

Hearing on Sewer Referendum To Be Held Tonight at Fire House

A hearing on a referendum to improve the sanitary-sewer system, will be held at the Fire House at 8 p.m., today.

The public meeting will discuss a bond issue of $380,000 to be voted on June 24 for the improvements.

Proceeds from the bonds, with a state grant of $100,000, from the Water and Air Resources Commission, are intended to finance a new sewage-disposal plant, to extend sewers to seven areas in Harrington, to improve the pumping stations, to make repairs to mains, purchase land, and provide a sinking fund, or reserve.

The land is intended for polishing ponds which will further purify the sewage after it has passed thru the disposal plant.

Federal grants may be secured, though the City Council has its fingers crossed on these items. A letter from the Water and Air Resources Commission, thru which federal monies must pass, said the city could receive $124,000 from the Federal Water Pollution Control Commission, but this missive was received during the previous city administration.

Furthermore, the city government is hoping for a federal grant to use local sewer improvements as a demonstration project but the federal mills grind slowly and not much reliance is placed on this aid.

Payment of the $380,000-bond issue would be made from an increased sewer-usage tax. The amount of the increase is indefinite but an approximate figure will be brought out this evening. A sewer referendum for a bond issue of $500,000 was defeated last fall. Hopes for the passage of the coming referendum, however, are high.

SHARON WALLS—daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Walls, Harrington, was honored at Wesley's recent Awards Assembly, by receiving the award for outstanding achievement in history, geography and political science. Police Arrest Fugitive From Maryland Detention Home

George Cohey, 17, a fugitive from Maryland School for Boys, Baltimore, was arrested by local police Monday morning, May 8.

He was intercepted when an automobile in which he was riding went thru a stop sign at Railroad Avenue and Mechanic Streets. The driver, John Corkell, of Burrsville, was reprimanded and Cohey was turned over to state police of Troop 5, Bridgeville, who in turn, placed him with Maryland state police.

In other police activities: Roger Henry, 25, of Lincoln, was arrested by state police of Troop 4, Georgetown, Mon., May 8. He was wanted by local police on a charge of discharging a shotgun in the city limits April 29, at 11:30 p.m., on Commerce Street. Chief of Police Franklin Rogers said Henry fired at Wesley Fisher but didn't hit him.

Henry was fined $50 and costs in Court 6 here.

James Baynard, Harrington, was arrested Tues., May 9, on a charge of failing to report property damage in an automobile accident, Saturday afternoon, May 7. He was accused of backing, from a lot on Delaware Avenue, into a car in the street. He was fined $10 and costs in Court 6.

A juvenile was arrested last Friday, on a charge of reckless driving, and will appear in Family Court.

James Pitts, was arrested last Friday evening on a charge of reckless driving and was fined $25 and costs in Court 6. Police said he ran off Clark Street and hit the crossing gates at the railroad tracks.

Thomas Chandler was fined $25 and costs, on a charge of reckless driving, and $10 and costs on a charge of failing to report an accident in Court 6 Saturday. Police said he lost control of his car and it ran onto the lawn of Harrison Melvin, Delaware Avenue, and knocked over a highway sign.

A juvenile was arrested Sunday night on a charge of speeding on Delaware Avenue. He will appear in Family Court.

Mary C. Clendaniel Engaged To New Jerseyite

Mr. and Mrs. F. Edgar Clendaniel of Gordon Heights, Wilmington, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Catherine, to Peter Franklin Culver.

Mr. Culver is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Culver of Westfield, N. J.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Mt. Pleasant High School and is a senior at the Oberlin Conservatory of Music in Oberlin, O. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Franklin Evans, of Harrington, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Clendaniel, of Lincoln.

Mr. Culver, a graduate of Westfield High School and of Culver Military Summer Schools, is also graduating from Oberlin College and from the Oberlin Conservatory of Music in June. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Culver of Delmar and Mrs. John A. Hopwood, of Westfield and the late Mr. Hopwood.

An August 26th wedding is planned. After a wedding trip to England, the couple will reside in New York where Mr. Culver will continue his studies in sacred music at Union Theological Seminary.

Alcoholics Anonymous Public Banquet, May 21

Mrs. Midge McP., a New York City housewife, mother of twin sons and an alcoholic, will speak at an open-to-the-public banquet of Alcoholics Anonymous at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 21, at Rehoboth Beach High School.

This will be a part of the seventh annual General Service Assembly of A.A. in Delaware. A workshop panel on "A.A. - How It Works" and slides will be at 2 p.m. Saturday, May 20, in the parish house of All Saints Episcopal church on Olive Avenue. It is open to the public.

At 10 a.m. Saturday at the parish house there will be a training session — open only to alcoholics — which will have as its theme, "sobriety, unity, service". Mrs. McP. who is an employee as general service organization conference secretary, will be moderator.

At 8 p.m. Saturday there will be an open meeting of the Georgetown A.A. group in the Episcopal Church parish house at Pine and Academy Sts. There will be three speakers.

Ed. O. from the College Park, A.A. group will also speak at the banquet Sunday. All events are free except the banquet. Tickets for those at the door are $3.

About 200 persons attended last year. The public is invited to the open sessions and there will be opportunities for questions from the floor and for information from A. A. members there.

Broken Water Main Repaired By Tuesday

City employees repaired a broken water main at Liberty Street and Delaware Avenue Monday and Tuesday. The water was turned off 15 minutes Tuesday morning.

Crash Hurts 2 Near Here

A Maryland motorist was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol after a two-car crash near Harrington Sunday in which two persons were injured.

Enoch Jackson, 40, of Salisbury, Md., was fined $200 and costs by Magistrate Fred Carey, Monday in Magistrate Court 6, Harrington, on a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicating liquors.

State police at Bridgeville said the accident occurred on U.S. 13 about 3 miles north of Harrington when the car driven by Jackson attempted to pass a car driven by Margaret Bull, 21, of Arlington, Va.

Jackson's car collided with the other vehicle, bouncing it across the median and across the southbound lanes of the dual highway, police reported. The Bull car went off the road and landed on its top, police said.

Miss Bull and a passenger in her car, Virginia Kellum, 21, of Wilmington, were taken to Milford Memorial Hospital. Police did not have a street address for Miss Kellum.

Miss Bull was admitted with a broken shoulder and a broken pelvis. Her condition Monday was reported as fair. Miss Kellum was treated for abrasions and released.

H.H.S. Alumni Assn. Holds 11th Reunion

For the first time in its 11-year history, the Harrington High School Alumni Association awarded three scholarships Saturday night at its annual reunion at Harrington High School.

The awards, for $400 each, were made to William H. Abbott, Nancy C. Richardson, and Norma B. Frost.

The scholarship funds comprise contributions from the alumni.

In other business, at a dinner in the crowded cafeteria, the association acted as follows:

Introduced the officers for next year, who are as follows: George P. Tatman, president; Mrs. Edmund Paquette, vice president; Donald Derrickson, treasurer; Mrs. Luther P. Hatfield, historian; Miss Sylvia J. Outten, record secretary, and Mrs. Gladys

S. McKnatt, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Clyde (Mary T.) Tucker, president, presided.

In attendance records, the class of '65 won the banner for the most present, while the class of 1904, represented by Mrs. Florence Layton, won a banner on a percentage basis.

Presentation of scholarships was made by Albert C. Price, class of '43.

Honored classes were those of 1942 and 1917.

The first-mentioned class was honored at a party by Herman C. Brown, a member, at his home near Camden after the dinner.

Miss Ana Maria Sapunar, a senior and an American Field Service student, from Bolivia, who gave the invocation in Spanish, received two gifts.

Choral selections were given by members of the senior class, accompanied by Candace Peck.

After the banquet, a dance was held in the Field House to the music of the Del-Aires.

53 Strep Cases Reported in Kent

Fifty-three cases of streptococcal infections, in Kent County, were reported last week in the State Board of Health's morbidity report. The data applies for two weeks ending May 6.

Only two cases of the ailment were reported in the remainder of the state.

Other Kent County ailments were as follows: Chickenpox, 8; infectious hepatitis, 1; measles, 1; mumps, 4.

SNIFF, SNIFF — Albert C. Price, who made the scholarship presentations at the 11th annual reunion of the Harrington High School Alumni Association Saturday night, finds the air pleasant. 5 Kindergarten Pupils Hurt Slightly In Auto Accident

Five kindergarten pupils were injured slightly about noon Wednesday when a station wagon in which they were riding was hit by an automobile two miles north of town on U. S. 13.

The five were taken to Kent General Hospital, Dover, in the ambulance of Harrington Fire Company, treated for minor injuries and released.

They are as follows: Kathy Hill, Wayne Moore, Michael S. Goodhand, Mark Lenke, and Kimberly Brackett.

The pupils, about ten in number, from a Dover school, had been to Wheeler's Park here and were on their way home. The station wagon was driven by Mrs. Donald Banschbach, of Wyoming.

The station wagon was hit by a Volkswagen driven by Leroy McDonald Sage, of Bridgeville.

State police of Troop 5, Bridgeville, said the Sage vehicle, going north behind the station wagon, ran off the road onto the right shoulder and came back onto the highway, hitting the right front fender of the station wagon which came to a halt in the mall.

State police estimated $350 damage to each vehicle.

Sage was fined $25 and costs in Court 7, Dover, on a charge of driving a vehicle exceeding a reasonable and safe speed.

SMYRNA, FELTON PICK SCHOOL AIDES

A newcomer upset an incumbent and a board president easily overcame a challenge from a city councilman in Kent County's school board elections over the weekend.

In Felton, James J. Pizzadili defeated incumbent board member William Myers by 40 votes in a three-way race. Another newcomer, Donald Pommell, ran a distant third.

In Smyrna, Board President William E. Matthews Jr. easily turned back a challenge from Guy M. Edmondson Jr., a member of the City Council.

Pizzadili pulled 191 votes to win the Felton election. Myers had 151 votes and Pommell only 19.

Pizzadili, 37, is a graduate of Felton High School, the owner of a poultry business, the scoutmaster of a Felton Boy Scout Troop and camping chairman of the Mid-Del District of the Del-Mar-Va Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Myers is a former Felton Mayor and chairman of the building commission of the Kent County Vocational-Technical Center at Woodside.

Pommell is an Air Force staff sergeant who has lived in the Felton area for 13 years.

Matthews polled 461 votes compared to 208 for Edmondson.

At 72, Matthews has served on the Smyrna Board, the last two as president. He owns a funeral home and earlier served two years as mayor of Smyrna and four years in the state senate.

Edmondson, 47, has served 10 years on the town council. He owns a Smyrna food market.

Both elections were held Saturday and both winners will serve five-year terms.

Soils, Like People, Have Many Traits

How many different kinds of soil do you think there are in Kent County?

Well, there are about 30. On that you can take the work of Frederick T. Mott, of the U.S.D.A., Soil Conservation Service with headquarters in Dover. In the U.S. as a whole there are 70,000 different kinds, he says.

"Each soil has its own distinctive traits or characteristics." "To make wise and intelligent use of the land, it's best to know what kind of soil we are working with. Some soils, for example, can be used safely and productively for cultivated crops. Some can't.

"Some soils will support a housing development or an airport. Others won't. On some suburban lots, the soil will filter sewage from a septic tank. On others the soil won't.

To find out about proper uses of soil for both rural and urban residents, SCS soil scientists survey 50 million acres a year. Their reports are used by farmers. They're also used by planning commissions, zoning boards, architects, builders, developers, school boards, health departments, tax assessors and highway departments.

Professional land developers use an SCS publication, "Know Your Soil" (AIB 267). For homeowners, there's "Soil Conservation at Home" (AIB 244). Single copies may be obtained free at the Soil Conservation Service Office, 2319 South Dual Highway, Dover.

Increasing Cutworm Corn Damage

Cutworm damage to corn has apparently increased in recent years. Sod fields coming out of retirement, dry weather and lack of proper insecticide treatment are probably the reasons.

Start looking now for cutworm damage on corn, advises Frank Boys, agricultural chemicals extension specialist at the University of Delaware. Early detection is very important if control measures are going to be effective. Wet or low-lying fields and corn fields planted on alfalfa or soil bank land are most susceptible, he points out.

Cutworms are nearly two inches long when full grown, but they're still difficult to spot during the day. It may be easier to spot the damage they cause; look for wilted plants and plants that seem to disappear or are cut off at or below the soil surface.

Unless infestation is extremely heavy, soil insecticides such as aldrin and chlordane should control cutworms. The recommended rate is two pounds per acre broadcast or one pound per acre as a row treatment.

Once corn is up, use two pounds of active carbaryl (Sevin) or two pounds of active Dyltox wettable powder. However, don't use corn for food, feed or ensilage within 40 days after Dyltox treatments. Aldrin and dieldrin may not be used as a treatment for cutworm once the corn is up. Apply treatments at the first sign of damage when the worms are still small, Boys advises.

New Film Available From University of Del.

A well-lanscaped yard will be lived-in as well as looked-at. But where does an amateur backyard beginner begin?

A US Department of Agriculture film, "New Guidelines for the Well-Lanscaped Home," can help you plan. Produced in cooperation with the American Association of Nurserymen, the 14-minute color film is designed to help the average homeowner understand where to begin his landscaping plans.

The film outlines what you need to know before you plan a flowerbed or plant a tree or shrub. It shows examples of successful landscapes, various uses for yard plantings, and ideas for the overall design. Each step is carefully explained.

"New Guidelines for the Well-Lanscaped Home" is especially suitable for civic groups, garden clubs, 4-H leaders, county and

Marshyhope Tax Ditch Ok'd

The Marshyhope Tax Ditch was approved by a vote of $54,937.71 to $732.90 in voting in the city hall Tuesday.

A spokesman said the vote came from a total taxable dollar vote of $63,733.40 in the 56,000 acres of farmland involved. The ditch will form an outlet drainage for farms in Kent and Sussex Counties and a stretch in Maryland.

The next step will be an agreement with the federal government to obtain match-funds, and after that the contract for the channel will be put up for bids, the spokesman said.

Local Jaycees Elect Officers

The Harrington Junior Chamber of Commerce elected new officers last Thursday evening. They are: President, William Wood; vice president, Jack Wyatt; internal vice president, William Muehleisen; external vice president, William Morris; secretary, Donald Garey; treasurer, Russell McCready; state director, Robert Taylor.

The newly elected officers and new members were installed last night by Gerald Pusey, of Millsboro; Ralph Givens, of Georgetown, was the guest speaker. The Jaycees met at the Bridle Bit.

C.-K.-R.-T. Post Memorial Program Nears Completion

C.-K.-R.-T. Post #7, the American Legion, has announced that the program for Memorial Day at Hollywood Cemetery is about complete.

These services, held each year to commemorate the memory of deceased veterans of all wars, will precede the annual parade by the high school bands and other interested civic and fraternal organizations.

Final plans will be announced in next week's paper.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

The current straws in the wind blowing over the cattle market carry both bearish and bullish signs. The U.S.D.A.'s Cattle on Feed Report was mostly bearish about the spring market...

Reasonable price tags will continue to be placed on turkeys, frying chicken and stewing hens. Eggs continue to roll into market as the Nation's laying flocks seem to be working overtime.

Cold, wet weather has retarded the local season for many fresh vegetables. The most plentiful vegetables include cabbage, carrots, green onions, spinach, potatoes and corn.

Imports of bananas are still heavy, and prices are low to reasonable. Larger shipments of Hawaiian pineapple are bringing prices down to rock bottom on this delicious fruit.

Pinch most chrysanthemums two or three times during the growing season to produce more blossoms and keep the plants bushy and branched.

Mums need large amounts of water to grow and flower properly, Stevens points out. They have a large, shallow root system and quickly exhaust the soil water during hot dry weather.

Plant Mums - All Sizes, Shapes, Colors

Mums are the home gardener's colorful standby in late summer and fall. The sturdy plants come in many different shapes and colors...

White, yellow, orange, bronze, red, purple or pink flowers in formal pompons, daisy-like single, "spoons" and showy "football" types range in size from dwarf cushion plants to tall, back-of-the-flower-border kinds.

Any soil that can produce a good crop of flowers, vegetables, or weeds, can grow mums. Improve problem soils with organic matter; peat, leaf mold and well-rotted manure are good sources.

Spring is the best time to plant, after the danger of killing frosts is past. Mums can be grown from rooted cuttings, but most home gardeners will have better results if they start with small established plants in pots.

Space dwarf compact varieties intended for mass displays 18 inches apart. Spreading varieties or individual plants are best set about 24 inches apart.

Chrysanthemums left undisturbed become overcrowded in a year or two. Stevens advises yearly dividing of varieties that make many tufts or rosettes of leaves; varieties that make few rosettes may be divided every two years.

FENCE TALK

By George K. Vapaa

Our garden by the sea is one way to say farming on the Delmarva Peninsula. A local food processor of vegetable crops uses this phrase in his advertising program. It is an apt description. Much of our fruit and vegetable production moves into processing before it enters market channels. The trend should expand as Mrs. Housewife demands more ready to serve foods for her table.

We can be optimistic about our economic growth if we develop a sound plan for our agriculture. Thea Delmarva Advisory Council brought 325 people together, including all three governors to "brainstorm" our directions and problems.

I worked with the agribusiness session. We see fewer but larger farms, with greater capital invested, with a need for more irrigation geared to minimum labor. We need refined methods of farm management to best use our resources and to meet market needs.

Bill Murray, a recent president of Delmarva Poultry Industries, sees genuine hope for the future of farming here. He suggests that our professional planners and developers think in terms of completely planned communities. He feels we need to decide on some general goals and aim our future growth. Farming looms large in his outlook for Delmarva.

A French college student has written to Isaac Thomas, of Marydel, asking for work experience on an American farm. His main interests are dairy breeding and polyculture.

Polyculture? That sends me to the dictionary. Polychrome—several colors. Polytechnic—skilled in many arts. Polyculture does not seem to be defined in my dictionary. We can guess that it is an interest in many crops. We usually say general farming or general crop culture.

Ike would like to invite this man to work on a farm here this summer. Would anyone care to be a host? It is a rewarding experience. The young man is 21 years old and is asking only for room, board, and a bit of spending money.

Call Ike or me for details. His phone number is 492-3174 and mine is 736-1448.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Delaware Association of Soil & Water Conservation Districts announced the winners of the 1967 Kent County Soil Stewardship Poster contest: First prize of $5 to David Webb, Wyoming, age 12, Westville 4-H Club; second prize of $3 to Janice Harrison, Goldsboro, age 16, Westville 4-H Club; third prize of $2 to Dorothy Reilly, Magnolia, age 12, Linda Fairness, Moore's Lake, age 11, Lakeland 4-H Club.

These three top posters from Kent County will be on display at the Delaware State Fair where they will be judged on a state-wide basis.

Armyworm alert for small grains and corn! Look for them. You can spray with malathion up to seven days before harvest. If you use toxaphene, you cannot feed the straw, fodder or forage to dairy cattle being finished for slaughter.

Leafspot (Helminthosporium) is now active in lawns. Look for reddish brown to purplish-black spots on the leaves and stems of Kentucky blue grass. Set your mower to cut at least two inches of height—no lower. Spray at 10 day intervals with zineb, maneb or other lawn fungicide.

Country Lane Extension Club News

By Jane Everline

The Country Lane Home Economics Extension Club met Tuesday, May 2, at the home of Mrs. Russell Bowdle.

Committee reports were as follows: consumer chairman, Mrs. Albert Wright, reported on easy credit; is it really easy, can you afford it? Also, on rising prices; are we blaming the wrong people?

Civil defense chairman, Mrs. Woodrow Holloway, told us what to do in case of a tornado; this was followed by a discussion on electrical storms.

Craft chairman, Mrs. Leon Donovan, modeled a skirt in which she had used the "new zipper". When closed the zipper appears to be the seam and is very neat.

President, Mrs. Leon Donovan, told of the county council meeting. State day will be May 3 and there was a vote taken as to whether we preferred county day to be held during the day or evening. May 23 there will be a national drivers test on television.

We decided to collect pennies for friendship each month.

We discussed "Dover Days" and decided to tour General Foods and Playtex plants. This was done on Thurs., May 11. After lunch in Dover our group went to General Foods where we had a free-flowing tour (no guide). From there we went to Playtex and had a guided tour which was so much more interesting. Our first guide explained and showed to us the process of making a girdle. The second guide took us through the packaging and shipping departments. We had a pleasant afternoon in spite of the rainy weather.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, June 6, with Mrs. Laurence Collison. Club members please remember the meeting starts at 1 o'clock.

The well-dressed woman knows that accessories can be the spice of a costume. But, just as with spice, she must be careful not to overdo it.

When you start adding accessories you must be willing to subtract also. Always subtract when in doubt. Too many can ruin your appearance by making you look fussy and overdone. Remember simplicity is beauty.

Most of us immediately think of jewelry when accessories are mentioned. One of the biggest mistakes we make is wearing jewelry that is not appropriate. Sparkling stones should shine and glitter only after dark. Rhinestones are out of place at the supermarket. Play it safe by choosing separate accessories for casual and formal wear for daytime and evening.

We need to give more thought to choosing accessories for dark colors (navy, black, gray, brown). The extra touches should be colorful, but not too bright. A bright color can be used for two accessories, but never more than two. Red shoes and bag with a navy suit are enough. Then add white gloves and a hat. Three or more accessories of a bright color will look like so many spots of color.

As a general rule, handbags match shoes. Choose the size and shape best suited to your needs. A small person doesn't want a large handbag. It will look out of place and overpowering—like a little girl playing dressup.

Short white gloves are crisp and neat with spring and summer clothes. White kid gloves are perfect at night. Bright colored gloves are seldom smart looking—they put too much emphasis on the hands.

How many accessories or accents should you wear? That depends on their style, size and color contrast. Strive for unified effect rather than a cluttered look. Speaking of necklace accessories, someone has said "two is company, three a crowd."

Too many accessories near the face do not call attention to it, but compete with it for attention. When in doubt about the number to wear, absolute simplicity is always more becoming than too many ornaments.

Basic Task For Adults

There has been much discussion lately of the mental health needs, not only of our adult population, but of our so-called teenagers.

The theory is advanced that the teenagers do not exist in nature; that they are physically mature but economically and socially immature; that in the old days, they were turned out on their own and did not feel subject to family regimentation.

Whether this feeling of lack of identification or responsibility leads youngsters to show resentment in order to build status and independence is now a question.

Whether mental hospital and psychiatric treatment are the answer is another question.

Somewhere along the line our schools, colleges and parents should shoulder the job of showing young people that they have very definite responsibilities and are identified with every phase of family life and government.

They can be shown that on them rests the responsibility for their own and the nation's future.

In their far-ranging activities, it looks as if parents and schools have neglected the basic task of providing our youngsters with an understanding of the rights and responsibilities of citizenship.

One million, five hundred thousand DOLLARS

The Diamond State Telephone Company

Every month of the year, the telephone company pumps over 1½ million dollars into the state's economy. That's how important The Diamond State Telephone Company is to Delaware prosperity.

Telephone company employees live and work everywhere in Delaware. Our annual payroll is almost 12 million dollars. Together with our affiliate, Western Electric Co., we will spend some 6½ million dollars this year for supplies and services with some 800 Delaware firms. All this translates into a lot of food, clothing, homes, automobiles, recreation—a big boost to Delaware.

HOW ABOUT A DELAWAREAN FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS?

A thing that irks us is the consistent employment of administrators of state departments from other states.

We believe we are entitled to the best but we also believe a hard look should be given Delaware prospects before a post is filled.

As it is, continued failure to appoint residents to the top posts infers they are not too "bright" and incapable of filling the positions.

Many out-of-starters look at our three counties as only a stopping place on the way up. Then, we have to go thru the same old rat race again.

Since Dr. Richard Gousha, state superintendent of schools since 1963, when he came here from Ohio, has elected to accept a much-higher paying post in Milwaukee, why not scrutinize our state educational system for a candidate?

It has been said the reason a local candidate is not selected is because more than one want the lucrative post, and selecting an out-of-state candidate would, at least, make the local candidates who might lose, feel better.

However, we do not go by the proverb, "No prophet is without honor save in his own country."

We believe the post of state superintendent of schools can be justifiably filled from within the state.

The women are getting into everything nowadays. It is hard to believe but an auxiliary has been formed for the Eastern Shore Foxhunters Association.

CURFEW SHOULD RING TONIGHT

The Harrington Ministerium representatives recently approached the City Council and requested a curfew for teenagers. A Council committee is working on this suggestion which, should be approved. The city government is inclined to leniency, where basketball games are concerned, and there will be other borderline cases.

LEGISLATION NEEDED ON BICYCLES

We hope the City Council will approve, in general, legislation proposed by the Harrington Ministerium, on the use of bicycles. Bicycles are subject to regulations of the state motor vehicle laws, just as are other vehicles.

For some years now cyclists have been passing thru stop signs, driving on the wrong side of the streets, riding on sidewalks, and riding at nights without lights. And woe to the auto driver who happens to hit one.

LITTLE LEAGUE BASEBALL

Tomorrow (Saturday) at 1 p.m. Harrington's baseball season gets under way with appropriate opening day ceremonies, after which the Lions meet the Moose.

Following this Little League game, the Senior League will feature Porter's Hardware and First National Bank team's first official contest.

If weather conditions are not favorable, opening services will carry over to Monday evening when Legion plays Rotary and Peoples Bank meets T & M.

We are going to hear a lot about these games, the boys who play them, the civic-minded men who manage them and the faithful followers who patronize them.

Schedule for the season appears elsewhere in this paper. So! Let's go out to the ball games. Sometimes they are almost as exciting as the Mudville game in Mighty Casey's time.

CASEY AT BAT

The outlook was not brilliant For the Mudville nine that day The score was 3 to 2 With one more inning to play.

They thought if only Casey Could get a whack at that They'd put up even money With Casey at the bat.

But Flinn preceded Casey As did also Jimmy Blake The former was a pooden And the latter was a fake.

But Flinn let go a single To the wonderment of all And the much despised Blake Knocked the cover off the ball.

From the benches filled with people There arose a lusty yell That rumbled through the valley And rattled through the dell.

It ascended to the hill tops And recoiled upon the flat For Casey, mighty Casey Was advancing to the bat.

Casey nodded to the pitcher And o'er the plate the spehoid sped "That ain't my style," said Casey Strike one the umpire said.

Again that leather-covered missile Came hurtling thru the air,

But Casey still ignored it As he stood in grandeur there.

Close by the sturdy batsman That ball unheeded flew But Casey still ignored it And the umpire said, "Strike two".

Kill him! Kill the umpire Shouted someone in the stand And no doubt they would have killed him Had not Casey raised his hand.

Again the pitcher swings the ball And again he lets it go And now the air is shattered By the force of Casey's blow.

Somewhere in a far-off land The sun is shining bright Somewhere hearts are gladdened And somewhere hearts are bright.

Somewhere the band is playing And somewhere children shout. But there is no joy in Mudville Mighty Casey just struck out.

Artemus Smith

By Albert C. Price

"Teenaberry" Smith, Harrington's oldest living resident, resides at 32 Clark St. in the house he had built in 1925, with his wife, Laura, who is 88 and his daughter, Florence, a retired State Board of Health laboratory clerk.

Smith was born on a farm near Bridgeville, July 12, 1871, and moved to Harrington, just before the turn of the century, living in a house on West Street opposite High Street where West Harrington Elementary School now stands.

He was employed as a Pennsylvania Railroad carpenter retiring during the flu epidemic in 1926. During World War I, he was transferred to a train crew and served as a freight brakeman because of the man power shortage.

He recalls when all the land east of the railroad to U.S. Highway 13 was the late Josiah Wolcott Farm. He also commented on the important role the railroad played in its early era in this area, especially to the farmers who would bring their grain, fruit, produce, milk, and other products to the station to be shipped to markets in Wilmington and Philadelphia.

A remarkable man for his years, he suffers from a stomach ulcer and must adhere to a very strict diet. He is slightly hard of hearing and has cataracts and no longer is permitted to smoke his pipe or take an occasional chew, something he thoroughly enjoyed in his earlier years.

His activities are limited to taking short walks when the weather permits and listening to his radio.

St. Johnstown Church To Hold Memorial Service

Sunday, May 28, St. Johnstown Methodist Church, one mile east of Greenwood, will have its annual Memorial Day services. This special service will start at 2:30 p.m.

The guest speaker will be James Kilvington, past Grand Master of mSons of Delaware and presently serving as the Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Delaware of Masons. Mr. Kilvington is an outstanding speaker and one that you will want to hear.

There will be special music for this service. Special invited guests of the day will be the members of the Greenwood V.F.W. Post No. 7478 and the members of the auxiliary to the post. The members of the V.F.W. will conduct special services at the conclusion of the church service.

Additional guests will be the officers and members of Bethel No. 5, International Order of Job's Daughters, of Georgetown.

Pfc. Francis Kelley, Harrington, one of the first two Delaware soldiers to return from the Korean War, was honored by the Rotary Club at a dinner Tuesday evening.

Lewis Hurd, of Philadelphia, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Hurd, at Hollandville.

A dinner was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rawding, of Whitesburg, Sunday in honor of the former's 81st birthday.

The branch office of Pensu-preme was robbed of $800 in cash and checks early Tuesday morning.

Hadley Hanover, driven by L. Floyd, and owned by R. Floyd, J. Downing, and the driver, made an all-time record for trotters at Kent & Sussex Raceway Wednesday night, winning easily in 2:02.3. (Editorial note: Floyd told us, immediately after the race, he raced without a stop-watch and was unaware he was making a record.)

Mrs. O. C. Passmore spent last week in Wilmington visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Selden Raughley, of Frederica, visited Miss Mary E. Raughley and brothers Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bayard VanSant and Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Davis and children, of Wilmington, visited Mrs. Nora Tharp Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Richardson were recent dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Parker Cosden, of Whaleyville, Md.

Nyle Callaway, of near McCole's Pond, recently sent into town a copy of the "Harrington Enterprise," probably the town's first newspaper. This copy was of Dec. 11, 1884 and was No. 23, Vol. 11. Thus, the newspaper was probably founded in the late summer of 1883. Editors and proprietors were J. E. Horney and J. P. Hopkins.

Seymour M. Gellens

Seymour M. Gellens, 52, of Milford died Sunday in Memorial Division, Wilmington, after a long illness.

A native of New York City, Mr. Gellens went to Milford in 1947 to operate the Milford Cafe. A few years later he became proprietor of the Milford Hotel, which he operated until his death.

A former president of the Delaware State Hotel Association and a member of the Delaware Travel Council, Mr. Gellens was also a member of Temple Beth Shalom in Dover, the Rotary Club of Milford, the Shawnee Country Club, the Jewish Federation of Delaware, the ORT, and the Zionist Organization of America.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lillian D. Gellens; a daughter, Miss Sharon R. Gellens, at home; a son, Harvey K. Gellens, a graduate student at Temple University; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gellens of Miami Beach, Fla.; two sisters, Mrs. Evtlyn Sayer of Foulk Woods, and Mrs. Hermine Soffer of Cherry Hill, N. J., and a brother, Paul J. Gellens, of Green Acres.

Services were held Tuesday afternoon at Chandler Funeral Home, 2506 Concord Pike, Wilmington. Interment was in the Beth Shalom Section of Lombardy Cemetery. In lieu of flowers the family suggested contributions to the American Cancer Society.

Shiva was observed at the residence of Mrs. Sayer, 1909 Foulk Road, Wilmington.

Successful Dairyman Married To Farm

Successful dairy farmers feed high protein feeds, use modern breeding practices and give each animal tender loving care, according to William Kux, dairy farmer from Port Penn. Kux and his wife operate one of the most successful dairy farms in the state.

Kux has a herd of 39 milking Holsteins on a 300-acre dairy farm. During 1966, his herd was third in production in the state with an average of 16,037 pounds of milk and 605 pounds of fat per animal. Each animal averaged more than 7,440 quarts of milk during the year.

High-protein silage and concentrates help Kux get good production. "We grow high quality hay and corn to provide our animals with a lot of energy and protein," explains Kux. "And we use high-protein mixture of corn and soybeans."

Here's one modern dairy farmer who doesn't like modern technology for feeding cows. "We don't believe in using mechanical means to dump feed in front of the animals. That way, animals just fight over the feed, with some getting more than they need and other not getting enough."

Each animal in his herd needs and get individual care. Each one is fed according to her weight and past production records. "They need a little T.L.C. or tender, loving care, too," Kux doesn't have extra hired help to give that individual attention to all cows, either. "I don't believe in leaving my herd with strangers; dairy cattle are too temperamental. I guess you could say my wife and I are 'married' to this herd."

Successful artificial breeding is an important part of Kux's formula. "We don't even keep a bull on the farm."

The responsibility for a successful breeding program is the dairy farmer's, Kux believes. He must decide what inheritable characteristics his cows have, weak as well as strong points. Then he must check the characteristics of the available bulls and figure out which bull will produce the best offspring when bred to his cows. For example, Kux explains, a good dairyman won't breed a bull whose daughters have a history of weak legs to a cow with weak legs.

Once the sire is chosen, the dairyman must determine the proper time for insemination. "If your records aren't accurate, you can't know when to breed. And this costs money."

Kux's herd is a fine example of what happens when you follow good breeding practices. It was recently classified by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America; one cow was classified excellent and nine others, very good. Kux believes classification is very important because it is a realistic way to measure those overall characteristics of a cow which are important to production.

A big, new milking parlor and a new type of free stall, open housing unit are not part of Kux's plans for the future. "I'm getting too old to invest a lot of money in new and bigger facilities."

Kux and his wife know how to get the most out of their own kind of farming, however. A small barn with two rows of 20 stanchions and four portable milking units make up his milking facilities. With this type of operation, Kux can milk his herd in an hour and a half.

He uses a 435 gallon bulk tank for milk storage. "I may have to buy a bigger tank if the cows keep increasing production."

He stores corn and hay in two upright silos next to the milking barn, unloading by auger for easier feeding. "If I could get one more thing, it would be another silo for corn. Corn silage is so good, I'd like to switch and feed it entirely."

This type of family dairy farming is far from the ideal of most dairy experts. Yet, no one can deny Bill Kux has one of the best and most profitable dairy farms in the state. Dairy farming still isn't all technology; there are still rewards for hard work and manual labor—for the dairyman "married" to his herd.

From A Glass House

A presidential advisory committee believes there's too much sex in automobile advertising. It also finds fault with other fields of merchandising and offers a long list of recommendations including new legislation, tightening of present laws and a plan for educating the people to avoid, what it considers, unscrupulous or blurring merchandising.

The committee was composed of 12 members. It would be interesting to know what qualifies these 12 people to judge whether pretty girls are to be utilized in advertising copy.

This is just one of a long list of federal efforts being directed toward unwarranted control of advertising as a backdoor means of regulating business and more importantly restricting the most fundamental of all rights—freedom of speech and freedom of the press.

Another flagrant example was the case of the Federal Trade Commission ruling against Proctor and Gamble. It seems P & G, after once commanding half the liquid bleach market, lost much of it to a rival whose sales went from zero to 30 per cent after a promotion campaign. Then P & G countered with advertising, and knocked its rival's sales back.

The FTC found all this distasteful, and glowered at mass advertising which, it said, "merely entrenches market leaders." The FTC neglected to say why market leaders should not try to stay on top, but it strongly implied that advertising, like merchandising, victimizes the "easily led" housewife.

In most cases, restrictions on advertising are proposed in the name of protecting the consumer. Nothing could sound more innocuous than this, until it is realized that advertising and the free market system are inseparable.

There are laws, as there should be, against fraud and deception in advertising informs the people of what is being offered in the market place, as well as assuring for everyone, whether a journalist or not, his right to freedom of expression. . . . People dare not forget that advertising is as much a means of informing our people as any part of a newspaper. . . .

If one may tamper with, or abridge, the freedom of one portion of the press, then the entire press structure is jeopardized.

Still another point should be made—advertising provides the commercial support for the vast majority of newspapers, magazines, radio, TV, and other media of communication. Without these either would not exist, or would have to be priced at a figure that would deny to all but a comparative few.

Thus, advertising makes a vast contribution to literacy.

The federal government doesn't buy its space—but all its important announcements are given maximum publicity, to which commercial advertising must take a back seat. This is inevitable—the public is entitled to the information. But the government's releases of information are frequently misleading.

This has been so pronounced in the Johnson administration that a new expression has come to be common-phrase: "the credibility gap." It may prove a deciding factor in Vietnam. In domestic affairs, some critics feel it has dulled the sharp sense of ethics and principle that are so essential to the fiber of life, public or private.

Commentator James Reston observes that "The Crisis of Confidence" has resulted from a long string of incidences in which subsequent events disproved official statement and releases, ranging from the budget and Hanoi peace gestures to the authenticity of the President's birthplace.

It is no coincidence that many of those people who pursue a compulsory economic philosophy—that the government knows best—are most active in advocating restrictions on the mainstay of the free market system—advertising. Widespread loss of faith in commercial advertising would be a damaging blow to the free market system and the communications media at the same time.

However, the widespread loss of faith in governmental communications is an open invitation to destruction.

The nation obviously cannot afford either; integrity in these two areas is indispensable.

—Bennett County Booster II, Martin, S. D.

The Maze Of Medicare

The burden of red tape imposed by the Medicare program is its greatest drawback. Some remedy must be found to reduce the immense amount of record-keeping necessary to meet the requirements of the laws in their present form. An institution like the Lock Haven, Renovo, or Jersey Shore Hospital is penalized by the present system, and larger ones are complaining just as loudly. They find that they are held responsible for almost three times as much record-keeping and paper work as they had to do before the Medicare program was introduced.

There are understandable reasons for this mountain of book-keeping.

First of all, the laws are complicated, with deductible items, a variety of qualifications and requirements, and various safeguards put into the legislation to assure certain desirable results. The benefits of the Medicare program, according to the law, must be restricted to the individuals who meet the requirements as set forth, and records must be kept to show that these qualifications have been satisfied.

In the second place, it seems to be in the nature of big government programs that the first impulse of the bureaucracy is to design a complicated set of forms, to be filled out in detail, with many copies.

It is unfortunate, perhaps, that paper is so plentiful and cheap. When records had to be chiseled on blocks of stone, nobody thought of insisting on multiple copies to be stashed away in filing cabinets.

Some of the records that are not required may be useless, or at least unnecessary. The bureaucratic mind wants to be sure that everyone has a copy who feels that his responsibility covers the territory. Consequently, paperwork proliferates even though its only function may be to fill up space in the archives.

The reasonable solution to the problem of red tape in Medicare may be to simplify the law so that the program does not have to be adopted to a pattern of record-keeping, but can be administered on a local level so that human values are paramount. Delays should be eliminated, so that people do not have to wait for weeks for the papers to be processed before they can receive the benefits the Medicare program is designed to provide. The records themselves should be simplified so that people who are both aged and ill are not stupefied by formidable forms they must deal with before they can get attention.

We believe a lot of progress could be made if the law were revised so that rules of good sense could be applied, without penalty, by the people who must administer the regulations at the grass-roots, in direct contact with the people who are supposed to be the beneficiaries of the law.—Lock Haven (Pa.) Express

"It Was Too Late To Get Careless"

By W. C. Burgess

"Too Late To Get Careless?"—"I had already done it." Time: April, 1945. "Somewhere in Germany—Any old place will do."—but it was in an old beat up castle, though!"

Now Jack O'Day the little old Irishman from Indianapolis and they made him a roommate o mine a little later in Salsburg, Austria) had just finished breaking bad and shooting up part of the castle—for which he got 30 days at hard labor and a $10 dollar fine. Now, this went on his service record only. Simple enough, when he was sober—which was most of the time—he was a good soldier.

One of our boys had been in the Army for 17 years, and was getting kinda' old. He was on guard of a night and let the owner of the castle take a walk during the night.

"Pore' ole' lonesome me; he shouldn't have done it!" "It wound up as the case of the German Oberleutnant!"

Our ninety-day wonders—so they say, were made officers, or, and gentleman—by an act of congress. But this German officer was made, I suppose, an officer by an act of the Reichstag—the German legislature—so I suppose. Anyway, he knew his oats."

Us boys were laying on the grass getting ready to move up a little farther—when off goes a burp gun. So, it is one of rg uns, and maybe somebody is in trouble; so we rush up the hill—and—"it was too late to get careless."

Here comes the prisoners down—German, of course, because there was no return fire. Now Corporal Mitchell, of our wire outfit had taken a little trip—unauthorized, of course—and had run into a German machine gun nest.

One German soldier jumped back into the pond and like to have got drowned. In other words he got himself shot. Rice of Indianapolis unloaded and wounded him.

Sound and Fury Story

Something new is offered to the home movie maker.

It's a sound effects track from whence noises are dubbed into home movies for those who have the fortune to possess and play home movies with sound.

For instance, there is one section for rain and thunder. Another is factory backgrounds. Baseball crowds and applause is registered. A woman screaming and a jet take-off end further noises. Want seagulls? They got'em. Haven't heard a baby cry lately? Just turn on the noise record.

We can imagine some other advantages of owning records like this.

A fellow with a tape recorder and a sense of humor that no one else appreciate could sit by the hour and spin his corny jokes as he pumped in canned laughter. He might enjoy the playback for years to come.

For the selfish father who wants the house—or at least the living room—all to himself, a few minutes of an Indianapolis Speedway recording ought to drive all other away.

Horses galloping and gun shots should appeal to the kids. One would suppose that the little gal with the cracked soprano voice might blend hers in with the seagull noises. Her brothers might then imagine themselves as surfers supreme as they play surf sound effects.

Then, there's just the ticket for the insomniac who can't sleep or who wakes up all alert at the early hour of say, 1 a.m.

First, he might try the rain and thunder sequence, especially if there is some patter on the roof. Steamboat whistles and locomotive sounds could lull the restless back to bye bye land.

And something for the prankster, too!

That section on the woman screaming might be directed out an open window at the neighbors. Another recording on squad car noises, directed out the front window, might have an effect on the cars racing by. And a battle scene blast might even bring a police patrol for an investigation, all of which should prove interesting diversion.

And, somehow, we can't help but remember the craze that hit the juke boxes a few years back when someone came up with a best seller, "Three Minutes Of Silence."

Peach Blossom 4-H Club News

Busy, busy, busy, have been the last few weeks for 4-H'ers. On April 15th, county demonstrations were presented at Delmarva Power & Light building. Talking part from our club were: Terry Bowman, home beautification; Debbie Salmons, and Mark Williams, dairy; Barney Hasset, clothing; Ronnie Bramble, entomology; Rita Messick, clothing care; Robin Hill, home improvement; eslie Smith, foods; Linda Newnom and Anna Hasset, breads; Becky Messick, health; Philip Mesibov, garden; Lee Mesibov, poultry, and Steven Mesibov, electric. Several became county winners and will give their demonstration at the State Fair in state competition.

On May 6th, nine girls from our club joined 70 other girls from Kent County to model garments that they had made. This included aprons, skirts, dresses, suits and evening gowns. Terry Bowman, Rita Messick, Robin Hill, Debbie Salmons, Becky Messick, and Robin Cahall were chosen blue ribbon winners to the honor court. Other participating from Peach Blossom group were Geneva Clarkson, Barney Hasset and Donna Rust.

Weekends also find members busy working to clean up a neglected local cemetery. About 15 have worked in groups to rake, chop and burn trash, while others have scrubbed monuments and painted fences. This work will represent our community project for the year.

It will soon be State Fair time and work will be required to make exhibits ready.

There will be no morning worship, as the pastor, the Rev. William J. Garrett, will be attending the Peninsula annual Conference at Aldersgate Church, Wilmington. Services will resume on the regular schedule on Sunday, May 28, at 11 a.m.

The Senior Choir will rehearse on Thursday, 8 p.m.

The MYF will meet on Sunday evening, 6:30 o'clock.

The Official Board will meet on Monday, May 22, at 8 p.m. The commission chairmen are asked to meet on the same evening at 7:30 p.m.

Circle of Influence

It is a truism, but a vitally important one, that ours is a time of great complexity and swift change. Among intelligent men and women concerned about their role as informed citizens in such a time, one often hears some variant of this cry: How can I know enough about what is going on in the world?

The blunt answer is: You can't. The bluntness is tempered by realization that no one—not the ablest commentators, not those in high places who formulate national policy, not even the President himself—can know all that ought to be known. The point has been offered by some that the precipitate U.S. intervention in the Dominican Republic in 1965 was based in part on lack of complete, accurate knowledge about what was going on in that country.

There are other illustrations of the point. We all, in varying degree, make judgments and take actions without knowing enough to judge or act in the wisest possible manner. But judgments must be made, nevertheless, and there always comes a time when a government must act on the basis of the best available information.

It is only the cynic who concludes, from this, that there is little point in the ordinary citizen's trying to be well informed. The circumstances argue, rather, for a more intensive personal effort to learn as much as possible about the pressing questions of the day.

The citizen is not helpless, nor without influence. Each of us has a circle of influence; each of us may bring opinion to bear on our representatives in local, state and national government, often to good effect. No one can know all that ought to be known. But the more one knows, the better the chance of wisely influencing the relentless process of decision-making that affects all our lives.

Choose Rainwear Fabric For Quality Finish

Rainy days are here again—still May, this year, had as many showers as the proverbial April. So, raincoats are a wardrobe necessity.

Raincoats still tend all to look alike, according to Miss Janet Reed, extension clothing and textile specialist at the University of Delaware. Fashion is beginning to catch up with rainwear, but it's really a garment bought for protection rather than beauty.

Although style isn't a major factor in the cost, prices are nonetheless quite different. Performance and quality of the fabric and the quality of construction are the obvious reasons for the difference.

Since you can't see or feel the protection from water built into a raincoat fabric, you have to depend on label information. Unfortunately, terms found on rainwear labels have not been defined according to any standard of performance, so they don't mean much, Miss Reed points out. All finishes will break down eventually, but generally, the higher the cost of the fabric, the better the finish.

Technically speaking, a water repellent finish will resist a certain amount of wetting, but the fabric will not withstand heavy showers. Fabric coats of firm and closely woven material will give more protection than loosely woven fabrics—even if both fabrics are treated with water repellents. Waterproof finishes will not permit water to penetrate the fabric at all; actually, only plastic or plastic-coated fabrics are waterproof.

Of course, any garment can leak at the seams, especially the shoulder seam which gets full force of the rain. Look for small stitches and a firm seam to keep out the rain, unless the raincoat is vinyl. Too-small stitches will tear vinyl. Stay away from seams held together with adhesive; they may separate during dry cleaning.

Durable water repellent finishes should resist at least three dry cleanings, according to Miss Reed. Some finishes are not affected by laundering; check the label. A light-colored raincoat that must be cleaned often, with the repellency replaced each time, can soon become expensive. Look for washable linings and interfacings and for color-fastness if you plan to wash your rainwear.

Quality rainwear will have a sturdy lining and the little extras such as reinforced buttons and buttonholes, extra buttons and deep pockets. Wrinkle resistance and shape retention are also important for garments worn in wet weather. Fabric blends of polyester and cotton are a great improvement over most cottons, Miss Reed believes. And, manufacturers are experimenting with durable press rainwear, so you can expect even more satisfactory performance in the future.

We're for Progress, But Powdered Plastic!

One of the favorite fun games for researchers are forecasts of what life will be like in, say, 33 years from now.

The more fantastic the predictions, the more attention they get. The more attention they get, the more fantastic they become.

A fresh one just out of the forecast factory paints a picture of the American home in the year 2000 that makes our favorite forecaster, Jules Verne, look inept.

Listen, homemakers, to what your daughters will have in A.D. 2000:

—No dusting, scrubbing or vacuuming, courtesy of sonic devices which banish dirt.

—Little or no cooking, thanks to freezer-microwave ovens.

—No dishwashing, because disposable dishes will be made from powdered plastic for each meal by a machine in the kitchen.

—No ironing, since clothes will be permanently pressed.

Sounds great, doesn't it? Or does it?

Can a freezer-microwave oven turn out a meal as good as one prepared in the year 1967 by a lovely device called a wife?

And how do you think you will like eating off dishes made out of (ugh) powdered plastic?

Now no one wants to knock the better life for womanhood. But please, Mr. Scientist, leave us a few toilsome throwbacks to the age in which we now manage to subsist.

Otherwise, we may not be able to enjoy or endure the luxuries and privileges of the Effortless Existence.

We hardy, primitive folk are used to the rigors of automatic dishwashing and eating off china. Powdered plastic, indeed!

Although this being General Conference Sunday the church schedule will be the same.

Sunday School at 10 a.m. Franklin Morgan, general superintendent, and Alvin Brown, superintendent of the Junior department. Worship service begins at 11 a.m. with the prelude. Call Reed, extension clothing and textile specialist at the University of Delaware. Fashion is beginning to catch up with rainwear, but it's really a garment bought for protection rather than beauty.

Evening gospel services begin at 7:30 with the prelude and a prayer and song service followed by the sermon. There will be special music.

The services last Sunday morning, Mother's Day, were largely 120 present. William Fisher presented flowers from the Senior Choir to Mrs. Lily Gilbert, the oldest mother present, and to Mrs. Sandra Workman, the youngest mother present.

The W.S.C.S. had charge of the services and presented a very nice program. Flowers from the W.S.C.S. were presented by Mrs. Wilbur Jump to Mrs. John P. Lemmon Sr., the oldest mother present, and to Mrs. David Marvel, the youngest mother present. The collection plates in the vestibule last Sunday was for the Mother's Day offering for the homes for the aged.

All organizations or individuals before scheduling the use of the church facilities should check with the pastor.

O.U.R. Class meeting will be on Wednesday, May 24, at 8 p.m. Hosts are Mr. and Mrs. William Fisher.

The strawberry festival is scheduled to be held on Saturday, June 3.

Mrs. William J. Johnson entered the Home of Merciful Rest, 1900 Lovering Ave., Wilmington, Thursday, May 11, where she will receive medical and nursing care.

Mrs. Alma Louhoff, of the Methodist House, Wilmington, has been visiting Mrs. Elizabeth Coulbourne, Zack Johnson and other friends in the community.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Thistlewood, sons, Fred and George Jr., were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morgan, at Lynch Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Simpson, of Newark, and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Simpson and daughter, Tracey, of Camden, were dinner guests Saturday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Simpson.

Mrs. Marguerite G. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Julius H. Cooper, Jr. and son, Charles, of Delmar, and Mrs. Jack Waples, of Milford, spent Mother's Day with Lt. Col. (Ret.) Randolph G. Cooper and family in McLean, Va. They also visited the Kennedy Grave and Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery.

Teen sews her way to the top—Susan Comegys, Fox Hall 4-H'er, was named Kent County Dress Revue Princess. Susan's turquoise wool dress with a cowl neck-line proved her skill as a seamstress. Senior Court members were: Kathleen Ogg, Terry Bowman, Janice Harrison, Beatrice Stayton, Joy Gooden, Emily McKnatt, Patti Stites, Lynn Stayton, Marjorie Hudson and Cindy Hawke. The revue began with the old fashions modeled by Mrs. Becky Nickerson, Mrs. Nancy Roy, Janet Clendaniel and Delores Tinley, made a hit in their flapper dresses. Escorts for these girls were Harvey Thomas and George Grampp.

The four narrators—Joy Gooden, Beverly Lucks, Marjorie Hudson and Patti Stites—created a bit of excitement as they entered the Go Go Cage in their MOD outfits, provided by W. T. Grant Company, Rodney Village. The awards for the Senior, Junior and Petite Courts were provided by the Kent County Links. Ribbons were provided by Buchanan's Service Inc.

J. D. Parker, 11, Runs 2.41.8 Half In New Jersey

Jackie D. Parker, an 11-year-old, sixth-grader, is logging times in track meets, that some high school freshmen runners would be proud to own.

At Penns Grove, N. J., in late April, the slender, blonde, Harringtonian ran 660 yards in 2.03 against an entry list from Wilmington, Philadelphia and New Jersey. The second-place finish trailed by 30 yards.

Last Saturday in the second of three open meets held by the Salem County YMCA, Jackie moved up to the half mile. He led most of the way, was passed on the final curve, but was gaining again on the leader as the race ended. The winning time was 2.41.4 with Parker stopping the clock at 2.41.8, compared to his best previous 880 effort of 2.45.

The race winner in the Midget (10-11) class is a tall, well-built lad, who could pass for 13 or 14 years of age. He ran second to the Harrington lad in the April test. Since he lives in an area where track for youngsters is commonplace, it is probable that he gets more opportunities to compete, than does Parker. At any rate Jackie D. did very well, as his 2.41.8 is better than any junior high (grade 7, 8, 9) half-mile at H.H.S. this year, except for a 2.23 by Allan Parker, 14, and a 2.37 by Bob Smith, 13, two boys, who were excellent cross-country runners last fall on state champion H.H.S. cross-country teams. Both have many more miles of competition and training, than does the youthful newcomer.

In the bantam (8-9) class, three local third-graders took the starting line for the 440 yard run. Ray Gannon, 8, had the fastest practice time of 85.8 seconds. Mark Krouse, 9, had done 87 flat and Howard Parker, 8, had been timed in 90 seconds.

Through a misunderstanding, Parker and Gannon had to accept bad starting places on the outside. In addition, Gannon had stomach pains probably resulting from nervousness (his first race ever) and a too-light breakfast. His ninety second time got him sixth place in a race won in 84.2. Except for his bad racing luck, he could easily have been first or second.

Howard Parker chopped two seconds off his best previous time trial and tied for fourth place in 88 seconds.

Mark Krouse also ran in record time (86.9) to win the third place ribbon and start a trophy collection which could be an extensive assortment some day, if his interest in track continues.

A larger local entry list is slated to make the trip to Penns Grove tomorrow for the last in the series of three Salem County YMCA competitions.

Rain Halts Lion Threat, Felton Wins, 3-1

Felton High's Green Devils are entering the final stages of the Henlopen Conference baseball season with a fine 8-2 record, after edging Harrington 3-1, in a game halted by rain after six innings.

Felton's two losses this campaign were by one run each, at the hands of Selbyville and undefeated Dover Air.

Howard Brown of the Lions and Chris Moore of Felton hooked up in a mound duel which saw the winners break a 1-1 tie with two runs in the fourth inning.

Harrington had a run in and the tying tally on base in the seventh inning, when rain washed out the contest and the score reverted to the 3-1 final count.

Moore and Nashold accounted for four of Felton's seven hits. Chester Scott connected safely twice for Harrington.

Bob Dill No-Hits Lord Baltimore

Bob Dill was wild but effective as Lord Baltimore's winless Eagles futilely struggled to get in the scoring column.

Although Dill walked eight and hit another batter, he fanned eleven, and allowed no hits, no the way to a 16-0 Felton victory.

The Green Devils' win was their seventh in nine starts and was paced by the hitting of freshman, Chris Moore. Moore had three hits and batted in five runs. No other Feltonian had more than one hit in the 11-hit attack, but Barrett Quail was credited with four RBIs.

H.H.S. Trackmen Trail in Close 4-Way Meet

After winning two, three-way meets, Coach Harold McDonald's Harrington High track Lions finished fourth in a quadrangular test at Millsboro last week.

Only a few points separated first-place Millsboro from H.H.S. with Milton and Bridgeville wedged tightly in between the Blue Devils and the Lions. The locals could do little right all afternoon and deserve kudos for getting close, considering the breaks that went against them, also.

Mental lapses cost the Lions three points as local runners eased up in two races, allowing rivals in other heats of the same races to post slightly better times, thus pushing the Harringtonians out of the scoring. The offenders were told to go all out to the tape, but in the heat of the battle apparently forgot to do so.

Dan Hicks, a threat in the 100 and broad jump, hurt a leg trying to turn a dangerous front flip in gym class and finished out of the money in the 100 and third in the jump, although he did manage to hit a lifetime best of 19 feet 9 inches.

Hicks, Jerry Cagle, Ken Tribbett and Jim White, clocked a swift 880 relay time of 1.37 recently but trailed Millsboro's 1.40.8 this time, as one of the Lions' spiked shoes were temporarily misplaced necessitating a much slower stint in heavier, slippery sneakers.

Unusual officiating in the weight events hurt H.H.S. When a weightman hurls a discus or shot and his momentum carries him out of the "circle" the throw doesn't count. At Millsboro, a couple of our boys were disqualified for stepping on the edge of the circle on the way in. That's a new wrinkle to us.

Another unusual situation cost the Lions precious points. In Henlopen cross-country champ Ron Morris and eighth-grader Chris Wetherhold, the locals had a solid chance to pick up as much as 17 points in the half mile and mile runs. Form held in the mile as Morris battled the powerful Millsboro senior, Harry Thielman, for most of the last lap before emerging as the victor, while Wetherhold was a close third.

Instead of giving these boys their customary rest of at least one hour between the mile and the half-mile, the shorter test was started some twenty minutes later. The Millsboro stalwart, Thielman, never even offered to abandon his supine position and do battle. Ron Morris answered the crack of the starter's pistol but was too tired to finish in the first five.

The 14-year-old Wetherhold is a superbly conditioned athlete, but is three years younger than Thielman and Morris. The eighth grader "wunderkind" not only ran but charged up the home-stretch to finish third behind a well-rested Bridgeville runner, who had not competed in the mile. Both R. Morris and Wetherhold have faster clockings than the winning 2:12.1.

In another departure from the normal track meet schedule, Nick Morris, the Henlopes top pole vaulter, was scheduled to run in the two mile before the pole vault instead of afterwards. Nick has a practice vault of 11 feet and regularly does 10 feet or better. Fatigued by the grind of eight laps, he could do only 9-6 at Millsboro, but that was enough to win, fortunately.

Jim White was in the win column for H.H.S. with a victory in his specialty, the 440. Doug Berry with a third place in the high jump prevented Millsboro from sweeping all five places there.

Danny Hitchens, another local eighth-grader, lowered his two mile time to 11.49 to continue his steady progress. Despite his youth and small size he is a surprising runner. For example, in the Dover Air, Rehoboth, Greenwood test on the same day, 12.17 took the two mile run. Selbyville versus J. M. Clayton resulted in a two mile winning time of 12.55. Several Wilmington area two mile winners recently, didn't break 12 minutes. This boy will break Jerry Grey's Lion record of 10.54 before his sophomore year is finished, if not sooner.

We don't mean to suggest that anything shady went on at Millsboro, but Harrington sure had enough bad breaks. Let's hope Dame Fortune is a little more charitable in the future.

Local Entry Wins Beagle Trial

Roger Hill Jingles bested a 28-dog field Sunday in capturing a sanctioned trial of the Diamond State Beagle Club at Petersburg. The local entry, owned by Bennie Hughes and Bob Holloway, outran Choptank Lady Skipper, owned by Bob Schriber, of Greensboro, for the 15-inch title.

Trailing were Del Line Ferd, owned by Reese Rigby, of Wyoming; Muddy Creed Raider, owned by Marvin Brown, of Frederica, and Ben Brae's Chickadee, owned by Martha Benson, of Wyoming.

Top honors in the 13-inch competition went to Taffy W, owned by Fred Wetzel, of Bear. Taffy bested 43 entries.

Bonnie K, owned by Kline Kemp, of Dover, finished runner-up. Marr's Little Joe, owned by Walter Marr, of Greensboro, placed third, followed by Rock-a-Line Little Thunder, owned by Ed Montague, of Laurel, and Del Line Chance, owned by Rigby.

Armed Forces Notes

Army Private Harold W. Hay, 19, whose foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Timbs, live on Route 11, Dover, completed a light vehicle driver course at Ft. Dix, N. J., April 24.

During the course he was trained in the operation and maintenance of military vehicles up to and including the two and one-half ton truck. Instruction was also given in the operation of the internal combustion engine and chassis assembly.

Fire Goes To Fire House

A fire was taken to the Fire House yesterday morning and extinguished after it was noticed on a pickup truck.

The flaming vehicle driven by George Wilson, of Bridgeville, was noticed by Donald McKnatt as it was coming into town on Commerce Street.

The cause of the blaze was not known, but it is believed a cigarette butt had been thrown onto burlap bags and a tire in the rear of the truck.
