Catholic Laymen Take More Active Part In Parish Affairs

In keeping with the Second Vatican Council's wish that Catholic laymen take a more active part in managing parish affairs, the Reverend Francis J. Tierney, pastor of St. Polycarp's Catholic Church, Smyrna, announced the formation of a parish council last Tuesday. The council was organized to provide the pastor with administrative assistance in all parish matters and to encourage participation in these activities by all parish members. Present members will serve for one year until the council's organization and functions are established. In the future, council positions will be filled by parish elections.

Officers of St. Polycarp's new parish council are: Charles Williams, President; Dr. John J. Lazzari, vice-President; Mrs. Mary Brown, secretary; and William E. Jones, treasurer. Council division heads are: Miss Mary Burke, Education; Mrs. Margaret O'Neill and Arthur Moffitt, Ways and Means; Mrs. Clara Jones, Liturgy; David Fauser and Levi Vogel, Building and Grounds; and Robert J. Van Abel, Public Relations.

Delegates at large to the council are Vivian Beltz, Sodality President, and the two lay trustees, including James Cantillon.

Last week St. Polycarp's parish began construction of a new church and rectory in Smyrna which is scheduled for completion next summer.

Veteran's News

Most veterans attending school under the new GI Bill have received their first checks, but if you're one who did not and fail to receive your check due this week, it's possible you failed to do your homework, Leon Fields, manager of the Wilmington Veterans Administration Regional Office told veteran students recently.

Mr. Fields urged those students who fail to receive checks to:

1. Make sure that the notice of enrollment, which must be filled out and mailed by the school, has been sent to the VA by the school.

2. Make sure the certificate of attendance, which the veteran must fill out and send to the VA, has been mailed.

3. If there is any question about payment, contact the VA office, by phoning 994-2511, Extension 280.

Mr. Fields pointed out that it was not necessary for the veteran student attending college to send in his certificate of attendance for the first month since VA accepted the college's notice of enrollment as basis for paying the first check. However, Mr. Fields emphasized, all subsequent checks will be withheld until the student's own certificate of attendance is received.

VA officials, recalling past experiences with the GI Educational Program of World War II and the Korean Conflict, pointed out that a "shakedown period" was necessary before the payment machinery was functioning smoothly. It is possible that a few checks have been delayed by Administrative or machine errors, but it is anticipated that these will be limited, according to Mr. Fields.

Failure to receive checks can be blamed mostly on the delay in receiving the necessary certificates, it was pointed out.

The veteran student must send in the certificate of attendance each month.

Mr. Fields urged students who have any misunderstanding, or who have had checks delayed, to contact the Regional Office so that problems may be cleared up.

FENCE TALK By George K. Vapaa

"When the heavens weep the earth will live." This inscription appears on a fountain at the Honolulu, Hawaii waterworks. It was called to our attention by Pet Nahoopii, our friendly bus driver. He was a bit apologetic for the liquid sunshine that happened to be all about us just then.

Pete was a droll individual really, a fine person to drive one around the island of Oahu, on a hazy, rainy - er - liquid sunshine - day. He had a broad understanding of the legends and history of the Islands, a stock of jokes, and taught us several Hawaiian songs.

Suppose you needed three million gallons of water per day to operate your eight acre farm. Let's assume you pay $600 per acre land rent. Ah yes, there is such a farm at the edge of Honolulu. The farmer grows watercress, about $100,000 worth each year. It seems to be a highly skilled business. My only other experience with watercress has been along some of our stream beds growing wild.

How do you select a sweet, ripe pineapple? Haruo Honma, county agent director on the island of Oahu, says the fruit should be somewhat small and rounded. The smaller pineapples come from the second crop, and seem to be sweeter than the larger, elongated, first crop.

You thump the pineapple with your finger, and compare this with a thump made on the other extended palm of the hand. If the sound is the same, Haruo (pronounced Har-oo-oh) says it is ripe.

Californians believe the quality of their lemons is second to none. They will concede that Florida grows better grapefruit. Oranges appear to be a stand off.

Your county agent had a look at citrus production and the effects of air pollution in the Los Angeles area. George Goodall, farm advisor (county agent) in Santa Barbara County, spent the day with us as guide.

University of California research has proved that air pollution can cut citrus yields to half of what might otherwise be expected. We saw a battery of caged trees where the air can be controlled and measured. We met Dr. Thompson, Dr. Taylor and Dr. Bender, all researchers—the only few of many—who are doing air pollution work. The problem is most severe near Los Angeles, and more research has been done there than anywhere else.

Other work is being attempted in other parts of this country. Dr. John Heuberger, our University of Delaware pathologist, has been measuring the effects of air pollution on some Delaware crops.

Family first aid should give us all concern. Are you prepared for medical self-help in your home? Tom Williams, of our specialist staff at the University of Delaware, can show you how to get ready. He has assembled a first aid kit of supplies that should be in every home. It includes a lot of things that we have anyway, but rarely in one place to be used as needed. But even if you start from scratch and buy everything, the total cost for all supplies is less than $12. Further, Tom has prepared a script that can be used by anyone for a club program on the subject of first aid. Our office has copies of the script, training manuals to be given to the audience, and a first aid kit which can be loaned for illustrating the program.

Why not call us at 736-1448 to learn more about first aid in the home?

More than 2,000 cows are on test for production in Kent County — 2,001 for the first time in September. Our electronic records processing center at Cornell University sends a summary report each month.

Your county agent gets a jolt each fall when some herds report more than 100% of the cows in milk during the month. Five out of forty-three herds were so reported in September. One herd had 130% of the cows on test. The answer of course is that many cows freshened in August after the regular test date. These accumulate as extra cow days. Late summer and early fall freshening is now preferred by many dairymen.

Another point of interest is that only four of these forty-three herds is not predominantly Holstein. It seems like most dairymen agree with Wilbur Jump of Houston, who once said: "The dairies pay for milk, not butterfat. Let's sell them what they want."

Economic Development Report To Be Presented In Easton

The first public presentation of the Delmarva Advisory Council's report concerning programs for the Delmarva Peninsula will be made at a December 1 meeting in Easton.

Beginning at 1:30 p. m. in St. Mark's Methodist Church, the meeting is open to the public, and ample time will be set aside for discussion of the report.

Prepared under a grant from the Economic Development Administration, the report presents the potential for long-range and significant development of the Delmarva Peninsula.

Delmarva Advisory Council staff members will make the major presentation. This will be followed by a report of current activities of the Wye Institute.

Sponsors of the meeting are The Eastern Shore Committee on Agriculture as a part of the Maryland Rural Areas Development (RAD) Committee, The Delmarva Advisory Council, The Wye Institute, and The University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service.

St. Mark's Methodist Church is located on the corner of Trippe Avenue and Maryland Route 333 (Oxford Road) in Easton. This is directly across from Easton Junior High School. Adjournment is set for 4 p. m.

She was a member of the Man-ships Methodist Church and its W.S.C.S.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Mildred J. Biederbeck, Riverside, N. J., and Mrs. Pauline J. Moore, Harrington; two sons, W. Elwood, Harrington, and W. Franklin, Moorestown, N. J.; three sisters, Mrs. Lena Minner, of Felton, Mrs. Edith McKnatt, of Harrington, Mrs. Alice Knapp, of Felton; a brother, Amos Minner, of Felton, and six grandchildren.

Services were held Wednesday afternoon at 1 from the McKnatt Funeral home here. Burial was in Hollywood Cemetery, Harrington.

Delaware 4-H'er Wins National Honors

Seventeen-year-old Sally Pierson has baked at least 340 dozen rolls in her eight years of 4-H club work. That's just one of the reasons the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin P. Pierson, 1215 Milltown Road, Wilmington, won top honors in the national and state 4-H breads program.

She will receive a $500 educational scholarship as one of six national breads winners at the National 4-H Club Congress, Chicago, Nov. 27 to Dec. 1. As state winner she received an expense-free trip to the national event, according to James O. Baker, state 4-H leader. The 4-H breads program is sponsored by Standard Brands Incorporated.

Sally likes to bake fancy breads—"anything that looks as though it would taste good." She has a collection of favorite recipes mostly cut from magazines. "Because the pictures look so appetizing."

She likes to change recipes—dress them up or down to fit the occasion. A favorite, Christmas Tree bread, turns up again at Easter-time as small egg-shaped frosted sweet rolls.

Since Sally is a diabetic, she tries to adapt her bread recipes so she can safely include the bread in her diet. She uses an artificial sweetener for icings and she reports trying it in the recipe itself. "That didn't turn out too well."

She began baking when she was nine years old. "My sister is ten years older than I am, and she did most of the teaching." Now Sally practices her cooking skills on her family; she makes most of their dinners and has them ready when Mrs. Pierson comes home from work.

Joining 4-H seemed a natural thing to do, Sally says. "My sister was twice a state 4-H winner; that was encouragement enough." Both her brothers are also 4-H members.

When her family lived on a farm near North Star, she was active in many 4-H projects—food preservation, garden, dairy and dog. But, bread project is her favorite. "I've learned more than just how to bake. I had to find out exactly what goes into a loaf of bread and why, how much the ingredients cost and how many calories there are."

A senior at John Dickinson High School, Sally plans to become a nurse after she graduates. Her 4-H club work doesn't take up all her time; she's a member of the National Honor Society and Future Nurses Club, sings in the school chorus and is active in Methodist Youth Fellowship.

She's used to being busy. But, according to Sally Pierson, "Nothing as exciting as this national 4-H award ever happened to me before."

Kent 4-H'ers Win Crop Show Honors

Four Kent County 4-H'ers took top honors in the state 4-H crops judging contest, held in Dover Tues., Nov. 22.

Tying for first place were Janice Harrison, 16, Goldsboro, Md., and John Comegys, 15, Hartly. Second place went to Dana Gooden, 13, of Wyoming. John Webb, 13, of Goldsboro, placed third. This is the second consecutive year Miss Harrison placed first.

The four winners each receive a scholarship to attend state 4-H camp or state 4-H conference next summer.

The contest, part of the 58th annual Delaware Crop Show, included questions about soil composition, corn yields and plant diseases. Fifty-five 4-H'ers from all over the state participated in the event.

Discover Wonderful Del.

Delawareans should brag about their Civil Air Patrol. It's another wonder of Wonderful Delaware that the second smallest state has a CAP Wing so enterprising that it ranks first in the Eastern region, second in the entire nation.

This December the Civil Air Patrol, the civilian auxiliary of the United States Air Force, is celebrating its silver anniversary—it was founded on December 1, 1941, just a few days before Pearl Harbor, to give civilian private pilots a chance to help in the nation's defense. And they helped! They flew submarine patrol, border patrol, they owed targets.

Today it's just as busy, and the activities are far more diversified. The Delaware Wing has 14 squadrons, meeting up and down the state at Wilmington, Fairfax, Holly Oak, Newark, Middletown, Smyrna, Dover, Lewes, and Seaford. There are about 250 senior members and between 300 and 400 cadets. Headquarters are at the Greater Wilmington Airport, where the Air Force Liaison officer has his office. The Wing has nine planes of its own, and the use of pilot members' planes when needed, and a good lot of ground communications and rescue equipment.

Best known of the Civil Air Patrol's activities today is their air search and rescue service. When a plane is lost, whether it's a military plane or civilian, the chances are that members of the CAP will be the ones to find it. In 1965, pilots of the CAP flew more than three-quarters of all the hours of search for lost aircraft in the United States.

But it's by no means all flying. The CAP cooperates not only with the Air Force but also with Civil Defense, the Red Cross, and state and local officials in any sort of emergency. CAP provides radio communications, airborne, mobile, and stationary. Nearly all the communications equipment has its own power sources for the times when power lines may be down. At present they're building an emergency communications vehicle which will carry two generators to power its radio equipment. CAP has the only Aerial Radiological Monitor in Delaware. This is a highly sensitive long-range radiation detection instrument which, mounted in an airplane, can be used much more safely, quickly, and over a wider range than any ground-operated "counter", to determine radiation levels after an atomic attack. CAP also provides light air support for civil defense.

And they have trained ground rescue teams. Whether its a major disaster such as an atomic attack or a hurricane, or a lost child or missing hunter, the CAP helps out. Equally important to the CAP is its cadet program, for boys and girls from 13 to 18. Cadet squadrons—there are eight in Delaware—get classroom training in aerodynamics, meteorology, aircraft maintenance, and communications, and go on orientation flights in conventional and jet aircraft. Each summer Delaware CAP Cadets spend nine days at Dover Air Force Base, where they get to see the workings of all the newest planes.

After this basic training many opportunities open to cadets. Each summer CAP's International Air Cadet Exchange arranges two-week exchange visits to foreign countries. Under this program Cadets from France, Italy, Brazil, Sweden, and Holland have visited Delaware, and a like number of Delaware Cadets have visited abroad. Cadets who want to learn to fly—either powered planes or gliders—can qualify for one of CAP's month-long summer Flying Encampments. Successful completion of an Encampment course qualifies the cadet for a Private Pilot or Private Glider Pilot certificate. Again, it's not all flying. Other special summer courses cover rocketry and missiles, and aircraft traffic control.

When it comes time for college, CAP offers scholarships, for which every cadet may compete, in engineering, physics, aeronautics, airport management, aerospace medicine, and languages.

Nationwide, CAP has more than 33,000 senior members, about a sixth of them women. It's a real wonder of wonderful Delaware that the Delaware Wing, with only 250 senior members, continues to be ranked first in the region, second in the nation. It must be morale, and organization, and membership in the CAP could be a real discovery for a Delawarean of any age.

To discover your own role in the CAP, write to Col. Louisa Spruance Morse, 2401 W. 17th Street, Wilmington 19806 (or phone her at 302-656-0474) and tell her where you live. She'll tell you which squadron would be most convenient for you, and when it meets. Meeting times and places are planned to be convenient for most everyone. Qualifications? Any American citizen. Cost? $10 a year for Senior members $4 a year for Cadets. It could be the most wonderful discovery of wonderful Delaware.

Farm And Home Week Set

The University of Delaware's 1967 Farm and Home Week is scheduled for February 7, 8 and 9, according to Dr. Samuel M. Gwinn, director of the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service. Dr. Donald Fieldhouse, associate professor in the horticulture department at the University, is program chairman of the annual event.

The three-day program will include sessions on crops, irrigation, vegetables, fruit, dairy, home gardening, youth, pets, horses and livestock. The home economics program will feature a consumers day and other programs of interest to homemakers. Tours of the woodlot, soil testing laboratory, growth chambers, air pollution experiments and the entomology department's insectary are planned.

The 1967 Farm and Home Week is designed to bring farmers up to date on agricultural research and on pace-setting practices that will help them keep competitive. Many sessions are planned to interest and help people from city and suburbia also, according to Fieldhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Shadwick of Los Angeles were in town last week for the wedding of their sister, Miss Connie Lou Schulze to Dr. Paul Viehman.

After spending a few days with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schulze, the couple left for New York City and Woodcliff, Lake, N. J. While in New York, they attended a performance of "Mame", a current Broadway hit. Jerry Manning, a friend of the couple, has a leading role in the production. The Chadwicks also attended a performance at the new Metropolitan Opera at Lincoln Center. Their visit East was concluded with a visit to Woodcliff Lake, N. J., for the Thanksgiving holidays with Mr. Chadwick's parents, Mr. Chadwick is an attorney with the law firm of Dilluvos and Cox in Los Angeles. Mrs. Chadwick is working on her Doctorate of Music at the University of Southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. Allison Davis entertained at dinner Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dennis, Jr. and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Davis and daughters. The occasion celebrated the birthday of grandson, Lanny Dennis, and little Miss Cindy Davis and that of her great-grandmother, Mrs. William C. Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dennis, Jr., entertained at Thanksgiving dinner, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allison Davis, and her brother, and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Davis, Cindy and Angienette.

Thanksgiving Day callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Eskridge were Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Lauck, of Secretary, Md., and Mrs. Joseph Mills and son, Mark, of East New Market.

Sunday callers at the Jacob Hatfield were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mays of Claymont.

Schulze - Viehman Wedding

At four o'clock, on Saturday, Nov. 19, Miss Connie Lou Schulze, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schulze, of Greenwood, became the bride of Dr. Paul P. Viehman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Viehman, Woodbrook Drive, Wilmington. The candlelight service took place at the bride's home in front of the fireplace, with the Rev. Muriel Smith, officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white brocade suit with mink trim and carried a nosegay of orchid and pompons.

The matron of honor, her sister, Mrs. Douglas Chadwick, of Los Angeles, Calif., wore a pink Alaskan suit with matching accessories.

Mr. Francis Viehman, of Wilmington, was best man for his brother.

Miss Schulze is a graduate of Greenwood High School and attended the University of Delaware and Goldey Beacom College. She was a dental assistant to Dr. Bruce Ward, of Wilmington, prior to her marriage.

Dr. Viehman is a graduate of Salesianum High School, Wilmington, and La Salle College, Philadelphia, and Temple University School of Dentistry. He is now in private practice in Wilmington. A buffet supper was served, following the ceremony, after which the couple flew to Jamaica.

Dr. and Mrs. Viehman will reside at Woodstream Apartments, Wilmington, when they return from Jamaica.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

Most of the days in December are "remember" days — days to remember shirt sizes, dinner dates, train schedules, and the location of those special Christmas recipes that haven't been used since last year. Luckily, when it's meal planning time, the plentiful foods list makes this an job easier one to keep in mind. There's more meat for December, and the supplies will be liberal.

The holiday season is a most appropriate time for broiler-fryers to be plentiful. The spirit of the season demands the utmost ingenuity to set before the family and guests taste tempting fare. The best way to meet this challenge is to serve tender, tasty chicken in a host of memorable roles. December marketings are expected to be about 12% above last year's. This means that lots of broiler-fryers will be available at prices we can't afford to bypass.

A pork roast served with a flaming fruit sauce would make any meal a truly gala affair, and plentiful pork supplies make it an especially good choice. Be sure to have a ham on hand. There will be many excellent selections available. Decorate the ham with the same flare you use for the Christmas tree. Considerably more hams than a year ago are expected for December.

If you choose the English tradition of a beef roast for Christmas dinner, you'll be pleased with the meat available at your local store. According to the American Meat Institute, supplies of high quality beef, the kind that is ideal for a juicy, festive roast, may be about 5% more than last year.

For the first time since 1954, canned salmon production for the year will exceed four million standard cases. This plus a sizable carryover has resulted in exceptionally large inventories of this versatile food.

A big crop of Bartlett pears is overlapping into winter varieties, making this fruit a good buy throughout the coming month. California's Emperor, Almeria, and Ribier grapes are also in good supply. Storage holdings are expected to be well above average and prices reasonable.

To conclude the list of December plentiful are natural sundried raisins, a welcome addition to every household. Shipments of fresh vegetables are increasing. The quality in general is considered good, but prices are a bit higher on a few items. Among the best selections are cabbage, cauliflower, celery, cucumbers, eggplant, lettuce, potatoes, sweet potatoes, and dried onions.

Beef is the outstanding buy at most stores this weekend, as would be expected.

Clarence P. Postles

Clarence P. Postles, 53, died last Friday in Milford Memorial Hospital after an apparent heart attack. He was a retired employee of the Frederica Cafe.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Hazel C. Postles; two daughters, Mrs. Marie Greenly of Frederica and Mrs. Mildred Wyatt of Salisbury, Md.; four sons, George, of Mobile, Ala., and Clarence, Roy and Bradford, all at home; four brothers, Charles, of St. Louis, Mo.; Reynolds, of Frederica; Walter, of Milford, and Harry of Newark; two half-sisters, Mrs. Virginia P. Kingery, of Dover, and Miss Barbara Postles, of Frederica; a half-brother, Louis Postles of Ft. Rucker, Ala., and 11 grandchildren.

Services were held Monday afternoon from the Rogers Funeral Home, Milford. Interment was in Barratt's Chapel Cemetery.
