

HARRINGTON SEWER PLAN IS EXPLAINED

The City of Harrington missed the State Water and Air Resources Commission deadline for submission of sewer plans for a $100,000 reason. The town's consulting engineer Dudley Willis said last week.

The commission had ordered the City to submit state plans Sept. 1, N. C. Vasuki, commission water pollution control director said.

The commission will probably ask Harrington officials to appear at the commission's next meeting and explain why the deadline was not met, Vasuki said.

But, according to Willis, he will have a good reason, at stake, he said, is the difference between the regular 30-per-cent federal aid for a sewer program or the 75-per-cent federal aid for an experimental sewer program.

The plans, he said, are now before the federal water pollution control authority for approval as an experimental project. If they are approved, Willis claimed, the town would save the 45-per-cent difference in aid on the $400,000 project, because of the unique nature of the plant's part-mechanical, part-lagoon design.

Certain administrative expenses involved in running the plant as an experimental program would have to be subtracted from that difference, he added.

Approval is expected very soon, he said, but if it is not granted, the city will pursue a similar design with home modifications.

In either case, he said, the design will be forwarded to the Water and Air Resources Commission as soon as notification of federal action is received.

Gala Celebration As Congressman Helps Welcome Steam Train

For the first time since 1949 a steam passenger train will arrive in Hockessin. The Wilmington and Western Railroad has scheduled the first of three trips to Hockessin on Sat., Sept. 9. The train is being operated by the railroad for their neighbors in the Red Clay Valley.

The train will stop at all major road crossings to take on invited guests. Special invitations are being delivered to residents of the valley.

At Hockessin a gala celebration is planned. Delaware's representative in Congress, the Honorable William V. Roth, Jr., will address the gathering at Hockessin. The band from the Kennett High School, Kennett Square, Pa., will play for the throng.

The last steam passenger train all the way up the Landenberg Subdivision was a special train chartered by the Philadelphia Chapter, National Railway Historical Society in 1949. The Wilmington and Western R. R. hopes to run frequent service to Hockessin by next year.

The special train will leave Marshallton at 9:30 a.m. and arrive at Hockessin at 10:50 a.m. The train will stop at a site near the fire house in Hockessin. There is ample parking at Green. (Continued on Page 5)

William Hopkins, deputy state park director, said the federal share would be about $244,515.

The 433-acre park was acquired by the State Park Department in August 1966.

Office on Children And Youth Moved to Dover

The office of the Delaware Commission on Children and Youth has been moved from Wilmington to Dover Dr. Ruth M. Laws, Commission chairman, announced this week. The office is now located in the Sykes Building, 45 The Green, on the third floor above the State Personnel Offices.

The Commission now has a new executive secretary, Mrs. Dora A. Back. She comes to the Commission with a wide range of education and experience. She has studied court reporting, accounting, psychology, group dynamics and leadership training.

She served as a legal secretary in the firm of Whitman, Ransom & Coulson of New York City, was office manager to the Fund for the Republic, a non-profit educational foundation, and has worked for the Ford Foundation in the office of reports, the public relations office of the Foundation from which emanated publicity, press releases and grant announcements. She has done free-lance editing and research.

In the near future, he added, the planner would also need a secretary and a full-time clerk.

The county will be more likely to get federal planning aid if it first hires a planner, Paterno has said.

One of the main jobs of a planner, said Paterno, will be to sell the idea of a county planning district to industry and the local communities. He must be able to convince them that by entering the district they will not jeopardize any local planning operations they may have begun, Paterno said.

The county also must make a better case for the economic impact of a county sewer and water system if it expects to get federal aid, said Paterno. Letters will be sent to all communi-

Casilla 2894
La Paz, Bolivia

To The Gracious People of Harrington;

I would like to take this few lines to thank the people of Harrington for the past year.

There are many things to thank you for because each of you made my visit a pleasant one. Thank you for the gifts and the parties and all the other things that brought me happiness during the year I spent in your city.

I wanted and still want to write each one of you but that is pretty hard right now. I am doing my Junior and Senior years in high school. The days are going too fast for me. I hope I can finish my studies good. In that way my parents will be really happy.

By the way, my parents want me to tell you all thank you so much for my year. They know I have had a wonderful time here, because everytime I am talking about Harrington and the people.

To each of you I send my sincerest regards and best wishes. Love,

Anita Sapunar
P.S.—I am sure you are having lots of fun with our new A.F.S. exchange student. Please help her and you will make her and me happy.

Felton School Bond Issue Sold

The only bid on $500,000 in bonds offered by Felton School District Tuesday was accepted immediately by the school board.

The bonds were sold to the Farmers Bank of the State of Delaware, which asked 4% percent interest and offered no premium. Dr. Howard E. Henry, Felton's supervising principal, said the rate was lower than the district had expected.

The $500,000 represents the local share of the $2.5 million it is expected to cost to build a high school west of Killen's Pond. Of the remainder, $750,000 will come from the state and $1,186,720 from a special state appropriation compensating the district for taking pupils from phased-out segregated schools.

District voters approved the bond issue in an April referendum.

Petersburg Man Killed in Crash

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the Pine Grove Church, near Petersburg, for James Wingfield, 53, of near Petersburg, who was killed in a two-car collision near Felton late previous Wednesday night.

Burial was in Mount Olive Cemetery.

Mr. Wingfield, employed at Maple Dale Country Club, Dover, had no survivors.

State police said Wingfield was killed when his car and one driven by David T. Hoffner, 48, of Felton, collided at the intersection of Kent County 246 and 54.

The Hoffner car had stopped for a stop sign and then crossed the road in the path of Wingfield's car, police said. After the collision, both cars jumped a drainage ditch and landed in a field, according to police.

Cleo Norris, 40, Tabor City, N. C., a passenger in Wingfield's car, was listed in fair condition at Kent General Hospital with severe cuts and bruises. Hoffner was treated at the hospital and released.

$30,000 Planning Cost Cited

Sussex County can expect to pay a planner $17,000 to head an operation which would total $30,000 to $40,000 a year, the Levy Court was told Tuesday.

Joseph T. Paterno of the State Planning Office said a man with experience and a master's degree in planning would cost about $17,000, because of the demand for planners.

In the near future, he added, the planner would also need a secretary and a full-time clerk.

KENT DELAYS ACTING ON AMBULANCE FUNDS

Kent County Levy Court Tuesday sidestepped taking action on subsidizing the Dover area's only ambulance service, claiming it could not act until it conferred with the City Council.

"It would be a little premature to act on this matter until we meet with the city," Levy Court President Glenn A. Richter told the Levy Court.

At stake is funeral director William C. Torbert Jr.'s ambulance service, which he has said he will discontinue Oct. 31 unless the county or city pays for competent full-time help to man the ambulances.

Torbert claims his commercial service lost $2,000 last year, and that he is regularly inconvenienced by calls for ambulance service late at night because he does not have sufficient help.

Some commissioners believe that a full-time commercial service is needed. Torbert's ambulances responded to 600 calls last year. Commissioner William C. Holden said "for the kind of service we need, you have to have full-time help and a 24-hour-a-day operation." As good as volunteer service is in Felton, Harrington, Camden-Wyoming, Leisic, Smyrna and Cheswold, he said. Dover still needs professional service.

Levy Court Attorney Roy Shiels, however, disagreed. "Dover is the biggest and richest community in the county," he said, "and the only one without an ambulance service."

"I don't know why we should treat Torbert any differently than we do anybody else," said Shiels.

The Levy Court annually subsidizes the six volunteer ambulance services. Torbert, however, is not granted a subsidy because he is a commercial service.

In other action, Holden charged that Richter had retained sewage expert Joseph Neel without seeking Levy Court approval.

Neel, who recently discussed lagoon treatment of sewage before the Levy Court and before a public meeting, charged $641 for his two-day visit and expenses.

Holden terms Richter's actions "very definitely improper," although probably within the confines of the law. He added that the county now has more information than it knows what to do with on the sewage problem. What it needs to do now is to act, he said.

Hughes Again Appointed To Bank Position

State Bank Commissioner Randolph Hughes, of Dover, has been reappointed to that position for a new four year term by the State Bank Advisory Board at their meeting last week.

This is the fifth consecutive appointment for Hughes in that office. He has now served a total of 16 years in the position.

During recent years, the bank commissioner has supervised the merger of a number of banks and the opening of many branches by other banks.

During his career as bank commissioner, Hughes has witnessed the assets of the banks operating in Delaware increase to more than $1 1/2 billion.

Hughes devoted practically his entire career to banking activities, having at one time served with the West Dover Trust Co., at Hartly, and was connected with a Wilmington banking institution when he received his first appointment to this present office.

He is a veteran of World War II, serving as an officer in the Navy during that conflict.

Currently, Hughes is a member of Dover City Council, having served several consecutive terms in that office.

He is also affiliated with several local organizations and serves on the Board of several institutions.

Two of 800 Census Takers Now at Work

The first two of some 800 local people to be employed as workers on the special census of Delaware are now at work.

They are Mrs. Joyce M. Grymes, of Brookland Terrace, who has been employed by the U.S. Bureau of the Census as administrative clerk in the special census office at the Wilmington Armory, and Miss Rita Tingle of Milford, who holds a similar position in the Milford office.

At present Mrs. Grymes is assisting Census Bureau supervisor E. J. Steinfeld in administering tests to other Wilmington area applicants for census jobs.

Miss Tingle is assisting Mrs. Betty Howell, census supervisor for lower Delaware, in selecting applicants from Kent and Sussex Counties.

Tests are conducted daily at the Wilmington and Milford armories, at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Last week from 20 to 40 applicants were tested during each testing period.

Applicants may come in, fill out their application blanks, and be tested all in one visit, said Brigadier General D. Preston Lee, state coordinator for the special census.

Lee urged those thinking of applying for the jobs to act early. This, he said, will insure them a better chance of selection, as well as helping the Census Bureau in its planning.

Veterans News

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—I have a rather large dividend accumulation on deposit with the Insurance Service. May I withdraw only a part of the total amount?
A—Yes. You may withdraw all or any part of the accumulated dividends.
Q—I have been receiving compensation from the Veterans Administration for many years so the VA should be familiar with my case. I recently wrote the VA requesting certain information. A letter was sent back to me asking all kinds of information such as date of birth, service number and other things like that. I answered these questions, but how come this was necessary?
A—Veterans records are all filed in the VA by claim number. If you do not include this in your original correspondence, VA has no way of identifying you. There are many veterans with the same name. In the future, include your full name and claim number, or if you don't remember your claim number include your service serial number in correspondence with the VA. This will expedite the handling of your inquiries.
Q—Is a veteran given preference in obtaining private employment?
A—A veteran is aided in obtaining private employment by the Veterans Employment Service of the U.S. Department of Labor. This work is carried on through the local State Employment Offices in each of the 50 states. A veteran also has some re-employment rights for the job he held prior to going into service. Full details may be obtained at the nearest State Employment Office.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton
Much has been written and even more said about the possibility of famine in the years to come. Yet as the Agricultural Department of the U.S. Government looks and plans ahead no such picture can be seen here.
Estimates are now being made of the basic food commodities needed by 1980. This is the way it shape up. If our population reaches 235 million people as predicted and if our diets change at the same rate as in recent years, the experts report that by 1980 farmers and ranchers must produce—as compared with 1966—eight billion pounds more red meats, nineteen billion pounds more milk, six billion more eggs, and fourteen million tons more fruits and vegetables.
To produce these needed additional quantities and also other foods, another 95 million acres of cropland would be required if yields in 1980 were the same as in 1966.
However, rising productivity and efficiency on farms and ranches may and probably will make it possible to feed 235 million people in 1980 from about the same total acreage used now. Today's farmers increasingly are applying the soil and water conservation measures needed to protect land for maximum productive use in 1980 and far beyond that date.
True famine does exist in the world today and the sad thing is that it will probably always exist to some extent. But the majority of people will have food to eat as long as man has the determination to live. Just recently a report in the Wall Street Journal stated "The World's vast supplies of oil and natural gas soon may provide a major source of food for the hungry populations of undeveloped lands." The article continues by saying that "... foods derived from fuels don't resemble oil or gas at all. In fact, during processing, the oil and gas hydrocarbons actually are consumed by bacteria that, in turn, produce a yeast-like protein in much the same way that yeast is produced for bread and beer. Scientists say the powder is rich in vitamins and contains more protein pound for pound than beef steak."

Research continues, and from research comes progress. Here is an example of research in action: The Agricultural Research Service recently reported that they have achieved a five step process for converting soybeans into full-fat flour. The process is simple and uses inexpensive and readily available equipment. Cottonseed flour is now a reality and still another source for rich proteins.

4-H Club News

With Marion MacDonald

Did spring plans for a beautiful yard this summer somehow go astray? Do the flowers look all mixed up? Are the new shrubs in the wrong places? If the answer is "yes" start now to avoid the same situation next summer.

How? By looking into the 4-H community beautification program offered to your sons and daughters by the Cooperative Extension Service. The County Extension office or local 4-H Club leader can assist in enrolling your children (ages 9 to 19) in 4-H.

If youngsters get into the community beautification program, they will soon learn how to plan and maintain an attractive yard. With a little parental encouragement they could take over planting, mowing, trimming, and in fact, complete responsibility for the home grounds.

If the yard is already in good shape, son or daughter can help with a community project. Some 4-H Clubs volunteer to landscape church grounds, eliminate blighted areas along roads leading into town; keep small parks attractive; help maintain the cemetery if no paid service is available. These activities and many more are within the realm of possibility through 4-H.

Besides the esthetic effect of the project, there is a practical aspect. Property will increase in value, and the 4-Hers themselves will earn recognition.

This year, the Sears-Roebuck Foundation, program sponsor, will give six $500 scholarships to the highest ranking members in the nation. The best individual project throughout the entire state will bring an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

Honors and the gold-filled beautification medal will be awarded to four members per county. A $25 cash award will go to the county having completed the most outstanding community beautification project.

TWO SIDES TO THE RENTAL PROBLEM

There are two sides to the rental problems, particularly when it comes to renting to members of the armed forces. There are also two sides to a piece of fly paper and it makes all the difference in the world to the fly.

There is a shortage of decent houses in Harrington for rent or sale. Consequently, it is deplorable when a member of the armed forces is turned down when he wants to rent.

The landlord's side is this: They come in for a short time and then are transferred or move closer to the base (Dover Air Base). Many times the property has been damaged and it takes the rent to fix it up. We had rather rent to someone who will stay in the property a long time.

Possibly a solution would be to get the rent in advance for a certain number of months; also to get a deposit to make up for any damage or missing fixtures. We understand things like these are done elsewhere in the nation. The telephone and power companies get deposits, do they not?

Looking at the airman's problem, he needs a place to live and why shouldn't he have it? The federal government built housing in Harrington for members of the armed forces. Lots of GI's do not want to live "on top of their work" and desire to raise their families in a normal community just like back home. Can you blame them?

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

"Don't Just Stand There and Do Nothing"

That is an expression often heard in connection with inactivity during emergencies.

Rev. Griffin, new minister at the Nazarene Church, addressing the Methodist Men's Club breakfast last Sunday at Asbury used these words in reverse: "Do Something and Stand There," for his topics, commending the group for the stand they have taken and how they are doing something about it.

Rev. Griffin concluded inspirational fifteen minute talk with the following:
 I go to church on Sunday,
 And I say a fervent prayer,
 Because I want the Lord to know
 How much I really care.

Because I want to thank Him
 For the blessings I have gained,
 Not only in the sunshine;
 But whenever it has rained.

And also I implore Him
 To bestow the grace of need,
 To make myself presentable
 In thought and word and deed.

I tell Him I am sorry
 For the sinful side of me,
 And ask Him to forgive me
 For my instability.

I go to church on Sunday
 For the wonderful reward,
 Of knowing that my heart and soul
 Are closer to the Lord.

May God bless each one of you and make you to know
 His wonderful grace in each of your lives.

Harrington has suddenly become a beehive of activity this week with opening of schools and races. The face-lifting job at the track is beyond all comprehension and we don't have to take a back seat for any on the circuit. The horses themselves seem to realize the improved environment.

Further evidence of face-lifting is noted around the barber shop near Stone's Hotel with a spinning candy-stick sign outside and an attractive price-list sign on the inside, reading:
 Haircuts, $1.25
 Flat Top, extra, 25c.
 Tonic, 25c.
 Shave, $4.00
 Shoe Shine, $2.00
 De Louse (good job) $12.50.
 Head Shave, $5.00
 Best Bet (of the day) $1.00
 Sun Tan, $10.00

Zwaanendael Museum Notes

The annual meeting of the Lewes Memorial Commission was held on Wednesday, Aug. 30, at the Zwaanendael Museum with the following members present: Mrs. Harry Clark Boden, IV, of Newark; Mrs. Robert H. Orr, of Yorklyn; Mrs. Charles F. Kemper, of Lewes; Mrs. Houston Wilson, of Georgetown and Lewes; Mrs. Frank T. Derrickson, of Lewes; Alton L. building up-keep, the budget, and plans for the future. The crator told the members about the many museum guests during the summer, especially on rainy days. The total number of visitors for August alone amounted to nearly 7000 which was more than the yearly total a few years ago.

An effort will be made to prepare prospective personnel for various types of work in a museum. The special facilities of the Delaware Art Center will be made available to students as well as tape recordings, slides, films and discussion sessions.

Among the topics to be considered by Mrs. Johnson will be museum classes for children and adults, appreciation and interpretation, circulating exhibitions, community programs, recruiting and training of volunteers, and the relationship of museum art education to general art education.

Mrs. Johnson, a well-known organizer of community art programs, is administrator of the day and night classes, exhibits and related services for the Delaware Art Center. She received her B.S. and M. MILFORD HOSPITAL total cost, will be J. Roland Dashiell & Sons, Salisbury, Md. Young and Banwell, of Wilmington, are architects for the project.

The rest of $1.8 million will be spent on built-in and movable equipment. Funds available include $350,000 in federal funds under the Hill-Burton Act; $225,000 from the Longwood Foundation and $50,000 from the Crystal Trust.

Mr. Ahlschier noted that, although funds are needed, no organized general fund will be conducted in the area. However, he said the additional money is being sought from individual contribution, industry contribution, and borrowing.

The $1,850,000 estimated cost of the project is broken down into $1,545,000 for new construction (including equipment) and $305,000 in alterations.

The program is scheduled to be complete in December of 1970. It is the first phase of a three-phase, long-range program which will take 20 years (dependent on the growth of the general area) to complete.

Total bed capacity of the hospital upon completion of phase I will be 175; 34 more than at present.

Most of the program will expand services such as emergency, electrocardiograph, laboratory, radiology, and physical therapy which have been termed "grossly inadequate" at present.

The main portion of the new construction will be in the form of an "L" shaped wing, three stories high.

The first floor will have a one-story section enclosing the space between the leg of the "L" and the present building. It will house the radiology department, central service, laboratory, physical therapy, pharmacy, inhalation therapy, and administration.

These departments will be moved from their spaces in the present building. The second floor will be a long term care, patient area with rooms designed for semiprivate and private use.

The third floor is to remain unfinished at this time. It is expected that it will eventually house an ultra-modern suite of operating rooms. The new construction will add 47,000 square feet of space to the hospital.

Space being vacated in the old building will be used to allow for general expansion of the present operating rooms, patient rooms, and emergency department.

The overall program will eventually allow for a 250 bed hospital.

The emergency department alone will more than double in capacity, expanding from three service areas to eight, including x-ray equipment and separate waiting facilities.

Houston Fire Co. News

The Houston Volunteer Fire Company met on Monday and launched their fall solicitation drive for funds in the surrounding community. It was announced by the chairman, Houston Twilley, that the area captains are: Herbert Kenton, Leroy VanVorst, Russell Hayes, Benton Hill, Donald Armour and Leslie Armour. It is requested that the community give generously when the representatives call upon you.

It was voted to sponsor the annual fire prevention contest in the Houston Elementary School. The Rev. Harry Bradford was asked to serve as chairman of the contest. Fifty dollars in prize money will be awarded for the following: Essay Contest, grades 5 and 6; Poster Contest, grades three and four; Picture Contest, grades one and two. A room award will be given to grades 1 and 2 of $5 each and for grades 3-6 awards will be made for 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, places with cash prizes of $5, $3, and $2 for each individual. Through this contest it is hoped that children will become aware of ways that they can prevent fires and promote safety in the home and community.

The company in observing Fire Prevention Week will attend the Methodist Church as a group on October 8 at 11 a.m. A report was submitted by the elected representatives, Franklin Morgan and Herbert Kenton, to the annual Delaware State Fire Convention held in Dover.

Thanks were expressed by the company to the president, Donald Armour, for the work in removing the trees in front of the fire hall. It adds greatly to the appearance of the property.

Other items of business centered on a discussion of starting a Women's Auxiliary; sponsoring a fire school; appointing a committee for a supper composed of Chairman Russell Hayes, Luther Scott, and Houston Twilley, and replacing the sidewalk that is broken. It was noted that the next meeting, October 2nd., will start at 7:30 p.m. instead of 8 p.m.

Good Attendance At Asbury WSCS First Fall Meeting

A desire to begin the work of the fall and winter seasons in the Woman's Society of Christian Service was shown by the very good attendance of members in the first fall meeting of the Asbury Methodist Church Society. Mrs. Audrey Schreck, president, opened the business meeting with a prayer, followed by the reading of the minutes and the treasurer's report.

Mrs. Norman Toadvine, vice-president and chairman of the Program Committee explained the new program booklets and announced the central theme of the year "Search for Identity".

Mrs. William Sharp, membership cultivation, announced that she had membership cards for anyone wishing to join the society.

The campus ministry secretary for the coming year will be Mrs. Edgar Graef. She has contacted and has the names of all of the Asbury students who will be attending college this year. She still is in need of addresses of servicemen from Asbury. Anyone who would like to give her an address should call Mrs. Graef at 398-3343 as soon as possible.

Army Needs Nurses

The United States Army has a critical need for 500 additional nurses between now and December 31. Sgt. Walter R. Frazier, the Army recruiter in this area, is appealing to local registered nurses to volunteer for duty as officers in the Army Nurse Corps to help alleviate the shortage caused by the recent expansion of the Army, particularly the build-up of our forces in Vietnam. Nurses experienced in such specialties as medical-surgical nursing, anesthesiology, and operating room nursing are especially needed in Vietnam.

Qualified volunteer nurses will be assigned directly to their choice of available hospital areas, including Europe, the Far East, Alaska and in the continental United States. Both male and female nurses, between the ages of 20 and 35, are eligible. Married female nurses are acceptable if they have no dependents under 15 years of age. Male nurses have no dependency restrictions.

Accepted nurses will be commissioned as officers (from Second Lieutenant to Captain rank) in accordance with their educational background and experience. Starting pay ranges from $425 to $600 per month. Additional benefits include the opportunity for further education, 30 days paid vacation per year, free sick and dental care and world wide travel. Interested persons may contact Sgt. Frazier at 218 S. Governor's Ave., Dover, or by telephone 736-6937 collect.

Another Navy Opportunity

The Navy continues to live up to its reputation that the Navy takes care of its own. Under the Navy's Medically Remedial Enrollment program, a young man who has had no prior military service may be enlisted in the Navy although he has a certain physical defect including overweight and underweight. To be eligible a candidate must have only one physical defect and such defect must be certified by a medical specialist at the Armed Forces Entrance and Examination Station, Philadelphia, Pa. The physical defect will be corrected so that the applicant will be fit to undertake basic training six weeks after treatment. Under this program, a potential Navy man can still be guaranteed the benefits of any of the high school or special programs that are available to those that qualify.

Further information about this program may be obtained from your Navy Recruiter Chief Sanders at the U.S. Navy Recruiting Branch Station, Keith Building, Dover, or Phone 734-7319. Chief Sanders will also be at the Harrington Post Office every Wednesday from 9:30 to 10 a.m.

Film at U. of D. Show Land Problems

America is a magnificent land. Unless Americans solve the problems of land abuse, they may soon say, "America was a magnificent land."

A 28-minute color film from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, "This Land is Ours" shows many of the land problems and some of the solutions. America is vast and varied, rich and productive, but one third of the privately owned fields, pastures and woodlands suffer from abuse and neglect. Also, natural disasters each year strike many thousands of highly productive farms.

The film describes how land-water resources are rebuilt and strengthened as individuals and communities use help offered by the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP). "This Land is Ours" demonstrates the problems of the land, progress toward a solution and the story of people actually taking part in ACP special projects.

Especially valuable to conservation groups, civic organizations, youth clubs and extension groups, "This Land is Ours" is available without charge from the Agricultural Editor's Office, University of Delaware, Newark, Del. 19711.

ties in the county explaining the county system and asking for an estimate of the economic improvements to the communities if sewer and water lines are brought in.

NOTICES

Along with the letters from the communities, Paterno suggested that the Levy Court ask state agencies such as the Water and Air Resources Commission and the State Department of Health to provide proof that the county would suffer without sewer and water systems.

The Division of Urban Affairs at the University of Delaware informed the Levy Court that it had acquired the services of Samuel R. Russell, a Wilmington attorney, to look into existing legislation which might be used in the county's effort to reorganize. There is some hope that the county might be able to submit legislation for reorganization next year rather than waiting until 1969 as originally planned.

Log Contest

Predicted Around Peninsula

A predicted log contest around the Delmarva Peninsula in August, 1968, is projected by a committee of Delmarva Hospitality Incorporated as one of the big boating events on the East Coast.

Details of the contest, to be open to boats of all sizes and classes, will be worked out this fall by the committee, under the chairmanship of Charles Saunders, manager of the Delmarva Power and Light office in Laurel.

An initial planning meeting at the Greenway Inn in Salisbury, on August 30, was attended by such Delmarva boating experts as R. Gerald Pearson, of Greenwood; W. Franklin Oliphant, of Laurel, and Jeremiah Valliant, of Salisbury.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Q—In the case of serviceman's death while he is on active duty, what are the limits of the Death Gratuity and who receives it?

A—The benefit is a sum equal to six months' pay of the deceased. However, it shall not be less than $800, nor more than $3,000. It is paid to the surviving spouse, child or children unless the serviceman has designated his parents, brothers or sisters.

Q—I have remarried and my present husband has adopted my daughter. Thus she is not an orphan. Since her father died from injuries sustained in World War II, is she entitled to training under the War Orphans Assistance program?

A—The amount you may borrow is limited to 94 per cent of the present cash value of your policy. If your present loan is in an amount less than 94 per cent of the cash value, you may make an additional loan up to that limit.

Q—I attend a business school under the provisions of the New GI Bill. Is it necessary that I continue to report my classroom attendance to the VA each month?

A—Yes, your certificate and that of an official of the business school is necessary each month to insure prompt delivery of your checks. Use the pre-punched IBM card mailed to you by the VA for this purpose.

Coming Events

Mon., Sept. 18—Monthly birthday party. Come help your friends celebrate.

Thurs., Sept. 21—Bus and ferry ride, Lewes-Cape May. Cost $1 paid in advance. Reservation and money must be in by Sept. 19th. Have seats for 41. Make reservation early to avoid disappointment.

Thurs., Sept. 22—Card party. Gather up your friends and come for an afternoon's entertainment. Further details next week.

Thurs., Sept. 23—Demonstration of small appliances and suggestive menus for family of one or two. By: Mrs. Purnell, home economist of Delmarva Power & Light Company. Open to the public.

Delmarva Contest

Mr. Nabb said, would expose boatmen to all conditions of sailing, ocean, bay and canal.

Delmarva could become, Mr. Crosby believed, the Monte Carlo of the boating world.

The contest as conceived by the group would be based on port to port predictions and would be a test of navigational skill rather than of speed. There would be trophies for separate segments of the course and an overall trophy for the highest scorer making the complete circuit.

The Delmarva Cup race would, the group believed, attract news media of the sporting and boating world as well as spectators at the selected check points around the Peninsula.

The committee hopes to have a date set, classes established, course laid out and supporting communities lined up by the first of the year, in time for the big boat shows of the East Coast and announcement in boating magazines.

Exit Plans

Saves Lives

Can you get out?
If every family in Delaware could truthfully answer "yes" when asked if they have planned escape measures for their home, our whole state would be a safer place in which to live, according to Fire Marshal Favinger.

Making Delaware a safer place for living is the purpose of operation EDITH, the most important event of Fire Prevention Week. On Thurs., Oct. 12, the signal will sound at 8 p.m. and every family is urged to conduct an exit drill in their home at that time.

If any evidence is needed that it's wise to have an exit plan, says Fire Marshal Favinger, these case histories from National Fire Protection Association files will provide it:

Fire broke out in a TV set in this home. The mother, instead of getting her two children out immediately, went next door for help. On her return the home was filled with smoke and flames, and the youngsters could not be reached in time.

When fire started downstairs where his father-in-law fell asleep while smoking, the father did not waken the family. Instead he went down and helped the older man out the front door. The air thus let in freshened the fire and carried it upstairs rapidly. Although the wife got out onto a porch roof, the four children could not be saved.

A family of five, whose bedrooms were all on the second floor of the house, had not planned a second escape route in case fire blocked their stairway. One night a fire started in the living room and swept up the stairs. The father managed to escape over the porch roof, but the mother and three children suffocated beneath the bedroom window.

Have you thought what you would do if you were faced with any of these emergencies.

Make your family escape plan now, and be ready for your exit drill when the Operation EDITH signal sounds.

Special Census

To Serve Many Purposes

Delaware's special census next month will serve a number of state purposes beside reapportionment of the General Assembly.

Brigadier General D. Preston Lee, state census coordinator, said three state agencies have already made plans to utilize data from the special census, which will be conducted by the U. S. Bureau of the Census starting September 20.

The State Planning Office will make use of the census figures to update earlier population statistics from various sources, Lee said. The office is now working on a state comprehensive plan, and the availability of a current count of the people in Delaware is expected to be a major aid to the planners in their work.

for the Aging, will use census information to determine the number of persons over 60 and their distribution in various parts of the State. This information will help the commission define the scope of its programs and will also aid in planning a more detailed study specifically directed toward identifying the needs of the aging.

The State Department of Civil Defense will be able to use census data directly in the first phase of its statewide shelter program. It had previously planned to conduct its own population count to furnish current figures for determining the number of shelter spaces needed.

Applicants, especially housewives, are still being sought for some of the 800 jobs which must be filled for the census, Lee said.

Applications, which are available at post offices, armories, and State Employment Security offices, may be brought or mailed to the applicant's nearest National Guard armory.

The local Census Bureau office will notify each applicant when to report for the simple qualifying test required of each person. Those selected will begin work about September 20, Lee said, and work will continue for two to three weeks, until they complete the count in their assigned districts.

FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapa

Have you reseeded your lawn yet? I can ask this because I've just reworked my own lawn for the eighth time in fifteen years. You can still finish your job by October 1, the latest practical date to assure a good start for your new lawn.

This time I resolved to make two major changes. I live on a wooded lot and decided to take out some branches that were giving too much shade. A lawn needs at least a half day of sunlight for best growth. And I've also installed a subsurface irrigation system because the trees had been taking too much of the surface water.

It has been a real challenge to keep a lawn on a shaded lot. The grass always comes up nicely, but holding it is something else again. We want as much shade as practical and I am reluctant to thin out any more branches. If the lawn does not make it this time, then we will shift to a ground cover.

Ground covers are probably a better answer in any event for steeper slopes. A dozen or more kinds of plants are suitable as ground covers.

Call us at 736-1448 if you want more information on lawns or ground covers.

How much is a tree worth on your lawn? A fair price can be figured at $6 per square inch of trunk cross section. So says the National Shade Tree Conference and the National Arborist Association.

The figure is qualified by the kind of tree, its size and its condition. Trunk diameter is measured at 4 1/2 feet above the ground (DBH - diameter breast height). An oak tree or a dogwood is worth much more than a silver maple or a willow. Obviously a 12-inch diameter sugar maple growing on the front lawn of a $35,000 home is worth more than the same tree growing in a wooded, isolated lot.

Now figure the value of your own tree using the above formula. To find the area of the trunk at breast height, measure the diameter, halve the figure to get the radius, square this figure and multiply by 3.1416 (or Pi). A trunk has a 4-inch diameter or 2-inch radius. The square of the radius is 4. Multiply by 3.1416. The answer is 12.67 square inches multiplied by $6 gives a value of $76.02. By the same method, the 12-inch sugar maple is worth $678.00.

So plant a tree or two and watch it grow in value. Trees soften the lines of a home and otherwise add to living values. Our Extension Service Office has a bulletin describing recommended varieties. Call us at 736-1448 if you want us to send you a free copy.

It's back to school for Dick and Debbie. That means a return to books and studies. This year they will probably study the conservation of natural resources.

"We can help elementary and high school students in these studies," says Frederick T. Mott, work unit conservationist of the U.S.D.A. Soil Conservation Service with headquarters in 2319 S. DuPont Highway, Dover. "We have a number of pamphlets that they will find useful. Single copies may be obtained without cost at any SCS office."

Fred specifies these publications: "Soil Conservation at Home," "Know Your Soil," "What Is a Watershed?," "Water For Farm and City," "More Wildlife Through Soil and Water Conservation," "The Work of the Soil Conservation Service," and "Soil Conservation Districts."

"Mom and Dad haven't been overlooked either," Fred says. Publications that would be of interest to them are "Know the Soil You Build On," "Soils Suitable for Septic Tank Filter Fields," "Sediment Is Your Problem," and "Community Watershed Planning."

The pamphlets are simply and clearly written and amply illustrated.

Store new corn under insect-free conditions. Thoroughly brush walls and ceiling of storage bins and vacuum floor to remove all old grain and hidden insects. Spray ceiling walls, and floor of bins with methoxychlor (2.5%) or malathion (3% premium grade only) or synergized pyrethrum. A grain protectant (premium grade malathion or pyrethrum can be added to the grain as it is put in the bin; follow manufacturer's recommendations. Screen out rats, mice and birds. Low moisture corn is less attractive to insects, mold (fungi) and bacteria. Untreated corn that becomes infested with insects should be fumigated. Use commercially available fumigants and follow directions on label.

The giant willow aphid (a very large blackish aphid) is reported from several areas. The "honeydew" excretion from the aphids on the leaves and under the trees is attracting large numbers of bees and wasps. Spray trees thoroughly with malathion; controlling the aphids will eliminate the bee and wasp nuisance.

New U. of D. Bulletin Discusses Orchardgrass

More Delaware farmers are now using pure stands of perennial grasses for hay and pasture. The low cost of nitrogen, large yield increases and fewer problems maintaining the stand for several years are the reasons, according to Dr. William Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware.

However, stands of pure grasses will disappear just as quickly as alfalfa stands with poor management. Research began at the University of Delaware in 1960 to investigate production and harvesting problems of orchardgrass.

Mitchell compared orchardgrass yields and the number of years the stand persisted under various conditions. He investigated the effects of irrigation, two different cutting heights and several levels and forms of nitrogen.

A recent publication, "Influence of Cutting Heights, Irrigation and Nitrogen On The Growth and Persistence of Orchardgrass," reports on this research. Mitchell describes the practices needed for high yields and stand persistence.

The largest yields of dry matter were obtained with 300 pounds of nitrogen applied as ammonium nitrate in a split application, by using one-inch cutting height and irrigating. However, these were also the treatments resulting in the most plant injury and loss of stand.

A limited dry matter response resulted from surface irrigation; Mitchell suggests orchardgrass is not sufficiently responsive to justify the expense of irrigation. However, the relationship between irrigation and cutting height was significant; without irrigation, yields of grasses cut at one-inch decreased steadily.

The one-inch cutting height, irrigation and high nitrogen treatments contributed to stand losses and weed growth throughout the study. Injury was most obvious after the second and third harvest in the first season.

The most serious orchardgrass loss, according to Mitchell, was noted when nitrogen was applied in a split application. Stands were reduced to a few widely scattered crowns. However, dry matter yields are not a good measure of stand density. Mitchell says in the publication that it seems clear that close cutting will give the largest yields from a short range viewpoint. Both irrigation and close-cutting contribute to loss of stand unless the nitrogen applications are adjusted.

If irrigation and split applications of nitrogen are used, cutting height should be no less than three inches. If the orchardgrass is cut at one-inch, nitrogen must be kept to 100 pounds or less only applied in March or in the fall, according to Mitchell.

Copies of "Influence of Cutting Heights, Irrigation and Persistence of Orchardgrass" are available from the Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, Del. 19711.

Broiler Housing Seminar Planned At Substation

A British veterinarian, Dr. David Sainsbury, Cambridge, will be the featured speaker at the sixth annual Broiler Housing Seminar. The meeting is scheduled for September 27 at the University of Delaware's Georgetown Substation.

Sainsbury, lecturer in animal health at the University of Cambridge, will describe "Broiler Housing in the United Kingdom" and "Environmental Needs of Broilers and Methods of Obtaining Them." Sainsbury has traveled extensively and lectured on animal health in Europe, the Near East and Africa.

The seminar will include reports on windowless housing research, a comparison of flooring material and a discussion of financing. Poultrymen will hear about changes in broiler housing and new grade standards for plywood used in construction.

University of Delaware poultry research associate, George Chaloupka, will outline the results of a year's study on windowless housing. Additional university staff members taking part in the program include E. W. Walpole, agricultural engineer, and W. T. McAllister, extension economist.

Poultrymen planning to attend the seminar must register by September 20, according to Ray Lloyd, extension poultryman at the substation. Last year, poultry industry leaders from more than a dozen states attended the event. According to Lloyd, it is the only seminar devoted exclusively to broiler housing held anywhere in the country.

The annual meeting is sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Services of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association and Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc.

Herbicides Tested For Soybean Weed Control

Several herbicides proved effective for soybean weed control in 1967 field tests at the University of Delaware's Georgetown Substation. The research by Dr. Richard Cole, acting chairman of the department of agronomy at the university, was reported at Farm and Home Field Day, held recently at the substation.

Herbicides were applied both before planting, following planting, and soon after the soybeans emerged from the soil. A combination of trifluralin (Treflan), given before planting, and chloroxuron (Tenoran), applied at early post-emergence, gave the most outstanding weed control in the 1967 tests.

Several other herbicides gave good weed control, though the results were not as outstanding as with trifluralin and chloroxuron. An experimental herbicide, UC 22463 (Sirmate), linuron (Lorox) and CP 31393 (Ramrod) gave excellent results particularly when an adequate supply of moisture followed their application.

Many of the herbicides now available may give excellent broad leaf weed control but no grass control. The reverse situation is also true. Therefore, total weed control often requires a combination of herbicides. The use of trifluralin followed by chloroxuron give a broad spectrum of weed control to both types of weeds.

Trifluralin must be mixed thoroughly into the soil when applied to avoid loss of the herbicide. This need for adequate mixing was shown in previous tests. Chloroxuron is best applied when the plant is emerging or early post-emergence. Too-late post-emergence application may result in inadequate control.

A combination of weed control chemicals may be particularly desirable when soybean growers use narrow rows, according to Cole. It may even make seven-inch spaced plantings a reality. Some growers are considering going to drilled plantings instead of rows now that adequate herbicides are available for weed control.

Chemicals Help Release Soil From Permanent Press

Any homemaker who has tried to remove greasy stains from permanent press fabrics will welcome the latest textile development—soil release and anti-soiling finishes, according to Miss Janet Reed, extension textiles and clothing specialist at the University of Delaware.

The polyester fibers, such as Dacron, Fortel and Kodol, used in most permanent press fabrics, do not like water but they do have an attraction for grease. As a result, oily spots are not only difficult to remove but oily type dirt settles on the surface of the polyester fibers during washing and complete removal of the "built-up" soil is difficult with our present home laundering methods. Result—gray clothes. Also, and for the same reason, polyesters develop static charges; your slip or dress clings.

Textile manufacturers have come up with a solution according to Miss Reed. They developed a chemical which reacts to the surface of the fabric and allows it to become wet, removing the cause of graysness and clinging.

Don't confuse the new soil release chemicals with past attempts to solve the dirt problem. Optical brighteners in fabric finishes and in detergents just masked the dirt—they didn't solve the basic problem.

Previous fabric-finish chemicals helped prevent oil and dirt from getting into the fabric for a while. However, once the fabric was soiled, the chemicals added to the difficulty because they held the dirt even more tightly.

Help is on the way with the new fabric finishes, according to Miss Reed. Tests on treated polyester and polyester blend

Fire Company Auxiliary Notes

The regular monthly meetings of the Ladies Auxiliary will resume on September 11 in the Fire Hall at 7:30 p.m. Preparations are being made for the supper to be held on Oct. 1, from 1 to 5 p.m. The menu consists of ham, chicken salad and dump-lings. Each member is responsible for having a poster made by this particular meeting. The refreshment committee for this month is as follows: chairman, Madalyn Satterfield, Edith Shockley, Eva Raughley, Elma Oliver, Hattie Smith, and Frances Temple. Please try and attend these meetings.

U.S. Department of Agriculture chemists found another chemical treatment that does the same job for cotton durable press. Soon they will no longer turn gray from dirt that won't wash out.

Miss Reed points out that no standard official test is accepted by the textile industry to measure the effectiveness of these new soil-release finishes. Therefore, some manufacturers' claims may be misleading. However, research continues; "easy care" fabrics which are easy to wash, as well as iron, are close to being a reality.

Delaware Farm Labor News

State Summary

Reports from several growers indicate that many workers left the area over the past weekend, several families returned to Florida so their children could enter school, others moved on to previous commitments. Unfortunately most of our neighboring states indicate a need for workers, therefore, it is unlikely we will be able to obtain any additional help from them at this time. At present it appears that the only source of labor to complete the harvest will be the transfer of idle workers to various growers. To accomplish this it would be most helpful if anyone having idle workers would call 734-7438 and advise us of when and for how long their workers are available so we could give them temporary employment. This not only will help get the potatoes harvested, but if those workers still in the area are kept busy they will not be as likely to move elsewhere. The cooperation of all is needed to make this work successful.

Wilmington Area

Potato harvesting activities were at a standstill due to Labor Day weekend. Many workers were underemployed temporarily while some joined with other crews to pick tomatoes. Lima beans will start this week but no serious labor shortage is expected as this crop is mechanically harvested. Some crews probably will be short-handed as families with children will return home to put them in schools.

Dover Area

Nearly all potato growers had shut down harvesting operations until after Labor Day. Some of the idle potato crews were picking tomatoes and peppers for processing. The lima bean harvest is underway and this year's crop is expected to be very good. Approximately 18 workers are picking red delicious apples. More extensive picking is expected to start by the end of this week or early next week. Some families with children returning to school have left the area. This will cause shortages in crews with very little hope to recruit labor to replace these workers.

Georgetown Area

Late apple harvest will begin late this week or early next week. Processing lima beans, snap beans, peppers, and white potatoes. Some tomato processing plants may close end of this week. Ample labor in area at present. Farm Office at Laurel Auction Block will close this week as youth will return to school.

The Rev. William Griffin, of the Nazarine Church, was the speaker at the Methodist Men's meeting, Sunday, speaking on the subject, "Don't Stand There! Do Something!" He turned these words around by using them this way, "Don't stand there! and do nothing." He talked on wordly affairs, by saying any thing to be done, no one seems to have the time to do it and they say, let John or Sam do it.

This is the reason some things never get done he said. He also said if anything is to be done give it to the busy man and nine times out of ten it will get done sooner.

There were 26 members out for the meeting. Our own minister, the Rev. Jones graced the table, and in the absence of the president Donald Garey, the vice president, David Welch, conducted the meeting.

Marion Brown and his committee served breakfast of scrapple and eggs and coffee, with Ed Graef as chef. Thomas Clark and his committee will serve for October.

It was decided at this meeting to conduct an auction and a committee of three men was chosen as follows: Sam Short as chairman with Carl Hill and Norman Toadvine. This committee was to meet Tuesday evening but was changed to this Thursday evening. The sale will be held some time in October. Committees from the various church organizations will be asked to help in collecting and holding the auction as this will be for the whole church to participate in.

Mildew Removal Methods Given

Prolonged wet weather throughout most of Delaware has created serious mildew problems for homemakers. There are several simple, inexpensive ways to remove this fungus, according to Miss Coral Morris, home management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Sun, air and a stiff brush are the least expensive helpers, and they work on most fabrics, and surfaces. Miss Morris cautions against brushing mildewed articles indoors where the spores can cause future problems.

Other useful materials in removing mildew include lemon juice, chlorine bleach, soap suds and talcum powder.

Miss Morris has prepared a fact sheet "How to Remove Mildew" that describes the best ways to eliminate the problem on clothing, rugs, mattresses, furniture, leather, wood and paper. Copies are available from the Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, Newark, Delaware 19711, or from the County Extension Offices in Dover and Georgetown.

Flower Show Training Session Set for Juniors

A Delaware flower show training program for young people through high school age will be held September 23 in the Agricultural Hall auditorium at the University of Delaware. This is the second in the series of training programs.

Two sessions are scheduled for the September 23 program. The morning session is from 10 a.m. to noon for junior and senior high school students; the afternoon meeting from one to three p.m. is open to elementary school children. Reservations should be in by September 18; make them with Mrs. Lroy Platt, 728 W.

12th St., Washington Park, New Castle, Del. 19720.

Instruction and practice in flower arrangement and enrollment in flower show classes and the arrangement contest will be given. A change in the junior division schedule will be discussed. Two artistic arrangement classes, J 24 and J 27, previously open to elementary school children, are now also open to junior high students.

The training programs are designed to help young people plan to compete at the Delaware Flower Show, October 7 and 8, at the new fieldhouse at the University of Delaware.

NAVY AND YOU

USS TRITON, commissioned at Groton, Connecticut, November 10, 1959, is our Navy's largest and most powerful submarine. She serves as a radar picket designed as a warning station for Navy task forces. Under the command of Captain E. L. Beach, she completed a totally submerged circumnavigation of the world, following the general track used by Magellan over four centuries ago.

Lions Scrimmage Colonels and Riders

Harrington High School's football Lions had practice scrimmages with Colonel Richardson at American Corners, Md. and Caesar Rodney High at Camden-Wyoming recently.

The Lions played on even terms with the Marylanders in the first session. At Caesar Rodney the Lions were up against a stronger team than Colonel Richardson but still managed a respectable showing.

At this writing it appears that the locals' defense is adequate, while the offense needs more polish.

Greenwood will be making its varsity debut this fall, thus adding another game to the Harrington schedule for a total of ten starts. The Foresters, under coach Carl Baker, have most of last year's undefeated jayvee team back, but face a tough road ahead since it takes several years to establish football.

Harrington opens at home against Bridgeville on September 15th and hosts Delmar on September 22nd. The Mustangs and Wildcats are almost always tough. A good showing in the first two contests could help the Lions gain enough momentum, to better last season's 5-4 record, tallied in Coach Bill Muehleisen's first season as head coach.

Harrington's football teams were usually "patsies" until the Glazier-Muehleisen era. But the last four seasons have moved the locals up to a 30-42 lifetime mark and a respectable .417 average.

Milford (.451) and Georgetown (.452) are the schools the Lions will be trying to dislodge next.

The above figures apply to Kent-Sussex County teams. In Henlopen Conference competition, H. H. S. rates ahead of only three rivals at this time. Two of these, Milton and Selbyville, started football later than did Harrington.

Cross-Country Interest At Near-Record Peak

In 1965, Coach Harold McDonald had 60 cross-country runners at H.H.S. A brand new junior high football team in 1966 cut the harrier squad down to 40. From this group came a state champion cross-country team, that averaged only 1 1/2 years per boy. Since boys in grades eight and nine can win statewide recognition, it comes as no surprise that many younger athletes give this grueling sport a try. With 1966's great team still fresh in everyone's mind, it looks like 1967 will approach 1965's record turnout of sixty. Again many of these hopefuls will be younger, smaller lads who don't fit into other sports as easily, as they often do in cross-country.

Last autumn's first seven harriers will return with the exception of No. 4 man and team captain Dan Hicks. Back again is Henlopen titlist and No. 1, Ronald "The Champ" Morris; No. 2, freshman, Chris Wetherhold; senior team captain and No. 3, Nick Morris. Danny Hitchens and Allen Parker, both 14, and Bob Rash, 15, round out the six top runners.

Jack Warrington, a sophomore with two fine seasons in 1964 and 1965 returns along with Gary Simpson, 16, a top flight performer in 1965. These boys could dislodge most of the previously mentioned Lions if they get in good shape.

Roger Bullock, a 17-year-old senior, wrestled for two years and showed distance-running ability in the three-mile conditioning runs, held for a few weeks early in the wrestling season each year. A strong, compact lad with good height, Bullock just might surprise in cross-country. He has no experience but his strength and maturity at 17 could offset this lack of previous competition. With older boys like Bullock, Warrington and Simpson, augmenting a squad, that lost only a No. 4 harrier, prospects are rosy for another banner year at H.H.S.

Capable veterans returning, some of whom ran on the Lions also—state champion jayvees are Martin Adams, Richard Benson, Brinley Brode, Charles Brown, Joe Gray, Tony Kibler, John Kinney, Brad Morris, Jim Redden, Bob Smith, Billy Stubbs, Billy Walls, Bobby Legates. Many others are expected to report when the first call at school is issued. A bunch of talented 12-year-olds including Tommy Clarke, Jackie D. Parker and Donald Parker are trimming some of the freshmen already. Six of the kids made a trip to Washington College, Chestertown, Md. on Labor Day and worked out over a tough 2.5 mile section of the college cross-country course.

Coach Don Chatellier, who tutors the cross-country team at Washington College, became a member of the Danny Hitchens fan club, when he saw the tiny 70 pound freshman, finish first in an excellent 16.30. Ronald Morris was next in 16.33. Jack Warrington was third and looked very good in his first workout in two years. Roger Jarrell, Bob Smith and Donald Parker handled the rugged, hilly terrain in admirable fashion.

Guard Rifle Team Returns From Camp Perry

Members of the Delaware National Guard Rifle team returned from the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, last weekend, bringing with them seven individual awards.

Two of the Delawareans—CWO Harold R. Welch, Jr. of Harrington and SP5 Eugene A. Rodowicz of Wilmington Manor Gardens—won places in the shoot-off of the classic Wimbledon Trophy Match, consisting of 20 shots at 1,000 yards.

Rodowicz had a score of 99 out of a possible 100, with seven shots in the tiny "V" ring at the center of the bullseye. Welch shot a 98-8V.

Three awards went to two team members who had never before fired in the National Matches—two to Airman 1C Charles H. Brice of Kiamensi Gardens and one to 1st Lt. Stuart J. Scott of Lewes.

Other place awards were won by Rodowicz and by M/Sgt. Charles E. Wiggins, of Wrangle Hill Estates.

In team competition, Delaware placed 13th among the 44 state National Guard teams participating.

Other team members were Lt. C George R. Walton, Newark, team captain; Maj. Robert L. Young, Lincoln; 2 Lt. Guy T. Bowdle, Smyrna; 1/Sgt. Robert T. Connell, Odessa; PSG Walter A. Neidig, Wilmington; and SP5 William F. Blackiston, Crumpton, Md., all of the Army National Guard and Tech. Sgt. William Jones, Newark, of the Air National Guard.

Fair Hill Races To Be Held September 9

Cecil County's annual steeplechase races at Fair Hill, on September 9 and 16 this year, have been one of the outstanding horse racing events in this country for 34 years.

J. H. Tyler McConnell, president of the Delaware Trust Company and a director of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association, is general chairman of the races. He reports that "due to the copious summer rains, the Fair Hill course is at its very best for grass racing."

The course at Fair Hill was developed in 1933 by William duPont Jr. along the lines of the famous Aintree Course in England, home of England's Grand National. The races are always held on the second and third Saturdays of September.

They have been drawing the best steeplechasers in the country. The races also bring out about 15,000 spectators each of the two Saturdays. There are six events on each afternoon's program. Parimutual wagering is available in booths manned by professional clerks.

Box seats can be reserved by writing the secretary of the fair, Delaware Trust Building, Wilmington, Del.

All profits from the races go to the Union Hospital in Elkton. The hospital has received over $103,000 from Fair Hill so far.

Post time for the first race each Saturday afternoon will be 2 p.m.

On the first Saturday, Sept. 9, there will be a cattle show on the fair grounds adjoining the race course beginning at 8 a.m. On the morning of Sept. 16, also at 8 a.m., there will be a horse show.

Fair Hill races are among the widely known events by which the Delmarva area is identified.

The race course may be reached by leaving John Kennedy Memorial Highway at the Newark-Elkton Road Interchange and following the signs, or by leaving U.S. Route 40 at Elkton and following signs.

Harrington Bowling League

By Leah Wheeler

The Harrington Men's Bowling League started the season Tuesday evening at the Milford Bowling Lanes. The Standings for the first week of bowling seems to be a repetition of last year's start.

Kent Gas again this year took the lead, making a clean sweep of all four games.

McKnatt Funeral Home, Taylor & Messick and Wally's Garage, are all tied up in second place after one week of bowling, taking three out of four games apiece.

LeRoy (Hank) Wheeler set the pace in high series with a very fine 533 series. I. Hoffman bowled a fine 497, with L. Breeding right behind with a good 496 series. We expect to see more names in the high game and high series column in the weeks to come as the men hit their peak after a summer vacation from the sport.
