Non-Roof On Courthouse To Cost Sussex $8,700

More than two weeks ago, Sussex County Levy Court commissioners learned it would cost $25,000 to put a new roof on the courthouse.

Tuesday they discovered it will cost them about $8,700 not to.

Soon after the county had contracted with Paul Scotton Contracting Co., Inc., a Dover, firm, to replace the roof for $25,000, Levy Court member John L. Briggs, a Republican, called a halt to construction by telling his Democratic counterparts that the courthouse really didn't need a new roof.

Bernard Frankel, the engineering consultant who has been working for some time with the Levy Court on courthouse renovations, was order to renegotiate with the Dover County.

Frankel said Tuesday that the contractor was willing to release the commissioners of their obligation for "$8,700 and some odd dollars."

Part of the amount, according to Frankel, would reimburse the Scotton concern for supplies and manpower arranged for the job.

Briggs said this seemed a fair price, particularly since the county was legally required to pay the company 10 per cent of its anticipated profit. The building materials, valued roughly at $2,500, Briggs noted, could be sold by the county to regain most of that money. However, the commissioner said they would require an itemized statement from Scotton.

But, Briggs suggested, and the others agreed, that they wait a few more weeks with the possibility that the contractor could be directed to continue with roofing repairs on a lesser scale.

The county aides, together with a special court-ordered courthouse committee, are soliciting new architectural arrangements for the county courthouse. With the committee's approval, the commissioners hope to hire architects within the next few weeks.

The latest proposal in the lengthy courthouse controversy, with sanction of the seven-member committee expected, is to renovate and remodel the existing courthouse, preserving its colonial motif. A two-story courtyard office addition, related in architectural design to the present building, also is planned.

The committee already has interviewed two architectural firms — Whiteside, Moeckel and Carboneil, a large Wilmington-based firm which has been handling previous Levy Court work, and R. Calvin Clendaniel, an architect from Lincoln who has done previous work for the county.

Inequities Claimed In Mobile Trailer Home Tax

Sussex County's tax assessor Tuesday urged Levy Court to push for legislation to remove what he called inequities in the mobile home tax law.

Harvey S. Lawson said that the court should take a hand in current legislative proceedings that are slated to amend a bill passed by the last General Assembly.

"The one they're advocating up there now," Lawson said, "is to charge trailer owners $3 a month, but that's very unfair."

He said that trailers depreciate just as automobiles do, and suggested that new, expensive mobile homes be taxed more heavily than older models.

Lawson also said a better way must be found for tracking down trailer owners, because a number of trailer owners move their mobile homes to Sussex only for the summer.

"These people pack up and leave after the summer is over," Lawson said, "and they get away without paying anything to the county. It's unfair to the guy who leaves his here all the year round."

Lawson also urged Levy Court to meet with officials in Kent and New Castle Counties in an effort to establish uniform taxing procedures.

H suggested it would be better if taxes in all three counties fell due at the same time, and added he felt Sussex County's period of taxation should be the same as its fiscal year—from June to June—so that spring construction could be included in assessment. This, he said, would give the county a better idea of what revenues to expect when the annual budget is drawn up.

Firemen Finish Restaurant Bldg.

The Harrington Volunteer Fire Company burned the remains of The Wonder R. Restaurant and package store Tuesday morning. The building had been gutted by a fire Feb. 25.

James Temple, president of the fire company, said Tuesday the company would burn a barn this summer on a lot on Liberty Street on which a Baptist Church will be erected.

It is the fire company's custom to burn delapidated buildings as practice.

In other fire company activities, the group replaced a broken antenna atop a 70-foot pole Monday evening. A ladder truck of the Carlisle Fire Company, Milford, assisted.

Blue Cross-Blue Shield Rate Increase Studied

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Delaware hopes to be able to hold off a coming rate increase until the fall, H. V. Maybee, managing director, told the board of trustees, Monday.

An eventual rate increase by Blue Cross and Blue Shield has been considered inevitable ever since last fall, when hospitals throughout the state boosted their charges. These are the charges Blue Cross must pay for its members when they are hospitalized.

So far, however, the use of hospital services by Blue Cross members has been relatively low and the organization has managed, on a month to month basis, to continue operating without responding to the hospital rate boost. Sooner or later it will have to do so, but that time is being postponed as long as possible, Maybee explained.

Maybe also reported the Medicare-Medicaid division has grown to 50 employees processing claims under the federal and state programs. In January the division handled about 7,500 cases under the Title XIX program of the State Department of Public Welfare. Of that total, 3,000 were individual drug prescriptions. Payment is made by Blue Cross and Blue Shield acting as intermediary for the state and federal governments.

Council Nears Solution To Sewer Referendum

The City Council is in the "who, what, when, where" phase and is approaching the solution to a sewer referendum.

The City has been hesitant about establishing a pattern for the referendum, in the mill since last fall, until it can decide on the cost and the best type of sewage disposal plant.

At a meeting Monday night, the Council heard Dudley Willis, of Edward Richardson Associates, the city's consulting engineer, say he would give the city an estimate on the cost of a conventional, or tank, type of sewage treatment plant, such as the city has now, and a demonstration project type sponsored by the federal government.

In the conventional type, the community would be eligible for 30 per cent of the cost in federal grants. In the demonstration project, the community would be eligible for 75 per cent of the cost. The demonstration project is sponsored by the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration.

The city is hoping to be selected for a demonstration project.

The plan, which involves the treatment plant only, calls for the use of three connecting ponds in which the sewage would be largely consumed by the air and bacteria. The ponds would also produce algae which can be harvested for poultry feed, said Willis.

Concerning selection of the community for a demonstration project, the engineer said the city stood a good chance but warned of being overly optimistic. He added he thought "things are in at least the fifty-fifty class." The University of Delaware is also interested in the demonstration project, he said.

The Council had agreed with the State Water and Air Resources Commission on a plan for sewer improvement which called for a public hearing April 14, with a referendum Sat., May 20.

These dates, however, it was brought out Monday night, would be subject to change, depending on what encouragement the city receives from Washington on being selected for the site of a demonstration project. It was emphasized, however, the demonstration applies only to the sewage-treatment plant and not to the extension of sewer mains.

When a public hearing is held, Willis, the engineer, said it could be held on improvements involving the tank type plant and that, referring to the federal demonstration project, "if this comes in that would be all to the good." He added the current plans were basically the same as the federal project and could be changed to conform.

The Council will decide at a special meeting, probably Monday night, the sewer plan and cost of a bond issue to be presented at a public hearing, date of which is still hanging.

In other activities at the Monday night meeting, the resignation of Mrs. Roger Butler, as assistant city clerk, was revealed. Mayor Fulton J. Downing said her husband notified him of the resignation and gave no reason.

It was suggested Mrs. Butler be asked to remain but Tuesday the acting city manager, Mrs. Kathryn T. Derrickson, said the resignation was still holding.

Mrs. Butler replaced Mrs. Derrickson as city clerk in February of 1966. The latter was reappointed to her post last month, as well as that of acting city manager, with the former, to her new post.

The meeting adjourned at 9:55 p.m., unusually early for the Council.

C. of C. V-Pres. Resigns Post

Vernon J. Menard has resigned as the director of legislative branch of the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce to become executive secretary to Congressman William V. Roth, of Delaware.

The change will take place on April 15.

In announcing the resignation the State Chamber's Executive vice president, Ross E. Anderson, Jr. stated, "Mr. Menard has provided the State Chamber invaluable service on the legislative front. His experience will be missed, but the groundwork he laid can be used effectively for some years ahead."

Although he will make frequent trips to Washington, Mr. Menard will spend the bulk of his time working in the State of Delaware.

According to Mr. Anderson, "I am taking immediate steps to find and employ a qualified man to fill the job."

Democrats Set Dover Meeting

PLEA FOR WATER DISTRICT DELAYED IN DOVER AREA

Kent County Levy Court has delayed action on a request for a water district to supply an area south of Dover, pending an annexation study.

The annexation study will be conducted by Dover officials. If the area cannot be annexed, a public hearing may be held to consider the request.

The petition to the Levy Court Tuesday was presented by William McDaniel who said an area south of Kent Acres and bounded on the south by Moores Lake is in "desperate need" of a source of clean water.

McDaniel said the wells now in use in the area are being contaminated from cesspools in Kent Acres. Kent Acres, he noted, is serviced with city water but not by city sewers.

Neither Kent acres nor the Moores Lake area is within the Dover city limits.

McDaniel has been before the Dover City Council twice to ask that the city furnish water to the area, but the council rejected the request on the grounds that the area is not within the city limits.

At the last meeting of the city council, City Manager Francis P. Neylan was authorized to make a study of the Kent Acres lands and those near Moores Lake to determine the likelihood of a successful annexation.

Neylan, present at the Levy Court session Tuesday, informed the commissioners that the study will take about a month to finish.

Extending water services to Moores Lake homes is not the primary problem that would be encountered, Neylan pointed out. Should the areas agree to annex he said, the city would still be faced with the sewage service. The Dover plant is now operating almost at capacity.

McDaniel proposes the area be called the North Shore Water District and asked the Levy Court to assert its authority to form the district.

He said indications from residents in the area show over- (Continued on Page 8)

TERRY REAFFIRMS VOTE AGAINST TAX RAISE

A speech Tuesday before the Delaware State Labor Council gave Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr., a chance to reaffirm his stand on two of Delaware's tax questions.

First, he repeated his promise not to raise taxes during the remaining two years of his term.

Secondly, he said he is firmly against restoring a reciprocal income tax agreement with Maryland.

Terry, speaking at the council's ninth annual legislative conference in Dover, told the union members he understood some of them feared that the agreement would be restored.

"Such is not the case, if I have anything to say about it," he said. He added that "prudence and common sense" demanded that the present arrangement be maintained.

The reciprocal agreement was voided last year by the Delaware General Assembly, with Terry's support. Recently, however, Maryland's Republican governor, Spiro T. Agnew, came to Dover to ask Terry's support for a restoration of the pact.

At a press conference with Agnew present, Terry avoided a firm comment on the issue, but said he would refer the matter to the General Assembly.

Another speaker, State Insurance Commissioner Robert A. Short, charged that it is a "sop to say that (Delaware's insurance problems) will be taken care of by the Insurance Code Revision Committee."

Short has frequently been criticized (Continued on Page 8)

Taxes Ruled Out For Kent County Airport

A group of Kent County property owners Tuesday protested that it didn't want to pay taxes to build a county airport.

Levy Court promptly issued a statement saying that it never planned to use tax money to finance a county-owned facility.

The petition to Levy Court, with 126 signatures, said, "As property owners and taxpayers we strongly protest the use of tax money on a Kent County airport."

Levy Court President Glenn A. Richter said the county will seek funds either through the sale of bonds or by long-term borrowing from a lending agency.

Richter interjected a new thought, however. "The county will look for donations from interested persons," he said.

Following a visit to the Chester County Airport near Coatesville, Pa., last week Richter said he discovered that $50000 was raised through donations, primarily from industry.

Richter also noted that the Chester County airport is operating in the black after installation seven or eight years ago. He said the airport was financed through the sale of bonds all of which are now paid off.

The Levy Court Tuesday also said it will form an airport authority within the county, and indicated it would be composed initially of the three-man airport study committee headed by George Frebert of Dover.

Obviously enthusiastic after visiting the Coatesville facility, Richter said the authority after its formation "should take right off on the project."

He added, "It certainly is our hope that this will not be a burden on the county."

Richter noted there were enough signatures on the petition to warrant a reply from the Levy Court. The petition said in part:

"If an airport is profitable, let private enterprise build it. If not, it is irresponsible of the Levy Court to force such a project on Kent County taxpayers."

"If the Levy Court wants to force a white elephant on Kent County taxpayers, we certainly strenuously object to it."

Following this, they took a "windy" ride on the Tred Avon Ferry at Oxford, Md., and were welcomed by the pilot and owner, Mr. Benson, to share the pilot room with him. ## FENCE TALK

By George K. Vapaa

The Dover By-pass threatened farmers made a very factual plea at the recent State Highway Commission hearing. Henry Price, Commission chairman, complimented them for their presentations which "covered the waterfront—or rather the farm front." But whether the request to avoid prime crop land has any impact remains to be seen.

Over 400 people jammed the Capital Grange Hall to hear the testimony given. In essence, this was their case: 1) Agriculture thrives best on prime crop land. 2) It should be concentrated in relatively large tracts, of which about 21,000 acres lies directly west and south of Dover. 3) Closeness to metropolitan markets, an overnight truck haul to a third of the U.S. population, is a unique advantage for Delaware in comparison to most other sections of the country.

Sam Walker, of Woodside, noted that his farms have been sliced twice by highways in the past 20 years, and now the proposal will cut him a third time crossways with a big clover leaf in the area of his home.

Louis Goldinger, of Cheswold, voiced the opinion of several other landowners. "Be sure your planning is correct. A misplaced highway represents an irreparable loss," George Papan, of Wyoming, asked that further encroachment be prevented on the present dual now that limited access authority exists for the two lower counties. He brought down the house regarding publicly quoted ranges of costs for elevating the present U.S. 13.

Richard Haber, a former state highway engineer and consultant for the landowners group, reviewed the history of highway planning and spoke for dual development of a limited access highway along route 9 to the east of Dover and all the way to a point north of Odessa. Jacob W. Zimmerman read a statement into the record of the East Dover landowners opposing this alignment.

Time will bring whatever developments occur. If nothing else, this hearing brought out the case for reserving top-grade crop land in agricultural uses. With the need for open space lands and farm lands (do pay taxes), for clean air and water supplies, and for a strong farm industry, we should direct our roads and further urban growth on the lesser tilled lands if possible.

About a third of our Kent County lands is covered by trees of low market quality. Much of this is located a bit further west of the recommended western alignment. The cost of such land is comparatively low. Then too, the huge, modern roadbuilding machines make an easy job of clearing such land. Why not do the long range job of a second major north-south road and stay west of the railroad? It can still be done in usable sections.

It seems that those farmers who do not sell off building lots are being penalized by those who do. One objection to a route further west is the disruption of strip development homesites. Too many homes along some of the roads. Do these homes also support a business at these locations? Hardly. Does what they contribute in taxes pay for the special services they require—school buses, highway snow removal, utilities, the hazards they create with so many highway access driveways? The answers are no.

The modern farm has definite land use requirements worth fostering. This is a clarion call for land use planning, zoning, and specific land taxing policies. It's time to get busy on it.

A corn planter clinic and an anhydrous ammonia plow-down demonstration will be held in Kent County on Wednesday, April 5. It will start at 2 p.m. on the farm of John L. Tarburton and Son east of Dover on the North Little Creek Road. Everyone is welcome.

Dr. William Mitchell, our extension agronomist, has telephoned to say that we will demonstrate the new seed monitor on the planter, as well as the use of various sizes and grades of seed. We will run through a planter check, plate selection, rates of planting and plant population, depth of seeding, and row spacing.

The anhydrous ammonia application is a plow down operation using a plastic hose placed in the furrow which is covered in the plowing operation. The use of the plow packer and depth of application in relation to losses will be also demonstrated.

Several other county farmers will run comparative trials of plow down and other methods of applying extra nitrogen. These include Charles C. Blendt, of Smyrna; Jack W. Webb, of Mud Mill Road; Robert Collins and William Bullock, both of Harrington, near Brownsville.

Progress through research. This is the title of our University of Delaware Substation report, a summary of about 80 different research projects at Georgetown. Many of the trials literally lay an egg, or have no application for us in Delaware. But the trials are all made under comparative conditions with standard practices. This is difficult for the average farmer to do, even if he can afford it.

Some farmers wonder how a given trial may work out after they have seen it during the growing season, say at the Farm Field Day in August. This report spells out the conclusions and yields.

We hasten to say that some of the results are for one year only, and therefore less meaningful. Some of the chemicals have not been cleared for commercial trial or recommendations. But we know that our folks want to watch the trials as they move along.

Of particular interest should be the various subirrigation trials, the soybean breeding work, and some of the pesticide comparisons.

If ironing is a chore that is on your "black list" why not set about making it a less bothersome job?

Easier ironing starts in the store where you select clothes, especially work and play clothes, that are easy to care for. Many garments require little or no ironing if you follow instructions on the label. As the old saying goes, "If everything else fails, read the directions." Generally speaking most durable press garments do not even need touch-up ironing if you wash them in warm (not hot) water, use a cool rinse and gentle agitation or spin setting. They give best results when dried in a dryer and removed and hung up promptly. However, proper washing technique, even with line drying, will save much work.

With a little pre-planning, sheets, towels, other linens and garments may be carefully folded from the line or dryer and need no ironing. When using a clothes dryer remove clothes before they are "bone-dry". Over drying leaves fabrics wrinkled, making ironing unavoidable.

To help improve your attitude, have a pie baking or something cooking that makes a pleasant aroma through the house while you're ironing. Iron during a favorite radio program or while some music is playing. Stop ironing before you get too tired. Ironing while the family is together or there is someone to talk with eases the chore for some people.

Find a good place to iron away from paths of travel, with good light and ventilation, convenient to electrical outlets.

Begin ironing with garments requiring lower temperature and work up to those requiring high temperature. The iron heats faster than it cools. Move ironed parts away from you rather than toward you. This helps prevent wrinkling. Use both hands, shift iron to left hand rather than moving around the board.

Veterans News

Two bills which would grant full benefits to veterans of the Viet-Nam Conflict and increase pensions for disabled veterans already on Veterans Administration rolls are receiving support from the Administrator of Veterans Affairs.

William J. Driver has appeared before the sub-committee on Compensation and Pensions of the Veterans Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives to urge passage of the legislation, according to Leon Fields, Manager of the Wilmington, Delaware VA Regional Office.

The proposed legislation, H. R. 4786 and H. R. 4788, introduced by committee chairman Olin Teague (D-Tex.) incorporate the recommendations of President Johnson's message to Congress on January 31 concerning veterans' benefits.

Driver told the sub-committee, "I consider these measures to be extremely important and worthwhile, and I urge their early and favorable consideration."

H. R. 4786, the Viet-Nam Conflict Servicemen's Benefit Act of 1967, provides benefits to all veterans who have served since August 5, 1964 on the same basis as veterans from World War I and II, and the Korean Conflict.

Commenting on President Johnson's message, Mr. Fields pointed out, "The enactment of H. R. 4786 would eliminate all distinctions, insofar as eligibility to receive veteran's benefits administered by the Veterans Administration is concerned, between veterans of the Viet-Nam Conflict and those who served during the Korean Conflict and other periods of war."

The bill would extend to veterans of the Viet-Nam Conflict entitlement to (1) disability compensation at wartime rates, (2) disability pensions for non-service-connected veterans and death pensions for widows and children, (3) extension of VA medical benefits, (4) a burial flag, (5) $250 burial allowance, and (6) $1600 toward the purchase of an automobile by certain disabled veterans.

Mr. Fields said the VA estimates the first year cost would be approximately $10 million which would increase to approximately $22.5 million by the fifth year.

The other bill is H.R. 4788, which relates to the current non-service-connected disability and death pension program. It calls for a 5.4 per cent increase in these pensions and was estimated to affect 1.4 million veterans, widows and dependents. The bill also provides that retirement benefits and social security increases would not be counted for income purposes in determining eligibility for these pensions.

VA estimates the cost of the pension increase at $82.3 million the first year, decreasing to $80.3 million by the fifth year, Mr. Fields said.

Calm Action Best When Termites Swarm

The termite probably scares more people, in an economic sense, than any other insect. Yet they work slowly and the damage they do can be repaired, according to Dr. Dale Bray, chairman of the department of entomology and applied ecology at the University of Delaware.

The spring swarming of termites is often the first warning that termites may be non-paying guests in the home. In the spring some of the winged, reproductive members of each termite colony decide to start their own families, so they swarm to locate a place to settle down.

If you see swarms, look at some of the insects closely. If their bodies are "pinched" in the middle they probably are ants and you can relax, Dr. Bray says. The body of a termite is about the same thickness from one end to the other. Examine the wings also; ants usually have a dark spot on each of the front wings, but termites do not.

Termites actually live in the soil, but wood is their only food. They build a network of tiny tunnels to reach the wood in the house, unless the wood is in direct contact with the soil. The beams in the cellar, the sill under the front door or any part of the house made of wood is exactly what they are looking for. They will even go through a concrete block wall with ease, if there is a tiny crack.

Since termites remain hidden except when forming new colonies in the spring, these swarms may be your only visible warning of their presence. Termites seldom break through the surface of the wood on which they feed, so you can't tell if they're around by simply looking at the wooden parts of the house.

Nonetheless, there are other ways to check for termite infestation, Dr. Bray points out. Mud-like tubes on foundation walls, about one-quarter inch wide, are their way of getting from their home into yours. If you find these tubes, break them and look for worker termites, small white insects without wings.

Also, check all points of the house where wood touches the ground or the concrete slab meets the walls of the house. Use an ice pick to check for places where the pick will go into the wood easily. If it does, termites may be in the wood.

Sawdust-like powder around the tunnels is not left by termites; those insects usually are not as destructive as termites. If you are sure your home does have termites, have it treated to get rid of them, recommends Dr. Bray. The homeowner can do it himself, but it's difficult to do a thorough job.

For this reason, deal only with reliable exterminators, cautions Dr. Bray. The job should be done within a few weeks after you discover the insects. But, don't be rushed. Termites work slowly; there is no great hurry, provided you do something within a few weeks. Don't panic! Avoid operators who try to alarm you into immediate action—there is time to be careful in the selection of a pest control firm to do the job. Beware of operators who talk about secret formulas and special treatment—there is only one good standard treatment and that is to poison the soil with Aldrin, Dieldrin, Heptachlor or Chlordane.

Choose a pest control operator who belongs to the Delaware Pest Control Association, Dr. Bray recommends. These firms will guarantee their work, and they usually will recheck the house after six months or a year to be sure all the termites are gone.

School Science Teachers Offered Research Program

Eight Delaware high school science teachers will have an opportunity to assist with research at the University of Delaware this summer, according to Dr. Donald F. Crossan, assistant dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences and assistant director of the Agricultural Experiment Station.

In an eight-week research participation program financed by a grant from S. Hallock duPont, the teachers will work with research scientists in animal science, agronomy, entomology, plant pathology and horticulture. Graduate academic credit will be given for successful completion of the program, and the eight teachers will receive stipends in addition to allowances for dependents.

Research projects will include studies of insect biology; weed taxonomy; nutrition and management of American holly; serology of cucurbit micro-organisms; soil science; chemical control of horticultural plants; effects of vitamin A on cell membranes; and genetic systems in cow's milk and blood.

The research participation program will run from June 19 through August 11. Application must be made with Dr. Crossan by April 21.

Entomologists Suggest Alfalfa Weevil Control

New recommendations for controlling the alfalfa weevil, one of the most troublesome insect pests in Delaware, have been announced by entomologists at the University of Delaware.

In a bulletin outlining control methods, Donald MacCreary and Dr. Dale F. Bray point out that the alfalfa weevil is a major problem in alfalfa production. Severe weevil damage can cause an almost total loss of the crop, but the pest can be safely controlled with proper use of one of the recommended insecticides. Timing is important; effectiveness of the insecticide is reduced greatly if it is applied before weevil larvae appear.

The insecticide recommendations are based on both the safety and the effectiveness of the chemicals when used properly. Don't depend on written recommendations or labels on insecticide containers that are several years old, the authors advise. There may have been restrictive changes since these were printed. It is particularly important for farmers to observe the minimum interval between treatment and harvest because it is the growers' responsibility to avoid illegal residues on the harvested crop.

MacCreary notes that weevil control by flaming alfalfa fields, before spring growth begins, is still in the experimental stage in this area. The method offers promise, he says, but it depends on the development and availability of suitable equipment. If growers are interested in flaming for weevil control, they should try it only on a portion of their acreage. The bulletin, "Delaware's Recommendations for Alfalfa Weevil Control," lists the kinds and amounts of insecticides to use, along with suggestions for timing and method of application. Copies are available from agricultural extension agents in Newark, Dover and Georgetown and from the Department of Entomology and Applied Ecology, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, Delaware 19711.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—How many semester hours constitute full time training in a graduate school?
 A—A specific number of hours for graduate college is not specified by the Veterans Administration. The determination of what is full time training is determined by the school, and would be based upon the type of courses for which the student is enrolled.

Q—Can a veteran be enrolled in two schools at the same time?
 A—Yes, when the veteran cannot get the program where he is attending or cannot obtain it within a reasonable time, training may be authorized as a secondary school. This can be done only with the approval and certification of the primary school where veteran is attending, and provided both programs lead to the same objective.

Q—Why is an established school sometimes not approved for VA training?
 A—This may be because of several reasons—the most common being that school has for some reason never requested approval, or school does not meet one of the standards as set forth by the state concerned.

Q—Does the deduction for Medicare premiums from Social Security payments have to be reported as income for VA pension purposes?
 A—Yes.

Q—Is an ex-service man who entered service after 2-1-55 entitled to VA burial allowance?
 A—No, unless the peacetime veteran was in receipt of service-connected compensation at time of death or discharged or retired for disability incurred in line of duty.

Towers Gallery To Feature Jack Lewis

The watercolors of Jack Lewis will be the feature exhibit at the Towers Gallery of Arts and Crafts in Milford, during the month of April.

Mr. Lewis is widely recognized as a water colorist of considerable ability. In addition to his paintings of many countries, he has published four books of his paintings.

"The Delaware Scene" and "Chesapeake Bay," two of his earlier publications, provide familiar subjects for peninsula residents. "The Hudson River" is his most recent book and he is currently planning a volume of the New England Coast.

Jack Lewis has a Master of Arts degree from Rutgers University, taught art at N.Y.U. and in Scotland on a Fulbright Scholarship. He is a member of the Art Alliance of Philadelphia and is participating in an exhibit of the Philadelphia Watercolor Club.

The Towers, located in Milford at the corner of N. W. Front & North Streets is open regularly on Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. Special appointments may be made by calling Mrs. R. C. Barnard, 422-5527, Mrs. Geoffrey Fernald, 422-4927, or Mrs. Eldridge Prettyman, 422-9629.

Cancer's Warning Signals

"Unusual bleeding or discharge..."

It is important to remember these words. Don't dwell on them to the point of anxiety. Just be alert to them—as you would be to any warning such as a railroad crossing signal, a red light, a go-slow sign, a police or fire siren.

"Unusual bleeding or discharge" may mean any of a number of things—sometimes cancer. The most common forms of cancer associated with this signal are uterine cancer, and colon and rectal cancer. With early diagnosis and treatment, the number of deaths from these forms of cancer could be drastically reduced.

Uterine cancer now kills 14,000 women a year, most of them because the cancer was not detected early and treated promptly. A simple Pap test can usually detect uterine cancer at its outset, or even conditions that might lead to cancer, long before unusual bleeding or discharge occurs.

Cancer of the colon or rectum struck about 73,000 men and women last year. Some 43,000 died. Yet almost three out of four patients could have been saved by early diagnosis and prompt treatment. Use of a proctoscope—a physician's viewing device—can usually detect this form of cancer in a very early stage—again before a symptom shows.

If a warning signal persists for two weeks, go to your doctor. The chances are there will be no cancer. But don't gamble. If there is, it should be a great relief to know it was found early enough for life-saving treatment.

MARCH WIND
(Gone but not forgotten)

Windy March is marching on
 And we're glad to see you go.
 You gave us both wind and rain
 And a whale-of-a-lot of snow.

From where did you come
 And to where are you bound?
 And why do you hurry
 So recklessly around?

You scattered the dust
 In every crevasse and sill,
 Then hurry away
 Not a moment you're still.

There's a chill when you pass,
 And the bare branches moan.
 You startle the sparrows,
 To hurry back home.

You paint little noses
 Of school children red,
 But scare the young "Cotton Tail"
 Back to his bed.

So hurry right on,
 And the sooner you go,
 April will follow
 And Spring blossoms grow.

Tomorrow is "April Fool's Day," and the 17th is "Income Tax Day," and there's no fooling about the latter.

Quoting the Delaware Almanac; April weather is sometimes as uncertain as the nervous young husband at the maternity hospital, who asked his wife: "Darling, are you sure you want to go through with this?"

And then there was the lovely young stenog who came into the office and started passing out cigars. "It's a boy," she announced, displaying her engagement ring. "Six-foot-two, and 190 pounds!"

SPRING BREEZES

By Sam Short, Jr.

Spring breezes will soon be here
 With their warmth and soothing care,
 To help the summer flowers once more appear
 For us all to enjoy on sunshiny days!

Spring breezes will soon be here
 With the birds and bees on wing again,
 The Robin Red Breast and the Turtle Dove, too,
 Bringing their cheerful song for our summer's gain.

The Daffodils and the Locust have started to bloom
 Showing their beauty the earliest of all,
 Then the Dandelion and the Violet will be coming soon,
 The Honey Suckle and the Rose will bloom in the Fall.

Nature will provide with its helping hand
 To feed the hungry and fertilize the land,
 Bud of the Magnolia and the Marimosa trees
 Will be in their glory in the Spring Time Breeze.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

April's name is derived from the Latin word "aperire," meaning to open. In truth, April is a month of opening. It's a gardener's month, a fashion month, and a month for gourmet food. For with the blooms of spring, April will bring an excellent variety of plentiful foods.

You will be especially pleased with the liberal supplies of beef. The inventory of beef cattle on farms shows that there are more cattle on farms and ranches than forecasters thought. This is good news, for prices will remain reasonable with especially good prices when beef is a feature sale. This larger-than-expected supply of beef will have a bearing on prices of other meats, so check prices carefully as you shop the next three or four weeks. There should be a number of good buys on beef, pork, and lamb for the home freezer.

Broiler fryers are and will continue to be a low cost choice during the next several months. Marketings in April will be three to five per cent above last year's. Turkey will continue to be a good buy since much of the increase in production during 1967 will be in the first half of the year. Stocks of frozen turkeys are 50 per cent greater than a year earlier.

With more favorable fishing weather, supplies of many fish are liberal. Porgies are in good supply for the first time in months. This is good news, for many of you will welcome the return of this low cost fish choice. Other fish to consider are bluefish, flounder, haddock, halibut, King and Spanish Mackerel, sea bass, shad, whittings and red snappers.

Look for lots of eggs during April through June. This food is an excellent source of protein and other nutrients and is so economical. Now is the time to serve eggs in many variations and to include an additional egg or two, or three, in cooking and baking.

During April fresh vegetable offerings will increase with asparagus reaching the peak of its supply. Right now supplies are a bit skimpy, but good values are found in broccoli, cabbage, carrots, celery, and potatoes.

Fruit choices are excellent and they should continue to be so throughout April. Both oranges and grapefruit are in large supply with quality excellent. The remaining stocks of apples in common and controlled atmosphere storage are above average and larger than a year ago. Thus, film bag apples continue to be low cost choices. Avocados from California are plentiful. In fact, the crop is 32 per cent greater than last year's. Check this fruit for amazing buys. Other fruits to choose from are strawberries, pineapple, honeydew melons, bananas, grapes and pears. Canned fruits in liberal supply are cling peaches, pears, fruit cocktail and pineapple.

D.P.I.A. Farmers Earned $22 Million Last Year

Farmers on the Delmarva Peninsula earned $22-million last year for growing 281-million broiler-fryer chickens, it was reported Wednesday, March 29, by Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., the Peninsula's poultry association.

Based on figures provided by Willard T. McAllister, extension marketing specialist at the University of Delaware, the association reported that the average Delmarva broiler farm now markets four flocks a year of about 16,000 chickens per flock, for a total production of 64,000 chickens per farm. With this size operation, a grower realized about $5000 last year over and above all costs other than the use of his poultry house and the time he spent taking care of each flock.

Delmarva production last year was up 21-million chickens over 1965 figures or some 4,475 chickens more per farm on the average, the poultry association reported. So, since approximately the same number of farmers reported they were growing broilers on the Peninsula last year as in 1965, and prices realized by farmers for each thousand chickens remained about the same, farm income from broilers was up about $1,638,000 last year. This brought Delmarva broilers an average of $340 more per farm than they earned from chickens in 1965, said the poultry association.

This increase in farm income from chickens came despite slightly lower liveweight prices paid for broiler-fryers in 1966 than in 1965, according to Donald Wilbur, of Salisbury, Md., chairman of the poultry association's Broiler Grower Committee. He explained that feed companies and hatcheries which contract with farmers to grow broilers and actually own the flocks, received a liveweight price averaging only 16-cents a pound on the average during 1966, by preliminary estimate. In 1965 they received 16.2 cents a pound. Yet they kept their contract rates to farmers for growing the chickens at about the same level in 1966 as they paid in 1965.

Wilbur reported that Delmarva growers were in a particularly favorable position when compared with other areas. Georgia growers realize $10 to $15 less than Delmarva growers for each thousand chickens they grow. So do growers in most of the other southern poultry areas which compete with Delmarva. Only Maine among the major growing areas pays growers' contract rates comparable to Delaware.

Broilers now account for about half of the total agricultural income for Delaware and the Eastern Shore of Maryland. Wilbur said, and added that the existence of a huge poultry industry on Delmarva had brought a steady effect on corn and soybean production as well.

"Because of poultry industry demand for large supplies of corn and soybeans needed in feed, the feed mills are willing to pay farmers a premium price of 12 to 15 cents a bushel for corn and five cents a bushel for soybeans above the average price paid U. S. farmers for these crops," he noted. "That's about what it would cost to ship them in from the Midwest if Delmarva didn't grow them," he added. Wilbur said that this premium price brings some 4000 Delmarva corn and soybean growers a

Century Club News

Monday was a gala day in Harrington New Century Club when it entertained representatives of all the clubs of Kent County, at a reciprocity tea. The president, Mrs. James D. Moore, greeted the guests in her gracious manner, and introduced each club; she gave special recognition to Mrs. Jonathan S. Willis, of Milford, immediate past president of the Delaware State Federation of Women's Clubs, and to Mrs. Henry Tracy, of Dover, Kent County vice president. She opened the meeting with the Pledge to the Flag, and the Club Collect. Then she introduced Mrs. Floyd N. Nasser, the chairman of the program for the day; the subject of which was "Weddings Then and Now". To set the mood for the subject, a duet, "O Perfect Love" was sung by Mrs. William A. Minner and Mrs. William W. Shaw, accompanied by Mrs. Walter Winkler.

Mrs. Nasser read an interesting paper she had prepared, stressing the weddings of the White House, the first of which was that of Maria Monroe, daughter of Pres. James Monroe, on March 9, 1820 and the latest was that of Luci Baines Johnson, daughter of Pres. Lyndon B. Johnson, to Patrick John Nugent on August 6, 1966. One of the most famous weddings was that of Alice Lee Roosevelt, daughter of Pres. Theodore Roosevelt, to the Hon. Nicholas Longworth on Feb. 17, 1906. A new shade of blue was named "Alice blue" in honor of this bride. To illustrate this point, Miss Marianne Clarke sang "Alice Blue Gown", and also "I Love You Truly" which set the stage for a wedding gown revue in which ten wedding gowns dating from 1890 to 1967 were shown. The names of the contracting parties, time and place of the wedding, and the model who wore the gown Monday, follow:

1. Margaretta MacQueen to Hamilton B. Sharps, 1890, Germantown, Pa. — Miss Barbara Creadick.
2. Minnie Ward to Charles Joseph, 1909, Laurel, Del.—Miss Renee Quillen.
3. Olive Thomas Steele to William W. Sharp, Portsmouth, Va., 1922—Miss Virginia Jo Richardson.
4. Anabell Elizabeth Pless to Arthur H. Sy, 1926, Lockport, N. Y.—Miss Rebecca Moore.
5. Charlotte Joseph to Melvin L. Brobst, 1942, Angola, Del.—Miss Susan Fair.
6. Marian Grassmyer to James D. Moore, 1943, Wayne, Pa. — Miss Ruth Anne Moore.
7. Anne Townsend to William A. Minner, 1948, Milford, Del.—Miss Karen Minner.
8. Joan Shaw to James Guy Wilhelm, 1959, Harrington, Del.—Miss Brenda Lee Hurd.
9. Charlotte Rapp to David Greenly, 1963, Harrington, Del.—Mrs. Greenly herself.
10. Marsha Harrington to Reynolds B. French, 1967, Harrington, Del.—by owner.

A description of each gown and the wedding was read by Mrs. Nasser. The concluding number of the program was a solo by Leonard Masten, of Smyrna, "The Lord's Prayer", after which the guests were invited into the reception room where a beautiful tea table had been arranged by the Hospitality Committee, of which Mrs. Charles L. Peck Jr. is chairman, and the committee of the day. Delicious refreshments were served from the tea table after which many enjoyed seeing interesting articles regarding the weddings described.

The next meeting of the club will be on April 11 when a program on International Affairs will be presented by Mrs. William A. Taylor and her committee, Mrs. Reynolds French, Mrs. W. R. Sollars, Mrs. F. Brown Smith, Mrs. George Mahony, Mrs. William A. Minner, Mrs. Gayle B. Smith.

NAVY AND YOU

JOHN WILLIAM FINN was presented the MEDAL OF HONOR for his heroism during the first attack by Japanese airplanes on the Naval Air Station, Kaneohe, T. H., on December 7, 1941. When the attack got under way he secured a machine gun which was in a completely exposed section of the parking ramp. While manning the gun he was wounded several times. Although obviously suffering much pain, he returned to actively supervise the re-arming of returning aircraft. His citation reads that his actions are considered to be in keeping with the highest traditions of the Naval Service.

Harrington Bowling League

Well, it's the same story as far as the lead is concerned. Jarrell Fuel is waltzing to its victory in this third as they again won three of their four games. They added two more games to their lead margin to pad their already sufficient lead. Jarrell Fuel shows the strongest bowling thus far of the teams competing this season, as they have only been pegged for four games, the lowest lost record by any team this season. One of the reasons for their success thus far is shown in the high game and high series departments each week.

Hamilton Fund won three of their four games to move up from third place to a tie for second with Wally's Garage. Wally's Garage, on the other hand, could only muster one game out of four, but did not lose any ground as far as the standings are concerned.

Acme picked up two more games to remain in fourth place. It looks as though the teams are coming to a standstill, as no team advanced any position below the second place teams.

Kent Gas is close behind Acme in fifth place as they could only muster one game this week. The team as a whole, has only three more weeks to get into shape to take on the other winners of the other two thirds. They have had things pretty easy these two final thirds, as they have just been coasting along. Time will tell if it has hurt them in any way.

Wilson Electric holds a half game lead over Kay's Beauty Salon, as they could only win one game in Tuesday night's bowling. They remain in sixth place this week. Kay's Beauty Salon, on the other hand, picked up three more games, as they continue to pile up games in the win column, after such a bad beginning. This week, they find themselves tied with McKnatt Funeral Home in seventh place.

McKnatt Funeral Home, by the way, was the only team this week to win all four of their games. But, it seems as though their efforts were all in vain, as far as advancement goes.

Taylor & Messick split their four games down the middle, but, as with the other teams, could not advance, and had to be content with ninth place.

Penn. R. R. still holds the unenviable cellar position, as they lost all four games.

Wow, just look at those high games this week! R. Jarrell bowled a very fine 222 game and also made a great showing in the high series department with a 580 series.

D. McKnatt also bowled a very fine 222 game this week. It looks as though competition is getting mighty tough.

D. Hayman was really ready to bowl Tuesday and it shows in the high game column. Hayman bowled two very fine 220 games and amassed a very good 624 series. We're beginning to see more 600 series, as the season draws to a close.

K. Layton ended the scoring in the high series department with a good 562 series.

U. of D. Track Team Opens Schedule Saturday

Delaware's track team opens its outdoor schedule tomorrow afternoon as one of 13 schools in the third annual American University Relays in Washington, D. C.

Coach Jimmy Flynn's Blue Hens join Catholic University, Fordham, Georgetown, Howard, Iona, Manhattan, Maryland, Mt. St. Mary's, Penn State, St. John's, William and Mary, and host American University in the meet.

"We will be up against some of the best competition in the East," Flynn said. "This should give our kids a chance to see what they can do at a major college level."

The field features five current or former IC4A champions, including three from Maryland's perennial powerhouse, Ed Marks, the indoor long jump and outdoor triple jump titlist, pole vaulter Tom Gagner and javelin ace Russ White will represent the Terps.

Gagner won the IC4A pole vault championship two years ago but lost it to American University's Pete Chen this past winter. They are the co-favorites in the event tomorrow.

The fifth IC4A champion in the field is shot putter George Allen of St. John's.

Flynn expects strong Delaware performances in the field events from junior Scott Campbell in the shot put; Bill Wheeler in the discus, and John Miller in the javelin. Team captain John O'Donnell could place in the mile and Mike Carroll and Greg Walter are contenders in the hurdles.

WATER DISTRICT

whelming support for forming the district. McDaniel said putting the district into operation would require drilling a deep well to feed a 6-inch water main pipe which would loop the area.

The cost for the service and installation, he said, would be borne by the residents in the area and not the county as a whole. He said estimates show that each family would probably have to pay about $50 annually.

McDaniel said he represented about 40 to 45 homeowners in the area. He said, however, that the district might be expanded to include twice that number of residences.

The Levy Court held off taking any action until the results of Neylan's annexation study are known.

If annexation is impossible, President Glenn A. Richter, said, the Levy Court will have to hold a public hearing as prescribed by statute, then further consider the request—the first such made to Kent County commissioners.

An alternate suggestion to the effect that Dover supply the Moores Lake area with water piped on a contractual basis, was met with a certain amount of skepticism by Neylan.

"I'm not certain the council would go for that idea," he said. Neylan added, however, that the council would be informed of the suggestion.

Neylan was also unable to comment on what effect a deep well in the Moores Lake area would have on Dover's water supply.

part of the promotional program for the broiler industry in this area, which in turn is a very important factor in the economic health of the Peninsula. One dollar in every four that is in circulation on Delmarva is poultry industry money. In 1966, Delmarva produced 281 million broilers.

The National Chicken Cooking Contest, a highlight of the Delmarva Chicken Festival, draws food editors of national magazines and newspapers from all parts of the country. Amateur cooks from every state are planning to come cook their own original chicken recipes for judging at this national cook-off.

Dover and Delmarva will be in headlines throughout the United States as publicity about this contest reaches an audience of 100 million.

TAX RAISE

ical of the limited scope assumed by the committee, which is drafting a new insurance law.

The committee, he told a conference workshop, is "overbalanced by knowledgeable insurance people. There are not enough laymen on it."

Short also suggested it is time for auto insurance companies to begin thinking about lifetime policies. He said such policies would have to carry provisions for adjustment of premiums.

He said current policies, running for six months or a year, make it too easy for companies to drop policyholders.

A third speaker, Alex Christie, a lobbyist for the United Steelworkers of America, scored the United Auto Workers for their dispute with the AFL-CIO.

Walter P. Reuther, recently resigned as vice president of the AFL-CIO, and hinted that the auto workers might consider a withdrawal from the labor federation.

Christie said George Meany has been "a good president of the AFL-CIO."

"If he (Reuther) wants to carry on a fight with Meany, the place to carry it on is inside the union, not outside," he said.
