

Mayor Explains Reasons For Delay in City Audit

Underlining reasons for a delay in preparation of the City's annual audit, due Jan. 1, Mayor Fulton J. Downing attributed it to improper bookkeeping.

After the City Council had held a special meeting Monday night to act on tax appeals and revise the tax list, the audit was mentioned. Whereupon a Council member thought "the public should be told."

In response, Mayor Fulton J. Downing, elected in January, said, "Failure to keep adequate records, which necessitates a lot of auditor's time and clerical work so accounts can be separated into proper categories." The mayor compared it to a situation whereby all mail was put in one bag, instead of separate bags for each community.

Acting as spokesman for the Council, the mayor quoted a Philadelphia accounting firm, William Howe & Company, whose representatives looked at the bookkeeping problem Monday, March 13, as saying "it wouldn't touch it (the audit) for under $400."

Continuing, Mayor Downing explained the accounting firm suggested the City could hire an extra clerk to separate accounts into proper categories at less than half the cost the firm would have to charge.

Then, advised the accountants, an auditor could come in and make an audit at a reasonable figure, added the mayor.

The City has acted on the suggestion of the accounting firm and Mrs. Townsend Masten, who is familiar with the city office, is getting the accounts into a shape where they can be audited.

The Philadelphia accountants believed it would take two months to prepare the accounts for auditing. The firm suggested the employment of a special clerk for the groundwork after pointing out the time of Mrs. Kathryn T. Derrickson, acting city manager and city clerk, was taken up with current accounts and supervision.

Furthermore, William Howe & Company complimented Mrs. Derrickson highly on the bookkeeping system in use now, the Burroughs system, which was also used by Mrs. Derrickson until a little more than a year ago when she was replaced after many years in the office, in a factional battle.

Frank E. Holten, Jr., of Milford, the city's auditor, has been doing some work on the City's water audit. He attributed delay in auditing other accounts to his hospitalization last fall and confused records.

Present at Monday's meeting were Councilmen Grace Wanda Quillen, Burton Satterfield, John Satterfield, and Benjamin Hughes.

Senate Passes Appropriations Bill For Beach Park

The Senate Tuesday over-ride attempts by Sen. Eugene D. Bookhammer, R-Lewes, to ban camping at Indian River Inlet Park and passed a $600,000 appropriation to develop the beachland park.

Also, in a hectic one-day session, the Senate approved several other administration-backed money bills and saw introduction of an open-housing measure.

The Senate recessed about 9:45 p.m. and does not intend to return to work until about April 10. The House, which did not meet, plans to return at the same time.

Other appropriation bills passed Tuesday — all with little debate — provide $219,000 for the State Welfare Department, $50,000 for the Water and Air Resources Commission, $25,000 for the secretary of state and another $62,000 for the Park Commission.

The welfare appropriation will go mostly to support grant programs for the rest of the fiscal year which ends June 30. The resources commission will be given operating funds for the same period. The secretary of state appropriation will provide money to buy equipment and train personnel for operation of the Uniform Commercial Code.

The $620,000 Park Commission appropriation will give that body money to operate the Indian River Park until July 1.

The two park bills and the resources commission bill must be passed by the House. The others already have received House approval.

Expert Pruning Makes The Difference

Pruning makes the difference between an expert gardener and an amateur. Good pruning is essential to keep your property attractive and to keep ornamental plants healthy, according to Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware. However, you won't need to prune as much if you put plants in the best location for them.

Early spring—before growth begins—is the best time to prune evergreens and late flowering shrubs. Early flowering plants, blooming in March, April, May and early June, should be pruned immediately after flowering. Avoid early fall pruning, Stevens advises; it tends to produce late, immature growth.

However, prune or remove completely any dead, diseased, broken or injured branches at any season. And, prune all plants when you are transplanting.

Ornamental plants can be pruned several different ways. Shearing or clipping the ends results in a symmetrical shape, which is usually very different from the plant's natural shape. These geometric outlines are usually undesirable, and shearing often results in a bushy plant with a brown or bare interior due to shading. Hedge type plants are an exception; they lend themselves to this type of pruning.

Most ornamental plants are pruned to keep their natural shape. Pruning is necessary to maintain their appearance and to remove dead or diseased wood. Pruning also helps to control the size and shape of the plant. Pruning should be done in late winter or early spring, before new growth begins. Pruning should be done in a way that does not damage the plant. Pruning should be done in a way that does not damage the plant.

Easter Sunrise Service at Rehoboth Sunday

The Rev. Charles E. Covington, of Epworth Methodist Church, will preach the sermon at the Rehoboth Beach boardwalk Easter Sunrise Services scheduled for 5:55 a.m. Sunday morning.

This will be the fifth consecutive year that such services will have been held at the shore resort, according to Mrs. Mae Hall McCabe, president of the local Chamber of Commerce. The 1963 service was the first event held at the new boardwalk bandstand.

Assisting in the service will be the Rev. Francis McDonough, pastor of St. Edmund's Roman Catholic Church, and the Rev. John W. Dean, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church. C. W. Martin is chairman of the Chamber of Commerce sponsoring committee.

Two anthems, "The Lily" and "Christ the Crucified," will be sung by the Epworth Methodist Church Junior Choir under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Hudson.

Following this activity, the local churches will have regular services. At 1 p.m., the boardwalk Easter Promenade will get underway. If fair weather prevails, Chairman Ralph Pierson expects a record turnout. Reports show that area hotels are nearly booked for the weekend.

Awards in 13 categories will be made to the promenaders, with categories for children, adults and pets. Miss Betty Arnold, of Rehoboth Beach will be moderator. She will describe the fashions as the participants pass the boardwalk reviewing stand.

Should weather be inclement, the sunrise service will move indoors to the Beachwood Theatre which is near the bandstand. The Convention and Civic Center will be available for the promenade in the afternoon, Pierson pointed out.

On Easter Monday at 10 a.m. the annual Easter Egg Hunt, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, will be staged on the high school athletic field. Chairman Milton Fraser says that Mrs. Ann Ewing will have her usual crate of dyed eggs ready to be hidden on the grounds. Some will be marked and special prizes will await the youngsters finding them.

Bankers' Ag. Forum Set For March 30 at U. of D.

Dr. William E. McDaniel, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences, University of Delaware, will be the featured speaker at the Delaware Bankers' Agricultural Forum, March 30. His topic will be "The Race Between Population and Food."

More than 200 Delaware bank directors, bankers and leading farmers are expected to attend the session, which will begin at noon with a luncheon in the Rodney Room of the Student Center on the University campus. The Bankers' Agricultural Forum is sponsored annually by the Delaware Bankers' Association in cooperation with the University of Delaware's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Municipal Tax Rates Are Unchanged

The City Council, at a special meeting Monday evening, established the tax rates the same as those of last year; 80¢ per $100 on real estate, and $8.50 capitation.

The total assessment on real estate was revised at the Monday meeting, with a new figure of $5,088,252, as compared with $5,061,252 on the assessment list hung earlier this month.

The new poll list totals $11,594. Mrs. Kathryn T. Derrickson, acting city manager, said this figure would decrease, however, since names are continuing to be taken off the list under legislation passed in the January municipal elections. This law enables persons more than 65 years of age and earning less than $2500 per year to be taken off the capitation list.

To date, 51 persons have asked for exemption from capitation taxes, for a total of $433.50. To acquire the exemption, one must fill out a form at the City Hall. Tax notices will be sent out in April.

The Monday meeting, at which tax appeals and revisions were confirmed, was held because of an absence of a quorum at an appeal night last Friday when nine persons appeared. Ailments, however, were usually of a minor nature, such as duplications, the wrong property owner, etc.

Bailey, Sr., Fount Billings, Jr., Joseph Cordray, William E. Jester, Walter Krouse, Wilbur Sedgewick, S. O. Yeager, William H. Davis, Jr., and L. Gooden Callaway. In addition, a special certificate and Bible will be presented by the Department of Delaware in memory of the late L. Gooden Callaway.

Distinguished legionnaires from all over the State of Delaware will be present and the memorial address will be given by the Rev. Park Huntington, former department chaplain.

A Post Everlasting is a most impressive service which is put on by the local post and which recalls the service of deceased members for their country. Among other ceremonial acts will be the burning of these records in a brazier. The stage of the American Legion Hall has been paneled and otherwise redecorated with this occasion in mind. Friends of those who are to be honored are invited to be present.

Cancer Warning Signals

Always keep in mind that "a lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere" could mean trouble. Don't worry unnecessarily about such symptoms. Just be alert and ready to act sensibly as you would in the case of any other warning sign.

"A lump or thickening in the breast" is especially significant to women. Cancer of the breast is the leading cause of death from cancer among women.

There will be an estimated 64,000 new cases this year and 27,000 deaths. The number of deaths could be greatly reduced simply by alertness followed by positive action.

Every adult woman should examine her breasts monthly for possible lumps, thickening or irregularities. Such signs could mean cancer, but usually don't. If cancer exists, the chances of a cure are greatly increased if the diagnosis is early and treatment prompt.

Most breast lumps today are discovered by women themselves, before a doctor is consulted, but this is usually by accident rather than methodical self-examination and the result is often unnecessary delay.

Lumps or thickening in any part of the body—such as the groin, neck, armpits, etc.—should be a signal for action. If symptoms persist for two weeks, call them to the attention of your doctor. Usually they do not mean cancer, but only a doctor can say whether cancer is there or not.

Diamond State Drive-In Reopens Tonight at Felton

The Diamond State Drive-In, under the management of R/C Theatres, a Baltimore based chain, with theatres in Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Delaware, will re-open for the 1967 season on Fri., March 24. Several renovations have been made over the winter including the enclosing and modernization of the snack bar, which will feature pizza pies, subs, hamburgers, hot dogs, French fries and assorted cold sodas. Other improvements include a new ticket box and a repainted and updated screen and stage area.

Mrs. Mildred Steele will again serve as resident manager. The theatre will be open Friday, Saturday and Sunday for the present time and the admission price of 75¢ will remain the same except for special shows. Children under 12 are admitted free at all times.

The Diamond State is located on U.S. Route 13 just 6 miles south of Dover. For further information phone 284-9848.

Felton School District to Vote On High School at Killen's

Felton school district will hold a referendum Sat., April 29, on a $500,000-bond issue to provide the local portion of a junior-senior high school to cost an estimated $2,436,720.

The referendum came to life Thursday of last week when the State Board of Education issued a certificate of necessity which stated the state's portion of the costs as $1,936,720.

If the election passes, the building will be scheduled for completion in September, 1969.

Another referendum, to be held April 29, will stipulate a current expense tax levy in view of the fact, "we will need additional funds to operate the building," explained Dr. Howard Henry, superintendent of Felton School.

To pay for the bond issue, there will be a tax rate of 75¢ on real estate and $16 for capitation. The current rate is 37¢, with $12 on capitation, said Dr. Henry.

Felton school has an enrollment of 1130, is overcrowded, and has nine temporary classrooms in trailers, with six more trailers needed for next year, Henry commented.

The new Felton Junior-Senior High School, or secondary school, would be erected on a tract near Killen's Pond adjacent to land stipulated for a state park.

A new Felton secondary school, at Killen's Pond, would achieve some of the aims of recent unsuccessful referenda to consolidate Felton and Frederica school districts.

The new school, for example, would be on the same tract slated for a secondary school for the consolidated districts.

Furthermore, no later than 1973, all secondary-school pupils in the Frederica district, must attend the new Felton School.

The State Board of Education, at its meeting last week, resolved: "Effective at the date of occupancy of the proposed Felton High School shall be designated as the secondary school attendance area of all secondary school pupils residing in the Frederica School District; with the provision that the Frederica secondary school pupils in attendance at Caesar Rodney and Milford secondary schools, at the time of occupancy of the proposed Felton High School, shall have the choice of continuing their attendance at those high schools until graduation."

Since the tax rate of the Felton school district would be higher, it was the belief of Dr. Henry tax would increase in the Frederica school district because of increased tuition charge. The Frederica rate is now 10¢ per $100 on real estate.

The State Board's resolution is an inkling of what is to come in the matter of consolidation. Where school districts do not consolidate willingly, the state will force them to it. The State Board has already prepared legislation on this line, for introduction in the current General Assembly.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the McKnatt Funeral Home at 2 o'clock. Rev. William J. Garrett, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, will officiate.

Interment will be at Hollywood Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Friday evening.

Terry Seeks Cabinet Trial

Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr. asked the General Assembly Tuesday to combine four health and correctional agencies into two departments, and begin building a cabinet form of government for Delaware.

In a message delivered to the Senate, he proposed combining the Board of Health and the Department of Mental Health into one department and the Department of Correction and the Youth Services Commission into another.

He did not hesitate to make it plain who would be in control if the consolidations were approved by the legislature.

"I want you to know, and I want the people of this state to know," he said, "that in passing this legislation you are giving to the governor of the state the sole power and responsibility for administration in these areas."

Most of the agency officials involved in the proposed merger Tuesday night said that they favored the plan.

Only one of the eight agency officials contacted said he was definitely opposed — G. Tyler Coulson, Wilmington attorney and president of the Department of Mental Health.

The consolidation would give Terry full control of the Department of Mental Health, with which he has been feuding for months over budgetary procedure.

Unlawful Assembly Offense Returns Fine and Jail

Louis Garner was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in Kent County Correctional Institution Wednesday morning by Judge William Bush in the Kent County Court of Common Pleas on a charge of unlawful assembly.

The offense was committed the night of Oct. 31 but Garner was not apprehended by the local police until earlier this month. He was taken to Court No. 6 here, but elected to have his case heard in the county court.

The charge grew out of a Halloween Eve disturbance when the lobby doors of the closed Reese Theatre were broken.

Five juveniles were arrested in November and tried in Family Court, on the same charge, where their cases were continued. Two adults, Kenneth Thorpe and Arthur Johnson were fined $25 and costs, on the same charge, in November in Court 6 here.

Agnew Tax Plea Rejected By Terry

Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr. said Tuesday that he will never agree to restore a tax exemption for Maryland residents who work in Delaware.

The governor told the League of Women Voters at their annual League Day in Dover, that he and Maryland's Republican Gov. Spiro T. Agnew were "directly opposite" on the exemption when Agnew came to Dover last week to discuss the matter.

Terry also repeated for the women voters his previously stated position that the General Assembly wants a "crash spending program," it will have to find the money for it.

Agnew had come to Dover to seek reinstatement of a reciprocal agreement which would allow Maryland residents working in Delaware a credit when they pay their Delaware income taxes.

Terry said he has no intention of giving his state agencies a "crash program of spending" which would cost more than $15 million.

Satisfying the demands of state agencies who want a crash spending program would cost at least that much, Terry told the women.

"They want to do it all today," he continued, "They don't want to wait for the orderly progression of things."

"Yet, nearly every one of the agency heads has told me that they are progressing on what they have now," he said "If the legislature is going along with this crash program, they'd better get ready with $15 million more in taxes."

Local Girls Honored At Banquet

Susan Fair and Brenda Ivins of Harrington High School and their instructor, Harold J. McDonald, were honored at a banquet held at the Wicomico Hotel, Salisbury, given by the Administrative Management Society on Monday evening. Both girls received proficiency certificates for making 100% in a spelling test in which 17 schools and 1500 students on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Delaware participated. Only seven students received awards for perfect papers and Harrington High had two of them. The remaining five winners were: Sue Harmon, Wicomico High; Ruby Hooper, Mardela High; Betty Jean Newton, Bridgeville High; Terry Daniels, Lewes High, and Phyllis O'Day, North Caroline High.

U. Days For Women To Hear TV News Analyst

A TV news analyst and a naturalist will be featured speakers at the annual University Days for Women, scheduled for April 6 and 7 on the University of Delaware campus.

Donald Barnhouse, news analyst for WCAU-TV, will discuss "Stretching Awareness in a Shrinking World" at the Thursday (April 6) afternoon general session. Charles E. Mohr, executive director for Delaware Nature Education Center, will describe "The Use of Delaware Public Lands" at the Friday (April 7) afternoon general meeting.

Barnhouse joined Channel 10's news team in December, 1962. Since then he has toured Russia, attended the Geneva Conference on Church and Society for the National Council of Churches and covered two national political conventions.

Mohr, naturalist, author and lecturer, took over as executive director for Delaware Nature Education Center nearly a year ago. He came to Delaware from Kalamazoo, Mich., where he held a similar post.

According to Mrs. Alice King, state leader of Home Economics Extension, the two-day meeting is tuned to the interests of the modern homemaker. General sessions on the culture explosion, opportunities for women and architecture are on the program. Classes on travel, music, art, flower arrangement, wild flowers of Delaware, sewing, gourmet cookery, photography, family living and credit are scheduled. A tour of the University campus will also be available.

The two-day event is planned so homemakers may attend both Thursday and Friday sessions, staying in a University dormitory Wednesday and Thursday night. Or, they may attend only one day if they prefer.

Reservations for overnight lodging must be made by March 28. Complete information is available from home economics extension agents in Georgetown, Dover and Newark, or from the Home Economics Extension Service, University of Delaware, Newark, Delaware 19711.

Discover Wonderful Del.

In wonderful Delaware, May is usually thought of as azalea month, but it's a safe bet that the earliest of these handsome shrubs will bloom to greet the first visitors to "Wintertur in the Spring" which opens April 1 to continue through June 30.

Covering some sixty acres of native woodland and rolling countryside, these naturalized gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Francis duPont, near Wilmington, have been planned personally by Mr. duPont and include almost every species of tree, shrub, and flower that will grow in the mid-Atlantic region. The successive blooms, start with the first snowdrops and flowering bulbs, reach their spectacular height in late April and early May, and present a pattern of cool green and white in June.

Early visitors will see mauve Korean azaleas and yellow corylopsis, which flower together during the first part of April. Then come the blossoms of magnolia, cherry, and crab-apple trees, and great drifts of daffodils on the hillsides and bordering meandering streams. The famous Wintertur azaleas reach their peak in early May together with the white and pink blossoms of the dogwood trees and the colorful ground cover of bluebells, trillium, and wild flowers. The giant trees are in full leaf in June, their deep-green foliage complemented by the white blossoms of deutzia and philadelphus, and the lavender blooms of species lilacs and butterfly-bushes.

For a five-week period from April 25 through May 27, twenty-six early American period rooms in The Henry Francis duPont Wintertur Museum will be open in conjunction with the Gardens and may be seen without the advance appointment needed at other times of the year. Each of the rooms contains hand-fashioned woodwork from homes built along the eastern seaboard of this country between the late seventeenth century and the early nineteenth century, and is furnished to the smallest detail with furniture and objects of daily living contemporary in date with the woodwork.

The Wintertur Gardens will be open Tuesdays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and on Sundays from 1 to 4 p.m. During the five weeks from April 25 through May 27, the period rooms in the Museum may be visited Tuesdays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Luncheon is available at the Garden Pavilion.

The admission charges, which help support the education and research programs of the Wintertur Museum, a non-profit educational institution, are $1 to tour the Gardens, $1 to visit 16 rooms in the main museum, and 50 cents to see ten rooms reached by the south entrance. Children under 16 years of age when accompanied by adults are admitted to both the gardens and museum for 50 cents.

Special arrangements for groups of 25 or more persons may be made. Write to Special Group Tours, Wintertur, Del. 19735.

Wintertur is located six miles northwest of Wilmington on Route 52 between Greenville and Centreville.

Plow Corn Down Now To Cut Borer Damage

Delaware corn growers can help cut down on next summer's corn borer infestations if they act fast. The number of borers overwintering in corn stubble is usually high, and damage may be severe this summer unless growers plow down stubble before May 1. Plowing stubble under kills and buries many borers before they come out as moths in May.

At least one borer per square foot overwintered in corn stalks in Delaware fields this year. That adds up to more than 43,000 per acre. It also adds up to trouble for sweet corn, potato and pepper growers, points out Dr. Dale Bray, chairman of the department of entomology and applied ecology at the University of Delaware. It weather conditions are right this summer, this could be one of the worst years on record for corn borer damage.

Green peppers are a major target; more than half of the crop may be lost. As each generation of borers develops—there are three or four each summer—numbers increase astronomically and so does the damage.

Bray advises commercial sprayer growers to begin spraying with DDT or carbaryl (Sevin) when University entomologists find four borer moths per night in their light traps. This information will be available in "Late News", published by the Cooperative Extension Service at the University. Spraying every seven to ten days will be necessary.

DDT is also recommended for control of borers on corn if it is not going to be used for livestock feed. In that case, Bray suggests carbaryl. However, spraying field corn is usually impractical since it may cost more than the value of the corn lost. Borers don't cut corn yields appreciably unless the third or August generation is extremely numerous. If heavily infested corn stalks are weakened enough to be blown down during windstorms, corn pickers can't harvest the entire crop.

Borers do more costly damage to sweet corn; they can lower the quality and edibility of a sizeable percentage of corn ears. Some of the crop may have to be discarded.

Borers also attack potatoes; the first generation moths emerging from the corn stalks in May head for the potato fields. Young corn has a sap poisonous to young borers so they can develop only on a different crop. Unfortunately, by the middle of the season, corn loses its toxic substance, according to Bray. From that time on, it is subject to borer damage.

It sounds as though the toxin in corn would offer a good biological method to control corn borers. However as yet, the toxin costs too much to extract from the corn, so it can't be used.

The borer was imported from Europe; unfortunately, the natural enemies which help control the pest there won't live in this country. According to Bray, entomologists introduced an excellent natural parasite—a fly resembling the common house fly—but it died out within two years.

Biological control experiments are continuing, but so far they offer little promise. Cultural practices and chemicals are the only effective control methods available. Plow down all corn stubble by May 1 to destroy as many as possible of the overwintering borers.

Mrs. Jacob Hatfield

Ann Christopher, who has just returned from a wonderful trip to California, has very kindly written for us a diary of her trip, which is most interesting.

"I have just returned home from a month's vacation—a most delightful trip to California, going the southern route and returning the northern route, sighting everything all along the way.

"Stopped at Kannapolis, N. C., the home of Cannon Towels, and also at Charlotte, N. C., at the famous stock car races. I saw the Atlanta Braves Stadium at Atlanta, Ga., and the Old Lamp Post, Opelika, Ala., and Montgomery, Ala., a very pretty town. A lot of pecan trees and mistletoe, and was there the night a big restaurant was destroyed by fire that took the lives of twenty or more persons. I saw the Dan River Sheet Company building, west of Montgomery.

"Then on to Mississippi, crossing the Mississippi River Bridge at Vicksburg. On to Raysville, La., and to Dallas, Tex., a large city where the traffic moves like crazy and very heavy. It was a long drag through Texas. I went in the Wills Rogers Coliseum, and saw the Rodeo in the evening. On to Abilene, Tex., a beautiful town and nice motels. I saw a lot of cotton, fields and oil pumps, fields full of them.

"On to El Paso and from there to Mexico. I saw the dog races there and went through many of the leather goods stores. Some of the stores in Mexico are very old. Quite a few people there can speak our language fairly well. Very interesting. Stopped in Lordsburg, N. M., also a lovely town.

"I saw oranges growing near Tucson, Ariz. That is a nice town, but it was hot there. On through the desert, a rather interesting drive. I went in the Desert View Tower at the top of the mountains where one can see for miles around a 3,000 foot elevation.

"After about a 75 mile drive, I reached San Diego and spent quite some time there. I went through the National Forest, a sight to see.

"My next stop was Los Angeles, and I stayed there a few days, my favorite California city. Saw Disneyland, the most beautiful of all places, and very, very interesting. One can spend a lot of time there. I went on all the sightseeing tours there. I saw the Knotts Berry Farm, and the home of the Los Angeles Dodgers baseball team.

"I went to Hollywood and Beverly Hills, and saw several homes of the movie stars. On to San Francisco and went over the Golden Gate Bridge and on over the Bay Bridge in Oakland, Calif. San Francisco is very thickly settled, and the houses only look to be about eight feet apart. They don't have to take care of a lot of lawn like we do.

"I went through Yosemite National Park and saw the beautiful water falls and redwood trees and the large Wawona tree that one can drive a car through.

"I stopped at Boron, home of 20 mule team Borax, capital of the world, and also Edward's Air Force Base.

"Coming back on the northern route, I saw a coyote in Arizona. Went into the Grand Canyon, a huge place of much interest. I stopped at Flagstaff, Ariz., the home of the Northern Arizona University, and saw the Snow Bowl, Lowell Observatory and Oak Creek Canyon and Walnut Canyon National Monument.

"I came over the Mohawk Trail on to the Painted Desert and Petrified Forest and through New Mexico again. I stopped at Gallup, Albuquerque and Santa Rosa. Interesting points included Rio Grande Park and the Five Volcanic Peaks.

"I spent time at Amarillo, then on to Oklahoma City and went to the Cowboy Hall of Fame. To Claremore and saw the Will Rogers Memorial, also the clothes and contents of his pockets at the time of his airplane accident, which took his life. Also saw the picture of his wife, the monument where they were buried, and stayed overnight at the Will Rogers' Motel.

"I ate dinner in the Glass House Restaurant on the Will Rogers' Turnpike between Tulsa and Oklahoma. I stopped at Tulsa, Okla., the oil capital of the world. I also stopped in Joplin, Mo., Effingham, Ill., at St. Louis, Mo., Indianapolis, Ind., Dayton, Ohio, (saw the Indianapolis Motor Speedway), Wheeling, West Va., and on to Maryland, Delaware, and home, sweet home!

"It was a wonderful trip. I went through 22 states, covering a distance of 7,480 miles—and got rid of the cold I had had so long. I didn't get my lobster dinner this time, but had three especially good Smorgasbord dinners."

Thank you, Ann. To hear about it was next best to going.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

The traditional symbol of life, the egg, has been linked throughout history with nature's seasonal renewal. The original inspiration for coloring eggs in pagan times supposedly was the desire to imitate the brilliant hues that come with the first flush of spring. In northern Europe, eggs were dyed red for Thor; and yellow for Eostre, the goddess whose name was given to Easter. Medieval Englishmen used red, blue and violet dyes. The Persians, like the Russians, created elaborate works of art upon the egg shell.

If you are getting ready to buy eggs for dyeing, shell color and size are of prime importance. White shells dye in clear, bright colors and are, consequently, much in demand. Thus they will be more expensive. Brown and speckled shells take color differently, but do make interesting effects. They take especially well to decals, transfers or to decorations with a fine paint brush.

After you have selected your eggs, what about cooking them and using them later? Let's answer the last question first since this may influence the number of eggs you buy and dye. All Easter egg coloring sold today must be approved as safe by the Federal Government and the labels must state that the dye has been certified by the U. S. Food and Drug Administration.

Since the eggs used for dyeing are usually hard-cooked, it's best to eat them within two or three days. Now what about hard cooking and the ease of peeling the egg? The key factor in removing the shell seems to be the "ph" of the egg white. If the "ph" value is acid (which a truly fresh egg white is) then the shell will not come off; however, when the "ph" factor changes and becomes alkaline, then off will come the shell. As the shell's pores give off gas, the quality of the egg changes as well as the ph of the egg white. High temperatures and open containers also help lower the quality of the egg by causing a greater exchange of gases. But a hard cooked egg should have a well-entered yolk and this means high quality. So by your eggs now, make sure they have not been oil treated (they won't take dye and will not peel easily for two or three weeks) and store them for two or three days in an open container in the lowest part of your refrigerator. Cook in an enamel pan, but never boil. The large size egg will take approximately two minutes longer to cook than the small or medium size. You may take the eggs out of the refrigerator and place them in warm or cold water. Bring the water to the boiling point, then reduce the temperature until the water is simmering. Cook for six to eight minutes. If your eggs are at room temperature, place them in boiling water. Let the water come back to simmering temperature and cook for ten to twelve minutes.

Regardless of the method used to cook eggs always cool them quickly after cooking.

Kaffeeklatch

with Eleanor K. Voshell

Do you know how to make a complaint? It is the nagging complaints, the unanswered "pet peeves," that sometimes makes the average woman feel that shopping is a burden. Many of these can be straightened out if you go at it the right way. Get it off your chest.

Let's say your son's underwear which was labeled "pre-shrunk" came out of the washer two sizes smaller. What do you do?

You take the underwear back to the store. You explain (without losing your temper) that it was unsatisfactory. Ask for replacement, credit, or your money back. Start with the clerk who sold you the goods originally, if that sales person is available. If you get no satisfaction, ask to speak to the head of the department, unless the store has a special Complaint Desk, in which case you go there first.

Suppose you still do not feel that anyone who cares is listening, what next? Write to the store, outlining the problem briefly and without angry remarks. This letter can be addressed to "Customer Service" or to the Public Relations Department, or the president of the store. (Get his name by a phone call). You may not get a reply, but someone will read that letter. The higher up you go in a company, the surer you are to reach people who are deeply concerned about their customers and the responsibility for giving them dependable goods and service.

If the items that were unsatisfactory came from a supermarket, take them back there. Ask for the store manager and tell him what's wrong. If he is uncooperative, you should complain to the store's headquarters.

In other words, you start where you bought, and give the person (or store) who sold you the article in the first place, a chance to make good.

The public is cordially invited to view this art show and its outstanding collection of American art. Governor Terry will be present on the evening of March 27 to take part in the official opening of the exhibit.

Each governor of each of the fifty states selected a work of an artist from his state. Of the 50 works of art comprising the show, 31 will be on exhibit the entire week, March 27 through April 1, from 10 to 4 and 7 to 10 daily. Admission is free. This is the only appearance of the show scheduled for the State of Delaware.

All of the artists represented in this unique collection have enjoyed wide acclaim, won many honors and awards, and their works are to be found in many public and private collections.

Governor Terry's choice is a bronze sculpture entitled "Intrepid Dance," created by Mrs. Ruby I. Fischer of Wilmington. It is on loan to the show by the courtesy of its owner, the Court of General Sessions Art Trust, Washington, D. C.

Stately Easter lilies are a symbol of Easter for millions of people. They can be a lovely reminder of the holiday for several weeks if you choose good plants and take good care of them, according to Dr. Charles Dunham, associate professor of horticulture at the University of Delaware.

First of all, choose lilies that are compact with bright green leaves all the way to the base of the plant. A lily will flower if it has buds of several different sizes, Dunham points out.

Check open blossoms for yellow anthers; if there are any, remove them as soon as you can to prevent blossoms discoloring. This also keeps the blossom from being accidentally pollinated and closing sooner.

Dunham recommends keeping lilies in a moderately cool, draft-free place to prolong the life of the flowers.

Lilies need adequate drainage. Don't let water accumulate in the bottom of pots which are wrapped in waterproof material such as foil or cellophane. Promptly empty saucers if you place them under plants to catch drainage water.

Water the lily when it needs it; keep the soil moderately moist, neither waterlogged nor bone-dry. When watering, add enough water to wet all of the soil in the pot, not just the top inch or two. Don't water again until the soil begins to dry out, suggests Dunham.

You can make Easter lilies bloom again in the late summer. When all the blooms have wilted, place the potted plant in a sunny window until early May when you can plant it outside, six to eight inches deep. It will die down completely, but with normal growing conditions, it should come up and bloom again late in the season.

However, don't plant your Easter lilies outdoors if you have other lilies in your garden, Dunham cautions. Most Easter lilies are infected with a virus that will spread to other lilies growing nearby.

Easter lilies planted outdoors may live over the winter, but generally they are single-season plants.

Spring Fashions Offer Wide Selection

A new outfit for spring is almost an American tradition. It's a happy tradition, but don't go overboard, suggests Miss Janet Reed, extension clothing and textile specialist at the University of Delaware.

To be practical as well as well-dressed this spring, buy your outfit with future wear in mind. Very few homemakers can afford to do otherwise, says Miss Reed. And since Easter is early this year, you have a chance to get more use from new Easter suits and coats.

In Delaware's climate, a spring coat offers only limited wear unless you can wear it in the fall also. Don't cue the color of your new coat or suit to spring alone; summery pastels are seldom practical.

The ensemble of coat and dress is an important fashion idea this spring, according to Miss Reed. You can pick and choose from a wide selection of fabrics, including knits, and matching or contrasting colors. The ensemble is quite practical for Delaware's climate if chosen with care.

"Old ball players never die, they just carry on."
 With big-league baseball season less than three weeks away, we read about another league now in operation at St. Petersburg, Fla., "The Three Quarter Century League" in which players must be 75 to qualify.

Sportswriter Red Smith's column in last Sunday's Philadelphia Inquirer carries the following account of the opening game between the Kids and Kubs, who first lined up in a "V" on the base paths; holding red or blue caps over their hearts they sang "America" and as the cracked voices died away, Jim Waldie, a little old man, carrying an American flag, led the cheers with:

What's the matter with 75?
 We're the boys that are now alive!
 High-ho! Let's go!
 Rah! Rah! Rah! 75!

"Ladies and gentlemen," the announcer said, as the Kubs took the field, "you are looking at the oldest battery in the world, Pitching, John P. Maloney, 90, of Madison, N. J.; catching, Harry Hyland, 88, Wilmington, Del. It wouldn't happen anywhere in the world except here in Medicare Junction, USA."

I had heard about this old timers softball league when down there last March and had hopes of trying to qualify myself this year since I am in the proper age bracket. But, Mollie ruled otherwise, claiming men that old should act their age, and said, "Why not put in a plug for—"

THE MODERN GRANDMA

The old rocking chair is empty today,
 For Grandma is no longer in it.
 She's off in her car to her office or shop,
 And buzzes around every minute.

No one shoves Grandma back on a shelf,
 She is versatile, forceful, dynamic.
 That's not a pie in the oven, my dear,
 Her baking today is ceramic.

You won't see her trundling off early to bed,
 From her place in a warm chimney nook,
 Her typewriter clickety-clicks through the night,
 For Grandma is writing a book.

Grandma never take a look, front or back,
 To suggest that her age is advancing.
 She won't tend the babies for you anymore,
 For Grandma is taking up dancing.

She's not content with thinking old thoughts,
 With old-fashioned, second-hand knowledge;
 Don't bring your mending for Grandma to do,
 For Grandma has gone back to college.

PLAYER PIANOS COMING BACK

Player pianos are coming back, with rolls for the latest tunes. Stone's Hotel now has one.

The old models have been in demand for use in dens and rumpus rooms. Two rolls we pumped were "Silver Bells" and "Red Wing."

In The Harrington Journal, May 19, 1916, elsewhere mentioned in this newspaper, Edgar A. Wix Piano Company, of Harrington, mentioned player pianos in an advertisement.

$550 Newton Player-Pianos at $395, bench, scarf, and 12 rolls of music. $600 Behr Bros. Player pianos, $445. Weekly or monthly payments allowed; time payments accepted; pay cash if you prefer. Your old organ or silent piano taken in exchange at full value.

4 Delaware 4-H Members To Attend Conference

Four Delaware 4-H Club members have been named delegates to the National 4-H Conference, April 22 through 29 in Washington, D. C. according to James O. Baker, state 4-H leader.

Jane Coper, Odessa; Dorothy Hopkins, Lewes; Charles Ebling, Townsend, and Ronald Pritchett, Bridgeville, were chosen to represent Delaware at the national event.

The four were selected on the basis of their 4-H activities, leadership abilities, citizenship and community service, Baker said. The conference is designed to help delegates learn more about important national issues and problems facing America and to help increase their understanding of democratic values and citizenship responsibilities.

Jane Copper, 17, daughter of Mrs. Kathryn A. Copper, has been active in 4-H work for nine years. She was the 1965 state home economics winner, the 1964 style queen and three-time dress revue winner. She has been camp spirit, chief and sagamore at the state 4-H camp. A senior at Middletown High School, she was secretary of both her junior and senior classes and was selected to attend the State Youth Conference.

Dorothy Hopkins, 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William N. Hopkins. Active in 4-H club work for eight years, she was the state foods and nutrition winner in 1965 and the state public speaking winner in 1966. She was the state favorite foods contest winner, poultry demonstration winner at Northeastern Poultry Products Council, and scholarship winner at the American Institute of Cooperation. She was elected 1965 girls' state governor and has received many state and county awards. A freshman at the University of Delaware, she is majoring in home economics education.

Charles Ebling, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Ebling, has been active in 4-H club work for seven years. State 4-H tractor winner in 1965, he also represented Delaware at the regional tractor operators contest in Richmond, Va. He was chosen to take part in the dairy judging event in Richmond and served on the Governor's Committee on Youth Activities. He is a senior in Middletown High School.

Ronald Pritchett, 18, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Pritchett, Jr. Active in 4-H work for five years, he was the winner of the state gardening project in 1965 and has served as local club treasurer and president and vice president of the Sussex County club. He is a freshman in the University of Delaware, majoring in food business.

FENCE TALK

By George K. Vapaa

"Political decisions to economic problems rarely make sense," says Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation. This was the heart of his plea for 600 Delaware farmers to help get the government out of agriculture. The occasion was the annual meeting of the Delaware Farm Credit Associations last week at Camden.

"Your association has been a pace setter in the farm credit field," he added. "But we need to find a way to finance the total business rather than segments of it. A farm business today cannot be liquidated with each generation. From $100,000 to $500,000 investment may be involved in a farm operation. Perhaps insured loans may offer some possibilities to a well-trained, aspiring young man."

"The government helped to start your farm credit associations 50 years ago, with provisions to ease out in time. But this was not true with other federal farm programs. The same sort of need existed in the beginning. However, no method was developed to get the government out when the emergency ended. Surpluses exist only in government controlled crops. And the blame is ours, as citizens. We accept government payments because they are there. Such a social system is morally degrading," continued Shuman.

Finally, he pointed out that "the United States is the only country to achieve the stated communist goal—plenty for all in a classless society. But it was done with incentives. The communist and socialist systems are bound to fail because the people are unwilling partners in a government managed economy. Help us preserve our willing, free market system."

Visit the State Museum in Dover if you want to see how our forefathers lived. I've been asked to compare farming today with that years ago for the 250th anniversary celebration of Dover. So, I'm looking at the museum and State Archives for the old records.

Do you know what a croze is or a frow? These were copper tools used to make barrels by hand. A step by step exhibit displays these tools and their use. Pump trees, or wooden water pumps, riven shingles, the transplanted Callaway grist mill from Milford, a harness shop, and a blacksmith shop can also be found.

So you think you are living in a cramped home? Look in the Swedish log cabin moved down from near Wilmington. Notice the hanging seed corn ears, the drying tobacco, the wooden wash basin, the bear trap, the hide rugs and bed covers, the straw mattress to mention just a few things.

Compare the farm implements with our highly specialized farm machines of today. The hand operated corn planter with a valve to control seed drop as compared to the six or eight row planter of today which adds fertilizer below and to one side of the seed, and dresses off the planting with a weed killer sprayed in a band over the row. Or the grain cradle and hand flail to harvest small grain, a job done today by a self-propelled combine with hundreds of times more productive capacity in the same period of time. The old time wagon jack seems a bit more refined than my present car jack. On balance, I'd rather live today.

Did you know that there are a lot of women Christmas tree farmers? It can be a profitable and interesting part-time business here in Delaware. Of course, it's work, but no more so than gardening for the most part. Our state forester, Bill Taber, has a program of furnishing free seedlings to Delaware landowners. You must agree to live within the restrictions, which call for no sales of rooted stock. They should be planted in rows on minimum sized plots of about a half acre. This is an ideal use for odd shaped plots of land you may want to put in a permanent cover.

Three Caroline County dairy farmers are leading the Maryland Dairy Herd Improvement Association in average milk production per cow. The leaders: Robert J. Meredith, William E. Meredith and Thomas Todd, Jr., with 689, 649, and 646 pounds of butterfat per cow in this order. The fourth herd in fat production actually led in total milk production per cow, 16183 pounds of milk per cow on a total of 136 cows in the Brooks Nagel herd.

Your county agent was privileged to discuss herd management practices at their annual meeting. It should have been a forum, with me asking questions of those Maryland farmers just across the line. Apparently one answer is that the top producing farmers pay careful attention to management details. Nothing is left to chance nor is any job delayed longer than necessary. We're not that different across the line in Delaware that our association herd averages should be 8% less milk per cow and 15% less butterfat. So let's get busy.

Direct marketing of fruits and vegetables to retailers is the subject of a new bulletin of interest to some farmers. It is one way to sell for higher prices, but it is not without problems for both farmers and storekeepers.

Jim Milmo, one of our Food Business Institute research staff members, has drawn some national survey facts together. These tell you how to do the job most efficiently. Call our office at 736-1448 for a free copy of "Store-Door Delivery of Farm Produce in the United States".

ORTHO talks sense:

"...There's no such thing as a bad corn seed treater."

But there's a proven one: ORTHO ISOTOX® 25 Seed Treater (F). Made specifically for hybrid corn. You apply from the planter box without any special mixing or extra equipment involved.

It coats seeds with a protective shield that can kill off wireworms before they ever get a chance to burrow in. ORTHO ISOTOX 25 Seed Treater (F) gets rid of seed corn maggots and other soil-borne insects, too.

It's effective in all weather, be it raining cats and dogs or dry as a bone.

Controls seed rot, damp-off and seedling blight as well.

All this and it costs you only about 16¢ an acre to get yield increases worth up to fifteen dollars an acre.

ORTHO ISOTOX 25 Seed Treater (F) has been proved on more than a hundred million acres.

Second team selections were Page Donaway, Millsboro; Dorcas Yoder, Greenwood; Kitty Lou Johnson, Rehoboth; Joan Smith, Harrington; Margaret McCann, Lord Baltimore; and Faye Hudson, John M. Clayton.

All the girls selected are seniors with the exceptions of Susie French, who is a junior and Page Donaway and Joyce Millman, who are sophomores.

Dr. Joseph Vansant, chairman for basketball in the Henlopen Conference, announced the selections of the All Henlopen Conference Boys' Basketball squad for the 1966 season.

The first team selections consist of: Albert Horne, Bridgeville; Maurice Hughes, Greenwood; Jerry Taylor, Dover Air Force Base; Frank Hitchens, Milton; Mike Thompson, Dover Air Force Base. For the second team were: Robert Dill, Felton; Darrell Tull, Bridgeville; Craig Martin, Selbyville; Chris Moore, Felton; and Richard Johnson, Milton.

Of this ten man squad: Hughes, Taylor, Thompson, Tull and Martin are seniors. Horne, Hitchens, Dill and Johnson are juniors, and Moore is a freshman.

Don Parker Wins Mile Run In Wilmington

Don Parker, a 12-year-old sixth grader, won the 12-and-under mile run in the March Madness track meet, held at Tower Hill School, Wilmington, on Sunday afternoon. Parker was competing against a field of Wilmington and New Jersey runners.

Chris Wetherhold, also of Harrington, won this same race last year in 5:17 and was written up in the National Track and Field News, as a result.

Parker's time of 5:56 is not as impressive as was Wetherhold's but is a very good effort. Donald is six months younger than was Chris at this time in 1966 and did not have a full season of cross-country under his belt such as Wetherhold had prior to that swift 5:17.

Parker had won headlines and ten trophies as a sprinter and broad jumper in the Olympic Development track meets held at Baynard Stadium, Wilmington, last summer. As an eleven-year-old, Donald ran 75 yards in 9.9, 100 yards in 12.9, 440 yards in 69 seconds and 660 yards in 1:58, in addition to broadjumping 14 feet 2 inches.

Sunday's race was his first distance effort and came after only one time trial, a 6:30 done at Harrington High last week.

Ironically enough, the favorite to win the race was another Harrington lad, Bob Smith, who did not compete because of a mixup in transportation plans. Smith clocked 5:55 in the same workout in which Parker did 6:30. Bob is almost a year older than Donald and was a fine cross-country runner last autumn. If he had made the trip Harrington could have had a 1-2 finish.

Parker ran a heady race. He stayed in second or third place all the way, kept up a steady pace as the New Jersey runners took turns spurring to the front, then were down and outprinted a Wilmington lad on the last lap.

Harrington has threats coming up in this race for the next few years. Jackie D. Parker or Tommy Clarke could win it in 1968. Danny Porter, a nine year old third grader, ran 2.4 miles cross-country in 17:15 last fall and beat many older boys in the process. Porter could win this March Madness mile in both 1969 and 1970, since he won't be 13 until April of the latter year.

55 Track Hopefuls At Harrington High

Coach Harold McDonald has 55 candidates at present for his 1967 Harrington High track team. When the weather gets warmer, additional hopefuls will report.

As is typical of most Lion track teams, it appears that the locals will be stronger in the running events than in the field events.

With ace sprinter and co-holder of the school 100 yard dash record, Frank White, not available because he is overage, Dan Hicks and Gerry Cagle lead the candidates. Ken Tribbett is a possibility but Coach McDonald would rather see the strong runner in the 220, 440, 880 relay, mile relay group. Jim White is in this category. White looks like a good bet to annex the school 440 record now held by Jim Schiff at 53.5. This 1958 standard is one of the oldest in the Lion record book.

Ronald "The Champ" Morris and Chris Wetherhold are slated for duty in the mile and half-mile with Morris due for trials in some shorter distances also. Morris was Henlopen Conference cross-country champion. Wetherhold ran No. 2 on the Lions state champion harrier team and owns a 2:19 half at age 12 and a 5:02 mile at 13.

The two mile roster is a solid one with Nick Morris, a proven campaigner, with four years of cross-country and three years of track experience. Roger Bullock, a junior, was discovered to have distance-running talent because he went out for wrestling. As a wrestler he had to run three miles or more in conditioning workouts. Word got back to the track coach about his prowess and he was coaxed into coming out for the two-mile. Danny Hitchens, a tough little two-year, cross-country standout, is training hard and looks like a comer. Bob Rash and Richard Benson are others who could do a good job here, if they report for duty.

The 880 and mile relay quartets are up for grabs at this stage of the campaign, although half of last season's record-breaking 880 relay foursome is still around in the persons of Dan Hicks and Jim White.

John Brown and Paul Marshall have previously impressed as half milers with Brown also experienced as a sprinter in relay stints.

Gary Simpson has been a brilliant performer, at times, in races from 440 yards to two miles. If he works hard and runs up to his potential, he could be a real shot-in-the-arm to the Lions.

Nick Morris has done 10-9 in the pole vault in practice, only three inches off the school record. Dan Hicks and George "Buddy" Wyatt are capable long-jumpers.

Doug Berry, Bob Thompson, Gary Smith led the high jumpers, a weak event since 5-7 jumper, Harold Coleman moved on.

Joe Gannon, a new hope, has thrown the javelin 120 feet already, although brand-new to the spear. Wayne Horner has threatened to become a standout shot-putter in the past. This could be his year.

The discus is wide open as it is most year.

The hurdles are an event that the Lions run only three times a year. Bill Walls and Steve Gannon do well here but Gannon, as a seventh-grader, can't compete in this event until next season. Steve will be eligible for junior high events and has an ideal build for track. He could become a talented thindlad, some day.

Candidates and their grades are as follows:

Nick Morris, 11; Dan Hicks, 12; Chris Wetherhold, 8; Vaughn Baynard, 10; Ron Morris, 10; Brad Morris, 8; Danny Hitchens, 8; Mike Davis, 7; Bill Walls, 8; Allan Parker, 7; Bob Smith, 7; Steve Motter, 9; Jim Redden, 7; Jim White, 12; Martin Adams, 10; John Kinney, 7; Richard Benson, 10; Bob Rash, 8; Bill Stubbs, 7; Bill Webb, 11; Jim Simpler, 11; Doug Berry, 10; and Ken Tribbett, 9; John Brown, 9; Archie Collick, 8; Gary Simpson, 10; Jerry Cagle, 10; John Flamer, 10; George Wyatt, 10; Wayne Horner, 11; Alan Derrickson, 10; Paul Marshall, 10; Bill Moore, 11; Bob Tyler, 8; Jim Harris, 10; Richard Larimore, 8; Gary Smith, 10; Roger Moore, 10; Bob Thompson, 10; Mitchell Travis, 8; Henry Wright, 9; Fred White, 9; Dwight Ross, 9; and Chester Scott, 9; Roger Bullock, 11; George Young, 10; David Hard, 10; Tom Edwards, 11; Steve Gannon, 7; Tom Brown, 10; C. Cohee, 8; Bill Smith, 11;

Bob Liles, 8, and Norman Baynard, 7.

Harrington Bowling League

Jarrell Fuel continues to step up the pace, as they won all four games Tuesday night, to add another game to their lead margin. Consistent bowling, combined with a little extra effort by a member or two each week, is the reason for their fine record thus far. Jarrell Fuel's six and a half game lead over the second place team, seems insurmountable at this point, with only four more weeks to go.

Wally's Garage, tied with Hamilton Fund last week in second place, took sole possession of that spot, winning three games Tuesday night.

Hamilton Fund could not keep pace with Wally's Garage and dropped down to third place, losing three of their four games. Another bad night like Tuesday, could finish them for the season, as their hopes are getting slimmer of trying to overtake the leader.

Kent Gas and Acme are tied for the fourth spot, after winning three and four games respectively. Both teams managed to move up this week from their respective fifth- and sixth places of last week.

Wilson Electric dropped all four of their games Tuesday night, and when the dust had settled found themselves in sole possession of sixth place; down two notches from their fourth place standing of last week. They had a win streak going for them, but could not keep the pace, as the pressure of the contest seemed to completely overwhelm them.

Benefit Basketball Game Wednesday

There will be a benefit basketball game, Wed., March 29, at Harrington School, 7:30 between Harrington faculty and Harrington's team in the Milford Church League.

All proceeds from this game will go for Harrington Little League program. It requires over $1,000 a year to finance this project. Admission, adults 50¢ and children 25¢.

Harrington's church team has lost only one game this year and have cinched the title in this league. This game Wednesday night promises to be full of fun and excitement, so come on out. Give our little boys a sporting chance.

Georgetown Raceway Enters Final Meets

Georgetown Raceway is now entering the final phase of its extended 1966-1967 harness race meeting. Seven nights of sport, lost due to weather conditions, will be picked up. There will be ten races carded on Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings of this week but the southern Delaware track will not be open on Good Friday.

Next week, Georgetown will operate on a skip-stop schedule with action Monday night for the first time this year. There will be no racing on Tuesday, but the usual programs will be offered on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Easter Monday, March 27, will be Appreciation Night with free admission and drawings for the following prizes: $500 in cash, a color TV, a vacation trip to Nassau for two, and 50,000 trading stamps.

Driver J. D. Dennis, continues to hold an easy lead over his rivals and should reach the 40 win mark before this meeting closes. However, Buck Gray has the highest percentage of horses in the money as more than half the trotters and pacers he has driven at Georgetown have finished first, second or third.

This track, which is nearing the conclusion of its second meeting, is located on Route 13, just outside the city of Georgetown. Post time each evening is 8 p.m.
