthony J. Ferrara of Richardson Park; affiliate representative, Edmund H. Harvey of Wilmington.

Harnic told the convention that two years ago the commission was allocated $750,000 for land purchases from the state's divestiture fund.

As a result of this appropriation the commission now owns about 12,000 acres of what it calls "game and fish oriented" land, he said.

The commission's goal, originally suggested by the State Planning Commission, is 30,000 acres by 1983.

"But before we can proceed any further toward that goal, we need more money," Harnic said. Recent purchases by the commission include tracts at Woodland Beach and Bowers Beach. According to Harnic, the commission is in the process of turning its Bowers Beach holdings into "One of the best marine access areas on the East Coast."

A resolution was adopted urging the Federal Government to establish a national system of estuarine areas and to help state and local governments restore them as spawning grounds for many species of fish and shellfish and as a habitat for waterfowl and other birds and fur-bearing.

The convention also voted to urge Congress to extend the wetlands acquisition program beyond the July 1, 1968 deadline. The resolution said the program still is far short of the minimum believed necessary for the perpetuation of flights of continental migratory waterfowl.

William Davis, Philadelphia regional director, U.S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, talked on open space acquisition and conservation.

A fishing contest held during the convention was won by Joseph Lagarelli of Wilmington and Mr. and Mrs. James C. Warren of Smyrna. Other awards were presented to Edward Denning of Wilmington, Al Pfister of Dover and William Robinson of Wilmington.

The Delaware Wildlife Federation is composed of about 4500 sportsmen and conservationists. It seeks support in the State Legislature for:

Recodification of fish and game laws with special emphasis on modern concepts of fisheries regulations.

A continued land and water acquisition program for fish and wildlife with qualified power of eminent domain.

Separation from the Game and Fish Commission of responsibilities for dog control.

TAX POLICY

Torbett said he will have additional exemption forms made, and will send them to the some 600 persons who qualify for exemptions this year.

The application is drawn to indicate that the claimant was on Oct. 1 of the previous year a citizen and resident of the state for three years; 65 years of age or older; the owner of a dwelling which is a constituent part of the real property for which the exemption is claimed; and that he is living in such dwelling.

The application also established that the claimant's income for the period provided did not exceed $3,000, and that no member of his family lives in the dwelling and has an income in excess of $3,000.

The law, passed by the General Assembly last year, states that those who qualify can get county tax exemptions on their property up to $5,000 assessed valuation.

and start feeding on the plants. Only the maggots that have developed to the pupa stage before cold weather begins develop into mature flies. Less mature maggots are killed by the first heavy frost, but not before they have caused extensive damage to the host plants. The damage can drastically reduce yields the following year.

By observing the fly-free dates, farmers are taking advantage of an insect control method that eliminates the need for chemical controls. This is possible because Hessian flies lay eggs only during the early fall. If the proper hosts — young wheat plants — are not available, no eggs are produced, and the insect population decreases. Complete eradication is impossible because some wild plant varieties are also suitable hosts, Bray points out.

press the discontent of many property owners when he asked Davidson, "What's the purpose of this meeting? It looks as if the decision is already made."

Another disgruntled property owner was Atty. Gen. David P. Buckson, who said after the meeting that the proposed western route curves to run just behind his new home northwest of Dover.

Davidson told him that the present proposal is subject to change, but added that many curves are dictated by ground conditions, attempts to avoid property damage and other factors.

Study Of Computers For Schools Underway

A $208,600 exploration of how computers can help schools do a better job is under way in Delaware.

The project, a joint venture by the Dover and Marshallton School Districts, the State Department of Public Instruction, and the University of Delaware, is supported mainly by a grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Almost $45,000 of the cost will be paid by the two districts, with the remainder being supplied by federal sources.

Project director is Dr. Dustin W. Wilson Jr., superintendent of the Dover Special School District.

Goal of the pilot program is to seek out ways in which advanced technology, particularly relating to the use of computers, can be applied to education.

Developers of the plan, including local, state, and university educators, see three main areas of application: as an aid in administrative data processing, in the field of computer-assisted instruction, and the computer as a device to teach mathematics and to illustrate scientific principles.

Dr. Wilson said the data processing function for the schools will be similar to industrial use of computers.

Some administrative fields in which the computer might help are scheduling of classes and room use, report cards, maintaining master files and student records, fiscal accounting and record-keeping, and long range planning.

The computer is able to provide a complete and quantitative job of doing administrative functions, Dr. Wilson said, and is expected to relieve teachers of much paper work.

In the second application, teacher-assisted instruction, the computer is seen as a highly sophisticated mechanical teaching machine or programmed textbook. With its ability to store information, the computer can lead an individual student through a subject area such as history, language, grammar, algebra, or anything from the curriculum, Dr. Wilson said.

Dr. Roy M. Hall, dean of the university's College of Education and a member of the project advisory committee, said the exploration will help answer a number of questions about computers and education—for instance, "How much can we teach by computers? How much will it cost? What do teachers have to know about computers to use them in class work? How can we use computers to aid classroom instruction. Does the computer really contribute to individualization of instruction and learning rate?"

While the present agreements include the Dover and Marshallton districts, the expectation is that other school districts—public, private, and parochial—will eventually join the program.

The Ed Tech project will implement a highly successful pattern established in New England, Iowa, and at other scattered locations in the U.S.

Key personnel in the project, along with Dr. Dustin Wilson, are Dr. David E. Lamb, director of the University's Computing Center; Robert L. Fisher, supervising principal of the Marshallton district, assistant project director; Dr. Craig Wilson, professor of education, University of Delaware, school organization and administrative consultant; Dr. Ralph Duke, professor of education, University of Delaware, curriculum development consultant; Dr. G. Ernest Anderson Jr., assistant professor of education, University of Delaware, technical coordinator; George L. Hall, director of the university's Teaching Resources Center, instructional technology consultant, and Dr. Russell Friend, data systems coordinator with the State Department of Public Instruction, operations and production consultant.

Drs. Dustin Wilson, Hall, Lamb, and Fisher are also on the project advisory committee, along with Dr. Richard P. Gousha, Delaware superintendent of schools.
