Dairy Meeting Planned

The annual series of winter dairy meetings will begin January 4 and continue for the five following Wednesdays at three locations throughout the state, according to Dr. W. R. Hesselstein, extension dairyman at the University of Delaware. The sessions are sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Service at the University.

The meetings will start at 10 a.m. at the University's Georgetown Substation, with the same program repeated at 1:15 p.m. at First National Bank of Harrington, Commerce Street, Harrington, and at 8 p.m. in Crothers Brothers store at Mount Pleasant.

The session on January 4 will include talks on the outlook for dairies and on automation; dairy experts will discuss breeding cattle at the second meeting on Jan. 11. The January 18th meeting will include information on milk fever and ketosis control, and the January 25th session will concern mastitis and leucocytes.

An open barns meeting is scheduled for February 1, at three local dairy farms. Dairywomen are invited to visit Edwin Ely, Elmstead Farm Elkton, Md.; Henry Kozicki, Clayton, and Daniel Williams, Greenwood.

The final meeting on February 8 will be held at the University of Delaware on Dairy Day, an annual feature of the University's Farm and Home Week. Dairy Day's activities will include presenting dairy awards and meetings on cattle nutrition and marketing.

Both districts will conduct referendums on the proposed consolidation on January 7.

Kent Studies Airport Chances

The Kent County Aviation Committee Tuesday got a green light to study three proposals considered to have the best chance of producing a county airport.

The committee, headed by George Frebert, a longtime pilot, was authorized by Levy County to study a facility on Dover Air Force Base, another on county-owned property, and a privately or municipally-owned airport financed with matching funds from the state.

"Other plans would have been offered to the court today," Frebert told the commissioners, "if there had been other feasible approaches. These plans, in our opinion, all have the possibility of becoming a reality."

"If, after our studies, all three approaches prove workable, we will then decide which of the three is best and make a recommendation."

Frebert said the studies should take about 60 days, barring hold-up from Federal Aviation Agency representatives who will study air space over Dover Air Force Base.

Frebert said the FAA will have to determine if the controlled air space over the military installation can be shared with general aviation without creating a safety hazard.

"If the FAA survey concludes that this can be accomplished," Frebert said, "we would then have to make a formal request for permission to use the facilities. The commander then forwards the request to Washington."

The FAA will supply 50 per cent of the funds for construction of a county-owned facility, but the county must own the property to qualify, Frebert said.

To evaluate the county-owned approach, Frebert said the committee must determine the location, and cost of acreage, the cost of construction and the cost of maintaining the project.

"Any county-owned airport probably will not directly make money for the county, but," he added, "indirectly it will bring money to the county by its attraction to industry."

The third plan, on which the committee has least information, will be developed after Frebert talks with Virginia officials about their matching funds program for private and municipal airports.

"I want to meet with their officials," he said, "before I say too much about this plan. From telephone conversations I have had, they are very enthusiastic."

"If this plan had no possibilities," he said, "this committee would not be recommending it to you today."

Identifying the DAFB approach as Plan A, county-owned airport as Plan B, and private and municipal airports as Plan C, Frebert made the following comments:

Plan A — Lands adjacent to the base must be acquired on which a terminal must be erected with facilities for refueling. The control tower at the base could be used since it is operated by FAA personnel, not military personnel.

Plan B — The site must be large enough to contain a 4,000 foot runway, with provisions for a terminal and instrument approaches. A multiple-runway

WAR, Sussex At Odds on Sewer

The Sussex Levy Court, as an unexpected result of its water-sewer districting endeavors throughout the county, may be in hot water with the state Water and Air Resources Commission.

The particular problem at this point, one in which the county aides are seeking legal advice, is a WAR edict to the town of Selbyville, over alleged pollution of an interstate stream.

John C. Bryson, WAR's executive director, has, according to Levy president, R. Glenn Mears, indicated that the commissioners should take steps to force remedial action in Selbyville.

Subsequently, the state pollution officials are slated to meet next Tuesday with the Levy Court, the county's sewer-water coordinator, John M. Leato, attorney H. Edward Mauli, and possibly Selbyville Mayor Asher B. Carey.

That meeting, in commissioner Raymond E. Townsend's estimation, "looks like it will turn into a real hair-pulling session." Leato agreed with Townsend recently that "it's going to be a pretty rough one."

Last Thursday, Bryson referred to the Selbyville situation, one which involves the polluting of Bunting Branch, as long standing. He warned that the town would be given one more notice to alleviate the condition or face a public hearing as to why they had not.

In the interim, Bryson apparently contacted both Mears and Leato on the assumption that, because of the county aide's efforts to establish water and sewer districts in Sussex, the Levy Court could figure into the dispute as a third party.

Leato, recalling a conversation he had with Bryson remarked, "Selbyville must clean up or face the federal firing squad. That pollution board (WAR) is really getting rough," added, "and Bryson told me that it's liable to cause a greater stink in Selbyville than that factory in Maryland ever has."

Seemingly, though he stated that he never had it in mind when he formulated his sewer districting legislation, Leato explained that Bryson apparently believes the Levy Court legally responsible for the alleviation of pollution difficulties in Sussex.

Leato, a state representative from the Dewey Beach area, succeeded in drafting and getting signed into law a bill which permits Sussex to pursue the installation of water and sewer districts. Ideally, the program is based on assisting both incorporated and unincorporated areas in securing federal funds to establish the districts.

Leato, who is personally concerned about the county's pollution problems, quickly went about acquiring necessary motions and petitions but then became bogged down in a mire of confusing federal red tape.

Disgruntled over the results, Leato was directed not to secure any further petitions until they received some evidence from the U.S. government that funds would be forthcoming.

As for Bryson's recent action, Mears stated "he's figuring on pushing this thing through whether we can get federal money or not." In effect, Mears commented, the state pollution director was asking the levy court to circumvent municipal authority by pressing Selbyville into holding a referendum, a vote that would indicate whether or not the townspeople were willing to shoulder additional taxes to pay for a new sanitary district.

"I didn't intend," Leato remarked, "when I wrote that law, that the levy court be considered as an enforcement agency." Bryson, Leato advised, is apparently under the impression that, whether or not Selbyville residents agree on a referendum, the levy court can still install a sewerage treatment system and force them to pay for it.

"There's been a misinterpretation of that law somewhere," Mears opined. "We'd better get our attorney busy working on it. They're trying to make us a defendant in any suits that might result down here."

Town officials in Selbyville have expressed dismay at the most recent edict from WAR, wondering why they have been singled out for criticism.

Quillen To Run From Fourth Ward

Grace Wanda Quillen will be a candidate for councilman from the Fourth Ward, in the January elections, instead of the Third, as mentioned in last week's paper. The Journal regrets the error.

MAYOR STRESSES NEED FOR LOW-COST HOUSING

Harrington, through the State Housing Authority, will seek low-cost housing primarily intended for elderly persons.

Harrington Mayor Luther P. Hatfield Tuesday said that Harrington has need for a low-cost housing project and at present has an attorney working on a housing code.

According to Hatfield 14 per cent of Harrington's population are those over 65 years of age and of this number, he said, "one half of that 14 per cent needs low-rent housing."

"This is not the first effort," Hatfield said, "that Harrington has made in this direction." He said that the Community Action Committee had made prior inquiries which apparently, have never been resolved.

Hatfield added that better housing for Harrington will become a campaign issue as he seeks re-election in January.

If Harrington does form a housing authority, he said, it will be composed of three members appointed by the Harrington council and three members appointed by the governor.

Financing, he said, will come primarily through a federal loan financed by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

In line with the housing question, Mayor Hatfield, also on Tuesday, was appointed to a Kent County committee to examine the need for and interest in public housing authorities in Kent and Sussex Counties.

The appointment came at a conference on housing for the aged at the State Heath Building in Dover. The conference was an outgrowth of a conference on aging at the University of Delaware last month.

U. of D. Singers To Present Christmas Concert

The University of Delaware Concert Choir and Chamber Singers will present the annual Christmas Concert on Tuesday, Dec. 13, and Wednesday, Dec. 14 at 8:15 p.m. in Mitchell Hall.

The concert will be under the direction of Joseph Hustzi, assistant professor of music.

The concert will include many well-known seasonal selections including "Pat-a-pan," sung by the Chamber Singers. The men of the choir will sing "God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen" and the famous echo-carol "While Shepherds Watched" will be sung by the Concert Choir.

The Chamber Singers, a highly selected ensemble of 22 voices, specializing in music for small choirs, will present six well-known selections including "O Come, O Come Immanuel," "Now the Holy Child is Born" and a Spanish carol arranged by Robert Shaw and Alice Parker, "Fum, Fum, Fum."

Several unusual and seldom performed seasonal selections will be presented by the Concert Choir. "Magnificat" by Charles T. Pachelbel features a double-chorus in which the choir will sing at times in eight parts and at other times echo each other. Art Roberts of Wilmington will supply the organ accompaniment.

A number of soloists will perform during the evening. Soprano Virginia Hughes of New Castle, and Susan Huston of New Castle, and contralto Bonnie Sue Gould of Laurel, will sing the solo lines in the "Magnificat." Jane Dobrzynski of Wilmington, soprano; Richard Baumeister of Wilmington, bass; Thomas Meehan of Wilmington, tenor; Robert Knight of Wilmington, baritone and Miss Hughes will sing the solo lines in Gustav Holst's "Christmas Day."

Other soloists of the evening will include Barbara Kelsey of Newark, soprano; William Lord of Harrington, tenor; Val Nardo of Newark, tenor; Linda Rothfuss of Wilmington, soprano; Bernice Calhoun of Wilmington, tenor and Thomas Poulitz of New Castle, bass. All soloists are student members of the University choral organizations.

Don't Blame The Farmer

It is estimated that, of the more than $60 billion spent at grocery stores and supermarkets in this country last year, some $5.8 million—nearly 10 per cent of this total—went for non-food items that housewives saw fit to buy along with food for their families.

Of course the housewife is spending more at the grocery store these days! But let's remember that she is buying a lot more than groceries in the process. Actually, she is buying a wide variety of other items, such as health and beauty aids, paper products, beverages, glassware and even clothing. And indications are that regular supermarkets purchases will include an increasing number of such items.

This is well and good, so long as the farmer isn't blamed for the rising cost of the miscellany found in the average grocery basket. Housewives and others haven't demonstrated much understanding on this point, and consequently, the farmer has turned out to be something of a whipping boy in the current hassle over rising living costs. Food prices have risen, too—some 2.3 per cent last year and perhaps a bit more this year—but in most cases they have been reasonable increases that were long overdue, judged by the general tempo of the nation's economy. Certainly they were overdue so far as the producer is concerned.

By and large, food is still just about the best buy available to the consumer. For instance, the U.S. Department of Commerce says that expenditures for food by American families fell from 25.6 per cent of disposable income in the 1944-49 period to 18.2 per cent in 1965, the lowest since 1929. A decline to 17 per cent is projected by 1970. And disposable income has risen more than 70 per cent in the last 10 years, while population itself was growing only 20 per cent.

Yes, Mrs. Housewife, we sympathize with your budget problems, and we know how it hurts when costs go higher. But, please, let's not blame food and the hard-working people who produce it. The guilt lies elsewhere. — The Drovers Journal, Kansas City, Mo.

City Council Studies Police Pension Plan

There are still numerous intangibles in a police pension plan, but the City Council continues to study the ponderous issue with a view of inaugurating a system when and if the state gets its "ducks in a row."

The issue harkens back to a bill, signed by Gov. Terry in June, which permits taxing certain gross insurance premiums ¼%, returns to be used for pensions for state, county, and municipal police.

Receiving bodies must register with the state treasurer by April 1, declaring number of police, etc. Annually, the governmental bodies must report to the state insurance commissioner.

Premiums to be taxed will not include those on workmen's compensation insurance, and it is uncertain if fire insurance policies will be taxed since they are already taxed for the benefit of fire companies. The city is not in a position to pursue a positive policy at present. First, the state must ascertain how much money will be derived and then how much will be allocated to each police agency.

Once this is discovered, the City will have to decide if the state appropriations will be sufficient for the pension, or if the city will have to add to it.

The Council met, for the first time, in its quarters in the new city hall, the former residence of Dr. Hewitt W. Smith. The Council room was tastefully decorated. City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann painted the interior and the council table. He bought a used rug and the total cost of the improvement was $105.

In other business, the Council agreed to appoint an adman at its next meeting, Tues., Dec. 20. One is needed to be a judge at the January election.

Authorized City Manager Alfred G. B. Mann to employ Isaakson & Son, of Salisbury, on a trial basis, to install water meters at business places and West Harrington Elementary School. Mann is to report results of the trial at the next meeting. Harrington School and five businesses have the meters and about 30 places are slated for metering in the near future.

The city officials were invited to a dinner at the firehouse Wednesday night when the Kent County Volunteer Firemen's Association will meet.

The City Planning Commission will meet in the City Hall Thursday night.

Wives Play Don Quixote With Supermarket Price

It has been interesting to watch the antics of American housewives who have staged great battles in our cities to fight food costs by refraining from buying in super markets.

Like fighting a revolving windmill, they are attacking the problem as they see it, but the real villain is inflation, and the greatest cause of inflation it too much government and high costs and a waste of the public's money for useless and needless forms of federal programs.

Prices of everything have been going up. Wages have been spiraling, but the increase in wages and salaries has not kept up with higher costs of food, tobacco, liquor, luxuries, newspapers, clothing, automobiles, gasoline, utilities, and the thousand and one things that are considered necessary for today's high-speed living.

Supermarkets and those who sell food operate on a much lower margin of profit than many other types of business, and they face the problem of increased taxes, higher wages and the rising costs in a business operation.

The cost of food may be serious, but watch what happens when milady goes to market.

One smart observer checked the items in the grocery cart and here's what he found: a paper book, a can of hair spray, a roll of aluminum foil, some mouth wash, a big bottle of detergent. She did not have one food item, yet all were household needs in raising a family or maintaining a home.

She was very irate about high food costs and complained to a second shopper. The man listened to the conversation and then casually watched the second buyer's items, and guess what was noted? There was a jar of ice cream topping, a quart of oysters, some shredded coconut, a pound of fancy wrapped sliced bacon, an attractive bag of new crop mixed nuts—mostly non-essentials.

Another busy housewife in her load of purchases had three packages of frozen berries raised in California, three ready-made sandwiches, a half dozen TV dinners, an easy-to-prepare pizza, several convenience foods, and the busy housewife, planning to save time in the kitchen, joined the chorus of shoppers all lamenting about high food costs.

The American farmer has been receiving a little more for his products and this has been important for many producers have been leaving their farms and getting work in industries. It was and is important that farmers receive more money to meet higher interest rates, the increased cost of machinery, higher taxes on their soil and buildings.

Our citizens have for too long been getting something for nothing from the American farmer. Yes, foods have been reasonable, but it was a means of depriving the producer of a fair price for the things he harvests from our dwindling farm land.

MAYOR STRESSES NEED FOR LOW-COST HOUSING

Harrington, through the State Housing Authority, will seek low-cost housing primarily intended for elderly persons.

Harrington Mayor Luther P. Hatfield Tuesday said that Harrington has need for a low-cost housing project and at present has an attorney working on a housing code.

According to Hatfield 14 per cent of Harrington's population are those over 65 years of age and of this number, he said, "one half of that 14 per cent needs low-rent housing."

"This is not the first effort," Hatfield said, "that Harrington has made in this direction." He said that the Community Action Committee had made prior inquiries which apparently, have never been resolved.

Hatfield added that better housing for Harrington will become a campaign issue as he seeks re-election in January.

If Harrington does form a housing authority, he said, it will be composed of three members appointed by the Harrington council and three members appointed by the governor.

Financing, he said, will come primarily through a federal loan financed by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

In line with the housing question, Mayor Hatfield, also on Tuesday, was appointed to a Kent County committee to examine the need for and interest in public housing authorities in Kent and Sussex Counties.

The appointment came at a conference on housing for the aged at the State Heath Building in Dover. The conference was an outgrowth of a conference on aging at the University of Delaware last month.

U. of D. Singers To Present Christmas Concert

The University of Delaware Concert Choir and Chamber Singers will present the annual Christmas Concert on Tuesday, Dec. 13, and Wednesday, Dec. 14 at 8:15 p.m. in Mitchell Hall.

The concert will be under the direction of Joseph Hustzi, assistant professor of music.

The concert will include many well-known seasonal selections including "Pat-a-pan," sung by the Chamber Singers. The men of the choir will sing "God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen" and the famous echo-carol "While Shepherds Watched" will be sung by the Concert Choir.

The Chamber Singers, a highly selected ensemble of 22 voices, specializing in music for small choirs, will present six well-known selections including "O Come, O Come Immanuel," "Now the Holy Child is Born" and a Spanish carol arranged by Robert Shaw and Alice Parker, "Fum, Fum, Fum."

Several unusual and seldom performed seasonal selections will be presented by the Concert Choir. "Magnificat" by Charles T. Pachelbel features a double-chorus in which the choir will sing at times in eight parts and at other times echo each other. Art Roberts of Wilmington will supply the organ accompaniment.

A number of soloists will perform during the evening. Soprano Virginia Hughes of New Castle, and Susan Huston of New Castle, and contralto Bonnie Sue Gould of Laurel, will sing the solo lines in the "Magnificat." Jane Dobrzynski of Wilmington, soprano; Richard Baumeister of Wilmington, bass; Thomas Meehan of Wilmington, tenor; Robert Knight of Wilmington, baritone and Miss Hughes will sing the solo lines in Gustav Holst's "Christmas Day."

Other soloists of the evening will include Barbara Kelsey of Newark, soprano; William Lord of Harrington, tenor; Val Nardo of Newark, tenor; Linda Rothfuss of Wilmington, soprano; Bernice Calhoun of Wilmington, tenor and Thomas Poulitz of New Castle, bass. All soloists are student members of the University choral organizations.

Don't Blame The Farmer

It is estimated that, of the more than $60 billion spent at grocery stores and supermarkets in this country last year, some $5.8 million—nearly 10 per cent of this total—went for non-food items that housewives saw fit to buy along with food for their families.

Of course the housewife is spending more at the grocery store these days! But let's remember that she is buying a lot more than groceries in the process. Actually, she is buying a wide variety of other items, such as health and beauty aids, paper products, beverages, glassware and even clothing. And indications are that regular supermarkets purchases will include an increasing number of such items.

This is well and good, so long as the farmer isn't blamed for the rising cost of the miscellany found in the average grocery basket. Housewives and others haven't demonstrated much understanding on this point, and consequently, the farmer has turned out to be something of a whipping boy in the current hassle over rising living costs. Food prices have risen, too—some 2.3 per cent last year and perhaps a bit more this year—but in most cases they have been reasonable increases that were long overdue, judged by the general tempo of the nation's economy. Certainly they were overdue so far as the producer is concerned.

By and large, food is still just about the best buy available to the consumer. For instance, the U.S. Department of Commerce says that expenditures for food by American families fell from 25.6 per cent of disposable income in the 1944-49 period to 18.2 per cent in 1965, the lowest since 1929. A decline to 17 per cent is projected by 1970. And disposable income has risen more than 70 per cent in the last 10 years, while population itself was growing only 20 per cent.

Yes, Mrs. Housewife, we sympathize with your budget problems, and we know how it hurts when costs go higher. But, please, let's not blame food and the hard-working people who produce it. The guilt lies elsewhere. — The Drovers Journal, Kansas City, Mo.

City Council Studies Police Pension Plan

There are still numerous intangibles in a police pension plan, but the City Council continues to study the ponderous issue with a view of inaugurating a system when and if the state gets its "ducks in a row."

The issue harkens back to a bill, signed by Gov. Terry in June, which permits taxing certain gross insurance premiums ¼%, returns to be used for pensions for state, county, and municipal police.

Receiving bodies must register with the state treasurer by April 1, declaring number of police, etc. Annually, the governmental bodies must report to the state insurance commissioner.

Premiums to be taxed will not include those on workmen's compensation insurance, and it is uncertain if fire insurance policies will be taxed since they are already taxed for the benefit of fire companies. The city is not in a position to pursue a positive policy at present. First, the state must ascertain how much money will be derived and then how much will be allocated to each police agency.

Once this is discovered, the City will have to decide if the state appropriations will be sufficient for the pension, or if the city will have to add to it.

The Council met, for the first time, in its quarters in the new city hall, the former residence of Dr. Hewitt W. Smith

Bank Drive-In Soon To Be Completed

The First National Bank's drive-in addition is nearing completion and will be in full operation after the holiday season, said Tharp Harrington the bank's cashier, Tuesday.

The construction has caused a shifting of the teller area from the north side of the bank to the south, where the drive-in windows will be available.

The former teller area will be a note-and-mortgage department and office space.

Included in the drive-in addition will be bookkeeping areas and ladies' and men's lounges.

The bank's front wooden door will be replaced by aluminum and glass-paneled double doors, Harrington explained.

He added the bank would have an open house next year.

2 Treasurer Aides To Leave

The state treasurer's office will lose at least two key officials when Republican Daniel J. Ross takes over as treasurer from Democrat Mrs. Belle Everette.

In the auditor's office, on the other hand the change in party control will bring no major personnel changes, at least not immediately.

Deputy Treasurer Lawrence Carey and Linden S. Doughten, head of the department's computer operations, both plan to leave for other jobs after Jan. 1.

Ross reportedly has made no plans for replacing them yet. He has not visited the treasurer's office since his election, according to Mrs. Everette but she said she thought he planned to next week.

Herman C. Brown, acting Kent County Republican chairman, said Monday that Ross will confer with him and Sussex Chairman Gene Bunting next week on the choice of personnel for the office.

Brown said they hope to work out an orderly transition procedure retaining many of the present staffers for the time being at least.

Auditor-elect George W. Cripps said he will bring in his own deputy, Mrs. Lillian Martin, of Milford, but probably will retain the present deputy, Jonathan Hopkins, in a lesser position.

Hopkins said he probably will accept such a job if Cripps offers it. He also said that other persons in the office are waiting to see what Cripps is going to do before looking for new jobs.

Cripps said he plans no wholesale changes in the department's staff.

"I want the best possible people; and I'm not particularly concerned with party tags," he said. He also admitted that qualified auditors are hard to find at the salaries the state pays.

Cripps has met with Hopkins once to discuss the operation of the auditor's office and plans several more meetings with Dr. Charles F. Moore, the defeated incumbent.

Cripps indicated, as he did during the campaign, that once in office he will concentrate on his duties as state election commissioner, which also belong to the auditor.

He plans a series of public meetings to learn how the voters feel about the present election system.

These meetings and other studies probably will lead to the preparation of legislation to change the present system of one-party-dominated county boards of elections, he said.

River and Bay Authority to Spend $115,000 on Liner

The Delaware River and Bay Authority has authorized an additional expenditure of $115,000 to completely refurbish the S.S. New Jersey, second largest of its Bay liners. In October, $70,000 was authorized for repairs to the same vessel.

Work is currently underway by Norfolk Ship Co., Norfolk, Va., and according to Director William J. Miller, Jr., the vessel should be ready for service with the Cape May-Lewes Ferry line in a very reasonable time.

In further action, the Authority decided to ask for bids on updating the S.S. Delaware, flag ship of the ferry fleet, with bids to be on hand for a meeting on December 13. Authority officials estimated that an expenditure of $300,000 would be necessary to bring the vessel up to minimum U.S. Coast Guard standards.

This action, according to Miller, shows the keen interest of the Authority in maintaining the Cape May-Lewes Ferry service.

The Authority adopted its 1967 budget at its meeting Nov. 22 calling for an expenditure of $9,486,000. This is for the joint operation and maintenance of Delaware Memorial Bridge and the Ferry Line across Delaware Bay. The budget is approximately $240,000 less than that of the previous year.

Broken down, there is an allotment of $2,063,000 for Delaware Memorial Bridge; $2,166,000 for the Cape May-Lewes Ferry; $357,000 for Administration; $300,000 contingency and $4,486,000 for interest including the 20% requirements in the Trust Agreement.

It was also learned that beginning some time after January 1, 1967, manual toll booth collectors will be able to sell commutation tickets. This will avoid the necessity of patrons having to stop at the information center to make such purchases.

Director Miller pointed out that since the opening of the West-bound Approach to the Second Memorial Span, people are patronizing the automated booths and evidently enjoying them. All they require is that fifty cents in change be dropped and vehicles speed on their way.

Miller said the Authority is still receiving offers for two of its smaller bay liners. If a suitable offer comes along, disposal of the vessels will be considered, he declared.

New Bulletin Tips For Decorating

A completely redecorated home — all at one time — is a lovely dream. But most home-makers redecorate bit by bit, according to Miss Janet Reed, extension clothing and textile specialist at the University of Delaware.

In a new publication, "Be Your Own Decorator," she points out that planning your decorating scheme is necessary before you start. Of course, many things can happen before you achieve the desired results. You may change your ideas, but you should start with a fairly definite idea of how the completed room should look.

If you are going to be your own decorator, start where the professionals do. Analyze your own preferences, Miss Reed urges. The home is yours and the decor should reflect your individual family's likes and interests.

Look critically at each room. Is the light warm and sunny or is it cool? How much natural light is in the room? How many windows? What is the room's size and shape? Do fireplaces, doors or built-in bookcases interfere with furniture placement? Are the ceilings high or low?

After you have made your long-range plans—and put them down on paper—decide where to begin. Decide what to keep and what to change first in each room, Miss Reed advises. Every change should fit in with your long range plan and still look right with the furnishings that will be kept for a while.

There are no set rules about decorating, Miss Reed points out. The more you train your eyes to detect color and space relationships, the more successful you will be. As you think and observe, plan and study, for your redecorating scheme, you will develop confidence in your own taste and preferences.

The bulletin, "Be Your Own Decorator," is published by the University of Delaware Extension Service in Agriculture and Home Economics. It contains decorating tips for walls, draperies and carpets and suggests color schemes. Copies are available from the Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, Delaware 19711.

4-H News

With Marion McDonald

Congress delegates have a story to tell. Our six Kent County 4-Hers who have just returned from Chicago are eager to share their experience with fellow 4-Hers service clubs and other groups. Do call on them soon.

Vacation-time should find many 4-Hers gathering materials for the public speaking contest in January. A good speech needs to be thought out carefully, contain back-up material to prove accuracy of statements. Let's put your best effort into this event. Challenge your club members to do a really good job.

Most record books should be in the club members hands by now. Those who did not specify the unit number may not have the project needed. Act now—tell your leader. Without your record book you're losing valuable time. Nearly 3 months have passed for this club year already.

Food members—The November issue of National 4-H news has an excellent article on meat cookery. Good information for a demonstration.

Clothing members should check the article on modeling in the same issue. Project groups can practice throughout the year. All 4-H leaders and Junior leaders receive copies of the news.

Houton Fire Company Report

The Houston Volunteer Fire Company announces that Santa Claus will be in Houston at the Fire Hall on Dec 19, 6:30 p.m. The children of the community are invited to see him at this time.

Election officers was held at the meeting with the following officers elected: President, Donald Armour; vice-president, John Eisenbrey; secretary, Franklin Morgan; treasurer, Emmett Herington; fire chief, Russell Hayes; custodian, Herbert Kenton; chief engineer, Eugene Sharp; superintendent of supplies, Luther Scott, and fire recorder, Houston Twilley.

It was voted to receive two new members. They were: associate member, Benton Hill; junior member, John Ray Sapp, Jr.

Houston Twilley reported three alarms were answered.

A vote of thanks was expressed for the fine job done in painting the meeting room light tan with brown trim. Mrs. Herbert Kenton did an excellent job in making drapes for the room. It was voted to have the Houston Methodist W.S.C.S. serve a roast beef dinner to the Kent County Firemen's meeting to be held at the Houston Community Wed., Jan. 18, at 7:30 p.m. The next meeting date will be Mon., Jan. 2, at 7:30 p.m.

The large turn-out was appreciated by the president, Donald Armour, and refreshments were served following the meeting by Herbert Kenton.

IMPROVED PROPERTIES CAN BE RENTED EASIER THAN CAN UNIMPROVED PROPERTIES

Of course; everyone knows it, but it helps if one is occasionally reminded of what one knows.

For example, the main street of Harrington, and some of its tributaries, have many unrented properties. This is detrimental to the town, especially in the case where non-citizens ride through the heart of town and get the impression the whole apple is rotten instead of merely the core.

We believe, if these properties were improved and rentals were reduced on a long lease, the owners and the community would be benefited. We have heard it said this owner will not fix the roof; that owner will make no improvements. One renter said he had to improve another's property. We have been in the market for some time for another addition, have advertised for space, and have received no replies.

If the owners would follow our suggestions, we believe their properties would not be vacant long. We do not believe the renters would necessarily be retail establishments, but there are many businesses which need a base of operations from which they could solicit trade in Kent and Sussex Counties and in nearby Maryland. We believe our plan warrants a look.

The Harrington Volunteer Fire Company is to be complimented for removing the hedge and trimming trees on the property it recently purchased from Dr. Hewitt W. Smith and leased to the City of Harrington.

The intersection at Mechanic and Fleming Streets was a hazard to motorists because vision was obstructed by the shrubbery.

SIMPLE, PAINLESS TEST CAN SAVE THOUSANDS OF CANCER VICTIMS

Next year, 43,000 Americans can be expected to die of the most common of all internal cancers, cancer of the colon and rectum. A PAINLESS, FIVE-MINUTE EXAMINATION GIVEN NOW COULD SAVE THE VAST MAJORITY OF THESE VICTIMS!

This examination, described in an October Reader's Digest article, goes by the complicated name of proctosigmoidoscopy. To most doctors it is known more simply as "procto." It consists of inserting a lighted tube into the rectum and colon, allowing the doctor to see tumors that might lurk silently there, waiting to grow into death-dealing cancer.

Says Dr. Emerson Day of the Seattle Clinic, world's largest cancer-detection center: "Done once a year, the procto can catch this cancer so early that it is no more dangerous to life than appendicitis." The American Cancer Society agrees, stating in a publication that "all cancers of the colon and rectum could be cured if removed early enough." Yet what happens? More than eighty percent of doctors surveyed said they do not use the procto as part of regular checkups. Most Americans have never even heard of it, although the test has been known for more than 50 years.

Why the neglect? The Digest authors, Patricia and Ron Deutsch, suggest that a combination of fear and embarrassment may be at fault. Yet the examination is without pain, costs little more than a Pap smear and new disposable equipment makes it convenient for the doctor. Add to these facts the probability of saving tens of thousands of lives annually, and one must certainly ask why the procto is not a routine part of everyone's annual physical check-up.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

Back in my railroad days, I lived in Harrisburg, Pa. (1936 to 1942) next door to Marty Foster, a little Irishman about my size, a statistician in the office of Secretary of Forest and Waters, and who became one of my closest friends. We were always glad to be seen in each other's company and would often go out of our way to be on the same bus home in the evening.

And although the bus ran past our door, we sometimes got off three squares away, dropped into the (open) Catholic Church to acknowledge our successes of the day. The very fact we were not of the same faith, seemed to further weld our fellowship on these brief stops with the MASTER.

Marty was almost a carbon-copy of the late J. Harvey Burgess in his thoughts and actions, poetically minded and always quoting scripture along with sayings of noted philosophers.

The following is one of Marty's poems, written about four years ago, shortly before passing away.

"THE LONELY CHRIST"

'Twas just at the hour of twilight,
 The church seemed solemn within,
 As I knelt at the foot of the altar,
 The outlines were faded and dim.

As the shadows of night crept 'round me,
 And the little red lamp's crimson ray,
 Made shadows dart backwards and forwards,
 'Cross the throne where the King of Kings lay.

I thought of the hurried footsteps,
 Of many with no time to spare,
 Thinking naught of the lonely SAVIOUR,
 Who hungered for burdens to share.

So I offered my prayer in silence,
 And promised to never forget,
 The evening when Christ seemed so lonely,
 As I left Him, my eyelids were wet.

Plan Ahead For Christmas

The plan's the thing—the key to a Christmas without hurry and flurry, to a truly enjoyable holiday season.

Every homemaker has so many extra duties added to her normal daily routine; planning is the only way to get everything done in time. Unless she organizes now, too many details will probably be left to the last minute, warns Miss Coral K. Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Start out with a list she recommends. Put down everything you need to do before the holidays, along with the date it should be done. Don't forget to list Christmas cards, homemade gifts and special baking, cleaning and decorations. Be realistic—allow yourself enough time to do the job right.

Ask your family to help; children like to feel they are an important and helpful part of the family. After all, Christmas is sharing; share the work as well as the gifts, suggests Miss Morris.

Every holiday season brings special holiday cooking; do as much as you can early in December. Use your freezer whenever possible.

Plan your menus well in advance; plan for the busy weeks before Christmas as well as for the holiday menus themselves. Make meals simple and easy so you're free to enjoy Christmas with the rest of the family.

Do any special cleaning as early as possible, advises Miss Morris. Polish silver and wash any seldom-used chinaware early in December. Simplify the routine cleaning jobs that seem to take too much valuable time.

Know what gifts you want to buy before you start shopping; it'll save a lot of time—and tired feet. Shop early in the day, before you're too tired and before the stores are too crowded. Of course the sooner you shop for Christmas, the wider the selection to choose from.

To avoid the heavy post office rush, send Christmas packages as soon as possible. And try to have all Christmas cards sent by December 15, Miss Morris recommends.

Plan your spending she advises. It's never advisable to buy gifts that cost more than you can afford. The family has to live in January and February, too.

Trinity W.S.C.S. Notes

An impressive Christmas program was presented by Mrs. Samuel Williams at the Tuesday night meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of Trinity Methodist Church. The theme was "Happy Birthday to the King" and began by asking what Christmas means to each. We were cautioned against becoming physically exhausted with rushing around to do last minute shopping, wrapping gifts, addressing cards and planning a holiday dinner. These traditions are fine, but we must not forget the deeper meaning of Christmas. The birth of Christ is the real reason for remembering the day. Two duets were sung by Mrs. William Shaw and Mrs. Arnold Gilstad. Mrs. Gilstad also led the devotions.

The business session was conducted by Mrs. Ernest Raughley, president. Gifts were collected for the Wilmington Neighborhood House.

FENCE TALK

By George K. Vapaa

The farm business of the Delmarva Peninsula grossed $264 million dollars in 1964. This represents a 35% increase in gross sales from the previous census year of 1959. These and other facts have been gathered together for an economic development plan proposed by the Delmarva Advisory Council.

Your county agent serves on the agricultural committee of the Council. Some of us believe that farming represents a good growth industry for the shore.

About 55% of the land on the peninsula is in farms. The percentage is 61% for Kent County. Not only is much of the land in farms, but most of it is of high quality for cropping. It is easily adapted to modern mechanized farming. Our flat land, in relatively large tracts, with few or no stones, little clay, reasonable water supplies in most years, and most of all, closeness to markets, gives Delmarva tremendous advantages for farming.

Dr. Edward Aitao director of Extension at the University of Maryland, pointed up the extreme competition for land and water by various interests. He went on to say that some priorities are needed for the use of land.

This capped a discussion on the methods by which land use may be directed—by easements, deferred taxation voluntary agricultural preserves, and open space legislation.

One committee member, whose name escapes me, reminded us that no longer do we have farm laborers. Farm workers must have skills in order to handle the huge machines on farms today. Another trait that a farm worker must have today is common sense to change machine adjustments to meet changing crop conditions. So a strong program for upgrading skills of workers is seen as a real need.

One idea offered in the work program of the plan calls for a permanent trade fair for the shore. This might combine sales of Delmarva products to tourists and travelers with Disneyland-type entertainment. What better place for this than the Harrington Fairgrounds? Some of us had already been talking about an agricultural machinery museum there.

DEAR MRS. S.: (An open letter) Your boxwood shrubbery does appear to be having problems! Our specialists at the University of Delaware feel that the major problem may be excessive exposure to wind and sun. The bronzing of the leaves is a clear indication that the shrubs need to be protected over the winter with a burlap covered cage. Then you should move them to a more protected spot next spring.

You may have noticed the small spots on some of the leaves. These were caused by mite injury last summer. I would guess that you have been spraying with malathion or DDT to control other insects some of which tend to feed on the mites. Now you are also going to have to spray with kethane to control the mites when the weather gets hot again.

You had asked about nematodes. Some species do feed on the roots of boxwood. Nematodes are very small wormlike animals — not insects. Soil insecticides, such as chlordane will not keep them under control. Instead, use nemagon soil fumigant when you have reason to suspect nematodes. Nematode damage is easy to recognize. They cause knots or misshapen lumps on the roots. The roots on the plant you dug up appear to be quite normal.

The white fungous injury on some of your shrubs is merely a secondary infection which came about because of the loss of plant vigor due to weather and mite injury.

Dave Tatnall, our agent in ornamental horticulture at Newark, remarked on the fine condition of your American holly. The large size of the red berries and the bright green color of the new leaves is a good indication of healthy vigor. Don't worry about those few lighter colored leaves. Part of the problem was leaf minor injury last summer. But mostly, it's just nature shucking off a few older leaves.

Talking with Isaac Thomas, of Maryland at his open barn visitation day: Ike is quite taken with the possibilities of storing high moisture corn in his silo and then feeding it out to his dairy animals.

For one thing, he can start to harvest a bit sooner with less shelling loss in the field. In his case, he put up some regular corn silage in the upright silo, and then topped off with the high moisture corn — too wet to crib, yet dry enough to pick easily.

Ike is also feeding out his dairy bull calves as steers. This is a practice he saw in California last spring. He and his son, John, are trying to decide whether to sell them off before they are fattened out. It seems that there is a question whether there will be enough home grown feed to take care of the milking herd, the heifer calves and the steers. Yes, the drought this year got to everyone. So the steers may have to go to market early.

It is true that young Holstein steers are efficient producers of tender, flavorful beef if the animals are handled to take advantage of their natural urge to grow. While this means a higher energy ration early in the feeding period, the ration can also contain large amounts of good quality forage—hay haylage and silage.

A pesticide seminar was held by one of the major chemical companies in Dover last week. Jesse Crook of Ridgely, Md., the company host in charge, reminded sixty of us that "the basic goal in agriculture today is simple to provide food. All of us (there) help farmers do so by providing raw materials, needed services, or information"

Jess went on to develop the theme that the use of pesticides is one of many good ways to increase production. In view of world food shortages and the revolt of housewives against higher food prices, more production seems to be called for.

We saw a fine new film on the correct way to use pesticides. It is a fact that many people will spend hard earned money for chemicals and then literally waste them because of improper use. The film shows how to prepare and adjust spraying equipment properly among other things. It's a good film to show to farm organizations. So if your club is interested, perhaps I can arranged to borrow the film for showing.

Tax guides and calendars. These are two seasonal items that we have in good supply for free distribution. Call our Extension Service office at 736-1448 for yours. Or stop by our office on the second floor of the old Dover post office building between 8:30 t 4:30 Monday to Friday and pick them up.

We agents are writing our annual reports so there is a better chance of finding us in the office at this time of year. In any event if you have a problem you want to talk out, call for an appointment and we can be sure to be on hand.

Soybean Survey Taken by U. of D.

Each year Delaware soybean farmers get better and the weather gets worse. Soybean growers are continually improving their farming practices, according to a survey conducted by University of Delaware agriculturalists.

Dr. Richard Cole, chairman of the department of agronomy; Dr. Walter Connell, associate professor of entomology, and Dr. H. W. Crittenden, associate professor of plant pathology, made a random survey of the state's soybean acreage August 16. According to Cole, growers in general did an excellent job.

The number of growers producing varieties best suited for this area increased again this year. About 90 per cent of the fields checked were planted with recommended early- to medium-maturing varieties. No late-maturing varieties were planted to any appreciable extent; these varieties are low in oil and protein content and mature too late for good yields.

More farmers are using 36-inch rows than in the past, and ten per cent of the field visited had even narrower rows—30 inches or less. The narrower row spacing represents quite a change in farming practices, Cole points out. No too many years ago over half the rows were spaced 40 to 44 inches apart.

In addition to the obvious problems caused by dry weather, the survey indicated that a severe infestation of mites and a heavy weed growth were causing trouble. Both the mites and weeds were more of a problem due to the dry weather.

According to Connell, the mite infestation was one of the most severe ever reported in Delaware. Mites were wide spread this year; Delaware farmers shared the problem with growers from North Carolina to southern New Jersey.

Weed control also remains a problem on soybean acreages; nearly three-fourths of the fields surveyed had weed troubles. While annual grasses and most large broadleaved weeds were less numerous, ragweed had increased noticeably. Recommended weed control chemicals don't work too well on ragweed.

Deep-seeded broadleaf weeds such as the morning glory and jimson weed were also found. According to Cole, ordinary pre-emergence herbicides don't act on these weeds.

Each year more farmers recognize the need to fertilize soybeans; only two fields had a serious manganese deficiency, the survey indicated.

Kaffeeklatch

with Eleanor K. Vosnell

Baking with yeast is one of the nicest ways to treat your family and friends.

First, you let the tantalizing aroma of baking bread coffee cake or rolls give them a hint of the good eating to come. Then you present your creation—tender, handsomely browned, beautifully shaped, delectably flavored.

If you've never baked bread or it's been a long time, take a good look in the supermarket next time you go. In addition to making bread "from scratch" there are a number of ways to bake at home now. There are frozen doughs to thaw let rise, and bake. You can bake them in the loaf form in which they come, or when they are thawed shape them into rolls or fancy breads.

You can buy frozen dough already shaped into rolls — ready to rise and bake. You can buy them already baked and frozen or in the familiar "brown and serve" form. Yeast bread is showing up as a packaged mix too. A packet of yeast is included. One mix just needs an egg and water and requires no kneading.

If you'd like to try from scratch there's the new refrigerator-rising (better known as cool-rise) technique to make it easier to fit bread baking into your schedule. The special recipe is formulated so the dough actually rises in the refrigerator and can be baked after 2 hours and up to 48 hours. You can prepare a loaf of bread and two kinds of rolls, one afternoon, for example. At dinner, fresh baked cloverleaf rolls can be served. At breakfast the next day, hot cinnamon rolls can tempt the family, and finally at dinner the loaf of bread can be baked. What a convenience and pleasure to have this treat during the holidays.

For free recipes and information call or write Eleanor Voshell at P. O. Box 340, Dover, Del. 19901 or 736-1448.

DELAWARE FOOD MARKET REPORT
By Anne Holberton
"A penny saved is a penny earned," and who knows this old adage better than we who buy groceries each and every week. Substituting and using "specials" are fast becoming the familiar pattern for all of us. Yet the one important thing we must remember is that having the knowledge of what makes up an adequate diet does not necessarily lead to serving an adequate diet or eating one. Don't be "penny wise and pound foolish" by saving the budget and playing havoc with your health. Make it a point to know the foods that are needed to give you energy, endurance, and health, three essentials we all need these days.
How do things look? Well, we aren't likely to find too many bargains in fruits and vegetables this month, or for that matter during the coming months. Bad weather cut deeply into production and rising labor costs and shrinking stacks of processed vegetables all combined to raise prices. To brighten the outlook a bit, there are lower prices for pears, carrots, perhaps potatoes, and many canned and frozen fruits. Prices on canned and frozen vegetables are expected to average the same to slightly higher than what we are paying now. Government restriction of Mexican field hands has added to costs, too. The inexperienced domestic workers hired to replace these migratory workers demand higher wages per hour, are much slower and waste more because of their lack of skill and knowledge of the job to be done. Purchases of canned vegetables for the military services have increased more than 50 per cent in the past year—increasing prices even more by the cut in supplies.
This week, however, the picture is a little brighter. Supplies of Florida oranges and grapefruit are steadily increasing, and prices are falling. If this glowing picture continues, expect to see prices drop on frozen concentrates. Two of the holiday fruits have dropped sharply in price. Tangerines and tangelos both are quite reasonable now. Many of our local markets are switching from eastern apples to western fruit. Reflecting the changeover are Red Delicious, already up 2 to 3 cents a pound.
Good tomatoes are scarce and prices are up. However heavy shipments of lettuce from several growing areas have brought prices down on this vegetable. Offerings of celery, artichokes, and eggplant are larger, and carrots, cucumbers and endive continue in fair supply. A hard freeze in Idaho in mid-October may have destroyed as much as 20 per cent of the Idaho potato crop. Prices of Idaho potatoes have climbed above last year's price and quality is poorer. Even processed products using Idaho potatoes have advanced.

The Harrington Junior Football League will hold the final meeting of the season, Tues., Dec. 13, at the Harrington Firehouse. Starting time is 7:30 p.m. All interested persons are asked to attend.

Wetherhold's 5th Gets Trophy In 5-Mile Test

Chris Wetherhold's fifth place finish, in the third of a series of five mile runs, won him another trophy to go with his growing hoard of like awards. The races are sponsored by the Delaware Track and Field Club. The latest test, this past weekend, was held at Killen's Pond and was won by Jerry Petz, of Salesianum High School, a senior. State champion Andy Bader, of Archmere Academy, Claymont, was second.

Wetherhold, as a 13-year-old, eighth grader, is rated by distance racing zealots, as the best young long distance prospect in Delaware history. University of Delaware cross-country coach, Larry Pratt, has caught Chris' at a few times and stated "Chris excites me". We don't wonder. The young Lion already has a string of achievements as long as your arm. We would wager that practically every college track and cross-country coach in the country would be "excited" at the staggering potential of the Harrington Manor flash. The word was out on his talent long before he was out on Eddie Brasko, of Philadelphia, in a 12 and under mile run at Tower Hill, last March. That feat got him a mention in the National Track and Field News.

Nick Morris and Danny Hitchens, another eighth grader, are out for basketball at H.H.S. so did not have an opportunity to train for this latest test but did a fine job anyway as they were credited with sixth and seventh places in a field of 12 harriers.

Rockford Park, Sunday at 2 p.m., is the next five mile test for 18 and under.

28 Wrestling Candidates At H.H.S.

Coach Bill Muehleisen's Harrington High wrestling squad is coming off the first two winning seasons in local mat history, which were capped by the conference championship campaign last winter.

Some outstanding grapplers graduated in June, notably David Greenly and loop kingpins, Jim Cain and Bill Harcum.

Three Henlopen champions are back in Ed Wheatley, heavy weight, Mike Adams and Steve Welch. The latter pair will compete in heavier weight classes. With Wheatley as the only senior, Muehleisen sees this team reaching its peak next winter. However, the 1966 squad has some experience in every weight class and could have a respectable year.

Chuck Hurd, at 95 pounds, has two years under his belt, already and could make his division one of the locals' strong points.

At 103 Rick Welch is a second-year performer. Henlopen 95 pound champ in 1965, Mike Adams, should prove to be able at 112.

Terry Donovan at 117 pounds is a little light for the 120 pound class but is a tough, capable brawler.

Junior Allen Greenly (127) is a sturdy, experienced performer with a knowledge of holds, perhaps unequalled on the squad. Louis Kemp (133) has been a jayvee wrestler for two years. Only a freshman he has plenty of time to become an outstanding gripster.

138 pounds could be the best fortified division in the Lion ranks. Steve Welch is fast, clever and gritty. He showed great progress toward the end of last season.

147 Might be a problem as Wayne Melvin has wrestled before but has been away from the sport for a couple of years. However, the Wheeler's Park player was a good football player for the Lions this fall although not seeing grid action for two or three autumns.

David Hurd was a part-time regular at 154 pounds last winter. He's strong as a bull with plenty of courage but must acquire a more complete mastery of the moves.

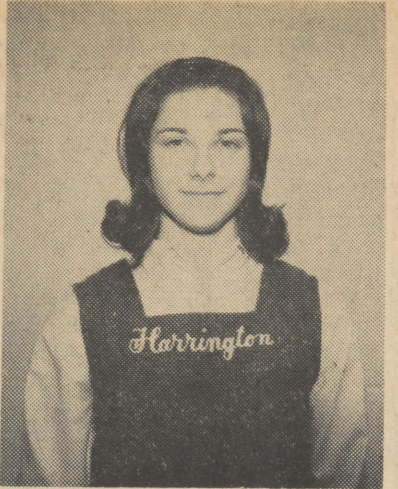

Bill Webb, a rough, tough, 165 pounder held down that position last time but may be slowed by a severe bout with illness. Mike Stayton is also available here. Stayton is sturdy and has a good knowledge of the holds. 165 Should be a solid spot.

Bob Donovan saved H.H.S. quite a few points by filling in at 180 pounds in 1965, although outweighed every start. Bob did not grow much and at 171 will be forced to give away 10 pounds again.

Another returning Henlopen champ is Ed Wheatley in the unlimited class. Wheatley does a good job but at times, has trou-

Three Lionesses Picked On All-Loop Team

The secretary of the Henlopen Conference announced the names of the girls selected for the All-Henlopen Conference Hockey Team for the 1966 season.

These girls were selected by the head coaches of each team in a meeting with Paul Timmons, conference chairman for hockey. Three members of this year's team were repeaters from the 1965 All Henlopen Conference Hockey Team. Brenda Hurd, Harrington, left wing; Judy Burgess, Harrington, center forward, and Debbie Timmons, John M. Clayton, center half, were so honored.

The complete roster of those selected follows with position, player, school and grade respectively:

* Also selected on the 1965 All Henlopen Conference Hockey Team.

Sports Editor's comments—Vi Testerman's Lionesses won the Henlopen Conference championship as they logged another unbeaten season. The locals battled Selbyville to a scoreless tie early in the going, then edged strong Rehoboth, 2-1. With their two chief rivals out of the running, Harrington annexed the title, as expected, although encountering more trouble with Felton than was foreseen. A 1-0 decision in that game just about wrapped up the pennant, as Dover Air bowed 6-0 and Milton forfeited.

H.H.S. came close to being unscored upon as Rehoboth's goal was the only one surrendered by Maggie Deputy. On at least two other occasions in recent years, the Harrington goal was violated all through the schedule.

In addition to the three All-Henlopen choices, we feel that a Lioness was overlooked. Joan Smith was a complete hockey player with a mastery of every facet of the game. She was hard to get by on defense, was an adept passer and hit bullets at hapless goalies on offense. John M. Clayton, which placed two halfbacks on the team was trounced 5-0 by H.H.S. but apparently impressed some of the selectors in other contests.

Cheryl Voshell, of Felton High, a junior, also made the All-Star squad.

Harrington's scores were:
Harrington 0 — Selbyville 0
Harrington 2 — Rehoboth 1
Harrington 5 — J. M. Clayton 0
Harrington 2 — Delmar 0
Harrington 5 — Millsboro 0
Harrington 1 — Felton 0
Harrington 6 — Dover Air 0
Harrington — Milton forfeit

Clarke, Parker, Porter — THE NEW WAVE

With only one senior, Captain Dan Hicks, not returning in 1967, Coach McDonald's state champion harriers don't need much in the way of new blood next fall. Nick Morris is slated to leave H.H.S. one year after Hicks and Ron Morris is scheduled to depart one season after Nick. With regulars graduating one at a time for the next three campaigns, it appears that the earliest possible weak year would be 1971 when Chris Wetherhold, Danny Hitchens, Bob Rash, Dale Motter, Jim Redden, Billy Walls, Joey Gray, Brimley Brode, Randy Cagle, Brad Morris, Bob Legates, this year's stellar crop of eighth graders will be gone.

Bob Smith, Billy Stubbs, John Kinney, Mike Davis, Tony Kibler, seventh graders all, should be "hot to trot" by 1971 and figure to get all the help they might need from a trio of astonishing grade school prospects. Danny Porter, 9, Tommy Clarke and Jackie D. Parker, both 11, were hovering on the fringes of most Lion cross-country meets this season and found time to demonstrate a remarkable affinity for the grueling hill-and-dale sport, which is so strenuous that many upperclassmen avoid it like the plague. Witness to this last statement is this year's roster, which shows only a half dozen competitors from the top three classes at H.H.S.

Porter squeezed in a few time trials and clocked 17.10, Clarke stopped the watch in 16.34, Parker had a glittering 16.31, after only two trips. The Lions' team members ran several times a week from mid-August until mid-November, logging between 50 and 90 workouts per boy. With that much practice, this trio of upstarts would undoubtedly be much better. Remember their names, they may approach or surpass any of their predecessors.

president of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers, noted that the National Grange at its 100th annual meeting last month in Minneapolis called for an extension of the President's authority to pursue the GATT negotiations.

"The first three steps in our world food crisis attack," the farm leader said, "are the prevention of mass starvation anywhere in the world, the sharing of our agricultural knowledge with underdeveloped nations, and the increase of food production in every nation, consistent with the demand for food."

Newsum's plan was first proposed in a pilot issue of the new National Grange magazine, and was publicly endorsed by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey during the recent National Grange meeting.

"The Grange has called for a yearly adjustment of farm programs until the domestic open market can provide 100% parity return to the American farmer determined on an individual basis.

"When open market supply and demand are balanced, as in the present case of soybeans,

THE CASE OF THE BONE-HANDLED KNIFE

as he thought. The infantry had gone by and the tanks; so he had a chance, so he surrendered to the Aussie. You see, it was open season on ducks, paratroopers and SS anyway.

Now W. C. searches this soldaten from the desert to the foothills and then knocked it off at the borderline; the other soldier searched him from the mountains down to the foothills and he also stopped at the borderline—what a mistake—they put the guy in the wagon to take him to the stockade, and he asked them to stop the truck for a moment. He was really scared—they call it a rest call; and sure enough—"wo is me; he gave one of the guards a '22' When Ellis of the guards came back; he said Burgess, you missed something." Never trust the enemy; they may have a gun up their sleeve, or somewhere else."

However, the bone-handled knife came from this German paratrooper. They don't carry knives with numbers on them. There were a lot of other knives, too. Knives like you skin hogs with—and everything. "Doc" Downes I gave some of them too; and that is all I can remember for so long ago—21 years.

I talked to this Aussie for a little while and asked him about his story—he was a prisoner of war, working on a German farm—and it was getting a little late in the ball game. Along comes a German soldier with a horse or two and a wagon; goodbye, German soldier; hello German farmer with horses and a wagon. Catch on; the German farmer must have been nice to the Aussie."

Wait, Mr. don't close that drawer; that is one of my pictures of Alaska. It is a picture given to me by Mrs. Florence Hanson. It says on the back of it: "Ugashik, Pilot's Point, Bristol Bay, Alaska."

"Boyee! All because I voted for this guy's son. You know this man was always nice to me anyway. He said he knew us boys before the war; but not very well.—I guess he does now, though; he said he read an article and finally found out which of the boys these little souvenirs belonged to—why but of course—"Pore Ole' One Vote Me." "Or, the guy with the leastest!"

we would not want an increase in government price supports," Newsom said.
