Progress has been made on the instigation of a tax ditch company for Brown's Branch, the City Council learned Monday night.

That group was told by Mrs. Kathryn B. Derrickson, acting city manager, that Soil Conservationist Fred Mott has started surveys and has given data on the proposed project to Pete Talbert, state drainage engineer.

Since five taxpayers have filed a petition for the company, the next step will be a public hearing, and then a referendum.

Sparked by the floods caused by a record rainfall Aug. 3-4, the City of Harrington would like a drainage project for the following area: A prong of Brown's Branch running from west of Harrington Manor where it runs into the branch and thence to Cemetery Ditch.

In other business at Monday night's meeting, other business was as follows:

Was told that W. B. Mitten & Sons, Dover, were to start construction of a dry pit, adjacent to the Liberty Street pumping station, the week of Nov. 6.

Council is thinking about a request from Peninsula Oil Company, Seaford, to enlarge a service station on U.S. 13, Harrington Manor, for Jack Pitlick who operates a garage and service station on Fleming Street.

Granted a permit to Fred Mertz to build a house, caddy-cornered, to save a maple, at Short and High Streets.

Council designated Tuesday as trick-or-treat night to agree similar nights in nearby communities. When the treat nights did not agree the children went from town to town.

Agreed to place 2-hour parking signs in the first block of Reese Avenue after complaints trucks were being parked there two and three days.

Authorized Dale Phillippi, recently appointed city employee, to purchase pickup truck from Ernest Gallo. Price quoted was around $500.

Authorized acting city manager to see Mrs. Agnes Collins, owner of a lot on Liberty Street, at Railroad Avenue, to get permission to pull out a bush obscuring the view of motorists northbound on Railroad Avenue.

The intersection, at a railroad crossing, also brought a complaint on high weeds near the crossing.

Passed a resolution underwriting a loan of $2000 by the Chamber of Commerce for Christmas lighting.

AAA Elects Markland To Board of Directors

William P. Markland, manager of the Delaware Motor Club AAA, was elected to the Board of Directors of the American Automobile Association at the 65th annual meeting held in the Shoreham Hotel, Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.

This is the first time Delaware has been represented on the national motor board.

Markland has been associated with the Delaware Motor Club for 21 years. He started as sales and service representative with the AAA office in Dover in 1946. In June 1949 he was transferred to Wilmington and made manager of the office which is now located at 911 Tatnall Street.

He is also secretary and treasurer of the Southeastern Conference of AAA Motor Clubs and has served as a director of the Conference for the past five years.

Mr. Markland lives at 1114 Grinnel Road, Wilmington, with his wife, Marian. They have two children: Deborah, 18, and William Dana, an artillery lieutenant presently training in the Ranger Course with the U.S. Army.

Dr. Turpin To Speak To Rotaries At Camden Nov. 1

Dr. James Wesley Turpin, of San Diego, Calif., is to speak to Rotarians and their wives at a 6:45 p.m. dinner meeting on Nov. 1st at Camden-Wyoming High School. The event is an Inter-City meeting of the Middletown-Odessa, Smyrna, Dover, Camden-Wyoming and Harrington Rotary Clubs.

Dr. Jim Turpin is the founder and president of Project Concern, Inc., an international, non-profit medical relief organization, whose medical teams are doing work in Hong Kong, South Vietnam, and Mexico.

Project Concern's field activities include four clinics in the British Crown Colony of Hong Kong, the most unique probably being the floating clinic which serves over 40,000 boat people in Kowloon Bay. These boat dwellers are born, raised, live their lives, and die afloat — many of them too superstitious to go ashore even for medical care, so Project Concern has anchored a modern medical facility in their midst.

In South Vietnam, a 42-bed hospital and out-patient clinics in 25 villages are the Project Concern services. The most important contributions to the health and welfare of these near destitute Montagnard tribesmen of the Central Highlands has been the training of over 35 of their own young men and women as Village and Hospital Medical Assistants. This training is a cooperative effort between Project Concern and the Government of South Vietnam, and is an investment in the future of the country. The Village Medical Assistants provide their fellow tribesmen with an increased understanding of modern health and sanitation standards, rooted in their own language and traditions.

Merger Vote Set At Two Schools

Delaware's Board of Education last week approved a Nov. 17 referendum for the proposed merger of the Bridgeville and Greenwood School Districts.

The consolidation would be among the first involving districts with high schools.

Dr. Kenneth C. Madden, state superintendent of public instruction, said the state board was pleased the two district boards had voluntarily agreed to consolidate. He said the board hoped other districts would follow suit before a mandatory deadline would force them to do so.

Optimism was expressed by district officials that the vote would be favorable and that later this school year a referendum on construction of a proposed $2.7-million high school to serve the two towns would also be approved by the voters.

"We have teachers now who don't have classrooms for their classes," Fred C. Graef, supervising principal at Greenwood, said. "Next year we'll have five without classrooms, and our enrollment is increasing 6 to 7 percent each year."

The Greenwood district has an enrollment this year of 786 students. Last year's enrollment was 732 in grades 1 through 12. Bridgeville's enrollment is about 1,700 this year, an increase of about 50 over the previous year.

Paul J. O'Bier, president of the Bridgeville school board, said the two districts have been working together for five or six years in an effort to bring about consolidation. At least 15 meetings had been held on the matter in the past, he said.

Graef explained the two districts want to merge immediately. The two school boards, he said, would become a joint board for the first year and then each successive year, two members would drop off and only one new member would be elected until the board was down from 10 to five trustees.

Easter Seal Society Spent $135,004 On Services Program

The Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Delaware spent $135,004 on its program of services for the disabled, of the State, during the fiscal year ending August 31. This figure is based on the statement of expenses by type in the audit conducted by the firm of Isaacson, Stolper & Co.

During the course of the fiscal year the course of the past fiscal year included: $40,519 spent at the Delmarva Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center, located in Georgetown, which provided more than 5000 therapy treatments to the disabled of the area; $41,000 was spent at Delaware's Eastern Seal Camp Fairlee Manor, where 184 disabled youngsters and adults spent an exciting part of their summer; $6,000 was spent on Delaware's Easter Seal Craft program for homebound adults, and nearly $2,000 was spent in the equipment loan program which provides hundreds of pieces of invalid equipment, such as wheelchairs, walkers, and hospital beds for the disabled of Delaware. Another program supported during the year by the Delaware Easter Seal Society is a scholarship program for two disabled Delawareans attending the University of Delaware in wheelchairs; a public education program which includes the publication of a quarterly newsletter the Easter Seal Round-Up; the publication of an architectural barriers booklet; a new Easter Seal Camp Fairlee Manor brochure; and other literature for the disabled and their families.

According to Lewis H. Talley, President of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Delaware, "our Delaware Easter Seal Society is one organization that spends more than 90% of its funds right here in Delaware for direct services for the disabled of the State, regardless of age, type of disability, or ability to pay". Services provided by the National Easter Seal Society to Delaware includes a research program from which substantial grants have been made to Dr. Arthur Heather at the Eugene DuPont Convalescent Hospital of the Wilmington Medical Center; and consultation and assistance on care and treatment in administrative programs by top leaders in the rehabilitation field. Contributed income to the Delaware Easter Seal Society last year totaled $106,196. The rest of the Easter Seal Society's income came from fees for services, camperships, sale of products, and investment income.

Trick or Treat For UNICEF On Monday

Final plans are completed for the annual Halloween collection, the only program in the world where children help children.

Children will congregate at the Harrington New Century Club at 3:15 on Monday, October 30, where they will be issued arm bands and coin containers. Qualified adult drivers will carry them to various streets of Harrington.

When all areas have been covered, they will be driven back to the club house for refreshments. Children of all religious denominations are invited to participate.

Trick or treat for UNICEF originated in 1950 when a few American Sunday School children resolved that rather than candy or apples for themselves, they would collect coins to help boys and girls in other parts of the world. The United Nations Children's Fund gratefully accepted a check for $17.00. Last fall 3.5 million American youths in over 13,000 communities collected over $2.7 million for the same cause.

Desperately needed food, vitamins, and medicine are supplied to needy children. Vital education and health programs are sponsored. Through UNICEF just one nickel can provide penicillin to cure two children of yaws, or 30 vitamin tablets or vaccine to protect five children from TB.

Local co-chairmen of the program are Mrs. A. B. Parsons and Mrs. Frank O'Neal. Serving on the committee are Mrs. Francis Winkler, Mrs. Oris Hobbs, Mrs. Earl Nelson, Mrs. Earl Sylvester and Mrs. Richard Shultze.

Graef explained the two districts want to merge immediately. The two school boards, he said, would become a joint board for the first year and then each successive year, two members would drop off and only one new member would be elected until the board was down from 10 to five trustees.

School Chiefs To Discuss Public Relations

The first state conference to discuss the why and how of good school public relations is set for October 25 at the Dinner Bell Inn in Dover. The conference, termed a communications forum, is open to all school district superintendents and district public relations personnel.

The event is being organized by the Public Information Office of the Department of Public Instruction. Mrs. Frances W. Merchant, public information coordinator for the department, will introduce the guest speakers. State Superintendent Kenneth C. Madden will welcome administrators to the conference. The morning session will include a discussion of why good rapport is essential for schools by Dr. Richard G. Gray, national director of Project Public Information, and a report on how to create practical avenues of communication with the community and within the school family by Lucien Haas, director of public information for the Bureau of Elementary and Secondary Education.

Dr. Gray is a former reporter and writer for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and Time, Inc., former news editor of the Tacoma Star and former editor of the Lincoln News, Tacoma, Washington. He is an associate professor at the Medill School of Journalism, Northwestern University, and holds a Ph. D. in political science and journalism from the University of Minnesota. Dr. Gray is currently directing the three-year pilot program in strengthening state departments of education through public information operations, termed Project Public Information.

Lucien Haas directs the public information operation that disseminates material from the Bureau of Elementary and Secondary Education. Prior to joining the Office of Education, Haas was press secretary for California's governor, Pat Brown.

The public relations workshop will reconvene in the afternoon for a session devoted to improving the school image through the use of radio-TV, newspapers and publications. Ann Gardner, publicity specialist, office of public information, will introduce the afternoon workshop participants. The school officers will form discussion groups on each of the three topics and will be aided by resource people from each medium. Scheduled resource guests include Don Dunwell, WNRK-Radio; Robert Lucas, Delaware ETV; Sid Shaw, WHY-TV; Kathie Dibell, Delaware State News; John Taylor, News-Journal; Edwin Golin, Gauge Corp., and Russell Powers, University of Delaware.

Plans For Improvement Of Sewer System Aimed at Jan. 15

In all likelihood, specifications for improvements to the sanitary-sewer system will be ready by Jan. 15, it was revealed at a meeting of the City Council Monday evening.

Dudley Willis, of Edward H. Richardson Associates, the city's consulting engineering firm, was advised by Mayor Fulton J. Downing to let him know if the deadline could not be met.

The date was established after the mayor, backed by the Council, told Willis he had been "dragging his feet." The Council had wanted the specifications, needed before bids could be asked, by Dec. 22. Willis countered by saying he could set a date of Feb. 1 and be sure of it.

He agreed, however, at the Council's insistence, on Jan. 15. Willis and Downing were to meet with the state Water and Air Resources Commission Wednesday afternoon to get the body's approval. The city had submitted a schedule, for the improvements, to the state group but had been running behind.

One reason for the delay was the hope of getting a federal grant for using the sewage disposal system as a demonstration project. To this end, Washington had been contacted on several occasions. Willis said Monday prospects of the demonstration project continued good. However, the Council said it could no longer wait on federal participation, in this particular field, because it would delay the sewer improvements. While it was believed $70,000 might be gained from a federal grant, it was also suggested a delay in beginning work might result in higher construction costs.

The Council had agreed that if no hope of the demonstration project was not in evidence by Oct. 1, to go ahead with securing specifications. Willis explained Monday night, however, he had misread the Council's desires.

Continuing on the demonstration theme, however, he said plans could be altered if the federal government decided favorably. The demonstration would work in this manner: After sewage leaves the disposal plant, it would go thru a couple ponds for additional purification. These ponds would also produce algae which the government believes may have a value as livestock feed.

The city opened bids Tuesday on a bond issue of $380,000 for the sewer improvements which include improvements and additions to mains, a new sewage-disposal plant, polishing ponds, and land. State and federal grants are anticipated.

Swift Song Hits Life-time Mark At Local Raceway

Mention the name Bill Brown around Harrington Raceway and you're certain to evoke a favorable comment.

It's not that Brown is a giant among horsemen, or even that he owns a consistent winner. His stable comprises just one trotter, a 6-year-old gelding named Swift Song, and he's been anything but swift—or consistent.

It's the man, rather than the horse, that makes the story in the case of Everett (Bill) Brown. He's practically a one-man gang around the stable, feeding and grooming his charge. Bill does practically everything but drive, and he'd probably give that to anyone if allowed. But he can't. You see, Bill Brown is blind, and has been since a youth of about 12 years old.

"It was a disease," explained the likeable Brown, now 53. "It started slow and gradually took away practically all my sight. I kept a little, mostly at night, but can't make out any distinguishable characteristics."

Helping Brown to bear up under the ordeal is a stray pup he picked up in the Harrington stable area a year ago. A mixed German shepherd, she's constantly at his side.

little pup that somebody kicked out," said Bill. "I took her under my wing to keep her from having to scrounge for herself. I worked her for a few weeks to be a guide dog, and she took to it immediately. It was like a miracle."

"She was a natural. At first I used some old binder twine for a harness. She was working well by the second or third day. I've never seen an animal take to anything so quickly. Then I tried her with a regulation harness my wife sent me. She made the change without a hitch."

(Brown's wife also is blind and makes a living performing secretary work in Maryland.)

The dog, now about a year old, and Brown are inseparable. They work together, play together and sleep together.

Brown is campaigning at Harrington for the third straight year. He wintered here last season and says that he's adopted it for his home. He's a native of Hicksville, Ohio, a tiny town near the Ohio-Indiana line.

"I've got to claim some place," says the soft-spoken Brown, "and I like Harrington and its people. They've been very friendly, both around the track and downtown."

Brown began racing five years ago. Swift Song was his first buy. The black gelding hasn't been a big money-winner for Brown, although this year has been his most profitable. His 1967 earnings now total $1,491 on two wins and nine money finishes in 24 starts.

Swift Song's most notable effort came here Oct. 12 when he carved out a new lifetime mark of 2:09 3-5. It provided Brown with one of his biggest racing thrills.

"It's been a long dry spell for us," he noted, "and I haven't really calmed down yet. We hadn't counted a win since the Ocean Downs meet. They tell me I was so excited that I dragged my dog halfway down the track to the winner's circle."

Brown credits driver J. D. Dennis with Swift Song's success.

"J. D. has been wonderful to me," he explains. "He looks out for me, on the track and off. He's a good, dependable driver who gets me every penny he can every time he goes out on the track."

Harness racing has helped Bill Brown. And one can't help but believe that Bill Brown has contributed something to harness racing.

Psychiatry...

Know When To Seek Help

How does one know when he should consult a psychiatrist? Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association, reports that most people who should consult a psychiatrist are likely to consider themselves as someone not needing his services.

Many shun the psychiatrist, the AMA says, because they have the distorted concept that people who are under psychiatric care are "crazy".

Psychiatrists are physicians with a special training through which they are able to help people with mental illness or emotional problems, even as other physicians are qualified to assist in physical illness. Often physical and mental ills are closely related.

Depression, or what we could call the blues, is frequently an early sign of what can become a disabling mental illness. Likewise, excitement and overactivity—although often completely normal—form an abnormal sign when they occur in the wrong place or for the wrong reason.

Other suggestive symptoms include tantrums and exaggerated expressions of anger, hysterical attacks, unfounded fear, and guilt feelings which exist without an acceptable reason.

Any of these would justify discussing the need for psychiatric consultation with your physician, or Agricultural Extension Service.

Chicken's Good Cooked Any Way

Tender, low calorie chicken is a flavor treat any way you fix it. Fried chicken is an American favorite, but it can also be broiled, boiled and used in casseroles or salads.

Chicken is available in many sizes and serving pieces; buy the one that best suits the way you plan to cook your chicken, advises Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware. The variety makes chicken suitable for individuals and small or large families. Whole chickens are often better buys than pieces for families; however, if your family prefers only certain parts of the chicken, pieces may be a better buy.

A whole chicken has two servings per pound; a breast contains three servings per pound. The whole leg—drumstick plus thigh—has two to three servings per pound while wings contain two servings per one and a half pounds and backs have two servings per one and a third pound.

Most chicken sold whole can be roasted, according to Miss Krackhardt. Those marked "roasting chicken" are young and tender-meated with enough fat to brown well at moderate roasting temperatures. Larger fryer chickens can also be roasted. However, broiler or fryers may also be simmered, steamed, braised or pressure cooked for creamed dishes, stews, soups or carteroles. This is in addition to barbecuing or cooking on a rotisserie.

More mature chickens are usually slow cooked in a covered pan with water to make them more tender. They are particularly delicious used in rich stews or casserole dishes since they are more flavorful than young chickens.

For a change, bake broilers stuffed with crabmeat or in sour cream and chives. Chicken Polynesian uses ginger, curry and slivered almonds; another oriental recipe uses pineapple, apple and chutney.

Leftover chicken has many delicious uses, says Miss Krackhardt. Serve it in hot chicken salad, or prepare chicken sloppy joes. Sliced chicken and chicken casseroles freeze readily for later use.

Fresh and cooked chicken must be kept refrigerated. For safety, keep them only one or two days.

Chicken is the ideal protein for dieters. Calories are kept at a minimum when chicken is broiled an average serving of three ounces of broiled chicken equals only 115 calories. If you fry the chicken, the calorie count goes up; half a chicken breast fried contains about 155 calories. Chicken is also an excellent source of iron, thiamine, riboflavin and niacin, Miss Krackhardt points out.

And it's inexpensive.

Swine Meeting Set For Nov. 13 At Georgetown

A swine management meeting on herd health is scheduled for November 3, 8 p.m., at the University of Delaware's Georgetown Substation, according to Dr. George Morrow, extension livestock specialist at the University. Dr. Max Lowe will discuss swine diseases. He will include information on the role of sanitation and vaccination in swine management, the symptoms of various diseases of swine and diagnostic methods used to detect them.

The first of a series of meetings on swine management scheduled during the fall and winter, this program is sponsored by Delaware Swine Improvement Association in cooperation with Dela-

No reservations are needed for this session; however, further information about the series of meetings is available from William Henderson, University of Delaware Substation, Georgetown, Delaware 19947.

Sussex 4-H'ers Win At Poultry Contest

Three Sussex County 4-H'ers attending the 30th anniversary exposition of Northeastern Poultry Producers Council, held recently in Harrisburg, Pa., all received ribbons in the egg judging competition; one team member also won honors with a poultry foods demonstration.

Miss Patricia Hopkins, Lewes, was awarded two blue ribbons in the competition. The 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hopkins received the awards for her poultry foods visual demonstration, "Delectable Oven-Fried Chicken," and for egg judging. She also served as chairman of a breakfast meeting and as song leader.

Lawrence Clendaniel, 15, son of Mrs. Doris Clendaniel, Georgetown, received a red ribbon for egg judging and Miss Kathy Hill, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hill, Lewes, earned a white ribbon in egg judging.

The three Delaware 4-H'ers joined those from 13 other states for three days of educational and social activities at the poultry meeting. The Poultry Council's youth program included seminars on career opportunities in the poultry industry, a tour of Gettysburg battlefield, special poultry science, foods, production and marketing demonstrations and the selection of the Star Poultry Farmer of the Northeast.

Mrs. Roland Hill, Lewes, and Ray Lloyd, associate extension poultryman at the University of Delaware's Georgetown Substation, accompanied the 4-H team. He also served on the youth committee and acted as chairman of the banquet committee.

Winterize Your Garden

Get your garden ready for winter so plants will stay healthy. Winter damage can be kept down by watering, mulching and screening plants now, according to David Tatnall, assistant extension agent for ornamental horticulture at the University of Delaware.

Water newly planted trees and shrubs and all broadleaf evergreens regularly until the ground freezes hard, he suggests. Despite heavy rains earlier this year, the ground is now dry because rains were insufficient in September and early October.

Broadleaf evergreen shrubs such as rhododendron, boxwood, Oregon holly grape and Chinese holly are often damaged by loss of moisture during the winter. Sweeping winds and direct sunlight make the leaves lose water faster than the roots can take it up.

Gardeners can prevent excess moisture loss by planting these evergreens only in protected locations. However, if the plants are already in an unprotected spot, put up a wind and sun screen of lath, snowfence or burlap. A mulch will also help prevent damage from moisture loss.

Alternate freezing and thawing will heave plants out of the ground and damage them severely. According to Tatnall, heaving is usually a problem with shallow-rooted plants, perennial flowers or small shrubs and trees planted late in the fall. Mulching with leaf mold, pine needles, straw or peat moss will help keep the soil temperature more uniform, and may prevent heaving damage.

You can also get rid of many garden pests quite easily this time of year, Tatnall points out. Burn obviously diseased garden refuse such as borer-infected twigs or iris rhizomes; destroy insect cocoons and tent caterpillar or bagworm egg masses. Use a dormant oil spray to kill overwintering scales, mites or insects eggs.

Mice and rabbits frequently eat the bark from trees and shrubs, causing considerable damage. A fine mesh wire barrier installed around the trunk can effectively prevent animal damage, Tatnall advises. Clean out around the base of trees or shrubs; wait to mulch with straw until the ground freezes so mice and rabbits cannot nest near the plant. Keep heavy snows removed or packed down so rodents can't reach above the barrier.

Lawns need mowing until mid-November—even after the first frost, Tatnall emphasizes. Rake up grass clippings and leaves to add to your compost heap. If the soil test shows your lawn needs liming, do it in November or early December, Tatnall advises.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

When we turn the calendar to November our thoughts quickly fly to the end of the month and Thanksgiving, that wonderful family day of fine food and equally fine conversation. Of course Thanksgiving makes most of us think of turkey which is the traditional meat for the day. This November there will be plenty of turkeys available as marketings are expected to be about four percent above a year ago and storage stocks will also be substantially higher. Be sure to use this plentiful food often, not just for Thanksgiving dinner.

What about serving turkey a la King for the luncheon set, turkey patties for the breakfast crowd, or turkey potpie, turnovers, pizza, creoles, chowder, barbecued turkey with mashed potatoes, or turkey hash with cranberry sauce. This is only the beginning of the interesting and mouth watering ways to serve this versatile food.

Pork will also make holiday meals meatier. Recent figures show an eleven per cent increase from a year ago in pork production under Federal Inspection. There will be a wide variety of pork available from breakfast cuts through roasts, hams, and budget stretchers such as sausage and bacon. A little of both items can be made to go a long way.

Young tender broiler-fryers will also be an excellent menu item during November. Supplies continue to be large and quality is good to excellent. These conditions are expected to remain the same throughout the coming month.

A new item on the plentiful list will be grape juice. True fresh table grapes are relatively light in supply this year. The reverse is true for grape juice. The juice is made from Concord grapes, almost all of which are marketed processed rather than fresh. Recent stocks of grape juice are estimated at 30 percent greater than those of last year and are the largest in the past twelve years.

Potatoes will remain abundant with the indicated fall crop twelve per cent above average. Dried split peas are another economical, nourishing food that should be very reasonably priced this November. Production this year is eleven per cent larger than a year ago. Unless split peas are to be pureed, they are best baked because they break up easily during cooking if other methods are used. Allow about 1 cup of split peas for each 2 1/3 cups of cooked peas.

Store Pesticides Carefully

Used carefully, pesticides were a friend-in-need all growin-season long on the farm and in the home and garden.

All pesticides—including mothballs—are potentially dangerous poisons, according to Frank Boys, agricultural chemist extension specialist at the University of Delaware.

The cabinet should be in a cool, dry, well-ventilated area, preferably outside the house.

When you put the pesticides into the storage cabinet, be sure caps and covers on all the containers are securely tightened.

According to Boys, general purpose garden pesticide mixes, especially wettable powders, usually break down chemically during long storage.

Boys advises planning next year to buy only the kind and amount of pesticide you will need during one season to avoid any storage or disposal problem next fall.

This coming Thursday, at 10 o'clock a.m., the Diocesan Churchwomen will hold a work shop in St. Stephen's parish hall.

Everyone should bring a box lunch for the occasion. The women of St. Stephen's are reminded that it is an honor to have the Diocesan Churchwomen to meet here.

Help Little Goblins Have Safe Trick-Or-Treating

It's witching season; three-foot high witches, goblins and ghosts will soon be knocking on doors.

A costume's mask is half the fun, yet a mask can be dangerous if it blocks your child's vision.

Costumes themselves can be hazardous, warns Mrs. Keller. Most are not fireproof, and many are extremely flimsy.

Ghosts are safer than witches—since on dark roads motorists can see light-colored costume much more clearly.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller
WANDERLUST
 (Not Winnie)

In dreams to the sea in ships some go,
 And some to the jungles wild,
 Some to the frozen arctic shore,
 And some to climates mild.

Each with a restless wanderlust,
 Seeking some inner crave,
 But following always the urge to go,
 Before they go to the grave.

Man always wanted that, something more,
 Something he'd never had,
 Maybe it's worth or worldly fame,
 Maybe it's good or bad.

To all he seemed the contented man,
 In the niche he was destined to be,
 But each, down deep in his inner self,
 Holds a yearning we cannot see.

Man always wanted to do the thing,
 He'd dreamed he would do some day,
 But it proved to be ever a will-o'-the-wisp,
 That always lured him away.

He waited and yearned from youth to age,
 Expecting to follow the urge,
 But before his secret dreams came true
 They chanted his funeral dirge.

The above lines do not apply to our own wayward wandering Winnie, who really—

Traveled around the world
 And sailed the Seven Seas
 Went from The Horn to Labrador
 The Sierras and the Pyrenees.

Visited in London, Paris and Rome
 Saw Monte Carlo's Halls,
 Spent a winter up north of Nome,
 And heard the wolf's night calls.

He says he is glad that he got around
 And now he's happy to cease,
 And settle down in his own home town,
 With his family and comfort and peace.

FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapaa

How can we farm with corn priced at 65 cents per bushel? This question is on the minds of our farmers as they harvest a bumper crop this fall.

First, let us agree on one thing. The price for new crop, dried corn is quoted at around $1.10 per bushel. Dry corn has no more than 15 per cent moisture, which is considered a safe level to store the shelled grain.

New crop corn this fall often runs 30 per cent moisture, and must be reduced artificially with a grain dryer. Dealers may charge about 3 cents a point (or 45 cents) for this service. Or 45 cents per bushel using this example. This figure to 65 cents net per bushel.

It is natural that a farmer should complain of a 65 cent per bushel net price. But he has delivered more weight of wet corn. The quoted price is on dry corn. And incidentally, this is way we measure and quote corn yield figures. In the case cited above, a yield of 160 bushels per acre measured on the scales at harvest, is actually 80 bushels of dried corn. This is because half of the total weight is water.

A farmer can do several things to improve his market price in a normal year. In 8 years out of 10, he can make money putting his crop into storage. This is because the price is usually lowest at harvest, when dealers are offered the greatest supplies. Farm storage is usually the easiest, because it is the most convenient and will not delay the harvest.

The local county ASCS office has a very attractive loan program for grain storage buildings. The payments on principle and interest are made after the crop is harvested over a period of several years. Call Lister V. Hall, Jr., the office manager, at 697-3601 for more details.

A farmer can usually save money on drying costs by owning his own equipment. But the drying system must fit the pattern of the farm. Your county agent can help you make a selection. In general, a farmer buying a new drying system should be able to use it for a minimum of 400 acres of grain per year.

The picker-sheller, or the corn combine, has complicated the corn marketing pattern. Such harvested corn must be artificially dried.

The corn picker merely husks and elevates ear corn into a wagon for hauling. Ear corn can be stored safely in bins at a higher moisture level, say 20%. This is because there is more air space than with shelled grain. Ear corn storage is usually cheaper per bushel than for shelled grain. The shelling operation need not be done until the crop is ready for actual use.

Some farmers with livestock are storing high moisture corn in the silo. Wet corn is easier to pick with fewer field losses. Isaac Thomas of Marydel likes this program. We do not recommend delaying corn harvest until the corn air-dries to a safe storage level. Stalk breakage and wind damage become greater risks as harvest is delayed. Ground traction also becomes more difficult as the ground freezes and thaws.

A final word on price. The law of supply and demand operating in a free market will determine what a person can hope to earn for his crop. Price supports and acreage controls are two means by which government attempts to assure a fair return to the farmer. If we have too big a crop, we can expect a lower market price than normal. But if the crop is short, then the demand increases as does the price.

The price is not the key. A grower rarely has much to say about this. The key is cost per bushel—and enough bushels to provide a reasonable living. I've noticed over the years that the people with the lowest costs somehow manage to do each cultural and marketing job at the proper time. Neither too early nor too late!

A supervisor will be elected for the Kent Soil and Water Conservation early in December. This is a second reminder that the landowners in the northeast section of Kent County may nominate a farmer candidate by a petition which contains the signatures of 10 landowners. This must be presented on or before Fri., November 10 to the Soil Conservation District office.

There are four elected supervisors representing landowners in their section of the county. They serve without pay for a four-year term, with one being elected each year.

The term of Charles C. Blendt of Smyrna expires at the end of December. He presently serves as vice chairman. The other elected supervisors are Isaac Thomas of Marydel, David Robbins, of Milford, and Merritt Camper of Harrington.

The northeast section of the county for this purpose is bounded on the west by the dual highway, U.S. 13 and on the south by Delaware Route 10 to Rising Sun, and from there to Lebanon and the St. Jones River.

Anyone with questions is urged to call our county extension service office at 736-1448 for answers.

News came to our office this week announcing "New Sizing" for patterns.

The Home Sewer, beginning January 1, will be able to buy a dress, suit, coat or sportswear pattern in the same size as her ready-to-wear.

Here are a few of the details you will want to know about the "New Sizing."

Only new style patterns appearing in the January 1968 catalogs will have this "New Sizing".

Patterns with former sizing will run concurrently for some time, therefore, two measurement charts will be shown in the back of the catalogs, and the "New Sizing" will be repeated throughout the catalogs. The New Sizing symbol will be in red.

As a general rule, you will be buying one size smaller in a pattern with the new sizing. In the former sizing, a 34-inch bust-line called for a size 14 pattern; now in the new sizing it will indicate a size 12 pattern, also the waistline in the new sizing it will indicate a size 12 pattern, also the waistline in the new sizing is slightly smaller in proportion to the bust and hips, bringing it in line with ready-to-wear sizing.

To determine the correct pattern size, first take your body measurements (bust, waist, hip and back waist length) measuring directly over the foundation garments you will wear. The bust measurement is the key to your correct size for all garments except skirts and pants when the waist measurement is used. Always check the measurement charts appearing in all pattern books.

The figure types remain the same except for a new Young Junior Teen figure type which will replace the Teen, Pre-Teen and Sub-Teen types.

There have been minor changes in the measurements for the Toddlers', Childrens' and Girls' patterns, but these changes do not affect the pattern size.

Century Club News

The Harrington New Century Club had an unusual program on Tuesday afternoon which was presented by Mr. and Mrs. William A. Wise to demonstrate "Wigs by Rosalie". Several wigs were displayed on heads showing the different colors, textures, styles, etc. Mr. Wise was the narrator and gave an interesting description of how wigs are made, for what purpose, and certain advantages they can serve people of today. He said the hair is sometimes artificial and sometimes really natural hair. Some women sell their hair and grow more; this is done often in Asia and in Europe. European hair is generally softer and more manageable. Under the direction of Mrs. Wise, beautiful wigs were modeled by Mrs. Nelson Rash, Mrs. Reese Harrington, Mrs. Austin Turcotte, Mrs. Jesse Trotta, (the mother of Mrs. Wise), and also by Mrs. Wise herself.

The next meeting of the club will be on November 14 when a program on education will be presented by Mrs. William G. Stokes, Mrs. Quay Rice, Mrs. Charles Peck, Jr., Mrs. Wallace Hanson, Mrs. T. H. Storus, Mrs. William W. Sharp. A novel, recommended by the General Federation, "These Are My Jewels", will be reviewed and discussed by all present.

Lion Gridders Outclass and Upset DAFB

Bill Muehleisen's Harrington High Lions played one of the best games in local grid history, when they outclassed and out-fought Dover Air's Falcons, at Dover Air on Saturday afternoon.

The final score of 19-14 is not at all indicative of the Lions' superiority. The locals rolled up 22 first downs to only a trio for the host team and amassed 335 yards to 47 for the losers.

The Falcons' four-game win streak came to an abrupt halt, as the Lions evened their record at 3 wins and 3 losses.

Dover Air opened the scoring with a quick touchdown. Quarterback Aundray Edwards tallied on a run of one yard.

Almost immediately Harrington fought back. Jim Harris turned left end on a 30 yard scamper to the Falcon 24 yard line. Steve Welch burst off left tackle for six yards. Harris was hit early but drove for six more. After a no-gainer, Harris took a pitchout for 4 yards. Welch added three yards to bring about a fourth-down-and-2 situation, at the five yard line. Harris started left, out in sharply for a first-down at the two. Dover Air may have been watching Welch and Harris, but Jack Redden crossed them up and "snuck" in for six points. A run for another point failed. Score Falcons 7, Lions 6.

Dover Air soon had to punt, after a receiver in the clear, dropped a perfect pass.

Welch's runback carried deep into Falcon real estate, but a clipping penalty set the Lions back, to their 40 yard line.

Jerry Cagle gained five yards. Welch sliced through left tackle for a first down in Falcon territory. Two plays later, Oscar Matthews was hit while juggling a pass, but held it anyway at the DA 39. After the first down was recorded, an alert defender picked off a forward and returned it to the Lion 24. After a gain of ten, the Lions dug in and took over, only to fumble the leather away at the 10. Berotti soon scored from the seven. A pass made it 14-6.

After the kickoff, the Lions lost the ball at the 23, retreated to the 15, then drove the Falcons back to the 25. Yet another Lions miscue was recovered by the Blue and Gold. Most of the Lion's fumbles Saturday were ball-handling errors, rather than as a result of getting creamed.

Muehleisen's halftime lecture was short but must have been to the point. His charges reposed with a swift touchdown scored by Steve Welch from up close.

Dover Air couldn't move the ball at all during the last two periods, as the hungry Lions smelled fresh meat. Bird steak, that's what it was.

Cagle started the winning drive with a ten yard sortie. Dover Air obliged by donating 15 more on a foul. Were they trying to hurt one of my favorite athletes? They were already cognizant of the fact, that this wasn't Lord Baltimore they were playing. L. B. had a dozen players hurt when they met the Falcons. So the Sussex County Eagles said "To heck with this noise" and sold their equipment to the fledgling Felton club.

Welch ran twice for 10 yards each time. Redden picked up five to the Falcon 26. Cagle twisted, writhed and squirmed to the 14. Redden faked a throw, as Welch drove to the 7. Redden sneaked to a first down only four yards from the wide stripe. Welch got 3 yards and 2 feet. Redden slipped over for the clincher. Welch iced the cake with an extra point run.

The fired up locals hit the kickoff receiver with such force, that his helmet went one way and a shoe another. A big back tried to turn the end but Redden slowed him up and Bill Moore applied the clincher, causing the ball carrier to fumble out of bounds. The Falcons were detected offside and soon punted against the wind. Welch ran hard and added a good second effort to get to the Air Base 29.

The bread-and-butter play, a Welch run of a fake by Redden, was good for 10 big ones. Steve's four yard blast left a Falcon on the turf for a couple of minutes. He hit the line again and bowled over tacklers to the four yard line. Two line plays fizzled but a third got inside the one yard line. On fourth down, a Lion was slow up, but didn't appear to be stopped, before he crashed into the end zone. We think a two-quick whistle robbed the winners of a fourth TD.

The Falcons desperately tried a pass on fourth down from their end zone and got away with it on a pass interference call on the 17. Bill Moore went high in the air, speared an aerial and returned it to the 25. Welch ran to the 15 in two tries. Two more efforts reached the 10. At this point the Lions cooled it, took a delay of game penalty and ran out the clock.

After that inspired effort, Harrington must be acknowledged as having a good chance for a winning season. The first four teams in the Henlopen Conference have been played. The Lions could beat any or all of the remaining four opponents.

Tonight (Friday) the Lions host Selbyville's Rebels, who upset Milton last week.

Decimated Harriers Tie One, Lose One

Coach Harold McDonald's Harrington High cross-country team, minus their No. 2 and No. 5 runners, finally came to the end of the string. Caesar Rodney tied the locals at Rising Sun last week and Seaford eked out a narrow 27-29 victory at Killen's Pond on Monday.

With Ronald "The Champ" Morris (No. 2) in the lineup, the Lions had easily beaten both teams earlier in the season. Ronald came down with bronchitis two or three weeks ago and hasn't been seen since.

Despite the loss of R. Morris, who was fourth in the state meet and 1st in the Harrington Invitational last season, the locals could still have won, except that No. 5 Lion, Bob Smith, made the mistake of playing tackle football and broke his collar bone. Smith had beaten the key men of both C.R. and Seaford earlier. The Lions could have won with either lad in the lineup. Events proved that they could spare one but not both. Thus a 30 meet win streak is ended.

At Rising Sun only four Lions of ten, who ran there in 1966, bettered last fall's time. This practically never happens to a Harold McDonald team.

Chris Wetherhold won his seventh straight race of the year, although he failed for the first time to get a course record. However, he wasn't pushed and was one of the four Lions to run better than last year.

Nick Morris saved the tie for Harrington by beating the Riders' Mike Shockley for second place. Shockley had beaten Nick at Harrington earlier.

Danny Hitchens, in fourth place, ran 12.14 compared to 12.26 in 1966.

Caesar Rodney secured the tie by finishing the next five runners. Roger Jarrell had beaten all the Riders except Shockley at Harrington, but had hurt his foot at school. The injured member was taped, but the slowed-up Lion just missed catching a Rider and giving H. H. S. the victory.

Some of the younger Lions ran very well. Jackie D. Parker, Bill Stubbs and Brad Morris led this group. Stubbs ran a minute better than he did here last year, while Brad cut off almost two minutes.

First-year runner to do a good job were Chuck Hurd (19th) John Shulties, an eighth grader (20th), Steve Gannon and Leonard Palmer, who ran a dead heat for the next spot.

While the deadlock with C. R. was a below-average effort for H.H.S., the Seaford loss saw the youthful Lions give a tremendous display of courage.

The Blue Jays only loss of the year had occurred at Seaford, when the at-full-strength Lions had prevailed. Since that defeat, the Sussex Countians had knocked off C. R. and both Salisbury, Md. teams, Wicomico High and James Bennett High.

Seaford's team is made up entirely of juniors and seniors and includes three tough competitors in Parker, Jacobs and Isaacs. The Lions had to tackle these three 18-year-old with Chris Wetherhold, Danny Hitchens, Roger Jarrell, all 14, Bob Rash, 15, and Nick Morris, 17.

It took a supreme effort to give the Blue Jays a close tussle and that effort was forthcoming.

The first twelve Lions to finish ran the course faster than they ever had before. 18 of the first 19 locals in all set new personal course records.

Chris Wetherhold, 14-year-old Lion freshman, remained undefeated in eight starts and set his seventh course record.

Nick Morris sliced off 23 seconds, freshman Danny Hitchens cut off 10. Bob Rash's only previous clocking of 16.20 was dropped down to 14.28.

Jackie D. Parker, a slim, 12-year-old, will-of-the-wisp, dropped from 14.59 to 14.36 and looks like a sure bet for a varsity berth next season. Only his age kept him off this year. Wardell Davis, 12, is having a very fine year also.

Bill Stubbs and Brad Morris ran very well and thereby hangs a tale. Each lad was near the bottom of the team, the first year they came out for cross-country. They have worked hard and now could run varsity at several of the schools in the area.

Chuck Hurd, John Shulties and Brinley Brode, Joe Gray, were pushing hard throughout the race. Anyone who thinks cross-country doesn't require courage should try to run at a good, fast clip for 15 or 16 minutes, without a breather.

Kim Hitchens is typical of the spirit of cross-country at Harrington High. Kim is small, only eleven years-old, but asks no quarter and gives none. He is willing to accept the fact, that he won't beat too many people this year, but is working hard and looking forward to the future, when he can expect to finish nearer the front each year. He cut a minute off his personal record on Monday and that certainly is progress.

The Lions current log is six wins, one defeat and one tie for 1967. Now that's not so bad after all, is it?

Harrington Bowling League

It seems that Kent Gas did not heed the warning to be wary of the lower teams as Acme really took the wind out of Kent Gas' sail. Getting a great effort from R. Gray, Acme put on the pressure and handed Kent Gas a three game loss. Gray came through for Acme with two games over 200; a great 214 and a 201 game to surpass that magic 600 mark, with a grand 604 series. Even the Kent Gas dropped three, they are still stubbornly hanging on to first place with a four game margin. Acme couldn't advance too much, but showed they could be real tough and are not to be taken for granted.

McKnat's four game effort dropped Hobbs Newsstand down a couple notches and any chance they had to advance on the leader, as three weeks remain in this third.

Taylor & Messick got fine support from F. Collins and walked over Wally's Garage Tuesday night, winning all four games. Collins' grand 500 series including a 202 game was responsible for such an effort that left Taylor & Messick in sole possession of third place, just 1/2 game behind second place McKnat's Funeral Home. They, too, are within easy striking distance of the leader.

Robbins Hardware came up with a fine three game effort against Hamilton Fund to take possession of fourth place. It was a hard loss to take for Hamilton Fund, considering another fine showing by J. Bogden, who amassed a very fine 581 series. This series also included a nice 204 game.

Jarrell Fuel and Penn. R. R. split their games, but neither moved up the ladder. D. Hayman made his usual fine contribution for Jarrell Fuel, with a good 549 series; just breaking 200 on one game.
