

Street-Improvement Work Scheduled For This Week

Paul Scotton Construction Company, Dover, planned to start improvements of Harrington streets any time this week when weather would permit.

The program calls for black-topping and curbing Third and Wolcott Streets. Sidewalks would also be replaced on the latter thoroughfare.

Cost was $25,908, to be taken from the municipal-aid appropriation of some $36,000. Funds from the appropriation will also be used for repair work on other streets.

Six-inch gravel will be used on Third Street, at its intersections with Harrington and Second Avenues, because of increased traffic at these points.

The contractor wanted to finish the work in 90 days but City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann, at an early August meeting of the Council, wanted it done in 75 days. With the rainy weather, the completion date is in doubt.

Greenwood Pair Hurt In Wreck

A Greenwood man and his wife suffered lacerations and abrasions Thursday night, Sept. 22, when their car skidded on the slippery highway and struck three guard rail posts.

State police said Louis Smith, 56, driving north on U.S. 13, lost control of the vehicle when it went into a slide at 6:10 p.m. at a point just east of here.

Smith and his wife, Mrs. Elsie Smith, 57, were taken to Milford Memorial Hospital in the Harrington Fire Company ambulance where they were treated and released.

He had abrasions of the right arm and lacerations of the left arm. Mrs. Smith received lacerations of the left arm and left leg.

Police Activity

Janice Caudius Saunders, Milford, was scheduled to appear in Family Court, Dover, yesterday on a charge of failing to use due care in the operation of a motor vehicle. Local police, who arrested Saunders Aug. 27, said his car hit another on Dorman Street.

Three young girls were scheduled to appear in Family Court yesterday on a charge of shoplifting. Police said the complaint originated from Acme Market.

Carol Twigg was fined $25 and costs Sept. 15, in Court 6 here by Magistrate Fred B. Carey on a charge of reckless driving.

"Bill Wise Hop" With 4 Bands

By W. C. Burgess

Inasmuch as I understand it, it is not the custom of this paper to give away free ads, I am going to give this guy a nice writeup on the front page, because any man who comes back from the dead deserves anything we can give him. Welcome aboard, William!

It seems like it is Thursday, and there was nobody here to write your article, so I guess I am elected, and I assure you it is a pleasure to be of service.

According to the heading, it is a "Bill Wise Hop."

Time: 7:00-11:00 (Eight, skate and donate). In crapshooting language.

Place: Harrington Armory.

Date: Oct. 8, 1966

Price: $1.00. (P. S. No complimentary tickets).

The 4 Bands who will furnish the music: "Poor Boys, Ltdg." "ME", "Galaxie", "The Scops."

And let me tell you, folks, it sounds to me "like a swingin' time."

I am quite sure Bill and Rosalie used to go to dancing school with us; remember me, I am the guy who did all the dances backwards, which is par for the course. Maybe later, we will all be able to go again, huh!

Incidentally, the bands all deserve honorable mention, because they are all donating their services. TALENT SCOUTS, please be there; and please bring along a buck, you know.

After all, one never knows, it could have been you!

Short Grocery Observes 30th Anniversary

Samuel A. Short, Jr., is celebrating his 30th year in the grocery business he started in May of 1936 under independent ownership. His store became affiliated with Clover Farm Stores served by Layton & Company, Dover, in 1946.

Last week Short received a certificate of recognition from the Clover Farm national headquarters, Cleveland, O.

Starting last week, Short will be served by the Baltimore Wholesale Grocery.

ANYONE FOR A HAIRCUT—This could be the reappearance of the short haircut as these six boys gave Harry Porter, a local barber, the O. K. to "Cut it all off." (L. to R.) Larry Mangus, Jackie Hopkins, Bobby Dean, Raymond Dale, Jr. (Seated in chair) David Hurd and Danny Skinner.

Democrats Outregister GOP 2-1

Democrats outregistered Republicans by a margin of nearly two to one in the first mobile registration ever conducted in Kent County.

In visits to three local plants Friday, and to stores throughout the county Saturday, registrars from the Kent County Department of Elections signed up 173 Democrats, 92 Republicans and 91 declines.

The new registrations followed the overall pattern for Kent County where, prior to the week-end enrollment, 13,343 voters were registered as Democrats, 7,669 as Republicans and 5,340 as declines.

The special registration received its biggest response at the General Foods Co. plant in Dover on Friday. There, the registrars signed up 71 Democrats, 48 Republicans and 45 declines.

Coleman Street House Fire

Firemen extinguished a fire on Coleman Street early Sunday evening.

Construction had been started on the building and stopped. Loss was light.

LARIMORE'S CONDITION GOOD FOLLOWING MOWING ACCIDENT

The father of two children suffered the amputation of his right leg below the knee, after a weekend mowing accident during a Jaycee fund raising project, according to Smyrna police.

Robert Larimore, 29, administrative assistant in the credit department at General Foods, Dover, hurt Sunday, was reported in good condition at Kent General Hospital, Dover, Wednesday.

Larimore, former president of the Jaycees, had joined other members of the organization in a program of beautification by trimming grass on vacant lots. Funds derived from the program were to be used for Jaycee sponsored endeavors.

Police said a blade from the tractor mower came loose when it apparently snagged on an old underground cable while one group worked behind the American Legion Home. Larimore, standing about 45 feet away, was struck by the flying blade.

Larimore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Larimore, of here.

He is a graduate of Harrington High School Class of 1955.

He is married to the former Rose Plumm.

Two-Year Project For Teaching Retarded Children

Two young University of Delaware faculty members have launched a two-year project intended to improve the technique for teaching retarded children and adults.

The research by Drs. John T. Neisworth and Robert M. Smith will be supported by a grant of some $80,000 from the U.S. office of education.

Neisworth said the research is designed to develop a new teaching strategy based on a comprehensive and systematic theoretical position.

The instructional strategy is known as the "advance organizer" technique and is a method to present new material in the manner in which learning is presumed to take place.

Neisworth explained, "The physical presentation and sequencing of new learning material in the classroom will correlate with the way the child's population growth.

Plans For C. of C.'s Christmas Program Are Well Under Way

The Christmas Committee has its plans for the annual observance of the Yuletide season well under way, it was revealed Tuesday at the monthly meeting of The Chamber of Commerce, at The Wonder R.

Joseph Madenspacher, committee chairman, disclosed festivities would start with a parade Sat., Nov. 26, with the usual route starting on Delaware Ave., and ending at Quillen Shopping Center.

The parade has been unusually successful under the leadership of Madalyn Tharp. Beside the normal categories, an attempt will be made to interest school classes to take part.

An attempt to have the 40 ft 8's locomotive will be made. The vehicle, belonging to the American Legion's fun-loving 40 ft 8, has been operated here by Albert C. Price and Kenneth G. Aiken. The locomotive, which gives the children rides, will appear here has to be ascertained.

In all likelihood, the Christmas tree and Santa Claus house will be in their usual spots at Commerce and Clark Streets. The Christmas Committee has considered use of a lot at Commerce and Dorman Streets, belonging to Thurman Brown, Verona, N. J., but there is a possibility of a lighting problem.

However, Brown wrote he would be pleased to let the community use the lot, which is also for sale.

Walter Messick has been looking for a Christmas tree and several have been located. However, it was stated, suitable Christmas trees are becoming scarcer every year.

An appropriation from the City of Harrington will take care of most of the cost of erecting the decorative lights and the current therefore. An effort will be made to keep down the cost of decorative lighting.

The chairman of the Christmas Committee and Mayor Luther P. Hatfield are planning to meet to discuss installing permanent outlets for the lights. This cannot take place until Chairman Madenspacher returns from Pennsylvania where he is spending a few days.

It is planned to solicit merchants for gift certificates, or gifts of merchandise, to be given away in Quillen Shopping Center parking lot after the November parade. Persons must be present to win.

However, there will be a major prize, and, perhaps, others, to be given away in December, possibly Christmas Eve, for which the winners do not have to be present.

As in past years, tickets may be procured from co-operating Harrington merchants.

Another phase of the Christmas program will be the awarding of cash prizes for best-decorated homes. There will also be awards for best-decorated windows of merchant establishments.

Local Lions Club Challenges Youth

The youth of Delaware have been given a challenge to develop a plan for world peace by their local Lions Club—a challenge that could earn one of them a $25,000 educational and/or career assistance grant.

The Lions of Delaware, together with Lions Clubs throughout the world, are sponsoring a world-wide essay contest for the world's youth on the most important world subject today—Peace. The contest offers $50,000 in total awards, including the $25,000 first prize, eight semi-final world regional awards of $1,000 each and travel expenses for the eight winners to Chicago, Illinois in July, 1967. At that time, the first prize winner will be chosen from the eight. Also, more than 20,000 local, district and multiple district awards will be made.

"We are hopeful one of our young people will win this worldwide prestige award," Roland G. Hastings, District Governor of Delaware's Lions Clubs, said in announcing the contest. Lion Hastings is a member of the Laurel Lions Club.

The contest is open to young people who will be 14 but less than 22 years of age as of January 15, 1967.

"We want to alert our youth to the need for world peace and focus attention on that important goal," he said.

In announcing the contest internationally, Mr. Hastings said that Lions International, the world's largest service club organization is well qualified to sponsor such a contest.

He said the world-wide representation of Lions, the attention given to international relations and friendship between different nationalities and their participation in international humanitarian programs were their credentials for the patronage of the contest.

Contestants should submit their entry in essay form, not to exceed 5,000 words.

"Judging will fall into four categories: 75 per cent of the essay's points will be devoted to content, ten per cent to organization, ten per cent to style and five per cent to mechanics," Mr. Hastings said.

"If our winner can advance through the judging stages up to the world finals he will receive an expense paid trip to Chicago to attend the Lions International 50th annual convention for the final judging of his essay in addition to the $1,000 award."

"Students wishing to enter the contest should contact one of the members of any Lions Club to get full details of the contest," he said.

Mr. Hastings announced that

TWOFOLD TECH UNIT CONFIRMED

The trustees of the Delaware Institute of Technology Tuesday reaffirmed their decision that the new school will offer college-transfer as well as technical courses.

The explanation of plans for the institute won the unqualified approval of three Sussex County men who attended Tuesday's board meeting as representatives of the Delaware School Boards Association.

Many Sussex citizens and educators protested last week over reports that the board might weight the school curriculum in favor of technical training at the expense of liberal arts courses.

Board chairman E. Hall Downes said the board is agreed that the two-campus institute should offer two years of college-level courses of a quality equal to the University of Delaware.

Also offered will be remedial training for students weak in some areas so that they too can eventually go on to four-year colleges.

Downes said the transfer, or "college parallel" courses probably will make up more than 10 per cent but not more than half of the institute's curriculum.

"That looks fine," said Dr. John Glenn of Milford, speaking for the Sussex Countians.

Last week's concern over the curriculum, he said, "was the result of a breakdown in communication" between the board and the disturbed citizens.

In addition to college parallel and remedial courses, the institute plans to offer technical and vocational training and programs in continuing education for adults.

Downes repeated Tuesday that the board hopes to open its Sussex campus, in the facility now occupied by the all-Negro William C. Jason Comprehensive High School near Georgetown in the fall of 1967. The New Castle County campus will be opened in 1968 at a site still to be picked.

Downes announced the hiring of two consultants who will study the state's educational needs and propose curricula for the institute.

One of them, Dr. Michael Brick, who heads the Center for Community Colleges at Columbia University, also will help

Terry Proclaims National 4-H Club Week

Governor Charles L. Terry, Jr. has officially proclaimed the week of September 24 to October 1 National 4-H Club Week in Delaware.

4-H Clubs have been active in Delaware for more than 50 years. In a statement recognizing the accomplishments of the 4-H program, he said, "It has contributed much to the health and welfare of the nation and has encouraged many young people to choose careers that improve family and community living."

The Governor said the 3000 boys and girls now enrolled in 4-H clubs throughout Delaware will soon be taking their places in society. "In these changing times, young people who are the citizens of tomorrow must discover and acquire the virtues of responsibility, thoughtfulness, morality and understanding. Members of this organization practice '4-H—Learning for Living'—the theme of National 4-H Club Week, as they put into practice skills developed in 4-H projects and activities."

As part of the Week's observance, 4-H club members, leaders and county agents will tour the Delaware State House and meet with state senators and representatives and a representative of the Governor's office, according to James O. Baker, state 4-H Club leader.

Miss Brenda Billingsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. S. Billingsley, Newark, and Charles Ebling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Ebling, Townsend, will be accompanied on the tour by Mrs. Louise Dempsey, leader of the Union 4-H Club from Corner Ketch, and Dean Belt, New Castle County 4-H agent.

Miss Patricia Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hopkins, Lewes, and Jeff Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mitchell, Laurel, will take part in the Dover Tour, accompanied by Mrs. Roland Hill, Lewes, leader of the Hollymount Warriors 4-H club, and by Bill Pinnell, Sussex County 4-H club agent.

Miss Pattie Stites, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stites, Dover, and Samuel Elzie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Elzie, Camden, will be present for the legislative tour. Mrs. Betty Gooden, Wyoming, leader of the Fox Hall 4-H club, and Mrs. Marion MacDon-

Harrington Enterprise Was Precursor Of The Harrington Journal

The Harrington Enterprise may not have been the community's first newspaper, but it is the oldest of which The Harrington Journal has knowledge.

A copy of the Enterprise was brought into the office some months past, dated Thurs., May 5, 1887. The Volume number was 4, indicating the newspaper had been founded several years before.

The paper was owned by J. E. Horney and was on the second floor of the building occupied now by Tony Perrone's shoe shop at No. 9 Clark St.

The paper had four pages and was known as a blanket newspaper because of its size, being 20"x25". Columns were 23 inches in length and there were eight to the page. The paper was brought to The Harrington Journal by Mrs. Grace Cooper, of Harrington and Philadelphia.

Typical of weekly newspapers of the past century, the Enterprise had practically no local news, but carried news from the city, with short stories and poetry.

The local advertising, however, throws an interesting light on Harrington in the 80's. W. G. Hardesty had a funeral parlor on the site of The Harrington Journal. Persons wishing to buy lots in Hollywood Cemetery were advised to see William T.

Sharp, father of W. W. Sharp, or James A. Smith. L. E. Rifenburg had a restaurant and Amos Cole sold insurance.

Z. C. Fleming had a drugstore in the Wolcott block, now occupied by the Post Office. William E. Collison made cabinets and had an undertaking parlor on Liberty Street, at the railroad crossing, on the site of the home of the late William Morris.

A. H. Matthews had a general store in the Wolcott Block across the street from the Charlie Louie laundry agency. James C. Reed had a clothing store and Edwin Knox, brother of the late Benjamin Knox, a barbershop. S. S.

FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapaa

Growth is inevitable... This is the conclusion of the Howard County, Maryland, legislators. So they are moving ahead with plans for orderly population growth. The new city of Columbia and new industry are changing their established rural patterns. The question looms: What about Kent County, Delaware? Are we not faced with a similar problem?

Your county agent has prepared a series of leaflets on methods of dealing with growth situations. The latest deals with the principle of deferred taxation as it operates in Maryland and in New Jersey. A reprint of a story from the "Columbia Quarterly" is included with permission of The Rouse Company, the publishers.

Other pamphlets deal with the California voluntary agricultural preserves, and with the Connecticut open space law. We suggest that they can be the basis for a service club program or a farm discussion group.

We sincerely believe that orderly growth is the most vital problem facing each of us. Those who think about it know that we do not have to live in clutter and confusion. A clean, safe and healthy community should be an extension of clean, safe and healthy homes.

A beef cattle tour is scheduled for Kent County farms on October 4, to be followed by a prime rib dinner. Those who may be interested should call our County Extension Office for details. Our telephone number is 736-1448.

We propose to start out from the new State Board of Agriculture at 2 p.m. and move to the Lyndon Caulk farm out near Mud Mill. This is a fine grazing program with exceptional watering and penning facilities.

We will then move to the F. A. Webb farm near Thompsonville to see silage and grain feeding program for fattening stock. The Webbs have a push button operation which is quite different from our average feeding program.

The Raymond Masten farm is nearby and will be the final farm visit. This is essentially a breeding operation. Professor George Litton, of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, returns as the after-dinner speaker by popular request. He is one of the top specialists in beef cattle management.

Reservations for the prime rib dinner to be held at the Dinner Bell Inn can be made through the county agricultural agents or with Dr. George Morrow, livestock specialist, at the University of Delaware.

Flying filth, or air pollution, is a live issue. Recent research shows that two air pollutants—ozone and sulfur dioxide—may combine to damage plants before either alone would cause damage.

The test results explain some air pollution damage to plants in the late spring and early fall when the recorded levels of ozone and sulfur dioxide alone are not high enough to cause damage.

Sulfur dioxide is largely a product of fuel burning for power and heating. Concentrations tend to be lowest in the summer. Ozone is formed by the reaction of sunlight on exhaust from motor vehicles. Ozone concentrations are usually highest in the summer.

A variety of vegetable, field and ornamental plants may be damaged. The pollutants reduce leaf quality of crops such as tobacco and spinach; and cut yields of such crops as cereal grains, grapes, beans and citrus fruit. Tree leaves may be damaged and growth or ornamentals may be hindered.

We have observed air pollution damage even in lower Delaware—probably because of drift from Washington and Baltimore to the west of us. Dr. John Heuberger, plant pathologist at the University of Delaware, is starting research to check for resistant varieties and species of plants.

Your county agent tried to pass on the story of Tom and his trip to Europe last week, but omitted a key paragraph. You may remember Tom's barber counselled "against visiting Venice as being full of sewers and smells; against Paris because they steal you blind, and against a visit to the Queen because you'll hardly see her."

But Tom went anyway and returned in due time to his barber, whose first words were: "Wasn't it just as I told you?" "Hardly," said Tom. "I had a splendid gondola ride in Venice. Paris is truly the city of lights and gaiety. And I met the queen in person. She leaned over and whispered, 'Where did you get that awful haircut?'"

Here's another story that Dave Robbins tells about the tough problems the drought created in his Milford area this year. He has a neighbor who is trying to buy ten bushels of corn to prime his corn picker in order to start his harvest.

Rising Food Exports Cause Higher Prices

The vanishing surplus of feed grains is in the news. Increased exports are partly responsible for the disappearing surplus, according to W. T. McAllister, extension farm management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Our government has increased its program of sharing our abundance with the needy countries. Great masses of people in underprivileged areas live on bare subsistence diets, and in many areas there is actual starvation. Total food production in these countries has barely kept up with population growth; people have a constant struggle merely to survive.

The U.S. government buys food, then processes, packages, stores and ships it to countries. These exports account for the sudden switch from a large surplus of wheat, in particular, to a situation in which farmers are being asked to produce more.

Exports of food and feed stuffs for dollars has also increased greatly as the level of living in some foreign countries has improved. Particularly in Europe and Japan, people have changed their diets from cereals and potatoes to meats. This caused a tremendous increase in exports of corn and soybeans for use as animal feed. This is a healthy situation for U.S. farmers; they are producing for a market rather than for a storage bin, McAllister points out.

Naturally, this growing export market—both to meet world food needs and for dollars—has an effect on our food prices, McAllister adds. The increase in exports is one of the reasons for higher food prices.

Previously, the large quantity of farm produce stored as surplus acted as a lid on prices and kept them low. Of course, the hidden cost of storing the surplus was paid by the taxpayers, McAllister points out.

Through increased demand, both domestic and foreign, and a government program designed to get it out of the storage business, most surpluses are down to a manageable level. And, the lid on commodity prices has been loosened. The results is higher prices to farmers for the things they sell and higher prices for food and other items consumers buy.

National Poultry Meeting Scheduled For October

Poultry scientists and industry leaders will participate in a national meeting on poultry condemnations October 18 and 19 in Salisbury, Md., Dr. Morris S. Cover, chairman of the department of animal science and agricultural biochemistry at the University of Delaware announced.

The first in a series of meetings on condemnations sponsored by Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. and the Universities of Maryland and Delaware, the session will feature a detailed review of Chronic Respiratory Disease (CRD). Dr. Ben Pomeroy, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis; Dr. Julius Fabricant, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.; Dr. Harry Yoder, USDA, and Dr. John Walker, USDA, will talk about causes, methods of diagnosis, symptoms, mortality and other aspects of the disease.

Poultry servicemen, processing plant managers and representatives of the Poultry Inspection Service will discuss their specific problems with CRD. Research scientists will make recommendations for control of CRD, and industry representatives will give current management practices used in disease prevention in the field.

The sponsors of the meetings believe a thorough and complete discussion of the disease will enable all parts of the industry to better understand the problems, according to Cover. The more the poultry growers realize the problems of the processors, the greater the possibility of progress in reducing condemnations. The meeting will cover in detail all phases of the disease from cause, course and treatment to handling the birds in the plant and the identification of the disease by the inspector.

Kaffeeklatch

With Eleanor K. Voshell

The first step in saving steps-and space-is the business of taking stock of what you have. Probably you'll begin in the kitchen—a cabinet at a time. You'll see such a difference in the first cabinet, you'll be anxious to sort out the whole kitchen.

Beware false economy. Your thrifty streak often adds less to clutter. Sometimes our saving doesn't make sense.

For safety's sake, toss out cracked or chipped china and glassware.

—Be just as reckless with bent, broken, or rusted utensils. —Do away with tools and trappings you never use.

We all have equipment hibernating until the particular season when they earn their keep. There's the soft drink cooler, barbecue equipment, Christmas pudding molds, the turkey platter and on and on. When these are not on active duty store them in the attic, in the basement, or in the spare room or pantry.

A transparent plastic film protects them without hiding them from view.

Then there are things that need a spot but are not used every day—like the food grinder, the soup kettle and Grandmother's tea pot. Put them out of the main traffic area. They can be up high—in a cabinet over the refrigerator or in the pantry if you're lucky enough to have one.

You'll discover soon that space-saving is step-saving!

Dover District Mission Seminar To Be Held Sunday

The Dover District Committee on Mission Studies of the Methodist Church announces its first District Mission Seminar to be held at the Wyoming Methodist Church, Wyoming, Oct. 2, 2:30-5:30 p.m. Sales of literature will be made available prior to and after the meeting by the assistance of Mrs. Emerson Sapp, District Secretary of program materials. Its theme will be undergirded with the spiritual life study, Christian: Being and Doing, to be challenged by the District Superintendent, the Rev. Hartwell Chandler. This study is taken from the New Testament, James and I Peter.—James calls the disciple to "Christian doing"; I Peter reminds us that "Christian doing" takes place there is "Christian being."

The Rev. Alvin Willink, district missionary secretary, and pastor of Union Methodist Church, Bridgeville, chairman of the committee will be the presiding officer. Others to take part on the program are: Mrs. Charles Dukes, vice president, Dover District WSCS, for "Orientation in Drama"; study book presentations, adult, the Rev. Richard Bailey, conference missionary secretary; youth, Mrs. William Garrett, conference president, WSCS, and children, Mrs. Conrad R. Travers, Avenue Church, Milford; worship and praise, Mrs. O. H. Spence, district secretary of spiritual life cultivation.

Those should attend are: local church committee on studies, commission on missions, workers in the Woman's Society, lay leader, representatives from the commissions on education and social concerns as well as all interested people. The approved study—Affluence and Poverty: Dilemma for Christians—is most timely both national and international; the Methodist Mission study—Keepers of the Poor—author, Dr. J. Edward Carothers comments "the attitudes of the prosperous keep the poor in poverty". What then, can we do? Come to this district mission seminar for planning a school of missions or other missionary endeavors in your local church.

Other members on the district committee are: Mrs. Perry O. Hill, secretary of missionary education and service, co-op. chairman; Mrs. I. C. King, president of the Woman's Society as an ex-officio and the district director of adult work; a representative of the district Board of Lay Activities.

Veterans News QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—As a widow and parent who is partially dependent on her son's compensation check I would like to know if the veteran should die would that monthly check be stopped?

A—If you son dies from the disease or injury which has been rated as service connected by the VA you would be entitled to dependency and indemnity compensation from the VA as a dependent parent if your income is under the maximum set by law.

Q—I am service-connected for a disability, but am being treated in a VA hospital for a non-service-connected ailment. Will my compensation be increased to 100 per cent during hospitalization?

A—Compensation is increased only if treatment is given for service-connected disabilities.

Q—Is it necessary to know definitely what school I will attend before applying under the new G.I. Bill?

A—Yes, because it must be one on the list of approved training institutions. Furthermore, you should obtain assurance of acceptance to the school of your choice or you face the delay of submitting another application. Schools are crowded, so you should contact the school of your choice immediately to assure attendance in the fall semester.

Careers Day In Ag. Sciences Set

"Science in Action" will be the theme of a Careers Day planned by the College of Agricultural Sciences at the University of Delaware. It will be held Saturday, Oct. 8, in Agricultural Hall on the university campus.

In announcing the event, Dr. William E. McDaniel, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences at the University, said the program is designed to supply information to high school students interested in pursuing a college education in the plant and animal sciences, the engineering aspects of food and fiber production, the management of food production and marketing and high school and college teaching.

The Careers Day program is aimed especially at high school juniors and seniors, but other high school students are welcome. High school administrators, counselors, science teachers, vocational agriculture teachers and parents are urged to attend.

Registration on Careers Day will begin at 9:30 a.m. Visitors will have the opportunity to tour the college facilities. During an informal lunch hour, students will be able to talk with University staff members about admission, courses and programs, employment opportunities and other career considerations.

Deadline for registering for the Careers Day is October 5. All inquiries should be sent to Dr. William E. McDaniel, dean, College of Agricultural Sciences, University of Delaware, Newark, Delaware 19711.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

"We Americans Do Things In A Hurry"

Someone coined this phrase during World War I, and the thought back of it was never more dominant than today as we note the rapid changes in highway construction to meet similar advances in transportation throughout the country.

Among the changes in our own vicinity is the rerouting of Route 13 to bypass all towns and cities throughout the Delmarva Peninsula. Some of these projects have been completed, others are under construction, and two major jobs (Dover and Salisbury) are in an engineering stage. All are essential and worthwhile, and to which we would like to contribute.

BY-PASS

When approaching most large cities, As one motors on his way, There's a sign you'll always notice, Reading "BY-PASS, GO THIS WAY."

If you follow these directions, They will guide you safely around, And you'll then escape the traffic You would find within the town.

If you skirt the busy highways, And you skip the traffic line, Of the busy shopping center, And you save yourself some time.

And so I get to thinking, As along life's way we go, There are signs just like this BY-PASS, That direct us where to go.

I am sure there's one big city, I believe they named it HELL, Where the traffic jam is heavy, As the preachers like to tell.

There's a by-pass sign well posted, If one stops to read, That will take you past the city, That is packed with lust and greed.

The by-pass sign I speak of, Isn't posted by the road, Lik a detour, or direction, Nor is it written in a code.

Might be just some small building, Or a grand cathedral tall, There's a cross atop its steeple, Calling out to one and all.

"Tis the greatest sign of "BY-PASS," That the tongue or pen can tell, That will pass you by the "City", That the preachers labeled, "HELL."

An Answer To Mr. Miller

By Samuel A. Short, Jr.

In the article that was written by Mr. Cliff Miller in last week's paper, he asks me to enlighten him on the name of Paradise Alley and I finally got in touch with Mr. Leon Kent who has been a life long resident there and he tells me this:

He remembers in talking to Mr. Knapp when he was a boy, and that a man (he did not remember his name) came there and purchased a farm more than a century ago and he thought it was the garden spot of the world, and he named it Paradise Alley.

I have lived here all of my life and have made some very good friends from there and is all I have ever heard it called.

So, I guess with the changing of everything else, Paradise Acres might be a little more modern and appropriate for the times, but to the elder folks, it will always be known as Paradise Alley.

Paradise Alley

By Samuel A. Short, Jr.

Nature has cast its gleam on the evergreens, Of Paradise Alley for many years, we know, Beholding its beauty of brown and gold, No spot is more dear to the ones we're told.

Farmers have tilled its soil, growing crops to sell, Sweet potatoes, watermelon and cantaloupe, Tomatoes and plant cabbages and brussel sprouts, Grown in the ground by farmers and artichoke.

Working all day from winter until fall, In the spring and summer they leave lots to do, Raising their families both large and small, Had lots of fun with their friends they knew.

The morning sun will shine right on, Casting its charm on the evergreens, On their strip of land with the nightingales' song, Where the echoes still fall with midnight gleam.

Now times are changing and new faces have come, To take up the chores where others have left off, And the days of old are but memories to some, In Paradise Alley where friends were never cast off.

Willow Grove — The yearly meeting of the Cow Marsh Old School Baptist Church was held Sunday at the old meeting house that has a much improved appearance, both inside and out, having received an application of much needed paint. Elder B. H. Cabbage, the pastor, is confined in the hospital by a paralytic stroke of much seriousness and visiting ministers assisted in conducting the meeting. The attendance is usually quite large but the cool weather did not make the day too pleasant on the outside where a dinner is served to all who care to partake. The meeting is the annual social contact for many families, whose ancestors lie in the churchyard for as many as seven generations back; many of their graves are today unknown either by name or location but the church site is a Kent County landmark dating back around 200 years. The ancestors of the writer (Senator William Cabbage) gave the site on which the church now stands—a small corner off a farm settled by them in 1702 and the farm remained in their hands, owned and operated by the same family until 1948 when it was sold.

8:30 p.m. Meeting of the Order of St. Luke in lounge. Members of the vestry are asked to meet immediately after the coffee hour today. The purpose of the meeting is to decide on a monthly meeting night for the coming nine months.

The choir has found that Thursday is not convenient and is therefore meeting on Monday evenings at 7:30 p.m.

Attention is called to the fact that there is a meeting of the clergy of this area this coming Wed., Oct. 5, from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at Asbury Methodist Church in Wilmington Manor, at which time they will discuss the problems of alcoholism. It goes without saying that everyone recognizes this to be one of the great problems of our day and of our country. We therefore want the public to know that the clergy are concerned about this problem and are having a conference as well as engaging in private study as to how to cope with it.

Mennonite Church Bulletin

Bert Yoder, Charles Schrock, and John Miller, who were gone two weeks to Ontario, Canada, where they remodeled the headquarters of the Red Lake Mission, returned Friday. Reports indicate that they were blest through this service experience.

The Rev. Owen Guengerich and his family will be moving this week to Eldorado, Ark., where Rev. Guengerich is to serve temporarily as Voluntary Service Unit Leader and as pastor of the guests of the nursing home.

Although we will certainly miss them, we are happy to have them serve there and wish them God's blessing as they travel and in their new home. Their address: Hudson Memorial Nursing Home, 9-15 West Grove Street, Eldorado, Arkansas, 71730.

The Embletones will be giving a series of programs in Kentucky this coming weekend.

Class Reunion

The Class of 1916 held a 50th anniversary reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Allen on Sun., Sept. 25.

Those present were Clarence Oehlertree and wife, Clarence Spence and wife, of Wilmington; Mrs. Violet Morris Renshaw and husband, of Florida; Mrs. Evelyn Isaacs Morris and husband, of Lincoln; Mrs. Anna Cahall Isaacs, Mrs. Helen Morris Workman and husband, of Bridgeville; Addison Porter, of Washington, and sister; Nelson Meredith and wife, and the hostess, Mrs. Belle Prettyman Allen and husband.

The honored guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Horner.

There were beautiful flowers and plentiful food for both dinner and late supper.

Members of the class not able to attend were Mrs. Rosa Lord Johnson, of Wilmington, and Mrs. Helen Cahall Parker, of Los Angeles, Calif.

Methodist Singing

Don't forget the great day of Methodist singing at Grace Church Oct. 16, at 2:30 p.m. A fine group of solo voices from neighboring church choirs will be assisting in this observance. Those who enjoy the old hymns as well as the new are cordially invited to attend. Those participating in the singing will be Mesdames Ruth Crosby, Lou Reynolds, Marie Giltenboth, Tippy Esham, Minnie Short, and Dorothy Jones, and Messrs. Robert Artz, Eugene Bowne, Leon Donovan, Raymond Short, Dan Short, and Joseph Bostick.

Job's Daughters

Sept. 9 and 10, Miss Pam Bostick and Miss Charlotte Lane attended the eighth annual session of the Grand Guardian Council of Delaware, Order of Job's Daughters, held at Rehoboth. Accompanying the girls, were Mrs. June Bostick, Joe Bostick, and Mrs. Herbert Lane.

Saturday evening, June was installed as Grand Fifth Messenger and was escorted in the ceremony by her daughter, Pam.

Joe was installed as Grand Director of Music and was escorted by Miss Beverly Donovan, honored queen of Georgetown Bethel.

Charlotte Lane participated in the Bible ceremony in Saturday evening's program. The honored guest was the Supreme Guardian of Job's Daughters, Mrs. Velma Burnie, of Portland, Ore.

Also attending these meetings were Mrs. Harry Warrington and Bruce Hammond.

Monday evening, Mrs. June Bostick acted as installing officer for the Council of Bethel No. 7 of Dover. She served as marshal. Accompanying her to this meeting were Joe Bostick, Pam Bostick, and Charlotte Lane.

Wednesday evening, Mrs. Dorothy Southby, Past Grand Guardian of Delaware, of Wilmington, and Mrs. Margaret Murray of Newark, Guardian of Bethel No. 3, Mrs. Mary Hoffmann, Guardian of Bethel No. 7, of Dover, and Grand Guide of Delaware, and A. Warren Wheatley, Past Associate Guardian of Bethel No. 5, Georgetown, installed the Council members at the No. 5's regular meeting. Mrs. June

Lions Club

At the football pep rally on Thursday evening, Lion Fred Graef, president of Greenwood Lions Club, presented a check in the amount of $1,000 to Miss Dorcas Yoder, president of the Athletic Council of Greenwood School.

This is the second check in the amount of $1,000 that the club presented to the school. The money is to be used for the football program.

Schulze Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schulze, announce the engagement of their daughter, Connie Lou, to Dr. Paul P. Viehman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Viehman, of Country Club Drive, Woodbrook, Wilmington.

Miss Schulze is a graduate of Greenwood High School and attended the University of Delaware and Goldie Beacom College. At the present time, she is a dental assistant to Dr. Bruce Ward, of Wilmington.

Dr. Viehman is a graduate of Salesianum High School, Wilmington, La Salle College, Philadelphia, and Temple University School of Dentistry. Dr. Viehman interned at Memorial Hospital in Wilmington and is now in private practice in that city. A fall wedding is planned.

Greenwood Girl Honored

Congratulations to Miss Mari-beth Cannon, 17, who will serve on "Farm Journal" magazine's Teen Board for the coming school year, according to an announcement by Gertrude Dieken, women's editor of the publication. Miss Cannon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman H. Cannon, Greenwood.

She is one of 100 outstanding teen-age girls from all over the country, chosen from Farm Journal's 3,000,000 families of readers.

She is president, FHA (local) and state reporter, junior leader in 4-H, Bishop Nyle Award for academic excellence in junior class.

Teen board members serve as reporters, keeping the magazine's teen editor "Polly" up on what's new in their schools and communities, and what teenagers are doing and thinking about. The panel members are frequently featured in the magazine. In upcoming stories, "Farm Journal" will bring some of the girls ideas that helped them earn positions on teen board.

Greenwood P.T.A.

The officers of the Greenwood Consolidated School P.T.A. invite all parents to the first meeting on Oct. 3, at 8 p.m. There will be a short program about the football season, followed by a reception for the teachers.

4-H News

With Marion McDonald

This is the week to join a 4-H Club. There are twenty-two 4-H Clubs in Kent County under the guidance of capable volunteer adult leaders. For information regarding a club in your community call me at 736-1448. 4-H is for all youth who are from 9 years old to 19 years. Do you live in town, a rural area or farm area? No matter where you reside there are projects and activities for you. Any young lady can learn to sew and prepare meals, any young man can learn to understand electricity, dabble in photography. Health and safety projects are becoming favorite interests of many 4-H'ers.

Young adults—a conference especially for you. Any young adults 18 years on up are invited to participate in the 4-State Youth Conference, Jackson's Mill, West Virginia. We'll leave Friday morning (early) and return Sunday evening (late). The registration cost is $12, transportation about $3 and there will be two meals and two snack stops. You who are members of church youth groups, granges, any organization are especially invited. Contact 736-1448 before October 1st.

Kent Youth Council will meet on October 4th. This informal 4-H group is composed of older youth. The October meeting will primarily be to plan and start preparations for the achievement banquet decorations.

Come to the Delaware State Fairgrounds Oct. 2 to see the first state 4-H Horse Show. Classes will get underway in the morning. This promises to be a big event for our many horse project members.

Your club leaders have the banquet tickets now—get your tickets early as all reservations must be in by Oct. 7.

During National 4-H Club Week and throughout this new 4-H year let's "Make the best way with Semesan or Delsan."

Ornamental Disease Notes

By Wm. J. Manning, J. W. Heuberger

Sanitation means the reduction or removal of sources of infection to plants, such as bacteria, fungi, nematodes, and viruses. It is one of the simplest and most frequently overlooked methods of plant disease control. Sanitary measures include the use of clean propagation material, treatment of seeds, bulbs, corms, etc., disposal of diseased plant parts, disposal of refuse, and cleaning tools.

1. Use of Clean Propagation Material: Plant diseases are often disseminated in propagation material. Careful examination of cuttings, bulbs, corms, seeds, etc. often shows that they are infected with plant disease-causing organisms.

For example, sclerotia of a Botrytis sp. that causes wildfire disease of tulips is found on the bottom of a tulip bulb. These sclerotia are survival structures of the fungus. When the bulb is planted, the fungus begins to grow and causes the wildfire disease.

Other examples include fungal spores on seeds, viruses in dahlia roots and chrysanthemums, and Fusarium rot in gladiolus corms. All badly infected propagation material should be destroyed.

2. Treatment of Seeds, Bulbs and Corms: Many commercially-obtained seeds, bulbs, corms, etc. are already treated with fungicides and insecticides. If these propagation materials are saved from the garden each year, they should be treated when they are stored or before planting.

Seeds are generally treated with Semesan or Arasan by shaking the seeds in a paper bag with a small amount of either material. Care should be taken with Semesan since it is a mercury compound. Bulbs, corms and tubers may be treated the same way with Semesan or Delsan.

Disposal of Diseased Plant Parts

Diseased plants frequently serve as sources of infection for other plants. Consequently, the removal of diseased branches, limbs, and even whole plants is often an effective control measure. All diseased plant parts should be destroyed, preferably by burning.

4. Refuse Disposal: Dead plant parts often accumulate around and under plants. This is particularly true in the fall when annual plants are killed and leaves fall from deciduous, perennial plants, shrubs and trees.

Many dead plant parts and leaves are diseased. If they are allowed to accumulate, they provide a food or survival base for organisms that cause plant diseases. It is possible for these organisms to survive the winter and to cause new infection in the spring. All dead plant parts should be burned rather than allowed to accumulate.

5. Cleaning tools: A very common source of plant disease is gardening tools. This is particularly true during pruning. Fungus spores, bacteria and viruses can be spread from plant to plant if a cut is made in a diseased area and then many more cuts are made in healthy plant parts. Pruning tools should be dipped in denatured alcohol between each cut when working with diseased plant parts.

Nurses In-Service Training Program Begins Oct. 5

The Delaware Heart Association and the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Delaware are co-sponsoring an in-service training program for Milford Hospital's nurses and student nurses on the care and treatment of the stroke patient. The program will be broken down into six bi-weekly sessions beginning Wed., Oct. 5, at 2 p.m. and concluding Wed., Dec. 14.

According to Jeanne McDonald, R.N., director of in-service training at Milford Hospital, "Although this stroke program is being conducted, primarily, for our 70 full time and 44 part time registered nurses, I am sure that our 57 student nurses will benefit greatly from this series of discussions and demonstrations. Our medical staff is being invited as are medical and professional people in neighboring communities that are interested in the rehabilitation of the stroke patient".

Since both the Easter Seal Society and the Heart Association are concerned with the rehabilitation of the stroke patient and the adjustment of the stroke patient's family, Guion Miller, executive director of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Delaware and Marlin Mowery, executive director of the Delaware Heart Association have planned and coordinated a program that should prove of real value to the stroke patient, the Milford Hospital nurses and staff, and area guests.

Setting the stage for the entire series on the care and treatment of the stroke patient will be John W. Goldschmidt, director of the department of physical medicine and rehabilitation at the Jefferson Medical College and Hospital in Philadelphia. Dr. Goldschmidt is vice-chairman of the American Heart Association's nationwide stroke coordinating committee. Introducing him will be Dr. Stanley Verbit, Wilmington, chairman of the Delaware stroke coordinating committee of the Delaware Heart Association. On Oct. 19th, Miss Mae Hightower, director of the Delaware Curative Workshop and Wilmer Loomis, director of the Delmarva Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center will discuss programs in outpatient treatment for the stroke patient and his family. Introducing Miss Hightower and Mr. Loomis will be Lewis H. Talley, of Wilmington, president of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Delaware. Dr. Peter Pfeffer, psychiatrist and former superintendent of Stockley Hospital will conduct the program scheduled for Nov. 2. This will cover the area of the psychiatric implications of the cerebral vascular accident to the patient and the immediate family. The methods by which the nurse on the case can improve the mental outlook of patient and family and facilitate the recovery will be discussed.

On Nov. 16th, Milford Hospital physical therapist Jack Hamilton and Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center physical therapist Lois Hamilton will be joined by occupational therapist Marilyn Tisdale, of the Leach School in New Castle. They will discuss the roles played by the physical and occupational therapist in the hospital treatment and the post-hospital treatment of the stroke patient.

On Nov. 30, Jack Fisher, coordinator of speech and hearing for the Crippled Children's Division of the Delaware State Board of Health will lead a discussion of the role of the speech therapist in the treatment of the stroke patient. Mr. Fisher received his M.S. degree in speech pathology from Northwestern University. For the past seven years, he has directed the speech and hearing program for crippled children's services.

Summarizing the in-service training program on the care and treatment of the stroke patient on Wed., Dec. 14, will be Dr. Arthur J. Heather representing the Easter Seal Society and Dr. Stanley Verbit representing the Delaware Heart Association. Dr. Heather is medical director of the Eugene duPont Memorial Hospital in Wilmington and is a member of the Board of Directors of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Delaware. Dr. Verbit is chairman of the Delaware Heart Association's stroke coordinating committee.

Doctors, nurses and interested people of the area are invited to attend any or all of the discussion groups. For further information, one of the following agencies should be contacted: Milford Hospital, contact Jeanne McDonald, R.N. Heart Association, contact Marlin Mowery. Easter Seal Society, contact Guion Miller.

Sewing Shortcuts Makes It Easier For Homemakers

Sewing shortcuts can make it easier for today's busy homemaker, according to Miss Janet Reed, extension clothing and textiles specialist at the University of Delaware.

First of all, know your figure and how it differs from the standard; then, look for styles with seams at the places most likely to need altering, for instance, over the bustline. Kimono sleeves will not require as exacting a fit as set-in sleeves.

Choose a simple style, and eliminate time-consuming details such as top stitching which has to be done perfectly or it will look homemade. Bound or slit-type pickets require a great deal of time; substitute pockets in a side seam or patch pockets—or eliminate pockets altogether.

Unfortunately, the more creative you become in changing the style of a pattern or combining patterns or adding your own distinctive touches, the more time sewing will take. It all depends on your purpose in sewing, Miss Reed emphasizes. Creative touches add to the fun of sewing, but if you're very busy, they may take too much time.

The best shortcut in sewing is learning to stitch straight and accurately. Learn good basic sewing techniques; make your sewing machine work for you.

When you're sewing for your family, consider cutting and sewing two similar garments at the same time. This is easier to do with such garments as pajamas, shirts, shorts and little girl's dresses. Choose fabrics with the same background color so the machine thread won't need changing.

Get rid of as many seams as possible, Miss Reed advises. For instance, cut the front of the garment and facing in one piece to eliminate the front seam. Or, cut the cuff with the sleeve instead of cutting a separate sleeve.

Don't spend too much time trying to reach perfection, Miss Reed says. A stitching line a sixteenth of an inch off may worry you, but most people will never notice. Besides, ripping will make a fabric look old and worn before the garment is even finished. The less handling the better. Of course, the ability to stitch fairly accurately plays an important part.

Whenever possible, transfer the markings from pattern pieces with pins or a snip in the seam line. If the details must be marked with chalk or dressmakers carbon, fold the fabric with the right sides together so the markings can easily be made on the wrong side of the fabric. When you're in a hurry, use pin basting for fitting instead of machine or hand basting.

It's a good idea to study ready-to-wear clothes. Labor is expensive so the garment industry has studied methods of eliminating as much labor as possible. Observe good ready-to-wear and learn from the garment trade, Miss Reed suggests.

"Short Cuts to Sewing Success", a bulletin written by Miss Reed and published by the Co-operative Extension Service at the University of Delaware, contains hints for marking, cutting and sewing for the busy seamstress. Copies are available from the Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, Delaware 19711.

Lions Lose Grid Opener, 25-7 At Delmar

Delmar's defending Henlopen champion Wildcats ignored a wet field and the loss of two top backs as they scored a 25-7 victory over a Harrington High team called "tough" by winning coach, Harry Bradley.

Delmar's co-captain halfback, Dave Pusey, and Burt Culver, a 6-foot-2, 195 pound All-Henlopen choice were sidelined because of injuries suffered in a scrimmage with Wicomico of Salisbury, Md. Pusey had a dislocated knee, Culver has a broken thumb. T.V. star Bill Cullen says "Football is getting to be a game in which there are no winners, only survivors."

The Wildcats, at full strength, figure to battle it out with Bridgeville for the 1966 conference title. Bill Muehleisen's Lions were figured to be stronger on defense than on offense but the reverse was true at Delmar, as the Lions moved the ball well on several occasions and were still in contention until the fourth period.

A smart move on the opening kickoff by the Lions almost paid off as a short, inside, kick caught the Wildcats napping. A Lion reached the ball first but couldn't hold it. Otherwise H.H.S. might have unsettled the home team with a quick score.

Delmar tried three running plays, then kicked. Raleigh Davis, the Lions' workhorse, racked up a first down on an end run. After two short gains, Davis started wide and cut back into the line for another first down. Delmar braced, recovered a fumble and converted the mistake into six points.

Harrington cornered the passer for minus ten yards but an aerial on the next play picked up 20 big ones. Another pass attempt lost four yards and a reverse gained eight yards to the Lion 28 as safety man, Bill Moore, made a nifty stop. A sweep and four straight cracks at the forward wall covered the last 28 yards to pay dirt. The extra point was no good.

Davis returned the kickoff and was tackled via the face mask. The resulting 15 yard penalty brought the ball to midfield. Gerry Cagle, a speedster, bumped his own man on a reverse but still gained a few yards. Cagle took a pass from the rapidly improving quarterback, Steve Welch, and reached Delmar's 35.

At this point history repeated itself. Harrington fumbled, Delmar recovered and went on to score. A pass gained 18 to the H.H.S. 42. Right tackle for 4, a reverse and a sweep for 16 and the ball was on the 22. The Wildcats fumbled but recovered it. The next play appeared to be good for a T.D. but Bill Moore, the last man, made another good stop on the 8. A gaping hole opened in the center of the Blue and Gold line and a back scampered through to score.

Porter's kick was good for a score of 13-0. The pass from center was dropped, but the Wildcat defense gave the kicking combination time enough to get the ball away. Big Ed Wheatley, formerly an interior lineman, is now a threat as a pass-catcher. Wheatley took a jump pass from Welch and dragged tacklers to a first down. Welch was snowed under and intercepted on two subsequent aerial efforts.

Delmar almost tallied again as a sweep and two line plays neared the final stripe, but a penalty and Steve Welch's interception and return, put the ball at Harrington's 20 yard line.

Raleigh Davis hit into Delmar's forward wall. When no hole opened, he caromed off the line and fought hard for several yards. A sweep and a plunge by Gayle McReynolds added a first down at the 35. A pass lost ground, Davis picked up four. Welch was right on target with a throw 20 yards upfield but the ball went right through the receiver's arms. Wheatley got off a good punt and Davis nailed the ball carrier in his tracks at the half.

Harrington took the second half kickoff and raked up a half dozen first downs on the way to a score. Steve Welch recorded the first of these on a quarterback keeper and hit Wheatley with a jumper to get into Delmar territory. Welch kept for 3, a Delmar penalty gave H.H.S. five more. Welch faked a jump pass, then threw to Davis in the flat. The play gained five yards but might have gone for a T.D. except that one alert defender was not fooled. Davis hurt his trick knee again and had to take a breather on the sideline.

Cross-Country Opener Rained Out

Harold McDonald's H.H.S. cross-country team dropped a decision to the weatherman on Tuesday afternoon. Seaford's Blue Jays of the Diamond State Conference were scheduled to meet the Lions at Killen's Pond but a day-long rain washed out the Lions' attempt to build on last year's 12 meet winning streak.

Many of the better runners are in fine fettle and need only to see a visiting team on the slopes of the new, rolling course to run even faster.

Dale Motter, Richard Benson, Jack Warrington, Paul Marshall and Vaughn Baynard posted their best workouts of 1966 last week. Motter solidified his grasp on the No. 9 position with an improvement of 13 seconds. Marshall improved from 17:40 to 16:59 and Baynard dropped from 17:55 to 17:12.

The best news of the week is Warrington's rapid rise and the return of Donald Minner. Minner, a senior, is a natural runner, who had good seasons in the eighth and ninth grades. Older runners have strength and maturity which give them an advantage over younger runners.

After a few more workouts Minner should be able to work his way up the list into a position in the top five.

Warrington reported late but is in the top ten after only three time trials.

Joey Gray looked real strong in his last two workouts and could lower his already good time in the next meet or two. Millsboro comes to Killen's Pond on Thursday September 29th. The Blue Devils have a big, strong lad named Thielman who could extend the Lions' top trio of Ron Morris, Nick Morris and Chris Wetherhold. When a hot pace is set by the race leaders, frequently personal records are shattered all the way down the line as each boy tries to make a good showing in actual competition.

Harrington's next push went for 20 yards on carries by Davis and Welch before Delmar held. The Lion punt was taken by Don Ward, who romped 60 yards into the end zone.

Time was running out with "clean shirts" in the lineup for both schools when Delmar picked up another loose ball. The Wildcats got to the H.H.S. 15 but we stopped with the aid of two penalties.

H.H.S. will tackle Milton on Friday, Sept. 30. We believe that the Warriors use Georgetown's field for their home games. Milton's stock was high after they held powerful Georgetown even in a practice scrimmage. But the Warriors have been plagued with injuries. At one time they had three centers and the starting quarterback on the sidelines. Saturday Milton was clobbered by Dover Air and left an end in the hospital with a broken arm.

Since H.H.S. showed flashes of excellence at Delmar and Milton appears to be having their troubles it appears that the Lions just might scalp the Warriors after all. Best 'em!

respond with psychological arrangement and sequencing of information thought to be characteristic of effective learning. It's a technique to mobilize what the student already knows and to provide new 'anchoring posts' for material to be presented."

Earlier studies based on the theory advanced by David Ausubel of the University of Illinois suggest that the advance organizer technique may be useful with not only intellectually normal children, but particularly effective with educable mentally retarded.

The 26-month effort by Neisworth and Smith, aided by a corps of graduate students, is the first large scale attempt to support the theory with statistical data. They will spend the next few months recruiting subjects for their research. They wish to involve some 800 children from Delaware and surrounding states in their study.

Dr. Neisworth, 29, joined the University of Delaware in February as an instructor in the College of Education. He did his master's and Ph.D. work at the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Smith, 34, joined the University of Delaware in 1965 as an associate professor after serving on the faculties of the universities of Pittsburgh, Florida, and Maryland.

DEMOCRATS

2-YEAR PROJECT

respond with psychological arrangement and sequencing of information thought to be characteristic of effective learning. It's a technique to mobilize what the student already knows and to provide new 'anchoring posts' for material to be presented."

Earlier studies based on the theory advanced by David Ausubel of the University of Illinois suggest that the advance organizer technique may be useful with not only intellectually normal children, but particularly effective with educable mentally retarded.

The 26-month effort by Neisworth and Smith, aided by a corps of graduate students, is the first large scale attempt to support the theory with statistical data. They will spend the next few months recruiting subjects for their research. They wish to involve some 800 children from Delaware and surrounding states in their study.

Dr. Neisworth, 29, joined the University of Delaware in February as an instructor in the College of Education. He did his master's and Ph.D. work at the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Smith, 34, joined the University of Delaware in 1965 as an associate professor after serving on the faculties of the universities of Pittsburgh, Florida, and Maryland.

DEMOCRATS

At the two Dover plants of International Latex Corp., there were 10 Democratic registrations, 8 Republican and 12 declines. Here is the breakdown for Saturday's registrations: Rodney Village Shopping Center—24 Democrats, 13 Republicans, 7 declines. A & P Store, Dover—43 Democrats, 5 Republicans, 11 declines. Marstellers Store, East Dover—14 Democrats, 9 Republicans, 13 declines. Smyrna—2 Democrats, 6 Republicans, 3 declines. Milford—6 Democrats, no Republicans, no declines. Harrington—3 Democrats, 3 Republicans, no declines.

Rabies Are Always Fatal

"Although rabies is an uncommon disease, people should be aware that it is always fatal unless prompt preventive measures are taken by a physician," warned Doctor Gliwa of the Delaware State Board of Health. Despite the fact that it is seldom seen today, rabies is still an important problem, he said. Each year an estimated 3,000 persons are bitten by animals in Delaware, and a number of these have to be brought to treatment.

Doctor Gliwa said that the history of rabies can be traced back to antiquity. There is mention of the disease in Homer's Iliad, and Aristotle deduced the ability of one animal to transfer it to another. But, prior to Louis Pasteur, little was really known about it.

Today the progress of medicine has reduced rabies to an understandable and controllable problem.

Doctor Gliwa described rabies as a disease caused by a virus found mainly in the brain, salivary glands and saliva of dogs, cats, monkeys, skunks, rabbits, bats, foxes and other warm-blooded animals. It can be present in them for a short time or for a long period before signs of the disease appear.

The virus is transmitted by saliva through an open wound such as a bite. It generally is present only in the saliva beginning with the three-to five-day period before the animal shows evidence of having the disease. Thus, an animal that has been attacked and bitten may outwardly appear normal.

The picture usually associated with rabid dogs in which there is drooling from the mouth, snarling and unnatural stance or gait, does not appear until the disease is in its final stages. This is why it is important that an animal which has bitten someone be captured and confined for observation for ten days to determine if it actually has rabies. The animal should not be killed unnecessarily; but, if it is, care should be taken not to destroy the head and it should be preserved in a refrigerated condition until examined.

In humans the time between being bitten by a rabid animal and the onset of symptoms is also variable. They usually occur between four to six weeks but occasionally can be of shorter or longer duration. Once symptoms have appeared, however, the disease is always fatal. The important thing to remember, the doctor said, is to get proper medical attention quickly.

Treatment is most effective when started as soon as possible after it has been determined that the attacking animal was diseased by rabies. Treatment is often painful and sometimes carries with it an element of danger. Every effort should be made to locate the animal because if it is not rabid, there is no need for the anti-rabies treatment and the victim is spared pain and days of worry. A person who is bitten should try to give as complete a description as possible of the animal and the situation under which he was attacked to aid in location and capture.

"Your Board of Health, in cooperation with the local veterinary society, is on constant guard against rabies outbreaks, and stands ready to offer its full assistance in the event of an attack on any person by a rabid animal. If bitten in the Wilmington area, report the incident to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals—and outside of Wilmington, to your local health unit," Doctor Gliwa stated. He asked that each person with pets consider it his duty to protect both animals and people against this disease by having their pets under control at all times and vaccinated at least once every three years.
