

15-Cent Tax Rate Increase Seen For Kent Next Week

The Kent County Levy Court is expected to raise the county tax rate from 35c per $100 of assessed valuation to the legal 50-cent maximum Tuesday.

President Glenn A. Richter told the Levy Court Tuesday that the increase will be put off until then "even though we already know what it is going to have to be."

County Auditor Harold E. Remley has said that the 50-cent rate is necessary if the county is to finish the next fiscal year which starts July 1 in the black.

Legislation was introduced in the General Assembly Tuesday to raise from $500,000 to $700,000 the debt - limit ceiling of the county to allow short-term borrowing to keep it solvent until the end of June.

Republican Reps. Lorin B. Seabell of Dover and George Robert Quillen of Harrington introduced the measure.

Richter reported that Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr. said he would offer no help in easing the county's official burdens until county taxes were raised.

The governor has suggested legislation to remove the tax-rate ceiling entirely for Kent County and increase the property tax rate to 85 cents per $100 assessed valuation, Richter said.

"I don't think such a measure would get through the legislature even if we wanted it," he commented.

Although Terry appears unwilling to help, he continued, the state continues to burden county taxpayers by holding a large chunk of Kent's tax exempt land.

A study by the board of assessment shows that 20 per cent of the land in Kent County, with an assessed value of about $47 million is owned by the state.

No figures are available for the Dover Air Force Base, the federal government's major holding in Kent, Richter added.

Journal Cited For Public Education Assistance

Gov. Charles L. Terry, Jr. this week cited The Harrington Journal for their efforts in assisting the Delaware State Development Department's "Discover Wonderful Delaware" public education program.

The Delaware State Development Department has been circulating a 500 word article to the newspapers and a 5 minute radio program to the radio stations for the past two years in an effort to make Delawareans more aware of the heritage, history, culture and recreational opportunities offered in "The First State".

The Delaware State Development Department received a Freedoms Foundation Award this year—the George Washington Honor Medal Award—for its contribution as a government agency to a better understanding of the American Way of Life. Samuel L. Shipley, director of the Development Department, feels that the earning of this award was made possible by the cooperation of the states news media in presenting the "Discover Wonderful Delaware" series to the public. The particular cooperation of The Harrington Journal has been cited by the Governor in a formal citation issued from his office in Dover.

The citation reads: "KNOW YOU, That your efforts on behalf of the Delaware State Development Department's "Discover Wonderful Delaware" program and the citizens of the State of Delaware have been brought to the attention of the Governor, and upon personal review of your qualifications, I hereby present this citation to bear public witness to your outstanding knowledge, integrity, prudence, and ability as displayed by the evidence of your accomplishments."

Summer Music Classes Begin

The annual summer music classes sponsored by the Board of Education, Harrington Special School District, began last Monday with an enrollment of 152 boys and girls of the district. This group represents the largest ever that registered for the six-week summer session. From this number 51 children are beginners, and are enrolled for instruction in all of the fundamental band instruments, including flutes, clarinets, saxophones, trumpets, French horns, baritones, trombones, tubas, and drums.

Instruction is held on a five-day basis each week for six weeks and includes a rehearsal of the Elementary, Junior, and Senior Bands. On Friday evening, July 14, all bands will appear in an outdoor concert in front of the high school beginning at 7 p.m.

The annual trip to Hershey Park will be held sometime in July and all children enrolled are eligible to go. Another trip is also being planned to Philadelphia that will include attendance at the cinerama showing of "The Grand Prix".

Not A Union, Kent's FOP Claims

The Kent County chapter of the Fraternal Order of Police made its public debut Tuesday by claiming it is not a union and that it will never strike.

A spokesman, attorney Francis G. Autman Jr., said that the organization, which now has 100 per cent membership among Dover police excluding the chief, is a development organization which will work closely with the city in building a better force.

Autman disclosed that the group, which has existed for a year, was warmly received when it met with Mayor Crawford J. Carroll and Police Chief James E. Turner last week.

During the conference the group also presented a 26-point program, which it hopes to have enacted, by what Autman described as lobbying. He added that the group is forbidden to strike by the national organization.

The first proposal urged "retirement at a realistic age" with checks to be drawn from "a separate and vested funds." Members declined to elaborate on whether the proposed Dover pension plan would meet with the group's approval.

BUCKSON HOPES FOR DOVER RACE TRACK

Atty. Gen. David P. Buckson has announced plans to open a proposed pari-mutuel thoroughbred racing track north of Dover.

Buckson announced plans for the $1.5-million "Dover Downs" at a press conference in the Holiday Inn Monday morning and by early afternoon had two senators ready to introduce the necessary legislation.

Allen J. Cook, Senate Democratic leader from Kenton, and Sen. Andy Foltz, Dover Republican, said they would enter the legislation.

In order to build the five-eighths-mile track, thoroughbred racing laws must be changed to:

—Permit more than the present 55 days allotted in Delaware.

—Allow construction of a track less than one mile in circumference.

—Permit other than daylight racing.

Blueprints and specifications of the plant also must be approved by the Delaware Racing Commission which in the end, would issue the dates to the new track.

Buckson, who called the venture "entirely my idea; nobody else has a nickel in it," has purchased the 160-acre Thomas Murray Farm about a mile north of Dover off U.S. 13. The site is the present location of Consolidated Industries, Inc., and also of a private airstrip.

Purchase of the land, which includes 1,100 feet of frontage on U.S. 13 and 2,500 on Leipsic Road, was handled by the Nate Cohen Realty Co., of Dover. The price was $350,000.

Buckson said if the track is approved, he would like to open a 55-day meeting next February which will run into April. He envisions the programs starting at about 7:15 p.m. and lasting until roughly 10:30.

The initial facilities would include the track and stable area, a grandstand, clubhouse and (Continued on Page 8)

Contract Awarded To Build New Felton Postoffice

Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien announced that a contract has been awarded to build and rent the new post office at Felton.

The building will be owned by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Koffler, 2214 N. Market Street, Wilmington, who will rent it to the Post Office Department for five years, with renewal options running through twenty years. Located on the southeast corner of High & Railroad Ave. in the town of Felton, the structure will represent an estimated initial investment of $28,000 by the owners.

The new one story building will be air conditioned and will have an interior space of 1,785 sq. ft. It is expected to be completed on or about February 7, 1968.

Postmaster General O'Brien explained that the additional space and equipment will mean greater efficiency in line with President Johnson's directive to provide the best possible postal service at the least possible cost.

Because the building will be privately owned, the land will stay on local tax rolls. The Post Office Department's capital investment is limited primarily to postal equipment.

Mr. O'Brien said: "The nation is experiencing a dramatic expansion in mail volume and services. Post office construction and remodeling is undertaken in areas showing the most urgent needs.

"Our 40,000 postal locations will handle 74 billion pieces of mail this year, over 84 billion pieces in 1970 and approximately 100 billion pieces in 1980. To handle this tremendous amount of mail, the Department is expanding its efforts to put mechanized tools into the hands of the nation's postal workers in areas where it is economically justified."

Felton Beauty Contest June 29

Felton beauty contest will be held June 29 at 8 p.m. in the Felton School auditorium.

Sewer Referendum Will Be Held Tomorrow At Firehouse

A referendum will be held tomorrow on a bond issue of $380,000, proceeds of which will go to improve the community's sanitary-sewer system.

Voting will take place at the Firehouse from 1 to 8 p.m., Eastern Standard Time. Each taxpayer will be entitled to one vote for each dollar, or fraction thereof, of their assessment. This applies to real estate and capitation taxes.

The improvements include a new sewage disposal plant, improvements to pumping stations, extension of sanitary sewers to seven areas presently unserved, improvements to and installation of pumping stations, repairs to storm sewers to prevent leakage into the sanitary-sewer system, purchase of lands for disposal plant facilities, such as polishing ponds.

In addition to local funds, it is expected the state Water & Air Resources Commission will make a grant of $100,000. Federal funds are also anticipated but are not "being counted until the chickens are hatched."

The present sewer system, instituted in 1935, is overloaded and this has resulted in complaints from the Water and Air Resources Commission. Persons residing near an arm of Brown's Branch, into which the effluent from the disposal plant has been discharged, have complained of odors.

Farmington Housewife Shot By Attacker

A 19-year-old housewife, abducted at gunpoint from her home and shot while fighting off a would-be rapist, was reported in good condition Tuesday night at Nanticoke Memorial Hospital.

The Farmington woman, the mother of three children, was accosted in the backyard of her home while hanging up laundry, according to state police.

The woman told police that an unidentified Negro, about 40 to 45 years old, drove into the driveway of her residence, about a mile south of Farmington, at about 6:30 p.m. Monday.

The man, described as about 6-feet tall and weighing 190 pounds, asked her how he might be able to locate several persons, police said. The persons apparently were fictitious.

Subsequently, he returned to his car, took out a handgun and forced the woman into the car.

Troopers said the suspect drove about a mile south, turned onto a wooded road just off County Route 441 and attempted to assault the woman.

During her struggle with him, police said the pistol went off causing a bullet to penetrate her left hand, breaking the bones.

Police said she told them that a handkerchief was then tied about her face and he again attempted to rape her. However, the woman managed to beat off his efforts and he finally pushed her from the car.

More than 6,500 premium catalogs and exhibit entry blanks have been mailed to prospective exhibitors at this year's Delaware State Fair to be held at Harrington July 21 through July 29.

According to George C. Simpson, general manager, this is the greatest number ever mailed and reflects the record total of exhibitors at least year's fair.

"We mail a catalog to each person who has exhibited at a previous fair," he said, "in addition to anyone who writes and requests one. Our annual mailing list therefore increases along with the number of persons in the Delmarva area who exhibit here at the Delaware State Fair."

Requests for the 152-page catalog listing the entry requirements for exhibits covering all phases of farm life and home crafts should be directed to the fair office in Harrington.

"While the Delaware State Fair is still basically an agricultural show," Simpson said, "with farm families exhibiting their farm products and prize livestock, it has grown in recent years to be much more. We no longer invite the city folk to just come and see what their farm neighbors are doing. We encourage them to participate in the fair, too, by exhibiting their oil and water-color paintings, photography, flower arrangements and other urban and suburban activities.

"The substantial growth of the fair in recent years makes us sure that we are on the right track, the general manager said, when we attempt to have the fair represent all facets of life in Delaware and the surrounding area."

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

So good so many ways—that's chicken. This meat is one of the most versatile of all leading meats. It has no nationality, for it is eaten in just about every country in the world. Every place has its traditional chicken dish—in France, it's Cocq au Vin; in Italy, Chicken Cacciatore; Spain has Arroz con Pollo; Russia has Chicken Kiev; Chicken Paprika, and here at home, you name it—roast chicken, chicken a la king, barbecued chicken, chicken salad—everyone has his own special way of preparing chicken.

Turkey, too, is versatile and both turkeys and chickens are about the most economical choice of top quality protein on the market today. When buying poultry, buy by grades. The grade names are U.S. Grade A, U.S. Grade B, and U.S. Grade C. What do the grades mean? Poultry grades are based on the conformation or fleshing of the bird—the proportion of meat to bone, the "finish" or amount of fat in and under the skin, which tends to keep the meat moist and tender while cooking, and the absence or degree of defects such as cuts, tears and bruises to the skin and carcass.

The "class" of the bird, which appears on the label, is a guide to tenderness and to the appropriate cooking method. "Class" is indicated by the words "young," "mature," or "old" and by such terms as "broiler," "roaster" and "stewing". If these guides are not on the label, then ask the butcher about the poultry you are buying to make sure of what you are getting.

Cabbage shipments are arriving from several growing areas now and prices have gone way down. This is the season when cabbage is most plentiful and usually of top quality. Increased volume of cucumbers and peppers has helped send prices down on these two favorites. Asparagus, green beans, broccoli, and spinach are in moderate supply. Head lettuce continues to be in light supply and quality is only fair. There is no great change expected for some time as far as lettuce is concerned. Weather and labor problems have led to reduced head lettuce plantings and harvest.

Fruits are a bit higher this week. Watermelons have gone up as have cantaloupes, bananas and grapefruit. The season for oranges and grapefruit is about over, so enjoy them now. Peaches, blueberries and red grapes are the only fruits that are a bit cheaper this week.

Eat chicken this weekend at the Delmarva Chicken Festival in Dover! The events are in full swing at the middle school and will continue through Saturday evening.

The Saturday events are particularly attractive, starting with the outdoor barbecue division of the National Chicken Cooking Contest at 10 a.m. Then at 1 p.m. all of the national winners for the last twenty years will demonstrate the recipes for the year they won.

We can promise a rousing parade that Ralph Boyer, parade chairman, says will roll at 6 p.m. sharp starting at the Elks Hall on the Hartly road, coming into Lookerman Street, and ending up at the middle school where awards will be made. Fireworks are scheduled for 9 p.m.

An informal dance featuring the Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra at the Rodney Village Shopping Center Ballroom will wind up the public events. Tickets for this can be reserved at the Greater Dover Chamber of Commerce, telephone 734-7513.

Dairyman Bill Henderson promises fried chicken (or ham) for you on the Dairy Tour set for Wednesday, July 12. That's in case you prefer not to carry your own picnic lunch.

We're visiting four dairy farms near Elkton, Md., on this one day tour. The group starts out from Milford at 8:30 a.m. (the Hollywood Diner) and will be back there by 5:30 p.m. Those in Kent County can tag on at the Hollywood Diner in Dover no later than 9 a.m. Plan to bring the whole family and make an outing of these visits.

Copies of the detailed time schedule can be found in our office, telephone 736-1448. We will look at four herringbone parlor systems located on the farms of Carl Feucht at Middletown, Ed Ely of Elkton, Carl Stafford of Rising Sun and J. Bryan Osborne of Northeast. All of the building designs are new and feature free stalls. Some use liquid manure handling systems. We'll see both upright and bunker silos, and Ed Ely has an interesting fly control arrangement.

Farm ponds, like any body of water, attract people. So there is always the chance of a drowning.

Walter Frey, on Paul Sapp's farm east of Smyrna, is developing a safety-equipped farm pond. We hope to have pictures ready of the completed project by Farm Safety Week in July. This will be in the nature of a demonstration for any pond owner to use as a guide.

The local Soil Conservation Service office at 2319 S. Dual Highway, Dover, has other plans for such a project. Fred Mott, the conservationist, will be glad to help other farmers make safer farm ponds. His phone number is 697,3376.

What is necessary? Mark your safe swimming areas and place warning signs at danger points. Place life-saving devices such as ring buoys, ropes, planks or long poles at swimming areas. Use long planks or ladders at ice skating areas. Insist on the buddy system. Never permit anyone to swim or skate alone.

Summertime living can be hard on hot weather wardrobes, so clothes require regular and especially good care at this season.

Bright sun, sand, salt water, and oily or chlorinated fresh water all constitute hazards to bathing suits. Just rinsing under running water won't wash away salt deposits, chlorine, sand crystals sharp enough to cut fabric, and other foreign matter. Also, some zippers rust if over-exposed to salt water. These are all good reasons why suits should be swished through warm soap or detergent suds after each swim in surf, river, or pool.

"Heavy," humid air makes clothes feel damp and clammy if worn more than once without laundering. Unless lingerie and other apparel is clean, it can't absorb perspiration which serves to "air-condition" the body as it evaporates. As new perspiration remains on the skin instead of being blotted by clothes, it leaves a sticky feeling—so it is never worthwhile to wear something "just once more."

Perspiration-stained washable cottons should be laundered promptly after year. If the fabric has discolored, sponge it with a dilute solution of vinegar and water to help restore the original color. Rinse well and then launder the entire garment in clean suds.

Give special attention to stains caused by suntan lotion, insect repellent, and other seasonal cosmetics and chemicals. Rubbing such stains with thick suds before laundering will remove most of them—especially if treated promptly. Scrub grass and foliage stains with hot water and suds. If necessary, use a mild bleach on white fabric. Then wash promptly in clean suds. Caution: some synthetics and blends are permanently yellowed by chlorine bleach. Read and heed labels.

For a subtle aura of coolness and fragrance, add a few drops of cologne to the last rinse water after sudsing lingerie.

Keep a few ice cubes handy when you press freshly-laundried cottons or linens. To prevent wrinkles, ease a cube over dried-out spots to re-dampen them during the ironing.

Put damp "laundry" in the refrigerator to facilitate ironing. The combination of chilled fabric and farm iron creates steam which helps smooth out wrinkles.

Trend To Large Dairies Will Continue

Only a third of the remaining dairy farms in the U.S. are efficient and well-managed. These dairymen are making money; the other 350,000 need help to remodel or rebuild for efficiency, according to Dr. W. R. Hesselstine, extension dairy specialist at the University of Delaware.

Dairy farmers must begin to think of themselves as dairy businessmen, not just farmers, Hesselstine emphasizes, if they wish to compete successfully. Many of the dairymen who need to re-organize will decide to stop producing milk rather than make further investments. However, the remaining large, efficient production units should be able to produce enough milk for the U.S., Hesselstine believes.

Most modern production units should have a free-stall system, milking parlor, low-cost storage and mechanized feeding, he advises. For those who elect to change to a more efficient unit, the expense for a milking parlor, bulk tank, remodeling milk house, free-stall barn for 100 cows, jumbo silo and feeder and 40 more cows will probably cost nearly $60,000.

However, investing in new equipment and more cows will not ensure success; the business will require excellent professional planning before making the investment and proper financing. High production per cow and high output per worker will be essential.

The new, efficient unit should meet certain production standards including a herd average of 14,000 pounds of milk per cow or more; each worker, including the operator, should handle 800,000 pounds of milk per year. Many dairymen still have one cow for each three or four acres; not more than one cow per acre for roughage production is recommended.

Logically, cows will be fed almost entirely on corn silage throughout most of the United States. Corn silage provides high yields of energy per acre, lends itself to mechanization and present no curing problems.

However, all modern dairy units will not be large, mechanized business, Hesselstine predicts. There will still be dairy farmers with relatively small, well-managed units. These farmers will not make big investments, but they will have high production per cow and they will produce milk efficiently and therefore make a profit. The big disadvantage will be their seven-day week; large dairy operators will have a five or six day schedule for his employees.

State 4-H Conference Set For June

Nearly 150 Delaware 4-H'ers will attend the 46th annual Delaware State 4-H Conference. The 1967 meeting will be held June 26-29 on the University of Delaware campus, according to James O. Baker, state 4-H leader.

Keynote speaker, Miss Dora-thea Dillon, Hedgeville, W. Va., will describe her experiences as International Farm Youth Exchange delegate to Colombia, S. A. She spent six months living with several Colombian farm families. Miss Dillon will also act as conference song leader.

Developing the overall conference theme, "Personal Values," Mrs. Harlan P. Carter, Wheeling, W. Va., will discuss "Does It Pay To Be A Square?". The director of student activities for the School of Nursing, Ohio Valley General Hospital, is a former 4-H'er who represented her state as Mrs. West Virginia in a Mrs. America contest seven years ago.

Speakers at the three-day event will include Ray Montsalvatge, professional lecturer from Dayton, Ohio, who will demonstrate mental acrobatics in his talk on "Uncork Your Hidden Talents." Rev. Paul McCoy, Seaford, district superintendent of the Methodist Conference, will discuss "The Right to Differ."

Program highlights of this annual meeting of older 4-H members will include the state public speaking contest and the state style show competition. The 4-H'ers will take a tour of Longwood Gardens and attend the University of Delaware's Theatre '67 production of "Mr. Roberts" and a special delegates' banquet and dance. The state Links, an honorary 4-H organization, will meet to induct new members into the group.

According to Baker, the conference is designed to help delegates develop individual talents and to define their values and standards in everyday living. "The Conference challenges every delegate to gain a broader appreciation and acceptance of individual citizenship responsibilities and opportunities."

PLANNING COMMISSION APPOINTMENT

Now that John A. Bivens, Jr., director of the State Planning Office, has accepted a more lucrative post as head of a technical school at Georgetown, a replacement will be needed.

A group is looking for a successor to recommend to Gov. Terry who will make the appointment.

Why not appoint the assistant director, Rudolph Jass, to the post? And why not move the other incumbents in the office up a notch? The low man on the totem pole could come from the University of Delaware.

Jass, who will be acting director, is a capable man and is formerly planning director of Greenwich, Conn.

WE DO NOT FAVOR A DOVER RACETRACK

We do not like the attorney general's proposal to open a track for runners north of Dover, and we do not believe the Legislature should go along with it.

Atty. Gen. Buckson, who has been prominent in the harness-racing industry, says he has no desire to compete with his friends in that industry.

Here in Harrington, where the East's second parimutuel harness track was opened, we want to know: What will happen if flat racing does not pay off at Dover? Will you go back to the General Assembly for permission to go into harness racing?

"Why, 'shore'".

A Kent County legislator said Monday he believed he had enough racing in the county, and that business people complained bills were slow in being liquidated by their customers when meets were in session.

IT WILL BE CHEAPER NOW

Do not forget to vote "yes" tomorrow afternoon at the firehouse on the referendum for improvements to our sanitary-sewer system.

Let us not disillusion ourselves: We must have the improvements and they will cost less now than later, not to mention the advantage of having an earlier use of the program.

PENAL INSTITUTIONS CASH IN ON SOIL BANK

U.S. Senator John J. Williams called for a drastic curtailment of the Government's farm programs after he revealed that five farming operations received over $1 million each in 1966 to take land out of production.

The Delaware lawmaker released the names of more than 5,000 individuals or organizations who received over $25,000 last year and renewed his call for a $10,000 limit on soil bank payments.

Williams said that among the so-called farming operators were the Louisiana State Penitentiary, which received a cash subsidy of $92,135, and the Arkansas State Penitentiary, which was paid $122,090 to cut back its farm operations.

"The State of Montana is classified as a farmer," Williams continued, "and it collected $337,345 to curtail its farming operations, while the Texas Department of Correction received $288,911. The State of Washington qualified as a 'western farmer' which entitled it to $125,552.

"In addition to the five operations which were paid more than $1 million, 11 others received between $500,000 and $1 million, 258 were paid between $100,000 and $500,000, 936 received cash subsidies between $50,000 and $100,000, and another 3,939 received between $25,000 and $50,000 each," he told the Senate.

"Based on these large payments it is obvious that the small family-type farmer is not the real beneficiary of our present farm program, but rather the Government through these large payments is in reality subsidizing an expansion of the corporate-type of farming operations," William said.

"The time is long past due when this program should be curtailed and these payments restricted to an amount not to exceed $10,000 for any one farming operation."

Williams pointed out that the subsidy payments in question were part of the soil bank and acreage diversion programs and are in addition to, but not a part of, subsidies paid under price support programs.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller TIME

The Rev. Garrett, speaking at one of our Methodist Men's breakfasts recently, reminded us that time was one of the most priceless gifts in the world and subjected to more abuse than any other benefaction.

I believe it was Holmes' "Psalms of Life" in our old 5th Reader:

Life is short and time is fleeting And the grave is not the goal. Dust thou art to dust returnest, Is not spoken of the soul.

The wisest of counselors, the herald of truth, the herb that cures all diseases, time is life, and life is eternity.

Time, the bearer of good and ill Is ever near; Our golden moon of harvest days Will soon be here.

The yellow sun is heading west, Its brilliant rays on earth's soft breast, Lighting the way to that long rest, Whence comes no fear.

Time, the keeper of life and death,

Is almost run; Our books will close with legion deeds, Left yet undone.

But come the reaper when he may, 'Twill not be dark along the way, If Thou be near on that last day, We'll see the sun.

MRS. HILDA C. PETERSON

By Albert C. Price

Mrs. Hilda Cecelia Peterson was born in Eleckng, Sweden, on May 16, 1870 and came to this country at the age of 20, working in New York City as a domestic employee for approximately six years while awaiting her childhood sweetheart, John F. Peterson to arrive in this country.

After his arrival in New York City, they were promptly married in 1896 and moved to a small tenant house on the Olson Farm near Edwarsville, as the Olson family were former friends in the old country.

She states that as her husband was a tenant farmer on a share basis with the landlord, they moved quite often in the early years of their married life living on farms near Cedar Grove Church, Hollandville, and Whitelysburg and finally moving to the Darby Farm approximately three miles northwest of Harrington (now the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Vogl) in 1917 and remaining there until 1925. She and Mr. Peterson and their three children, then moved to the farm adjacent to the fairgrounds (now owned by the Delaware State Fair and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carter, an employee) until 1936. She and her daughter, Helen, then moved into a house on East Liberty Street owned by her son, John, Jr., a lineman for now Delmarva Power & Light Company, until his death in 1944. In 1956 she and her daughters, Helen and Sophia, and son-in-law, Mr. Kesler M. Farrow, built a lovely brick home on U.S. 13 just north of Delaware Avenue, which is graced with some of the most beautiful flowers and other plant life as I have ever seen.

Mrs. Peterson still is very active for one of 97, planning all the meals and doing the major part of their preparation for this family of four. She also does light household chores; can thread a needle without the aid of glasses, and possesses a very keen mind and keeps abreast of current events through her regular television programs and newscasts and also preuses two daily newspapers and looks forward to receiving her Harrington Journal for all the local happenings.

She remarked that she thinks hard work has been good for her and she has worked hard most of her life; retires each evening around 10 p.m. and arises at 6 a.m. each morning to begin preparing the family breakfast.

She is the oldest living member of Asbury Methodist Church and an honorary member of its Woman's Society of Christian Service.

Jobs Available For Youth

The Office of Economic Opportunity of Kent County has 50 job openings for youth whose families are of low income. Twenty-five of these jobs will last for ten weeks during the summer. Each work week will be of 32 hours and will pay about $40. Youth taking the ten-week jobs can either be those who plan to continue school this coming year or they can be drop-outs. The other 25 job opportunities are for drop-outs of the low income bracket and will last six months. During this time the youth will work 32 hours each week and will make about $40, will receive counseling and will be urged to continue their education in the evenings.

Both the ten-week and the six-month job opportunities are open only for youth 16 years old or older. The Office of Economic Opportunity hopes through these means not only to supply summer work for school youth but to help drop-outs to get back into

Training For Careers as a Technical Secret'y

The opening of the Delaware Technical and Community College in September, 1967, will mark the beginning of several unique training and educational opportunities for Delawareans. One of these opportunities will provide training for a career as a technical secretary. Students with this specialized training will qualify for such jobs as private secretary, stenographer-secretary, secretary-file clerk, secretary-bookkeeper, and administrative assistant. To help insure successful careers for its graduates, the training at the college will be consistent with the needs of modern business and industry. The age of specialization will also be reflected in the course options to be elected by the students. Students will specialize in training for employment in the research and development, engineering, medical-dental, or law fields. Their training will involve the techniques, office machines, and the technical vocabulary particular to that field. An appreciation of the overall industry or professional field and its place in our economy will also be studied.

These graduates will provide a valuable source of technically skilled manpower. Through their efforts, they will make an important contribution to the rapidly expanding Delaware economy.

For additional information on this or other opportunities, write or call the Delaware Technical and Community College, Southern Branch, Route 2, Box 122, Georgetown, Del. 19947. Phone: 856-6338.

Ornamental Disease Notes

By

W. J. Manning - J. W. Heuberger

"Out of sight and out of mind" is an old saying that is frequently used when referring to the roots of plants. This is unfortunate, as the roots of plants play a vital role in the growth and development of plants. Water and mineral nutrients enter through the roots, and the roots also anchor plants securely in the soil.

Plants that are stunted or off-color are good indicators of root damage. Unfortunately, when above-ground symptoms are noticed, it is usually too late to save the plant as root damage is too extensive to allow for recovery.

Plants in poorly-drained locations are very susceptible to root rot. Too much water in the soil over a long period of time leads to a very low oxygen level in the soil. Since oxygen is necessary for root growth, an appreciable deficiency results in root breakdown or decay. Excess soil water for short periods can cause enough root damage to allow certain fungi in the soil to enter the roots and destroy them.

Plant pathologists at the University of Delaware get many calls each year about deciduous and evergreen trees and shrubs that "suddenly" die in June and July. Close examination of these plants shows that they have very poor root systems. These plants do not really die suddenly. The initial root damage had occurred sometime in early spring or late winter. They appear to die suddenly since several months may pass before enough roots are destroyed to lead to the appearance of above-ground symptoms or plant death.

Site preparation is very important in preventing root rot. Poorly drained areas should be avoided or improved. Tiling may be necessary where water stands for a long time. Drainage ditches of varying sizes can also be used.

If there is standing water around your plants now, it should be drained off soon to prevent serious root damage.

Wedding Bells? Remember—Change Your Name

If you've changed your name from Miss to Mrs. recently, don't forget to let people know—important people, in addition to friends and relatives.

In the excitement of wedding plans, don't forget to change your name on social security records and insurance policies, points out Miss Coral K. Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware. Bank records, driver's license, employment records, car title, credit cards, membership cards, hospital records and stocks and bonds all need revising, also.

If you neglect these important records you could even lose some of the benefits you are entitled to—or will be someday.

Pick up the special social security form from your district social security office or the local post office and fill in your new name. Your number will stay the same, but both your maiden and married name will be recorded under the account. If you have a social security number, make this change now to avoid confusion, even if you plan to stop working or have never worked.

You may need to make insurance policy changes, too. If your parents stated a life insurance policy for you, they may want to transfer policy ownership to your name or your husband's; they'll probably also want to change beneficiaries. Of course, don't forget the responsibility for paying the premiums is now yours, too.

While you're changing beneficiaries, consider changing or adding the names of second and third beneficiaries on the policy. Tragic as it would be, the possibility of an accident involving both husband and wife does exist. Without additional beneficiaries, insurance money can be tied up in estate and not be available immediately.

If you or your new husband have a will, it will probably need revisions now. If you don't have wills, this is a good time to have them made out, Miss Morris recommends.

Weed Seeds In Soybeans Turned Down In Japan

Morning glory seed mixed in U.S. soybeans shipped to Japan is a problem again this year, according to Dr. William Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware. Japanese buyers object to morning glory seed in soybeans since some of the beans end up in food products; the Japanese consider the seed toxic even in small amounts.

Any soybeans with a morning-glory seed content of seven-tenths of one per cent or above must be cleaned under quarantine before release in Japan. Since the number of rejected lots of soybeans has risen in recent months, Mitchell urges soybean producers to eradicate morning glories from fields this year or see that the seed is cleaned.

The problem is particularly important since Japan is the number one overseas market for U. S. soybeans with purchases totaling $200 million annually.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's grain grading branch, on request from the American Soybean Association, has agreed to list morning-glory seed content in soybeans on official inspection certificates when requested by the buyer.

In addition, the association is considering further research on the side effects of morning glory seed in various concentrations in animal relations and human food. "The purpose is to determine whether the tolerance level established by the Japanese is realistic," Mitchell says. "Some people in the U.S. soybean trade consider it unnecessarily high."

Social Security News

By W. J. Bulkley

Why should a young man with a wife and children be interested in what seems as far off as social security?

To answer this question, a new booklet "Social Security Information for Young Families" is now available free of charge at the Dover office of the Social Security Administration, W. J. Bulkley, Dist. Mgr. announced this week.

Social Security is not only a retirement program; it is a social insurance plan covering families against the risks of old age, disability and death. "This is basic protection," Bulkley added, "through-out our individual working lifetime. Both disability and survivor benefits are payable regardless of age."

The booklet explains social security coverage in detail and may be obtained by writing to Social Security Administration, P. O. Box 478, Dover, Delaware; or phone 674-3610.

Card or Wristband Can Help Save Your Life

All over the world a simple six-sided figure has become the symbol of identification of personal medical problems.

The symbol was adopted by the American Medical Association some four years ago and three years ago was adopted by the World Medical Association as the universal indication that the individual displaying the sign has personal health problems that might require emergency attention.

Who should carry identification? Everyone, says the AMA. A card, such as the AMA emergency medical identification card, is useful to identify an ill or injured person, to help locate family, friends and personal physician, and to give information that will improve emergency care. People with special health problems should also wear a durable metal or plastic alerting signal device on their wrist, ankle or neck, indicating their need for special medical care.

The emergency medical identification card should note special problems that need immediate attention in an emergency or that could cause an emergency. For example, diabetics must be identified so that a person in diabetic coma will get proper treatment promptly and needed doses of insulin will not be overlooked during treatment for injury. The need for certain medicines must be known. Heart patients taking drugs to prevent blood clots may bleed profusely if injured unless they receive special care. Other people are sensitive to certain drugs and must never take them.

Epileptics could be saved much trouble and unnecessary hospitalization if they carried a card indicating that they may have seizures. Neck breathers (those who breathe through a tube surgically inserted below their "Adam's apple" must be recognizable to protect them from smothering.

An emergency medical identification kit may be obtained by addressing Box C, Emergency Medical Identification, American Medical Association, 535 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60610. Single kits are free on request. The kit contains two identification cards, a pamphlet describing the universal symbol, and a list of manufacturers of signal devices bearing this symbol.

6 Earn State Honors In 4-H Reddy Foods Test

Six Delaware 4-H club members received awards in the state 4-H Reddy Foods contest held at the Harrington fairgrounds recently (June 10). The 71 girls taking part were winners in the three county Reddy Foods competitions.

Margaret Thomas, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frances Thomas, Marydel, won first place in the senior division while nine-year-old Carol Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moore, New Castle, place first in the junior division. Miss Thomas planned a dinner menu and prepared Rolled Meat Loaf au Gourmet for her winning entry; Miss Moore decided on a picnic menu and made Famous Oatmeal Cookies.

Prize winners also included Sally Pierson, 16, Wilmington, second prize in the senior division, and Terry Gallo, 13, Harrington, second place in the junior division. Third place winners were Kathleen Ogg, 16, Magnolia, senior, and Sharon Feucht, 13, Middletown, junior. The state winners each received electrical appliances.

The Reddy Foods contests are sponsored by the Delmarva Power and Light Company, the Delaware Electric Cooperative, Inc., and the Cooperative Extension Service at the University of Delaware. The junior division includes 4-H members from 9 to 13 years old; senior division entrants are 14 through 19 years of age.

The program is designed to help 4-H club members improve their skills in food preparation and to develop wholesome attitudes, character and personality traits. The contest recognizes 4-H members in food projects, creates interest in improving food standards and stresses the importance of adequate nutrition.

Contestants are judged on the adequacy of their menu, the appearance of the table setting and the creativity and quality of the food prepared. The 4-H'ers appearance and work habits are also considered.

Ag. College, Worrilow Honored By Federal Bank

Commemorative plaques were presented June 8, to Dr. George M. Worrilow, vice president for university relations at the University of Delaware, and to the University of Delaware by Warren R. Fankhanel, president of the Baltimore district Federal Land Bank and the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Baltimore. The two plaques were authorized by President Johnson and the U. S. Congress and struck by the U.S. Mint to recognize the 50th anniversary of the federal farm credit system.

In awarding the plaque to the University, Fankhanel stated it has an outstanding College of Agricultural Sciences which has played a tremendous part in the agricultural development of this region and the entire U.S. Dr. John Perkins, University president, accepted the award on behalf of the University.

Worrilow is literally "Mr. Agriculture" in Delaware, according to Fankhanel. "The prominent role agriculture has played in Delaware over the past years has been primarily due to his efforts." Worrilow is the only individual connected with education receiving the plaque in the Baltimore district.

Fankhanel noted the farm credit system began in 1916 with the establishment of Federal Land Banks and the Joint Stock Land Banks. Since then, more than 30 major pieces of legislation or executive orders have affected farmers' credit. The farm credit system was initially a government sponsored attempt to set up a means for farmers to provide their own cooperative credit. Each of the principal agencies of the farm credit system operates under the supervision of boards set up in each of the 12 farm districts in the U.S.

WHAT YOU GET

- New Sewage Disposal Plant
- Sanitary Sewers to All Areas, Presently Unserviced, Within the City, As Follows:
 - U.S. 13 South
 - East Street
 - West Harrington
 - Franklin Street
 - Harrington Avenue Extended
 - Thomas Alley
 - North Street
- Improvements to and Installation of Pumping Stations
- Repair of Storm Sewers to Prevent Seepage into Sanitary Sewers
- Sinking Fund for Additional Sewer Extensions As Needed
- Acquisition of Land for Polishing Ponds for Disposal Plant

HOW IT WILL BE PAID

The bond issue will be for $380,000. It will be paid from an increased sewer usage fee. As an example: The average householder pays $6.50 per quarter for water, and $3.25 for use of sanitary sewer, or a total of $9.75 per quarter. The sewer usage fee, per quarter, will be increased $9.75, or approximately .1060¢ per day, a mere pittance for the benefits to be achieved.

BENEFITS TO BE ACHIEVED

Less likelihood of disease, particularly typhoid fever; fewer objectionable odors in the community; less pollution of streams; increased attractiveness to builders of homes and industry, which will bring in additional revenue to the city. Sanitary sewers mean elimination of cess-pools and cost of maintenance.

The present disposal system is 30 years old, antiquated and worn out. It will not longer serve the needs of modern demands any more than will a 30-year-old automobile.

Don Parker, C. Wetherhold Win Races In Wilmington Meet

Two top Harrington track prospects won first place awards, in the Junior Champ track meet, sponsored by the Wilmington Jaycees, at Baynard Stadium on Saturday afternoon.

Don Parker is often hard to locate when a track meet is coming up. He won't set any records for practicing much either. But when he gets on a track he is hard to beat. Last summer in 11-and-under competition in Wilmington, the Mispillion meteor was first seven times and second by inches three times in ten starts. He competed in distances from 75 to 660 yards, plus the long jump, with a sparkling 69 second quarter mile probably his best performance.

In March Parker, now 12, won a mile run at Tower Hill. Saturday, he won both trial heats in the 50 yard dash in 6.6 seconds, then took the final in 6.7. Don also captured the broad jump with a leap of 14 feet, 1 inch. Wardell Davis, a promising newcomer, gave Harrington a second in this event. Davis, too, was credited with a leap of 14-1, but Parker was awarded first place because his second best leap was better than Davis'.

Chris Wetherhold and Allan Parker, both 14, were 1-2 in the 880 yard run in the 14-15 division. Wetherhold had little competition on the final lap, as he posted a very good 2:09.4 clocking. Parker, a good half-miler, is probably capable of a 2:15 but ran out of gas after logging a too-fast 64 second first quarter.

Wardell Davis added another second-place with a spurt in the Midget 220 that just missed winning the race for him.

Ken Tribbett ran 10.6 for a second place in the Junior 100 yard dash and annexed a third place in the 220.

Doug Berry finished third in the high jump and fourth in the 100, sans spikes.

Probably the happiest youngster in the group of seven Harrington competitors was 12-year-old Tommy Clarke. In March, the sixth-grader started working out in track and soon showed great promise in distance events and above average ability in the sprints. He covered the half mile in 2:57, a feat usually not accomplished until the seventh or eighth grade. With plenty of time left to break 2:50 this spring, he was halted by an inopportune appendectomy. On the comeback trail, Clarke was second in the first heat of the Midget 50. In the semi-final 50, a late burst moved him from fourth to second, thus qualifying him for the final.

The little speedster, from Paradise Alley, was fifth in the final won by Don Parker, but had to be pleased, since he ranked fifth in an event entered by 36 boys. This entry list was by far the largest of the near-30 event competition. But the best was yet to come. Though admittedly "pooped" Tommy hung on gamely to win the third-place medal in the Midget 220. This was the first such award of a promising track career, ran the day's total for Harrington's hopefuls to an even dozen and enabled the locals for the second straight Saturday, to boast that every Harrington entrant took home at least one award.

Lloyd Shelman, a 1967 graduate of Felton High School, ran on Felton's first cross-country team last Autumn and showed great talent.

Shelman, a surprise entry in the Senior mile, astonished this viewer by leading Tower Hill's Jeff Brokaw for more than a half mile. Brokaw is only the fastest miler in Delaware High School history and probably has run 50 miles, at least, in practice and competition, for every one negotiated by the Green Devil. Although, Shelman eventually wound up with the third place medal, he showed plenty of ability and courage. Let's hope he becomes a good college runner like another Felton lad, Jim Blades, of West Chester.

With Felton's enrollment now one of the largest in the Henlopen Conference, with a big, new high school about to be built, it is this track nut's hope, that the Green Devils will continue the sport of cross-country after a fine start under Coach Buddy Bonniwell last fall. To pursue the matter further, we hope to see the Devils in action on a track of their own at Killen's Pond. Football is on the slate for this year and might kill cross-country at Felton, as it did at Greenwood. The major difference between the Green Devils and Foresters, of course, is the fact that Felton is now much larger and has pupils enough to easily field teams in both cross-country and football.

As we have often stated, many lads don't fit into a football program for many different reasons. The most important factor of these is the lack of size. If you're not big enough for the pigskin sport, cross-country can give you more recognition, in many cases, than the football players get and with only an infinitesimal amount of risks, compared to the much rougher, body contact sport.

parking. The grandstand would be heated and air-conditioned and would hold 10,000.

Buckson also added that it is his desire to use the facilities in the future as a convention center and as an arena where a great variety of sports, such as polo, football, car racing, pony races and quarter-horse races can be held.

Both Cook and Foltz agreed it was a good idea and would be of economic benefit to Kent County.

Rep. Robert W. Riddagh (R-Smpra) said, "I favor it." He said he does not expect any trouble getting the necessary legislation through the General Assembly.

It's particularly attractive, according to Riddagh, because it would provide an outlet for other sports and community affairs at no cost to the taxpayers.

Rep. Jacob W. Zimmerman, House Democratic leader from Dover, said he likes the idea because of its economic benefit, but does not like the idea of a Delaware attorney general owning the facility.

"It's a question of propriety for a person to serve as attorney general and be so closely committed to racing circles," Zimmerman said. He would not, however, say whether or not he would support or oppose the legislation.

The track would be Delaware's second thoroughbred plant and fifth pari-mutuel operation.

Delaware Park, opened in 1937 at Stanton, is the only flat track in the state, but always has raced afternoons. There has been some talk of night racing there, but track management apparently is opposed to it.

Delaware Park has always started its meetings about Memorial Day and they run through June and July.

Delaware Park General Manager E. T. (Ted) McLean was surprised by the announcement.

"It's news to me," he said. "My first reaction is when are they going to race and where are they going to get the horses? I'll have to wait for further details before commenting more."

Harness racing is now conducted at three locations. Brandywine Raceway, which was opened in 1953, is operating 92 nights this year, longest meeting in its history. Kent and Sussex Raceway at Harrington was opened with legalized wagering in 1946 and Georgetown Raceway was opened in 1965.

Buckson said legislation would have to be passed in this session of the General Assembly if his track is to open next year.

"I have no desire to affect Delaware Park in any adverse way," the attorney general added. "I'm going into the flat racing business because I have no desire to compete with my friends in the harness sport. Although some of Maryland's mile tracks run in the winter, I'm confident I can get horses and jockeys."

Buckson is a veteran harness driver, trainer and owner. He is president of the Cloverleaf Standardbred Owners Association and Harness Horseman International.

He said he wants Delawareans, particularly from the Dover area, to invest in the project, but does not want more than 100. There will be no issue of stock.

He added that if not enough people invest, he has other undisclosed means of financing the venture.

added.

In other action, the Levy Court said it will not send a representative to a public hearing Friday in Philadelphia being conducted by the Delaware River Basin Commission.

Proposals to amend the commission's comprehensive plan to include Kent's proposed county-wide sewage system and Dover Air Force Base's planned secondary sewage treatment plant will be discussed.
